Twin Falls Bruins Practicing With Night Sessions

GRANITE HIGH TO MEET BRUINS IN GAME ON FRIDAY

Devis and Brainsford Out of Work Because of Influenza; Putzier Wobbly on His Feet

The Bruins have been going thru night sessions during the last few days of this week in preparation for the game here Friday with Granite high school at Salt Lake City. The game will be called at 7:30 p. m.

This afternoon the boys trained on skrimmage to some extent, the last performance of the week of work. Practising will probably be spent in a light work out of signal drill with the game coming Friday.

Practise Early. Since the schools have been closed by the influenza epidemic practice on the gridiron has been starting early and continuing until darkness. Early and continuing practice has been working out. Davis and Brainsford have both been confined to their homes with influenza, but the remainder of the boys are in fairly good condition. Putzier was out for a couple of days but is back again, though somewhat wobbly on his feet. Levison is expected to play Friday's game and is certain to be in line shape for the championship game here Thursday.

Granite high school has established a good record throughout the season and games played with that school in years past have proven good dramatic attractions and real treats to the fans of the county. This will be the only instructional game of the year in Twin Falls.

Station About Over. The majority of the high school games in the county have consisted of their seasons. Football here has not been a game for two weeks, the Bruins being having lost a clinch of the season and the inclement weather having broken all meetings.

The labor practices of the Bruins have been in the gymnasium and have consisted largely in practice through the new plays and chalk talks.

Northwest Ace

Wally Holmiron is a clutch to make the all-Pacific Northwest team this year. For as much as he has done all his career in splendid fashion, he is a clutch center for the basketball team.

Wisconsin Carries Handicap In Game

CHICAGO, Nov. 21. (UP)—Wally Holmiron, now the leader in the 1928-29 championship race, will carry a heavy handicap in Saturday's game with Minnesota.

Not only will the Bruins be meeting one of the strongest teams in the conference, but they must overcome two jinxes which have stopped all other title aspirants.

The Bruins will enter the game as the favorite over their opponent. The Bulldogs will meet an opponent which has been occasionally "bogged" for the game, whereas Wisconsin was favored to "kick" out several games.

Ordinarily the first factor would not be especially important, but records show that the favorite in almost every important game this season has not won.

McELWAIN'S TEAM FALLS DEFEATED

Idaho Theater Men Prove Too Good and Capture Three Games in a Row at Alleys

Hollywood men proved superior enough to take three straight games from the show pointers of the Idaho Theater in the alley battle last night. All honors went to Emmet Aubrey of the Idaho Theater.

Aubrey marked in every frame of the last game. In the third frame of the first game he picked the 2-7 and 10 pins in a repeated shot. He struck out with five in a row in the first game to win for his team. His score in the first game was 193, in the second 200, in the third 185, and in the fourth he accumulated 578.

The show clerks were handicapped by having to use two dummies in the fourth and fifth frames. Wilson picked the 5-7 pins in the fifth frame of the second game to draw attention from the awestruck watching man. Charley Hill of the same team made a score of 180 in the last game his first.

Frank Hennegeman struck out in the last game to make a nerve that was equal to that of the dummy.

Tonight the Idaho Times men in the first round were defeated. Last night's scores were: Idaho Theater: Total 578. Aubrey 193, 200, 185, 578. Wilson 150, 150, 150, 450. Hennegeman 142, 160, 150, 452. McElwain 131, 157, 151, 439. Hill 180, 180, 180, 540.

Totals: 772 865 800 2439. Wilson 138 168 135 441. Hill 110 110 110 330. Aubrey 150 150 150 450. Hennegeman 142 160 150 452. McElwain 131 157 151 439. Hill 180 180 180 540. Totals 726 723 766 2205.

Daily Poem

THE LONELY HEART
 (By "Iris" in Chicago Tribune)
 The night birds call, the shadows fall
 About my door;
 The waters creep along to sleep
 Upon the shore;
 The evening breeze drifts through the trees,
 My heart leaps up like theirs,
 Thinking I hear your voice, my dear,
 Whisper once more my name.
 A mocking-bird is faintly heard,
 The willows sigh;
 The waters creep, the crescent moon
 Hangs in the sky;
 While high and far the evening star
 With hazy glow
 Dreaming the while your tender smile
 Beams gently down on me.
 In vale and hill the birds are still,
 The breezes die;
 Oh find and find the night closes down,
 Dark in the sky.
 As all too soon sleep the mate moon,
 The waters faintly hum;
 My eyes are now—let me forget
 That I am here alone.

WHAT SMITH GAVE US

The election has been history, for these days and even weeks, our minds have turned to shipwrecks, floods and other matters of news that have supplanted politics as front page news, and the price of beans has moved upward to a high that has not been reached in a long time to do a little staking of things political.
 Alfred E. Smith took about as bad a beating as any major party candidate for the presidency could well take. In all human probability his crushing defeat removes him permanently from further political consideration.
 That being the case, we might as well take the time now to look at two things which this man, overwhelmingly beaten, did for us.
 "First and foremost" he gave us Herbert Hoover for president.
 That may seem a strong statement. But let your mind roam back to the pre-convention days of last May and June and see if you don't agree.
 "Herbert Hoover was, by all odds, the strongest man in his party, could have presented himself, his very strength empowered him in the fight for the nomination. The political big-wigs shuddered at the mere thought of nominating him. They would vastly have preferred to name a compromise second-runner. To the very last they held out against him, fighting against hope that they could slip over a man who would be more docile in the White House—a man who, in the political phrase, would "play ball," a man who could be counted on to stay hatched and have no dangerous ideas of his own.
 But the shadow of Al Smith fell across their path. They knew Smith would be nominated by the democrats; and they knew that no second-runner could hope to beat him. Much as they disliked it, they were forced to name their eldest man. By Al Smith's vote, the credit for forcing Hoover's nomination.
 Nor is that all this defeated candidate did. For years we have been worried about the comparative lightheadedness of the vote in presidential elections. This year the vote broke all records. Not in many decades has such a large percentage of the electorate gone to the polls. And the man responsible, again, is—Al Smith.
 Quite a book could be written on the way in which our defeated candidate has influenced us.
 William Jennings Bryan was three times defeated for the presidency. But he lived to

 The late Senator La Follette had a similar record. Reported by the presidency he ran a hopeless third. Yet many and many a measure that he was once hobbled at for sponsoring is now accepted as the law of the land. Republican platforms recently have contained many planks that were first proposed, years ago, by Robert La Follette.
 The victor is the man of the hour. But in his hour of triumph, we might keep in mind the things we owe to the man we rejected—Al Smith.

DEFECTIVE HEARING

A BULLETIN from the children's bureau of the United States department of labor announces that a survey shows that 10 per cent of the school children of the United States have measurable defects of hearing.
 To relieve the situation, there is recommended an outline list in all states of steps for quieting an annual examination of the hearing of all school children, with eventually the opening of clinics in all schools.
 Probably it will be a good many years before such laws can be passed. In the meantime each parent and the child are in the process of having a doctor examine a child's hearing is negligible, and doing so may save the child an untold amount of unhappiness in future years.

COOLIDGE'S ARMISTICE DAY ADDRESS

(By Walter Herald)
Our distinguished president, whose long suit is silence, can now appreciate the open-mouthed and open-mouthed of the president has been dodging a constant shower of criticism from both sides of the Atlantic since he chose Sunday, November 11, as the occasion of a rather bitterly worded tirade against Europe. He attacked the European countries from slinging accusations of peace while openly preparing for new wars, for trying to avoid payment of their debts to the United States, and for many other policies which he considers detrimental to the best interests of the world.
 The address was a stirring indictment. It spared nobody's feelings. It was utterly out of line with the public conception of Coolidge. It was surprisingly out of harmony with the usual tone of Armistice day speeches. Very reactions to the address are to be found everywhere. Criticism and commendation.
 Most of the criticism comes from Europe and this is not surprising, for most of what Mr. Coolidge said is true, and the pitiless truth hurts. He exposes the real government policies of Europe to the gaze of the people of Europe, which is not good for the ruling classes over there. He tells in plain, unmistakable words why relations between Europe and America are not better and what must happen before they can become better.
 The typical American attitude is surprising. Why did Coolidge, the most quiet and self-effacing president in a generation, launch into a wild tirade that surpassed Roosevelt in his palmy days? Is this the outburst of a man who has been silent in the White House for many years, that he is at last overpowered with a desire to tell the world which way he would consider a decision to adopt the Wilson method of appeasing over the heads of subscribers. Not in many decades has such a large percentage of the electorate gone to the polls. And the man responsible, again, is—Al Smith.
 Quite a book could be written on the way in which our defeated candidate has influenced us.

Borah Returning Conscience Fund

PORTLAND, Maine, Nov. 21 (UP)—The Portland Evening News has received from Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, $100 which it had contributed in his "conscience fund" to pay back Harry F. Sinclair, oil man, large contributions he made to the republican party in 1927. Only $28.00 was collected, however, and this was deemed insufficient even for a start.
 Borah sent a letter with the $100. It said:
 "I am enclosing you my check for $100 to cover the amount which you contributed to the fund which I was seeking to raise to cover what was known as the Sinclair situation.
 "I have become convinced that I cannot, in this way at least, succeed in raising a sufficient amount, and I am therefore returning to you the amount you contributed and with it an apology of my sincere thanks.
 "I deeply regret that my efforts were not more successful, but I want you to know how very much I appreciate your assistance."
 BORAH STILL PLANNING
 WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (UP)—Senator Borah of Idaho is entertaining a suggestion that he promote the idea of using the surplus of the federal treasury to fund Curtis campaign to pay back to Harry Sinclair, the oil magnate, some $100,000 he contributed to the republican national committee in 1921.

STAY AWAY FROM THE WATER
 STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURE BY KNECK

While Cloway stayed far out of the moon, and cried, "The sun is going, the Tynanties waited for the fog down. It wasn't lost until night to come so they could look the moon in light up in the sky around for ways of getting free. Then was can try to get away. Four rather liked the ocean trip. Cloway doesn't like to stay away but thought it best to leave the down in the coal pile. Here's a plan ship. They knew the captain was that we might try. Upon this big boat there are some small rowboats. One will surely do. If we can only lower it into the sea below. Then, under cover of the night, we'll row until we're out of sight. As long as we escape from here, what matters where we go?"
 "A fine idea!" Copy said. "It's real dark now. Let's go and bring poor Cloway up on deck. The captain's gone to bed, our plan should work it seems to me. If we're as cautious as can be. Of course we'll have to hide if Mr. Captain shows his head."
 Soon Cloway joined the little bunch. They hid him of their happy lunch. "A very good idea," Cloway whispered, rather low. "The boat will go to the sea in five minutes. I doubt if there's a thing to fear, so let's just drop it to the sea. The time for 'to go'."
 Their plans worked out in first class form. They found the night was nice and warm. It wasn't long all the Tynanties were in the craft. They pushed out on the quiet sea. Then Cloway softly said, "Oh, gee! This sure will make the captain mad." The Tynanties all laughed.
 (The Tynanties sink a sail in the next story.)

Whoever saw a desk that wasn't graced with at least one such little creature containing a hunk of paper clip, and why not? Does it not play its leading part in the economy of the dispensable for the following purposes:

And in conclusion—Is it not most effective for fastening together two or more letters, bills or papers?

A young wife in this neighborhood confessed recently that a much-admired new dress cost her $200 and a couple of road load trips.
