COUNTY RECORDS NOW COMPLETE

WORK OF TRANSCRIBING WAS WELL DONE.
Cost of Completing the Records Far Less Than Estimated and Character of Work Reflects Great Credit on Those Who Did It.

The records of Twin Falls county are now complete with the exception of a little indexing and the work is a credit to the county and to those who had a hand in the transcribing. It was freely predicted that the cost of transcribing the records of Cassia county for use in the county of Twin Falls would exceed $10,000, some placing the amount as high as $20,000. The cost, however, including the cost of transcribing, selection, supervision and proof reading, was $2077.76. The work is as near faultless as the skill of man could make it and the records from beginning to end are neat and accurate.

The work of transcribing the records was done by consent of the Cassia county commissioners under the supervision of County Auditor and Recorder Harry T. West of Twin Falls and under the personal direction of George Herriott. The clerical work was performed by Mrs. Herriott, E. C. Kierstedt, L. G. Bradley and Miss Myra Wheeler, and better work is not possible. Mr. Herriott did the proof reading, and in every instance where the correctness of the Twin Falls records has been called into account the copy was found to be exact.

In all over 5000 instruments were transcribed, making 20,972 folios and covering 4134 pages distributed through 18 record books. Recorder West made a ten strike when he contracted to have the copying done for six cents per folio, and the proof reading for two cents per folio, making the total cost to the county eight cents per folio, which aggregated $2,077.76 for the actual transcribing, including the expense of selecting and supervising. Nine volumes of the Cassia county records, in which the Twin Falls water contracts and like instruments were copied, were brought over intact, provision for their transfer having been made in the act, by which the county was divided.

In addition to the labor of transcribing the records, it was necessary to exercise extreme care in preparing the indexes, which are the life of the records and upon which the perfection of the work largely hinges. The indexes were prepared in Twin Falls by Herman H. Seebock under the eye of Mr. West. They consist of 22 volumes of Graves tabular index system with a capacity of 120,000 names. The mortgage index is complete and the deed index nearly so. The index books cost the county $225 and they are a bargain at that price. The record books cost about $1000. The present records consist of 66 volumes and they are growing at the rate of nearly three volumes of 64 pages each quarter.

Another item which figured in the expense of transcribing the records was the cost of two book typewriters, worth $615. The machines are in perfect condition and one of them is in constant use in the recorder's office. The other will easily bring a good price. It was a neat and economical piece of work and it is safe to state that no other county in Idaho has such an accurate and complete set of records as Twin Falls.

ENTERTAINMENTS FOR THE WINTER

SPLENDID ATTRACTIONS HAVE BEEN BOOKED.

V. M. C. A. Entertainment Course Includes Several of the Best Artists Now Under Engagement by the Great Western Lyceum Bureau.

Many of the long winter evenings will be brightened in Twin Falls during the next few months by the appearance of several of the most noted entertainers now before the public.

These attractions have been secured by the V. M. C. A., entertainment course, an agency which has in the past procured entertainers of the highest quality. With pleasant memories of Econom Jackson and her talented associates, Maro and others who have delighted the people of Twin Falls, the public should rally to the support of the entertainment course and show its appreciation of the efforts that have been made to keep Twin Falls abreast of the times in the matter of entertainment.

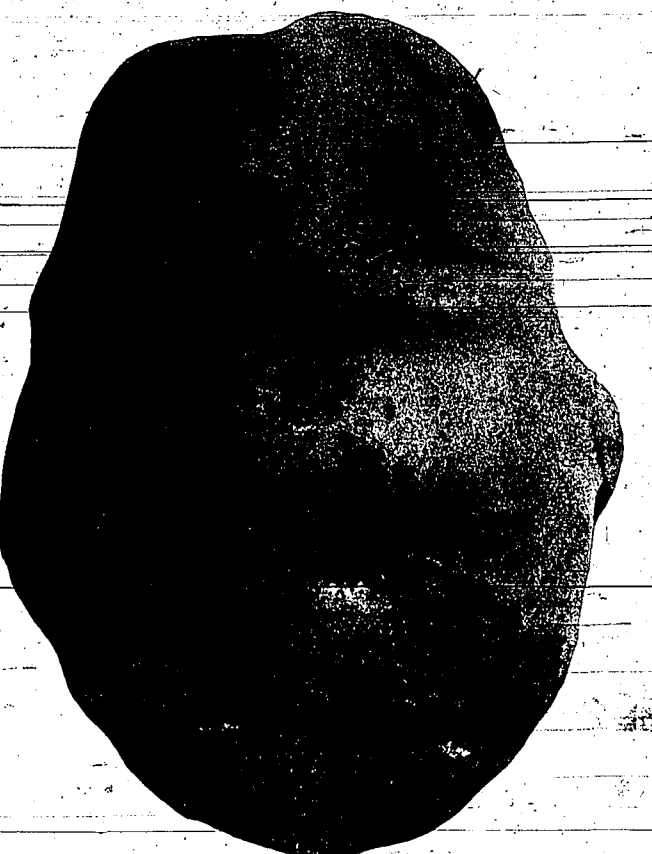

The first entertainment of the season will be given in the Bickel school auditorium on the evening of November 25 by Stanton's Jubilee Singers, an organization with a national reputation for popular melodies and songs that live. The Stanton are the greatest company of colored artists before the public. They have played more return dates than any musical organization in the country and their programs are always more than welcome. They give varied programs, including old time jubilees and up-to-date numbers.

For Thanksgiving night, November 28, the Kellogg-Haines Singing Party has been engaged. The party of five artists presents scenes from grand and comic opera in costume. This year their repertoire includes scenes from "Dainty Dolly Varden," "I Trovatore," "Lucia de Lammermoor," "Pinafore" and "Pauline," a range sufficiently wide to satisfy all music lovers. The Kellogg-Haines party was one of the big hits of last season on the Lyceum circuit and return engagements were eagerly sought.

Among the January attractions will be Dr. John Merritt Driver, pastor of the People's Church, Chicago. Dr. Driver is an eloquent and entertaining speaker who thrills, instructs, uplifts and interests his hearers. He is also a writer of prominence. This season he has five lectures, that which he will deliver in Twin Falls to be announced later, together with the date of his appearance.

In February Twin Falls will enjoy a visit from the Hruby Brothers Quintet, five brothers ranging in age from 12 to 22 years. The Hrubys are exceptionally talented and their work has been lavishly praised from the Atlantic to the Pacific.
An attraction which is sure to crowd the auditorium is the Transcontinental Trio, consisting of George Bartlett Cutler, the singing humorist; Miss Maude Annette Drake, dramatic reader; and Miss Helen Coff, contralto. The trio will furnish a unique program which has never failed to please. The better way to patronize the course is to secure a season ticket in advance. These tickets can be obtained for $3 each and they entitle the Look me in the eye. I belong to the Everett family and I was raised within a stone's throw of the Bickel school in Twin Falls. My master planted me in May when the moon was darkest. Why, I don't know, but some folks say spuds grow better when put in the ground at that time. Anyhow, I just "grewed" and "grewed," like Topsy. My master threw lots of dirt on me but he couldn't keep me down. Then I began to fool him and grow under ground but he must have had his eyes on me all the time—I have had just two drinks, plenty for a respectable family spud. I was quite large when I received my second drink and I did some crowding thereafter. One day my master concluded that I was a prize winner and to the county fair I should go. To the fair I went and I was so big and so clean and smooth that they tied a blue ribbon on me. Look me in the eye. Ain't I a daisy?

holders to reserved seats. Season tickets for children may be had for $1.50 and single entertainment tickets for $1. The attractions are such that children as well as adults can enjoy them and for clean, wholesome entertainment they cannot be excelled.

BOB CAT HAD NO TERRORS FOR HER

MISS ALICE KEITH OF HANSEN MAKES GOOD SHOT.

Encountered a Bob Cat While Out Hunting and Put the Animal Out of Business. In Short Order—Nick Smith Doing a Heavy Potatoes Stunt.

HANSEN, Idaho, Oct. 16.—Howard Wilson of Champlain, Ill., has been visiting for a few days at Nick Smith's. Mr. Wren took the evening train on Wednesday for his home, well pleased with the sights of the new country. George Washington of Wellington, Kan., has purchased the Divine place and will take possession November 1.

E. E. Rose is heading a car of wheat for Victor Brown of Rupert. Miss Alice Keith, while out hunting a few days ago, encountered a bob cat. Alice Keith put the animal out of business the first shot and looked farther for "more worlds to conquer." Mr. Howard and family were Rock Creek visitors last Wednesday.

Mr. Hill, who recently purchased the E. L. Hicks place, is cutting his third crop of alfalfa.

IDAHO SHEEP ON CHICAGO MARKET

LONG AND VEXATIOUS JOURNEY FROM THE RANGE.

Poor Service, High Rates, Inadequate Facilities at Feeding Stations, Heavy Shrinkage—Idaho Lambs Are the Best from the West.

The telephone bell rang insistently. "That's you, Mr. Man-From-Idaho," suggested the clerk. "It's on the long distance."

That it was a welcome summons was evidenced by the prompt response of the Idahoan.

"You don't look ready to load," he replied gleefully to the inaudible inquiry from the other end. "Be in Chicago tomorrow morning with the whole outfit. Only ten cars, did you say? Well, I'd sooner start 'em all, but you're the doctor, and if the market won't take 'em that's all there is to it."

The scene was at a feeding station about 50 miles west of Chicago. All about the landscape was dotted with western sheep and lambs, "cutting their dermed heads off" as an owner put it. Congregated in the station of the wool were half a dozen typical westerners, consumed with anxiety to finish their long journey marketward.

Impatiently they awaited the summons from Chicago to load, and meanwhile the ambient atmosphere was freighted with the stereotyped tale of a sheepman's woe—a tale that had its preface while loading on the range, accumulated subsequent chapters at many places on the route, most of them dealing with long waits on sidetracks, inadequate facilities at feeding stations located at various intervals on the time-carrier—the whole fabric of the story being interwoven with the wool of bad service, wretched time and excessive charges.

"Well, I'm glad to get some of my stuff out of this hold-up resort," said the man from Idaho after he had ordered the ten cars his commission man had permitted him to ship. "Get a notion to shoot in the whole bunch and take chances, but Chicago says the market won't stand it. Say, we're soft marks, that's what we are! Everybody is grabbing for our coin. They've boosted railroad rates, jacked up the price of feed and now even grass is soaring. I've got a good notion to keep my stuff at home after this and out it myself."

"Sounds like he's got a grouch on," commented the man from Wyoming, as the train shipped another west to the loading platform, hard by to superintend the housing of his lambs aboard the cars. "I don't blame him. I'm the most athletic, long-suffering, non-protesting individual in a state of Wyoming, but frequently I am impelled to rise on my hind foot, and make the wilderness resound with my tale of trouble."

"What's the matter with you?" interrupted the clerk. "Ain't we givin' you the best of the market? It ain't nothing to brag about," replied the man from Wyoming. "The people who run these feeding stations don't do it for recreation, and when another railroad traffic manager sees a shipper slipping a ten-dollar bill into his vest pocket he promptly holds him up for half. We're lucky to get back home with any money at all."

Rocky Trip.
Any impression that the western sheep owner travels a rose-lined path when moving his crop from the range to market will be speedily dispelled by a visit to one of the numerous feeding, or, to be more correct, recuperating, stations that encircle Chicago. For several weeks the movement has been at its height and the ovine wealth of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Wyoming and Montana has been poured into the laps of the killer and feeder. It is a movement that averts a million fatalities in the east and this coffers of the sheep-ranger west with wealth, but even the present unparalleled prosperity of the sheep grower has its alloy; the sheep owner is conspicuous in the treatment. Congratulate a sheepman on the high-level market that awaits him at Chicago or Omaha and he will respond by telling you how the federal reserve policy of the powers that be at Washington threatens him with bankruptcy; that between advancing railroad rates and bad service in transit he is ever conscious in the treatment market, and that feedyard owners are breaking records for shrinkage while lying weary hours on sidetracks, a victim of the vicious tonnage system of the modern railroad manager, impatient while the value of his costly product vanishes through the slots of the cars.

"I'm blowing in $60 a day for grass," said an Idaho man at a feeding point near Chicago. "Last year they charged me eight cents per head per day. This year I was told it would be a cent and a half, and all I can do to express thanks that they did not make the tax two cents. The railroad people didn't raise rates, but they did put the minimum at 23,000 pounds, which is practically the same thing, as no sheepman would ever could load up to it, consequently they are charging us for something they do not get. They lay us out on sidetracks until yearlings develop into aged sheep, and the stuff shrinks so fast you can see it floating away. Even the grass they charge us so heavily for at feeding stations exists largely in imagination."

Straight Hold Up.
But the movement surges marketward despite these handicaps. Philo, a sheepowner, paraphrase Prof. Boaga, and admit that "it might be worse." They have no alternative but to pay the toll, enormous though it may be. Adhering to their stated policy, railroads take the traffic all it will bear. Sheep owners are not so loud in their protest over rates as on the subject of wretched service, lack of care and scant grass for lambs at feeding stations. Theoretically—the feeding station was established for their benefit. In practice, he asserts, the feeding station is merely a device for swilling railroad coffers. When recuperating their stock at these points they enjoy the privilege of through rates, but if a sheep owner attempted to get a full outside Chicago on pasture not controlled by station owners, with the object of evading the 15-cent per diem rate, he would be confronted with the sum of two local charges by way of rebuke. That he never invites this is obvious.

Necessary Evils.
But the feeding station is as essential to the sheep owner as the stock yards or the killing beds. They constitute a necessary link in a gigantic chain that stretches across the country. Without the railroad, the packer, the refrigerator car or the retailer sheep would be worth little more than the value of their pelts. With a complex of trade has come inevitable complications. The sheep owner orders cars at the range loading point he sets in motion a vast machine manned by innumerable operators, and an important cog in the feeding station. Here, worn by a long journey and sorely affected by a shrink that would materially affect net results, the ovine travelers have an opportunity to rest and recuperate. The stockyard man, a few miles away is put in position to regulate supply to meet demand, avoiding the demoralization that unpleasantly characterized the days before the feeding station became a regulating influence. A train of 10,000 Idaho lambs might sit—the Chicago market and break prices half a dollar while the same consignment on tap at a near-by feeding station can be loaded out to the killer in such a manner as to insure stability of prices. Like most of the necessities of commerce, the feeding station comes high, but the sheepman must have it.

Redolent of sheep lore is the atmosphere of a feeding station. Every season develops trade mutations, many of them conspicuous. One changing feature is the rapid disappearance of the big wether, its substitute in market circles being the lamb.
"Won't be no big sheep any more pretty soon," explained an Idaho man. "No inducement to make 'em. Lamb is the thing. The public likes 'em and has small appetite for big fat mutton. Ten years ago half the summer movement would be big sheep; nowadays if I wasn't for old ewes big mutton would be a scarcity. Even yearlings comprise but a small proportion of the supply."

Idaho Lambs the Best.
Beginning in June, when Oregon and Washington start their contribution, the range sheep movement continues until snow flies. Idaho sends the bulk of fat lambs and nowhere are they produced of such superb quality. But for Idaho pastures there would be little choice lamb on eastern shelves between August and November. Later come Wyoming, Montana and the Dakotas, but those delegations are less attractive to the killer than the feeder and have more influence on the winter supply of fed mutton than that for immediate consumption. Montana sends a lot of sheep to the killer during late summer, but its lamb crop does not leave pastures fat.

In winter the average feeding station is an under-cover proposition. Some operators feed their stuff out, but under severe handicaps. These are accumulating to such an extent as to threaten extinction of the industry. The principal being an annually swelling feed bill. In view of the Colorado lamb feeder hating for eastern markets breaks his journey to recuperate, get a fill and regulate supply in the same manner as does the range man in summer.

Eye-opening sights have been witnessed around feeding stations adjacent to Chicago recently. A veteran from Idaho, survivor of innumerable scraps with cattlemen, emitted a yell of surprise at the Kirkland feeding station a few days ago when he detected George Keeline, a superintendent of the embarking of a trainload of lambs.

"What has it come to, Keeline?" he asked. "Are the lambs and the lamb lying down on the same couch?"
"It's sheep for me," responded the Wyoming man. "You will be able to run a rake through our pastures after this and find no boot. We may carry a few steers to use grass in the bad lands, but our mainstay will be the sheep. We have 25,000 breeding ewes now and if there was any assurance of help at lambing time we would make it 50,000, but I guess we'll have to go to wethers or yearlings instead. We simply can't get help at lambing time."

"Talk about elevating an industry," interposed Frank Hagenbarth of Idaho, "but look at that band of Keeline lambs—most of them blackfaced, and although they were dropped as late as June you'll see feeders fairly shouting for them when they reach Chicago. That's why Hampshire blood does—I had to talk Keeline into paying $25 for Hampshire rams, but he shows now that his money was well spent."

While Merino blood still predominates in the run of western sheep and lambs, the whiteface ewe, disporting a more or less wrinkly pet being the standby of the range sheepman. Infusion of Merino blood is becoming more potent in popularizing the most and elevating the price each year. Aimated discussions are recorded regarding the relative merits of rams of the mutton breeds during waiting hours at the feeding stations, each having his champion. Last week the annual output of the Wood Livestock Co. of Idaho, 70,000 strong, put in an appearance, the advance guard arousing enthusiasm. Frank Hagenbarth, general manager of the outfit and a pioneer in the crusade of improvement, pointed with assurance to the quality of his product as a vindication of his policy. "There's a trainload of lambs averaging 75 pounds that never had its equal leaving the range," he said. "These blackfaced are as fat as butter. They ship better than the old style lamb and when the consumer tastes the meat he fairly clamors for more."

The range sheep business, like that in cattle, is in a period of transition. The forest reserve policy of the federal government is a powerful influence of change. Settlers are swarming onto pastures and the day of the trailing band is over. So profitable has been the business of late that many large cattle outfits have changed their policy and gone into sheep, some of them being forced to do so to protect their pastures. Nevertheless, the tendency is toward contracted production, as market figures emphatically assert. Mutton consumption has gained so rapidly that it is not only the highest priced meat on the list, but also is every prospect that it will go higher. In the economy growing out of changed conditions the huge feeding stations that encircle Chicago increase to be of utility to the trade. Strangling the goose that lays a golden egg is not a difficult feat.—The Breeder's Gazette.

Superintendent George D. Alken of the Great Shoshone & Twin Falls Water Power Co. had occasion to ship a dynamite from Twin Falls to Milner a few days ago. The dynamite was the one which supplied light to the city of Twin Falls prior to the completion of the new plant at Shoshone falls. It weighed 7200 pounds and had to be perfectly tractable, easily controlled and thoroughly house broke. It was none the less bulky and difficult to handle.

By the time Superintendent Alken had succeeded in loading the dynamite on a truck for removal from the shed at the rear of the Hotel Perrine to the depot the company was out and injured to the extent of $107.50.

When he reached the depot with his ponderous load the superintendent was informed that he would be obliged to load the dynamite in a car himself, which would entail an additional cost of $10. Moreover, he was told that if he could obtain suitable tracks in the city he could have the dynamite hauled from Twin Falls to Milner on the dynamite at Milner, which would cost an additional $10, provided he could obtain suitable tracks in the city.

It is a fact that the superintendent scarcely hope to succeed in unloading the dynamite at Milner without sending back to Twin Falls. Mr. Alken's plan was to haul the dynamite in a car from Twin Falls to Milner on the dynamite at Milner, which would cost 28 cents per hundredweight, or the equivalent of 1 cent per hundredweight per mile, which would amount to a freight charge of $20.16. This amount would necessarily be added $10 for loading the dynamite and transferring it to the depot in Twin Falls, $10 for loading it in a car at Twin Falls, and $10 for unloading it at Milner, an aggregate of $50.16, without counting the expense of shipping tracks to Milner, a company for which the railroad was not to blame.

By hooking up another team to the truck Mr. Alken found that he could haul the dynamite from Twin Falls to the city by the dam site at a total expense of $30 and take the necessary tracks for handling the generator along as well. Consequently he added the third team and started the machine for Milner, where it arrived in splendid condition and without the slightest mishap.

DON'T BUY DISEASED FRUIT

Sound Advice Given by Horticultural Inspector Adams.

The following communication from John Adams of Oakley, horticultural inspector for District No. 10, which includes Twin Falls county, should be carefully heeded by fruit consumers: To All Lovers of Good Fruit, especially to the Consumers:

It should be known to every one in the state of Idaho that there is a horticulture law forbidding the sale of fruit in infested areas, and that in certain parts of the state, especially in certain parts of the state, such as apples and pears without worms. It lies with the grower to grow them, which he can do with the latest improved methods of control of these pests. Most of our fruits are finding a market among the new settlers of the Twin Falls and Milner tracts. Next year there is good prospect of many of these people growing fruit, and only for climatic conditions there would have been full this fall.

What I want to get at is this: Don't you new settlers buy infested fruit of our old settlers and by so doing plant in your first crop of fruit certain insects. Report to the inspector when such fruits are offered for sale. I spent one month last spring inspecting nursery stock in Twin Falls county to see that every person in my district, which comprises Cassia, Twin Falls, Lincoln and Blaine counties, assist me in the controlling and enforcing of horticulture laws which were made for our best good and benefit. I want warn all merchants and keepers of fruit that infested fruit is not to be handled infested fruits. I want every person in my district to be an inspector and to assist in this work, for without your assistance I feel that my work cannot have the desired effect. Asking once more for your hearty support in this matter of great importance to us all, I remain, yours in the interest of fruit growing,

JOHN ADAMS,
Horticulture Inspector District No. 10.

"DAD" PAPE, THE VETERAN BUILDER

HAS BEEN MAKING THE SHAVINGS FLY OF LATE.

Has Built a Splendid School House and Several Fine Homes, Including a Small Cottage for T. J. Woods Which is Not for Rent.

M. H. Pape, the contractor and builder, who is known to everybody in Twin Falls as "Dad," because of his paternal appearance and his happy disposition, has been driving a few nails on the Twin Falls tract during the past few weeks. "Dad" has a few many monuments in the city and out on the tract and he has been adding to the number actively of late. He has set so merry a pace that people are beginning to suspect that he must have discovered the fountain of youth during his frequent rambles in the hills.

Mr. Pape has just completed a school house for school district No. 8 with which the trustees are mightily well pleased. The building is of the grade, the contractor and to the district. It is 24x60, all finished and it looks very tempting indeed.

A six-room cottage for Samuel Crismon, four miles south of Twin Falls, betrays the recent presence of Mr. Pape in that neighborhood and adds to the number actively of late. He is a fine home, comfortably planned, with a fine garden.

Mr. Pape is responsible for a four-room house on the farm of William Breckenridge, on the west side of the city. It is a fine home, comfortably planned, with a fine garden.

H. P. Burger's pretty four-room real estate in Twin Falls is another of "Dad's" monuments which is good to look upon.

Two four-room houses for W. P. Guthrie are among "Dad's" late accomplishments and they are of an attractive type and well finished.

Mr. Pape has just completed a six-room cottage with bath, pantry, closet, everything right up to the minute for T. J. Woods. As Mr. Woods is a bachelor, the supposition is that he built the cottage to rent, but no mention is made of it in the business of Woods, Evans & Thomas. Mr. Pape is very enthusiastic over this cottage which, he declares, would delight the eye of the most capricious woman in the world. He is in a fine mood to account for the extreme care with which Mr. Woods attended to the details of the house but he attributes that to Tompkins' judgment and thoroughness. Still, it looks very suspicious.

TWIN FALLS NEWS

Official Paper of Twin Falls County.
George B. Fraser, Editor.
Published every Friday by
THE NEWS PUBLISHING COMPANY
TWIN FALLS, IDAHO

Subscription Rates— $2.00
Six Months in Advance— 1.00

Reliable information regarding the city and county property and how to obtain same is given in all communications to The News Publishing Company, Twin Falls, Idaho.

Entered as second-class matter, December 12, 1904, at the postoffice at Twin Falls, Idaho, under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

The expense of the Twin Falls county fair was $1219.00 and there remains a balance on hand of $318.00, with a few small bills outstanding. Considering that no admission fee was charged and no concessions sold, this is an excellent showing and in keeping with that of last year. The Twin Falls merchants and the North Side Land & Water Company, who furnished the stews of war, are deserving of the highest credit for their public spirit. Those who labored unselfishly to make the fair the success it was are entitled to public thanks. The close of the fair business raises the important question of what is to be done next year. Last winter an attempt was made to secure suitable fair grounds in the vicinity of Twin Falls but nothing came of the movement. Lands which were available there have increased in value fully $50 an acre. The Farmers' Federation can go no further and it is now up to the people of Twin Falls to determine whether a fair association shall be organized and grounds procured. It cannot be denied that suitable grounds can never be obtained any cheaper in the future than they can at present. As a rule investments of this character are not very profitable because of the indifference of those interested. It is possible, however, by adding a race track and putting up stables to secure considerable revenue. There is no other means by which fair grounds can be assured in the future and as they are a necessity when the Twin Falls tract cannot afford to do without, the question should be taken up without delay. Other towns on the tract have an equal chance to compete with Twin Falls in this respect, and the town which secures the county fair will have something to its credit. The amount of money which the local merchants have already subscribed to the fair would go a long way toward the purchase of permanent grounds, and if a race track were built and a handsome building erected public interest would be aroused and the problem would be easier to solve. The fair has been a great benefit to the city as well as the tract and they should be continued on a permanent basis.

Those who can afford to spare the time should attend the state fair in Boise next week. It will broaden their ideas of Idaho and will tend to stiffen their backbone. They will have an opportunity to see what the state produces and acquire much valuable information. To the Idaho farmer the state fair is an education which he cannot afford to miss.

BUSY QUARTER FOR THE CLERK
Large Amount of Business Transacted of Late.

The quarter ending October 11 was a busy one in the office of Harry T. West, county auditor and recorder. From March 18 to July 6, inclusive, 364 instruments were filed for record. During the quarter just ended, which was one month shorter than the first period, 528 recording fees were collected, amounting to $295.55. The total fees for the last quarter aggregated $1207.75 for the office of clerk and recorder alone, while the expenses of the office were less than $300. The work was performed by Mr. West and one clerk part of the time and two clerks during the rest of the time. One deputy was kept busy auditing the tax roll for one month. This is a splendid showing for the office and it reflects the healthy condition of the county.

Notice for Publication—Final Proof.
I, Emanuel Peterson of Twin Falls, who made entry No. 974, under the provisions of an act of the legislature of the state of Idaho, commonly known as the "Cave Act," approved March 2, 1899, which embraces the SW 1/4 of SE 1/4 of section 30, and the NW 1/4 of NE 1/4 of section 31, township 10 S., range 17 E., do hereby give notice of my intention to make final proof to establish my claim to the land above described, and that I expect to prove that I have resided on, cultivated and cultivated said land as required by law, before E. B. Williams, representative of the State Land board, at Twin Falls, Idaho, on the 14th day of November, 1907, by two of the following witnesses: J. A. Frazier, J. R. Ault, C. F. Gloydstein, T. W. Potter, all of Twin Falls, and EMANUEL PETERSON, Entryman.

FIRST COUNTY TO FINISH TAX LIST

TWIN FALLS LEADS STATE IN THIS RESPECT.

Rolls Have Been Passed Upon by the County Auditor and Tax Notices Are Now Ready for the Mails—Will Be Sent Out Some Time Next Week.

Twin Falls county is the first in the state to complete its tax list and prepare tax notices for the mails. This is quite a feather in the cap of Assessor James McMillan, who has worked hard to keep up his work and who is deserving of high credit for the manner in which he has performed his duties. In a new county like Twin Falls, which is pulled from every section of the United States, the work of preparing the first tax list was by no means an easy task. It was an extremely difficult matter to locate all the land owners, many of whom are non-residents. Furthermore, land has changed hands so rapidly and so frequently since the county was organized that the assessor had hard work in keeping pace with the transfers. The most troublesome problem he encountered was to obtain the residence addresses of the property owners. He had no guide and was obliged to proceed along as best he could with the information at hand. "Should any of the taxpayers fail to receive their notices within a reasonable time, say two weeks, they will facilitate matters and perform a public service by mailing the notices to the property owners. He had no guide and was obliged to proceed along as best he could with the information at hand. E. W. Davis is in Pueblo, Colo., where he was called by the illness of Mrs. Davis.

Miss Myrtle McManis is about to return to Pocatello for a long visit at her old home.

J. D. Margreida is going to Santa Cruz, California, to visit a brother whom he has not seen for 30 years.

Milus Robinson arrived from Goldfield this week, looking hale and hearty. He reports everything booming in the famous camp.

L. B. Perrine shipped his first car of apples to Chicago on Wednesday. He will ship 25 cars of apples from Twin Falls this season. The Twin Falls fruit commands high prices in the Windy City.

The Modern Woodmen of America contest has just closed with 67 applicants. All those who have in application names and who have not been initiated are requested to meet at K. P. hall next Wednesday evening, October 23.

The theatrical season will be opened on Monday evening by the Josephine Duffy company, which will present "Shall We Forgive Her?" at the rink; this Duffy's work has been highly praised in other Idaho cities where she has played and she has excellent support.

Glen P. McKinlay and E. V. Larson are preparing to open a law office in Twin Falls. Both graduated at Ann Arbor this year, ranking high in their class. They have selected the best town in the state to live in, which is one proof that they are bright young men.

John McManis of Pocatello, brother of Conductor Joe McManis, was in Twin Falls during the week in the interest of Murphy & Bartlett of the Gato City. It was his first visit and like everybody else with a lick of sense Mr. McManis pronounced Twin Falls the coming city.

Frank Filer of the Filer Coal Co. has 10 cars of Ohio coal on the way and the Nibley-Channel company has a like amount in transit. The coal will cost about $10 per ton in Twin Falls and is superior to the Rock Springs product. Last year at this time coal sold for $8.75. It is impossible to get a pound of coal from any of the nearby mines. The Ohio coals screens six inches while the Rock Springs coal screens 2 1/2 inches.

County Surveyor C. H. Muhl has completed a splendid map of Twin Falls county which shows all the road and school districts, voting precincts, bridges, etc. The map is very large and distinctly marked. It shows the extreme length of the county from north to south is 63 1/2 miles, while the width from east to west is 57 1/2 miles. The Rock Creek school district contains 413 square miles, or 11 1/2 townships, embracing the greater portion of the Cassia national forest.

The W. C. T. U. will hold the next regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Arthur Hauser on Tuesday afternoon, October 21. All members are urged to be present.

A number of Twin Falls people will attend the state fair in Boise next week. The Short Line has granted special rates for the fair and quite a few have announced their intention of visiting the capital.

Mrs. M. M. Murtaugh returned to Salt Lake City yesterday after a visit of a few days with her friends in Twin Falls. Mrs. Murtaugh had not seen the city since she went to Brazil and she was delighted with the improvements.

The new ferryboat at Shoshone falls was placed in commission yesterday and is a vast improvement over the old craft. The honor of making the last trip on the old ferry fell to Mr. M. Murtaugh and Don C. Bryan, who have been yearning for many a stormy crossing. The new boat is large and is splendidly constructed. It will, in all probability, be operated with electric power.

Mrs. Bell G. Stevens, wife of W. Stevens, who resides six miles southeast of Twin Falls, died at the family home on Friday, October 11, after a lingering illness. Mrs. Stevens was 40 years of age. The funeral services were held on Sunday morning at 11 o'clock at the Stevens home. Elder H. P. Tandy officiating. Interment was in Twin Falls cemetery under the direction of Undertaker H. E. Hunt.

Al Page of Wardner, who is one of the largest, if not the largest, individual land owners on the tract, left for his home last evening after visiting here for a week. One of his quarrelsome neighbors, Mr. Page threated 1200 bushels of wheat and 800 bushels of oats. He obtained almost as good yields on two or three other farms. St. John Skinner sold the oats to the Electric Mills at Kimberly at top prices. Mr. Page is feeding hundreds of hogs on his Twin Falls farm this year.

Frank Sorenson went to Salt Lake City yesterday to remain during the winter. He left many aching hearts behind him, according to all accounts, but he promised to be true to all of them. Conductor Joe McManis said there were several large pools of tears in front of the depot after Frank had said his farewells. Frank has many warm friends in Twin Falls who wish him well and who hope to see him back again.

The Count of Monte Cristo and the Empress Josephine, two blooded blood owned by Agent D. B. Sullivan of the Short Line, have disappeared and there is great sorrow in the vicinity of the depot. Monte and Joe are great pets and the supposition is that they have been stolen. Monte is a red English bulldog with an under-shot jaw, while Joe is a white bull terrier.

BENEFICIAL USE OF DEAD TIMBER

VALUABLE ASSET IN NATIONAL FORESTS.

Tests Show That the Timber Can Be Utilized for a Variety of Purposes, While Its Removal Stimulates the Growth of Young Trees.

The following circular respecting the use of dead timber in the national forests was prepared by E. R. Fiddons, forest assistant, and is being disseminated. In view of the fact that the Cassia reserve contains a wealth of fire-killed timber which is now being used for fireproofing and building logs the circular is of local interest. It says:

A study of the amount, location and quality of fire-killed timber, and the extent to which it is used, has been made by the forest service in a number of the national forests in the southern Rocky mountain region. This brought out very striking facts. First, sound dead timber is valuable, and, second, that though widely used in some localities it is regarded as not worth using in others. The timber which was not being used was found to be fully as good as the other, and the only cause for rejecting it proved to be its ignorance of its true value.

There are three classes of dead timber: (1) Fire-killed timber, (2) timber killed by insects, and (3) timber killed by such other causes as driving out of logs.

Fire-killed timber, which is the best, forms by far the largest part of the dead timber in the national forests, and is found throughout them. Insect-killed timber, though widely scattered, is usually restricted to small areas. In some localities, however, particularly in the Black Hills, South Dakota, there are very small areas of such timber. Dead timber of the third class is mainly met with in single trees or small groups, but the aggregate amount of it is large. It has been otherwise stated the dead timber hereafter discussed is fire-killed timber.

Amount of Dead Timber. The area covered by the study was approximately 13,000,000 acres. On this area there is estimated to be 500,000,000 feet B. M. of merchantable dead timber, or about 4 per cent of the total merchantable stumpage. About 50 per cent of this, especially of the larger dimensions, is fit for use as lumber, and all of it can be utilized in the round. There is also a large amount of cordwood, suitable only for fuel, charcoal and other similar purposes.

Condition of the Dead Timber. The principal defect of fire-killed timber is decay. This appears soon after the death of the tree, and apparently does not greatly increase later. Timber above 2,000 feet elevation is not affected by decay for many years. Such timber has been used after more than 50 years have elapsed since burning, and vast quantities of timber killed by fire 20 or 30 years ago are entirely free from decay.

Fire-killed timber should be barked soon after it is killed, in order to prevent decay of the surface. If the bark has been left on, the sapwood is somewhat decayed. Lodgepole pine and Engelmann spruce have about the same durability after 25 years, about 50 per cent is usually standing, and the fallen timber, if not flat on the ground, lasts five or six years. Balsam lasts about equal to Douglas fir. Standing Douglas fir lasts almost indefinitely, and even when flat on the ground decays but slowly. Yellow pine decays more rapidly, since it occurs mainly below an elevation of 5,000 feet. On the other hand, on account of the openness of its stand, it is rarely killed by fire.

Strength of Fire-Killed Timber. In many places a popular opinion is that dead timber is very much weaker than seasoned green timber. It is even held that timber which has been dead a number of years is weaker than green timber, and that the longer it stands the weaker it becomes. These views are quite wrong. By actual test it has been shown that sound timber, as a matter of fact, is almost as strong as seasoned green timber and much stronger than green timber before its seasoning. Seasoning greatly adds to the strength of timber so that it is so strong as to make the comparison a fair one. The green and the dead timber must be brought to the same condition of seasoning. When this is done, the tests indicate that dead timber is about nine-tenths as strong as green white fir which has been seasoned and about twice as strong as green timber freshly cut.

Uses of Dead Timber. Since the principal defect of dead timber is decay, it has been used largely in the round for mine timbers, coal props, telephone poles, railroad ties and fence posts. The better grades are also used for dimension stock, which is not seriously affected by the shallow checks found in these grades. It is not much used for fuel, but, however, except as cut-up stock, because of frequent cross checks.

The chief use to which dead timber is now put is for mill timbers. For this purpose it is even better suited than green timber, because it is perfectly seasoned and is light. In the Lewisville, Colo., use each month 250,000 feet B. M. of dead timber. There are also many other large mill and camps that use it in various sizes. It is especially preferred to green timber. For 15 years dead timber has been used for railroad ties in the Pinon, New Mexico, where it has proved entirely satisfactory. Wherever dead timber is located sufficiently near the track it is readily sold for ties. Douglas fir, ponderosa pine, yellow pine, white pine, and, occasionally, Engelmann spruce, are the species used.

In Denver, Colorado, dead timber has been used for number of years for boxes with excellent results. The species used were mainly Engelmann spruce and lodgepole pine. Lumber pine and Douglas fir were also used in small quantities. The first two did very well, especially the spruce, which was used for such exacting packages as cracker and biscuit boxes. Dead timber is eminently suited for making boxes and crates, because it is odorless and is perfectly seasoned. A package made from it does not shrink or warp, and is as strong as when first made. Since dead timber, when sawed, is largely cut-up stock, it should find a wide use for such purposes.

Another large quantity of dead timber has been used for telephone and telegraph poles, dimension stuff and fence posts. In fact, it has been used for everything for which green timber is used, except the sawed lumber, and there is no reason why it should not be used for this to a considerable extent also. Narrow widths of the best quality, not damaged by shooting, could be worked up into flooring and siding, and it could be used for second grade lumber, which would not be seriously affected by a certain amount of checking. The use of dead timber results in a double economy—the prevention of waste and a saving of more valuable timber for better uses.

Conclusion.

It is past question that sound dead timber, particularly when fire-killed, has decided value and keeps this value for a considerable length of time. Decay does not readily affect it. The strength is not diminished by standing in the dead condition. Some of it is checked, to be sure, but even the best sound green timber is sometimes checked before it is used. The use of sound dead timber has this especially in its favor: It is perfectly seasoned, and is therefore easily handled and cheap to ship. Dead timber, moreover, is in excellent condition for preservative treatment, as the moisture has evaporated from the wood so there is no water sap to act as a medium for insect attack. The use of the preservative. Green or seasoned timber must be piled for several weeks before it is in a proper condition for treatment, or else it has to be subjected to various processes to season it artificially. This artificial seasoning is expensive and is liable to reduce the strength of the timber. The use of sound dead timber is really more valuable for preservative purposes than green is. It also happens that most dead timber in the west has an open porous structure and can be treated by a simple and inexpensive process without the use of complicated apparatus required by other kinds of wood.

MANTLE FALLS' ON S. D. PARKE High School Principal is Appointed Superintendent.

S. D. Parke, who for some time has been principal of the Twin Falls high school, has been appointed superintendent to succeed T. W. Potter, resigned. The appointment was made by the school board at its last meeting and was subject to the approval of the board. Mr. Parke, who has since been named as principal of the school, has filled with great credit. In order that he may have needed assistance in his office, the board will engage a substitute teacher whose duties will be to attend to the office work which has hitherto been looked after by Mr. Potter in person. This teacher will be available in the event that any of the regular teachers are unable to perform their duties. When not filling the place of a regular teacher, the substitute teacher will be on duty in the office of Superintendent Parke, while the latter is attending to the high school work. This will mean a saving to the school district without sacrificing any work in any way. The board will select the substitute teacher at an early date.

Frank Schell, the well known retired veteran, residing on Cleveland avenue, North Pocatello, Idaho, says: "Ever since I left the army, at interview I had pain across my back. It grew much more severe in the fall of 1905. It ever was before and I was compelled to do something for it. I called on a druggist and told him about my condition. He recommended Doan's Kidney Pills and I took his advice. Before I finished the box, the pain in my back ceased and I noticed that the rheumatic pains were lessened.
