

ORCHALARA NOW THE ATTRACTION

GREAT PREPARATIONS FOR THE BIG OPENING

Twin Falls Band Will Meet the Visitors from Colorado Who Will Be Royally Entertained During Their Stay in Twin Falls.

If you cannot pronounce the word "Orchalara" you should see a word book and have your tongue examined. Begin by saying "Um-um-um" and you will soon acquire the proper tone and accent.

Nevertheless and notwithstanding, these things have come to pass. A both from Colorado, in the person of Dr. M. Lindroth, aided and abetted by one Bert Strouh, who conducts a really famous in the St. Regis block and sundry other gentlemen from the altitudinous state, are about to work the transformation.

I know it would be a pity to spoil Mr. Bryan's pretty farm," said Mr. Lindroth, "but we are not going to do anything of the kind. We are going to make it more beautiful. We are going to bring closer to the town that you can feast your gaze upon it without straining your spectacles.

What is now the Orchalara subdivision has for the past three years been the most prominent farm on the Twin Falls tract. It is situated with a townsite, it is easy of access and may a waveling farmer in search of land has rushed in and made his home—attending to the best of his fields and stock.

Each purchaser will have a chance in the drawing for a choice tract which will be given away on March 25. The success of the Twin Falls project, the small acreage tract has been constantly preached, but somehow the doctrine was slow in taking hold.

Everybody is talking of Orchalara and the opening which will take place on Wednesday, March 25th. Herman Mar is making the survey of the subdivision which is sufficient guarantee that no purchaser will have trouble over his lines.

One significant feature in connection with the promotion of the Orchalara subdivision was the influence of that beautiful structure, which will be completed in time for the opening of the fall term, and which will stand within a stone's throw of Orchalara, had a potent effect. When it was considered that the children of business living in the Orchalara subdivision, but outside the city limits, would be taken to and from school in comfortable wagons; the school question was settled.

There were other elements, such as the availability of the sewer system which cuts right through the Orchalara subdivision; the proximity of light and power; the live city of Twin Falls; the Shoshone falls, Twin falls and Blue lakes, three of the greatest scenic wonders in the west; prospective trout fishing and other amusements not within reach elsewhere.

Dr. Smith, Skilled Veterinarian, Coming from Nunda, Illinois. Dr. Jas. M. Smith loaded a car with household goods this week, and Wednesday night left for Twin Falls, Idaho, where he will engage in practicing as a veterinary surgeon.

Only $2,500 More Needed to Insure its Construction. An enthusiastic meeting of those interested in the building of a grade bridge across the creek on the bridge line between townships nine and 10, was held last evening.

It was found that the sum of $2,500 had been subscribed for the bridge, as provided by the county would bring the total amount now available up to $10,000. The estimated cost of the bridge is $12,500.

NOTHING EQUAL TO IT ON EARTH

TWIN FALLS PROJECT GREATEST IN THE WORLD.

Plans Now Under Way for the Reclamation of an Additional Million Acres Between the Salmon and the Bruneau Rivers.

If the plans now in contemplation are matured, the Twin Falls canal system will shortly be enlarged sufficiently to permit of the reclamation of an additional million acres of land west of the Salmon river and south of the Snake river. This will be accomplished by the enlargement of the main and high line canals and the construction of immense reservoirs at the head waters of the Snake river.

Millions of dollars will be required to construct the works but at the present time it is not a question of finance but expediency. Should the plans be consummated it would make the Twin Falls project the largest of its kind in the world and the lower Snake river valley the most densely populated and richest agricultural and horticultural section on earth.

In brief, the plan is to carry the high line canal across the Salmon river and on to the Bruneau. To cover the area of good land susceptible of irrigation between the Bruneau and the Salmon it is necessary to make the high line canal not less than 200 feet wide on the bottom and to enlarge the main canal proportionately. This the company has the right to do under its contract with the state and the work can easily be performed without interfering with irrigation operations.

Reservoir Sites. The possibilities in the way of storage at the head waters of the Snake river are ample for the impounding of sufficient water for the irrigation of not less than 900 million acres in addition to the area now under the North and South Silt systems. The upper drainage of the Snake is high and well timbered. Its higher elevations run to an extreme of 15,000 feet above sea level, with an immense area of territory ranging between 8,000 and 10,000 feet. This forms one of the most notable snow regions in the northwest.

cal construction. Already the government reclamation service and the Twin Falls North Silt Land & Water Co. are preparing to take advantage of this outlet where they expect to store approximately one million acre feet for release when the spring flood begins to abate.

Snake River Drainage. On the north fork of the Snake river similar conditions exist and while the drainage area of this branch of the stream is not as extensive as that of the South fork, it will nevertheless afford an important tributary reservoir, with natural reservoir sites. The annual run-off of the Snake river, according to high authority on the subject, is 4,000,000 acre feet at the Milner dam which, if properly conserved, is more than sufficient to cover the big projects now under way and leave a comfortable margin to spare.

An idea of the Snake river drainage may be obtained from the following extracts from data compiled by the geological survey:

Streams. The Snake river plains lie entirely within the hydrographic basin of the Snake river, or the Lewis and Clark, the Columbia and it is sometimes termed. It is much to be desired that this great stream might be named Lewis river, in honor of one of the two bold explorers who secured the far northwest for the United States.

The Snake or Lewis river has its headwaters in Wyoming, near the Yellowstone national park, and drains all of southern and central Idaho. It flows across the southern part of the state in a great curve, concave to the north, to the Idaho-Oregon boundary, where it turns abruptly northward. Its mean discharge, as determined by the hydrographic division of the United States geological survey at Montgomery Ferry, midway between American falls and Shoshone falls, is 19,054 cubic feet per second, the maximum being in May and June when it reaches about 26,000 cubic feet per second, and the minimum, in August, September, or October, being which month its name is approximately 4400 cubic feet per second.

In southeastern Idaho many streams join the Snake on the east. Of these the South Fork and Blackfoot river are the most important. Several perennial tributaries come to the main river from the south, such as the Portneut, Salmon and Bruneau rivers, besides a number of creeks which flow only during the winter or in May and June, when the snow on the mountains is melting. All of the tributaries from the south are small in volume, particularly in summer. The Bruneau would be an important exception to this rule, as it is supplied mainly by springs, if its waters were not so largely used for irrigation.

between Henry's fork, on the extreme northeast, and the mouth of Boise river, at the Idaho-Oregon boundary, a distance measured along the general course of the river of about 250 miles. It does not receive single perennial tributary from the mountains to the north of the bordering plains. A possible exception to this statement is the Snake river, which would perhaps reach the Snake in summer if its waters were not used for irrigation. The fact that Snake river does not receive a perennial tributary from the north throughout the portion of its course just indicated is the more remarkable when it is remembered that this part of its basin is largely occupied by lofty mountains, on which the mean annual precipitation is probably greater than on the less extensive and lower mountains, in which the streams coming from the south, such as the Portneuf, Salmon and Bruneau, have their sources. The principal reason for the absence of surface tributaries to the Snake on the north is that the lava plains between the mountain and the mountains and all of the water which flows down to the plains or falls on their surfaces is either evaporated or lost in the cellular and cavernous structure of the lava.

Some of the streams flowing southward from the mountains of central Idaho, and the Snake, and Little Lost and Big Lost rivers, form temporary basins on the lava, such as the Snake, the water is removed by evaporation, or descends into fissures in the underlying rocks and joins the underflow. To a large extent, however, the disappearance of the water which flows down to the surface, particularly on the northern border of the Snake river plains, to a large extent emerges again in the canyon of Snake river as springs.

Springs.
 One of the remarkable features of Snake river canyon is the abundance of large springs which pour out from its northern border, especially the northern portion of its course between Shoshone falls and Diles. The aggregate volume of these springs is many thousands of cubic feet per second, and flows steadily without observed fluctuations in volume throughout the year. During August and September, when the Snake is low, their combined volume is not greater than that of the river itself where it passes over Shoshone falls. Perhaps the finest known exhibition of cascades formed by springs of large volume issuing from rocks far up the faces of nearly vertical precipices is furnished at what is known as the Thousand Springs, situated on the northern side of Snake river canyon, near the town of Jagerman, between Salmon falls and the point where the Salmon river enters from the south. Most of the water descends over the face of a vertical wall of clay and lapilli from the cut edge of a layer of cellular scoriaeous basalt, which has an elevation of about 150 feet above the level of the precipice. The water does not make the descent in a single leap, but makes cascades of remarkable beauty and novelty and is channeled into foam by its contact with the rocks. The volume of water has never been accurately measured, but within a space about half a mile in length at the Thousand Springs proper is estimated by Mr. A. Ferguson, a hydraulic engineer familiar with the locality, at 20,000 miner's inches (or approximately 500 cubic feet) per second.

West of the Thousand Springs the water-bearing layers which furnish water at this place are inclined and pass below the level of the river, but another similar but higher layer appears which contributes to Diles, a distance of about 18 miles. Through out the length of its outcrop in the canyon wall copious springs are abundant. At many other localities between the Thousand Springs and Shoshone falls there are water-bearing layers in the canyon wall and large springs pour out. The greatest of these fountains are situated at the heads of lateral alcoves or small side canyons opening into Snake river canyon, such as Little and Box canyons, on the north side of the river just above the mouth of the Salmon river, and Blue Lakes alcove, about six miles below Shoshone falls. As will be explained later, the remarkable side alcoves, or short "blind" canyons opening into the main canyon, owe their existence to the great springs feeding the streams which flow from them. Another similar "spring alcove" but at first showing so clearly the result of springs underlain the cliffs, is furnished by the lower portion of the canyon of Malheur river.

The water of the springs between Shoshone falls and Diles has an essentially uniform temperature of about 60 degrees F. throughout the year. The water is clear, but of a milky appearance, due to its suspension. Several of these spring-fed streams are inhabited by trout. It is indeed a surprise to find beautiful trout streams in the central part of a dry, arid plain.

The temperature of the water pouring out of the walls of Snake river canyon shows that it is not derived from deep fissures, and, in fact, has not made a deep descent into the earth. The water no doubt comes from the mountains lying north of the Snake river plains, and is supplied mainly by the subterranean flow of "lost rivers."

Besides the springs in the canyons already referred to, there are few fissure springs on the Snake river plains, usually near the bordering mountains, which have a high temperature, but their combined volume make but slight addition to the surface runoff. Possibly hot springs exist beneath the lava sheets flooring the plains and influence the temperature of the canyon springs, but there is no direct evidence of such a nature. The temperature of the canyon springs shows some variation which can not be due to the depth of the sheets of rock from which they emerge to issue.

The springs along Snake river and at a few localities near the mountains bordering the Snake river plains have been utilized for irrigation.

Water Power.
 The amount of water power available along Snake river in its passage across southern Idaho is practically unlimited, but as yet is not utilized. The most important falls and their height are as follows: Idaho falls, 30 feet; American falls, 50 feet; Twin falls, 180 feet; Shoshone falls, 210 feet; Salmon falls, about 25 feet. Besides these there are many localities where "vertical leaps are made in many cases from 20 to 50 feet, all suggesting, in addition to the natural grandeur and sublimity of the surroundings, the wonderful possibilities through their utilization in the industrial development of the state."

Besting Snake river itself, the great volume of water at the mouth of Malheur river could be easily and cheaply utilized as source of power. The future greatness of the state depends largely on the proper use of this source of this branch of her great resources.

Official Paper of Twin Falls County, George D. Fraser, Editor.

Published every Friday by THE NEWS PUBLISHING COMPANY, TWIN FALLS, IDAHO.

Reliable information regarding the city and country generally is cheerfully furnished. Address all communications to The News Publishing Company, Twin Falls, Idaho.

The fellow who tries to attract business without advertising is like the fellow who throws his sweet heart a silent kiss in the dark. He knows what he is doing but nobody else does. -William Vanhook Review.

After reading the report of the senate committee on public lands up on the resolution calling for an additional 2,000,000 acres of Carey act for Idaho—the reader might be excused for suspecting that there was a Twin Falls booster on the committee, for all of which we are very grateful.

The American Falls Canal & Power Co. is advertising for contracts on 20 miles of its canal system and is also in need of teams at $4.50 per day, with board at $5 per week. This would indicate sound conditions of affairs up the Snake river valley. It is to be hoped that the company will succeed in obtaining the labor it desires. Its main canal is 65 miles in length, of which 55 miles have been completed. The toll is the same as that on the Twin Falls tract and the water supply is obtained from the parent stream of Idaho, the mighty Snake river.

The Capital News desires at all times to be fair and just to everyone, and does not intend that anything untrue or capable of a misconstruction shall be published in its columns to the injury of any person, or to the discredit of any office, or to the prejudice of any public affairs. The supreme court has placed a construction upon that word which might be construed to mean the charging of Governor Gooding with dishonesty, or the making of private gain by reason of his office, a construction not intended by this paper or those responsible for it, and it is no more than right that such a statement should be made, which is fully and gladly done. -Boise Capital News.

This is a very lame apology, coming at a very late date. The fact that it was forced by the courts does not add to its sincerity. The Capital News should get a new dictionary or else stop using words the meaning of which it does not know. However, the friends of Governor Gooding may derive satisfaction from the fact that the Capital News is at last forced to admit that the governor is an honest man, a fact that no fartraveled citizen could ever doubt.

Simultaneously with Harry Orchard's plea of guilty to murder in the first degree comes the statement of John F. Nugent, counsel for the Western Federation of Miners, that he used Federation money to defeat Governor Gooding and Judge Smith. These facts do not dovetail with the statements of the Federation supporters made two years ago. What can be said of the attorney who so far forgets his duty as a citizen as to descend to such practices? It may be a feather in Nugent's cap to have secured the acquittal of Harry Wood and Pettibone. It may add to his reputation as an attorney, but those who believe in the higher forms of civilization, in law, order, decency and the protection of life and property, for all of which a lawyer is supposed to stand, will lean to Governor Gooding and those who aided him in bringing the murderer of Frank Steenbergen to justice. Orchard is a pitiful specimen of humanity, a social canker, but he is no worse than those who for years have followed his practices and encouraged them.

Doubtless the readers of the Twin Falls and Buhl newspapers were surprised to receive from the Boise and Salt Lake press their first intimation of the proposed extension of the canal system to cover an additional million acres. The impression might obtain that the home editors were asleep and did not know what was going on at their own doors. The fact of the matter is that the editors of the Twin Falls and Buhl papers agreed to suppress the story in order to save the promoters from the possible embarrassment which publicity at this time might entail. These editors, who are always willing to do all in their power for the advancement of this or any other Twin Falls enterprise kept their word. The promoters apparently "leaked" as soon as they reached Boise as they have done many a time before. The Twin Falls enterprise owes much to the home press, more than it can ever repay. In these piping times people may be able to afford to be independent, but there may come a time when common courtesy and neighborly decency will be regarded in a better light. So far as the News is concerned, it does not want any more "in confidence" stories. Its mission is to print the news and print it before it is stale. The News has always done this excepting when it has been imposed upon, which has happened just once too often. Newspapers are something more than extensions for pulling chestnuts out of the fire.

The following editorial from the current issue of Collier's Weekly should appeal strongly to the Twin Falls farmers, who appreciate the benefits arising from the forest system, without which they would have been deprived of the free use of such timber as they need, when the government preserved for them in the Casita national forest:

Mighty schemes for saving the country by legislation, for curtailing harshly by statute, come and blaze, and pass away. Utopias have been so often enacted by legislatures assembled! But occasionally there is some action and something good is accomplished by the law. As examples there are now before congress the Appalachian Reforestation bill and the Crane and other grab bills, touching a subject which is charged with mist of prejudice and doubt. Every one who believes that forest reserves interior with development should protect, free, from the ravages of the department of agriculture a little booklet called "The Use of the National Forests." There may be learned that by reserves resources are not locked up, industry checked, and the mineral lands may be included are open for settlement, prospecting and mining so on exactly as before; grazing is allowed; water is used; timber is given to the settler, and sold for a fair and equal price to those seeking it for commercial use. In such sales the little dealer is given an even chance, and thus the big corporation that back such measures as Senator Crane has introduced. In 1906, 75,000 board feet were given away and 700,000 board feet were sold, nine-tenths of the sales being for amounts of less than $500. About 1,500,000 cattle and horses and 6,000,000 sheep are grazing on these lands, and here again to the small man with a home is always given the first opportunity. Stores, hotels, residences, power plants, mills, sawmills, canals, telephone and power lines are built on this land. The only function of the government in these reserves is to protect the individual against his big antagonist, and to see that our resources are not used with reckless waste. What has Senator Crane to say?

Notice for Publication—Final Proof, I. Marshall Cassel, of Twin Falls who made entry No. 1063, under the provisions of an act of the legislature of the state of Idaho, commonly known as the "Carey act", approved March 2d, 1899, which embraces E½ of NE¼ and N½ of SE¼ of section 34, township 10 S., range 16 E., B. M., do hereby give notice of my intention to make final proof to establish my claim to the land above described, and that I expect to prove that I have resided on, reclaimed and cultivated said land as required by law, before the U. S. District Court at Twin Falls on the 15th of April, 1908, by two of the following witnesses: J. M. Hays, M. A. Thiboutet and W. R. McGill, all of Twin Falls, Idaho. MARSHALL CASSEL, Entryman.

The home of W. F. Rimenschneider on Fairview avenue was completely destroyed by fire early Tuesday forenoon. All the household goods were a total loss. Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Allen arrived unexpectedly from the coast this week, greatly to the delight of their friends. Both are in excellent health and report having enjoyed a pleasant winter. They are guests at the Hotel Parker. Mr. and Mrs. Allen are elated over the improvement in Twin Falls and its surroundings.
E. B. Williams, local representative of the state land board, has received 317 patents for lands located in all parts of the Twin Falls tract. They are very desirous that the management has secured plans showing the Madrid fire department in action. As the Dons are supposed to have the plans, they intend the pictures should be entertaining.
It is evident that the Buhl Bachelors club is on the rocks and is fast breaking up. Unless some one can throw them a life line, the members will all soon perish in the matrimonial sea. The latest to sink beneath the waves, after being desperately to the rock of single blessedness for many hard years, was Ed Little who is now honeymooning with the charming young lady who was Miss John A. Souver. Out of sympathy for the lamented feelings of Mr. Little's fellow members, details will be omitted. The sailing of the matrimonial ship is expected any day. To Mr. and Mrs. Little are extended the sincere good wishes of the many who are glad to count them as friends.
Alex McPherson of the Irrigated Lands Co. made a record breaking clean-up on the Ashton addition which he is now marketing. The addition comprises 40 acres, cornering on the northwest corner of Shoshone avenue and facing Blue Lakes avenue and Ashton avenue. It is all well watered. The acre tracts facing on Blue Lakes avenue were all sold up before noon, the purchasers being C. H. Mull, J. G. Fisher, R. B. Foran, E. L. Ash, J. A. Warner, George Lacey and Hill & Taylor. Several other tracts in the addition have been sold. It will be observed that the purchasers there are all well known citizens of Twin Falls who, it may safely be assumed, know what they are buying. The addition is expected to attract and has produced a better class of buyers than any other in Twin Falls who, it may safely be assumed, know what they are buying. H. H. Jacobs one of the plowmen and the first county commissioner for the Twin Falls tract, has returned from Emmetsburg, Iowa. Twenty three hundred and fifty dollars in premiums on the record made at raising money at the Presbyterian church last Sunday morning after the sermon. Several short addresses were made by members of the board of trustees after which it was voted to start the subscription list at once with the result above stated. Work will commence at once on the new building which is to cost in the neighborhood of $2000 and it is expected that the church will be ready for occupancy within the next few months.
The trustees of the Methodist church met on Monday evening to consider the proposition of erecting a new church building. The present one built for a long time has become small to accommodate the large number who are desirous of attending the Methodist church. As a result of the meeting Monday night it was voted to purchase the three lots at the corner of Shoshone and 5th avenue for a location and Rev. Parker was appointed a committee to arrange for plans, etc. and to submit the same at a meeting to be held in the near future.
The Springs club met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mr. W. E. Nixon. The club voted to give a prize to the boy or girl who could show the nicest looking yard about their homes by the end of the school year. Mrs. C. C. Cletcher and Mrs. Packard were appointed a committee to attend to the matter. It was also voted to present each room in the ticket school with portraits of Washington and Lincoln as fast as the finances of the club would warrant. Mrs. Aiken was in charge of the sculpture part of the program. Mrs. Morrell gave a paper on the paper on hand, assisted by Mrs. Seaver. The meeting adjourned to meet next week with Mrs. Nixon.

ONLY NEEDED TO BE SHOWN

Filler Building Changed From a Coward to a Town Terror.

A citizen of Filer was recently presented with a little white bulldog, less than a year old. The pup seemed to be cowed and it was bowled over and bullied by every dog that came to town. The other day a large looking bulldog came along and took a fall out of the pup. The little fellow lay on his back and whined pitifully while it was savaged by the larger dog. Seeing the display, the owner of the pup expressed the wish that somebody would steal it as it seemed to be yellow all the way through. A bystander, who had witnessed the incident, ventured the opinion that the pup could win the old dog if he was properly coached, whereupon those who had watched the pup's behavior scoffed. Taking the pup in his arms, the man who made the assertion brought the little fellow face to face with the bulldog and urged him to attack the pup. The pup took a few steps toward the bulldog and the latter, who had been watching the pup, stepped to a flash. When the big dog fled from the field, the pup straightened out his tail and proceeded to get satisfaction out of every dog in town, which he did. The pup is not for sale now.

A Literary Treat.

The citizens of Twin Falls accomplished a rare literary feat in the "Evening with James Whitcomb Riley," which was given in the auditorium on April 4th, under the auspices of Messrs. Miller & Warberg. Judge D. Fenner of Boise, Judge Fletcher and the Rev. Mr. Jones, of the United States and the press of the city, were present. The simplicity and naturalness of Riley's diction, his quaint and quaintly naive, his simple and direct, and above all, his wit and humor, were the chief features of his poetry. It may be said of Judge Fenner's style about "em" but they touch the heart, bring back memories of childhood days, the days of "The Old Swamin' Hole," and "When the Front is Back," days when barfoot we waded up and down the line and "Out to the Lake" were the order of the day. The announcement will be made in our next issue. The judge will be awarded the local musical and literary prize.

NEVER FORGETS TWIN FALLS

Pete Holohan is a Very Consistent Booster.

Twin Falls is blessed with a good many boosters, but none more consistent or tireless than Pete Holohan. Every day or two a man drifts into the News office with the information that he met Pete Holohan in Boise, or Butte, or Spokane, or on some train, and that Pete advised him to come and take a look at Twin Falls. It naturally follows that in every instance the stranger is glad he followed Pete's advice.

Mr. Holohan tours the northwest four times a year in the interest of the Dupont Powder company and the Hunter Arms company and he never forgets where his home is located. Morning, noon and night, indoors and out of doors, he boosts for Twin Falls and he invariably interests the "live ones."

Such boosting as that done by Mr. Holohan counts. He showed his faith in Twin Falls by investing heavily in farm lands and city property. His home, which faces the park, and the handsome cement block on Nutt street, of which he is half owner with Sweet & Gant, give further evidence of his confidence in the city and the future of Twin Falls.

The Holohan recruits have been showing pretty regularly and pretty strong of late and their presence shows that "Uncle Peter" has a good one of his eloquence or persuasive power.

HAS SUPPORT OF THE PRESIDENT

GOOD PROSPECTS FOR PASSAGE OF SPEED BILL.

Which Will Benefit Livestock Industry—Congressman French Endeavoring to Secure Lieu Land's for Benefit of Idaho Schools.

A bill has just been introduced in the House of Representatives by Representative French, and in the Senate by Senator Heyburn, which is of great interest to the shippers of livestock in every section of the country. The bill has the very warm approval of President Roosevelt and provides that it shall be the duty of every railroad engaged in interstate commerce to transport livestock to maintain on all trains carrying livestock an average speed of not less than 16 miles an hour from time the livestock is loaded up on the cars until the train reaches its destination, deducting only such reasonable time as the stock may be necessarily delayed in unloading for the purpose of feeding or watering. The bill imposes a penalty of not less than $100 and not more than $500 for each violation of the act. The railroads are very bitterly opposed to the proposition as at present they are permitted to run trains carrying livestock as they please, with no regard to the shrinkage in the weight of the stock from time the livestock is loaded up on the cars until the train reaches its destination. The shrinkage in weight is estimated to amount to $150,000 each year to cattle shipped from Idaho alone. Associations for the prevention of cruelty to animals are taking the matter up and rendering much assistance in the effort to secure the passage of the bill. Hearings have recently been held upon the bill. Hon. Frank Good, of Shoshone, Idaho, president of the National Wool Growers' association, Hon. T. C. Johnson, of Blackfoot, and Hon. L. Ormsby, of Boise, prominent sheepmen, have appeared before the committee which has the bill under consideration. The friends of the measure are very hopeful of its early passage.

For Idaho Schools.

A bill of great importance to the public school system of the various states of the west has just been introduced in the House of Representatives by Congressman French, of Idaho. Mr. French's bill provides that in lieu of sections 16 and 36 of the public domain which have been granted for educational purposes, and which may be included within forest reserves, the states may be authorized to make selections in block in forest reserves. The state of Idaho has something like 1,000,000 acres of public land within forest reserves. Under the terms of the grant from the general government these lands cannot be sold for less than $10 per acre. At present this million acres of land is of practically no value to the state, and it is Mr. French's idea that the state should select 100,000 acres of land in the place of the sections 16 and 36, which are of course scattered around in such a way as to be of little if any practical value to the public schools at this time. Were the lands selected in large bodies the state could either sell or be better able to handle and supervise them.

Mr. French also believes that it would be much better for the state to dispose of the school lands at their money value and lend the enormous amount which they would bring. The interest on this amount would be of much more value to the public schools than the lands are at the present time.

Miss S. Belle Chamberlain, superintendent of Public Instruction of the state of Idaho, was in Washington last week attending the meeting of the National Educational association. The association is composed of leading educators and teachers from every section of the United States and is of the highest importance to educational work in general. Miss Chamberlain took a very important part in the work of the association, and was elected upon one of the prominent delegates in attendance at the meetings.

Senator Heyburn's bill providing for leave of absence from irrigation projects, upon which the water is not yet available for use, has passed the senate and is now pending in the house. The explanation service is opposed to the passage of this bill. Congressman French is working very hard to secure its passage, and is very hopeful that he will be able to have the bill passed, with slight modifications, within a short time.

ARBOR DAY.

I have set aside April 17 to be known as Arbor day in Twin Falls county.

No pupil shall be permitted to enter the eighth grade at high school in the state of Idaho who has not passed the eighth grade examination satisfactorily and obtained "B" or "B" diploma. banks, or at least the district is getting no benefit out of it, and we are preparing to rent for school buildings. This does not look like business or economy to a man up a tree. If there is any good reason why the schoolhouse cannot be built now, place the money at interest, so that it will be making something instead of being useless, to the people. It is not just the donor that we are handling matters in such a way.

BASEBALL GROUNDS SECURED

Blocks 122 and 126 Purchased and Now Being Leveled.

The Twin Falls Baseball association has been organized with the following officers: President, C. Thomas, vice president, W. E. Burton, secretary and treasurer, Cole Wilson. These officers, with Don Bryan and Dr. Giffen, will form the board of directors. The capital stock of the association is $2000, divided into 800 shares, of the value of $10 each. These shares are now being offered to the public.

The association has purchased for $200, blocks 122 and 126, which, by closing up streets and alleys, afford commodious and well located grounds. The grounds are now being leveled and the work of fencing them and erecting a grand stand will be hastened.

As a straight investment in city property the shares are worth more than is being asked for them and when the purpose for which they are being sold is considered, citizens should not hesitate to take them. Athletic grounds are sorely needed and no better location could have been selected. When the time comes to make a change, the grounds can be re-divided into lots and sold for much more than the cost of the blocks and the improvements.

Approximately $1000 worth of shares have been disposed of and fully $2500 more will have to be sold before the first payment on the property is fully met and the grounds are fitted up. It is up to everybody to help the boys in their praiseworthy efforts.

MORE CAREY ACT LAND FOR IDAHO

ADDITIONAL TWO MILLION ACRES ARE GRANTED.

Senator Heyburn and Congressmen French Secure Favorable Action in Both Branches of Congress—Praise for Twin Falls.

Thanks to the efforts of Idaho's congressional delegation and the prompt action of Governor Goodkin, the state has secured an additional two millions of acres of Carey act lands. The first application for an increase which was made simultaneously by Senator Heyburn and Congressman French, called for one million acres. It was supposed at that time that this acreage would suffice but before action could be had, the Twin Falls Land & Water Co. applied to the state land board for an area west of the Salmon river which will encompass fully 800,000 acres and possibly more.

On receipt of this application Governor Goodkin immediately wired Senator Heyburn as follows:

"Representatives of Messrs. Buhl, Kimberly, and Miller, promoters of irrigation under the Carey act in Idaho, as you know, promoters of the South Side Twin Falls project, were in Boise today asking for the appropriation of Carey lands in Goshute county to the extent of 800,000 acres. If it is not too late to amend your bill, so as to give the state 2,000,000 acres more of Carey act land, it should be done. This will mean an expenditure of more than $20,000,000 to cover this project. These people are financially able to carry on construction of this work necessary to reclaim this tract of land. It now looks with this project in sight that much more than 1,000,000 acres you asked for will be necessary in the development of the state this year. I feel that government should be glad to assist the state in this great work.

(Signed) F. R. GOODKIN, Gov.

Senator Heyburn, who has never overlooked an opportunity to favor Twin Falls, at once introduced the joint resolution introduced by him, which was then in the hands of the senate committee on Public Lands, increasing the allotment from one million to two million acres. In support of the resolution, the senator made a strong argument in which he showed how an empire was being built up in Twin Falls and Lincoln counties through the operation of the Carey act. He pressed matters with the committee and obtained a favorable report which has since passed the senate. The report read:

"The committee of public lands, to whom was referred senate joint resolution (S. R. 61) providing for additional lands for Idaho under the provisions of the Carey act, have carefully considered the same and recommended its passage.

"It appears that within the state of Idaho the application of what is known as the Carey act has received the most practical test. The first lands set aside under this act within the state of Idaho was a tract of 220,000 acres, known as the Twin Falls tract, of which practically all has been disposed of and now under cultivation and settlement. The price of water on this tract was fixed by the state land board at $25 per acre.

"What is known as the Alberta tract, consisting of 110,000 acres, has all been disposed of except less than 25,000 acres. The price of water on this tract was $35 per acre. In addition to these tracts, there have been set aside under the Carey act in Idaho 14 other tracts, all in the process of development and settlement. There have been disposed of more than 525,000 acres. The price of the water has ranged between $15 and $40 per acre.

"On January 15, 1908, there had been segregated for the government for Idaho under this act 685,556.28 acres. Petitions were then pending by the state in the department for further segregations, which had been approved by the state of 231,194 acres, making an aggregate of 916,752 acres which had been applied for by the state and approved by the government, leaving only a balance of $2,248 of the 1,000,000 acres allowed to the state under the Carey act. On January 15, 1908, there were under consideration and pending applications for an aggregate of 600,000 additional acres to be taken under this act.

"The size of the applications for the additional segregation were in excess by over 600,000 acres of the remaining remaining of the 1,000,000 acres allowed under the original Carey act already applied for and approved. It thus appears to your committee that it was proper that there should be made available to the state of Idaho for development under the Carey act at least an additional 2,000,000 acres of land. Idaho has vast great bodies of unoccupied and irrigable lands through which her vast water supplies flow. Her enormous bodies of water available for purposes of irrigation make it apparent to your committee that Idaho's water resources are perhaps greater than those of any other state in the union, and the streams and lakes are so situated in point of elevation as to make it possible to flow water by canals or pipes upon almost every acre of arid or semi-arid land in the state, and it is only a question of expenditure of money and energy necessary to bring the supply of water upon the land in order to convert this arid or semi-arid land into the most fertile and productive homes upon lands that will produce every variety of crop incident to any part of our

How to Pay for Your Farm Out of the First Year's Crop.

PLANT "DICK-LOWE" WHEAT

The "Dick Lowe" wheat came from Siberia. Mr. Lowe received a very small quantity, planted in his field, and from that source got the seed started. Our entire crop, raised on our ranch north of Filer was all of the "Dick Lowe" variety, clean, and free from all objectionable weeds of any kind. Where planted on the new ground it averaged fifty bushels to the acre. Mr. Graf, our near neighbor there, got his seed from us the year previous. We both sold our entire crop raised for the season of 1907 to the Milner-Perrine Lumber company of Buhl, Ida., expressly for seed at an advance price. We heartily recommend this wheat to all farmers as being superior to any other wheat known for fall or spring planting.

Hyde, Kelsey & Vano, Springville, Utah.

Springville, Utah, Sept. 20, 1907. To Whom It May Concern:

We, the undersigned farmers of Springville, Utah, have for a number of years planted the "Dick Lowe" wheat in the month of September, beginning about the 15th and continuing until the last of the month, as a fall wheat. We averaged from sixty to seventy-five bushels per acre, and properly cared for. We would recommend in case of dry season that the land be watered before plowing to insure sufficient moisture to start the crop up. We heartily recommend this wheat to all farmers as the best all around wheat known.

C. E. Allan, Silas Hutchings, Silas Hutchings.

Springville, Utah, Sept. 21, 1907. To Whom It May Concern:

I, Joseph Vano, a farmer of Springville, Utah county, Utah, furnished to Hyde & Kelsey in February, 1907, sixty bushels of the "Dick Lowe" wheat, which they planted on their farm near Filer in April and May the same year and from which seed the Twin Falls Experiment Farm received its seed. I have used this wheat on my farm for a number of years, sowed in the spring receiving the following results: A general average of seventy-eight bushels per acre in 1904, eighty-one and one-half bushels per acre, machine measure, the same over-running six pounds per bushel in actual weight.

I heartily recommend this wheat to all farmers as the best yielder I ever seed, and will mature with less water than any other irrigated wheat.

Yours truly,
Joseph Vano.

Spanish Fork, Utah, Sept. 19, 1907. As manager of the Gem Roller Mills of Spanish Fork I desire to certify that the "Dick Lowe" wheat which is raised in the Twin Falls district is in general favor with the farmers, a wheat that yields exceptionally well to the acre, and for milling purposes is in par excellence. The quality of the flour from the "Dick Lowe" wheat is first class, producing a very soft flour and white as snow. I take great pleasure in recommending the "Dick Lowe" wheat both to farmers and millers.

James L. Halos, Manager, Gem Roller Mills.

Springville, Utah, Sept. 17, 1907. "Dick Lowe" wheat. It is a good idea to the acre to plant wheat which it cannot be duplicated, as it yields more flour per bushel than other wheat. The quality of the flour from the "Dick Lowe" wheat is first class, as it is a strong flour and white; therefore I take pleasure recommending the same.

Springville Flouring Mills, Inc.
For John S. Smith, Mgr. of the Milner-Perrine Lumber Co. of Buhl, Ida., still have a limited amount of the pure "Dick Lowe" seed sent on hand to dispose of, which has been carefully cleaned by hand in a fan-mill, and is in its best condition.

MORE CAREY ACT LAND

country and that is also adapted to the raising of a great variety of fruits and berries.

"As an instance of the beneficent results to be derived from the Carey act upon lands such as those in Idaho, we have but to point to the results upon the Twin Falls lands. Two years ago the entire tract was unwatered and unclaimed. Had it lain close to the line of travel up to that time it would have remained unwatered and unclaimed, because of the fact that there was no reliable supply of water upon it. The energy and capital of Idaho men, associated with others of the east, conceived the idea of utilizing the waters of the Snake river through the means of log canals so situated as to cover those lands. To execute the plan was a matter of its execution at the hands of these men, who proceeded at once to construct a canal more than 70 miles long, 120 feet in width at the top and 80 feet in width at the bottom, carrying a depth of water that would float an ordinary steamboat, from which main canal lateral canals have been constructed, until this tract of land, four years ago was desert is now covered with the most prosperous and beautiful homes and farms and orchards just approaching a condition of production. Three years ago upon most of the tract of land, which has been fenced and cleared, and comfortable and elegant homes have been erected. There is now an assessed valuation upon this tract of Carey land of over $3,000,000 for the year of 1907, and with a population of about 10,000 people.

"The proposition to 'make' more land available for this tract must commend itself as wise and in the interest of converting what has heretofore been recognized as only desert land into fertile and productive farms."

Congressman French was no less active and no less successful. He also obtained a favorable report from the house committee on public lands and secured speedy action in the house.

TROUBLES OF THE IMPRESARIOS

The Bel Canto That They Looked For Never Came.

The telephone ring in the News office and McCord's blink melted on Thursday afternoon when Charlie Colles and Boyd Fuller condescended to each other over the non-appearance of Miss Lillian Blawell, whose manager notified the local impresarios that the charming cantatrice had changed her route and would omit Idaho. So soon as the lamentable happening became known, the courtly young gentlemen under whose auspices the distinguished artist was to have appeared were besieged with inquiries. Carl Haber wanted to know what was to become of his act. The Milner delegation threatened to open the gates of the dam and wipe Twin Falls off the map while the Buhl contingent, monarchical in their opinions, Boyd and Charlie were utterly crushed. Boyd wept sizzling tears when he thought of the new suit he was to wear and Charlie settled the dust in his vicinity when his memory wandered to the beautiful shirt which he had imported specially from Troy, N. Y., for the occasion. Young men who had their suits pressed and their collars ironed in anticipation of an opportunity to make a swell showing, burned up their telephone wires with anxious inquiries. Others who had bought chairs for the best girls to be manched between numbers on Saturday night, insisted that the impresarios should make good the expense of Police Prothero was importuned to arrest everybody connected with the affair but he declined because of the prevalent good conduct and spotless reputation of the young men. But it was an awful disappointment just the same and nobody regrets it more than the boys.

JUDGE FLENNER IS COMING

To Expound James Whitcomb Riley in Twin Falls.

Judge J. D. Flenner of Boise, who occasionally resorts from his judicial labors by showing the beauties of James Whitcomb Riley's poems, has consented to pay Twin Falls a visit on April 4. Judge Flenner presides over the police court in Boise, but as the capital is a very orderly city, he finds time, once in a while, to do a little visiting. While private secretary to Senator Dulles in Washington, he gave readings of Riley's works in all the leading cities of the east. He has the rare faculty of being able to catch the exact spirit of Riley's sentiment and to give it the proper color and expression. Every audience before which he has appeared has shown the highest appreciation of his work.

Lake Cochrane, who is an authority on such matters, says of the judge: "Twin Falls never had a better attraction than Judge Flenner. I have had the pleasure of hearing his celebrated recitation of James Whitcomb Riley's poems and I tell you there are more thrills of pleasure to the square minute in the Judge's masterful rendition of Riley's simple verse than there were in any recitation we had in Boise this winter. Every fellow who has ever been a boy on the farm and every woman who knows anything about good, wholesome American life will feel the memory of the good old days around them when they are reminded of the time 'When the Frost is on the Pumpkin and the Corn is in the Shock,' 'The Old Swimming Hole,' and 'Up and Down the Brandwine,' and he says and I have since Flenner tell you of the times 'Before his Dancin' Days Were Over.' You will enjoy hearing him and you will go away with a better opinion of life and of your own citizenship."
