BIG COUNTRY WITH BIG FUTURE

So Says James S. Bogart of Boise Concerning Twin Falls.

"Twin Falls is a big country with a big future," said James S. Bogart, who returned home yesterday from the "booster" city of the southeast, where he has been looking after business for the past two weeks. Although somewhat skeptical about the Twin Falls country before his visit, Mr. Bogart has returned home as an ardent booster of the thriving new country.

"I was absolutely surprised to see such a small amount of sagebrush, and it certainly is a big country. Everything is in cultivation under a fine water system. Twin Falls is taking on permanent improvements. Everywhere building is being done by people who have money, with which to build and to cultivate their farms. All the towns about Twin Falls are growing, building being in progress in the small towns as well as in Twin Falls.

"The railroad construction out of Twin Falls is making things lively and the population is rapidly increasing. There are no vacant stores and new business blocks are going up. Excavating is in progress for a three-story addition to the Twin Falls Bank & Trust company's building. The bonds for the new court house, which will come to $150,000, have been sold and the foundation work for the court house started.

"Many trees are being planted about the city and in the country orchards are being set out. There's a big pile of fruit trees already in the ground and growing in good shape. Most of the fruit trees are apple. The trees are, however, not quite so far advanced as those in the vicinity of Boise. The stock in that country is good, most of the people having fine eastern stock of a good grade.

"Mr. Bogart has been in the vicinity of Boise for the past two weeks, during which time he took advantage of spare moments to observe the activity which is in progress on every hand. He came home convinced that the Twin Falls country is made up of real live boosters who are determined to make a city in the southeast which will rival Boise for size.—Capital News.

D. S. Spencer, assistant general manager and ticket agent of the Oregon Short Line, was in Twin Falls on Sunday, accompanied by his daughter. Mr. Spencer visited Blue Lake and also inspected his farm on Black Creek. He stated that the new time card had been carefully prepared with the view of giving Twin Falls the best possible service. It was not practicable to run the passenger trains on the Minidoka & Southwestern so as to make perfect connections, but the company had endeavored to accommodate the irrigated public to the best of its ability.

AT ITS OLD TRICKS IN ARIZONA. Reclamation Service Butts in and Finds Itself in Court. Former United States Senator George Turner of Spokane has gone to Washington, D. C., to appear before the United States supreme court in the noted litigation of the Irrigation Land and Improvement company of Arizona against the government. He will first have a conference with Richard A. Ballinger, secretary of the interior, with the view of bringing about a compromise, in which event the suit will be dismissed. Otherwise it is expected to attack the constitutionality of the entire reclamation service as organized by the government.

SKY PANORAMAS OF TWIN FALLS

WILL BE TAKEN BY GEORGE R.
LAWRENCE.

Noted Expert Now Engaged on Owyhee Project—When He Completes His Work There He Will Turn His Attention to Twin Falls.

Having a kodak over four feet wide that takes a film from two and a half feet to four in width, that takes a picture of an individual, of a banquet
scene, of a bare interior or of a strip of country 25 miles long by a dozen the other way, and knowing how to use it anyone can get from $1000 to $2000 per picture for his "snapshots."
George R. Lawrence of Chicago, head of a company bearing his name, does
it. To be sure, he has an advantage over the average man in that his process is strenuously patented, not only in this country, but in 14 others.

Mr. Lawrence was in the city yesterday. He has been engaged for some time by the Clinton-Hurt company in taking "balloon" pictures of the Boise-Owyhee project, but when he is done
there he will go to Twin Falls and,
from the clouds, as it were, take snapshots of a section that teems with life, whereas four or five years ago it was given over to the odorous sagebrush, snaking coyote and the mild-mannered and agile jackrabbit.

Mr. Lawrence explained the modus operandi to a representative of The Statesman. By way of impressing the perfection of his plant he offered to hold the reporter aloft. "As a human kodak you would get a more perfect idea of the workings of my apparatus if you should go up," he said with a smile. The reporter, being sensitive if not scandalized, preferred to take the Chicagoan's word for it.

Mr. Lawrence works with both balloon and aeroplane. He is using a flock of the latter in Idaho. These are sent up half a mile or more. The camera swings from it at a distance of about a quarter of a mile from the earth. The aerial photographic outfit is anchored by a strand less than an eighth of an inch in diameter, including the electric wires and insulation.
It has a tested strength of 2000 pounds. The navy department told Mr. Lawrence it would not stand the strain, but it has; and the aeroplanes have been buffeted by some strong winds.

"We have a way of keeping the camera perfectly still," said Mr. Lawrence. "While the 'airships' above move, the camera can be kept under perfect control by means from the long rope. I stand on the ground and work the lenses electrically, also using a small gasoline engine."

Mr. Lawrence showed some of his films. (The never uses plates.) They are like "Pavlova and off there is Wel-ser," he explained, holding one of the films. These will be printed in a short time and used in the advertising campaign to be conducted in connection with the sale of lands under the Boise-Owyhee project. The business houses and many of the residences in the towns are easily identified. When it is planned to photograph only the town every house in it stands out perfectly. Mr. Lawrence has photographs of San Francisco immediately after

and two years after the earthquake.
It shows every detail. He has patented a "flashlight" process for interior views that is so simple anyone can operate it after receiving 10 minutes instruction. There is no explosion and no smoke and every face in a banquet room, for example, stands out as plainly as those near the camera.

Mr. Lawrence went out yesterday afternoon to take the Nyssa picture.
—The Statesman.

The strength of a child.

It is surprising to find how few parents know the great strength giving qualities of good oatmeal. Most of them think of it as a food for the sturdy Scotch or the brawny Englishman, and overlook its value as a food for children. Every now and then a mother will take to feeding her children on Quaker Oats and will be astonished at their improvement in strength and vigor. Of course, she tells her friends, and they prove it for themselves, but every mother in the country should see that her children are strong and vigorous. Plenty of Quaker Oats, eaten often, will do it.

Put up in two sizes, the regular package 10c, and the large family size 25c, which is more convenient for those who do not live in town.

Don't miss a day; eat Quaker Oats
every morning for breakfast.

PROFITABLE CROP

HAGERMAN FARMERS OBTAIN GOOD REVENUE.

Southern Idaho Particularly Suited for the Growth of Alfalfa, the Greatest Fertilizer, Known and the King of Forage Plants.

In far off Idaho during the past several years, there has been developed on the fertile lands of the lower Wood river valley the practice of raising alfalfa for the seed. During the year 1906, many thousands of acres of irrigated lands lying about the little town of Hagerman, were devoted to this industry. The returns were so astonishingly good that hereafter land-owners in that section will they say devote a still greater acreage to this branch of agriculture. It was the same with almost every one during the 1906 season, that after cutting a first alfalfa hay crop of from three and a half to four and a half tons to the acre, the second crop was permitted to fully mature, and when cut and threshed, yielded from 5 to 11 bushels of seed ($40 to 600 pounds) besides two tons or more of alfalfa straw, almost as nutritious as hay when used as a stock food. To give an idea of the profitableness of the industry; call the hay crop four tons to the acre, valued at $7 or $8 in all; seed 500 pounds at 16 cents a pound, $80.00, a total carrying per acre of $114.00. The total cost of irrigating, cutting, threshing and marketing the hay and seed was not in excess of $25 an acre, leaving practically $90 an acre as clear profit. Land once leveled and seeded with alfalfa does not need replanting for at least 10 years.

The use of alfalfa seed is increasing all over the world, agricultural science having shown that the growing of alfalfa adds materially to the fertility of any soil, and that the crop is the best possible feed for cattle, sheep and hogs.

The arid lands in the Snake river valley, Idaho of which the Wood river country is a part are particularly well fitted to the growth of sugar potatoes, field peas and the various grains and grasses. Sugar beets, especially, suggest that the soil is ideal for the growth of sugar beets, and that an average yield of 30 tons or more per acre may reasonably be expected, once the lands have been prepared. Such preparation consists in growing alfalfa on the land for two years and then turning the green seed under in the fall. In the spring, when pulverization is accomplished and the land is planted to alfalfa, the practice through irrigated Idaho, when seedling is not to be planted out, so that a profitable crop of grain is secured early in the fall hay season of the same year. Practically the same course is pursued in preparing the virgin soil for potato growing. This industry it is believed will be one of the most important and profitable pursued on Idaho irrigated lands in the future.

There is now about five million acres of virgin territory under irrigation in Idaho under existing irrigation systems. Nearly all this land is under ownership, although but little more than half the owned acreage has been developed and made over partially productive. However, there still remains about 100,000 acres of government land open to entry under the Carey act through which congress provided for the states in the arid portion of the west, reclamation lands by irrigation that would otherwise be desert lands. This reclamation is accomplished by private corporations putting in extensive irrigation systems and rigid state supervision, charging at the same time a specified sum per acre for water rights.

The greatest of these Carey act enterprises developed recently, and one under which most of the arid watered land lies, is the Big Wood River project, owned by the Idaho Irrigation company of Boise, Idaho. This company, which is under contract with the state to irrigate 100,000 acres of Carey act land and 75,000 acres of land under private ownership, this land has completed its first covering about 75,000 acres, and expects to serve the remaining land by the first of April, 1910.

The company has a tract of 50,000 acres of very rich land lying directly on the main line of the Oregon Short Line, just east of Shoshone, which will be covered by June 1, 1909. The opening will be held by the state land board and preference of selection will be determined by lot. The lands to be covered are of the same character as those about Hagerman and are especially adapted to the growth of alfalfa and other grasses, all grains and root crops and to the production of winter apples.

EXPOSITION TO EXPLOIT WEST
WILL BE HELD IN CHICAGO IN AUTUMN.
Railway and Colonization Interests
Combine to Illustrate the Manifest Advantages Offered by the West in Irrigated Sections.

(By FREDERICK H. GRISWOLD, Assistant Secretary of the Seventeenth National Congress.)
What has the farm to offer?
The reply to this question will be evident to all who visit the United States Land and Irrigation exposition that is to take place in the Chicago Coliseum from November 27 to December 4. The exposition will be the first of its kind, and the novelty of it has appealed to all who have heard of the plan.
Pledges already given render it certain that this display will outclass any of the shows ever seen in the Coliseum, which has become famed as the best place in the middle west for high-class exhibits. In addition to a complete display of the products that have brought wealth from the soil, there are to be specially designed decorations, panoramas and paintings, all arranged artistically, and these are to surpass all previous efforts.
The exposition is not to be a magnified county fair—it is to be unique. Its success is assured beyond the shadow of a doubt.

The initiative for this exposition came from the numerous railway and land interests that center in Chicago, where practically all of the native colonization agents have established their headquarters. But in order to have the line carried out successfully on a big scale, it was necessary to have guarantees of both money and publicity, and these have been furnished by the Chicago Tribune, which has promised to use its influence for the benefit of undeveloped sections in gaining colonists and other aids to progress.
Primarily, the exposition is meant for those opportunities open to the settler. There are thousands tolling in eastern offices and factories to whom information of this sort will come as a blessing, for they are tired of their chains, but do not know how to break them. Other thousands, coming out of mere curiosity possibly, will see what a home in one of nature's favored spots means and will plan to join the army that is marching westward.

Tourists search out scenic beauties during their travels, but they are not the class who remain. If they happen that many who would be desirable settlers never travel more than 50 miles from their homes, and to them the exhibits will be the revelation of a new world of possibilities. Their horizon will be broadened and they will receive a new inspiration.
Undeveloped districts of all sorts will be benefitted by the exposition. The possibilities of dry farming will be shown, along with the wonders of irrigation and the humid regions will not be neglected.
Even the reclamation of swamp lands is to find place—anything, in fact, will be included if it represents a strong movement for the general good and the development of latent agricultural resources. Every effort is to be made to make the exhibits as comprehensive as possible, and the interests behind the movement are now getting the necessary material together.

Not since the convention of farmers, summoned to the White House by President Roosevelt, has there been a hint of anything of equal scope, and even at the convention the exhibits were lacking.
The Land exposition will open at the same time as the annual International Livestock exposition, and this is an important point as fully 500,000 visitors come to Chicago every year when the prize cattle, horses, sheep and hogs are on display. With the double attraction this season, it will be possible for anyone visiting Chicago to see in condensed form practically all that the west and south have to offer.

Interest in colonization has never been as keen as today, and the desire to take advantage of the agricultural possibilities that are offered has resulted in an extraordinary display of "land hunger" on the part of the general public. And the majority of those in the middle west who are displaying this anxiety to join the movement back to the soil realize that they lack accurate knowledge of the problems of irrigation and factoring, and the drainage of organic matter. Let this information be given with an attractive manner, and the west will interest will be increased.
The best of all things along with the American farmer is the land. Sometimes this instinct is not strong, and the possessor thereof is not a farmer, but a speculator.

craving for freedom and a place that can be called "home" will win the mastery.
These men will be shown what nature offers to the one who wishes to make a home for himself. Practically every part of the west and south, of any consequence from the agricultural point of view, will be represented by pictorial displays and views. Final arrangements have about been completed, and it is practically certain that the splendid exhibits made at Seattle by various departments of the government will be dropped off at Chicago on the way back to Washington. The date has been set so that this can be done easily.

The government exhibits are of the greatest interest to the farmer and the stockman. One of the finest displays is to be made by the Reclamation service. Models of various projects are to be shown. Dams and canals will be seen in miniature, charts will explain every detail of the construction work and well arranged displays will show what can be produced from fertile soil by means of irrigation. This, therefore, will be a rare opportunity to study details of the work of the reclamation service and the first to be offered people of the middle west. In addition to the displays there will be lectures that will include private projects, as well as those developed under direction of government officials.

The department of agriculture is to display an unusual complete set of models, transparencies, slides, photographs, etc.
What the bureau of plant industry has done and is doing will be evidenced by rare plants, trees and grains never before seen in America. These things have been found in remote spots of the old world and are now being developed for the benefit of the farmer.

The bureau of entomology will exhibit enlarged models of insects, as well as a large collection of specimens both injurious and beneficial to crops.
The government will be given all of the space necessary to show these exhibits to the best advantage.

Makers of appliances and machinery for the farm will have attractive exhibits. In addition there will be seen the special machinery needed in building and maintaining irrigation projects. The picturesque operation of growing wheat by wholesale on the great stretches of Montana is to be shown. The present plan of using large traction engines is comparatively new and will be a revelation even to the most experienced farmers of the middle west.

The exposition has an advisory committee consisting of the following: Edmund T. Perkins, engineer in charge, United States reclamation service; Darius Miller, first vice president, Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway company; E. D. McCormick, assistant traffic director, Union Pacific Railway company; Geo. T. Nicholson, third vice president, Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway company; J. H. Hiltad, third vice president, Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway company; John Seabain, passenger traffic manager, Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway company; Frank J. Bennett, president, Biller Root District Irrigation company; D. R. Niver, treasurer, and Niver, bankers; James Kealey, managing editor, Chicago Tribune; Harrison M. Parker, business manager, Chicago Tribune.
And in addition there is a promotion committee with the following members:

Abbott, Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway company; Max Bass, Great Northern Railway company; George De Haven, Union Pacific Railway company; George B. FARMERS MAKING THE RIGHT MOVE WILL ORGANIZE A PRODUCERS ASSOCIATION.
 Corporation With a Capital Stock of $25,000 Will Be Formed at a Meeting to Be Held in Twin Falls on Saturday, June 5.

To the Editor of the News:
 At the county convention of the Farmers' union held in the I. O. O. F. hall, Twin Falls, on May 22, a committee was appointed to draft articles of incorporation for a Country Produce association. These articles were prepared and have been submitted to the various locals of the county and every local that has thus far met since receiving them has pledged its delegates to vote for their adoption at the county convention which is to meet at Twin Falls June 5th, for action on the articles. A sufficient number of locals having been heard from, it is an absolute certainty that the County union will incorporate.
 The capital stock of the corporation will be $25,000 and the number of shares any one person may hold will be limited and the qualifications of shareholders, will be producers of farm products.
 This will prove to be one of the greatest boons for the agricultural interests of the Twin Falls tract that has ever been launched. One of the objects of the corporation set forth in its preamble is: "To raise the standard of produce, and to have the same reach the consumer in the best possible manner and condition; that all shipments of produce are properly graded, weighed and labeled; to establish better markets and to secure better shipping facilities."

 We have here a great potato country, yet last fall our potato market was straggled while less favored sections with no better freight rates than we possessed found a ready market for their potatoes at a satisfactory price. Had we done as they have done, organized and co-operated, learned what variety the market demanded, have grown that kind, and when our shipments went forth seen that the quality was equal to the grade, our potatoes would not only have commanded a high price last fall, but would have become better each succeeding year as our name became known in the market centers as reliable shippers.
 It was the Hood River Fruit growers' association and their business-like method of handling the fruits that brought fame to that section of the country. It was the Rocky Ford Pielon Growers' association that boosted the industry of that country. The Twin Falls County Produce association has as far as possible copied the articles of incorporation of the latter organization, it having had nine years of successful business and shipped thousand of dollars of produce each season.
 Do not hesitate to say that if our County Produce association, which will be organized next Saturday, will be supported by the farmers of this tract as above mentioned organizations are supported in their respective localities, our section will profit as have those sections.
 Trusting that this movement will be of interest to you and that we may enlist your support, and thanking you for the assistance you have given us in the past, I am,
 Yours respectfully,
 J. B. LEAHY,
 County Secretary, Farmers' Co-operative Union,
