"DOC" PRATT PLEADS GUILTY

Twin Falls Saloonkeeper Arrested for Sabbath Violation.

COMPLAINT OF HOWIE CAUSES ARREST FOR ILLEGAL SELLING.

Pratt Throws Himself on the Mercy of the Court and Receives Lighter Sentence.

Acting on Complaint of Mel Howie, the county attorney issued a warrant charging L. E. Pratt, proprietor of the saloon on East Main with selling intoxicants on Sunday. After receiving legal advice Pratt decided not to fight the case and pleaded guilty to the charge, throwing himself upon the mercy of the court. He was fined, with costs, about $87.00.

The exposure of Pratt came about in a novel manner through the trial of the complaining witness, Mel Howie, charged with forging checks in Butte, Howie, brought up in court, pleaded guilty to the offense charged and when sentence was about to be passed, under a fire of questions from Attorney Herriott, told of getting liquor on Sunday and getting intoxicated so that his crime was committed under the influence of liquor. His evidence as to where he obtained the liquor led to Pratt's arrest and conviction. Howie was set free to act as complaining witness against Pratt.

With Pratt was arrested Ed Farrell on the same charge and the same sentence passed upon him.

MARBUTT-BRAY NUPTIALS.

Football Star Takes Away a Twin Falls Bride.

Last Sunday afternoon occurred the wedding of Charles Jessie Marbutt of Shoshone, Idaho, and Miss Ethyl Pansy Bray of Rupert. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Alward Chamberlain at the Episcopal rectory in our city. Those present at the wedding were Miss Annie Smith, Miss Sarah Higgins and Mrs. Chamberlain.

The bride is one of the popular girls of Rupert. She is the daughter of Mr. Con Bray, and has been teaching in her home town during the past year.

Charles Marbutt is the son of Mr. Wm. Marbutt of Shoshone, Idaho. He has been attending the State Normal school at Albion during the past four years, and has achieved quite a reputation for his work on the football eleven. Many of our young people will remember him through the visits of Albion's team to our city in past seasons, and all join in wishing both himself and bride much future happiness.

FOUND TRAVELING TOO SLOW.

Messrs. Dooth, Craven and Hahn Return Home.

C. J. Hahn, J. W. Craven and C. E. Dooth left Sunday afternoon with a complete equipment of camp utensils and provisions in a immigrant wagon bound for Jarbridge, by the way at Three Creek. At the latter place the men were to pick up Al Larson, an experienced miner, and then proceed with the outfit to the mine camp. Owing to the heavy fall of snow and the hard going when Three Creek and the Larson ranch was reached Monday, the Twin Falls men decided to return home and let Larson proceed with the outfit on Wednesday. The three Twin Falls men returned home from Three Creek Tuesday and will later go via stage into the camp when the weather moderates and the snow drifts are somewhat broken.

FORMING A BIG ORCHARD CO.

F. A. French Will Develop North Side Land.

TWO LOCAL ATTORNEYS MAKE UP BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

Snake River Valley Orchards Company is the Name Under Which the Orchard Will Be Planted.

F. A. French, who holds several hundred acres of valuable land north of Milner on the first North Side segregation has interested some local men in the formation of a company with capitalization of $100,000, to put his land into orchards and sell the land when in bearing to investors in the form of stock. W. P. Guthrie and C. D. Stockings, two local attorneys, have stock in the company and together with French, composed the directorate of the new concern, which is incorporated as the Snake River Valley Orchards company.

The plan under which the company will operate is to plant the total acreage under company management, and then selling five and ten-acre tracts on monthly payment plan, with a small cash payment on the contract. At the end of four or five years the small tract owners will be in possession of bearing orchards purchased with little outlay at any one time.

JARBIDGE IN LIMELIGHT.

W. A. Stevens Talks of New Gold Camp.

W. A. Stevens, a mining engineer and operator of San Francisco, is in the city from Jarbridge, the new gold camp in the Sagebrush state. This camp came into prominence last August when a rich strike was made in the Bourne mine. Since then many other rich places have been opened up. The early snow and the extreme coldness of the country have discouraged many prospectors making the trip. Mr. Stevens has taken up a number of claims in the district and is making arrangements for supplies to be shipped to the property.

The district Mr. Stevens says is five miles long and about two miles wide and that the area is probably greater than that. Six operators in the district already have excellent showings. The appearance of tellurium and the black sulfides of silver in the ore. Mr. Stevens declares argues better than anything for the permanency of the ore bodies. Mr. Stevens is accompanied by Dan Greenwell—Desert Evening News.

WILL DISCUSS DECREE SUIT

Mass Meeting Called for Friday Evening.

SUITS BETWEEN WATER CO. AND SETTLERS TO BE DISCUSSED.

Commercial Club Making Effort to Arrive at Intelligent Understanding of Contention.

Twin Falls, Idaho, Jan. 4, 1910.

Dear Sir: As is generally known, two suits have been commenced in the district court of this county which interest all of the people of the Twin Falls tract. Just what their result will be from a legal standpoint the ordinary man cannot say, but it is evident that they cover matters of great importance.

One is commonly referred to as the decree suit, and has been brought to determine the water rights under our canal system as against the North Side tract and other irrigation projects.

The other is to annul the Twin Falls Land and Water Company to make changes in the deed recently executed to the Canal Company so as to remove therefrom certain reservations.

It is claimed that the first of these suits is liable to produce prolonged and harmful litigation and that the other may prevent the carrying on of works of development which should be earnestly encouraged.

The officers of the Twin Falls Commercial club are directly concerned in either of these actions and expressly disclaim any intention or desire to take sides in the controversy, but because of the public interest which has been aroused and believing that all discussion of the situation will be helpful have thought it advisable to arrange for an open meeting at which these matters can be taken up and fully considered. Such a meeting will be held in the rooms of the Club in Twin Falls on Friday afternoon, January 7th, at 2 o'clock.

It is important that representative citizens of the tract be present and you are urged to attend.

TWIN FALLS COMMERCIAL CLUB,
J. M. MAXWELL, President,
J. F. STOLTZ, Secretary.

After the wedding a delightful supper was served, after which the bridal couple departed on the night train for Salt Lake City for a brief honeymoon trip.

PENNY A DAY FUND GROWING.

Several Hundred Subscriptions Already Obtained.

Although no definite reports have been made from hundreds of more solicitors working for the Penny a Day Library Fund, it is estimated from various reports that several hundred subscriptions have already been obtained. The aim of the Library fund in promoting this Penny a Day fund is to secure one thousand subscriptions of a Penny a day which will bring in a fund sufficient to put the work of the Library on a broad and dignified basis. That the Library is increasing in usefulness is shown by the fact that nearly two hundred people have taken out borrowers cards, and more than a hundred books are in constant circulation. Since the privileges of the library have been made absolutely free for all citizens of Twin Falls, a large number have applied for membership in the library. The Times has offered to publish the full list of names of subscribers to the Penny a Day Fund, in lists of fifty, following is list No. 1:

EVANS-WEST MARRIAGE.

Elders Daughter of County Auditor Weds.

A very pretty home wedding took place at the home of the bride last evening at six, when Mr. Fred L. Evans and Miss Marguerite West were united in the holy bond by Rev. Mr. Gourley of the Presbyterian church. The happy couple left on the evening train for Salt Lake City on a brief wedding trip after which they will be at home to their friends in this city. The only guests present besides the family of the bride were Misses Fancher and Foss.

The bride is the eldest daughter of Auditor H. T. West, has been employed in the auditor's office for the past year and has a whole host of friends who wish her the greatest happiness in her wedded life. The groom has also many friends in this city where he has been employed with Ball brothers.

SHERIFF ARRESTS BLIND PIGGER

Milner Man in Toils for Operating Without License.

HABIT OF BOOZE CONFISCATED BY OFFICIALS MAKING ARREST.

Man by Name of Lynch Caught With Contrabands in a Little Shack With Two of His Customers.

Starting evening Deputy Sheriff F. S. Seelye, and H. A. Graham, made a pilgrimage to Milner Saturday, and brought back a man by the name of Lynch, whom they had caught selling liquor without a county license. With Lynch were two other men found in the shack where the illegal liquor emporium was established. Besides the prisoners all of the booze found was confiscated and shipped to this city to be introduced as evidence.

Lynch was brought up before Probate Judge Shields Tuesday morning on the charge of selling liquor without a license and upon pleading guilty was fined $200 and costs, which amounted to $270.

The two men arrested with Lynch were dismissed owing to lack of evidence against them.

A rather vexing problem confronts County Attorney Guthrie and Judge Shields in the disposition of the barrel of booze captured with Lynch, and which he now claims is his property. The local option law falls to specify what shall be done with the liquor and it is possible that Lynch can reclaim the stuff. However, the two officials concerned are going to hold the barrel and its contents until forced by law to give it up.

PUTTING IN FINE EQUIPMENT.

Western Auto Company Putting in Machinery and Supplies.

The Western Auto company recently formed in this city by Morris J. B. Hall and Frank Bellville, has opened the big garage on Shoshone street for business. The work of getting the big building enclosed and fitted up for the work has taken a great deal longer than the owners anticipated and it was only last week that its doors were opened for any kind of business. Besides caring for autos for individual owners, the new company have expended about $2,000 for machinery and well-repair promptly and skillfully all kinds of cars. Supplies for all the cars used in this city have been ordered and it is the intention of the car, an advertisement for which will appear in this issue. The new car at the price quoted is certainly a bargain and the new firm should prove one of the best sellers of this coming season.

THE EXPOSITION OF IRRIGATION

Salt Lake City Designated as First Place of Meeting.

UNITED EXPOSITION ASSOCIATION OF IRRIGATED STATES FORMED.

Exposition is the Result of Plans Made Possible by Chicago Land Show Last November.

The United Exposition Association of Irrigated States will hold its first annual meeting at Salt Lake City, April 6, 1910, and the delegates from Idaho will be elected at the convention of the State Horticultural society to be held at Nampa the fifth and sixth of January, 1910.
A great deal of interest attaches to the convention at Salt Lake as it is the first step in forming a permanent organization composed of all irrigated states for the purpose of showing the people of other sections of the world what the west has and the brilliant future which lies before it.

The United Exposition Association was founded at Chicago during December, 1909, and is the outcome of the Land Exposition. Never has the irrigated west been advertised to the people of the world as it was at Chicago and never in the history of the United States have the people as a whole taken such an active interest in all questions pertaining to irrigation. The attendance at the Chicago paper was upwards of 200,000 and the crowd was composed almost exclusively of farmers and inventors. The quantity of curiosity seekers was gigantic and a great many of them went away truly interested. Although the admission fee was fifty cents there were large numbers who came again and again to look over the exhibits and the products of Idaho attracted more attention than those of any other three states combined. This was in spite of the fact that the Tribune was financially interested in the show and on the occasion the Chicago paper would give it any publicity whatever. It was the last feature which showed to the western delegates that the time has come for an organization composed of western men, men whose hearts and souls were with the west all the time, who were developing the west not merely for the gold which it gave them but because of the opportunities it offers to poor half starved human beings the world over to come to a beautiful country where the climate is glorious, man is hospitable and nature lavishes her riches on all who will ask.

Several enthusiastic meetings were held and a temporary organization was effected with C. J. Sinsel of Boise as chairman and Rolly Atkinson of the Legislature, Soerens, Commercial clubs as secretary. A vice president was chosen from each state and resolutions were passed calling for delegates to meet in Chicago to attend a meeting at Salt Lake City, April 6, 1910, for the purpose of forming a permanent organization.
Delegates present at Chicago, and there were 64 all told, pledged themselves to work unceasingly in their own states and to do everything they could to arouse the people to the importance of the occasion.

The United States Exposition Association of Irrigated States will mark a new era in the development of the west. It will examine into the management and conduct of any irrigation exposition, it will not attempt to exclude other sections from displaying their products, but it will attend to the general arrangements and see that the irrigation states are cared for in every way bottling their importance and that they receive every consideration they are entitled to. It will not countenance any show which is not able to command the support of the entire press and people of the United States nor which is too strongly representative of any one faction. It will endeavor to have the large centers of the middle west hold exhibitions of irrigated products at stated intervals and at such time as will best suit the irrigated farmer and fruit grower. It will bind together the western states in a union which shall have for its purpose the true development of the west, it will bring the western states into closer touch with each other and enable them to draw strength on all questions relating to the common good. This is to be the most important meeting ever held in the west and on its success depends many matters of vital importance.

The following states are now members of the temporary organization and will be represented at the Salt Lake meeting: Idaho, Washington, Oregon, California, Utah, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, Texas and Nevada.

For Basis of Taxation In This State.
The county commissioners of the state, in their convention at Boise last week, finding that they are up against a problem which is becoming unmanageable under the present laws, just like the assessors of the state in former conventions, found themselves sidestepping the main issue just as the assessors did.
"We cannot boldly state by formal resolution that we will violate the laws of the state," was the sentiment expressed, and therefore the question of fixing a value at which property shall be assessed in the state of Idaho was left an unsettled one, with, however, an understanding that the laws should be violated even though formal announcement of that fact should not be made by resolution.
It was found impracticable to obey the law, yet embarrassing to admit it. Should the law be followed and property be assessed at its full value, more than $2,000,000 a year would be wrung from the people for fixed taxes than are necessary for or demands for which the tax is assessed, according to a statement of State Auditor Taylor. The annual school tax, for instance, is five mills on the dollar valuation. Should this valuation be arbitrarily increased four times the present amount of school taxes would be raised. There are half a dozen or more special taxes provided for by law which require a percentage levy upon valuation. These funds now produce annually $300,000 and the state auditor pointed out, that should valuations be raised to a cash basis these fixed funds would produce at least $1,200,000 annually, which is far in excess of the needs of the state. These figures were too much even for those commissioners who were inclined to go to a cash basis of valuation.
It was decided to authorize a committee to prepare a recommendation for such changes in the existing laws as will permit a cash valuation basis to be established without working this hardship. This committee is to report at a meeting to be held in December next year, when the assessors will meet and recommend changes in the law for a continuation of the Legislature which will meet soon thereafter.
The commissioners adopted resolutions declaring in favor of complete revision of the revenue laws, strongly favoring good roads, commending the objects of the state geographical society, recommending the establishment of a state home for feeble-minded children, endorsing the proposed constitutional amendment removing prohibition on sheriffs as assessors succeeding themselves in office, and commending the action of Governor Brady in calling the commissioners together.

HATCHING BY INCUBATOR.

Examination of Eggs on Fourth Day Will Indicate Infertility.

I was reared on a farm by a father who gave me several pets, such as chickens and rabbits, but when I grew up I thought it took an animal as large as a cow to make an animal from, but a neighbor boy talked me into going in the poultry business with him.

The first thing we did was to purchase a first-class incubator, 200-egg capacity. Then we went for 200 eggs of pure-bred stock, for which we paid $20. We started the machine and gave them a rest for thirty-six hours. That brings them together and you will have a better hatch.

By the time the eggs were ready the incubator had been adjusted to 103 degrees. We put the eggs in the tray closed the incubator and at the end of the four days examined the eggs. We took a tester and held the eggs up to the light. The fertile eggs were put back into the trays, and those that were not were laid aside to be fed to the young chicks.

We turned the eggs twice each day at the end of the ninth day. We set 85 per cent of the fertile eggs hatched. We left the chicks in the incubator about thirty-six hours and when we took them out we tried to have the temperature from 87 to 100 degrees.

On taking the chicks from the incubator, we should have had them with clean, so as not to have a circulation of air. We had learned that if one takes the chicks out of the incubator and puts them in a cool brooder it means death to them.

The first thing the chicks began to do was the shells they came out of. They had been put into the oven and when dry we crumbled them up in our hands and gave them to the chicks. On the brooders we sprinkled some food and gave them a bowel regulator. When the chicks got a little larger we began to feed cracked wheat, cracked corn and Johnny-cake.

For succulent food, during the winter we gave them beetie cut up fine and they relished it. This routine was followed through. This routine is older and later we have never found reason to change it.—W. B. Arkansas, in Farm Progress.

EARLY START IN GARDEN.

Kentucky Farmer Plows Land In Ridges for Quick Start.

I have always gotten great satisfaction out of my garden, and it has been a matter of pride with me to have fresh garden stuff in the spring sooner than my neighbors.

The main factor in having it so early has been the fact that I could begin work in my garden long before any others around me. In other words, the garden spot had been selected with reference to early cultivation and quick growth. When I bought the farm I found a good, large garden plot fenced with a six-foot woven wire right along side the yard. It certainly was extremely handy; one could step out of the kitchen almost into the garden to get the vegetables.

But the location was the only thing that commended it. The soil was cold and wet, and held water like a tub. I could not make even a good chicken yard of it.

Fortunately I found a place for the garden near by. It was about an acre of land, close by the horse barn and wagon shed, partly level, with a sloping hillside toward the south and west, and another level, raised portion lower down. And just across the road a fine spring for water came from a distance. Enormous shipping business is done all the time now in unseasonable produce that comes from latitudes farther south. These things are too high-priced for plain farmers, so we have got to live on "hog and hominy" in the winter and early spring unless we can provide some of these things in our own garden.

I don't find that my neighbors do much in this line, but we want green things in winter as much as other people do, and I am willing to take the trouble to have them. And after all it is not much work. We have a good celery as can be bought in the city markets—better, I think, because it is fresh and crisp out of the earth bank; and spinach pretty much all the time. We cover the spinach with sufficient straw for protection, and even when covered, with snow can have it if we want it.

One practice that I have found very satisfactory in helping to plant things in the garden extra early is to plow the fall in the place where the soil is naturally lightest and driest—on the land to plant for the very early start, and then, after thorough harrowing, throw it with a two-horse plow, in as high ridges as possible. These ridges can be plowed down and planted when level land is entirely too wet to do anything with it. It sometimes enables me to have early lettuce and peas weeks sooner than my neighbors, and we all think it is well worth while to take any needed trouble to have them. But, of course, that is a matter of personal preference, but on the score of economy in the living as well as because it contributes to health and comfort, I am certain that a good garden pays.

Some people seem to think that what they call "garden truck" has little food value. As compared with bread and meat, of course, none of the vegetables are nearly so nutritious. But we need something besides nutrition, and I am absolutely sure that the free use of vegetables and fruits not only reduce the quantity of bread and meat eaten, but always contribute to the health of the consumer.

Such things are particularly needed by women and children, and should compose at least half the food consumed. We want some vegetable and fruit at breakfast, and never less than three regular meals a day. And when we have a good garden it saves half the cost of living.—L. E. D., Kentucky.

ORCHARD HEATING.

O. S. L. Will Publish and Distribute Book on Subject.

The following is an extract from a letter from D. E. Burley, general passenger agent of the O. S. L.: "Within the next two weeks I expect to have a very complete pamphlet on the press on the subject of 'Orchard Heating,' for the protection of fruit buds from early spring frost by the 'smudging' method. The text of the pamphlet has been submitted by one of the foremost authorities on this subject in this country, and as you have gone through considerable expense in the issuance of this publication, and have tried to have it made as comprehensive and complete as possible, we are very anxious to have it get into the hands of orchardists throughout Oregon Short Line territory.

"Orchard Heating" is a subject that has been but slightly touched upon up to the present time, but it is one that should be thoroughly understood by every fruit grower in the country, because its successful practice means the saving of thousands of dollars each season, whereas its lack will result in heavy loss, as exemplified in the almost total failure of the peach crop in Idaho during the season just past.

Result of Experience. "Experiments carried on in California and Colorado during the last few years have conclusively proven the practicability of the undertaking, and when it is understood that the expense of operating and maintaining a lay-out for an orchard is only between 2 per cent and 4 per cent of the actual net profits saved by its adoption, it will be clearly perceived that the orchardist who does adopt it has an immense advantage over his competitor who depends upon "chance" for the protection of his fruit, because it is clearly a case of 'everything coming in and nothing going out' in the matter of added profits."

A number of these books on orchard heating will be at the Times' office in about three weeks, and all persons interested can have one by calling here. Rate On Snuggie Oil.

In order to assist the orchardists of the state to guard their fruit from the danger of late frosts, the Oregon Short Line Railroad company has made a rate of 50 cents on snuggie oil. The rate is from Los Angeles and Point Richmond, Calif., to southern Idaho points. It is presumed the orchardists will protect themselves by laying in a supply of the oil. Snuggie pots saved the fruit crops of Colorado last year, when nearly every other section had a complete failure. Notice of the reduced rate has been sent to the various commercial clubs of the state by F. H. Platsted, general traffic manager of the Short Line.

Pumpkins That Advertise.

Even the farmer, once the type of simplicity and now progressiveness, is learning how to advertise through his knowledge of the weaknesses of nature. One of these weaknesses is found in the lardy pumpkin. Bruise a growing pumpkin and the scar will never be cleared away, but will show in the ripe pumpkin in the shape of delicate little yellow warts. Starting with this principle alone, shrewd farmers have made their pumpkin farms valuable. After the vegetables get good sized and prove that they will be fine ones they go into the market with a sharp stick scar them so that when they are ready for market their happy faces bear in words of war legends like these: "Eat me at Smith's," "Smith will make pies of me soon," "Brown's pies are best," "Jones' pies are delicious," "You can eat me inside."

The wily farmer hauls these warty fellows to the market, and calling Smith-Jones-and-Brown-from-their respective restaurants, shows the strange freak of nature. Of course, a sale is made on sight, and the pumpkin lies at the front of the restaurant for a few days to astonish passers-by until it must be made into pies to save it. Then the farmer discovers another freak pumpkin, suitably marked, to replace it. Fancy prices are to be had for these pumpkins, and stony patches that would never pay taxes in any other crop produce wealth in pumpkins.—Farm Progress.

A Fair Exchange.

(Original.)

"So was a southern beauty just snatched by a West Point cadet two years her senior. She had graduated at a young ladies' finishing school; he was about to be graduated into the United States cavalry. She had learned to write an essay. She didn't need to learn to write a love letter. She was born that way, just as a poet is born, not made. He had learned analytical geometry, conic sections and all that. He didn't need to learn to talk soft to a girl; he breathed the spirit of 'sposon' in with the West Point air. The atmosphere there has been so long laden with it that it's impregnated—that is, in June, when the roses bloom. They were dawdling in flirtation walk.

"What an odd necklace," he remarked, glancing at a circle of finger rings fastened together by gold links she wore about her neck—"each ring different!"

"The donors were all different too."

"What do you mean by the donors?"

"Each ring was given me by—"

"An accepted suitor?"

"Well—"

"Don't deny it. Rather tell me about them."

"The rings or the suitors?"

"Both."

"Well, this turquoise cluster was given me by a Gaxen haired, blue eyed boy when I was fifteen. He said he was desperately in love with me, and he was—for a month. This marquis solitaire I got from a young pianist in Chicago. He tried to ride over a precipice later on, but his horse balked. This gypsy set pearl was from a professor. He was an old fellow, thirty-one at least. He taught Scandinavian or Egyptian literature or something of the sort. He'd never been married, but he could talk so beautifully about the places he hadn't seen that he'd make you wish to go there. A doctor gave me this sapphire. He had been all over the world, but you'd never know it. He couldn't say boo to a goose. I used to say to him, 'My friend, the professor could go through Chinatown and make you believe he'd been at Pekin when the allied forces entered; you would make a marionette squeak out of the battle of Gettysburg.'

"I'll bet the doctor knew a lot more than the professor."

"Not for women."

"Well, go on with this string of bleeding hearts."

"The man who gave me this ruby was splendid—young like us. He was so fierce. Are you an angler?"

"No. What's that got to do with it?"

"Then you won't understand. My ruby lover splashed about, darning this way and that way, one day treating me with sovereign contempt, the next with anger, till I thought I'd never land him."

"And who?"

"There's the ring to show."

"How about the fellow who gave you the opal?"

"Oh, that furnished me with a dead easy thing in the breaking. I was afraid he'd interfere with the diamond between sapphires, and I had to cut him short. I told him he'd broken my heart, for I never could marry a man who'd given me an opal—nothing but unhappiness could possibly result from such a union. But now tell me about your book of beauty. Your chum stole it and put it yesterday out of your room."

"The rascal!"

"I've brought it with me to return it to you. There's No. 1, this black laced, black eyed girl. She'd be pretty if she hadn't such a homely mouth and a putrid nose. How long were you engaged to her?"

"Oh, these girls aren't girls I've been engaged to. They're girls who have refused me. I only thought I loved them, never really knew what love was till now."

"When did it strike you?"

"Just after guard mount yesterday morning. I was marching off the old guard, and I saw a group of girls among the lookers on. One among them caught my eye. I recognized my 'belle dame sans merci'."

"You talk just like the professor. What does 'belle dame sans merci' mean?"

"He stopped and gazed at her with all the fever of his handsome eyes, but with an expression of despair in them. 'Beautiful one without mercy,' he replied.

"She turned and looked down through an opening in the trees on the Hudson, evidently to conceal a deep emotion."

"Oh, if I could only trust you!" she said in broken tones. "You, the only one of all men—! My punishment is more than I can bear."

"I was struck."

"It has come at last, but to mock me! Let go my hand!"

"Her bidding was obeyed suddenly, so suddenly that she was surprised. At the same time the woe exhaled, somewhat irrelevantly, 'Great Scott!'

"What's the matter?"

"Officer—and we're off limits!"

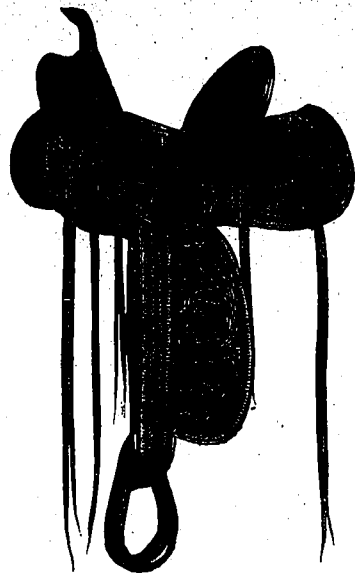

An officer with several ladies passed. The cadet faced, drew himself up stiffly, a ramrod and brought his forefinger to his cap like a dummy worked by wires.

"That night when the pair parted a ring set with twin diamonds—a family heirloom—passed into the necklace, and her photograph passed into his book of beauty."

Five years later they met again, both married. There was a delayed recognition. "Then began a skirmish very different from the one in which they had engaged at West Point. Not her could she remember the other's name."

The Baptism and Temptation of Jesus—Matt. 3:13-17, 4:1-11.

Golden Text. In that he hath suffered being tempted, he is able to succor them that are tempted. Heb. 2:18. Verses 13, 14—Why did Jesus want to be baptised?

What reason is there for the opinion that John's refusal to baptise Jesus was a reasonable position to take?

Verses 15—Is baptism essential to salvation and if not, what is its purpose?

Repentance seems to have been a necessary step to John's baptism, did Jesus need to repent?

Verses 16, 17—What evidence is there that any person but Jesus saw the opening heavens, the Holy Spirit, or heard the voice from heaven?

If a few of those present, who were spiritual, saw and heard these things, is there any evidence to show that the multitude did also?

Verses 1—Why did the Spirit lead Jesus into the wilderness.

What reasons are there to believe that temptation was or was not, essential for the spiritual development of Jesus?

Is temptation necessary, or a part of God's educational process for all of us? Give your reasons.

How much virtue would there be in doing right, if there were neither temptation nor opportunity to do wrong?

Verses 2—Why did Jesus fast and what is the general effect of fasting upon spiritual life?

If Christians follow the example of Jesus in the matter of fasting, what results would probably follow?

UTILITY OF INCUBATORS.

Only Method Practicable for Out-of-Season Hatching.

I wish to give some of my experience in using incubators and brooders, which I have found absolutely necessary for the successful raising of poultry. Before I purchased my machines I was wholly without experience in poultry raising.

I had the back end of a lot, no building of any kind, and but little money, yet I wanted to raise chickens because my neighbors were making money raising them. "Necessity is the mother of invention," so I set my wits to work.

I bought a small incubator for $12 and set it in my henhouse, in the dining-room, with 50 Harrod Plymouth Rock eggs that cost me $6.50.

While the incubator was running, I got a load of old dry goods boxes for $1.50, and in old hours built two small coops. These were placed out and covered on three sides and roofed with tar paper. Each coop was 6 feet long and 3 1/2 feet high in front and 2 feet in the back. Not counting my work, the expense for these was $5.60.

"Then I bought a small brooder for $6.75 and set it in one of the coops. I also fenced in my lot with poultry netting, which cost me $22.40.

My incubator hatched 121 chicks, which went into the brooder coop with brooder, where I kept them till my next hatch came off, not quite a month later. Then the first chicks went into the second coop, without a brooder, but with a heavy cloth stretched over about half the floor space, about six inches above the floor. From my second hatch I set 139 chicks. This lot of chicks had to be kept in their small houses for almost a month, on account of very rainy weather shortly after they were hatched.

By close attention in keeping the coops clean and in feeding, I succeeded in raising 115 chicks from my first batch, and 131 from the second. The first lot was sold as broilers, averaging 60 lbs each, about 10 weeks old. The second lot brought 50 cents each, this bringing in $134.50 from the chickens.

In addition to the cost of the fencing machines and eggs, the feed cost $21; oil, $1.90, making a total expense of $24.40, which was not paid for until some cash had been received. So I had more than $50 more money than I put in, besides my machines, fencing and coops, all good as now.

Hens, to hatch and raise this number of chicks, would have required a house, which would have cost all the money that I had to hatch with. I could not have made the start I did in any other way than with the machines, and, besides, hens would not set early enough to get broilers on the market when the price was highest. This, then, is the great advantage of incubators and brooders for hatching and rearing chickens.

Viewed from any standpoint, incubators and brooders ought to be in every poultry yard. Modern civilization demands poultry every day in the year, and to have them in the winter requires that we pervert nature, so to speak, by hatching out of season, winter especially, and this cannot be done without incubators and brooders.—O. R. Missouri.

Give a reasonable opinion, as to whether Jesus would probably feel the pangs of hunger during the ceastay of the fast?

What are the limits of the rule that reaction generally follows exaltation, and state whether Jesus was likely passing through this reaction when he was "an hungred"?

Verses 3.—To what part of the nature of Jesus did the Devil made his first appeal?

Give your reasons for your opinion as to whether physical temptations are as numerous, or dangerous as spiritual temptations?

Verses 4.—What would have been the moral quality of the act if Jesus had made bread out of stones?

In what sense do good men live by the word of God?

Verses 5.—Did Jesus go boldly into the city, and if not, what did take place?

What are the reasons to believe that the mental temptation, would be as powerful as if it had been physically performed?

Verses 6, 7.—What does this second temptation appeal to?

Are there any exceptions to the rule that a man of God will never go contrary to God's established laws? What is it to tempt God?

Verses 8-11.—What method did the Devil adopt to give Jesus the most extensive view of his kingdom?

What are "the kingdoms of the world" which the Devil controls?

How could the Devil have given Jesus what he promised?

WHOLESOME CELLAR AIR.

The Use of Unshelved Lime Very Beneficial.

It is well known to be the best plan to keep the cellar perfectly dark after it is stored with the winter supplies. The vegetables and fruits will all keep better if this is done; the action of light causes chemical changes which tend to spoil the food.

But to keep the cellar dark and warm in cold weather, it has to be closed tight. This can be made or gas ventilation. Naturally the air becomes stagnant and unwholesome. It may even become a breeding-place for disease.

An open vessel of unslaked lime kept in the cellar will sweeten the atmosphere and keep it wholesome. Better than lime is calcium carbide for this purpose. This chemical is rich in oxygen, and in decomposing in the moist atmosphere, it absorbs the dampness and produces a large amount of this purifying element, overcoming the noxious gases that may arise from various sources. Only a little carbide should be used at a time. A half pound is sufficient for the ordinary kitchen cellar, and should be renewed every few weeks. As the carbide in damp air liberates acetylene gas, a larger amount might produce enough gas to be dangerous. The carbide should be set in a pan in the dry part of the cellar, and the reserve supply kept absolutely dry.—M. G. Rambo.

PRES. TAFT AFTER THE INSURGENTS

Patronage of Federal Office Will be Withheld.

LA FOLLETTE, CLAPP, CUMMINS AND BRISTON ARE ENEMIES.

Insurgents Welcome Fight and Declare That Action of Executive Pleases Them.

Washington, Jan. 4.—War without quarter will be waged between the Taft administration and such Republican insurgents in congress as are opposed to and who oppose in the future the Taft legislative program. The battle is not with those tariff insurgents who quietly sheathed their blades after defeat, but with those who have nursed disappointment and are whetting their knives publicly in anticipation of continued conflict. The battle broke suddenly today. At first it was a single shot; then a scattered firing; swiftly the thing spread, until tonight it has taken on the aspect of a general engagement, the consequences of which cannot be foretold.

The substance of it is, that senators and congressmen who have taken a stand against the present administration and who continue to align themselves with the opposition to the president's policies, are to receive no consideration in matters of patronage.

Utterances such as that made by Senator Cummins at a recent dinner in Des Moines, by Senator Briston in previous speeches, anti-Taft articles in Senator LaFollette's magazine, and a recent interview by Senator Clapp on the pure food stuffs are said to have stirred the president to action. It has been reported that some Republican insurgents in the house have tried to obtain the appointment of men more or less openly out of harmony with the Taft regime.

Taft Listens to Friends. Mr. Taft's closest friends advised him that it would be impolitic for him to give snubs of war to those who had warred against him, and who might even co-operate with the Democrats in congress against the Taft legislative program and in the country at large by creating anti-Taft sentiment in advance of the 1912-conviction.

It is stated without reserve tonight that the president has listened to such advice and has decided to follow it.

The matter of appointing a member on the waterworks commission was taken up and R. W. Jones and F. E. Shamberlain were appointed to meet with the appointees of the water company and pick the fifth member of the commission which shall have power to regulate prices on water for this city. The water company have thirty days in which to appoint their two members.

ENEMIES OF THE ORCHARD.

Commercial Growers Profit by General Attacks.

Is the San Jose scale, which has been heralded from the western coast to the Atlantic as the worst enemy that could possibly affect the culture of tree fruits, going to be a benefit in a general way to the business, instead of a detriment?

It was predicted just three years ago in a bulletin issued by the Maryland experiment station that such would be the case, and I believe that it is working out that way. But it cannot be denied that the orchard that is neglected will surely come to the end and it was bound for, sooner than it otherwise would.

In old times when there borers or other enemies of the fruit business, there was apparently no great development in fruit culture. My father planted in 1842 a commercial orchard on the central part of what was known as "Southside" Virginia.

He had to learn by commonsense and experience how to ship peaches, and there was not at that time anywhere a maker of peach baskets or special light boxes. So my father had bushel boxes made, with ventilation through one-inch auger holes on all sides, and with slinged lids; and they were returned. He made the business a success. But in time the borers got so thick in the trees that they killed out most of them. He could not get anyone to work on the borers and did not have time himself.

"This enemy of peach trees does so much damage now as ever, and there seems to be no easy way to get them out of trees. But men in the business employ 'rather low-priced' labor to dig the borers out, and fruit is still in sufficient supply to cover the demand."

Later came the San Jose scale. This is worse than the borer, perhaps, because it attacks so many trees in so wholesale a fashion. At least, it would seem that an enemy so widespread in its habitat, and so capable of inflicting multiplication, must be unconquerable. But now the scale is counted of less importance than the borer, for the reason that the scale can be attacked in a wholesale fashion, while the borer never can be.

Hence it is claimed now that the scale has been an actual advantage to the commercial orchard men. It is admitted by all that to conquer the scale a certain amount of work in spraying is bound to be done. And it seems that outside of its relation to the scale itself, the lime-sulphur spray is beneficial to the trees and the fruit in other ways.

Of course, the owner of a few extra trees would find it profitable to treat them both for scale and frost. Geo. B. Morton, Maryland, in the Farm Progress.

POULTRY FOR PLEASURE.

Something in the Work Which Is Satisfying and Restful.

I once had a neighbor who was a level-headed and successful business man, and at the same time a regular poultry crank. He was so level-headed about business that he never made a mistake in it in any particular, and he devoted long hours of work and interest to it. It gave him a large income.

His poultry was wholly a side issue, but to hear him talk about it you would think his living depended on the success he made in it. His business he never mentioned; and his poultry he talked about as often he got an interested listener.

He made the poultry business very successful, and it was good evidence to me that the complaints made by so many that there was no money in the business were but the natural result of poor management.

These points being of food, the next thing was to start. I thought he would build a half dozen houses, fence up several acres of land, and buy at least a hundred hens and the proper accompaniment of roosters. Most people who jump into the poultry business without experience are tempted to do that way. But he didn't. He built a small house, fenced up a small yard and bought a dozen hens and one poultry paper.

I think my friend must have had good country raising, and a mother who raised poultry and had learned by experience all the points that made success. At any rate he didn't do anything fancy.

His wife was a city-bred woman, so he attended to the chickens. I never saw a man who seemed to find working with chickens such an attractive business. He seemed to find looking after the hens and the fluffy little chicks a strong reminder of his boyhood days that it was the greatest pleasure of his life. A good many of his friends gazed him considerably about his "bankrupting investment," but all of them who could do so, sought his eggs and his chicks.

I am not going into details in this article; they are like those of every other man who is level-headed, and puts money and energy into any sort of enterprise that is normally profitable. He made a success, made it pay well, and he certainly enjoyed it. And now he has gone out of the financial business and is concentrating his efforts on poultry. He has made a competency, and is tired of the commercial game that keeps a man perpetually on the rack.

His business was exciting, and of course, interesting, and with luck he made money; his poultry business is quiet and restful; he is in touch with nature and gets the enjoyment that a thing of interest in itself, with no thought of the money involved, can give a man.

There is a lesson in this that many man so situated may learn with value to himself. Making money is very pleasant if one needs money; but raising chickens, cattle, horses or crops appeal to something better in a man than "ditty lucc" can, and it gets one back to nature where the greatest real satisfaction can be had.

Much of my life I have played the commercial game myself. I have quit and the things that I found so satisfying—chickens, cattle, horses or crops, a colt, a calf, and some pigs on the farm, I am now finding more pleasure than I ever had in the commercial game.

It is a restful sort of life, and is apt to appeal irresistibly to men who have of their younger days on a farm.—R. B. A., Nebraska, in Farm Progress.

POULTRY IN WINTER WEATHER.

Caring for Chickens During the Winter Months.

The season has gone by when poultry can get much to eat on the farm. You must furnish them what they need.

To do well and lay right along in cold weather hens must have nearby the kind of food they find themselves in summer out in the fields. Have you ever watched a hen as she went around the farm in warm weather? That is a good way to learn what she likes best to eat. Now she stops to take a bite of green grass; hens like grass as well as any farm creature. Now she chases a grasshopper or some bug; that is the way she gets her most scraps. Now she picks a deep hole in an apple; here she shows her taste for fruit. In another place she picks up a bit of gravel. A little farther along she finds some kind of seed; almost anything in this line is acceptable—corn, wheat, oats or barley. And to top off with, she drinks her fill of the purest water she can find. That is the best bill of fare that she can get for the different things. To win, we need to provide a little of all these things every day.

Ever out snow when you were three? Not very satisfying, was it? Don't make the hens get their drink that way.

They will drink dirty water? Yes. So will you, rather than be choked to death; but, honestly now, you don't like it. Neither does the hen. It is a case of necessity, just as it would be with you. Furnish good, pure water, and do it two or three times a day.

It doesn't make much difference how many hens you have on your farm; provided you do not try to keep too many in one place. Divide your house up into pens, and feed them and keep them in separate colonies; not more than twenty-five or thirty.

Be heavy, slow going hens ought not to be kept in the same pen with the quick, nervous ones. The hens that get around lively will eat the others out of a house and home.

Take all the pointers out of the laying pens. Their room is better than their company.

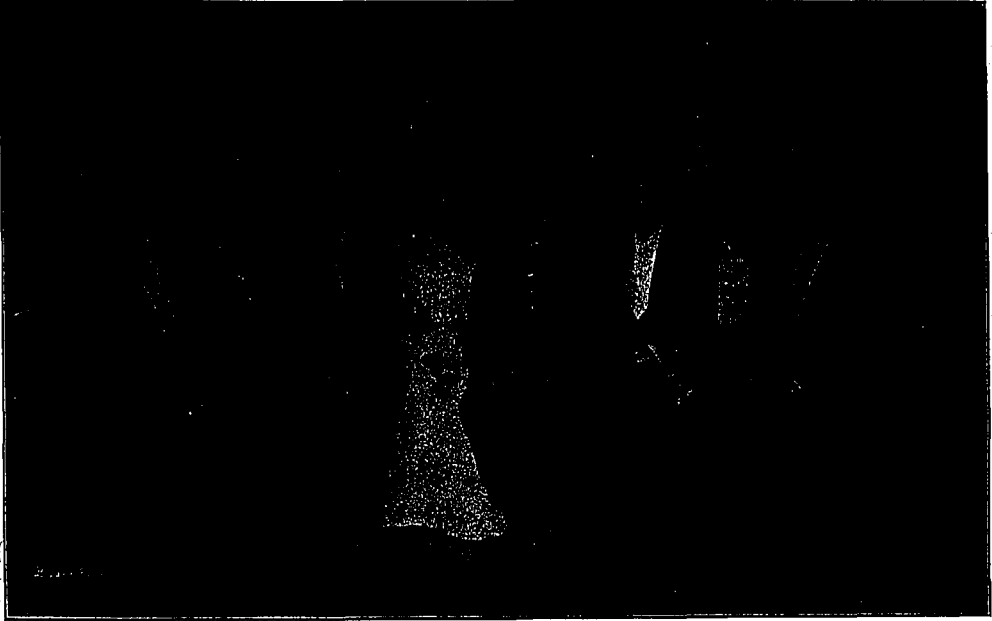

The little chicks, if you happen to have any, which you don't feed them this time of the year, will "catch their death of cold" if you don't keep them well housed. E. L. Vincent.

Use of National Forest Timber Nearly 400,000,000 Board Feet.

The total cut of national forest timber during the year was nearly 400,000,000 board feet, of which over 100,000,000 feet were given away under freeness provisions of the act of agriculture in his last annual report which has just been made. The timber required under freeness provisions is used by schools, churches and churches within the forests. The secretary says that the receipts from timber sales were about $700,000, and continues: "Free use of timber was heaviest in Idaho, with over 18,000,000 board feet, followed by Montana, Colorado, Utah and New Mexico, with amounts ranging from nearly 17,000,000 to less than 10,000,000 feet. California, Wyoming and Oregon had the next freeness cut of between 8,000,000 and 7,000,000 feet. The remaining national forest states follow with lesser amounts. Of the timber cut under sales, Montana furnished nearly 80,000,000 feet, or twenty-four per cent; Colorado 44,000,000 feet, or thirteen per cent; Colorado 28,000,000 feet, or seven per cent; and Idaho 35,000,000 feet, or ten per cent. These amounts correspond to the following percentages of the estimated annual production of timber in each state: For Montana, three-tenths of one per cent; for Colorado, four-tenths of one per cent; for California, four one-hundredths of one per cent; for Idaho, one-tenth of one per cent. In other words, the cutting is far within the growth capacity of the forests."

Insuring. The Emporia Daily Gazette, of which William Allen White, the well known author and editor, is the owner and chief scribe, dedicates the following refreshing parody to the congressional insurers: "O come my love, Insure with me, adown the bosky dell; we'll chase the nimble octopus across the barren fell; the moon is high, the tariff, too, is high; every hour, come, my love, Insure with me, here in my sylvan bow-er. Yes, come my love, and trip with me the light fantastic toe; and we will alone let's trip our agile Dicks. Joe. The differentials are in bloom, the ad valorem beams; the rules are mounding at the bar, while dimpler, my freckled cheeks. Then come, my love, let us Insure; Ah, let us rage and snort; O, let us paw the soft lush greens, while our two eyes cavort; the time is ripe, the hour is here, our song will be no dirge; O, let us whoop and fly the coop—come on, O, let's Insure."

The law-abiding citizens of this county will read with pleasure of the arrest made this week of the bootleggers and saloonkeeper, and more especially of the prompt conviction and sentence. Here's hoping that the above particular kind of law-breaking will prove so unpopular and unprofitable that this county will be free from the too common blind tiger. The arrest for selling on Sunday is a surprise, not from the scarcity of the offense, but from the extraordinary blindness of officials in this city in seeing something most patent to others.

The sheepmen of this state in their recent meeting went out of their way to express confidence in the forest reserves and the forestry department. Such sentiment is such a radical change from that of the past few years as to be surprising, but is indicative of a return to sound logic from a former untenable position. Were it not for the supervision of the forests in all of Idaho's reserves, in less than ten years not a band of sheep would be able to find sustenance owing to the thoroughness with which the sheep ordinarily clean up every trace of grass and even kill the underbrush through which they forage. By the government system of limitation each year vegetation is given an opportunity to grow up and feed annually a large percentage of the sheep.

The action of the Commercial club in calling for a mass meeting Friday evening to discuss the litigation between the Twin Falls Land & Water company and the settlers may be instrumental in clearing up matters, but the fact remains that the club is going outside its province in taking matters of dispute among local business men and firms. The Times believes just as sincerely as any person can that the matter should be fixed up without too much publicity and believes that the process of law can be made to solve the difficulty without the undue publicity, which may be detrimental. But at the same time, the mass meeting cannot decide on legal points nor can it issue a decree. Since such matters are up to the landholders it would seem that they alone are the ones to take action and get legal adjustment. Nearly every mass meeting held so far has resulted in lots of talk and mighty little real action.

Editor DeWitt of the Soda Springs Chieftan in his last week's issue, seems to be laboring under the impression that the national forestry problem is all one-sided like a jug handle, and called the Times to task for standing up for and defending Clifford Pinchot. Editor DeWitt also stated that had the Times' study of the question been as great as the Chieftan's editor, that the foremost Times' editor would change his opinion on the forestry question. It's all too true, Joey, but after reading your scathing condemnation of one side of the question you have left nothing but shreds of faith, and worse luck have offered nothing on your side to take the place of the shattered faith. And until that is forthcoming the Times will hold to its first opinion that Pinchot has by his perhaps arbitrary rulings worked a minor hardship upon a few really deserving people while stopping hundreds of timber and sheep grazing thieves from stealing the resources of a nation. Perhaps, Mr. DeWitt may have knowledge of a number of cases where the poorer citizens are wronged in this state and if he has, The Times will own up to his superior knowledge. For at present investigation has shown that every howl sent up has been made at the call of either lumber thieves or stock men who desire to acquire grazing land without paying for the right.

THE WORLD'S VERDICT.

The Outlook has from the first advised its readers not to form a final conclusion on this matter until the evidence was all in and passed upon. It has, however, as a reporter of important news events, narrated from week to week the various comments upon Dr. Cook's story, and only two weeks ago it summarized in a few lines some six or eight important accusations against Dr. Cook, with the comment that if he were so unfortunate a man as to have all these varied accusations by different people unjustly made, the only possibility of reinstatement in the confidence of the people was to appear with evidence before an impartial American scientific body, present his proof, and submit to questioning. We may point out with some satisfaction also that Mr. Konnan's articles in The Outlook entitled "Arctic Work and Arctic Food" while taking up only one particular aspect of the question, formed, so far as we know, the first attempt on this side of the Atlantic to submit Dr. Cook's narrative in that aspect to anything like scientific analysis and criticism. As we write Dr. Cook's whereabouts remain unknown, and no word has come from him in reply to the findings of the University of Copenhagen. It is now too late for him to attempt any defense by personal assertion, nothing but absolute and conclusive proof will serve; and it is all but incredible that, if such proof exists, it should not have been presented already. It is safe to say that this fraudulent attempt to foist upon the world a tale of Arctic accomplishment will go down in history as one of those strange impostures like that of Ireland, the forger of a play attributed to Shakespeare, or George Eastman, who falsely pretended to be a native of Formosa and wrote an elaborate description of that island, which he had never even visited, or of the Count de Rougemont, who a few years ago fooled scientific England with his vividly invented lies about the Great Barrier Reef of Australia. But these men's falsehoods injured no one personally; Cook's fabrication, if such it be, was an attempt to rob of his just meed or honor a man who had devoted a large part of his life to the great adventure of Polar discovery.—The Outlook.

On last Tuesday word was received announcing the death of Mr. J. H. Angoi, one of the pioneer settlers of this tract, at his former home at Miran, Ill. Mr. Angoi had been in failing health for a number of years and returned to Maroa more than a year ago on account of his illness. At the time of his death his wife and son, and daughter, Mrs. W. O. Duhl, were with him. Mr. Angoi was one of the first settlers in the district known as Miran, Ill. Mr. Angoi had been in the Succor Flat, and will be remembered by many friends here who hold him in the highest esteem and regard.

The fund was cleared from the estate of Mrs. Hotellen, and Mr. Hotellen will at once proceed to put it in a high state of cultivation. It is the intention of Mr. Hotellen to leave for the east to purchase a car load of fine high grade sheep to put with his already fine flock on his farm three miles north of town. The land now purchased by him lies directly west of the place known as the John Graf place.
Miss Edna Fitzgerald returned to the Allion Normal on Monday after spending the Xmas vacation with her parents here. She was accompanied by Lucile Kinnaman, who will enter the Normal with this term of the school year.
Among the tax payers from the valley who were in the county seat the latter part of the week, were H. H. Schildman, J. Fitzgerald, B. F. Allen, W. P. Shlan and L. M. Young.
H. H. Schildman departed the middle of this week for a several weeks' business trip to Lewiston and vicinity.
Last Friday evening occurred the much planned New Year's Eve masquerade ball, which proved itself worthy of the many plans made to make it the success that it was. The hall was more than filled with spectators and the merry maskers and they did not depart for home until the wee small hours of the morning. Prizes were given to the best dressed lady, gentleman, and were won by M. Edna Pense, representing a Mexican girl, and by Henry Brown, a Spanish Cavalier, and to the best suited characters, which were won by M. Floasie McIntire as a Japanese girl, and by Henry Brown as a Spanish Cavalier.
Saturday evening a number of the young people gathered in the hall and celebrated the advent of the New Year with an informal dancing party.
