STRIBLING ONE OF CONTENDERS SHOWN IN FIGHT

Back in Heavyweight Class By Knocking Out Sources in Two Rounds

By United Press
MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Sept. 7.—Young Stribling of Georgia is back in the heavy weight class standing out today as one of the leading contenders for the heavyweight championship of the world.

The southern boy's victory over Johnny Squires of South Africa in two rounds at Madison Square Garden last night was a long way toward restoring him to the goal position of the most indifferently heavyweight boxer ever regarded together in one ring. His total weight was something over 200 pounds, but his value as champion prospect was nil.

George Hoffman, the former American champion, knocked out Joe DeLoach of Montreal in the fourth round of one of the preliminaries, and looked about the best of a pugilist in the world.

Stribling weighed 187 1/2, and looked very fit at the weight. He seems to have improved his attack, and displayed an effective line of jabs, hooks, uppercuts and a devastating straight right which seldom missed.

The rest of the card at Madison Square Garden included some of the most indifferently heavyweight boxers ever regarded together in one ring. Their total weight was something over 200 pounds, but their value as champion prospect was nil.

Stribling went down twice in the first round, once from exhaustion and again from a savage left hook to the jaw. He was unrecognizably on his feet when the bell saved him.

In the second round, Stribling went to work with a vengeance and quickly laid South Africa out for good by knocking out Squires in the first 14 seconds of the round.

Knute Is Richard's Choice

By GEORGE KIRKBY
United Press Staff Correspondent
MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, Sept. 7.—Knute Rockne, Tex. Hickory's choice to succeed to the heavyweight title vacated by Gene Tunney, has done most of his fighting outside of the prize ring.

Although Hickory began his professional career in 1925, he has engaged in less than 25 professional bouts in six years. Managerial troubles early caused Hickory to leave the prize ring in disgust and seek adventure in other worlds.

As a kid, he learned to box in the village, Wis. One day he and his brother fought two hours over a nickel to see a movie, and in the end both of them were killed and they couldn't go to the show.

After an obscure youth, Hickory entered the professional ring. He boxed in several bouts around Itasca and Milwaukee and then Tom McGee, Milwaukee promoter, secured him. The Wall Street magnate appointed Joe Woodman and George Lawrence to handle Hickory. They signed him to a long-term contract, and under the terms he was guaranteed $25 a week to live on.

For an obscure youth, Hickory did some pretty good fighting, but he never received any money from his managers for his fights. Disgusted over the turn of affairs, Hickory holed and headed for the Pacific coast.

He worked his way across the continent on a cattle train, sleeping in the same car with the steers. In Oregon he met an old friend who was captain of a freighter. When the freighter for Gunn Hansen was aboard.

Hansen's fists were not idle hands.

ATHLETICS SEE WORLD SERIES

After 12 Years Quaker City Wild Over Hopes for the American Pennant

By United Press
PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—After 12 years, Philadelphia visions another world series.

Not even the startling exposure of graft, corruption and crime any in progress here has caused the Quakers to lose interest in the Athletics striving battle to overtake the New York Yankees.

Although the Athletics have closed their home season, Philadelphia fans are confident that they will be back here in October to meet the St. Louis Cardinals or New York Giants in the world series.

Philadelphia fans are not alone who hope since 1916, when Pat Moran's Phillies won the National League pennant and met the Boston Red Sox in the fall classic. The way the fans are acting here now, one might suppose they never had a world series.

The newspaper give the Athletics almost equal prominence with the craft invocations. Newsboys on the corner say that it hurts their noses when they don't buy a copy of them put the sport alerts on the outside of the front page.

Gambler have been making the Athletics favorites to win the world series if they can cop, the American League pennant. They have Grace, Walker, Quinn, Rowan, Earlbaw, Egan and Orvill are the best hitters in the sport in baseball and believe they will make short work of either the Cardinals or Giants.

Jockey Thrown and Knocked Out While Riding Relay Race

While attempting to mount the second horse of the one and a half mile relay at the race on the fair grounds track Thursday evening, C. Moore, riding the H. R. Reed string of horses, was thrown to the ground near the rail and knocked unconscious, barely escaping the possibility of another injury.

Moore had made the first lap, placing second, had attempted to mount the second horse in the string. He was almost mounted once but was thrown from the horse, rolling under the inside rail while the other horses ran past. He was taken to the outside of the track and revived, being little hurt except for a few scratches. The owner of the horse finished the next two laps, but was ruled out because it was thought that the jockey's injuries were too serious to allow him to ride.

Moore was given a great ovation at his appearance on the track. The "Whip" got away on Scorpion to meet the other horses in the race. All three of the horses entered in this race were knocked at the finish, the judges awarding first to Miss Callie owned by Flowerdew, with Stevens up second; to Sleepy Laker, owned by H. R. Reed, up third; and to Scorpion, owned by West, with Peterson up.

Added Large Territory

The treaty for the Gadsden Purchase was signed December 30, 1853. It negotiated the purchase by the United States from Mexico of a strip of land 200 miles long and 120 miles wide, now forming part of Arizona and New Mexico.

First "Usurers"

The word "usurer" always leaves an unpleasant taste in the mouth and it used to be applied generally to all lending of money at interest. Under the laws of the ancient Greeks and Romans, borrowers became virtually the slaves of lenders, and as a result, any form of interest charging came to be regarded as a crime.

MR. HOOVER AND MR. SMITH

THE political campaign is beginning to get under way in earnest now, and within two months the tide of oratory and printed and vocal comment will have been terminated in the election of a president and vice-president together with other public officials. Everyone is interested, or should be interested, in how the issues are decided, and the Times will from time to time give what information it may to aid voters to know the progress of the campaign.

What of Herbert Hoover, former secretary of commerce, and Alfred E. Smith, governor of New York, candidates for president on the republican and democratic tickets, respectively?

Both candidates are big men. They have attained to such calibre as to entitle them to the honor of representing their respective parties as leaders in a national campaign. Their claims to distinction are based on what they have accomplished, and their accomplishments have been along different lines.

Mr. Hoover was a big man prior to the service he rendered during the war. He made a name for himself as a mining engineer and business administrator in mining fields all over the world. He grew in his profession and amassed wealth in appreciable degree. During his tenure as a cabinet officer he made his department an outstanding one and impressed his ideas and policies on the American people in a measure never before attained by any predecessor.

Governor Smith, like President Coolidge, has followed the profession of politics. He has been governor of New York for four terms, and his claim to a national reputation is based on his record there. A man of vivid personality, he has in marked degree the attributes that go to make for him many enthusiastic friends and followers. His colorful career gives him a place in the emotions of his champions such as no public man has had, probably since Roosevelt. He is bold, courageous and has displayed marked candor in making many of his pronouncements; even when the plain stating of his idea on an issue meant the making of enemies.

Mr. Hoover has generally been considered by the public as one of the most unpolitic men in public life, though his course since entering the race for the republican nomination has marked him as no novice in the strategy of politics. From various sources the public has heard that the big politicians did not favor his candidacy in the days preceding the republican convention. From other sources we read that business interests have the feeling that if Hoover is elected his passion for standardization may cause him to want to impress his ideas on organized business, and even though his ideas might prove beneficial in their final application, business has an idea that it would rather select its own school of training. If it is true that both politicians and big business as classes were lukewarm toward Hoover's efforts, then his popularity with the masses of people must have been one of the real factors that caused him to win the nomination.

Governor Smith won the nomination of his party after a very tame race. He had the advantage of a lineup of strength from his unsuccessful efforts in 1924. He is also the standard bearer of the wet element and is frankly committed to an effort to alter present laws governing prohibition.

Many factors enter into this campaign to make it very interesting, and voters have the opportunity to do some real thinking in making up their minds as to how they shall cast their ballots in November. Many of these factors have not even been mentioned in this brief survey. They will come before the public as the campaign progresses.

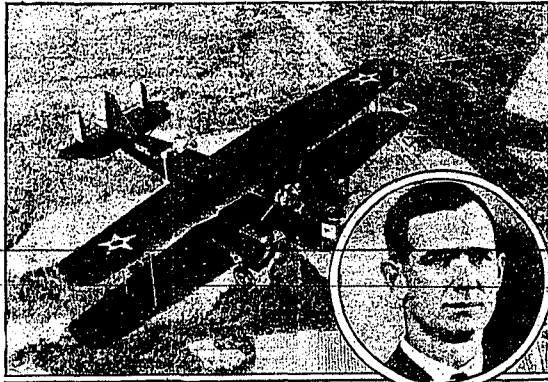

The Times is not a special pleader for either candidate in this election, but it realizes the vital concern voters feel on the matter. It will interpret questions of political importance in the light of the facts at hand, and from time to time editorials from leading newspapers espousing the cause of their favorites will be presented.

We are not now principally engaged in selecting a president. The voters must do that. Our job as we see it is to present both sides of the case. That is what we shall do.

Los Angeles' reward committee has apportioned the reward money that was offered for the apprehension of William Edward Hickman last spring on the Oregon trail by two officers living in Pendleton, Oregon. All we have to say about this is that in view of the loud promises Los Angeles made, it was about time for them to come across with the money, even though the bulk of it had to leave their own state.

In one respect the democratic ticket heads can get closer to the average voter than can the republican candidates. This business of appearing in the headlines as if one's head were shaking all to pieces.

Army Tests Its Bombing Planes

In a transcontinental tactical flight from Langley Field, Va., to the air races at Los Angeles, the army is testing its most dreaded weapon of modern warfare, the bombing plane. (Inset Keynote "Prizes", one of which is shown above, are flying under such conditions as supposedly "race" during wartime, a squadron of planes were called upon to make a hurried flight from one coast to the other. Major H. J. Kneer (inset) of Kansas City, Mo., is in charge of the journey.

Other Viewpoints

THE POTATO SURPLUS
(Idaho Falls Times-Register)
Many suggestions are being made in the matter of getting a compromise for removing the surplus of potatoes out of surplus. The suggestion will not amount to very much with the present disorganized state of the growers. It is possible that closer organization might effect some kind of a solution.

From all accounts potatoes are likely to continue to be produced in greater quantities in the future than they have been in the past. Better seed, better cultural methods, all have the tendency to increase the yield. There are those who rejoice when the potato, a staple article of food, is cheap in price and those who feel that it is a pity that the people in the consuming centers, who always feel elated when foods are cheap.

There is but one protection for the grower so far as organized, and that is to raise fewer potatoes. So far as the Idaho grower is concerned about all that he can do in the face of the circumstances is to confine his shipments to the better grades only as he will not be able to buy the freight on the lesser quality, which in turn acts as a competitor to the better grades in the market. There are those consumers who are better consumers, and he and she are the ones who like and are willing to pay for the better grade. It is the better part of judgment for Idaho growers to withhold all but the best grade from the market for the time being, at least, until such time as the developments will be. It is quite a long time until spring.

WOMEN IN POLITICS
At this time an interesting discussion is being carried on as to the part the women voters are to play in the coming November election. Some opinion mostly being devoted as to the question, in which they will exercise their right of suffrage for the women vote. It is at all proportional to the active campaign work women are doing in both parties will be a large one. And the women are filling many important positions.

There is an illustration of the case of the great state of New York, where the unusual situation is found of a republican state committee, the sudden and lamentable death of the chairman of the republican state committee places Miss Sarah Schuch, the daughter of the titular head, she was vice-chairman, and a very able woman, the daughter of Columbia University, Mr. Nicholas Murray Butler.

Again in the case of the democratic chairmanship, became vacant through the resignation of Lieutenant Governor Edwin Corning by reason of his very bad health. Which results in Mrs. (Caroline) Day, the vice-chairman, becoming acting chairman. Here, too, is another able woman, widow of a Standard Oil official, and heretofore engaged in many social work activities, as well as being a director of a prominent financial corporation.

Women, indeed, are performing much of the active work of this campaign in many of the states, which would seem to warrant the impression that like the game of politics, new as it is to most of them, and that they are likely to see in Representative and Congressional campaigns that the men do.

VIOLET HATS ON THE FARM
(Victory Times)
It has frequently been stated that electricity has not been put to full use, which it will be in the course of the next decade or two, and especially in this true of its possible use in the farm. While the use of electricity is constantly increasing, as a near American Falls source of motive power for farm machinery and as a source of heat for the winter and more used and more common. One of these concerns the violet ray.

Charles Allen, chief of the United States department of agriculture experimental stations, is quoted as saying, "Nobody knows what a violet ray is, or its substitute, an electric ray, playing over the backs of cows and being thought in better milk or more fertile eggs—but it is so."

It is a bit early to predict that the modern up-to-date dairy farm in Canada will in a few years number in its electrical equipment a violet ray, but what can be said is that within a very few years three of the dairy farms will have electricity at their gates. And if the violet ray or artificial sunshine machine has a field of economic usefulness in Canada, it is certain to find application in Canada.

Daily Poem

SONG OF THE ROAD AT SUNDOWN
I wand through blue hills, where the shades
Are quiet like shadows. Through the stark,
Still branches of the trees doth peep
The rosy light. And in the work
Sometimes the foothills pass like
—Friend—
In peace and from great
Upon me, and the fair, flushed poppies bend
To kiss my steel face, unseen.
Sweet with the summer's aftermath,
Flies hatches beside me, and
—hear—
A rustling in the field that hath
A faint ring. The stars are clear
And soft tonight. Like gentle eyes
I see them of deep water over
Span shadows in the great gray
—shades—
And I can shudder fearlessly.

Tuning In On The Fair

"She may not know anything about it, Mabel, but just the same she told me some mighty true things about myself. She never even mentioned, of course, but she said that there will be two men in my life, one dark and one light. Of course, I know it all right, and he is light, that accounts for one, but haven't I told you a hundred times how I and mine are a dark romantic looking man? Haven't I? And she knew that, some way, for the first time she told me that there would be a dark man in my life. And there were lots of other things just as true, if you'll believe me."

"No, a thing in the world the matter with him. And the doctor said that he never examined a baby more nearly perfect, nor better brought up, than the boy he brought to me. You think he is? Seven months? Well, you're wrong. I thought he looked eight or nine. Just at the middle of Alice, and he has the same size. I don't think that it is a miracle, but to have twins for the best babies, don't you? It creates an much interest among the nurses."

—One of the most unique and artistic exhibits at the fair is the floral piece in which the blossoms are composed of seeds, cones and nuts in the most artistic manner. The piece is 52 years old and was made by the mother of Mrs. E. G. Houston, who lives in the old building during the fair.

"No, I wasn't a little surprised, but everybody in our neighborhood was an expert on the subject. What he said was true, but that bit of elopement. She always was a bit flighty, but what did she expect? You'd think he was her father, too. You'd think he was the very man out of all the world she'd wanted her to marry. I tell you that matter wouldn't meet in their mouths when they speak of the subject. It's a matter of fact. What is all the excitement about? The race? What difference does it make which horse, train or car wins? I don't see how excited they all get. I can't see the least thing in it. I just came in to look after the children, and I was in the bleachers. He never wants to be bothered when he is on the field. He is so funny that way."

The Bull Terrier school land appeared at the fair. Exhibitors from the little fellows making a particularly attractive appearance and pleasing the audience. Only appreciation has been heard for the Southern Melody Singers who have appeared on the program afternoon and evening during the four days of the fair. Their music is that of the southern negroes, and the quality of their voices far above the average, according to the verdict of the critics.

Cass county fair for September 10, 11, 12 is being advertised by its afternoon and evening during the four days of the fair. Many of the exhibits are being taken to the neighboring county.

The fair management is being credited with good work in, in addition, the dining room concession to the Kimberly grange, which has served excellent meals throughout the week. They have been "idaho products" features, bespeaking quality.

First place in the community assembly went to Plover this year, according to the decision of the judges and apparently according with public opinion. Eleven other granges competed.

Among the out-of-town visitors at the fair are Mr. and Mrs. John A. Conroy of "The Enterprise" newspaper, who are the staff of the Industrial School at St. Anthony. They are in charge of the exhibit which the school sent to the various departments of the fair, and are accompanied by some of the students of the school.

Mob Psychology
"Mob psychology" refers to the peculiar behavior of a mob. Persons will often do things collectively, especially in a large and disorderly gathering, which they would not do individually. Mob psychology is the unthinking infection of a crowd by an idea uttered by a leader. "Mass psychology" is used in a closely related sense—Psychology Magazine.

STRIBLING ONE OF CONTENDERS SHOWN IN FIGHT

Back in Heavyweight Class By Knocking Out Souires in Two Rounds

By United Press
MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Sept. 7.—Young Stribling of Chicago is back in the fight again, landing out today as one of the leading contenders for the heavy-weight championship of the world.

Stribling, who was defeated by Johnny Souires of South Africa in two rounds at Madison Square Garden last week, won a long and hard victory over him in the grand arena of the New York "Randum" tonight.

The fight was a real one, and Stribling, who is a former champion, showed his businesslike way of finishing off his opponent, who was a pronounced improvement over some of his previous performances.

Souires went down twice in the first round, once from exhaustion and again from a savage left hook to the jaw.

ATHLETICS SEE WORLD SERIES

After 12 Years Quaker City Wild Over Hopes for the American Pennant

By United Press
PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—After 12 years, Philadelphia visions another world series.

Even the startling expense of graft, corruption and crime now in progress here has not dimmed the Quaker City's love, interest in the Athletics' stirring battle to overcome the New York Yankees.

Although the Athletics have closed their home season, Philadelphia fans are confident that they will see the back here in October in the St. Louis Cardinals or New York Giants in the world series.

Philadelphia has not had a world series since 1913, when the Athletics won the National League pennant and met the Boston Red Sox in the fall classic.

The fans are getting here now, one might suppose they never had had a world series.

The newspapers give the Athletics almost equal prominence with the graft investigations.

Nowadays on the contrary, it is the Athletics who are the sport sheets on the outside of the front page.

Giants here are making the Athletics favorite to win the world series if they can get the American League pennant.

They figure Grove, Walter, Quinn, Tommie, Larsh, Egan and Orwoll as the best pitchers in the world.

They believe they will make short work of either the Cardinals or Giants.

BIBLE VERSES AND PRAYER

MR. HOOVER AND MR. SMITH

THE political campaign is beginning to get under way in earnest now, and within two months the tide of oratory and printed and vocal comment will have been terminated in the election of a president and vice-president together with other public officials. Everyone is interested, or should be interested, in how the issues are decided, and the Times will from time to time give what information it may to aid voters to know the progress of the campaign.

What of Herbert Hoover, former secretary of commerce, and Alfred E. Smith, governor of New York, candidates for president on the republican and democratic tickets, respectively?

Both candidates are big men. They have attained to such calibre as to entitle them to the honor of representing their respective parties as leaders in a national campaign. Their claims to distinction are based on what they have accomplished, and their accomplishments have been along different lines.

Mr. Hoover was a big man prior to the service he rendered during the war. He made a name for himself as a mining engineer and business administrator in mining fields all over the world. He grew in his profession and amassed wealth in appreciable degree. During his tenure as a cabinet officer he made his department an outstanding one and impressed his ideas and policies on the American people in a measure never before attained by any predecessor.

Governor Smith, like President Coolidge, has followed the profession of politics. He has been governor of New York for four terms, and his claim to a national reputation is based on his record there. A man of vivid personality, he has in marked degree the attributes that go to make for him many enthusiastic friends and followers. His colorful career gives him a place in the emotions of his champions such as no public man has had, probably since Roosevelt. He is bold, courageous and has displayed marked candor in making many of his pronouncements, even when the plain stating of his idea on an issue meant the making of enemies.

Mr. Hoover has generally been considered by the public as one of the most unpolitical men in public life, though his course since entering the race for the republican nomination has marked him as no novice in the strategy of politics. From various sources the public has heard that the big politicians did not favor his candidacy in the days preceding the republican convention. From other sources we read that business interests have the feeling that if Hoover is elected his passion for standardization may cause him to want to impress his ideas on organized business, and even though his ideas might prove beneficial in their final application, business has an idea that it would rather select its own school of training. If it is true that both politicians and big business as classes were lukewarm toward Hoover's efforts, then his popularity with the masses of poor people must have been one of the real factors that caused him to win the nomination.

Governor Smith won the nomination of his party after a very tame race. He had the advantage of a lineup of strength from his unsuccessful efforts in 1924. He is also the standard bearer of the wet element and is frankly committed to an effort to alter present laws governing prohibition.

Many factors enter into this campaign to make it very interesting, and voters have the opportunity to do some real thinking in making up their minds as to how they shall cast their ballots in November. Many of these factors have not even been mentioned in this brief survey. They will come before the public as the campaign progresses.

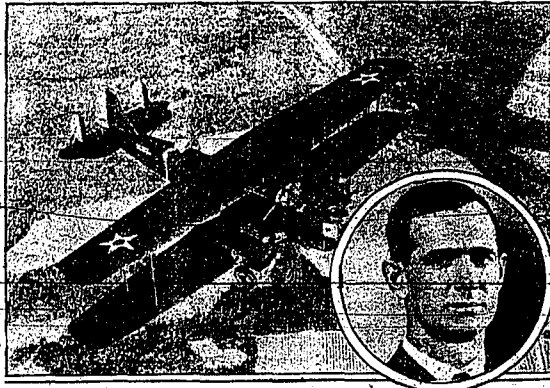

The Times is not a special pleader for either candidate in this election, but it realizes the vital concern voters feel on the matter. It will interpret questions of political importance in the light of the facts at hand, and from time to time editorials from leading newspapers espousing the cause of their favorites will be presented.

We are not now principally engaged in selecting a president. The voters must do that. Our job as we see it is to present both sides of the case. That is what we shall do.

Los Angeles' reward committee has apportioned the reward money that was offered for the apprehension of William Edward Hickman last spring on the Oregon trail by two officers living in Pendleton, Oregon. All we have to say about this is that in view of the loud promises Los Angeles made, it was about-time for them to come across with the money, even though the bulk of it had to leave their own state.

In one respect the democratic ticket heads can get closer to the average voter than can the republican candidates. This business of appearing in the headlines as Al and Joe bears hand shaking all to pieces

Army Tests Its Bombing Planes

In a transcontinental tactical flight from Langley Field, Va., to the air races at Los Angeles, the army is testing its most dreaded weapon of modern warfare—the bomber. Such conditions as supposedly would be met if during wartime a squadron of planes were called upon to make a forced switch from one base to the other. Major H. J. ...

Other Viewpoints

THE POTATO SUPPLIES

In the matter of getting a good price for potatoes in the face of the present apparent surplus, the suggestion will not amount to very much with the present disorganized state of the growers. It is possible that cooperation might effect some good. The principal trouble seems to be that there are too many potatoes more than the consuming public demands or will be able to consume which means a low price.

From all accounts potatoes are likely to continue to be produced in greater quantities in the future than they have been in the past. Better seed, better cultural methods, all have gone to increasing the yield. There are those who believe when the potato, a staple article of food, is cheap in price and those who feel that was about it are the people in the consuming centers, who always feel when food is cheap.

There is but one protection for the growers, so far as suggested, and that is raise fewer potatoes. So far as the Idaho growers are concerned about all that he can do in the circumstances is to confine his shipments to the better grades only, he will not be able to buy the freight on the lesser quality, which in turn acts as a competitor to the better grade, lessening the price. There are those consumers who want and who will pay for a higher grade product than will the average consumer, and he and the grower who will be able to sell to him are the ones who are willing to pay the better part of the market for Idaho growers to withhold all but the No. 1 grades from the market for the time being. It is very true that the developments will be. It is quite a long time until spring.

WOMEN IN POLITICS

At this time a growing discussion is being carried on as to the part the women voters are to play in deciding the November election. The matter is mostly being devoted as to the number in which they will vote. It might be said that if the women vote at all proportional to the active campaign work women are doing in the state, they will be able to vote. And the women are filling many important positions.

There is illustration in the case of the great state of New York, where the unusual situation is found of women heading both the democratic and republican state committees. The sudden and lamentable death at the early age of 46, of Governor E. Morgan Lewis, a republican state committee places Miss Sarah Schuyler, better known as "the widow," as the woman, the daughter of Columbia's president, Mr. Nicholas Murray Butler.

Again in the case of the democrats, the chairmanship became vacant through the resignation of Lieutenant Governor Edwin Corning by reason of his very bad health. Which results in Mrs. Caroline O'Byrne, vice-chairman, becoming acting chairman. Here, too, is another able woman, widow of a Standard Oil official, and herself engaged in many social welfare activities, as well as being a director of a prominent financial corporation. Women, indeed, are performing much of the active work of this campaign in many of the states, which would seem to warrant the impression they have the game at their disposal, not only to most of them, and that they are likely to vote in proportionately larger percentages than the men do.

VIOLET RAYS ON THE FARM

It has frequently been stated that electricity has not been used to hold the uses which it will be in the course of the next decade or two, and especially in this true of its possibilities on the farm. While its usefulness is constantly increasing as a source of motive power for farm machinery and as a source of heat, or light, other and more novel uses are coming. One of these concerns the solar ray.

Dr. E. W. Allen, chief of the United States department of agriculture experimental stations, in quoted in saying, "Nobody knows what a little sunshine or its substitute, an electric ray, playing over the backs of cows and hives results in better milk or more fertile eggs—but it is so." It is a little early to predict that the modern up-to-date, dairy farm in California will in a very few years number its electrical equipment a violet ray outfit. But what can be said is that within a very few years most of the dairy farms will have electricity at their gates. And if the violet ray or artificial sunshine machine has a field of economic usefulness about the farm, it is certain to find application in the domain.

Daily Poem

SING OF THE ROAD AT SUNDOWN
Wind-through-blue-hills, where the sheep
Are quiet like shadows, through
The stark,
SOME breezes that drop down
The golden mane, and in the dark
Sundown the footfall pass like
The friends
In peace, and fragile grasses lean
Upon me, and the fair, studied
To sleep.
Sweet with the summer's aftermath,
Earth's breathes beside you, and I
hear
A rustling in the field that hark
A fallow ring. The stars are clear
And soft tonight, like gentle eyes
They seem to keep watch over me
From windows in the great sky above.

GRANGERS OUT EN MASSE FOR BIG DISPLAY

Attendance Breaks All Past Records—Lordly Belgians, Percherons and Prize Beef Stock Present Big Spectacle in Show-off

Led by the lordly Percherons, Shires and Belgians, with the artists of the hoof and dairy cattle in their finest trim, the annual livestock parade of the county fair, today, the central event of the carnival day, leaving the fairgrounds at 10 o'clock. All morning attendants had been grooming the animals for their stage debut—and for the most part they took their public appearance with every evidence of pride and vanity in the event.

Exhibitors in the draft horse class are J. Sackett, Harrison Griffin, H. Brox, and George L. Johnson all of Twin Falls, and N. O. Harrow and son of Jerome. While the draft animals entered are fewer than those in former years, the exhibitors are aware of the importance of their show and are using every means to encourage interest for other years. The only exhibitor of draft horses is J. Sackett of Jerome, brought to lead of Herefordians some of which were taken into the parade. The present tendency toward dairy cattle among the well known is one of the fair.

Dairy Show Wins Prize The unexampled display and show was the repeated applause and enthusiastic comment of the crowd, not only for the fine specimens of Guernseys, Jerseys and Holsteins from the larger dairies and institutions, but the one or two animals which are the property of individual owners throughout the county. "This is one of the encouraging features of a very fine show," said one of the judges. "It isn't just the people who can afford to carry show stock who are going in for the fine strains. It is the small owner, the local dairyman, as well who are alive to the importance of good stock and who are competing on an equal basis."

The $50 cash prize offered by L. I. Breckenridge for the prize ram was won by Doon Bros. for their Hampshire lamb six months old. The animal is the champion ram of the show.

Producers' Association Exhibit—The "Tubing" exhibit was a magnificent one, the poultry show this morning with a fine display of the various classes of eggs, both white and brown. Visitors showed much interest in the classification of this product and the relative prices commanded by each.

Wood Exhibit Gets Attention It is regretted that we had no additional space for the exhibit of wooden wheels with exhibition. Many of the exhibitors were apparently not fully awake to the vital importance of fighting wheels as well as the apparently, and we should have arranged to have short informative talks for the best means of education. Commissioner Warr, and the dairymen attending on Tuesday. That would have been a most interesting and profitable affair. It was a fact well illustrated in the exhibit, and one that met with instant approval.

Clinic a Busy Place A very busy day at the clinic closed with no restrictions and examinations of children of pre-school age. In many instances, defects were noted which indicated the need of attention by the family physician. Parents being advised along that line. The clinic has been confined to children of pre-school age, with other agencies arranging parents to have special attention to eyes, nose and throat before they are entered in school.

Dr. H. N. Lewis, Twin Falls; Jennings, Buhl; J. A. Lamb, Twin Falls; and A. A. Newberry, Ellery, were present. Also, Dr. J. C. Peterson, Twin Falls; James J. R. Nelson, Nels Larsen, J. V. Gales, and Harry Wilson all of Buhl, acting as assistants.

Attendance Grows While the attendance was many times greater Wednesday than on the opening day, and far more than on the corresponding day of last year, that Thursday was largest for the week. There was a heavy attendance from the west end of the district, and the grades always respond in great numbers to Orange Day, both holding.

being felt over lost children. The young son of John Pouty, operator of a saw-mill, while running through the grove, turned his head to parker eye, spraining his wrist but suffering no other injury. No harm was attached to the driver of the car.

Practical Demonstration "Twin Falls rabbit growers have striven to the business with exceptionally fine strains, and would account for themselves in a national show," said Judge A. W. Vance, speaking before an audience composed of those who are taking the initial steps in the business in this vicinity. "But they must learn that rabbits, like other livestock, are not a definite asset if he is going in for meat or for and select the variety distinguished for success along that chosen line."

Judge Vance discussed the problem of feeding for fur as well as for meat and concluded a demonstration on the preparation of the meat for the market. He urged that the rabbit industry be given the fact that there is no difficulty in raising rabbits in the domestic rabbit since it does not come from the wild. He stated that the rabbit communicates the disease to the wild rabbits. The high relative value of rabbits as a source of income is mentioned daily, he said, and the government has entered into a contract with the United States to supply 1000 pounds of meat weekly to the needs of the soldiers at the front in that state.

Judge Vance answered the questions of the growers and expressed confidence in the future of the business for those who take pains to secure the necessary knowledge and experience are willing to proceed slowly. It is felt that the showing of over 200 rabbits given for their appearance at the fair, is particularly noteworthy.

PARDON LOOMS FOR DR. COOK, IN ILL HEALTH

Mrs. Willebrandt Agrees to Presidential Pardon for Aged Prisoner

POLK-TERRITORY, Tex., Sept. 7.—The long prison term of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, who was arrested by a geologist and physician, probably will be terminated before the year is over, it is believed here.

Prospect that the convicted organizer of the Petroleum Producers' association will leave the Salt Lake State Penitentiary at Leavenworth appeared likely Wednesday with assurance of favorable recommendations from the United States attorney general's office at Washington.

Mrs. Mary Willebrandt, a prominent attorney general, who argued in the supreme court against Cook's parole on grounds of insanity, in a letter Wednesday said that no such objections would be involved in a presidential pardon. "I am in sympathy for Cook," she said.

Although declining to state what she would do if she were president, Mrs. Willebrandt talked in a sympathetic tone regarding Cook and it is believed that she will be able to secure his release.

Dr. Cook's petition for clemency was prepared in his cell at Leavenworth by the United States attorney at Washington with recommendations of a warrant from a score of state and federal officers here. It was received here November 21, 1922, to 14 years and nine months in prison. The fine and cost assessed in addition totaled $12,800.11.

It was the day it was supposed but was not transferred to Leavenworth until April 6, 1923. The exact cause of the insanity would not be eligible for parole until March 15, 1929. With a record of insanity and a fine of $12,800.11, he is 52 years old and in failing health. Dr. Cook is a native of New York, a member of the North pole. As a geologist he is credited by many with the discovery of the first oil in the United States in Wyoming. At Leavenworth he has served as prison physician and was editor of the penitentiary news, the New Era.

"Dead Men Tell No Tales" Probable Result Plane Quiz

By Walled Press

POCATELLO, Sept. 7.—A sweeping investigation to determine the cause, if possible, of the fatal plane crash here Tuesday in which seven lives were lost, got under way this morning, when W. S. Shreve, chief of the department of the division of the department of commerce assumed active charge of the probe.

The wrecked plane, a Fokker, six-passenger mail and passenger craft, was one of the fleet operated by the National Park Airways, Inc., operating between Great Falls and Clark City, Idaho, and Sambo's here Wednesday night from Billings, Mont.

"I have formed no theory as to the cause of the crash," he told the United Press correspondent, "and am confident that the investigation with an open mind. The pilot was thoroughly experienced in commercial aviation in Washington and California. The fact that the plane circled the air port here three minutes before the crash, indicated no mechanical trouble existed to have caused it to land. These things just happen and dead men tell no tales."
