FIRST SEGREGATION 40,000 ACRES

IS YOUR SUN RISING OR SETTING?

IT'S UP TO YOU TO DECIDE

Buy a Farm on Our Tract and be Independent! Here are the Reasons:

- 1 BEST LOCATION:—This great tract of 40,000 acres is located in Lincoln and Blaine Counties, Idaho, on the Wood River Branch of the Oregon Short Line Railway, with railroad station at the company's new town of Alberta, Idaho, 16½ miles northeast of Shoshone. Telephone wires cross our lands. Electric power will be furnished by the company's plant at Alberta.
- 2 BEST WATER RIGHTS:—Our rivers, Big Wood River and the Malad River, drain the highest mountains of Idaho (see map) and insure by Government figures an unsurpassed water supply. The watershed of the rivers covers over 1250 square miles and is protected by the U. S. Government Forest Service. Our reservoir is a natural wonder, impounding 9,500,000,000 cubic feet of water.
- 3 BEST SOIL:—Rich, sandy loam of unsurpassed fertility. Land slopes to South. Absolutely no alkali. Wheat, barley, rye, oats, alfalfa, sugar beets, vegetables, fruits, etc., grow in quantities that tax credulity.
- 4 BEST CONSTRUCTION:—The highest U. S. Government Engineering Standards followed throughout in construction of dams, head-gates and canals.
- 5 THE BEST DRINKING WATER is readily obtained from wells. No man who has the health of his family at heart will fail to appreciate this point.
- 6 BEST CLIMATE:—Long warm summer days with cool nights. No dust storms. Cyclones and damaging hot winds are unknown. Average altitude: 4200 feet.
- 7 BEST GRAZING LANDS:—The immense forest reserves on our North, under U. S. Government supervision, offer to every ranchman on our tract unrivaled pasture at his very door for his sheep and cattle.

Summer---The Time for CEREALS

Summer is the time for Cereals—that is, the proper Cereals. Man should not eat meat during the summer months any more than he can help, as meat causes the blood to heat and over-exerts the digestive system. OF GREAT IMPORTANCE TO HORTICULTURISTS Splendid Report issued by the State Board of Horticultural Inspection in Which Every Feature Connected with Fruit Growing in This State is Carefully Treated by Men Who are Masters in the Practice of This Great Work.

The fifth biennial report of the State Board of Horticultural Inspection, which has just been issued, is a volume which should be in the library of every farmer in Idaho. It is the most complete, reliable and instructive treatise on fruit-growing that has ever been published in this state. Among the subjects treated are "Physical Features of Idaho," by Professor J. M. Aldrich, of the University of Idaho; "The Climate of Idaho," by E. L. Wells, director United States weather bureau, Boise; "Native Vegetation of the State," by Professor J. M. Aldrich; "The Soils of Idaho," by Alex. McPherson, superintendent of the Twin Falls experimental farm and secretary of the State Board of Horticultural Inspection; "Principles and Methods of Irrigation," by Elias Nelson, irrigation engineer, Idaho experiment station; "Fruit Growing for Home Use and Local Markets," by A. F. Hitt, former state horticultural inspector; "By-Products of the Orchard," by F. Henderson, plant pathologist, Idaho experiment station; "Commercial Apple Production," by Professor T. B. Judson, formerly of the Idaho university, now of Cornell; "Commercial Pear, Raisin," by Charles and Roy Klemm, of Meridian, Idaho; "The Commercial Pear Orchard," by J. H. Shawhan, of Paria; "Grape and Grapes in the Clearwater Valley," by Robert Schleicher, of Lewiston; "The Handling of Early Fruits in the Clearwater Valley," by S. G. Johnson, of Lewiston; "Principal Fungus Diseases of Fruits in Idaho," by A. F. Hitt; "Principal Insects Injurious to Fruits in Idaho," by A. F. Hitt; "The Preparation of Spacing Materials," by F. Hitt; "The Work of the State Board of Horticultural Inspection," by A. F. Hitt and the deputy inspectors. Each subject is treated in detail by men who thoroughly understand what they write about and who are distinguished by the conspicuous success they have attained in their vocations. Every paper contains information of value to the fruit growers of Idaho. Information which, if correctly applied, will put dollars in the pockets of every farmer in the state.

The report shows that there are 47,869 acres of orchards in Idaho, of which 26,685 acres were carefully inspected. The remaining 17,284 acres were not inspected for the reason that the appropriation at the command of the board was insufficient to cover the entire acreage. The number of acres of fruit inspected in 1906 from the state of Idaho was 2902, which brought in a revenue of $1,121,680. In addition to these shipments considerable fruit was exported to other states. Inspection was $10,000. Ten deputy inspectors were employed.

Climate and Weather.
Aside from the mass of valuable information contained in the papers, the report furnishes a great deal of interesting data, all of which is reliable. It gives a table of altitudes in Idaho, which shows that Twin Falls has an elevation of 2,774 feet; Boise, 2,625 feet; Maladewa, 2,580 feet; Montpelier, 5,943 feet; Halley, 5,330 feet; St. Anthony, 4,968 feet; Lewiston, 735 feet; Wallace, 2,733 feet; Grangeville, 4,221 feet.

Alfalfa, in Fremont county, which has an elevation of 6,700 feet, is the coldest point for which a record is available. It has a mean annual temperature of 36 degrees. Garnet, in Elmore county, with an elevation of 2,575 feet, is the warmest point in the state, having a mean annual temperature of 55.4 degrees. Garnet is also the driest point for which a record is available. The wettest point in Idaho, according to the records, is Murray, Shoshone county, elevation 2,750 feet, mean annual precipitation 38.29 inches. The driest parts of the state are to be found along the Snake river from Shoshone falls to the western boundary, and in the Lost River region. Where sufficient moisture for crop production is available by irrigation or conservation, says the report, the absence of rain in the growing season is a distinct advantage. It enables alfalfa to be put into the stack looking almost as green as when it stood in the field; it enables wheat to be threshed as it is harvested and left lying in the field until there is time to market it; it renders spraying for fruit pests most effective and the almost uninterrupted sunshine of the southwest valleys gives such fruits as the Jonathan apple a color that is unsurpassed.

Mr. Wells, in his paper on Idaho climate, says: "The Snake river valley from Shoshone falls to the western boundary of the state, together with the lower valleys of streams emptying into this part of the Snake river, constitute what are termed the southwest valleys, where are found mild winters and summers that are characterized by periods of intense heat during the daytime, though the nights are rarely uncomfortably warm. These valleys are the home of the apple, pear, prune, etc. Here there is little danger to fruit trees from winter killing, but late spring frosts occasionally cause some damage where preventive measures are not resorted to. Late spring frosts in Idaho usually occur following a rain, thus at a time when there is a good supply of moisture present, and it is not an unusual thing for clouds to form in the early morning, thus mitigating the damage done by the frost. Frosts usually form during the still nights, rendering the practice of smudging in very few instances has any great loss resulted when smudging has been thoroughly and intelligently done."

Mineral Constituents.
The mineral constituents necessary for plant growth are present in available form and within easy reach of the root system. A series of analyses made of the soil on the Twin Falls tract shows that the constituents of the soil are practically the same to the depth of at least six feet, the only exception being nitrogen. This element, however, most plentiful in the surface foot than deeper in the soil. This is no doubt true of all bench lands in the arid belt. Fortunately, nature has provided a means of appropriating nitrogen from the air, where it is so abundant, and storing it in the soil in an available form for the use of growing crops. The leguminous plants have the power above referred to through nitrogenous bacteria that live in the roots of the plants. Plants of this class, such as alfalfa, clover, peas, etc., are grown extensively in the arid belt, making the soil the most productive in the world.

Twin Falls Orchards.
The report of John Adams of Oakley, deputy inspector for Twin Falls county, and a man of wide experience and sound judgment, contains the following references to the Twin Falls tract:

"Already on the Twin Falls tract there are hundreds of acres of orchards set out and practical and experienced fruit growers backing the same. There are no chances to run as all around this tract there are bearing orchards producing as fine fruit as was ever grown. All fruits do well here. Not all localities are adapted to all fruits, but the apple, prune and pear can be successfully grown almost anywhere in this district. I visited some orchards at Hansen, Kimberly and Twin Falls, containing 150 acres. A. S. Anderson of Kimberly has the largest orchard, containing 40 acres, mostly apples. Mr. Sullivan of Kimberly has 30 acres, J. B. Barker-Hanson has 20 acres; I. B. Perrine has 20 acres of Jonathans and H. Knutsen has 10 acres. (Since Mr. Adams' visit the acreage in orchard on the Twin Falls tract has increased more than four fold. Nearly every one on the tract is setting out a family orchard and trees that were receiving the proper care were looking fine. I also visited the nurseries, one at Kimberly owned by Mr. Tyler, who was not at home. I visited James A. Waters' nursery at Twin Falls in June and also in September. Mr. Waters has about 110,000 apple trees, one and two years old; 5000 pears, 5000 cherries, 5000 peaches, 5000 plums, 5000 figs and ornamental trees. When I visited this nursery on June 8, Mr. Waters had several men setting out grafts. This time in the season I thought it was a pity that I did not visit this nursery September 8 I was surely surprised to find the change and the growth made. In all this nursery stock I never saw a diseased tree or one that had a sickly appearance. I make mention of this to show that this is a promising fruit country."

The report is a credit to the board, to the man who compiled it and to those who furnished the data which it contains.

1894, at the postoffice at Twin Falls, Idaho, under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

The state veterinarian, Dr. Noble, is out with another statement regarding glanders on the Twin Falls tract.

He seems to think that the disease should be treated with newspaper gum rather than mallow. The mare reported by John Graf should probably have been poulticed with a stiff statement by Dr. Noble. It might then have been unnecessary for the neighbors to the cans to her fall in order to protect their families from the glanders. If John Newton had spread a copy of the Boise Statesman in front of his team he might have been spared the necessity of destroying them, according to the Noble theory. A half column of brevity might have saved the Walters horse and a stick or two of nonpareil would possibly have rejuvenated Mr. Forsay's animal. The rotting horses near the Buhl road, of which complaint was made to the sheriff's office, should have had a few of Dr. Noble's interviews planned over them. The horse which stood beside the road at Shoshone falls on Decoration day might have been tested with a signed statement by Noble. It probably committed suicide. But why prolong the stench. It might be a good idea to treat the state veterinarian in the same manner as the neighbors treated the mare reported by Mr. Graf.

A large number of sheep, probably 25,000, will be fed on the Twin Falls tract in a short time. The sheep men find that this is the cheapest place to feed and are taking advantage of the discovery. Several farms have been purchased with the view of stocking them with sheep. The industry will be very beneficial to the tract.

Quite a number of land seekers from this vicinity are heading for Alberta to be present at the opening there on Monday. The opening promises to be a hummer and there is good reason why it should be so.

A writer in Appleton's Magazine comments admirably on the fact that it took "only" 17 years to transform Oklahoma from a country of jackrabbits to a land of farms, factories and mines. "Should they have done that in the southeastern Idaho in less than three years, and they are not putting on any airs about it, either."—Salt Lake Herald.

Citizens of Twin Falls are arranging for a big celebration on July 4.
Dixie people who contemplate going out of town on that date will find no better place to enjoy the Fourth than in the "Magic City."—Burley Bulletin.

MARK MURTAUGH

his manner and utterances. He was received as a representative of the American government and his personality and address carried more weight than any representation from this country in a commercial sense could possibly do. His words were received as those of one in high authority and he was tendered a magnificent reception. In this connection I might remark that as one of the world's great powers, the Brazilian government has given the building which it purchased at the St. Louis exposition the most prominent place on the greatest street in the world, Avenida Central, Rio Janeiro, and has called it the "Monro Palace." This avenue is more than two miles long, about 200 feet wide, magnificently paved, and is lined in the center from front to rear with brilliantly lighted by electricity, probably better lighted than any thoroughfare in the world. In the city of Rio there has been more money expended in the past two years for public improvements than in any city in the United States, with the possible exception of New York. There are now under construction three or four streets somewhat similar to the Avenida Central, a mammoth sewer system and the most extensive and best constructed docks in the world, equal to those in Hamburg. The docks will cost in the neighborhood of $250,000,000.

The people of Brazil are now showing a very friendly spirit toward the United States. They are proverbially hospitable and are great entertainers. Of late years they have evinced a strong desire to become acquainted with the United States. Our embassy in Brazil was exceedingly pleasant. We were received with open arms by natives and Americans alike and we formed many lasting friendships. We will always retain the most pleasant recollections of our visit.

Because of its insular tropical position, Brazil may legitimately be termed the garden spot of the world. The customs of the country are exceptionally interesting to those unfamiliar with South America. It might be termed the land of "patience" or "tomorrow." Haste is considered unforgivable. To hurry is unfashionable. The Brazilians are willing and apt. Climate conditions are such that the laborer is unable to do the work of the average American out-of-doors. One of the most notable features of the country is the fact that the Brazilians are great linguists. The majority of all the laborers we employed could speak four to six languages fluently with great fluency, but in few instances could they speak English. This was also noticeable among the middle and upper classes. Portuguese is the native language. The Brazilians are passionately fond of music and many noted artists from Europe annually visit the country.

The marked peculiarities in customs impress the foreigner. The Brazilians generally are affable, genial and gallant. To decline their hospitality offends them. They are very dress with excellent taste and spend their money freely. Gambling is fashionable in Brazil, all classes patronizing the lotteries liberally. These lotteries are operated by the government and states. At the same time the people are very devout and the churches are lavishly sustained. There may be said to be several months there are no holidays. In such holidays, including Sundays, it is practically an impossibility to have a Brazilian work on a church holiday, no matter how impoverished it may be, as he lives by the hour solely.

The Brazilian reports are the most famous in the world, both in number and in excellence of equipment and extent of work. This is particularly true of Rio Janeiro. All of the larger cities of Brazil, particularly those near the coast, are thoroughly modern. All having first class power systems, paved streets, electric lights, trolley-car systems and water works. The Brazilian cities are densely populated. Rio has a population of over 800,000. Sao Paulo, the cosmopolitan city of Brazil, 200,000. Pernambuco, Para, Bahia all have populations of over 200,000. Many people have a mistaken idea regarding the Brazilian climate. In many cities the climate is most desirable. This is governed largely by the extensive plateau inland, which are from 2000 to 3000 feet above sea level. In all cities of this altitude the climate is equal to that of southern California and from is not infrequent.

ACTIVE WEEK IN KIMBERLY

Rapid Progress Being Made on the New Flour Mill.

KIMBERLY, Idaho, June 19.—J. I. Graham, who has been working with one of the surveying parties at Miller for some time, returned on Thursday to inspect his ranch.
E. C. Crocker, representing the Fairbanks-Morse Co. of Salt Lake, was in town last week. He stated that all the power machinery was in readiness for shipment, except the place over the completion of which had been delayed because of a strike at the factory. He said, however, that it had been shipped before he left the office and that immediately upon its arrival in Salt Lake the entire equipment for the generating plant would be shipped here, together with men to install it. H. Thos. returned to Fayette to look after his interests there last Friday.

Messrs. Cooper and Lowe, who have had the salmon here leased for the season, have turned the place over to the owner, Ed Dromore, last week. Mr. Dromore will conduct the business from now on.

Miss Cora Stottler, who was the guest of Miss Clara Brose of Rock Creek for some time, left on Friday afternoon for Chicago. After visiting there a short time she will return to her home in Iowa. Miss Stottler was instructor in music at the Albion State Normal last year and was very successful. While here she was accompanied by her brother, Harry Stottler, who left on the same train for Bolso, where he will spend the summer.

Norman Belcher, auditor for the Western Lumber Co., was here last week looking after his business.

Miss Mary E. Cushman of Hoquiam, Wash., arrived on Saturday to visit her friend, Miss Eva Budd.

William Houtage and H. A. Rowell had a rather thrilling experience in the hills last week. They were in Shoshone basin, where it was raining so hard that it was impossible to bring out a load. Not being prepared for such weather, they suffered somewhat and found they had spent four days with only two poles as a result.

Diocletian Loe has been fitting up two derricks for C. A. McMaister. Mr. McMaister has the first load of poles from the hills this year and is making some excellent derricks.

George Holyoak has been kept busy lately hauling freight to Rock Creek. A lunch of cowboys who have been out on the range came to town from the hills the other day. Deep snow put a stop to their work so they came in to get a little rest.

One of Nick Smith's teams hauled a load of grain weighing 5600 pounds from the granary here to the ranch.

A bunch of cowboys who have been with the carpenters on the mill.

A car of posts arrived on Tuesday for the Nibley-Channel Lumber Co. They were unloaded by M. N. Fisher.

Ernest McIntire returned Monday from Contact, Nev., where he has been prospecting for about two weeks. He located several groups which he thinks will be profitable.

M. H. Wright left Thursday for Contact, where, in company with his partners, he will remain some time doing the location work in their claims.

Messrs. Trout and Stanger visited their new farm last Sunday and reported everything in good shape.

The ranchmen boys put in a strenuous day at practice before the week. Several new players have been acquired, which will greatly strengthen the team.

Hay is just about ready to cut in this section. Before the week is over, hay operations will probably have begun on some of the farms. The Kimberly Produce & Implement Co. have received a hay which they expect to keep in operation all season. There are several opportunities about here for parties desiring to put up hay by contract or to buy hay in the field.

C. C. Parker has been having the timber yards figure on plans for a new house he contemplates building shortly.

Numerous parties are planning a trip to the forest reserve south of here for poles with which to construct their homes. Recent snow has probably made the roads in the hills impassable for loads and because of this many are waiting until next week.

An amusing incident happened during a baseball practice Sunday morning. A rabbit was scared from under a sagebrush and it ran across the grounds and stopped within about 30 feet of one of the players who happened to have the ball. He threw and killed the rabbit dead the first shot. Why shouldn't Kimberly develop a reputation for throwing men who can throw like that?

Ray Dunkin and Sam Batty, who have been working for Joe Neilson on the north side, took advantage of their enforced idleness because of the recent rains and returned home for a short visit.

A. G. Ellis, who purchased the farm of P. J. Falk south of town, has moved to his new home.

The hour of Sunday school has been changed to 10 a. m. and will remain so during the summer.

The anniversary entertainment to be given by the Ladies' Pioneer club in the schoolhouse on the evening of the 26th instant promises to be a very interesting feature. The ladies have spent considerable effort in preparing for this and deserve a grand success. Miss Bertha Norton, who has been attending school at Salt Lake, returned home for her summer vacation Thursday.

Miss Geneva Strong and Oscar Ecklund were married in Salt Lake last week.
James A. Walker of Chicago is spending some time here looking over the country.

Mrs. A. Norton entertained at her home Saturday evening. Pit and high five were the games played. During the evening delightful refreshments were served.

The additions on both sides of the mill have been built this week and now the building does not have such an odd appearance. The sliding is being put on very rapidly and in about two weeks more the carpenter work will be finished.

The Kimberly Produce & Implement Co. came on recently to make a new announcement of the opening of their business on the lower floor of the mill building. They have a good line of implements, tools and vehicles and are deserving of much patronage.

BRIGHT FUTURE FOR ALBERTA
Outlook Favorable for Grand Opening on Monday.

Alberta, Lincoln county, is to be the scene of a grand opening June 21, when the first 40,000 acres of the Idaho Irrigation company's great reclamation project is to be opened for settlement.

There have been some big openings of Carey act land in Idaho—openings where millions of dollars worth of land was sold or contracted for in a single day. But not one had better promise of success.

With the eyes of the whole country on Idaho, for a chance to invest in fertile soil, the publicity given to the former opening has only served to whet the appetite of the hungry and inventive land-hungry people for irrigated lands.

More and more the publicity is the constant cry, and each opening of such land only interests a larger number of buyers, the demand increasing faster than the supply.

The irrigable land, necessarily limited in area, is going so fast that every thinking man knows that it will soon be gone. So every opening advertised is a competitive one for the next.

The thousands who have read of the Twin Falls land openings and then learned of the later marvelous developments, are not only anxious to try a sure thing, like what they at first neglected.

There are physical advantages that will make the Alberta section peculiarly desirable. Except for proximity to market, there is almost no peculiarity in the land: soil, elevation, drainage, slope, are so uniform as to make the land cheap to the draught animal as good as the first. This is a wonderful advantage in the development of any country—especially where conditions are so favorable for a great industry like the building and operating of a sugar factory, which is in prospect there.

One of the most important factors in any irrigation project—the one thing that makes it possible for any such project to exist—is a permanent water supply. This is assured the Idaho Irrigation company by the building of one of the greatest storage dams and reservoirs in the United States. The dam will be 125 feet in the clear, and the reservoir will have a storage of 25 miles. It will contain 200,000 acre feet of water, enough to make an abundant supply for the tract for a year without taking any of the summer water.

The reservoir will take up the winter flow and the spring flood waters of the Big Wood and Malad rivers, the dam being built just before the confluence of the two streams. The streams having their source largely on the north slope of the Sawtooth mountains, the highest and snowiest in the state, the water supply comes more slowly and has a permanency that makes it ideal for the purpose.

Some idea of the magnitude of the dam may be gained from the fact that it is to cost a million dollars or more, that the work will require more than a year, with all the force that can be employed, and that the pay roll will be about $25,000 a month for labor alone.

Work is proceeding on the canal diversion dam, two miles below the reservoir dam. It is to be 100 feet wide, 25 feet, and will be completed so as to deliver water on the tract this fall. The main canal is 65-feet wide on the bottom. It is to have two branches, the larger one to supply the larger tract to the west, and the other going to the Alberta tract, which is to be opened on the 24th. Only the Alberta ditch is to be completed this fall, though work is to be continued without interruption.

The company is making extensive preparations to care for the people who attend the opening. A building 95 feet long has been put up to serve as a temporary hotel, while two others are to be put to the same service. It will be possible to feed 1000 people. As the Pullman cars will be left on the track at Alberta, they will give accommodation for many of the visitors. The train service is such as to allow visitors to secure accommodations at the excellent hotels in Shoshone and Halley.
