NORTH SIDE CANAL TO BE EXTENDED

WILL RECLAIM AN ADDITIONAL 40,000 ACRES.

Main canal will be carried across the Malad and the Little and Big Wood Rivers near Gooding to cover the Clover Valley.

The main canal of the Twin Falls North Side Land & Water company is to be extended across the Malad river and the Little and Big Wood rivers three miles west of Gooding and to the foot of King hill for the purpose of irrigating the lands on Clover creek and north of Bliss.

In building its canal system, the North Side company made provision for carrying much more water than is necessary to irrigate the lands in its two segregations, which amount to 180,000 acres. It provides drainage for all the water required to supply a second foot for every 30-acre tract and in addition it joined with the government in the construction of retaining works at the Malad river of the Snake river for the impounding of water to be released when the flow of the stream begins to decrease on the first of July.

PRACTICAL STUDY OF SHELTERBELTS

IS UNDERTAKEN BY GOVERNMENT EXPERTS.

Value of Windbreaks in Those Sections Where Winds Damage Fruits and Grains is to be Accurately Determined by Scientific Study.

Uncle Sam's tree planting and farm experts have just undertaken a practical and scientific study of the use and effect of timber-windbreaks and shelterbelts in the agricultural regions of 14 western states. This is the first study in this country that a study of the much discussed question has been undertaken over a wide region under one plan, for the purpose of collecting data for the benefit of the agriculturists who are developing the western plains. At present windbreaks are planted haphazard, one kind here, another there. If one kind is better than another, the government experts think that fact ought to be known, and it is believed that the study about to be undertaken will settle the question once for all. It will at least collect such facts never before brought together.

The work will be done by the United States forest service. In some states the agricultural experiment stations will cooperate in the studies, and in these cases the forest service will provide the necessary apparatus, and the other expenses will be shared half and half by the government and experiment stations. The investigations will be taken up in five states this year and extended to the other nine as rapidly as the investigations are completed. Four of the states in which the study will be made this year are Nebraska, Colorado, Oklahoma and Kansas. The fifth will be either Minnesota, North Dakota or Iowa. Ultimately the investigations will cover Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, Oklahoma, Colorado, Texas, New Mexico, Utah, California, Washington and Idaho.

The forest service proposes to find out just when and how much windbreaks increase the yield of crops. To carry out the plan, the forest service work will be necessary. Instruments will be used to measure heat and cold, moisture and dryness, both above and below the ground, to register the force of the wind near the windbreaks and some distance away, to measure light intensity, and take note of the effects of shade; to register frost at different distances from the trees, and to keep account of the effect of the windbreaks on the snow-which covers the ground to leeward in winter. Many other measurements and tests will be made, and elaborate data will be collected by experts who will have charge of the study.

Many disputed questions will thus be settled and the data gathered will be placed at the disposal of the farmers who desire it. Doubtless rows of trees between fields sometimes do more harm than good by casting shade and abstracting water from the soil. Trees may also increase the danger from frost, since the movement of the air lessens that danger. The forest service will study all sorts of conditions, including the relative value of windbreaks, consisting of a single row of trees, and shelterbelts, made up of a number of such rows. A windbreak is usually planted for protection alone, a shelterbelt for both protection and the growing of timber.

Corn will be the crop studied behind the windbreak this year. Trustworthy conclusions cannot be obtained by comparing results from different crops. Each crop makes its own demand upon the soil, so that what would destroy one might do little harm to another. Corn is a particularly good crop to experiment with because it is easily injured by hot dry winds, will not stand shading, and is very sensitive to frost.

The instruments and apparatus for each state will be read weekly by persons assigned to that duty by the agricultural experiment stations in the respective states. The whole work will be in charge of an expert for the forest service at Washington, who will be assisted this summer by three or four persons, also from the forest service, who will study general conditions in the states under investigation, in regard to the effects of windbreaks on crops. The work will continue until crops are gathered next fall, when the actual yield of sheltered fields will be measured, and results compared with nearby unsheltered fields. Some of the observations will continue through the winter. It is expected that the results will be published both by the forest service and by the experiment stations which co-operate in carrying out the work.

MUNCHHAUSEN IS NOT IN IT

Jake Fritz Has Him, Beat a City Block on Accomplishment. The Post Lariat of Jerome has put into verse the marvellous achievements of Jake Fritz. What the distinguished author of the following effort only touched the high spots in Jake's career, omitting many interesting details, he has preserved those incidents most interesting to Jake's friends in this part of the country. This is the terrible story:

The Lord made the world, but he left little bits To be finished up right by his friend, Jake Fritz.

The work was so new then, the crust was still warm, And Jake worked early and late to perform

The wonders you see on every hand, For that was 'ere grass had affected the land.

The garden of Eden Jake built in a day,

And 'twas no fault of his that Eve got gay.

Leading old Adam around by the nose And raising Cain for stylish clothes, Jake knew nothing about the fight Until Adam lost his Carer Act right. At that time Jake was as busy as sin Making a valley to run the Nile in.

It was cold as the deuce but he finished somehow.

Asked he could well remember just where it was now.

Of course things were rather primordial then

And most of the farmers were monkey men.

Though Noah and some of his friends had tried

To irrigate, they all had to let it slide

Until Adam lost his Carer Act right, method, you know,

And not like they do it in Idaho. Jake thought he'd help so he got quite

Of rivers and oceans tied up in a bag, But the wind blew so hard that while chasing his hat,

He stubbed his big toe on Mount Ararat.

He fell on his nose and his eyes filled with mud,

And the bag busted open and caused the big trouble.

He then built Veuvius and wanting to try'er

He stole a big tub of the devil's red fire.

The devil was angry and gave Jake the rest

Till he flew his kite for the golden west.

When he got this far he liked it so He decided to stay here in Idaho.

He said to himself: "Now Adam's gone wrong

And queried my Eden but 'twont be long

Till I have another one here and I'll bet

"'Twill be darn 'nest one ever built 'ere."

He dug the Snake river, working at night,

For during the day he had Indians to fight.

It happened while out shooting Indians one day

He didn't aim straight, I guess, any way.

He said, when he'd put all the Indians to rout,

He noticed he'd missed one and knocked a piece out

Of a good sized knoll on the Shoshone route.

In fact it's the one we now call Notched Butte.

He took all the dirt from the Snake river bed

With a long handled shovel, threw it over his head,

And thus he built the great Sawtooth range,

And several more of the smaller chains.

He spent 20 years of his life in all before he completed the Shoshone falls.

He then raised a thousand coyotes or so

And a million sage hens, just to show The farmers back east who didn't know.

Just what could be done in Idaho. He then made the climate and changed it around

So almost any nice kind could be ranging from early spring until late fall and winter without leaving the state.

R. H. TRAILL IS A GOOD BOOSTER

WRITES INTERESTING DESCRIPTION OF COUNTRY.

Praises its Many Natural Advantages, Its Wonderful Development, Scenic Beauty, Progressiveness and its Splendid Citizenship.

The following letter from R. H. Traill, Jerome, to the editor of the Austin, Ill., Vindicator, is self explanatory.

Twin Falls, Idaho, May 30, 1908.
W. O. Cline, Editor Vindicator, Austin, Ill.

My Dear Cline:—Having first telephoned this morning, thought I might employ it to advantage in telling you and the many good friends I left in Austin, a few things about this young Chicago city, and the country surrounding it.

We arrived here Tuesday, the 19th inst., found the town full of land-seekers and more constantly arriving in anticipation of the drawing for the Twin Falls, Idaho, as the Salmon river tract, a segregation of 80,000 acres, which takes place June 1st.

We considered ourselves fortunate in securing a place to stay at the commodious home becoming more limited every day, and at the present writing even the bars are crowded. Twin Falls is a thriving town of 5,000 inhabitants built upon a tract that four years ago was a desert waste covered with sagebrush, and inhabited solely by jack rabbits, coyotes, etc.

The town now contains many substantial buildings of stone, brick and cement blocks, has a hotel that would be a credit to a city of 100,000 inhabitants, several banks, many flourishing business houses, a first-class school building containing a high school, and another one under process of construction which will be ready for the fall term; cost of which will be $200,000; a city hospital, a system of sewers, an electric light plant, streets and houses all lighted, and in some cases the latter heated by electricity; a system of waterworks, in fact most everything that goes to make a modern, up-to-date city.

There are something over 100 houses now in process of construction, and there is no doubt in my mind that Twin Falls is destined to become within a few years the leading city in Idaho.

We left Twin Falls Wednesday morning, the 20th inst., for a trip over the water which is on the north side of the Snake river, and containing 150,000 acres, which was drawn upon October, 1907. The water will be turned on this tract April 1, 1909. Leaving here in a mountain wagon with Mrs. Traill, Dorothy and a driver (who, by the way, was a former resident of Austin, Mr. D. E. Manning, who is in the employ of the company), we drove about four miles southeast until we reached the canyon of the Snake river, the top of which is some 700 feet above the river bed. We drove down into the chasm by a winding road and soon came in sight of Shoshone falls, where the river takes a tumble of 210 feet, making a most beautiful and picturesque sight. I will not attempt to describe it, as it must be seen to be appreciated. Suffice it to say, that it is a far grander sight than the famous Niagara, whose beauty is seen by the sands of people yearly cross the ocean to view. By crossing the river by means of a ferry we ascended the other side of the canyon, a steep and precipitous road, and finally reached the top.

After driving some 20 miles through the desert, covered with sagebrush we reached Jerome, one of the town-sites on the North Side tract, and where the land-office is located.

After taking care of the horses and securing some refreshments for ourselves we proceeded to the land office to see what had remained un-taken. We secured a list and started for Wendell, a town on the tract 12 miles distant, arriving there in time for supper. We called on a piece of some land on the way. Here we are fortunate in securing good quarters and meet very congenial people, with whom we pass a very pleasant evening.

The next morning we started out afresh on our land quest and for the first five miles drove right through the sagebrush without any road, but finally reached a road and drove until we arrived at the top of the canyon of the Snake river, and looked down into a beautiful valley known as the Thousand Springs, so called because about halfway down the wall of the canyon numerous streams burst forth and tumble over the rocks on their way to the valley beneath, where all is green and many trees are growing in striking contrast to the desert above. We stopped here long enough for refreshments for man and beast and then proceeded again on our search for land. We finally found a tract that Mrs. Traill immediately selected, and we started on our return to Wendell, arriving there at 7 p. m.

After spending another very pleasant evening we started for Jerome and proceeded to the land office and filed upon our land, thereby becoming part owners in the North Side tract.

The next morning we started for Twin Falls, first securing a pass allowing us to cross the river at the famous Blue Lakes ranch by private ferry. We arrived at the top of the canyon after a delightful ride from Jerome, and after winding down the side of the gorge on a road cut out of the rock, and if you happen to go over, the first stop would be 500 feet or more.

We arrived at the Blue Lakes ranch. I shall attempt to give you a description of this ranch, although he can do it justice!

This place is something so unique that I doubt if there is anywhere in the world anything like it, and it might rank as the eighth wonder.

Nestling under the wall of the canyon, 160 feet above the river, are two sparkling lakes called Blue Lakes, for the reason that as you look down upon them from above they are of a beautiful blue color, and the water so clear that although it is 40 feet deep, the bottom is plainly visible. The owner of this place, Mr. E. Perrine, with a remarkable foresight early saw the possibilities it afforded, and using the water of these lakes for irrigation, has constructed a bowser of beauty which to a lover of nature, is as near paradise as will probably ever be attained here on earth. Thousands of fruit and ornamental trees, flowers, shrubbery, streams abounding with trout, and the possibilities of the canyon-wall of the river rising to a height of 700 feet, making a picture, as I said above, that no pen can adequately describe.

We were fortunate in meeting Mrs. Perrine, a most charming lady, who with characteristic western hospitality, made us welcome and personally escorted us over this wonderful place, where we were permitted to feed the trout in a stream that runs by the home, and watch the water fairly boil as they rose for the food.

A few words regarding Mr. Perrine may be of interest in showing what energy and perseverance can accomplish. As George Washington is called the Father of the United States, so Mr. Perrine may be called the Father of this section of southern Idaho, as to his indomitable pluck and energy is due the opening of these arid tracts to settlement by an investing eastern capital in these irrigation projects to the amount of many millions of dollars. Truly a man could ask for more lasting monuments than the success of such a project, and the thanks of many thousands of happy and contented settlers living on this fertile soil.

In conclusion let me say that so far as my observation has extended—and I have not been idle—the people in this community are whole-souled and generous and ready to extend the right hand of fellowship to those who come here with the intention of making their homes among them and do their share to advance the general interests of the community.

With best regards and good wishes to yourself and my numerous friends, I am, Very truly yours,
R. H. TRAILL.

NOT MARRIED, BUT SHOULD BE

Mark Murtaugh Plays a Joke on His Friend Fred Voigt.

Fred Voigt received a beautiful box of flowers by express from Salt Lake City last Saturday. There was no card in the box and Fred was utterly unable to solve the identity of the sender. He scratched his head, a very undignified thing for the mayor of the city to do, he consulted the oracle, Jake Fritz, held a consultation with Miss Higbee, in fact he exhausted every means of finding out from whom the flowers came or why they were sent.

With his customary generosity, Mr.

Voigt placed the gift on his table in the dining room: in the best vase Edie Williams could find. Everybody admired the magnificent flowers. Friend in Salt Lake, evidently explained Fred Voigt's the least idea, "I assure you." "Don't know who they came from but he, or she (falling in fiction on the side, with a smile and a knowing nod) has exquisite taste, don't you think?" On the side lines Chester Baird and John Henderson were telling how they had gathered the flowers on their ranches at Buhl and put a few express tags on them.

On Sunday Mr. Voigt received a nice, cordial letter from Gus Vogeler in Salt Lake in which Mr. Vogeler stated he had been informed by Mark Murtaugh that Mr. Voigt had just been married and he hastened to send him the nicest flowers he could get. Mr. Vogeler wished Mr. Voigt sunny skies and sweet hearts on them and the bride. The same mail brought a box of cigars to the alleged benedict.

Now Fred is wondering whether he ought to stay Mark Murtaugh when the letter received in Twin Falls let Mark go ahead and keep him in cigars and flowers. He is enjoying all the material pleasures of a newly married man without the expense and annoyance.

DOG GAVE HIM A BAD HUNCH

Jake Fritz—Losses a Solo Through Canine Advice.

Jake Fritz happened to be low man in a poker game the other day when he picked up a ragged hand in which were two untraced tens. When it was his turn to declare himself, he was about to pass when he felt a couple of warning taps on the shins. "Ah!—Ha!", thought Jake, as he sized up the "rubbers", "evidently two aces down, and someone is giving me a friendly hunch", and he announced a solo. He took the first trick and pulled out the ace of trumps to lead it when another tap on the shins induced him to change his mind. He fumbled the cards for a moment, selecting a small trump only to receive a third warning. Selecting one of his tens, Jake waited for another tap and feeling nothing he led the ten. One of his opponents took it with the ace and the other put on the king. Jake thought this was rather strange, but when the next time he led to him and no tap came he led the other ten, which also drew the ace and king. When Jake counted up he had just 23 points. Just as he was about to say something forcible, he felt a whack on the shins and looked down at his feet. Standing beneath the table was a dog, wagging his tail as cheerful as a basket of chips. "Well, old boy", said Jake, addressing the dog, "I wouldn't kick you for four bits for I guess you have been watching some of these fellows piggy around here and you don't know any better."

George B. Powell, Chief Inspector of the Omaha Grain Exchange, Confirms the Twin Falls Tract to the Bow Wows, Showing a Reckless Disregard for Truth Surprising in a Man of His Standing—Is Credited by the Omaha Bee with Several Defamatory Statements.

TOO MUCH WIND FOR FRUIT TWENTY DIE IN WIND

That is George B. Powell's Judgment of Twin Falls Country, Just Opened.

Tornadoes Wreck Many Towns and Death Has Big Harvest.

"If apple orchards are ever planted on the 80,000 acres of land near Twin Falls, Idaho, which has just been opened and widely advertised, they will have to arrange to get the apples on with wire," said George B. Powell, chief inspector of the Omaha Grain exchange when he returned from Idaho Tuesday.

"The wind blows there incessantly and it would be about all the trees could do to remain in the ground. I have no desire to knock the Idaho land, but that around Twin Falls is fit for anything but fruit. But hundreds have been drawn to Twin Falls believing they could secure fruit growing land according to the advertising. The land is fit only for dairying and agriculture.

"The crop of alfalfa has been so bountiful that it is selling for $2 per ton near Twin Falls and may be bought baled for less than $4. Potatoes were selling for 25 cents per sack of 100 pounds when I left, though there was something like eight inches of snow on the ground and the best tracts north of Twin Falls. The land makes me think of western Nebraska. It is not much different and will be just as valuable when irrigated.

Mr. Powell visited Grand Junction and other fruit stations, buying 40 acres near DeBeque.

Both of the above stories appeared in the Omaha Bee of June 7. They seem to be a trifle inconsistent. If Mr. Powell is correctly quoted, he should have waited until the croton season was over before blowing up Twin Falls. He exercised very poor judgment in selecting a time for his cavilings on the biggest and best irrigated tract in America. Possibly Mr. Powell was misunderstood, but several gentlemen who talked with him while he was in Twin Falls believe that he did just what the Bee stated. Assuming that he was not misrepresented by the Bee, a paper that has frequently devoted valuable space to the exploitation of the Twin Falls project, Mr. Powell has placed himself in a very embarrassing and discreditable position.

Finally Mr. Powell is unaware that fruit has been grown for 25 years on lands now under the Twin Falls canal system, where the wind has had full sweep. The following statements made by reputable citizens of Rock Creek, were obtained by H. A. Stroud & Co., real estate dealers of Twin Falls, who will pay the fare and expenses of any person who comes here and finds that any of the statements are false or misleading. McCormick & Co., bankers, will vouch for Mr. Stroud's responsibility. Read these statements and see what Mr. Powell's opinion is worth:

BOISE TOOK THE HONORABLE VIEW

DECLINED TO PLAY HYENA AT SALMON OPENING.

Was Willing that Twin Falls Should Have All the Benefit of its Own Advertising—Dignified and Neighborly Behavior.

Boise was one of the few cities in southern Idaho which did not perform the hyena act at the Salmon opening. Scores of citizens of the capital participated in the opening and did their fair share of boosting. Nampa representatives were on the ground and distributed literature to which not the slightest objection could be made. The literature stated in the headline that Nampa was only 12 miles from Twin Falls. Good for Nampa, it will be closer to Twin Falls next year, let us hope. But the Nampa representatives got nothing derogatory to the Twin Falls people and they were as welcome as the sunshine. Boise assumed a dignified and neighborly stand, giving Twin Falls all the credit and making no derogatory remarks to the people attracted here by the liberal advertising of the companies. In so doing Boise made a tenetrike and further cemented the friendly relations existing between the capital and this city. The following letter from President Carlson of the Boise Commercial club explains the policy of that organization.

The Evening Capital News: In your issue of Tuesday, June 9, you have a lengthy article complaining of the Boise Commercial club in that it did not send advertising agents stocked with quantities of literature down to Twin Falls on the occasion of the first opening under the Twin Falls-Salmon project on the first inst. You set forth at great length the great amount of advertising done at that time by other communities, cities as far away as those in Nevada and Utah having sent representatives there to distribute booklets, hand bills and other advertisements in an effort to draw from Twin Falls those immigrants which had been induced to go there.

For the benefit of those who did not read the article we give a short resume. It is stated representatives were present from every other city and town in importance in Idaho, that eastern Oregon, Utah and Nevada were represented "to take advantage of the opportunity to advertise their favorite sections," etc. Boise, the capital of the Gem state, was not represented. Many people cannot understand why some action was not taken last week to boom for Boise at the Twin Falls opening. It is claimed there is an abundance of literature paid for and awaiting distribution in this city. It sets forth the facts that thousands of dollars were placed on deposit as first payment which showed that the thousands of landseekers came to Idaho with money ready to buy any snags which presented themselves; that many were of the former class and not finding suitable locations at Twin Falls would have come to Boise but have now gone to other points or returned home. In the interview it is stated that when you take into consideration the fact that these easterners were out in this state to invest and the majority of them were more or less ignorant of conditions and not finding possible exception of the Twin Falls country, which they had read about, it can be seen that many of them would have unquestionably been induced to come to Boise and the Boise valley, had the boosters and literature been headed to them.

The land opening at Twin Falls was the biggest ever held in the west and presented a good opportunity to advertising organizations to get busy and advertise. You state that "many are inclined to lay the blame, if any, on the Boise Commercial club which should have taken notice along this line and seen that this city and valley was well advertised."

It has not been the policy of this club to be in the view of the fact that this is a question of paramount importance to many who take a friendly interest in the club and in order that the good people of this city may more thoroughly understand the lines on which the club conducts its publicity work and the spirit which animates the organization, we take the liberty of sending this reply to the above mentioned article.

We grant that the facts as set forth in the article are true with one exception and that we shall refer to later. That there were thousands of landseekers present, that they were brought to Twin Falls through the work, brains and money of Twin Falls city and the Twin Falls companies, that all of them possibly could not find land there to suit them, that many went away to other places, that if we had done as you suggest we could have induced some of them to come here and settle in the Boise valley; that the Boise Commercial club represents all the best business interests of Boise and where publicity work is to be done this club should see to it; these are conceded facts. The question then arises why was it not done? In order to answer this fully let us get back from this particular opening. There have been several openings in this state since this club was organized; the South Side, the North Side and the Gooding and Alberta openings are all recent events. At all of these the same facts held true, yet we advertised at none of them. It appears then that at odd times in the history of this state var-it unprofessional for a lawyer to follow directions of this kind. His actions say: "No client, corporate or individual, however powerful, nor any cause, civil or political, however important, is entitled to receive, nor should any lawyer render any service or advice involving disloyalty to the law whose ministers we are, or disrespect of the judicial office, which we are bound to uphold, or corruption of any person or persons exercising a public office or private trust, or deception or fraud, or any other act which is in violation of the principles of moral law, but it even goes as far as to insist upon the observance of the statute law. It makes the saving admission, however, that a statute law may not be binding upon it if it has been tested in court, and that an attorney may properly give advice as to its validity and meaning in connection with the proposed code of ethics, as recommended a part of Hippocratic oath, to be exacted from applicants for admission to the bar. This would contain the well-known principle of a lawyer's duty, and the recognition of it would presumably obviate any fee an unscrupulous client could give."—Collier's Weekly.

—What's up? said the policeman. "The man, very much out of breath, said: 'You see that young urchin peering along there?' He asked me the time, and I told him, '10 minutes to 9' and he said, 'At 9 o'clock get your hair cut.'" "Well," said the policeman, "What are you running for? You've got 8 minutes yet."—Happo's Opportunities.

"Let me see some of your black kid gloves," said a lady to a shopman. "These are not the latest styles, are they?" she asked, when the gloves were produced. "Yes, madam," replied the shopman; "we have had them in stock only two days but they were because the fashion paper says black kids have tan stitches, and vice versa. I see the tan stitches, but not the vice versa."—Free Press.

The shopman explained that vice versa was French for seven buttons, so she bought three pairs.—Detroit Free Press.

"Can I have a piece of pie, mother?" "Say, 'may I, Johnny, not 'can I?'" "Well, mother, may I have a piece of pie?" "No, Johnny, you can't."—Lippincott's.

"I shall expect you not to wear my clothes," said the lady of the house. "You needn't worry, on that point, madam," retorted the new maid. "I wouldn't even patronize your dressmaker."—Washington Herald.

The following conversation is said to have taken place in a Boston elevator: Old Lady—"Don't you ever feel sick going up and down in this elevator all day?" Elevator Boy—"Yes'm." Old Lady—"Is it the motion of the going down?" Elevator Boy—"No'm." Old Lady—"The motion of going up?" Elevator Boy—"No'm." Old Lady—"The stopping?" Elevator Boy—"No'm." Old Lady—"What is it, then?" Elevator Boy—"The questions."—The Watchword.

"Little Elvira—"Mama, when the fire goes out where does it go?" Mrs. Gaylord—"I don't know, dear. You might just as well ask where your father goes when he goes out."—Chicago News.

and-jobbing houses and now that the Twin Falls-Salmon opening is history we can only say, well done, neighbors, the glory and profit be thine.

A word regarding one mis-statement in the article in question. There is not an abundance of literature paid for and awaiting distribution in this city. Owing to the large amount of money spent in advertising Idaho the last eight months and owing somewhat to the financial depression in the east, the demand for literature has been unusually heavy this year. During the past year the Commercial club has published over 15,000 booklets advertising Boise and Idaho. We have written over 15,000 personal letters to prospective homeseekers and we are now completely exhausted. There are only two Boise books in the club. We have been working on a new one for two months and are doing our utmost to get quick delivery.

We respectfully request you to publish this letter in full—it is written not in the spirit of criticism, but that the people of this city and state may come to a better knowledge of what this club does and what it does not do and to a better understanding of its policies. Its spirit and ambitions.

REILLY ATKINSON, President,
Secretary,

Reform for Lawyers.
The committee of the American Bar association which has been struggling to codify the principles of professional ethics has completed a draft of its proposed canons of conduct. Its adoption would represent a considerable elevation in the standards observed by lawyers in general, and perhaps by some members of the Code committee.

While admitting the right of an attorney to defend a client whom he believes to be guilty, the committee holds that his activity in its direction should have limits. His work should be "performed within, and not without, the bounds of the law."

The office of attorney does not permit, much less does it demand, for any client violation of law or any manner of fraud or chicanery.

Formerly lawyers laid themselves open to criticism chiefly by helping murderers, thieves, and other vulgar criminals to escape punishment for acts already committed. They were merely accomplices after the fact. Now the thing to which the public is more inclined to object is their habit of making themselves accomplices before the fact in crimes of a more refined, but more dangerous, nature. The old-fashioned criminal committed his deed by himself, and then asked his lawyer to get him off. The modern financial-criminal directs his electric bell henchman and rings the salaried head of his legal department to plan his crime for him in advance. The Ethics committee of the American Bar association would make

IDAHO'S PROGRESS IN FIFTY YEARS

BREEZY STORY BY CHARLES J. PERKINS OF BOISE.

Tells of the Transition from Placer Mining to Irrigation—Vast Summs Now Being Expended in Reclamation of Desert Lands.

The following story, which is taken from the Des Moines Iowa, Mail and Times, was contributed by Charles J. Perkins of Boise. It hits the high places and has an attractive spangle which makes it good reading:

The Mail and Times writes a story covering all the interesting things about Idaho, its mountains, its climate, its agriculture, horticulture and what the citizens of the state are doing.

Let us give the Mail and Times credit for a fair review of one of two interesting Idaho subjects, but which called upon to cover this whole territory's interesting things in the field of gold and silver.

from 712 feet at the city of Lewiston, to the top of the Sawtooth mountains, about 22000 feet above the sea.

That visible thing, we call climate is made up of sunshine, altitude, topography, temperature, precipitation, winds and drainage, and for variety of climate Idaho has all kinds and quantities.

Down on the sagebrush plains near to the mouth of the Snake river it sets to 115 degrees in the shade, and there's no shade; a hundred miles away one can find nature's ice factory working every night in August.

There are places in Idaho where one can breakfast in 100 degrees in the shade and on the same day, and 25 mile drive, dine on a carpet of the greenest grasses, beside the coolest mountain springs and but a few feet from one of last year's snow banks.

In 1860 all this great 30,000 square miles was held by the Comdr d'Alenc, Palouse and Nez Perce Indians on the south and the Blackfoot, Bannock and Shoshone tribes at the southern end of the state.

In August, 1860, Captain Pierce, a friend of the Nez Perce tribe, learned from a squaw that there was gold over on Orofino creek. The captain visited the "find," and said that the squaw's story was true. He got the gold out in the winter of 1861, and there it went to the coast, then down among the "placer gold diggers" in California.

The news that placer gold existed in paying quantities in Idaho was enough. The stamped commencing in '61 and in the spring of '62, 30,000 men, lawyers, doctors, clerks, bookkeepers, preachers, servant girls, campsmen and even editors were camped on the banks of Orofino, Newsum, Elk City and Warren creeks. The gold yield was fabulous.

In a business deserted mining camp today, had a population of 10,000 men; a pint cup of gold nuggets was the result of a common day's work of two men. This army soon exhausted these northern gravel beds; something must be done; new fields must be found; nine men, headed by old man Grimes, crossed the big Salmon river and came south and discovered Boise gold basin. This field was, perhaps, the richest placer ground the world has ever known. The basin produced from '62 to '68 over $300,000,000 in gold dust.

American securities in those war days from '62 to '65 were at a low ebb; but these miners dug $450,000,000 of new gold into the money markets and the financial world took confidence in the securities. The United States with all its war expenditures "made good," and it all came about by the value of these hardy miners. That was the reason for the proper food, stoves and tools and appliances to extract the gold from the gravel. Then, too, roaming bands of Indians kept them busy.

Outpost guards were on the lookout day or night around these "placer biggies."

In those days there were no courts, no sheriffs or policemen; every man was a law unto himself; in those days, I'm told by some of those old pioneers, everybody was law-abiding; everybody paid his debts; everybody kept his word. The fact of the matter is every body had to be good. They all were judges, Lynch and he held court, passed sentence and executed it, without right of appeal, any day or night that the occasion justified it.

In 1870 the federal census showed Idaho had 14,928 people. In Lincoln's last election Boise Basin alone cast 12,000 votes and the north end of the state cast nearly as many more votes. It had become of all this population in '70?

They had broken into nature's treasure house, despoiled her of gold accumulations of countless ages, and when the house was emptied, silently walked away.

The booty was enormous and these fellows spent it lavishly.

The common miner received $10 to $15 for a day's work, and they had no unions either. Flour sometimes cost $1.00 a bushel, and meat and other edibles in proportion, except meat. Game was everywhere. Deer, antelope and elk roamed these mountains.

These gold miners had done a great work in extracting a half billion of new gold from another earth and done more to hold the stars and stripes to their uplifted poles than any other agency, except Grant's arms. It took gold as well as soldiers to win battles, and Idaho early contributed her share to hold our Union together.

The 14,000 people remaining in Idaho after the exhaustion of the placer gold diggings went down in the valleys and built houses and fences around a tract of land that could be irrigated from the mountain streams.

Many of these miner-farmers went back to the "states" and married the girl they used to write love letters to in the exciting gold days. These letters to 10 cents a piece to get to the nearest postoffice, Walla Walla, Oregon. But the girl was worth it! She came and the beautiful ranches down Boise valley and the Payette and Weiser valleys testify that a woman was at the helm in the early days; for there's the big red apple orchards, trees 16 inches through, blossoms, lemons and maples shade trees around the house and barn plots that measure three and four feet through. The blue grass plots are there, with rose trees bordering them. Some of these women are 16 feet high. It took a woman to plan these plots. These miner-farmers would never have thought of it.

Early Irrigation.

The miner-farmer of the north end of the state had the easiest work to get early results. The north is in the humid belt. The farm work was similar to that carried on in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa. They did not have to irrigate the lands up there. But in the south the conditions were altogether dissimilar. Without artificial moisture plant life cannot subsist. Water was abundant in the mountain streams, but it must be conveyed to the lands by ditches and spread over the soil. These placer miners knew how to dig ditches to convey water to obtain the placer gold, so it was easy for them to do the ditch work to convey irrigation water to their farm lands, and they did it. This ditch work has been going on all over central and southern Idaho ever since the miner-farmer commenced his ditch work in the '70's. The results of irrigation have been so profitable that Uncle Sam concluded in 1892 to take a hand at this work, and after looking over Idaho and finding the places where his money could be spent to the greatest advantage and to benefit the greatest number of his citizens he went to work. He sent $2,000,000 to build the Minidoka dam and canals in the Snake river valley and bring out of the "desert wastes" 80,000 acres cut up into 1200 homes; and every home is occupied with a happy, prosperous family. It was only last May these Minidokans reaped their first water and today their granaries and cellars are groaning with the summer's production.

Uncle Sam's Work.

Uncle Sam is spending $5,000,000 on another Idaho project. It covers a plan to build reservoirs and canal lines to furnish water to irrigate 350,000 acres of the choicest land in this Gem state. Uncle Sam knows a good thing when he sees it. He's building these works, knowing that 4500 families will occupy the lands, pay taxes and help to carry on the work of making good citizens and government. Don't get the impression, now, that Uncle Sam is giving the money away to build these great Idaho irrigation works! Uncle Sam only gives his money to build harbors and dig deeper, imaginary water ways that's going to carry the commerce raised "nowhere" to the "maris of "nowhere." Uncle Sam got into the habit of spending his money on these useless waterways years ago and he has'nt seen the water in his savings in the same way for years to come.

But in all this national irrigation reclamation work he just keeps the money and when one of his irrigation projects is finished he figures up what the whole thing cost, deducts that sum by the number of acres that will irrigated and he has $0.50 per farm unit. Uncle Sam and the $0.50 per farm owner pays back the sum charged to the $0.50, to Uncle Sam, in 10 annual payments. As these annuual payments come in Uncle Sam takes the money and builds other irrigation works and other thousands of families are provided with the opportunity of home making.

Timber Land Resources.

You Mississippi and Missouri valley people will no doubt be surprised to hear that way out here in Idaho we have now standing in the trees enough lumber to build a three-room house for every family in the United States.

These enormous tracts of timber lands with their billions of feet of white and yellow pine, fir, tamarack, cedar and hemlock trees, now standing, will supply the material for one of the greatest industries in the state and the future development in this industry will make Idaho famous as one of the greatest lumber producers in America. The lumber business is in its infancy. The annual product for 1906 reached only $2,200,000 and of this sum $300,000 was paid out for labor.

Idaho is young! she's hardly out of her knee pants. The opportunities for the young American citizen in Idaho are unmeasured anywhere.

The opportunities for fortune making—and home building never better than here in Idaho. You citizens—everything and resources are but moments.

Our population is growing fast. It's made up of splendid citizenship of Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, the Dakotas, Kansas and Nebraska.

The other day at Jerome, the new town on the North side Twin Falls tract, a drawing of 150,000 acres took place, under the "Carey act" land laws. Nineteen hundred people were present and for three days we stood and sat under a canvassed canopy, listening for our number. Nearly 2000 names were in the "Wheel of Fortune." At 1 o'clock, October 1st, the "wheel" was turned a hundred times, and lo! a Missourian by the name of Rice got No. 1.

He immediately selected 100 acres joining the Jerome townsite and his land is worth today $10,000. And so the drawing went on and nearly 70,000 acres were drawn and selected in 60 hours. This was the largest real estate transaction that ever took place in the United States, for each acre cost $35.60. And the character of the citizenship in that great crowd of land buyers was delightful to look upon. They came from nearly every state in the Union. Iowa and Illinois population, however, predominated.

The sales of land and water on the North Side Twin Falls tract is going on every day at Jerome; shortly the 150,000 acre tract will be exhausted, in 12 months the water will be flowing in the new canals. Then the transformation will begin. The Jerome drawing will be a memorable day to thousands of homeseekers.
