CIVIC IMPROVEMENTS

The keeping of swine within the corporation limits will be prohibited.
Livestock will no longer be permitted to roam at large within the city limits.
Tree lines will be surveyed in order that uniformity in planting may be obtained.
The city jail will accommodate those who forget they are living in a civilized community.
A city market will be located where farmers can weigh and sell their hay and produce.
Tramps and dissolute characters will be encouraged to make their stay in Twin Falls as brief as possible.
Dogs will be licensed and a pound established to which ownerless curs and stray stock will be taken.
The practice of tying horses and cattle in the sagebrush to starve will be stopped and cruelty to animals prevented.
Street improvement will be kept up as fast as possible with the view of making Twin Falls the most beautiful city in Idaho.
Merchants will be protected against itinerant peddlers but no harmful restrictions will be placed upon farmers who sell their own products.
Plumbers will be licensed and a building inspector appointed whose duty it will be to see that proper safeguards against fire are provided.
Sanitary conditions will be improved immediately. No offensive cesspools will be tolerated and citizens will be required to keep their premises clean.
Street grades will be established, adopted by the council and placed on file in order that property rights respecting buildings, sidewalks and drains may be known. Confusion will thus be avoided and property owners who comply with the ordinance bearing on this subject will not be required to make changes at their own expense.

The Twin Falls city council has been organized by the election of Paul S. A. Bickel as chairman of the board of trustees and mayor of the city, J. R. Darrow city clerk, E. B. Critchlow city attorney and J. M. Maxwell city treasurer. The three last named officers have donated their services to the city. Mr. Critchlow is a member of the firm of Henderson, Pierce, Critchlow & Barrette, attorneys at law. Mr. Maxwell is cashier of the First National Bank of Twin Falls and Mr. Darrow is employed in the office of the Twin Falls Land & Water company.

One of the first acts of the council was the appointment of Albert Snodgrass as city marshal. Mr. Snodgrass was formerly deputy sheriff of Lincoln county at Hagerman and is a tried and reliable officer. He will receive $75 per month and will devote all his time to the duties of his office. The first man he catches discharging firearms in the city will be sent to the county jail at Albion on the double quick. Reckless shooting has been indulged in rather too frequently of late for keen comfort and the section of the city in which the shooting has occurred will receive close attention.

It was decided by the council that a city jail should be erected immediately and work on the building has already begun. The jail is located on lot 10, block 119, on Twelfth avenue between Ninth and Tenth streets. It is 16 feet 6 inches by 18 feet 6 inches, with three cell rooms and a six foot corridor. The flooring will be of solid cement and the cells will be of sufficient strength for safety.

The trustees have several important ordinances under consideration. They intend to carefully examine into the merits of each ordinance before passing them in order that no hardship may be worked upon those effected. In fact none of the ordinances will cause any inconvenience worthy of mention. The trustees realize that a new city like Twin Falls needs liberal government during the constructive period. Their purpose is to get the right start and avoid trouble in the future. For instance a merchant might be compelled to block a sidewalk for a time in order to get goods into his store. While this would not be tolerated in an older city, it might be excused in Twin Falls at present.

The council will devote close attention to the question of sanitation. It is desirable that the city should be thoroughly cleaned up before the warm weather and steps looking to this end will be taken immediately. In this movement the convenience of the citizens will also be taken into account and they will be asked to co-operate with the council in making Twin Falls a clean city.

Uniformity of street grades and tree lines is another question which will be disposed of as early as possible in order that Twin Falls may not resemble a piece of patchwork. An ordinance compelling the owners of livestock to keep their animals from running at large will doubtless be passed immediately as a large number of trees have been planted within the city limits and these must be protected at once.

The city ordinances will be made public through the press.

SELFISH ACT OF OGDEN DEALERS

They Induce Postal Department to Hold Stage at Shoshone for Their Mail and Cause Great Annoyance at This End of the Line.

Upon request of the business men of Ogden, the Twin Falls stage is now held at Shoshone until 10:30 in the morning, awaiting the arrival of the westbound train. This brings the mail into Twin Falls more than an hour later than formerly. The change in time is not at all acceptable here and why the citizens of Twin Falls should be put out to accommodate the Ogden merchants is beyond comprehension. The latter complained that they were handicapped because their mail did not reach Twin Falls in as fast time as that from Boise and for this reason their business suffered. Meanwhile local merchants must burn gasoline and stay up until midnight attending to their correspondence.

When the railroad reaches Twin Falls both east and west mail will arrive here together. It is felt that the Ogden merchants might have waited and not put the Twin Falls business men to such inconvenience. They cannot hope to gain anything by the move. The Twin Falls dealers, in considering the annoyance, also recollect that Boise is in Idaho and so is Twin Falls. Other things being equal, Boise has first claim on the Twin Falls trade.

TURNING SOD ON COMPANY'S FARM

Land Selected Within the City Limits so that Settlers May Visit the Farm and Observe how it is Planted, Cultivated and Irrigated.

An experimental farm, 40 acres in extent, has been laid out by the Twin Falls Land & Water company within the city limits on the east side of Blue Lakes avenue. Agricultural Superintendent Alex McPherson has partitioned off the tract and the work of cultivation has commenced.

The farm will be maintained for a dual purpose, that of showing how crops are planted, cultivated and irrigated and to test old and new varieties of grains, grasses and vegetables in order to prove their adaptability. Thus the expense of experimenting will not fall upon the farmers but will be defrayed by the company.

As results are obtained the farmers will be fully advised, either by bulletins distributed through the mails or by publication in the press. Meanwhile the farmers are invited to visit the experimental farm and ask questions. The agricultural superintendent will be there to answer all inquiries

MIGHT HAVE CAUSED DEATH OF DRIVER

Grave Charge Made against X. LaPont, H. G. Brannon and Fred Earl, Who Are Accused of Drugging and Robbing Amor Stimmel While He Was Driving Them to Shoshone.

Robbed of his money, his watch, his consciousness and a portion of his clothing, Amor Stimmel of Twin Falls was rolled in a blanket and left, during a cold rainstorm, in the sagebrush beside the Blue Lakes road, six miles south of Shoshone, on Wednesday night, by F. X. LaPont, H. G. Brannon and Fred Earl, who had engaged him to drive them to Shoshone. Such was the report telephoned to Twin Falls on Thursday evening when Stimmel, still unconscious from the effect of opiates, was brought to that place for medical treatment. The three men accused of the outrage are supposed to have fled on the first train they could catch out of Shoshone. A cold rain fell during the entire time Stimmel lay on the roadside and he suffered greatly from exposure. His brother, D. V. Stimmel of the Washington livery stable, left for Shoshone at once to bring him back to Twin Falls.

LaPont and Brannon are reported to be under arrest in Pocatello and the officers are said to be hot on the trail of Earl. The prisoners will probably be brought to Twin Falls for preliminary examination, as it may be proven that the alleged crime was committed in Cassia county.

The story of the supposed crime is one of exceptional brutality. LaPont and Brannon had been engaged in the laundry business here. A few days ago they failed, owing their help and a number of local merchants. Earl was formerly a waiter in a local restaurant. The three men engaged Stimmel to take them to Shoshone on Wednesday afternoon, paying $15 in advance for the trip. A heavy rain began to fall shortly after they left Twin Falls. Stimmel, who is an abstemious man, at the earnest solicitation of his companions took a drink of beer. Presumably the liquid contained "knock out drops," for Stimmel soon lost consciousness.

When the party arrived at the half way station, LaPont, Brannon and Earl took dinner. They said their driver was drunk but could not come in. This statement is ridiculed by those who know Stimmel and who assert unequivocally that he is not a drinking man.

When Stimmel was found unconscious on the roadside by a passing freighter he was soaked to the skin by the cold rain. He was taken to the half way station and from there to Shoshone. His watch, money and part of his clothing were missing.

It is supposed that LaPont, Brannon and Earl will claim that Stimmel was drunk but they will have some trouble in explaining why they left him exposed to the storm. The physician who attended Stimmel said he was suffering from the effect of laudanum. As Stimmel was never known to use drugs of any kind this statement tends to support the theory of cold blooded robbery.

Prior to leaving Twin Falls LaPont and Brannon had considerable trouble. When their laundry was attached they engaged a team and went to Shoshone falls. The owner of the team suspected they intended to "make a getaway" and he followed them to the falls and brought them back. Later LaPont received a severe thrashing from a local merchant to whom he was indebted for goods purchased. His left eye was badly bruised and blackened and this led to his identification. He possesses other striking facial characteristics which make him conspicuous.

Mr. Stimmel returned to Twin Falls this evening. He still feels the effect of the opiate and exposure but is able to take care of himself.

and settlers need have no hesitation whatever in seeking information.

Seeds Ordered.

Seeds will be planted on the experimental farm as conditions may suggest. Already the following seeds have been ordered:

1000 pounds alfalfa seed.
150 pounds red clover.
1500 pounds Central Park lawn grass.
25 pounds orchard grass.
15 pounds timothy.
75 pounds beardless barley.
25 pounds flax.
10 pounds Early Fortune millet.
100 pounds Blue Stein wheat.
100 pounds Little Club wheat.
100 pounds Sonora wheat.
1 pound Golden-Tankard mangrel wurtzel.
1 peck Iowa Gold Mine corn.
1 bushel cow peas.
600 pounds corn grown in Cassia county.

The Central Park lawn grass will be sown on the Twin Falls park grounds. It grows luxuriantly and is expected to flourish in this locality.

The corn wheat is a species of rye. The grain is very large and the wheat has been used with great success as fodder.

The company will order sugar beet seed whenever the farmers show a desire to obtain it. This seed will be furnished free of cost to those farmers who agree to plant it and the company will pay $4.50 per ton for beets delivered at the railway station.

Plowing has been commenced on the farm at the junction of Blue Lakes boulevard and Shoshone avenue. Cultivation will be made in approved style in order that visiting strangers and home-seekers as well as local farmers may have an opportunity to inspect. The farm is under the supervision of Agricultural Inspector McPherson and a hearty invitation is extended to the public to pay it a visit.

THOUGHT SHE WOULD DIE.

Mrs. B. W. Maxine of Colorado Springs Began to Fear the Worst—Doan's Kidney Pills Saved Her.

Mrs. Sarah Maxine, of 428 St. Union street, Colorado Springs, Colo., President of the Glen Byrie Club, writes:

"I suffered for three years with a severe backache. The doctors told me that my kidneys were affected and prescribed me a course of treatment, but nothing doing. It was only a waste of time and money to take them, and began to fear that I would never get well. A friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. Within a week after I began using them I was so much better that I decided to keep up the treatment, and when I had used a little over two boxes I was entirely well. I have now enjoyed the best of health for more than four months, and words can but poorly express my gratitude.

FRESH AIR FOR CONSUMPTIVES

Most Effective Weapon Available for Conflict With Dreaded "White Plague"

The following abstracts from an article by J. E. Stubbert, M. D., in the Medical Record, should read as follows:—No-doubt if these ideas could be carried out, the "white-plague" would be robbed of much of its terror:

In ancient times it was highly improper to expose a tuberculous patient, especially one beyond the first stage, to a breath of fresh air except on the mildest days in summer, when the night air was dreaded and avoided as the plague. Then the more observant and thoughtful men noticed that those who lived more in the open air did not die as quickly as the tuberculous patients, and they began to urge an outdoor life and moderate exercise as a prophylactic as well as a cure for those in the early stages of consumption. Those in the more advanced stages were allowed fresh air only when it was at summer temperature, but even this was better than being kept indoors in warm, ill-ventilated rooms the whole year.

There are several plans by which the victim of tuberculosis may continuously breathe pure, fresh air by night as well as by day. Sleeping in the open air is not a general rule, but a large number of tuberculous people, Millet, of Brockton, Mass., reports the cases of five patients whom he recommended to sleep out of doors at night. They were allowed no roof over their heads except in rainy weather. They wore soft felt hats and cotton nightshirts, sleeping under ordinary bedclothes, in beds arranged on the roofs of their houses. Improvement was noted in two weeks. Coughs disappeared, temperatures became normal, respirations were easier and weight increased rapidly. No attention was paid to dampness and drafts, and heavy dews were regarded as inconvenient simply because of the necessity of drying the bedclothes.

Sleeping in a small room with an open window does not appear to be nearly so beneficial to the patient as when the nights are passed on a veranda or in a tent where there is a free circulation of air on all sides. If a patient were fortunate enough to have a large room with a southern exposure and containing one or two open fireplaces, in addition to large windows on three sides, which might be opened at night, he might derive approximately the benefit incident to tent life.

McGrath, of South Carolina, prefers the circular to the tent, and thinks it better to place it on a platform two feet from the ground, and to do without carpets and draperies. Draperies are not necessary, but rug greatly to the comfort and convenience of those in ill health, and their use can be made perfectly safe by exposing them to the sunlight for a few hours daily.

Special Hospitals for Consumptives. A hundred years ago the city of Naples, Italy, erected a large hospital for consumptives, and required the houses of the city to be free from this disease. It is only recently, however, that the authorities of modern cities have become awakened to the importance of this sanitary measure. Recently a number of cities have taken steps for the establishment of hospitals especially for the treatment of cases of consumption, by the so-called "open-air method." Excellent results are reported from this method of treatment.

The German government has a large central committee numbering more than thirteen hundred persons, organized for the purpose of erecting hospitals for the treatment of tuberculosis. This committee has under its supervision seventy-four such hospitals, and last year treated over thirty thousand patients, of whom eighty per cent were returned to their homes practically cured after remaining in the hospitals on an average of a little less than three months.

An Extra Good Appetite. A good appetite is a symptom of good health. An extra good appetite is sometimes a symptom of constitutional disturbance somewhere. A sample letter sent to the "Questions and Answers" column of a prominent health journal was something like this:—

"I am troubled with pimples, not to a great extent, but still very annoying. They appear principally on the forehead, but occasionally on other places. I often feel languid, and tire easily, and cannot gain flesh, although I have an extra good appetite. Still I am not much heavier than I have been for a day in my life. Age, nineteen years. Will you kindly advise me what you think would remove these pimples?"

There is little doubt but that the "extra good appetite" alluded to affords the key to the situation. The digestive organs have more than they can take care of, and consequently do not properly take care of anything further.

How to Earn Sound Sleep. All doctors are not so careful of the welfare of their patients as they might be. Here is a story of one who went to the limit. He is the proprietor of a famous health resort not far from New York. When he receives a patient for treatment he says:

"Now, I want it understood that unless you do exactly as I say, there is no use of your staying."

This rule sometimes requires him to be very harsh, but he never hesitates. He acts on the theory that he can better afford to offend a single patient and lose him than to have that patient go back home and tell his friends Dr. So-and-so had done him no good, relates the Washington Star.

Not long ago a well-known clergyman went to this resort for treatment. The doctor looked him over upon his arrival and said:

"While you are here you must take long walks every day."

"But I can't take walks," replied the parson. "Haven't done any walking for years. My heart won't stand it."

They argued the question quite warmly. As the clergyman and doctor were good friends, the latter was more lenient than usual. However, he bided his time. The next afternoon the physician said to the clergyman:

"It's a nice day. I would like you to go horseback riding with me."

Riding they went. When they were about eight miles from the sanitarium the physician said: "Oh, doctor, won't you get me that flower by the roadside? I don't like to leave this horse."

As soon as the clergyman was on the ground the doctor galloped off with both horses, and the clergyman was compelled to walk back to the sanitarium. Upon his arrival he was very angry, and was for packing up and leaving at once. There was no train that night, so he was forced to stay a few hours longer. The next morning he came down radiant and good natured.

"Doctor," said he, "I was pretty sore at you last night, but I forgive everything. I have had the first good sleep I have enjoyed in months. Hereafter I'll obey your order implicitly."

TIMELY VEGETARIAN RECIPES. Cream of Celery Soup—Ingredients: Celery tops, 1 quart cream or rich milk. Method—Put tops in saucepan, cover with water, simmer one hour. Drain, return water to pan, add milk and stalks, simmer one-half hour longer, season to taste, remove celery, thicken to consistency of cream. Serve hot.

Chili Sauce—Ingredients: One quart strained tomato, 4 tablespoons minced celery, 2 tablespoons minced onion, sugar. Method—Put all together in saucepan, let come to boil, set on back of range and simmer two hours. A small piece of lemon peel and a cup of chopped tart apples will greatly improve the flavor. Cook till apples are done, remove lemon peel, cool, serve.

Sweet Potato Cutlets—Pare potatoes, cover with boiling water, boil twenty minutes, draining off half the water, and cook till soft. They should be almost dry when done. Mash or put through ricer. Form in shape of chops, sprinkle with powdered sugar, and brown in medium oven. Serve with sugar peas.

Reliable doctors recommend "Favorite Prescription." With tricky ones something else that pays them better will probably be urged upon you as "just as good." Perhaps it is for them; but it can't be for you. Some cases may be cured by purchasing our medicines in half-dozen quantities. If you are convinced that the "Favorite Prescription" is the medicine you need, do not be cajoled into accepting something else. The attempt to induce you to do this is an insult to your intelligence. Turn your back on the one who offers the affront.

DR. PIERCE'S PLEASANT PILLETS

Griping biliousness, sick and bilious headache, dizziness, constipation, or constipation of the bowels, loss of appetite, coated tongue, sour stomach, windy belchings, "heart-burn," pain and distress after eating, and kindred derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. Persons subject to any of these troubles should never be without a vial of the "Pleasant-Pilllets" at hand. They are always adopted as a household remedy after the first trial. Put up in glass vials, tightly corked, therefore always fresh and reliable.

One little "Pillet" is a laxative, two are cathartic. They regulate, invigorate and cleanse the liver, stomach and bowels. They are a "dinner pill" to promote digestion, take one each day. To relieve the distress arising from over-eating, nothing equals one of these little "Pilllets." They're tiny, sugar-coated, anti-bilious granules, scarcely larger than mustard seeds.

Doctor Pierce's great thousand-page "Common Sense Medical Adviser" will be sent for the mere cost of mailing; paper-bound for 21 one-cent stamps, or cloth-bound for 31 stamps. It is a grand and useful work, and one of the best to fulfill the joy of motherhood. This famous medicine is not a cure-all.

PERSONALITY OF "AUTOCRAT"

Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes Described by One Who Knew Him.

Mrs. Rebecca Harding Davis writes of Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes: "Physically, he was a very small man, holding himself erect; his face insignificant as his figure, except for a long, obstinate upper lip. He was, I should say, one day, by some ill-conditioned great-grandmother, and eyes full of a wonderful fire and sympathy. No one on whom Dr. Holmes had once looked with interest ever forgot the look—or him. He attracted all kinds of people as a brilliant, excitable child would attract them. But nobody, I suspect, ever succeeded in being familiar with him. I remember one evening that he quoted one of his poems, and I was forced stupidly to acknowledge that I did not know it. He fairly jumped to the bookcase, took out the volume and read the verses, standing in the middle of the room, his voice trembling, his whole body thrilling with their meaning. There! he cried at the end, his eyes flashing, 'could anybody have said that better?' with a long in-drawn breath of delight as he put the book back."

TO BEAUTIFY THE TWIN FALLS PARK

Ground Cleared and Leveled Preparation to Planting Trees—Ourling and—Perking Will Follow Immediately.

Before the meadow larks begin to build their nests, Twin Falls will have a beautiful city park. The park ground occupies four blocks, two on each side of Shoshone avenue, between Sixth and Eighth avenues. The townsie company donated the ground and is now beautifying it. The entire tract has been cleared of sagebrush and leveled.

Chief Engineer Bickel and Agricultural Inspector McPherson of the Twin Falls Land & Water company inspected the park grounds this week and decided upon the nature of the improvements.

A row of sturdy elm trees will be planted all the way around the park on the outside. Inside the sidewalk line there will be another row of honey locusts. The entire tract will be curbed and parked, the width of the parking between the curb and sidewalk lines being four feet. With judicious care and liberal irrigation the park will be a beauty spot this year.

On the north side of Shoshone avenue will stand the Twin Falls high school and city hall, the school on the northeast corner and the city hall on the southwest.

The southwest corner of the park has been set aside for a court house and the southeast corner for a Carnegie library. Of course Mr. Carnegie is probably ignorant that such a place as Twin Falls exists. The attention of the benevolent gentleman will be called to this important fact, however, and he will be given an opportunity of adding the vigorous child of the desert to his large and growing family.

It may also be a trifle early to talk of a court house but this is something no well regulated city can afford to be without and as Twin Falls has county seat aspirations which, it is hoped, will be realized two years hence when Cassia county will be divided, it is well that a suitable site for a county building should be set aside now.

Every effort will be made by the company to bring the park forward as quickly as possible. It will be one of the best advertisements in the city and a fine object lesson, showing what can be done with the soil when water is properly applied.

Stop monkeying with that gasoline stove and buy Kemmerer coal from the Nibley Channel Lumber Co.

IMPROVEMENT IN POSTAL SERVICE

Senator Heyburn Obtains from Department Permission for Postmaster Dunn to Employ a Capable Assistant—Acted Before Petition was Received by Congressman French.

The officials of the postal department in Washington were prompt in furnishing assistance to the overworked postmaster of Twin Falls. Immediately Senator Heyburn directed the attention of the department to conditions in this city, the employment of a competent clerk was authorized. Postmaster Dunn has been advised of this action. Further help will doubtless be forthcoming shortly.

The petition signed by a number of citizens of Twin Falls, asking for relief from the annoying congestion which prevailed in the local postoffice at the time the petition was circulated, was promptly forwarded to Congressman French at Washington. Before the receipt of the petition by Mr. French, however, Senator Heyburn learned that the Twin Falls office was snowed under and without waiting for a request he at once took the matter up with the department with the result that Postmaster Dunn was empowered to engage a clerk.

Fortunately for the postmaster and the public, Edward Johnson, an experienced railway postal clerk, was available and Mr. Dunn secured his services without delay. The improvement in the local office was immediate and very acceptable. Mr. Johnson is not only a capable man but is acquainted with a majority of the postoffice patrons and is a gentleman with whom it is a pleasure to deal. Postmaster Dunn considered himself very fortunate in obtaining such valuable assistance at a time when it was most needed.

When Congressman French is able to present the citizens' petition to the postal department it is hoped that further help will be forthcoming. While Postmaster Dunn and his assistant are giving the public splendid service at present, considering the unusual volume of mail matter and the unseasonable hour it arrives, further improvement could and should be made.

During the present week the number of registered pieces exceeded 200, entailing a prodigious amount of work. This rush was caused by the mailing of notices to consumers under the low line canal, to whom the water company is now prepared to furnish water.

SETTLERS ENCOURAGED TO TRY CORN GROWING

Interesting Bulletin on the Subject Issued by G. A. Crosthwait, Agronomist of the Experiment Station at Moscow, Which Tells of Good Results Already Obtained.

Now that the work of cultivation has begun on the Twin Falls tract, the following bulletin upon the subject of corn growing, which has just been issued by the agricultural experiment station at the University of Idaho in Moscow, will prove of interest, especially to those farmers who came from the corn states. The bulletin was written by G. A. Crosthwait, agronomist of the experiment station, and is as follows:

Why Corn Should Be Grown.

There are several reasons why corn is needed. (a) It is needed in our rotations. Wheat can not be raised on the same ground continuously. Many farms in Idaho are becoming less fertile than formerly from this very cause, and a change must be made. A systematic and rational rotation should be practiced. Wheat should be followed by some rotation crop, such as clover, and this by corn. Wheat could then again be sowed and the rotation repeated. Each crop might be raised two years. This makes a simple and effective rotation, and one that would benefit most of our land. (b) Corn would be a very valuable addition to our feeding operations, for working animals, fattening animals, and dairy animals. (c) It is also needed for human food. Corn is being shipped in for grinding into corn meal. (d) In the minds of those who have studied the matter, there is no longer any doubt that corn can be profitably raised in many sections of Idaho. The average yield in the State in 1903 was 34.5 bushels per acre, one bushel higher than that of any other state in the Union.

Selection of Seed.

At this time of the year, seed can not be selected to the best advantage, but much can be done that will enhance the value of the crop. If seed must be purchased, it should be that which has been raised under climatic conditions similar to those under which the crop is to be grown. The seed having been decided upon, the best ears should be carefully selected. As a rule, average sized ears with deep grains closely set upon a small sized cob should be selected. To test one's skill in selecting corn it is interesting and instructive to plant the seed from each ear in a row by itself and note the results.

Germination Test.

No one can afford to plant seed that will not grow, and often a farmer can make more money by testing his seed than he can in any other way for a similar amount of work. The process is simple. Take a few grains from different parts of the ear and plant them in a box of moist soil, sand or sawdust, setting the box in a moderately warm place. If all the grains taken from any ear do not sprout in a week, it is better to feed that ear to the chickens. Number each ear and mark the location of the grains in the soil.

Preparation of Seed Bed.

Next in importance to the selection and testing of seed, if, indeed, it is not of equal importance, is the preparation of the soil for the reception of the seed. Certain it is, that no subsequent efforts can atone for lack of preparation before planting. Where it can be done, it is usually best to plow the ground in the fall. In this way, the soil is in a condition to absorb the rainfall instead of allowing it to run off. The frosts in the winter and the action of the atmosphere tend to crumble the soil and cause the organic matter in the soil to disintegrate and become available as plant food. Many enemies of the corn are destroyed, such as cut worms and grub worms. The soil may be worked earlier in the spring as the surface is drier than that of the soil not plowed, although there may be more water in the lower layers of soil. A cover crop sown in the fall after fall plowing and turned under in the spring is beneficial. Rye is a good cover crop and may be grazed when the ground is not too soft. (A heavy clay should not be plowed in the fall, if the winter rains are excessive, as the soil will run together and become compact.) As early in the spring as the ground is dry enough to work, the soil should be disked and harrowed to retard the evaporation of the moisture. The soil should be kept in good condition until planting time, no crust being allowed to remain as it will permit the moisture to escape. If the soil is properly cultivated there will be no clods to contend with and the seed bed will be soft and mellow for the reception of the seed. A quick germination and a rapid growth is thus assured.

Time and Manner of Planting.

It is best to plant as soon as danger of frost is over, especially in those parts of the state where the frosts of autumn come early. It is better to risk a spring frost than one in the fall, as the corn can recover from a rather severe frost in the spring if the nodes or joints are not above the surface. The seed should be planted deeply enough to be in moist soil but not deeper. Shallow planting is preferable to deep planting if conditions permit. The thickness of planting will depend upon the size of the variety, the moisture available and the fertility of the soil. If checked, probably three and one half feet apart each way, with two or three grains to the hill will be right for ordinary Idaho conditions, or the equivalent if not checked.

Cultivation of Soil.

If the soil is in proper condition at planting time the subsequent care of the crop is ordinarily a simple matter. If the soil is kept in good tilth and free from weeds, the farmer has done all he can do in the way of cultivation. A weeder or light harrow may be used just as the corn begins to appear and once or twice more before it becomes too large. This is very important in securing the two conditions mentioned above. The cultivator may be used several times, care being taken not to cultivate so deeply as to injure the small roots so essential to the growth of the plant. Cultivation should not cease because a certain time of the year has come or because the corn has reached a certain height. Shallow cultivation to keep a loose mulch for the retention of moisture may often be profitably practiced after the stage when cultivation usually ceases. Indeed, the later treatment of the crop often determines the profitability of corn growing. Even where irrigation is practiced, it is better to use less water and to practice better methods of cultivation.

Harvesting the Product.

For the silo, corn should be cut when it has passed the roasting ear stage and is entering the glazed stage. For fodder, it should be cut as near the maturity stage as it can be handled without waste. The husking of corn for storage in the crib should not begin until the ear is thoroughly matured. This is particularly important in those parts of the state where the fall and winter months are very wet.

Disposition of Crop.

It is hoped that the great bulk of Idaho's corn crop will be fed on the farm, as this is the most economical method, especially when the fertility of the soil is considered. However, at the present time there is a rapidly growing demand for seed corn adapted to Idaho conditions and those prepared to do so will find it very profitable to meet this demand.

This "press bulletin" is of necessity condensed and incomplete, the intention being merely to call attention to the subject of corn growing in Idaho. Fuller information will be given later upon this subject. In the meantime the writer shall be pleased to hear from all who are interested in corn growing in Idaho. Any one who now has seed corn for sale, or expects to raise it for sale, should not fail to send his name to this office.

Idaho Farmers' Agronomy Association

An organization of this name has recently been formed for the purpose of improving the farm crops of the state. Every farmer in the state should at once send in his name to the secretary of the association for further information. (G. A. Crosthwait has been appointed secretary of the association.)

SILLY RUMOR IS QUICKLY DENIED

Minidoka & Southwestern Railway Will Build Into Twin Falls as Fast as Possible and Will Not Stop Five Miles East as Reported.

An idiotic rumor that the Minidoka & Southwestern railway would stop construction five miles east of Twin Falls has been persistently circulated here for several days. Its source could not be ascertained but it probably originated in the brain of some addled knocker. The funny part of it was that some people who ought to know better were actually alarmed by the silly rumor. In justice to those who are interested in the new townsite east of the city it should be stated that they were in no way responsible for the report and were prompt to express their disbelief in it. There will be a switch at the new townsite to begin with and a station as soon as required.

The Minidoka and Southwestern grade is now within a mile of Twin Falls and will be here in possibly 10 days. This city has always been the objective point of the company. The station grounds and yard were surveyed months ago and their location is known to everybody who took the trouble to inquire.

The statement made in last week's issue of The News to the effect that the railway would reach Twin Falls during the last week in June is repeated, with the addition that the road may be here a few days earlier. The work of driving piers in the bridge across the Snake river at Burley was completed this week and the road will be in Burley earlier than expected.

HOW THE WATER IS TO BE DELIVERED

Attorney E. B. Critchlow Defines the Duties and Obligations of the Twin Falls Land and Water Company Respecting the Construction and Maintenance of Headgates and Measuring Devices.

In order that a clear understanding might be reached with reference to the duties and obligations of the Twin Falls Land & Water company regarding the construction and maintenance of headgates and measuring devices on the canal system, General Manager Walter G. Filer has obtained from the company's attorney, E. B. Critchlow, of Henderson, Pierce, Critchlow & Barrette, a concise explanation of what is required of the company under the terms of its contract with land owners.

One of the first questions usually asked by a settler or prospective settler is: "How far do I have to bring my water?" This question is answered by Mr. Critchlow in such a way as to permit of no misunderstanding. Mr. Critchlow also describes the means by which the water will be measured and distributed to the users. His letter to Mr. Filer is as follows:

"In reply to your inquiry as to the duties and obligations of the company with reference to the construction and maintenance of headgates and measuring devices upon the Twin Falls canal, we have this to say: By the terms of paragraph 10 of the contract between the Twin Falls company and the state of Idaho (a copy of which is found on page 104 of the pamphlet containing the irrigation laws of Idaho) the Twin Falls company agreed that it would construct, place in position and maintain all headgates, flumes, weirs and other devices through which water may be turned off from said canal or main laterals; and that it would construct and place in said canal or laterals such devices for measuring water to the irrigators as shall be deemed necessary and best by the state engineer of Idaho.

"Under this provision it will be the duty of the company to place in position at its own expense all gates, weirs and measuring devices necessary along the main canal or along the main laterals. The water will be measured to the farmers from the main lateral to such sub-laterals as may be constructed, and from the time the water is turned off from the main laterals to the sub-laterals it will be regarded as a delivery to the farmers so far as they are concerned; provided, of course, said laterals are constructed to within one-half mile of each legal subdivision of one hundred and sixty acres.

"It therefore does not become the duty of the company to construct or maintain the headgates leading from any sub-lateral either to the land of the taker or to any other sub-lateral. Inasmuch, however, as the duty is imposed upon the company of delivering water to a point within one-half mile, approximately, from the premises of each taker, it becomes the right of the company to control the manner in which water shall be taken from the various sub-laterals and to this end to prescribe the form of weir, headgate or measuring device and to devise and enforce such needful rules and regulations as will insure an equitable division of water. It is therefore within the power of the company to prescribe the form of the headgate and to insist that these be uniform in construction and according to the pattern prescribed or approved by the state engineer.

"As to the construction of these various headgates, it is, of course, optional with the takers of water whether they construct them themselves or permit the company to construct them. In the latter case we assume that they will be placed in position for the farmers at actual cost. In any event, we are clear that the company would have the right to refuse to attempt the delivery of water excepting under such conditions as would insure its proper delivery and the proper maintenance of the ditch with a view to its capacity to carry water to all the farmers dependent upon it.

"Yours very truly,
HENDERSON, PIERCE, CRITCHLOW & BARRETTE
By E. B. Critchlow."

PROPER WAY TO MEASURE WATER

Simple Rules for Determining the Exact Flow in Irrigation Ditches and Explanation of the Common Terms Used in Describing Volumes.

An "inch" of water, according to the Idaho standard, is the volume of water which will flow through an opening one inch square, measured under a four inch pressure from the center of the opening. Fifty inches equal one cubic foot per second, or one second foot.

In Colorado 38.4 inches equal one second foot, measured under a five inch pressure from the top of the opening.

The standard of measurement of water stored in reservoirs, the unit of quantity, is designated as an "acre foot;" that is, an amount of water which will cover one acre of ground, or 43,560 square feet to a depth of one one foot. This will give, of course, 43,560 cubic feet, or 325 851 gallons. One cubic foot per second flowing constantly for twenty-four hours equals nearly two acre feet, and from this it is not difficult to convert cubic feet per second into acre feet and estimate the quantity of water to be stored in reservoirs for the use and requirements of crops. The reservoirs themselves may also be measured in the same manner as a tank, but allowance must be made for evaporation and absorption.

To further explain the technical units of measurements into quantities, the following table is taken from "The Primer of Irrigation," published in The Irrigation Age, Chicago:

One second foot equals 450 gallons per minute.

One cubic foot equals 7.5 gallons.

One second foot equals two acre feet in twenty-four hours flowing constantly.

One hundred Idaho inches equal four acre feet in twenty-four hours.

One hundred Colorado inches equal five and one-sixth acre feet in twenty-four hours.

One Colorado inch equals 17,000 gallons in twenty-four hours.

One second foot equals fifty-nine and one-half acre feet in thirty days.

Two acre feet equal one second foot per day, or .0333 second feet in thirty days.

One million gallons equal 3.069 acre feet.

Cheated Death.

Kidney trouble often ends fatally, but by choosing the right medicine, E. H. Wolfe of Bear Grove, Iowa, cheated death. He says: "Two years ago I had kidney trouble, which caused me great pain, suffering and anxiety, but I took Electric Bitters, which effected a complete cure. I have also found them of great benefit in general debility and nerve trouble, and keep them constantly on hand since, as I find they have no equal." HARRY WILSON ACCUSED OF ROBBING HIS "ANGEL"

Halfbreed Indian Who Made Sensational Jump at Shoshone Falls Last Month, and His Female Accomplice are in Jail at Boise Awaiting Trial on a Serious Charge.

Harry Wilson, the halfbreed Indian, who filled up on "squirrel whiskey" one afternoon early in March and jumped into the pool below Shoshone falls because he couldn't find a tree to climb, was arrested at Nampa this week on a charge of robbery preferred by a man, who, it is said, was about to launch Wilson as a vaudeville star. Louise Menard, Wilson's companion, who is also alleged to be concerned in the robbery, was arrested at Baker City. Both of them are now in the county jail at Boise awaiting trial.

Story of Alleged Crime.

The Baker City Herald published the following story of the affair:

"The police of this city, on telegraphic advice from Meridian, a station half way between Nampa and Boise, last night arrested a woman known to the half-world as Louise. She is wanted there for robbing a man in a hotel of $350. It appears that the woman, who is known to be one of the cleverest light fingered 'touch' artists traveling, got in with a halfbreed Indian who had been doing a high dive stunt in Boise and Twin Falls, and together they had secured as an 'angel' a man who had known the halfbreed's father back on the Cherokee strip. He was to put up for them until they got in touch with some of the vaudeville circuits that would want a stellar outdoor attraction. The 'angel' was loosening up with alacrity and had, so he claims, separated himself from $600. The trio stopped off at Meridian from Boise for some reason. There the woman drugged the 'manager' and when he came out of his trance he was minus $350, all the mazzuma he had left. He put the local Hawkshaw on the trail. He landed the halfbreed, but the woman was elusive and reached Baker before she could be located. She had managed to get up town and only a few dollars were found upon her. The rest had very likely been left with one of her kind. She had two tickets for this point, indicating that it had been the intent to bring the halfbreed with her. The Meridian marshal arrived here this morning and escorted her back.

"The officers placed her in a room in the city hall, but about 5 o'clock this morning she broke the transom and climbing out found a convenient window to effect an escape. Later the police located her and when taken back she was locked in a steel cell."

Wilson is well known in Twin Falls having been a familiar character here for some time. When he left for Boise a few days ago he announced his intention of returning before July 4 and jumping from the brink of the falls on that date.

LIQUOR CASES ARE SETTLED

Defendants Plead Guilty and are Fined $25 Each—Commissioners Grant Licenses to Saloons as "Five Mile Limit" Law No Longer Applies

The long pending cases against S. C. Hamburg, M. N. Pomeroy, A. Walters, Pearl Smith and Eva Allen, who were charged with selling liquor within five miles of public works, contrary to the state law, were tried in Justice Taylor's court on Tuesday. After the court had overruled the demurrer of the defense, a plea of guilty was entered by the defendants. Defendant Hamburg was fined $25, without costs. The other defendants were each fined $16.20 and costs, making a total of $25 each.

County Attorney A. H. Derbyshire, who prosecuted the cases, was highly complimented for his talent and determination. W. P. Guthrie, counsel for the defendants, succeeded in securing several continuances and it was thought for a time that he might wear down the prosecution.

The cases were peculiar, the point on which they hinged being whether or not the work on the irrigation canals constituted a public work. Those of the defendants who conducted saloons had obtained federal licenses and were willing to take out county licenses but the county commissioners declined to issue them.

Now that Twin Falls is incorporated and the city is no longer within the scope of the "five mile limit law," the county commissioners have issued licenses to those saloons making a satisfactory showing. This settles the much disputed liquor question, the only one which has caused any friction in the city. The saloons will be under police supervision hereafter and upon the conduct of the places depends their licenses.

PATENTS SOON TO BE OBTAINED

State Makes Formal Application to the Interior Department for Lands Under the Low Line Canal East of Twin Falls.

The state of Idaho has applied to the interior department at Washington for a patent to the lands under the Twin Falls canal system upon which water is now ready for delivery and distribution. The application was forwarded to Washington on Wednesday, April 19, by C. S. McConnell, register of the state land department in Boise.

The lands for which patents are desired are all located east of Twin Falls and between the low line canal and the Snake river. Irrigation has already commenced upon these lands and it is probable that a majority of the settlers will be ready to prove up whenever the state is prepared to issue patents.

In the ordinary course of events the interior department might issue the patents to the state within five weeks of the date of application but Governor Gooding, the president of the state land department, is doing all in his power to facilitate matters and in all likelihood more speedy action may be expected.

Already many settlers have applied for patents or announced their intention of proving up as soon as they can do so. This means that there will be a settler upon nearly every piece of land under the low line canal east of Twin Falls before the summer is over. The average amount of land per settler in this section of the tract is 80 acres, consequently there will be, in this territory alone, not less than 200 families settled within a few miles of Twin Falls in a comparatively short space of time.

Heavy Traction Engine Makes the Trip From Kimama to Twin Falls in Remarkably Fast Time—Hauls a Large Separator, and Two Heavy Freight Wagons in Addition to Coal and Water.

The towering 30 horse power traction engine, purchased through the Idaho Implement company of Boise by I. B. Perrine and H. L. Hollister steamed into Twin Falls on Tuesday evening in charge of Colonel Elias Marsters of the Implement company and R. W. Steele of Portland, traveling agent for the J. I. Case company of Racine, Wisconsin, manufacturers of the engine. The sound of the first steam whistle in Twin Falls caused quite a flutter and hundreds flocked about the engine, curious to see how it stood the trip from Kimama.

Trailing behind the engine were the separator and two large freight wagons, a weight of 16,000 pounds. This was hauled from Kimama to Twin Falls in splendid time and without the slightest trouble, proving that the engine will meet all requirements in regard to grades.

The party in charge of the outfit, five in number, left Kimama on Friday morning, April 14, at 10 o'clock. They reached the Star ferry at Jessie at noon the following day and were obliged to remain there until Monday morning when the engine and its trailers were ferried over the Snake river with the assistance of a tugboat.

The trip from Jessie to Twin Falls occupied two days, including stoppages and delays. A short distance east of Twin Falls the engine sank to the level of the firebox in a sand draw in which water was running. For a few minutes it looked as though the journey would end right there, but the steam pressure was raised, and the ponderous steamer pulled itself out of the sand, taking the trailers with it. There were no indications of a strain on the machinery through this unusual pull.

Coal was used to stoke the engine on the trip and a large water tank was towed behind. With the engine came three gang plows of three bottoms each.

On Thursday afternoon the engine and plows were tested on a piece of land along Blue Lake boulevard near the river. The land was thickly covered with sage brush and although the coulters were removed from the plows it was found that the brush clogged too quickly to permit of good progress.

With Alvord or Johnson grubbers the engine will undoubtedly be a great success as it has power to spare. Mr. Perrine sent for a pair of Johnson grubbers at once. On cleared land the engine will easily plow 50 acres a day.

A number of citizens went down to see the test. They were surprised when the engine crossed the wooden bridge over Perrine coulee. The bridge never gave an inch and the idea that it might not stand the pressure of heavy freight wagons was dissipated.

SCHOOL CLOSED FOR THE SUMMER

Will Reopen on the First Monday in September.

The Twin Falls school closed for the summer on Thursday, April 27. The autumn term will open on the first Monday in September, by which time the new brick school building will be finished.

The enrollment on the closing day was 138. It would have been more than 200 had Professor Thornton not been obliged to refuse dozens of applications on account of the lack of room. The number of applications for enrollment received during the last week was in excess of 50.

Professor Thornton will spend the summer in Albion. It is his belief that 500 pupils will be enrolled in Twin Falls at the opening of the next term of school. He is highly pleased with the manner in which he has been treated by the local board of trustees and the latter fully appreciate Mr. Thornton's good work.

BOUND TO PASS PURE FOOD BILL

Senator Heyburn Making a Strong Fight for the Heritage Left Him by Senator McCumber—Believes He Will Succeed With Measure.

For an adopted child, the McCumber pure food bill is receiving a great deal of attention from Senator Heyburn who is making a powerful fight against adulteration.

The Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune says many things about the senator in a recent dispatch to his paper, prefacing a lengthy story of the pure bill with the following introduction:

"Senator Heyburn, who made such a valiant fight for the pure food bill in the last congress and whose most persistent efforts were invariably accompanied by a courtesy and good nature which won for him the respect of his colleagues, will renew the contest next autumn with materially increased prospects of success. The McCumber pure food bill, for the passage of which Senator Heyburn strove during the recent congress, came to him by inheritance when he was elected chairman of the committee on manufactures, and although unwilling to criticize the work of his predecessors, the senator will redraft the measure in the recess, bearing in mind every tangible objection raised and seeking to eliminate every cause for reasonable opposition, and then will make a determined contest for the new measure on the floor of the senate. He does not hesitate to declare now that his efforts will meet with success."

Mrs. C. A. Camp opened her studio Monday with a fine class in Kindergarten; also a nice class in music and elocution. Miss Gertrude Rouch acts as assistant in the Kindergarten with Mrs. Camp.

My Cat.
Our neighbor's cat is Persian, the Jones's cat is Siamese, and the Andersons' cat is a Siamese. I tell you it is a Siamese. When that Siamese meets a puppy dog, I tell you it is a Siamese. But when I ask: "What breed is mine—mine, yours, and mine's?" They laugh, and pull my curls and say: "It's a Siamese—just a Siamese." It's true, her eyes aren't yellow, and her tail is rather even, and I don't know if she ever had a red-green at all.
(That big word means her mother, her grandma, too, they say. That they all took prices at a show, were marked a special way.)
What do I care for markings, top prizes and all that?
My kitty's just as precious if she is just a cat!
She was the dearest kitten, all scamp and all fur.
Not one of all my pets could make me laugh at her.
She may be very common, but I know she's a good and true.
For she meets me when I come from school, with a joyful little mew.
And when she's sound, she never sees a naughty mouse or rat.
And I love her better, because she's just plain cat!

Recoloring Flowers.
One of the popular fads of late years is to have flowers of peculiar colors different from those that nature gives them. A "freak" of this kind is considered a great curiosity and is valued accordingly. Many growers of flowers have sought a method of changing the color of the line, the bell-shaped, or the red rose, plant stalk by treating the roots with various chemical processes, sometimes with surprising results.
Boys and girls would hardly care to undertake anything so serious as the attempts of the florists, but perhaps they would like to know how they may change the colors in a perfectly simple way.

Four a little ether into a small glass and add one-tenth of its quantity of strong ammonia water. With this simple and easily made mixture you may change to a bright green any flower that is red or violet. All you have to do is to dip the flower into the mixture and the change will at once take place.

Try, for instance, the violet, the periwinkle, the red geranium, the lilac. These will all respond to the treatment, and you will have a novel specimen of each, one to excite wonder among those to whom you show them.
A beautiful variation of the experiment is to dip the violet colored sweet pea into the mixture, when the upper petal will become a dark blue and the lower one green. Try the streaked carnation and you will see it turn to brown and green.

Yellow flowers are not changed by this process, but white ones usually turn to a yellow or a deep orange tone.

The action of the fluid is almost instantaneous, and you may vary the experiment by sprinkling some flowers instead of dipping them, which will give a spotted effect.

Somewhat similar results may be produced by using ammonia only, but the process is a longer one.
You are all familiar with the aster, the handsome fall flower that heralds the coming of the larger chrysanthemum, and know that it has no odor. To give it one pleasantly aromatic, pour ammonia into a plate or flat dish and cover it with an inverted dish containing aster. When you take the blossoms out you will find that they have a distinct odor. The fumes of the ammonia effect the change.

The Game of Concell.

This play is commenced by the company selecting a conductor. The players then seat themselves in a semi-circle, and to each is assigned an imaginary musical instrument, with instructions how to play on it. The conductor next orders them to tune, and then, making believe to be a fiddler, he hums a lively air, in which all join, imitating by voice and gesture the instrument on which they are supposed to play, such as the violin, the harp, the big drum, the trombone, the flute, the violincello, the double bass, the cymbals, etc. After that he waves his phantom baton, when all cease playing, and he calls "solos." All are now attention, and he makes believe to play on a particular instrument, imitating its sound and motion. Hereupon the player who is supposed to hold that instrument is bound to instantly join him in the tune and gesture.

tures; failing to do so a forfeit is the result. A forfeit is also incurred when any instrument comes in at the wrong time.

The object of this game is to make as much noise as possible.

A Peanut Spree.
Have you ever taken part in a "peanut-spree"? If you haven't, there is some fun in store for you; and if you have, well, you'll be sure to want to indulge in it again.

This amusement will almost fill an evening, or it may be stopped when you will. Zest is added to the "events"—if prizes be offered to the successful contestants. The prizes should be neatly wrapped—in these paper and some appropriate inscription should be on a card attached to the package.

Some of the prizes may be of a useful kind, but most of them should be ridiculous or ludicrous. They are all to be placed together on a table, or in a basket, and each winner makes his own selection just after winning, and opens the package immediately, so that everybody will see what he gets. He should also read aloud the inscription on the card.

Any number may take part in the "spree," but more than ten might make it confusing. A leader should be chosen, whose duty it is to select the contestants, to decide all questions in dispute, if any, keep the records of the contestants, and award the prizes.

Here are suggestions for the "events" of the spree:
Fill a dish with peanuts, and let each one guess how many are contained in it; the one who guesses nearest wins.

"Pious" Parrots.

Parrots are such close observers and keen mimics that it would be surprising if birds in the households of clergymen and ministers did not repeat special phrases at proper times. Indeed, it would be as well not to hold family worship with a speaking parrot in the room. There was no harm in the bird that sang in good time and tune, "There is a Happy Land." But other feats of imitiveness might easily offend. Parrots, uttering responses, or bits of the creed, or scraps of prayer—as several have been known to do—especially at unseasonable moments, are apt to vex rather than amuse, though, of course, the birds do not mean to be irreverent.
A bishop's parrot used to ejaculate "Let us pray" sometimes in devout tones, at other times mockingly; and the bishop could hardly have liked it.

The String and Vase Trick.

See who can hold the greatest number of peanuts in his left hand without the aid of his right in putting them there.

Fasten a peanut to a thread, and on the floor place a vase with a mouth just large enough for a peanut to pass through. Let each take a turn at holding the peanut by the thread about a foot above the vase, and then dropping it. The one who succeeds in dropping the peanut into the vase wins. If no one succeeds in the first trial, let all try again. If more than one succeeds, they must try again until there is only one.

Place a large basin upright on the floor, and let each contestant throw five peanuts at it, one at a time; the one who makes a peanut go nearest the pin, and remain there, wins.

Strew peanuts over the room about a foot apart, and let each contestant take a turn at going from one to the other and back again. The one who does this in the least time by the watch, without stepping on a peanut, wins.

Give each contestant ten peanuts, and at a signal let all begin to shell them, removing also the inner skin. The one who finishes first, without breaking a kernel, wins. If one breaks into more than two natural divisions of the nut, another peanut must be shelled in its place.

Inexhaustible Bottle.

Bring forward an empty bottle, which wash before the company and claim to show that it is clean and dry; but, after being wetted it wants wiping. So your confederate brings a napkin with which you wipe the bottle, as much after the fashion of a waiter as you can, but, of course, not being used to this work, rather clumsily; in the napkin is concealed a weak preparation of spirits of wine, sugar, and water—in a bladder, and thus in the face of the audience you fill the bottle without their knowing it. The different liquors part of the illusion is thus managed. The glasses are arranged on the tray in a definite manner known to the magician; into each glass one drop of various flavors—essences of orange, lemon, essence of nutmeg, essence of brandy, essence of port or sherry, lemonade, peppermint, cloves, pineapple, pears, etc.; these being filled up with the spirits of wine, according to what is called for by the audience, completes the illusion of the inexhaustible bottle.

Seven-Pieces in Two Cuts.

Draw a big U on cardboard or stiff paper, and then, with a sharp knife or scissors, cut it out. Laying it on the table, ask who can in two cuts, divide it into seven pieces. That seems a difficult thing to do, doesn't it? But it is quite easy. The picture shows how you may do it. First, cut across from 1 to 2, which will divide it into three pieces. Then place the pieces side by side, and one cut where you see the dotted line will give you seven pieces.

Original Star-Spangled Banner.

The flags of Fort McHenry, whose "broad stripes and bright stars" inspired Francis Scott Key to write "The Star-Spangled Banner," still exist in a fair state of preservation. It is the possession of Mr. Elton Appleton of Yorkers, N. Y., a grandson Col. Armstrong, the gallant defender of Fort McHenry.

The stripes are 2 feet wide and the stars are 2 feet from point to point. The entire flag is 30 feet wide and was originally 40 feet long. In its present curtailed dimension it is only 32 feet long.

Calendar Months and Days.

The names of the months in the present calendar are entirely derived from Roman sources. About 700 B. C. the Roman calendar consisted of ten months, as follows: Martius, named after the god Mars; Aprilis, from the word "to spring up"; Maius, after the goddess Maia; June, after Juno; Quintilis, fifth; Sextilis, sixth; September, seventh; October, eighth; November, ninth; December, tenth. In this early period, Numa, a King of Rome, is credited with adding two months to the calendar, January, after the god Janus, at the beginning, before Martius, and Februarius, after the god Februus, at the end, after December. In 450 B. C. the decemvirs placed January and Februarius at the beginning of the year before Martius. Quintilis was changed to Julius, in his honor, in the reign of his successor, Augustus Caesar, Sextilis was changed to Augustus, now August, placing the calendar in its present general form. Sunday, "sun's" day; Monday, "moon's" day; Tuesday, Tiv's (Anglo-Saxon god of war) day; Wednesday, Woden's (Anglo-Saxon) day; Thursday, Thor's (Danish) day; Friday, Freya's (Saxon) day; Saturday, Saturn's (Latin) day.

Clear Peanut Candy.

Place over the fire in a granite saucepan two cups of granulated sugar, one cup of boiling water and a level teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Let these boil of itself, without stirring, until it will "snap" when tried in ice water. Have ready a small square pan, greased, in which you have spread out evenly two cups of shelled and skinned peanuts. When the candy is done, pour it carefully over the nuts, and when partly cold mark and cut into bars. Be careful not to scrape the kettle when pouring the candy out. Any other nut may be used instead of peanuts, and a mixture will be found a pleasing variety. —Montreal Herald.

FEARED BURIAL IN FRANCE

Unhappy Existence Led by Victim of Peculiar Disease.

"In one of my voyages from Cape Town to England," writes a traveler, "I shared my cabin with a peculiar man, whose name was Lazarus. He made me promise that if he should die during the voyage I would prevent his burial at sea. He said that on a previous voyage he had fallen sick and was taken for dead and put into a sack for burial. A quartermaster had been put on to watch the body until it was time for the funeral. When the burial party arrived, the quartermaster informed the captain that he thought the body had moved in the sack. The sack was opened and Lazarus eventually came to life again. Such was the story Lazarus told me. Lazarus was a thin man, with a yellow face. He had an enormous appetite and appeared at every meal, to which he devoured his whole energies. The good doctor, who seemed to add to his corpulent appearance. One evening, sure enough, when we were about half-way to our voyage's end, he apparently died again. The doctor took him in charge this time, however, and he came out of his trance without any shotted-sack episode. He was met at the London docks by a number of relatives and friends, all of whom looked as if they might be suffering from the same complaint."

In the Springs.

Lowndes, Mo., April 10th.—Mrs. H. O. Hartly of this place, says: "For years I was in very bad health. Every spring I would get so low that it was unable to do my own work. I seemed to be worse in the spring than any other time of the year. I was very weak and miserable and had much pain in my back and head. I saw Dodd's Kidney Pills advertised last spring and began treatment of them and they have certainly done me more good than anything I have ever used."

"I was all right last spring and felt better than I have for over ten years. I am fifty years of age and am strong to-day than I have been for many years and I give Dodd's Kidney Pills credit for the wonderful improvement."

The statement of Mrs. Hartly is only one of a great many where Dodd's Kidney Pills have proven themselves to be the very best spring medicine. They are unsurpassed as a tonic and are the only medicine used in thousands of families.

Prefers Calves to Butter.

A Kensington, N. H., farmer lays the following down as a hard and fast rule: "I raise no less than twelve calves a year, but I would do it if there wasn't a pound of butter in the house from one year's end to another."

NO TONGUE CAN TELL

How I Suffered With Itching and Bleeding Eczema Until Cured by Cuticura.

"No tongue can tell how I suffered for five years with a terribly painful, itching, and bleeding eczema, my body and face being covered with sores. Never in my life did I experience such awful suffering, and I longed for death, which I felt was near. I had tried doctors and medicines without success, but my mother insisted that I try Cuticura. I felt better after the first bath with Cuticura Soap and one application of Cuticura Ointment, and was soon entirely well. (Signed) Mrs. A. Elton, Bellevue, Mich."

New Use for Whisky.
A butler, newly engaged, requested his master to allow him some whisky. "There's nothing like it to clean the windows," said he. However, a few minutes later his master chanced to pass through the room, and to his surprise found the glass empty. "Why, James," he asked, "where's the whisky?" "Well, you see, sir," said James, "it's this way; I drank the whisky and then I breathe on the glass."

WHO OWNS THE RAILROADS?

H. T. Newcomb of the District of Columbia Bar, has compiled statistics showing that 5,174,718 depositors in savings banks of six eastern states are directly interested in the joint ownership of $442,354,086 of steam railroad securities, that insurance companies doing business in Massachusetts hold $845,889,028 of steam railroad stocks and bonds and 74 educational institutions depend on $17,659,227 invested in similar securities for a portion of their income. Other fiduciary institutions own enough railroad securities to bring such holding up to more than a billion and a half dollars, about one-tenth of the entire capital invested in railroad property. These investments represent the savings of the masses, have been twenty million holders of life insurance policies in the country, and many more of fire insurance policies, and his greater number of depositors in banking and trust institutions, where investments are largely in railroad securities.

DYSPEPSIA YIELDS

A NINE YEARS' VICTIM FINDS A REMEDY THAT CURES.

For Two Years Too Weak to Work—A Dozen Doctors Had Tried to Check Disease—Treatment That Succeeded.

All sufferers from weakness or disorder of the digestive organs will read with lively interest the story of the complete recovery of Mrs. Nettie Darvonx from chronic dyspepsia which was thought to be incurable.

"To beailing for nine years is not a very pleasant experience," said Mrs. Darvonx, when asked for some account of her illness. "For two years I was critically ill and could not attend to my household duties—nearly one time I was so weak and miserable that I could not even walk. My trouble was chronic dyspepsia. I became extremely thin and had a yellow complexion. I had no appetite and could not take any food without suffering great distress."

"Did you have a physician?"

"Yes, I took medicine from a dozen different doctors, but without getting any benefit whatever."

"How did you get on the track of a cure?"

"A book about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills was thrown in our doorway one day. My husband picked it up and read it through carefully. He was so impressed by the statements of those who had been cured by that remedy, that he immediately bought three boxes of the pills and insisted on my taking them."

"Did they help you at once?"

"I began to feel better the second day after I started to use the pills and by the time I had taken the three boxes I was entirely well. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can cure even when doctors fail, and they cure thoroughly. For a long time I have enjoyed my restoration to health and I know it is complete and lasting."

The great way to make sound digestion is to give strength to the organs concerned. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills give new vigor to the blood. No other remedy yields such radical results.

Mrs. Darvonx lives at No. 497 Sixth street, Detroit, Mich. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists in every part of the world. Dyspepsia should send to the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schick's, N. Y., for a new booklet entitled "What to Eat and How to Eat."

She sleeps, my lady sleeps,
And I catch the falling gold
From her tresses uncontrolled
Through the curtain's filmy fold,
And the heart within me leaps
As she sleeps! My lady sleeps!

Ah, then does she dream of me?
Mine the dearest name she keeps
In her ivory tresses?
She sleeps! My lady sleeps!
Soft! Her blossom lips now part!
Has the secret to impart?
And I wait with trembling heart!
And the heart within me leaps
For the shores! My lady sleeps!
For the shores! My lady sleeps!

The LONG WHITE SEAM

BY JULIA TRUITT BISHOP

(Copyright, 1905, by Dally Story Pub. Co.)

Bess, the pretty one, just home from college, lounged back in an arm chair, her white hands clasped behind her head and her amused eyes on her elder sister, Rachel, the plain one sat in the midst of drifts of white, busily sewing. And there was that in the sewing, or in the cloth, or in what it all meant, that had turned Rachel's plainness into something nearly akin to beauty.

"Rachel!" called a voice up the stairway. "Oh, Rachel! Come down a moment and help me with this sideboard. I can't move it alone."

The girl emerged, smiling, from among the snowy drifts, and ran down stairs, light of foot and of heart. She came back presently, washed her hands and set to work again.

"Sister!" shouted a boyish voice from the gallery, "lend me another spool of that coarse thread. I've got the kite out over so far, and my cord's out."

She arose again and went out, and Bess heard her talking merrily as she tied the thread to the cord Danny held. When she returned and sat down at the machine, there was not a ripple of impatience on her contented face.

"How can you stand it?" asked Bess, still more amused. "I have kept time. In the last half hour you have been called away from your work eight times; and yet you come back looking so serene that it makes one want to shake you."

"I don't get much time to sew," Rachel answered, blushing a little. "But, then, I haven't many things to make, and it won't take so long. And, they'll all miss me a good deal. I must do what I can for them, while I am here."

"It's the most ridiculous thing," said Bess, thoughtfully, "that you should be thinking of marrying!—Somehow, nobody would ever have thought of it of you. Why, you have never even had a lover that I can remember; and I always had the house full of them, from the time I was a little thing with my hair in a pig-tail. And here am I not thinking of being engaged yet!—and there is sis, demure you, going to marry the finest man in all the country round. I'd just like to know how you did it, Miss Rachel Brand."

Rachel blushed more and more.

"I hardly know how it was," she said shyly. "Brother John brought

"Oh, you deceitful minx!" she cried. "You and Brother John made it up between you, I know—tiring him out there where he comes—using our careful Martha with her sleeves rolled up, conducting herself as a busy housewife should. And this to a man who has been living in a boarding house! No wonder he fell a prey to your artful devices! Well, when he comes this evening, I shall make myself duly scarce. After falling in love with the Model Woman, as set forth in my sister Rachel, he would not even deign to look at a useless creature like me, who couldn't even boil water decently."

And Bess told herself off, notwithstanding Rachel's peevish protests, and wrote letters until she was tired of them, and left the wind to blow them where it would.

The wind blew one of them down into the orchard at the side of the house, where Rachel sat with a dainty little piece of handwork, while the low afternoon sun sent pale green rays through the apple boughs. Rachel caught it as it flew past her, not knowing what it was, until her eyes had swept along several lines.

"Amused at Rachel, who was always cut out for an old maid, we decided so long ago. She sits up there, all day long—except when they call her for something, which is about every two minutes, for Rachel is a helpful somebody, and not at all like her good-for-nothing sister—she sits there, I say, sewing, sewing, on her trousseau—sewing the long white seam, as Jean Ingelow says—and with the most calmly, placidly happy expression on her face, as though the earth and love and everything like that had been made just for her. It makes me—"

Rachel's eyes were wet with a shining happy moisture, when Danny came running, sending a jubilant shout, before him:

"Sister!—Yonder he comes! An' I bet he's brought me a new baseball!"

"Mr. Arnold, this is Bess," she said, a little later, blushing and smiling, until even one who did not love her very much would have seen that she was no longer plain.

"I think I shall go over to Arkwright on a visit to Ethel Joyner," said Bess a week later. Somehow, her vacation was beginning to pall upon her and she was restless.

"I think I would not go," said Rachel, quietly. She was still sewing, but rather slowly; as though there were no need for haste. As Bess looked at her with quick inquiry she said: "Mother is anxious for you to help her a little—or at least, to want to help her—and—well, I wouldn't go."

"How can you stand it?" asked Bess, him over for a week, and they went hunting a good deal—and I was busy, of course, for mother was not very well that week and Susan went home to her sister's funeral—no I had the chance to do—and Brother John is so thoughtless—he would persist in bringing him into the kitchen. You don't know how mortified I was—"

Bess broke into a laugh.

And then Rachel hummed a low tune, to show how much she was at ease.

Other days, went by, and Rachel pushed the machine back against the wall. "There is no haste," she said. "I am a little tired of sewing so long. I think I will rest for a few days."

And she rested, not being strong enough to go on a picnic with her lover and the family, and feeling too tired for the walk to church. Bess grew more irritable, and began letters and threw them into the fire, and started books, and forgot how far she had read.

"I think I shall go to the city and find employment," she suggested; and Rachel turned upon her with a pale face.

"Bess, you shall not go!" she cried, with a little desolate wall in her voice. "Just stay here—it will all come right. I—I need you to stand by me. You see—I am not quite sure whether I will marry Fred—after all, I am not positive that I love him—and one ought to be very sure, don't you think so?" And with lips white and trembling, she looked into Bess's eyes.

The next day Bess went out for a walk, and before the walk was finished she was on her way to see Ethel, leaving a saucy, merry little note behind her. "I'm not a very useful creature," she said to herself, "but at least I can do this one generous thing—while there is time."

Rachel was very pale when she met her lover.

"Bess has gone away," she said quietly, with her eyes on his face. "She grew a little restless, I suppose—and she has gone over to Arkwright to see a friend of hers—"

"Yes?" said Mr. Arnold, with friendly inquiry. "She'll come back to our wedding, of course?"

Rachel's face grew as rosy red under a sudden rush of color.

"Do you—do you still—want us to be married?" she whispered; and his look of utter amazement was sufficient answer.

"You haven't been—like yourself since Bess came home," he said wrathfully. "Somehow she didn't take a fancy to me—though I tried with all my might to win her over. Never mind—it's all right now."

Half an hour later he tried to call her down from that upper room, where the machine was making a steady whirr, as of a whole colony of exceedingly busy bees.

"Come down to the orchard—it's lovely under the trees. What are you doing there, anyhow, Rachel?"

"Sewing the long white seam," she murmured, as she rose to answer his call; and Bess's legacy of peace was on her face as she went.

FORTUNE WORRIES POOR WOMAN

Was Bequeathed a Neat Sum and Can't Get Used to It.

"The wealthy do have their worries," said Mrs. Cynthia Nicholson, who is worth $50,000, looking up today from the steaming wash tub over which she had toiled for many years to support her family, and which she finds it difficult to leave in spite of her small fortune. "I have a whole lot of money now," she continued. "I have put it in bank, but goodness, burglars rob banks, and so do bank officers! I want somebody to watch the bank officers and somebody to watch the watchmen."

Judge Henry S. Stevenson yesterday afternoon sought out Mrs. Nicholson, who is a widow, in her rooms on the third floor, rear, of a tenement house in Harriet street, says a Bridgeport (Conn.) special to the New York Herald, and told her that her uncle, William Germond of Middletown, had died, leaving an estate of which her share will be between $40,000 and $50,000, and handed her a certified check for $1,000 as the first installment of her fortune.

"I tolled for forty years," said this energetic widow, who is now 59 years old, "without being able to save a single penny for a rainy day, and I never can get used to having money. It troubles me. It makes me suspicious and I keep thinking everyone is trying to swindle me out of it. I would like to build myself a comfortable home, but I am afraid of the real estate agents and builders, and I know I could never trust a lawyer."

"Of course I am glad I haven't to work any more, and the children will be able to live well on the money when I am gone, but I was happy enough before I became wealthy. Now I am worried half to death."

To a Girl.

I know what is the object
Of that little sigh and languor
And why the secret waltz
That lurks within your eye.
You smile, you'll both some morning
Sweet maid, why this is so
Perchance you now suspect it.
I know!

I know what things you dream of,
And what you seek in sleep;
Write on the brow the secrets
I discern when you waken.
You smile, you'll both some morning
Sweet maid, why this is so
Perchance you now suspect it.
I know!

I know your laughter's reason,
And why you keep apart;
I know the mystery
Of your woman's heart.
You smile, you'll both some morning
Sweet maid, why this is so
Perchance you now suspect it
I know!

Major's Keen Comment.

"Next time you're in the armory," said the captain of Company G, proudly, "take a look at our room. We've had it repainted and refurnished throughout." "I saw it," replied the major, "and really, sir, your room is better than your company."—Philadelphia Ledger.

New Equipment on the Santa Fe.

An order for some new equipment was placed the other day by the Santa Fe. It comprises 75 locomotives, 5,300 freight cars and 60 passenger coaches, and postal cars, all to be delivered within the next four months. Fifteen of the new engines are Atlantic type balanced compounds, thirty Pacific type balanced compounds and thirty Santa Fe type. This big expense, aggregating more than $5,000,000, is incurred in order that growing traffic may be promptly handled. Present facilities are ample for today's travel and shipments; tomorrow they may not be sufficient. The Santa Fe looks ahead; that is why it gets the business.

Oldest Resident of Geneva, Neb.,
Moves His Family to Twin Falls.

The oldest resident of Geneva will leave next Tuesday to take up his residence in Idaho. S. B. Camp who, with his wife and daughter and son Carl and wife, leaves next Tuesday for Twin Falls, Idaho, came to Fillmore county from Pennsylvania and settled upon what is now a part of the townsite of Geneva in the winter of 1871, being the first settler in the neighborhood. His father and brothers arrived soon afterwards and in 1873 the first store in Geneva, that of Camp & Sons, was established. During his residence at Geneva Mr. Camp has been prominently identified with the political history in the county. In 1879 he was elected clerk of the district court which office he held four years, he was afterward connected with the county clerk's office for twelve years. Mr. Camp's passion, however, is more in the direction of music than politics. For three years he was leader of the G. A. R. departmental band and for nine years past he was leader of the first regimental band of the national guards. These two organizations kept Geneva's name to the front in band circles of the west during Mr. Camp's leadership.

There are comparatively very few who have taken land here who have any desire to part with their holdings. Consequently but little is placed on the market, and agents find it difficult to list much to show to prospective purchasers. However, among the large number of entrymen here, there is occasionally one willing to sell out. I recently saw one that I have a few bargains in lands close in that prospect. Buyers will do well to examine before closing any deal elsewhere. Also a few lots in the city.
