HOLD THEIR FIRST "GET TOGETHER" CONFERENCE

Officials of Land & Water Company Discuss Irrigation Problems with Farmers in Mass Meeting—Survey, Interest, Headgate and Other Questions Threshed Out—Spirit of Fairness Displayed on Both Sides Which Augurs Well for Speedy Settlement.

The meeting of the farmers and the officials of the Twin Falls Land & Water company at the old schoolhouse last Saturday afternoon brought out several important things, perhaps the most important being the need of such a meeting. It was the first time that the farmers had a chance to meet the officials of the company in the flesh and both sides found that they had much to confer about. Many questions of vital interest to the entrymen and the corporation were brought up and threshed out with the utmost frankness and a general understanding upon all issues was arrived at though it was impossible at the time to reach definite conclusions. Some of the questions were new to the officials, and these, with all others, will be taken up singly and disposed of. A spirit of absolute fairness was manifested by the farmers and the officials showed a disposition to meet the entrymen half way. The questions brought up were those which confront every community in irrigated districts during the early stages. That they were not settled long ago was due to the fact that the company had for months been in the throes of reorganization and nothing could be done.

A. H. Kellogg was chairman of the meeting and C. M. Price secretary. Mr. Kellogg made a splendid presiding officer, steering a kindly to the points and giving all a fair hearing.

The survey problem was the first to be considered and an awkward puzzle it proved to be. Those who have followed the government lines naturally want those lines maintained, while those who took the company's survey are correspondingly desirous of having the government survey set aside. The fact that the government survey is admittedly wrong does not help matters any. The land was sold by the state and not by the Water company, but the latter feels morally bound to stand by the settlers and see that they get the land they filed upon. The land is there, the water is there and the settlers are there and a little matter of defective survey will not stand in the way. A committee of five was appointed to dig into the question with General Manager Faris of the Water company, the officials of the state land board and the surveyor general of Idaho. This committee will report to the farmers, and when the report is submitted the question will be taken up formally.

A form of agreement has been drafted by the committee for presentation to the entrymen. According to this agreement the landowners will, if they so decide, stand by the company's survey. If they are unanimous in this, an official survey on the same tract may be obtained from the government. The farmers came out baffled on the question of interest and deferred payments and the fact was disclosed that the water contracts were made out in a variety of forms. A large number of contracts alterations had been made and upon the validity of these alterations much depends. Those farmers who received water too late last season to obtain substantial benefit justly declined to pay interest, maintaining the position that inasmuch as the company had failed to deliver water before the date specified in the contracts, the interest and deferred payments should be set back one year. The company will get the interest in any event, the only difference being that it will have to wait a year longer. The farmers are willing to pay for what they get and no more. Vice President Hays of the water company said he was unable to state what the Buhl-Kimberly company would do with the contracts which it held. The policy of the Land & Water company would be, he stated, to investigate each individual case which came under its jurisdiction and compromise with the entrymen on a fair basis. Those who received no benefit from the use of the water last year would not be expected to pay interest; those who did receive benefit would be expected to pay for what they got. The company wanted to do what was right, said Mr. Hays, and the farmers on their part declared they merely desired a square deal. The statement of Secretary Harris of the Water company, that the corporation would deal with the settlers on the "value received" basis, was received with applause.

Chairman F. E. Chamberlain of the committee appointed by the farmers' federation to take up the important questions made a very clear presentation. He followed up each question to a finish and closed all loopholes. With respect to the definition of "main laterals" Mr. Chamberlain was insistent. He concluded by drawing a diagram on the blackboard by means of which he obtained the desired answer from General Manager Faris. This answer was that a "main lateral" was one from which several farmers received their water. The new company, said Mr. Hays and Mr. Faris, would not follow the old precedent with respect to charging the farmers for measuring devices. If a farmer wanted his wa-

OF IMPORTANCE TO ENTRYMEN WHO HAVE NOT MADE FINAL PROOF

Entrymen, who have not made final proof of reclamation, settlement and cultivation are required to submit to the representative of the state land board in Twin Falls, within one year from the date on which they received notice that water was ready for delivery, proof that they have cultivated one-sixteenth of their land. This is what is known as annual proof. It applies only to those who have not made final proof. It is necessary for an entryman who makes annual proof to have the evidence of two witnesses to the effect that he has complied with the law. Failure to submit such proof renders the rights of the entryman subject to forfeiture to the state.

Through neglect or misunderstanding a large number of entrymen have omitted to make either annual or final proof and only a limited time remains in which the majority of them can make annual proof. The state land board is anxious to avoid complications on this point and it earnestly desires that those who have not already done so should make either annual or final proof without delay. All that the entryman has to show is that he has cultivated by irrigation not less than one-sixteenth of his land.

ter measured to him individually he would have to pay for his own headgate but not otherwise. In cases where a number of farmers took water from one lateral the company would bear the expense of the measuring device. Regarding the high line canal it was announced by Mr. Hays and Mr. Faris that the company would make extensive improvements, putting in the upper bank where needed and making such other alterations as were found necessary. The object of the company, they stated, was to conserve the water supply and nothing to that end would be overlooked.

On Saturday evening the managing board of the Twin Falls Canal association met with Vice President Hays and Secretary Harris of the Water company and went over each question in detail and at some length. The meeting was very harmonious and the results were highly satisfactory. The board will report to its members upon the outcome of the conference.

SCHOOL LANDS WILL BE SOLD HERE ON APRIL 14

Auction Will Be Conducted by C. D. Thomas at His Office in Twin Falls—Some of the Finest Land on the Tract Will Be Offered—All Signs Indicate that Sale Will Be the Most Important Ever Held, and School Funds Will Be Swelled Materially by Returns.

The greatest and most important sale of public school lands ever held in the state of Idaho will take place in Twin Falls at the office of Hon. C. D. Thomas, representative of the state land board, at 10 o'clock on the morning of April 14. The major portion of the lands to be sold are under the Twin Falls canal system and because of the liberal terms of the sale it is expected that the bidding will be spirited. The minimum appraised value of the lands is $10 an acre, but a large number of the units are listed at $25 because of their exceptional quality. Lands adjacent to these units have changed hands at more than $50 an acre; consequently the state is likely to realize a splendid return for acreage which was practically worthless before the Twin Falls irrigation project was launched.

According to the terms of the contract between the state and the Twin Falls Land & Water company, school lands are watered for $15.50 per acre, or $10 an acre less than Carey lands. The purchaser has one year in which to secure a water contract, and 18 years in which to pay for his land, if he so desires, the first payment being one-tenth of the purchase price, should the price be $25 an acre or less. On lands selling for more than $25 an acre, one-fifth of the purchase price is paid in cash and the balance in 10 annual installments, if desired. Deferred payments bear interest at 6 per cent.

"I missed the opportunity of my life at Yakima and again in Colorado but I am not going to miss it at Twin Falls," said one gentleman who came here a few days ago to look over the school lands. "I am coming back on the day of the sale to get some of those school lands. They are a better investment, to my mind, than government bonds. I could have bought land in Yakima and in Colorado for one-tenth of what it is worth today and it sold for more than the lands are selling for here, and in my opinion it is not nearly so good. This land is better, the water right is better, the climate is better, the market is assured and what is to prevent values from going up? People are looking for land these days because it is getting scarce. There is no better investment than state lands under the Twin Falls canal system."

A complete list of the lands to be sold, together with the appraised value of each unit, is found on page 7 of this issue of the News. To this list should be added the SE<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub> of the SE<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub> of section 36, township 14 south, range 12 east, this description having been received too late to be inserted, where it belongs. Additional information respecting the state lands may be obtained from the county treasurer of Cassia county at Albion, the state land department at Boise, Mr. C. D. Thomas, representative of the state land board in Twin Falls.

GETTING DOWN TO BUSINESS Snake River Implement Company Puts in Big Stock. A report was circulated last week that the Snake River Implement company had sold out its Twin Falls branch. Manager Clark Gibson was absent from the city and he was quoted as saying, "before he left that he had 'sold out'." This was partially true, as he had sold out his Twin Falls stock and went away to get some more. "There is no danger of us overlooking Twin Falls," said Mr. Gibson. "I have done business in the Snake River valley too long to pass up a live town like this. While away I started several carloads of implements and vehicles for this city. Some of them have arrived and we are busy getting them unloaded and displayed. We deal directly with the factories and keep well ahead with our orders. You might think I'm joking but those Columbus buggies were ordered specially for Twin Falls. If you know anything about the make of a buggy you will notice that those with the red and yellow gears are one-eighth heavier and stronger than the regulation vehicle. We ordered them on purpose for the Twin Falls roads. In a few years from now you will see nothing but light rigs and light horses, but during the early stages heavy, strong vehicles and big horses are absolutely necessary. I know how it is in irrigated sections which are in course of development. See how quick the livermen gobble up those buggies. We sold six before they were unloaded. Catering to the farm trade in irrigated districts is vastly different to that in a country dependent upon natural pastures. I found that out a long time ago. We are here to stay and we realize that the volume of our business will depend entirely upon the quality of the machinery we handle and the way in which we treat our patrons. Twin Falls is all right."

Mr. Gibson also bought a carload of draft horses in Bingham and Fremont counties. The car is due in Twin Falls on Sunday or Monday. The horses weigh 1200 pounds and over.

EFFECTIVE WORK UPON THE STEUNENBERG CASE

Governor Gooding, Attorney James H. Hawley and Detective McParland laboring in Perfect Harmony in a United Effort to Unravel What Gives Promise of Being the Most Sensational Series of Crimes Ever Unearthed in This or Any Other Country.

BOISE, March 5.—An official admission by Governor Gooding that both Harry Orchard and Steve Adams had made confession of their complicity in the Steunenberg and numerous other murders committed by them on the demand of the "inner circle" of the Western Federation of Miners, has been made within the past few days. The governor has avoided going into any details relative to the offenses admitted, but his admission of the fact of confessions having been received has given the public a better idea of just what the state's case against Moyer, Haywood, Pettibone and St. John will consist of. Governor Gooding, in telling of the Orchard and Adams confession, said:

"There has never been any doubt as to the truth of these confessions, among those familiar with the crimes of which the two men tell. They have told the same story of the commission of offenses in which each had a hand, and each has told a similar story of the planning and carrying out of a number of assassinations by the accused men, through one or the other of the narrators. These stories of murder by conspiracy have nearly all been proven up to a large extent at least, and the state is still engaged in investigations. So far, the statements received have tallied exactly with the facts discovered.

"It is a great pleasure to state that no three men could have worked to gether in greater harmony than have James McParland, the detective who secured the confessions, James H. Hawley, the leading counsel for the state, and myself. There has never been a tendency toward friction between us, and no man could have asked more loyal support than I have received from these two gentlemen in the great task of clearing up this blot on the history of Idaho.

"The arrest of the accused men is evidence that the state is firmly impressed with a belief in the guilt of the accused parties. But I certainly have no desire to see them punished unjustly. I am as anxious as any of their friends to see them given a fair and impartial trial, and I am fully convinced that there will be no difficulty in securing such a trial at the hands of the people of Canyon county and the people of Idaho. There is no disposition to do anything that would even tend toward the curtailing of their rights and privileges. As chief executive of the state I feel it an imperative duty to see that this frightful crime against the state of Idaho is punished so promptly and severely that the next governor of Idaho who is called upon to administer the laws of the state and maintain order in a crisis may do so without feeling that he has thereby made himself the target for the paid assassin, and that no American Mafia shall have its agents slink along in the darkness at his back, awaiting an opportunity to kill him at the entrance of his home and in the actual presence of his loved ones.

"There has never been an incentive here to attempt the punishment of innocent parties for the sake of a reward. Although on the night of Steunenberg's murder I offered a reward of $3000 for the arrest and conviction of the assassin, this offer was withdrawn as soon as it was known positively that the right man had been placed under arrest. Orchard was arrested before there were any detectives on the ground, on information secured by a committee of citizens of Caldwell and Boise, who certainly cannot be accused of activity on account of a reward. Other rewards that were offered have also been withdrawn, and today the only reward offered is of $1000 for information leading to the arrest of J. L. Stephens, against whom the state has strong evidence.

"After Orchard was arrested, when he was left alone in his prison cell it is apparent he began to think deeply of the crime he had committed. He believed that he became repentant, and that his confession, implicating the accused men and others in the Steunenberg murder, was given from a desire to see justice done. I have seen and talked with Orchard since the confession was made, and he told me that he had received no promise of clemency or offer of reward for telling the truth, but that he felt he could not face the hereafter with these crimes unexposed.

"It was several days after the arrest of Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone in Denver before the state could locate Steve Adams on a homestead about 12 miles from Baker City. It had previously been learned that Adams was endeavoring to break away from the influences of the "inner circle" of the Western Federation, and that he had not even permitted Moyer and the others with whom he was connected to know of his whereabouts. As soon as he was arrested it was evident from his manner that although difficult a statement could be secured from him. Detective McParland, returning from Denver, called on Adams and engaged him in conversation. Adams had previously had opportunity for sober thought under the threatening shadow of the gallows, and saw the futility of further secrecy. Within a few days he was anxious to give away the secrets of the conspiracy with which a reign of terror had been inaugurated in Colorado, and attempted in Idaho.

"There has been a studied attempt made by certain newspapers in Denver to create class prejudice in the interest of the accused. Stories of ill-treatment accorded Moyer, Haywood, Pettibone and St. John, at the state penitentiary, where they are being kept, on account of the poverty of the county jail at Caldwell, have been published, together with fairy tales of the contentions arising between myself and the chief counsel for the state, the statement being made that Mr. Hawley had threatened to withdraw from the case. Of course these things are unfortunate, because while false sympathy for the accused is aroused among the unthinking in Colorado, the righteous indignation of the people of Idaho is thereby aroused, and they are strengthened in their determination to see strict justice done. As a matter of fact, there was no truth in any of these statements. The planners have been well cared for; they have been permitted to see their attorneys, have been furnished papers, and have been well lodged and well fed and permitted ample opportunity for exercise, so that none of them have any just cause for complaint, nor so far as I have learned, have any of the accused made any complaint."

Cow Peas.

Although my experience in growing cow peas is somewhat limited, yet I feel assured that their advantages as a forage plant and soil renovator are greatly underestimated by farmers. At least nine-tenths of the upland farms in the western states have been corned to death and depleted of nearly all of their original properties necessary to plant growth, and would be greatly benefited and enriched if the owners would turn their attention to growing cow peas. I know of no other forage plant or soil renovator that will give as cheap and quick results as the cow pea. All farmers who are posted in regard to fertilizers know that nitrogenous vegetable matter is the foundation, so to speak, of all good crops, and all these abound in the cow pea. Moreover, it will yield more good hay at the same time building up the soil for the future. A few practical points in regard to planting and cultivating may be stated as follows: When sown broadcast, from two to two and a half bushels per acre would be about the right quantity of seed, but if planted in drills, two bushels would be sufficient. When sown broadcast the seed may be plowed and harrowed in as soon as possible. When planted in drills, one plowing with double shovel or their cultivator would be sufficient in planting. I would say plant about the time that corn is planted, although I have known fine crops of cow peas to be grown on corn land after the corn was laid by. If sown for hay, the proper time for cutting is when the peas are about half mature. At that time the hay will be more succulent and nutritious than if allowed to stand longer. But if sown for hogs, it should be well matured. The amount of land sown depends almost entirely upon circumstances.—C. Glover of Callaway Co., Mo., in the Journal of Agriculture.

INDEPENDENCE ON THE FARM

Changed Conditions Have Eliminated Old Time Drudgery.

From time immemorial poets have delighted to sing of the independent life of farmers. Virgil, the most celebrated of the Roman poets, was also a farmer and owned a delightful farm near the city of Mantua. Many of his pastorals are devoted to eulogizing the delights of the country and the real pleasures which awaited every intelligent farmer from pursuit of his occupation. He was especially fond of bees, but delighted also in the cultivation of his garden and the care of his flocks. While dwelling on this subject in one of his most noted productions he declared with emphasis that the farmer was the happiest man on earth if he only knew it. Many modern writers have insisted that despite its drawbacks farm life was the most independent of all. The farmer is the only man, so situated that he can "talk out in meetings" all the time; if he doesn't like things he can say so; he can criticize the politicians, and fault with economic conditions, scold about the laws and even express his mind freely about the mighty powers who are governing us from the capital at Washington. If a farmer is disposed to be selfish and unsocial he may draw himself into his shell like a tortoise, put up trespass notices all about his land and cut himself off from all mankind. The reason he can do this is because he is able to produce all the necessities of life without going beyond his farm borders. As long as he has land and water and is able to work he can bid defiance to everything on the outside.

The merchant must be careful as to what he says and does for fear he will lose trade; the politician must spend half his time flattery and flattery and lying in order to keep up his popularity. Doctors, lawyers, teachers—in fact, all classes of men outside of the agricultural industry are directly dependent upon others for their profit and prosperity. This, of course, is also true in a measure of farmers, but in a far less degree. The farmer does not have to truckle; if he is insulted, he can repay his insult in kind without fear of unpleasant consequences in the way of losing trade. Even if he makes no surplus money, he is able to say at the end of the year, that he has lived well, has fed and clothed his family comfortably and owes no man for supplies brought on the outside. The chief charm of it all, however, was summed up by Burns when he spoke of "the glorious privilege of being independent." If consulted, no doubt the average farmer would be able to find many reasons for concluding that farm life was not all it was cracked up to be by the sentimentalists and idealists. The principal arguments in this line used to be summed up in the one word drudgery, and the incessant tolling and molling inseparable from the farming industry. Modern improvement, however, has done away with most of this and there is no reason why a farmer now may not indulge in the luxury of an eight-hour day except, of course, in what is known as the busy season. Abundance of time may be found for rational recreation, for instructive reading, for visiting friends and indulgence in various kinds of amusements.

It occurs to us that in these days of wholesale adulteration the farmer has an especial reason for felicitation. Dwellers in cities who are compelled to buy all their supplies do not know half the time what they are getting up against. They are liable to eat poison without knowing it and are forced to run the gauntlet of all sorts of food frauds dangerous to health if not to life itself. But the farmer raises practically all of his own foods and knows exactly what he is eating when it appears on the table. Aside from the few groceries which he must purchase and thus take his chances with the rest of us in the risk of adulteration, all the necessary articles for wholesome living are supplied from his own fields and garden. Milk, cream, fresh eggs, meats, both fresh and cured, all kinds of vegetables in season and fruits plucked from the trees and vines, enable him to bid defiance to the scamps who make their living by vituperating everything that is edible or adulterated.

Farm to Rent.

The ranch at Yale, Cassia county, Idaho, is for rent the coming season in two portions. The lower place puts up 250 tons of alfalfa and wild hay. The upper place puts up 200 tons of alfalfa and wild hay, and has 200 acres of grain land. Plenty of stock either place. Only reasonable terms, with some work horses. Address, or sec. L. H. Burley.

TIME-KILLERS

Stories Anger Them.

"I see that Optie read has been up here telling Arkansas stories to the president," said E. E. Speer of Fort Smith, Washington. "They are proud of Optie's literary ability down in Arkansas, but here are a lot of people in that state besides the types from the penitentiary. I think a good many Arkansians tried to have it hurried back at them that the entire population of the state is composed of 100,000,000. 'There is one Arkansas story that will make any Arkansas man fight. I think Read told that one, too. It is about the stranger who got off at the little town and placed a gathering of citizens in the place in the public square.

"What's going on here?" he said. Is it a fair or a celebration, of some kind?"

"None," said a resident. "Taint that, but Judge Browne's son is 21 years old today and they are going to catch him and put some clothes on him."—New York World.

Plenty of Room.

A visiting bishop in Washington was arguing with a senator on the desirability of attending church. At last he put the question squarely: "What is your personal reason for not attending?"

"The senator smiled and in no-offense, indeed, way as he replied: "The fact is, one finds so many hypocrites there."

Remember the smile, the bishop said. "Don't let that keep you away, senator. There's always room for another one."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Rays Behind the Red.

Speaker Cannon was talking about the queer requests he received for appropriations from investigators of various kinds.

"One of these government scientists asked for $15,000 for the study of astrophysical science. I asked him what he meant by astrophysical. And what do you think he told me?"

"He said, 'He said, 'In the study of the sun's rays behind the red.'"

"Think of it! Eighteen thousand of the government's good hard money for the study of the sun's rays behind the red."

"What are the sun's rays behind the red?" I asked.

"Why, the colors of the spectrum outside of the red, the man of science replied."

"Can you see 'em?" I asked.

"No," he replied, "but I think I could if I had the $15,000."—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Interested in Him.

Levi Austin of Washington has been a senator since March 4, 1902. He went to lunch with Senator Nixon of Nevada a few days ago.

"Nixon," he said, "I have been attending some of the meetings of the Interstate canals committee because I am interested in the Panama canal. I have been most interested. There is a short, snooty-looking young fellow there who seems to me to be about as bright as they make them."

"I don't know who he is, but he seems to have some sort of a connection with the committee."

"I tell you he is all right. When he asks questions, they go to the point. He knows what he is talking about all the time. I predict a good future for that young fellow. I wonder who he is."

"Why," said Nixon, "I can't imagine. Is he an attorney?"

"I think so," Anthony replied. "He is working for the committee apparently, and takes a prominent part in the proceedings. I have seen him around here quite a while. There he is now—that little man coming through the door there. Who is he?"

"Steve looked. 'That,' he said, 'is the Hon. Philander C. Knox, former attorney general and now senator from Pennsylvania.'—Boston Herald and Chronicle.

He Was Very Cool.

Perhaps there never was a man who so thoroughly believed in taking things coolly as Mr. Bulteel. The disadvantages of words and the foolishness of such, no matter what the circumstances, might arise, was the never failing text upon which he hung many and many an improving discourse.

But as an safety happens, Mr. Bulteel's opportunities for putting his favorite theory into practice had been few, until one fateful night when he and his wife were aroused from their midnight slumber by the dread cry, "Fire!"

"He was coolness itself."

"My dear," he said calmly to his wife, "the time has come when we will find in practice the value of what I have always practiced. Dress your self quickly, but don't cool."

In those slippers they looked their respect in the company of quick, but unburned dressing. Then Mr. Bulteel slipped his watch into his waistcoat pocket and the walked safely out of the burning building.

"There, my dear," he said to his wife, "when the danger was over, you see the great value of my philosophy."

"Now, if we had lost our heads."

His wife placed at him for the first time since the alarm had been given, "You philosophy is both charming and beautiful, but really, dear, if I had been you I would have put on a pair of trousers."—The Hiss.

"This actress said the artist. In the case of the artist, the artist is valued at $10,000."

"Well," he remarked, "the stock broker, there's a lot of water in it, isn't there?"—Philadelphia Press.

"And what are you doing in the capital?" said the Washington citizen to a friend from the west. "Oh, I came to see congress make new laws."

"Indict. Then you intend to reside here for a number of years."—Philadelphia Press.

Know What George Did.

Not many days after the 22d of February a little 14-year-old Washington public school child, in the arrogance of her educational prestige, approached a Kentucky lady, basking in the sunshine on one of the park benches, and remarked impressively that she knew the names of 20 great men in American history. "And do you know why we celebrated the 22d of February last week?" the lady asked, interested.

"Oh, yes," the teacher told up all about George Washington."

"And if President Washington were living now, tell me how old he'd be."

"Gimme a piece of paper and a pencil and I'll work it out," the enthusiast exclaimed.

After the child's long, futile "wasting" with the problem, the lady glanced down at the paper. "Why, what are you subtracting 192 from 174 for?" she asked.

"Why, you know," the little girl returned condescendingly, "192 is the year Washington discovered America."

In the Wrong Chair.

John Abernathy, who was appointed United States marshal of Oklahoma by President Roosevelt, came pretty near attending a cabinet meeting unaware. In telling of his trip Abernathy is quoted as saying:

"A man stepped up and asked me what I wanted, and I told him to just tell the president that Abernathy wanted to see him."

"Is this John Abernathy?" asked another man, and when I said I was, he took me by the arm and led me into another room, where I found a fine table were seated a number of fine looking men. He told me present me—name and then he left me standing there."

"Looking around and seeing only one vacant chair, I sat in that. Then the door opened, behind me and two powerful hands slapped me on the shoulder, and looking up I recognized President Roosevelt. He grabbed my hand in his and shook it like a brother. 'Then he laughed and said: 'John, you're getting up in the world—occupying the president's chair at a cabinet meeting.'"

I started to spring out of that chair, but the president just pushed me back into it and laughed. He then excused himself to the other men and took me to another portion of the White House, where he introduced me to Mrs. Roosevelt."—New York Times.

Not Saying a Word.

After a fight on James Island, South Carolina, in 1862, there was among the wounded a young fellow suffering intensely and making an unusual amount of noise. General Williams, in command, when passing through the hospital quarters, approached the soldier and in a gruff voice asked: "What's the matter with you?"

The soldier, pointing to his foot, replied: "I'm wounded."

The general said: "Stop your noise! Stop your noise! There are men lying around with their heads knocked off and not saying a word."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Nature of an Oath.

Some 20 years ago a case was on trial before the judge of a court in a city in which, among numerous witnesses for the defense, was a shrewd-looking colored man named Jones, who was to testify as to an alibi.

He was finally called and the usual oath was about to be administered when the attorney for the prosecution arose and addressed his honor, saying: "Mr. Jones, before we begin the testimony, I wish to understand the solemnity of an oath. The judge then asked the witness if he understood the nature of an oath, to which he replied: "Yes, sah."

"Well," said his honor, "what is it?" To which Mr. Jones immediately replied: "Why, when you tell a lie stick to it."

"That's Papa believes in the pleasure of anticipation."

"Do you agree with him?" She said, "Yes, indeed. In the summer he promises to buy me a sealskin coat the following winter if I'll give up going to the seaside, and in the winter he promises to send me to the seaside the following summer if I'll give up the sealskin coat. So, you see, I am always happy."—Tit-Bits.

Bookkeeper—Gee! Those stenographers are chattering so that I can't do any work. I wish I knew how to shut 'em up."

Cashier—Ask which one of them is the oldest.—Cleveland Leader.

Tuner—Your daughter told me to find and fix her piano."

Father—Well, what ails it?" Tuner—Three strings busted. Papa—What'll you take to break the rest of 'em?—Cleveland Leader.

The Spirit of Sport.

English Motorist—Is life held to cheaply in America?" American Motorist—Really, I don't know. No true sportsman ever stops to ask if a thing is cheap or not in America. Puck.

Allying His Fears.

Mrs. George, a clergyman's wife: "My husband always says a short prayer before each meal."

The Snow Cook (indicating): "Well, he didn't take such precautions with me at the range. I'm no cook, but I choose to be so."—Puck.

Model Young Man.

Abner, 74, was talking about some Mr. Shawley last night and he said that he is thoroughly trustworthy and honest."

"Yes, I think he is. He wouldn't even steal a live—somebody's friend."

Our Curate (who is going to describe to a little holiday in lovely Lacerne) to his dear friends: "I will not call you 'ladies and gentlemen,' since I know you too well.—Punch."

Aromatic Stranger—Say, boy, this there a decent restaurant in this village?"

Native Uchlin—Yes, an' they're wantin' a waiter, too. You're just in time for the job. —Chicago Tribune.

Reliable information regarding the city and country generally and especially pertaining to all matters of business and industry, is published by the News Publishing Company, Twin Falls, Idaho.

STATE PROTECTION.

In the meeting between the farmers and the officials of the Land & Water company, last Saturday one important point was untouched. That was the part which the state plays in all reclamation projects conducted under the provisions of the Carey act. To quote from the rules: "The company entering into this contract with the state is related to the undertaking simply as a construction company, whose duty it will be, under the provisions of the state law and terms of the contract, to build a canal under the supervision of the state; the money spent in such construction being secured by the land which the canal is designed to irrigate. The works will be sold to the settlers who enter the land, at a price agreed upon with the state; before the settler may enter the land, however, he must contract to purchase a share in such works for each and every acre of land which he desires to enter, each of the shares representing a certain carrying capacity in the canal system which in every case will be sufficient to deliver the water required for the irrigation of his land. The plan adopted for the administration of the works while they are in possession of the construction company, the system for the distribution of water from the canal to the users, and all contracts entered into between the company and the owner of the land must meet the approval of the state. To enable it to carry on the work of construction, the company will be allowed to mortgage its equity in the project, but the contract with the state will provide that a proper release from the terms of the mortgage shall be given to the purchasers of shares when full payment for the same has been made. The terms of such mortgage must conform to the provisions of the law and must be approved by the attorney general of Idaho."

In other words, the state stands between the company and the settler. If the company shows a disposition to deal unfairly with the settlers, the state has the power to bring it to task. For instance, should the contracts issued by the company be unjust to the settlers, by reason of the curbs of any of the provisions, it is within the province of the state to step in and see that right is done. If the company seek to collect interest when such interest is not just, the state will protect the settler. Should the company charge the settlers for measuring devices which should, by the terms of its contract with the state, have been installed at the company's expense, the state has the right to compel restitution. When it is shown to Governor Gooding's satisfaction that certain corrections are necessary, nobody who knows the governor will be in doubt as to what course he will pursue. The settlers need not worry about getting a square deal from Frank R. Gooding or the other members of the state land board. It is all right to prod the company and make it come to time. The prodding should have been done long ago, for that matter. The farmers naturally felt slighted because they could never get an audience with the men with whom they were actually dealing. A clasp of the hand and a little straight talk is worth a cartload of correspondence. Things are different now. The company's headquarters are in Twin Falls. The little "trouble blank" is within easy reach and when a man goes in with a kick he gets action. It is well to remember that the state of Idaho has something to say about this project and the state takes mighty good care of its citizens.

HANSEN HAS FINE BUILDING STONE

QUARRY NOW BEING OPENED UP BY EXPERT.

Stone Quarries Favorably with Famous Building Marble of Colorado. Diversified Farming Proves a Great Success.

HANSEN, March 8.—D. V. Beck spent last Saturday and Sunday at his home near here.

Hansen's quarry was a caller in Twin Falls last Saturday.

Roland Sweeney spent last week in Twin Falls visiting his parents there. Tobias Rauch is painting his house, which is situated across the street from the postoffice.

Miss Pearl Crockett, returning from Cedar City, Utah, among the state passengers to Rock Creek the first of the week.

Miss Edith Kleth, who is residing in Twin Falls, visited this week at her home near Hansen.

There was no farmers' meeting held last Friday evening, owing to the unavoidable absence of Supt. McPherson.

H. H. McNabb of Boise arrived last Thursday to visit his daughter, Mrs. R. H. McKnight.

Mr. T. J. Towle, who had been quite ill, we are now glad to report is again enjoying his usual good health.

Mrs. Bert Hansen was among the passengers on the Twin Falls train Monday to Saturday of last week, having her little daughter under the treatment of Dr. Jane Shank.

Walter McCarty, a ranch owner of here, arrived last Friday from Texana, Kansas, where he had been during the winter. Mr. Kennedy made a final proof of his land last fall, and has now returned to make this country his home.

Mr. Gross of Welser, Idaho, was in Hansen last Monday and Friday seeking a location near here. Mr. Gross succeeded in purchasing the ranch of William McKnight, one-half mile west of Hansen.

Mr. Young of Twin Falls was in Hansen last Monday with two land agents from Pennsylvania who are endeavoring to locate on a ranch near this place.

An exceedingly pleasant evening was enjoyed by a number of the Hansen family and friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Andrews last Friday.

Dancing was the chief amusement of the evening, although some very interesting and novel games were played. At a late hour delicious and bounteous refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Andrews are social hosts and are looking forward to the following guests: Misses Divine, Stimmens, Towne, Roberts, Mrs. Trueblood, Messrs. Brewer, Combs, Adwell, Gibson, J. Gibson, Anderson, Lytle, Towne, Divine and Roberts.

Diversified farming has always been an interesting and profitable business for progressive farmers. The good results following have already been demonstrated by the residents here. One of the many of our successful farmers, Mr. E. L. Ricks, is not only making his land produce a good income from the various grains, vegetables, etc., but he is also making a good income from the sale of his milk, cream, butter and eggs.

KIMBERLY MAY HAVE A BANK

W. H. TURNER IS CANVASSING THE SITUATION.

Superintendent McPherson Delivers Address on the Planting and Pruning of Young Trees—Baseball Club Secures Grounds.

KIMBERLY, March 8.—Mr. and Mrs. Sam Holt and daughter of Burlington arrived in Kimberly Thursday. Mr. Holt will soon begin the erection of a building on Main street in which he will open a hardware store. They expect to make this their home.

The Western H. Pearl, who has been for some time past in the employ of W. F. Hansen, the livestockman, left Friday for West Charleston, Maine.

An O. S. L. crew were at work in this vicinity Friday putting in railroad crossings.

A meeting was held in the schoolhouse Monday evening to take steps toward organizing a baseball team. Alfred McMillan was elected manager. Grounds were decided upon on lands owned by the Hansen family on the north and clearing will begin soon. The young men are very enthusiastic and it is expected that a strong team will be ready to play by the time the season will begin or soon as the grounds are ready.

The meeting of the Farmers' association on Wednesday evening was addressed by Supt. McPherson on "Planting and Pruning Young Trees." The lecture throughout was very instructive and interesting. He advised planting the heaviest part of the root toward the wind and leaning it three or four inches in the same direction to insure a straight tree when it is grown. Apple trees should be planted 25 or 30 feet apart, but pears, cherries or plums may be 20 or 25 feet apart if they are shorter lived trees and are not so large. After the lecture an article on "Cooking without Fire" was read and John H. Phillips, president of the following committee was appointed to arrange a program for next young people's meeting: Ed Johnson, chairman, Thelma Scott, Hazel Moore, Mrs. McPherson, and a car of hay here Wednesday.

H. D. Scott and J. J. Witly left Tuesday to work upon the canal. Mr. Collins and family, living south of Kimberly, expect to move this week and take up land under the high line canal about two and a half miles from Rock creek. Mr. Collins has been superintendent of the Sunday school since its organization and it is very much regretted that he will be unable to continue his duties in the school. J. J. Witly has been elected to succeed him.

County School Superintendent Lowe visited the school here Wednesday.

Mr. Pangburn, residing southwest of Kimberly, is seriously ill. Dr. Boyd of Twin Falls is in attendance.

Mr. H. Turner of Tule Lake, Indian Territory, is in Kimberly looking over the field with the intention of putting in a bank. He was here last April visiting the many of our successful farmers. He is very much impressed that he disposed of his interests in the south and has returned to stay.

The dance in the schoolhouse Friday evening, March 3, did fair to be one of the social events of the season. A splendid time is anticipated and every one is invited to come and share a very pleasant time with us.

E. Lewis is fencing his 50 acres west of town. Several of the farmers about here have begun their spring plowing and clearing is going on rapidly.

Recent Twin Falls visitors included W. S. Starr, L. E. Prothero, E. F. Tucker, T. W. Scott, J. McMillan, Alfred McMillan, H. T. West, Miss N. Evans and Mrs. W. S. Starr and daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Deasler and Mr. and Mrs. Hensley have moved into their ranches directly north of Kimberly.

SING A SONG O' PANAMA! (By James J. Montague.) Sing a song o' Panama—swarms of engineers Have made surveys across the place for lot these many years. But they no sooner draw their plans than they say for home! And get about as busy as our plumbrous friend Jerome.

Sing a song o' Panama—William Henry Taft Says it is salubrious and wholly free from graft. But although Taft set foot on it, it looks about the same— Excepting for his boot tracks—as it did before he came.

Sing a song o' Panama—twenty thousand men Have come here to work and to live. The Panama Railroad says locally: "Once more We've had a bunch of Gringo gent's sojourning on our shore."

Sing a song o' Panama—congress works all day. The Panama Railroad says for its mighty waterway. It has been reported on and talked of and surveyed, and now they are here there with a "plink and a spade!"

Sing a song o' Panama—peaceful, lovely land! With pale policed oceans nestling close on either hand. Although to have the old canal it doesn't care a whit, It's grateful for the costly way we're adventuring it!

Director E. L. Wells of the United States weather bureau in Boise will come to Twin Falls on March 22 to arrange for the opening of a station at Buhl.

A gentleman from Oakley came in on Thursday with 16 dozen fry chickens. He got as far as the Twin Falls meat company's store, where he was halted and unloaded. Chickens are chickens just now.

John Hoop is here from St. Anthony. He intends to open a butcher shop at Buhl and those who know him will say that the shop will be a credit to the new town.

Arthur Peterson, formerly manager of the Twin Falls Furniture Co., has gone to Boulder, Colo., where he will open a confectionery store. He has the best wishes of a host of good friends in Twin Falls.

Mrs. W. S. Oakley and children have arrived from Salt Lake City. Mr. Oakley has rented the house which Mr. Sorenson recently bought from Mr. Holloman and he is now experiencing the delights of getting settled.

Engineer J. E. Hayes is surveying Shoshone avenue for the purpose of having the thoroughfares properly crowned and guttered. The work of putting them in good condition will begin next week.

State Mine Inspector Robert Bell visited in Twin Falls last Saturday and Sunday. Mr. Bell has some desert land on the fringe of the tract which he proposes to cultivate this year. He was amazed at the growth of the city since his last visit.

L. A. Richardson, clerk of the United States court in Boise, visited Twin Falls for the first time last week. He said Twin Falls excelled them all in rapidity of development and to prove that he meant it he bought a place of land.

C. A. Lange, general sales agent of the Norris-Safe & Lock Co. spent three days in Twin Falls this week. While here he sold to the State bank of Buhl a 4000 pound safe, a burglar proof safe, two large vault doors and a safety deposit system. Mr. Lange said the Twin Falls tract eclipsed all other agricultural sections in progress and he believed it would surely develop into a magnificent producing district.

Craven, Seebeck & Smith are shipping hay to Kimberly. The present price is $16 per ton. They recently contracted for 275 tons and were offered a bonus of $3 per ton if they would turn it over but they would not entertain the offer for the reason that it would put up the price to the farmers, which is precisely what the firm is trying to avoid. Being land owners on the Twin Falls tract themselves they appreciate the need of giving the farmers protection.

W. H. Kelsey, George L. Harte, Lawrence E. Alfred and F. A. Waters, recent arrivals from Springfield, Utah, are making the dust fly on their land about two miles north of Ellice. They have finished his house and cleared 20 acres already. The Springfield contingent brought in a quantity of what is called "Morion" which is a new variety of alfalfa seed to the acre in Utah and should do as well here. They know how to irrigate and those who are looking for pointers would do well to watch them.

Colonel S. E. Meyer of the Falk Mercantile company of Boise was a Twin Falls visitor on Sunday and Monday. Colonel Meyer is a member of Governor Boone's cabinet and he enjoys the distinction of being the only member who has served under Populist, Democratic and Republican governors. The Pioneer Storage & Commission company, located at Twin Falls, has filed its articles of incorporation with the secretary of state. It is capitalized for $50,000, of which P. H. Smith and E. E. Craven have subscribed for $1500 each, and Jack Vorse, C. D. Thomas and J. T. Balmbridge for $100 each.

A shipment of 300 pounds of peas has been ordered for the experimental farm from the Idaho valley in Colorado, where 50,000 acres of these peas are cultivated. This pea is a hybrid Mexican variety which thrives wonderfully in Idaho soil. Mr. McPherson expects it to do well here and will give it a careful trial.

Monitors should have been made in last week's issue of the patriotic bull given in the roller rink on Washington's birthday anniversary by Y.M.C.A. camp, Royal-Neighbors-of-America. The bull was not only a great success socially, but it netted the camp over $100. This is good work on the part of the new camp and the ladies deserve the high credit for their capable efforts.

Mrs. Minnie Priest Dutton of Boise, past president of the Red Cross state assembly, will be in Twin Falls on Wednesday, March 14, to institute a Red Cross lodge. Hawk or Mrs. Bonham.

The school children are taking a deep interest in Superintendent McPherson's lectures on the neutrons. They follow his remarks with close attention and grasp the points readily. It is difficult to make some things clear to the pupils but Mr. McPherson is patient and the pupils are willing. The department of the children during the lectures is splendid and reflects great credit upon the teachers. At the lecture last Tuesday the discipline could not have been better and the pupils responded to questions without the slightest hesitation.

R. M. McCollum has returned from Boise, having completely recovered from the effects of a surgical operation which he had at the hospital of Dr. P. McCalla in St. Luke's hospital. Mr. McCollum said it made him proud to think that he was a citizen of Idaho after enjoying the magnificent relief through the skill of Idaho surgeons. No better accommodations, he said, could be found anywhere and the medical attention was of the very highest class. He was exceedingly grateful to Dr. McCalla and the hospital attaches for their kindness and skill. He is now on an army fat diet. He is supposed to eat a crust of bread and drink a thimbleful of weak tea every two hours and walk six miles a day. P. H. Smith has been called to a foot race and both men are reported to be in training. Nothing like Idaho climate.

Mark Coffin, watermaster of the Twin Falls canal system, has resigned and will sail from New York April 5 for Sao Paulo, Brazil, where he is to have charge of the waterworks work on the immense dam which is being built there by the Sao Paulo Tramway, Light & Power company, of which M. Coffin is general manager. Mrs. Coffin and the children will accompany him. Mr. Coffin will take with him three expert foremen. He expects to be gone about a week. Mr. Coffin is connected to the pier of any man in the country in handling water. His work with the Twin Falls canal has been very efficient and his place will be difficult to fill. The Sao Paulo dam will be 2000 feet long, 70 feet high, being the largest in the world with respect to length. Coffin was selected to take charge of the construction is a compliment to Twin Falls. He leaves Twin Falls with the best wishes of a host of friends and the unanimous hope is that he will do as well in Brazil as he did in Idaho.

PETE HOLOHAN IS DISCOVERED GREAT INTEREST MANIFESTED

Is Known Among Trap Shooters as the "Boy Wonder."

Peter J. Holohan of Wallace, Idaho, a member of the Spokane Rod and Gun club, has disposed of his interests in irrigation congress, to a local Idaho town and moved to the new town being set up in the committee town of Twin Falls. Known as the "Boy Wonder" among his trap-shooters, George T. Pardee, the letter is full of friends, Pete has probably won of suggestions which will be of future models and trophies at the game forest to all interested in irrigation. Then any other man on the forest with President Pardee, who is governor of the possible exception of Tom Ware, California, is very active in the letter. Mr. Holohan passed through Spokane, Idaho, and already in the town on Saturday last, and a few of the local men who will tend to call boys went out to the traps with him to make the next session of the congress, him. He and Chingren, the local which will be held in Boise from September, shot an exciting race at 20 yards, tender 4 to 8, the most successful one over the new Black Bird trap, the record in the history of the organization, being a tie, each making 85 out of 100. Chairman Gwinn, who has charged 100 birds. Pete will be in Spokane at the executive work of the congress, the state shoot in May, and also promise very enthusiastic over the coming season to go to the northwest shoot, at session and over the local support. Wallace, Idaho, in June, and will bring a bunch of shooters from Twin Falls, most prominent irrigationists, and with him. A club has already been organized in irrigation over the organized there, and he has been elected. There is not a section that does not seem anxious to assist in the considerable interest in shooting is good work of the congress. From those being manifested at the Country club, things it is predicted that the meeting numbers showing the most on the line in Boise will be the largest and slanting towards. Nettleton, the most generally representative of any new, Crane and Boldrick, which have before been held.

"Sporting Life" has compiled the list of the leading trap shooters of the country, and Fred Gilbert stands at the head with average breaks of 85 out of 100 in this country. Dan the 85 per cent out of over 17,000 traps, coming season will be, I think, of 85 per cent at W. R. Crosby, with 85 per cent importance, for the reason that about the same number of birds is a the system under which we are now close second with 85.3 per cent, and working being on trial, those who are C. M. Powers, R. O. Helles and Jack, disposed to doubt its efficiency and Fanning are not far behind. It will question its results will be particularly remembered that all of these people active at this session to discredit it. Men were in Spokane last October. Therefore, it behooves those who have participated in a shoot given in faith in the final outcome of the system honor by the local club. Records, then, and who desire to see it carried of the leading coast shoots were not on along the lines so successfully in kept, but if they were, it would be augmented, to be present at Boise and found that Holohan, Chingren, Ware, by taking part in the proceedings, do Forbes and Melbourn of the local club, what they can to see that what has Sherrard and Cooper of Tacoma, Wash., already been gained shall not be lost. Spitzer, treasurer of the frontier of San Francisco would be up among the top of our states have no direct interest in notchers.

Heretofore it has been difficult to find these states which are not direct draw accurate comparisons between the eastern and western shots, owing to the eastern and western clubs all throwing their targets but 50 yards, while out here homes for coming, even present, they have been thrown from 75 to 100 yards. Commencing with this season are not to become too powerful as this will be changed, and the western compared with the country, it will be conditions made the same as the eastern. Spokane Independent.

IMPORTANT RULES IN BREEDING

Which Stock Growers Might Profitably Observe.

Lecturing recently upon the subject of breeding, Professor Shaw said that the three great laws are that like produces like, that like produces unlike, and that the characters of some ancestors may crop out with unexpected intensity in a given animal. Of these laws the first is the strongest. Like father like son. Breed from the best cows if you expect to breed up and not down. In selecting a sire propensity is of the first importance. Propensity is the ability to put into the progeny the desired qualities present in the sire or in his ancestors. In looking for propensity, regard as most important the individuality of the sire and of his immediate ancestors. If his dam was a good milker, and if his granddam were good milkers, and his four grandams were of superior merit, these facts are of more importance than tracing back to some produce in the distant past. It is far better to have the immediate pedigree strong than to record a trace of the blood of some splendid animal so far back that it could not much affect the character of propensity of the given animal. The next point to be considered is to see if the bull is the breed—that is, that he traces to and through animals that have been bred for the purpose to which his calves are to be devoted. In this way the bull has an accumulation of forces all tending in the same direction. Inbreeding, except in the hands of an expert, is dangerous, but this breeding should be followed by every one desirous of improving his herd. The bull should, of course, be a purebred. Never breed from a crossbred animal, because a crossbred cannot be improved. The pure-bred is more apt to be improved because his lines of force are derived from parallel channels, all tending in the same direction. Finally, care in his form and carriage the bull should evidence physical vigor. Having determined what kind of a herd you are going to breed, and have definitely decided as to the point at which you are aiming, select your bull accordingly, and having begun on this line do not vary.

FIRST CLASS PACKING HOUSE FOR TWIN FALLS

Fred Labelle and Charles Beck Purchase the Pearl Meat Market—Will Build an Addition and Install a Complete Packing Plant and Sausage Factory at Once—Are Also Building Large Slaughter House—Will Be Known as the Twin Falls Meat Company.

Fred Labelle and Charles Beck of Rigby, have purchased the Pearl Meat market and will immediately install a first class packing plant and sausage factory. They are also building an up-to-date slaughter house one mile below the city in Rock Creek canyon. The new firm is known as the Twin Falls Meat company. It will close out the grocery stock in the market and deal exclusively in meats, vegetables and the like.

The new packing house will be opened at once. An addition 25x27 feet will be built in the rear of the market. The company will install an ice machine with a daily capacity of three tons and will put in two refrigerators, each 25x14. A large plate glass counter will be set in the front shop which will be fitted up in the very latest style.

The company will pack ham, bacon and lard and will manufacture sausage of all kinds. It will purchase eggs, poultry, meat and vegetables from the farmers at current prices and it hopes to be able to secure enough home product to enable it to handle nothing else. "We want to establish a home market," said Mr. Labelle. "The tract is pretty new at present but I hope the farmers will raise enough hogs, chickens and live stock to keep us going. Our idea is to ship out, not ship in. What is the use of shipping in eggs, for instance, if you can buy them at home. There is money in eggs and there is money in pork right here on the Twin Falls tract. We stand ready to pay the farmers cash for their products and we hope they will be able to supply us. The more they bring in the more we will pack. With our own cold storage we can hang meat in quantities and we expect to buy fat cattle at home, kill them in our own slaughter house, pack them in our own packing house and maintain a home market. If we treat the farmers right, and we will surely try our best to do so, they should be glad to have a market at home to patronize."

Mr. Beck is an expert sausage maker. He was foreman in a sausage factory in Germany for years and came to America to study American methods. He liked the country and decided to stay, coming west like a sensible man to expand.

The entire plant has been purchased and most of the material has already arrived. In addition Mr. Labelle bought a carload of horses, including a number of good roadsters, draft animals and saddle horses.

TO CURB THOUSAND SPRINGS

Power Company Preparing to Put in an Electric Plant.

J. E. Lane, general counsel for the Thousand Springs Land & Transportation company, limited, arrived in Hagerman on the 24th from Boise, accompanied by H. P. Hunter, the company's engineer, and paid a visit to the springs for the purpose of inspecting a few minor technical points, says the Hagerman correspondent of the Shoshone Journal. In conversation with the reporter Mr. Lane said:

"The company is fully organized and on a solid footing, with plenty of capital back of it. As soon as the weather and roads become favorable the company will begin the work of installing a power plant at the springs, which will be used for transmitting electrical power to points in Idaho and Nevada, and for irrigation purposes. The company owns 3000 acres of patented land and the townsite of Brunau, and has 1500 feet of three-foot steel pipe, the wheel and the necessary machinery for the unit of a 1000-horse power plant paid for."

These springs are six miles south of Hagerman, and burst from the perpendicular rock wall of Snake river at a height of 180 feet, and have a steady flow of nearly 1100 cubic feet, or 55,000 miner's inches per second. They will furnish a power equal to 12,000 horses.

Quite a party of capitalists drove from Twin Falls last Thursday, accompanied by I. B. Perrine. The party was composed mostly of Chicago people, who are furnishing the money for the mammoth power plants that will be in operation in this valley some time during the summer. The company has secured right of way for almost all of its operations and is now awaiting the completion of the surveys and the arrival of material for the commencement of work. The party spent one evening in Hagerman and complimented very highly the appearance of the new bank, and were more than agreeably surprised at the business done by the new institution.

THINGS ARE HUMMING AT BUHL

Postmaster Elckhoff Has to Double His Order for Goods.

F. W. Elckhoff, the Buhl merchant and postmaster, was in Twin Falls on Wednesday, telegraphing for more goods and freighting what stock he had on hand here to the "city of the setting sun." A large quantity of his stock of merchandise was sold at Buhl before he had a chance to put the price marks on it and he found it necessary to double his orders by wire.

Buhl is a busy place at present. A large number of settlers are beginning to clear their land and build homes in the vicinity of the townsite. Now that the roads are in fair shape it is expected that the rush westward will be greater than ever.

Mr. Elckhoff has received his post office supplies and the mail postmaster is doing a land office business.

It is now expected that the new hotel will be ready about April 15, when the townsite will be thrown open. The exact date of the opening has not been set. "Owing to the miserable condition of the roads of late it was almost impossible to crowd material to Buhl as fast as it was needed."

Craven, Seckman & Smith are ready for business and will be glad to sell you hay and grain at their large new warehouse on Fifteenth street, near Shoshone avenue.

Prize fighting in San Francisco has been given a hard blow through the death of Henry Tranchesi, or "Harry Tenney," as he was professionally known, who was killed in a contest with Frankie Neil, the featherweight champion. The corner's jury held that the promoters of the fight were indirectly responsible for Tenney's death, not having had him examined before the contest to see if he was physically fit.

Patterson of the Chicago Tribune, whose son, Joseph Mead Patterson, recently resigned the office of commissioner of public works in Chicago, declares that his son's resignation was forced because of graft in politics. Mr. Patterson asserts that his son was asked to do things for which he should have been indicted had he done them. He disagrees with his son's socialist views, declaring that "socialism is one of the wildest fanaticisms of the age."

Aggressive Mr. Cullum.

The fight just starting in Idaho for the seat of Shelby M. Cullum in the United States senate, which Mr. Cullum will contest as vigorously as any youngster, reminded John Corwin of that state of the time he took a ride in Springfield with the late John Tanner, then governor.

"Tanner, said Corwin, 'why don't you try for Shelby Cullum's seat in the senate?'"

"Tanner made no reply. They drove for a time until they came to Oak Ridge cemetery."

"John," said Tanner, pointing with his whip to the cemetery, "that place is full of men who tried for Cullum's seat in the senate, and Cullum is still in the senate and he'll stay there until quite a few more lots are filled."—Saturday Evening Post.
