MINING EXCHANGE FOR THIS CITY

Business Men Enters Heartily Into New Venture.

SEATS ON EXCHANGE WILL BE LIMITED TO ONE HUNDRED.

Primary Object of Movement to Improve Roads and Build Bridges to New Gold Camp.

About fifteen business men met in the office of F. G. Lesaur, the first of the week to talk over the possibilities of a stock exchange for this city with an object of promoting travel to Jarbridge via Twin Falls. The opinion of every man present was to the effect that a road for hauling heavy loads into the mining camp would bring a great deal of business to the merchants and hotels of this city, and that the need of a stock exchange was somewhat distant. After discussion by all present Mr. G. Winter, one of the original boosters of the Jarbridge district, was called upon to give his opinion of the cost of building a good road from the Kitty Wilkins ranch to the camp, a distance of twelve miles, and stated that by putting in two bridges at the east fork of the Brunau river and one other creek, a good wagon road could be put in for less than five thousand dollars. He stated that unless the bridges were put in, the high water in the spring would make any road impassable for thirty or sixty days.

As a result of the meeting it was decided to form the Twin Falls-Jarbridge Mining Exchange with a limited membership of one hundred. Twenty-three names were secured and a meeting was called for Monday afternoon in the Commercial club rooms to form permanent organization.

This meeting was well attended by a large number of citizens, many of whom placed their names upon the membership list, agreeing to pay in the money as needed, up to the sum of one hundred dollars, the full price of the seat on the exchange.

The change then proceeded to go into executive session and elected officers as follows:

President—C. M. Hill.
Vice President—A. D. McKinlay.
Secretary—M. B. McMullan.
Treasurer—Carl Hahn.
Directors—H. F. Allen, J. M. Maxwell, E. G. Lesaur, E. Palmer and C. Moore.

Actual business was then taken up and a committee consisting of C. H. Hill, A. D. McKinlay and F. G. Lesaur was ordered to take an outfit and select a suitable place for bridges and for the road.

The outfit left yesterday morning with complete supplies and a force of men for building both road and bridges.

A committee consisting of business men outside of the exchange, was appointed to solicit funds for the road and bridge which will benefit every business man in the city.

FORMS STRONG CORPORATION

Twin Falls Development Company Incorporated.

MEN PROMINENT IN TWIN FALLS BUSINESS CIRCLES COMBINE.

S. H. Bolton, D. L. Hickling and J. N. Clear Members of Company Formed For Realty Business.

Articles of incorporation were filed this week for the Twin Falls Development company, which will do a general real estate and development business in this city. The officers elected are S. H. Bolton, president; John Clear, vice president; D. L. Hickling, secretary and treasurer. The office of the firm will be in the building now occupied by Mr. Clear on Main avenue.

The company is composed of men well and favorably known to the business men of this city, both for their energy and hustler and their honesty. Mr. Bolton, the president of the company, was the founder of the Twin Falls Realty company, which is one of the well-known realty firms of this city. Mr. Clear, as a land expert and exponent of irrigated lands is one of the old timers who have passed through the trying times of the tract and knows to the bed rock the land here. Mr. Hickling, too, has been a resident here long enough to have gained the confidence and respect of the business men by his hustling qualities and his invariable habit of heading Twin Falls first last and all the time.

DIES OF SCARLET FEVER.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Wilson Passes Away.

Colleen, the little two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cole Wilson, after a brief illness, died at the home on seventh avenue on Tuesday from the effects of scarlet fever. The nature of the disease was not known until a very short time before death came to relieve the little sufferer. The funeral was held privately today from the home, with only a brief service at the cemetery. The Eastern lodge attended the ceremonies at the grave. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson have the sincerest sympathy of their many friends in the death of their little one.

ASK FOR CO-OPERATION.

Buhl Citizens Want Jarbridge Road Improved.

A small number of Buhl business men met with the directors of the Twin Falls-Jarbridge Mining exchange and other citizens and asked that the road improvements planned, be so made as to divert the road out from this city via Buhl and advanced considerable argument in favor of the proposition. The matter was referred to the directors of the Exchange under whose management the road is being built and the Buhl men were invited to return later.

BARNEY O'NEIL GIVEN SMOKER

Republicans Gather to Greet State Chairman Friday.

ATTEMPT MADE TO TURN MEETING INTO PARTY LINE-UP.

Big Chiefs of Party Evidently Anxious To Get Control of the County Organization.

Barney F. O'Neil of Wallace, Idaho, arrived in Twin Falls last Thursday afternoon to assist in forming the Elk lodge, and to get in touch with his henchmen in this county, politically. Mr. O'Neil, while not openly in the field as a candidate for governor, is making his trip to the southwest for the purpose of finding the possibility of his candidacy.

The Republicans immediately got busy and planned a smoker, ostensibly to greet the state chairman.

When the meeting was in full blast in the Elk lodge rooms some satellite of the nabobs of the party gave out the information that it was the purpose of the meeting to organize the Republican club and give the old leaders control. It was the speaker was called down by his superiors in the game, yet it developed that a move was on foot to forestall any attempt on the part of the progressives of the county to get later control by taking advantage of the presence of Mr. O'Neil to form a permanent Republican club and foist the old leaders upon the county party members. Happily there were enough level-headed men present to stop the deal and to remind the gang that there was a committee appointed to care for such organization and that it was in this committee's hands. As a result it was decided to call a meeting in February and in the meantime to invite Republicans all over the county to attend.

Mr. O'Neil left Saturday morning for his home in the northern part of the state.

CHANGE IN TRAIN SCHEDULE.

Morning Trains Subject Greatest Change on Branch.

Last Sunday the O. S. L. inaugurated another change in its service on the main line and necessitating the change of the two morning trains on the branch. Under the new system the morning train to Minidoka leaves this city at 6:50 a. m. and arrives in Minidoka at 9:00 a. m., where it makes connection with the through westbound main line train, leaving Minidoka at 9:05. The connection for the eastbound by this train is at 9:40, making both east and west connections very short. The evening train east leaves at the same time as formerly, at 7:40, arriving in Minidoka in time to connect with the fast train west and the local train east to Pocatello and Salt Lake. The incoming train will arrive at 12:15 instead of 10:35 as before, while the evening incoming train will arrive at 6:30.

A NEW GROCERY HOUSE OPENING

Wertzbaugher & Wright Occupy the Stover Block.

NEW FIRM POSSESSES THE STOVER BLOCK DATE FIXTURES THROUGHOUT.

City Marketing House Will Be the Name Under Which the Store Will Be Operated.

The City Marketing House, located in the Stover block on east Main avenue, is making final preparations this week for the opening, which is set for Saturday. The members of the firm have omitted nothing which is necessary to a fully equipped and up-to-date grocery store. The fixtures are by the handsomest brought to this city and everything possible is cared for in neat and compact cabinets. The stock put in also is fresh and clean and presents an attractive appearance.

Mr. C. P. Wertzbaugher and W. W. Wright, the members of the firm, are both in town making ready for the opening and are hustling business men in all respects. They will on Saturday make a number of special prices and are going to give handsome souvenirs to the patrons who appear at the store on that day.

SEES GREAT POSSIBILITIES.

Ralph W. Green of Lynden, Enthusiastic Over Tract.

Ralph W. Green, who with his family is visiting Messrs. Swin & Adrich, this week, has been plotted over the tract by the two boosters, and is now ready to say anything in favor of this city and the tract as a whole. Mr. Green, who has visited the Yukina country, stated that to his mind the best of the inland empire was not about Snake, but would be in the Snake river valley and that Twin Falls was the logical center.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE FEBRUARY.

Prof. E. E. Elliott of Moscow, Will Address Ranchers.

The ranchers of this county will have an opportunity of hearing one of the foremost agriculturists of the state university, Professor E. E. Elliott, who will be present in this city and address the farmers' institute. The institute will be called for February 16 and 17, and all the ranchers of this county are urged to attend.

Something Big.

About the biggest success in the history of a sale that has ever been conducted in Twin Falls, was the embryonic sale at the Booth Mercantile Co. which started Monday. On the opening day the store was crowded and has continued. The sale lists all this week, and in addition the Booth Mercantile Co. are closing out ladies' coats and suits at half price, and the big, busy, day-light store is becoming more popular each day.

WANT BRIDGES ACROSS SNAKE

Commissioners Will Ask Co-operation of Lincoln Co.

BRIDGES FOR UPPER AND LOWER PARTS OF COUNTY.

One Bridge Proposed for Upper Part of Snake River, Another for Lower Part.

A move was launched Tuesday for the bridging of the Snake river by two bridges to be put in jointly by Lincoln and Twin Falls counties for the promotion of traffic between them and for the proper promotion of tourist travel into this section. The committee of business men waited upon the commissioners headed by Attorney J. B. Hall, who has taken great interest in the matter, and the feasibility of putting two bridges across the Snake river was discussed with the final outcome that the commissioners have asked the similar organization from Lincoln county to meet in this city next Tuesday. The two boards will then proceed to Shoshone falls to look over the site proposed for the upper bridge. Later the investigation will be made of the bridge across the Snake near Clear Lakes, which has been planned for about $15,000. The bridge at the falls as planned will not cost any more than the lower bridge and will cross somewhere below the ferry and above the main sweep of the falls. Three short spans being required to connect the bridge to the entire river, making use of the natural piers formed by the rocky projections from the river bed.

As planned, good grades will also be put in leading to the bridges on both sides of the river, making the drive from the top of the grandeur dangerous in the least and thus making it an ideal pleasure drive from both North and South side towns.

THOMPSON ELECTED CHIEF.

MANSLAUGHTER IN FIRST DEGREE

Oscar Salmarc Bound Over to District Court.

RAIL BOND SET AT FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS.

Defense Will Be Made On Ground of Unlawful Homicide By Prisoner's Act.

Fred Eilidge was brought to the coroner's inquest held at the taking parlors of H. B. Hill, in company by Coroner C. J. Walker, which time an autopsy was made. Drs. Wilson and Clouche and cause of Eilidge's death fixed as being by gunshot wounds and fixing the responsibility of his death upon Oscar Salmarc who voluntarily gave himself up after the killing, which took place last Thursday at the shack near Rock Creek occupied by Mrs. Van Ostram and Mrs. Eilidge, mother-in-law and divorced wife of the deceased. A number of witnesses were examined by the coroner and acting county attorney Herriott in which evidence was brought out to show several threats made by Eilidge against Salmarc and to show that Mrs. Eilidge and Salmarc were occupying the shack together with Mrs. Van Ostram.

On Wednesday the preliminary hearing of Oscar Salmarc was held in the court room, with Justice R. A. Carter presiding, Attorney Herriott conducting the examination for the state and Judge J. W. Shields conducting the defense. The prisoner charged with first degree manslaughter, pled not guilty to the charge and the taking of the testimony was begun.

Sheriff Dyer was called and testified to receiving a telephone message from Salmarc at Rock Creek saying he had killed the deceased and wanted the sheriff to send some one to take him into custody.

Deputy Schindler was next called and gave in brief the story of his first visit to Rock Creek. Schindler had secured his man and was returning with him when Salmarc asked him if Eilidge was armed and advised going back to investigate. Mr. Schindler thereupon went back to Rock Creek and left his prisoner in the hands of the constable and proceeded to the shack and the scene of the killing. He found the body of Eilidge lying in the snow with no attempt having been made to take care of him. Mrs. Eilidge and Mrs. Van Ostram when interviewed in the shack denied any knowledge of the murder. Mr. Schindler also testified that he saw a small jack knife being found on Eilidge, who wore gloves and had his over coat buttoned. A diagram drawn by the deputy aided the attorneys and court in getting a clear view of the surroundings.

Coroner Walker was next called and testified as to the verdict of the inquest and to the finding of the body and the apparent neglect by the inmates of the house.

Dr. Wilson, when called, gave in

THE INTERNATIONAL LANGUAGE

IN TEN EASY LESSONS
Prepared by FLOYD HARDIN
UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE LIBRARY CLUB

LESSON TWO.

Nouns and Adjectives.
A noun is the name of an object, such as rose, father, cat, etc. All singular nouns in the International Language end in o. Example: rozo, patro, kato, etc.

The plural number, indicating two or more of an object, is formed by changing the ending o to i. Examples: rozi, roses; patri, fathers; kati, cats, etc.

An adjective is a word that describes some quality of an object, such as "good, white, warm," etc. All adjectives end in a. Examples: bona, blanka, varma, etc. This ending A never varies, and is used with both singular and plural nouns. Thus, bona patro, good father; bona patri, good fathers.

Past, Present and Future Time.
The ending AS, IS and OS, indicate whether the verb relates to present, past, or future time.

Me es-as, I am (present time).
Me es-is, I was (past time).
Me es-os, I will be (future time).

Prefixes and Suffixes.
An ingenious system of prefixes and suffixes makes the language capable of expressing the finest shades of thought:

The prefix MAL when placed before any word gives the exact opposite of the idea: Examples: bona, beautiful; malbona, ugly; amiko, friend; malamiko, enemy.

The suffix IN designates the opposite: patro, father; patrino, mother.

Other parts: homo, man; homaro, mankind. segar, to saw; segilo, a saw. Poroz, pore; porozo, porous.

Vocabulary.
malbona, the banana, banana

Sentences.
La banana ceas flava.
Homano ne ceas floro.
Rozo ne ceas frukto, sed floro.
La kanario kantas.
La kanto di la kanario ceas agrabila.
La vetero ceas varma morgo.

Exercise.
Translate the following sentences from English into the International Language:
The disagreeable cat sings in the park.
Roses are not fruits but flowers.
The sisters will walk with the brothers.
America is a beautiful land.
My father is a good man, and my mother is beautiful.

Announcement of Free Lessons.
The Library Club is now giving a free course of lessons in the International Language open to the public. Class meets in the Library Rooms on Main street every Monday evening at eight o'clock. For further particulars inquire at the Public Library.

Suggestive Questions on the Sunday School Lesson by Rev. Dr. Linscott.

January 29, 1910.
True blessedness. Matt. 5:1-16
Golden Text.—Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God. Matt. 5:8

Verse 1, 2.—How much do you remember of the last sermon you heard?
To what extent is the modern style of talking a text and preaching a sermon from it, a success as a teaching exercise?

Did Jesus use a pedagogical, or an original style in his addresses, and would it be better for the extension of the kingdom of God if the modern pulpit would adopt his method?

Verse 3.—What, in the last analysis, is the essential qualification of being a subject of the kingdom of heaven on earth?

If a person is a subject of the kingdom of heaven on earth, what other qualifications are necessary for the kingdom in heaven?

Verse 4.—If "blessed" means happy, how is it possible to mourn and be happy at one and the same time?

Which Christ of bliss and enjoys the sweetest comforts of God, one who has had great sorrow or one who has been free from sorrow, and why is it not the sweetest of all?

Verse 5.—Give some examples of well-to-do men, and then say which class as a rule, get the best things on earth, the "meats," that is the modern, smelish, and generous, or the beautiful, self-assertive, and selfish?

Verse 6.—What is your definition of righteousness?
What are the conditions for such soul health, as to "hunger as thirt" to be righteous? Is this state under the control of every man's will?
If a person really desires it, may he be sure of being "filled with righteousness," that is of being perfectly right with God?

Verse 7.—From the suggestions in this verse, if a person is not merciful, what does that indicate as to his standing with God?
If a man has been grievously injured, and we find out that he has fully forgiven his enemy, what does that indicate as to the man's standing with God?

Verse 8.—Are there those who always have a perpetual vision of God, and what conditions do they observe to keep the experience?
What does it imply to be pure in heart, and may all attain that experience?

What was Jesus' experience as to his realization of the constant presence of God?
Verse 9.—Mention some reasons which you think would justify a Christian in being the plaintiff in a law suit?
What is to be a "peacemaker" after the pattern that Jesus here means?
Verses 10-12.—Are really good people persecuted in these days because of their goodness?
Why did the religionists of those days persecute Jesus, and finally put him to death?
Verses 13-16.—Of what use in the world is so called, "cold Christian"? Can a person be a real Christian who is not aggressively engaged in doing good. Why or why not?

MINING EXCHANGE ACTIVE.

New Institution Wastes No Time in Getting to Work.

One of the most commendable features connected with the new mining exchange is the rapidity with which it has commenced operations. Having once ascertained that ore veins at Jarbidge were of richness also reported, and that one of the greatest mining booms ever seen in this country was inevitable, the directors of the exchange proceeded immediately to make their influence felt.

Arrangements were made with the Salmon River Land & Water Co. for immediate extension of the telephone line from the Salmon river dam to Jarbidge. Three four-hour outfits with a crew of twelve men were sent out Wednesday morning to make surveys and proceed immediately with the construction of a road and bridge from the Salmon river dam to Jarbidge.

Arrangements have been made with the O. S. L. for running passenger trains to Jarbidge, and from there twelve passenger Concord stages will make the run to Jarbidge, and by means of relays of fast horses, the trip from Holliester to Jarbidge will be made in eight hours.

The exchange will issue a booklet, describing the Jarbidge district, and giving a full and complete explanation of the route from Twin Falls to the camp. Work is proceeding rapidly in the fitting up of the exchange office in the Perrine Hotel, but until this is completed, Morris P. MacMillan, the secretary of the exchange, will have his office with F. G. Lesaur and Co.

GOLDFIELD MINERS TO JARBIDGE

J. S. Cook and Co., of Goldfield, Bankers, Send Out 1. J. Gay.

I. J. Gay, formerly cashier of the Cook bank of Goldfield, and now their agent, was in Twin Falls a short time the first of the week on his way to Jarbidge. The J. S. Cook bank is the largest bank in Goldfield, and its stockholders are also owners of the Consolidated Mines Co., making the J. S. Cook bank, the Nixon-Winfield Aggregation, and the Consolidated Mines Co. all one and practically the same company.

The Goldfield mine producer more gold than any mine in the world. Speaking of Jarbidge, Mr. Gay said: "You Twin Falls people should make good use of the ore on the greatest mining boom Nevada has ever seen. Goldfield is in a high state of excitement, and spring will see a great influx of miners as well as our Nevada camps."

IDAHO FURNITURE COMPANY.

New Firm Opens for Business On Shoshone Street.

The Idaho Furniture and Auction Company, under the management of Mr. A. A. Miles, of Denver, Colo., opened up a stock of new furniture in the Aldrich building recently used for a garage on Shoshone street. The new firm will, beside the regular furniture business, conduct auctions each day of not only furniture, but anything which can be brought to the store by outside people. Mr. A. S. Brown, who has been successful in building up a splendid reputation here as an auctioneer, will have charge of this branch of the business. Mr. Miles is especially anxious to see Jarbidge, and besides being a level-headed furniture man, is a good booster ready to do anything to build up the city.

SWIM & ALDRICH REAL ESTATE AND INVESTMENTS

BUY A FARM IN TOWN. We can sell it to you in tracts of 2 1/2, 4, 5, 10, 20 or 30 acres, every tract provided with wide, smooth, clean streets. The land is smooth and ideal for watering and is now in cultivation. Prices range from $200 to $340 per acre. This means ACRES for less money than LOTS in some equally desirable parts of town. Put this in alfalfa or fruit and it will pay good interest on the cost and in a few years bring you many times the present cost. Take a look at it. No trouble to show it. Terms 1/2 down and bal. 1, 2, 3 years. Interest 8 per cent.

Twin Falls and County property owners kindly send in a listing of your property. We are in correspondence with many prospective purchasers and expect a lively movement in real estate within a few weeks. With two automobiles and a team, we shall be in a position to handle a share of the business in our line.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Nixon entertained the members of the Wednesday evening card club at their home on Eighth avenue last evening, about twenty of the young married people enjoying an evening at five hundred. Mrs. C. C. Bedford and Mr. C. E. Booth were the recipients of the handsome prizes awarded for high score.

There are 255 irrigation projects along the line of the Oregon Short Line from the "State of Idaho," comprising an investment of $27,431,325. There are 2,628 miles of main canal, 6,373 miles of lateral canals, 2,893,896 acres covered by these canals, 925,570 acres under canals cultivated and 1,871,336 acres under canals uncultivated. These figures were kindly furnished the National Irrigation Journal by Mr. D. E. Burley, general passenger agent, Oregon Short Line, Salt Lake City, Utah.-National Irrigation Journal.

Miss Jennetta C. Pops of Heyburn, a graduate of the Milwaukee Normal school, with a number of years experience, has taken Miss Mowbray's place. Miss Broese, who will return from Germany on Wednesday of this week, will take the place vacated by the resignation of Miss McManis.

Miss Hazel Barrows is substituting for her until a teacher can be secured. Preparations are being made for the annual debates which are to be held in a short time. Twin Falls will first debate with a team from the Buhl high school and will later meet the Albion Normal school and the Pocatello Academy and high school. The schedule will be announced in a short time.

SNAKE RIVER WATER RIGHTS.
 Government to Look After Interests of Settlers on Minidoka Project.

United States District Attorney G.
 H. Livingston has been asked by the department of justice to work cooperatively with the department of the interior through the reclamation service in making up the department's 1800 settlers on the Minidoka project who, with about the same number of additional water users residing on adjacent projects, are made defendants in a suit in equity filed by the Twin Falls Canal company, action in which case is brought to determine the respective rights of claimants and priority of the plaintiff and defendants, in and to the use of the waters of the Snake River. The Twin Falls Canal company petitions the courts for a decree giving the plaintiff the use of 3000 cubic feet per second of time dating from June 2, 1900, and also the plaintiff's right to be prior to all other rights.
 Action was brought in the district court in Twin Falls county some time ago.

So far as the government is concerned it will not look after the interests of the settlers who now reside on reclamation projects who are made defendants in the action. It was owing to the fact that the government built this project and derives its water for the same from the Snake River, that the department of the interior petitioned the department of justice to authorize United States District Attorney Livingston to file the lawsuit in the defense of the defendants and virtually represent the government in whatever litigation may arise out of the test to definitely determine priority rights.

And from the actual settlers, other defendants in this suit are named as follows: Twin Falls Land & Water company, a corporation organized under the state laws of Utah; the Twin Falls North Side Land & Water company, a corporation organized under the laws of Delaware; the Twin Falls Oakley Land & Water company, a corporation organized under the laws of Delaware; the American Falls Water Power company, a corporation organized under the laws of Wisconsin; the Washington Irrigation & Colonization
 company, a corporation organized under the laws of the state of Washington.

In many respects this big water case is decidedly unique. With 1800 settlers who reside on the Minidoka project made defendants, and the same number or more who reside on projects promoted by the above named irrigation companies, the court found itself taxed in order to serve the necessary summons on all in time so that referees could be had. This was accomplished by operating a number of fast traveling vehicles over the project, which were operated by officials and drivers were made to deliver the summons to the most remote corners of all of the projects as well as the more centered sections and the summons served on the water rights. In view of the fact that the plaintiff and each and every one of the defendants claim some title or interest in or to the use of the waters of the Snake River, including the right to divert water from it, they all had to have personal summons served.—Hurry Bulletin.

FEEDING YOUNGER SOWS.

Few Realize the Heavy Demands on Farrowing Animals.

A great many farmers believe that the iron sow should be kept in thin flesh, and, following this belief, do not give her sufficient amount of food. The result is that both sow and pigs suffer. The young sow farrows light and her milk is scanty. Her strength and health are never attains the size and breeding capacity that she would had she been given generous amount of feed during all her growing period.

The sow has larger demands placed upon her than many realize, and hence requires large amount of food to sustain normal vitality. She needs much rich feed during the pregnant period for the development of a large litter of robust pigs and her own vital requirements. She should not, however, be kept too fat, especially at farrowing time.

When the pigs are born, the sow requires an extra large amount of feed in order to furnish a full flow of milk for the first few days after her birth. If too often the sow at the close of the suckling period becomes skin poor and depleted in strength. Frequently she is absolutely exhausted and requires several weeks to regain flesh and strength, if it is possible to fully regain the loss.

There is no doubt that this frequent flesh and vitality weakening greatly impairs the health and value of the animal. Vero she kept in good, round flesh at all times, there is no question but that she would live longer and be more productive in advanced years.

The young sow often grows fat all at once, and she forth her second or third litter of pigs. Then is the period when maternity tells on an animal the most. If the physical strain of giving birth to her suckling them is added the stunting effects of too light feeding her young sow cannot possibly obtain the highest development. This poor and weakly animal has reduced power, but will also affect the profits in her pigs. They will to some extent inherit her weakness and require several weeks to regain flesh and
 strength, if it is possible to fully regain the loss.

If the young sow is kept in good,
 round flesh until after she has farrowed she will have a chance to develop into a large animal and be able to transmit her size and strong vitality to her off-

TERRACING IN THE SOUTH.

Treatment Has Saved Farmers Vast Sums in Fertility.

"Referring to 'Soil Erosion' or washing of soil, the Year Book issued by the agricultural department estimates that 1,000,000,000 tons of sediment is poured into the seas off the farms of the United States each year.

It is stated that this erosion or washing away of the cream of our farms exceeds in value all the land taxes.

If this is true, and doubt the above estimate is very low, it is not time that the American farmer stop and begin to think along these lines? In fact, would it not be wise on the part of the agricultural department to ask for an appropriation to put a corps of demonstrators in the field to show a few farmers in each county, and the writer how to prevent this wholesale attack on our source of wealth?

The people of Georgia, Alabama and South Carolina learned how to prevent this washing away of their soils many years ago. About twenty-five years ago the editor of 'The Southern Cultivator', the Rev. J. B. Huntcutt, and the writer, each owned a farm in Coweta county, Georgia, and both of us terraced our farms about the same time. Since coming west, about twenty years ago, the writer has visited Georgia several times and watched with interest the progress made.

Recently on our way to Washington we passed through Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina and noticed from the car window that almost every farm we saw was terraced. We made a point to talk with farmers who got ahead at various stations. We asked them how this system of terracing spread so rapidly in those states.

They told us that they used on an average of 48-penn-acre-of-fertilizer on their crops, and that they discovered that when they had heavy spring rains a large per cent of the fertilizer was leached out of the soil and they lost largely. Many of these farmers told us that this terracing and deep plowing had been the salvation of all that country; that land that would not produce more than one-quarter of a bale of cotton to the acre, was now making a bale to the acre.

From my own experience and observation along these lines I have come to the conclusion that all who own lands what are undulating and inclined to wash have not good title to their land unless they have them terraced.

The cost of the work is very small. Two men with a theodolite or leveling instrument, and man with a team and good plow, can terrace 100 acres per day.

In order to disseminate correct information, would ask all who read this to write this paper very briefly, giving information as to how they lay off their terraces; how they make them and how they lay off their rows to make one row a terrace.

This matter of terracing to save the source of our wealth is of such vast importance that the matter is being given government aid to the matter in hand just as they have taken in hand the enterprise of irrigation, and teach the farmer that every drop of muddy water that runs off his farm impoverishes his soil, and that when he eudles the water before it leaves his land he enriches that farm. Untold millions can be saved the American people annually along these lines—H. H. Parks, Grandfield, Okla. in Farm Progress.

Trees For Windbreaks.
When the cold winter winds howl around your house and the snow drifts across your driveway and your stock feels the blast, you begin to think that it would pay you to put in some kind of trees for a windbreak and shelter.

As the various kind of trees suitable for windbreaks are becoming better known as the subject windbreaks is increasing in interest. All that is necessary for a successful result is a thorough knowledge of the land which needs the windbreak and of the trees which can be used.

When only one row of trees is planted the snow piles up on the ten sides of the trees and consequently they should be planted at least one hundred yards from the buildings which are to be protected.

The kind of tree to be used depends greatly upon the conditions under which it will have to grow as well as upon what is required of it—the location, also whether or not you want a single row of trees or a belt of trees. For a single row of trees tall and well adapted to break the wind the cottonwood is a success for west or south-west exposures, also the box elder if the soil is not too dry. The green ash will stand drier ground than the box elder. When a group or belt of trees is required, it has been found that the Russian golden willow and Russian wild olive are suitable if a good deal of moisture can be had, the Russian olive being planted on the windward side, and white or American elms and a good deal if used for one row of the belt.

A great deal depends upon how they are planted. The ground should be prepared with a rich care as it would be prepared for farm crops such as alfalfa or sugar beets. Two-year-old seedling trees are preferable. You should contrive to keep the ground moist either by cultivating or by mulching with straw or leaves, etc. You can depend upon nature to do the pruning. Thin very carefully, only enough for firewood, because the thinning of trees are the best way will fulfill their mission.—Farm Progress.

LOOKS IN FARM SWINE.

Often Too Much is Sacrificed For Appearance.

Every man who has had occasion to bear a hour to keep for his own use, and before doing so, look around among the owners of the breed he wanted, must have been impressed with the number of animals that as individuals fell short of the excellence that every successful breeder knows is necessary.

Of course, there is some truth in the saying, "blood will tell." That is, the distinctive marks of any breed will be propagated; but it is a bad mistake to think that superior quality will always be developed. On the contrary, it looks as if it were more necessary to keep up the superior quality of the individual than to keep up his farm stock to the highest mark.

I had some experience a few years ago that convinced me that it was very easy to have a lot of thoroughbred scrubs, if you gave too much attention to the marks of the breed and not enough to the excellence of the individual animal.

I was keeping Berkshire hogs on my farm, not as a breeder, but almost altogether for the making of cured ham bacon; and, of course, selling off that I got a chance to get a good price for.

Of course, I changed the blood quite often. In fact, I tried to get a new bear to head the herd every year. I found in the case of one of the best I bought, that though of exceptionally good pedigree, his pigs were often of the inferior quality.

I had some half-blood sows that I kept to raise pigs for the bacon grower that let him remain unalarmed and bred him to some of the sows. In almost every case his pigs were better than the full-blood. The vigorous constitution that he got from his dam seemed to carry with it more of the same type in his progeny than the Berkshire blood. On the other hand the pigs sired by the Berkshire boar, although they were true to type, and even from half-blooded sows, looked almost like pure-bred Berkshires, did not have the bustling, vigorous constitution that those of the mixed breed had.

My conclusion was that animals bred to a type that has been fixed for a long time, and that has been considered the most important feature in the propagation, will acquire the ability to produce the marks of the breed with much more certainty than high individual quality and constitution. I presume that nature has a way of perpetuating these distinctive points that have been established or a fixed law; but that constitution and individual vigor, including prolificacy, depend on different influences.

But can we not by careful selection build up a family of animals that will possess all the qualities? Can we not by paying moderate attention to the breed marks, and a great deal to the vigor and prolificacy of the breeding stock get individuals that possess all the qualities wanted? I know it is more than two things go together, but I would always rather have a good leg than merely a good-looking hog.—R. E. O., Iowa, in Farm Progress.

POULTRY WILL PAY.
Birds of high quality always find ready sale at good prices, but stock that is just a little below the best is slow of sale and often hard to dispose of at a price that will afford a profit in order to determine which fowls will develop into good ones, we are obliged to carry a good many to maturity. The rank culms can be sorted out and disposed of at a better price, but the majority are always suitable to those who wish fowls for eggs. Egg-farm poultrymen will take the off-marked females at a little advance over market price, but this is not sufficient for the trouble of raising them. We have another class of birds—those that are good but are not exhibition birds. They make the best breeders and are valuable in many ways, but they will not win prizes even at the country fairs. There is not a large demand for this class of fowls. Breeders who know their value and happen to want such fowls to strengthen their pens, will not pay a high price for them, but the demand is limited. Yet this is the very class of fowls that we must have to breed winners from. It is the class that all beginners should buy, and in the class we breed the most of unless it is culls. High scoring birds are only produced in small numbers, perhaps one in fifty or such a matter, while we expect to get from twenty-five to fifty per cent of breeders. These needs are to be met by an increase of the value and create a demand for well-bred but not high scoring stock, and that is to educate the would-be farmer and the fancier to the importance of raising only good pure stock. The fancier, farmer, and utility poul-tryman must be brought closer together. This is a work for the poultry press to undertake, and it should be aided by every lover of pure-bred poultry. There is no fear of the business being overdone, at least in our generation, and the more that embark in the business the more sales those already in it will make. Old fanciers are constantly dying off, some drop out, and we should endeavor to keep the ranks full by inducing others to enter.

By building up the poultry interests we enhance the value of good breeding birds. The farmer and egg and market poultryman will all want good pure-bred fowls as soon as they are convinced that they are superior to common mongrels, and that as money-makers, either on the nest or in the market, they will return double profit. I would strongly recommend any one who thinks it worth his while to keep poultry for any purpose whatever, to keep none but the best of stock, for the reason that it costs as much to breed, raise and feed inferior birds as good ones, and of course, greater if the birds are kept the egg yield will be deficient and top prices will not be forthcoming. The initial expense in stocking a farm is, of course, greater if the stock is good than if it is bad. The cost may in fact be two or three times as great, but this, after all, is only a trifling consideration, and it would be preferable to have a farm half-stocked with good birds rather than fully stocked with inferior ones. Good blood tells in the market side of the industry as well as in the fancy side.

There is no royal road to success in the poultry business, and the beginner who makes his home on the estimate in certain trade catalogues and the like is doomed to disappointment. Whatever measure of success you attain will be due to conscientious and enthusiastic attention to details, determination and grit to accept and profit by the lessons of failure, and an aggressive energy to take advantage of every opportunity—and make the most of it. The surest and safest way to begin is to take up poultry raising as a full time issue for a year or two until experience has demonstrated the possibilities, and then if you have sufficient capital you can devote yourself exclusively to poultry raising for a livelihood. No one can decide what sufficient capital is without some experience. It is not a matter of how much money in reserve to support you for the first year and something for overlooked expenses. It is not possible for the first year's returns to equal the expenses, and that is a point where many a beginner falls outright. We have based his estimates on optimistic figures, and has no surplus to fall back on. At the end of the season his outfit falls to bring the prices expected, but he has nothing to go on with, and so falls and adds another to the long list who declare that there is no money to be made with poultry. Yet thoughtless poultrymen make a good living and a surplus from poultry alone.

for the past, confidence in the present and hope for the future.

George Laird Shoup, in honor of whose life and memory we have set aside this hour, was a product of the American farm. From the moment he opened his eyes to the world in a modest cottage in Armstrong county, Pennsylvania, and in 1836, until his death in Boise, Idaho, December 22, 1904, he lived close to the soil, as true, steady and devoted to the institution of his country as is the needle to the pole. Like Lincoln, "he was born upon the border and grew up along the ragged edge of civilization." In 1852, at a boy of sixteen, he moved with his parents to the then far distant state of Illinois. Subsequent events proved that the change was inopportune and untimely. No sooner had the family settled down than ominous clouds began to drift across the horizon, and in 1857 the panic came with the force of a tornado. The Shoups, always in modest circumstances, were particularly unprepared for the event, and when the clouds at last lifted, found the old farm worn, discolored and broken—sitting upon the wreck of a new home, sadly contemplating the contents of the old, but fortunately for the human race there are always those, who, though the heavens fall, rise sublimely above the tumult and hurrahs and calmly face the tempest. Out of such fibre George L. Shoup was evidently made.

Close upon the heels of the panic came word that the granite hills at the base of the Rocky mountains were rich in gold. Toward that new Eldorado young Shoup started in 1858, and in the year 1859, discovered him one of that band of Argonauts who carried civilization and the flag to Pike's Peak, Colorado. There he encountered a new and unexplored empire, rich beyond compare in natural resources, awaiting the hand of the master-builder. Strong of limb and stout of heart, his youthful ardor knew no bounds. He at once became a part and parcel of this new and fascinating life, and in his chosen occupation of prospector, miner and merchant met with instantaneous success, thus early displaying those exceptional qualities which characterized him all through life. But if these were the sum total of his accomplishments—the full measure of his life's service to Idaho and to the proud privilege of this hour to do him honor.

That age of chivalry when knighthood was in flower fails to reveal us more romantic, more noble, more valuable than such as are connected with the winners of the west. Into the unexplored wilderness of the far-off land, went men whose courage and devotion were constantly subjected to most heroic tests. To the country native has been prodigal gifts. Left mountains, pregnant with richest ores; valleys far more fertile than the Nile, water sheds, snow crowned, the source, supply and inspiration of fertile fields, and from the lowliest hill to loftiest crag an amplitude of priceless timber, all patiently awaiting the advent of the stout and unflinching hand. But the valleys required patience to subdue, the mountain heights were hard to climb, the forests difficult and hazardous to penetrate, and every rock and cranny, every stone and bush and tree that aboriginal cunning could discover devised was appropriated as an ambush for the treacherous savage, resentful of the white man's intrusion on his "happy hunting grounds."

Far removed from danger of invasion by the hostile armies of the Confederacy, and eagerly engaged in extracting wealth from the ever-generous hills, who would naturally expect the people of that remote territory to display but little interest in the bloody scenes being enacted along the Potomac, and many no doubt die, but George L. Shoup was not one of them. The withdrawal of the regular troops from the frontier in 1857 for the defence of Washington, left the settlers of Colorado at the mercy of hostile Indians, ever ready to take advantage of the inevitable occasion to exterminate with tomahawk and scalping-knife the widely separated and unprotected camps and settlements.

Thus, young Shoup, for the first time in his life, faced a chance to serve his country in a practical way, and turning his back upon the alluring opportunities which beckoned from every hand, he enlisted as a private soldier in Captain Baxter's company of independent soldiers. His natural soldierly qualities, for he came of a military family stock, his cheerfulness in the camp and his gallantry on the field soon won him his deserved promotion, and at the age of twenty, he was appointed Lieutenant of the First Colorado Cavalry, scouting on the borders of Texas and the Indian Territory. He was later commissioned colonel of the Second Colorado Cavalry, and during the winter of active warfare, while his headquarters were bivouacked in winter quarters, served as a delegate to the first constitutional convention of his westward-ward, to which position of honor and trust he already grateful people had unanimously called him.

bank as one of the most successful business men of the west. His zeal for the general welfare and his aptitude for public affairs soon attracted the favorable attention of his neighbors, who immediately elected him their representative in the lower branch of the territorial legislature in 1871, they returning him to the upper house, and in 1874 he was appointed commissioner to the World's Cotton Centennial at New Orleans. This appointment he first declined for business reasons, but, discovering later that none would take the position because of a dearth of money to pay the expenses of his trip, he immediately accepted from sheer territorial pride and patriotism, and out of his own pocket he applied the thousands of dollars to help defray the expenses of the embassy state. This generous act, that made possible the first display of the territory's products in the east, was undoubtedly the medium of attracting the attention of the outside world to her latent riches, and the thank-offering thus made by George Shoup twenty-five years ago finds a responsive echo in the myriad of fields, the hundreds of prosperous farms, the great and busy manufacturing plants, the churches spires pointing upward, and the five hundred thousand laboring, busy living thousands of men and women who compose the splendid citizenship of the grand, young commonwealth of Idaho.

In 1889 Territorial Harrison appointed Colonel Shoup governor of his adopted territory, and upon the admission of Idaho into the Union of states in 1890, he was elected by the people to the same position. In December of that year he was chosen to represent Idaho in the national senate, and he has since occupied that high position, which he continued to fill with honor, credit and ability until a fusion of the opposition political forces of the state resulted in the election of a successor of a different party faith.

Thus he lived for sixty-eight years without a personal enemy on earth, and thus he died, his heart overflowing with peace, contentment and goodwill toward all men. His personal popularity with every class in Idaho was so unusual as to often call forth remark and wonderment. In the many political contests in which he took part, he was never once defeated by the direct vote of the people, and I have always thought that I knew one of the greatest of our political strength. Tradition has it, although history may be silent, that at the final fall of the Confederacy, the chief of Price's valiant army never surrendered—that, instead, it moved to northern Idaho. And I have always wondered what the result of the many political contests which in that fair state, when opposing candidates were abstaining each other from the hustings, each alleging the other to be a horse thief and almost proving it, too, Colonel Shoup would quietly find his way to northern Idaho, where on the glorious summit slopes of Caman Prairie the political freedom of South Idaho met and mingled with the political tolerance of the Coeur d'Alenes, and hunt up the survivors of Price's old army; sit down on the banks of a beautiful bay stack, talk over their troubles together, possibly take a drink out of the same canteen and in due time part with the elements of peace and amity, both impressed with the time honored fact that a brave and fearless enemy, fighting for a principle, would die for his country. Usually makes, when the same is definitely settled, the most trustworthy and reliable friend—after which the gallant old Senator would safely return to Salmon City, filled with that feeling of political confidence and security that was a result of the victory. To those to count the victorious votes as the election returns came in.

Mr. Speaker, I do not know of any field in the history of our country where human greatness, each day, age and generation is a law unto itself. But it is safe to say that he who has acted well his part in life, however humble or exalted, has performed in full measure his duty to himself, his country and his God. And he who has done this, George L. Shoup was neither orator nor statesman. He was a soldier and a pioneer. He had no soldier's or a pioneer's vanity, but he had a love and devotion to none he did valiant service for his country in its time of direct need. He was not a man of the legislature or of government, but he stood pre-eminent among the pathfinders and builders of an empire in the Rocky Mountain West.

I know not how others may feel, but as for myself, I would rather participate in laying the foundation of two great states of the American union, than in the azure blue of my country's flag two fixed and permanent stars—than to rank in persuasive oratory, full of the industry and courage of my countrymen transformed—the indolence and—silence of the Great American Desert into countless fertile fields, my honors would rather be the recipient of the heartfelt gratitude and gentle blessing of one pioneer mother whose name I had restored to the same savage torture—than be any king, or prince or potentate that ever sat on a throne. And George L. Shoup, in that short lifetime did all of this and more.

The gallant old Indian fighter, jaunty pioneer colonizer, and faithful senator today sleeps in the soil he dearly loved and so loved Idaho. No word, no wish, no prayer can call him from his lone abode, nor would he have so. His life mission is done, his work on earth is done. That he was Nature's model of a gentleman, kindly of heart, devoid of selfishness or meanness, full of charity for all and devoted to the interests of his fellows, those who know him best in life will have to testify. Into the keeping of the great earth he is committed, and faithfully Idaho, today consigns, with love and deep appreciation, a marble epitaph, firm in the belief that his name and memory will live so long as mankind, manly courage and unobtrusive worth shall endure among men.

PRESERVING FARM PORK

Fail a Good Time to Slaughtering, as Other Work is Not Pleasing.

I have found it profitable to raise hogs annually for meat and lard, and to sell the hams in the winter. The fall when farm work is not crowding. Much of it is done indoors when the weather is bad outdoors. Hams, shoulders and sides should be trimmed well, all corners and sharp edges cut off, and the legs removed two or three inches above the knees. Let the meat cool in a cool place until all steam heat is gone, but do not let it freeze. Rub each piece of pork with the common salt and pack closely in a barrel. As each layer is put in sprinkle a layer of salt over it. Hams should be put in first, shoulders next and sides and other light pieces on the top. Let it stand over night, then cover the meat with a brine containing 10 pounds of salt, 2 ounces of saltpeter and 4 gallons of boiling water. This amount is sufficient for each 100 pounds of meat. Weigh down the pieces to keep them under the brine. Keep the pork in the brine until used, or if desired, hang up and smoke for a day or two.

It may be smoked in the old way with a fire made of green hickory wood or by applying liquid smoke directly to the meat. Either way is good and satisfactory. Rub the meat with one has a good smokehouse he can use the old way with profit, but the liquid smoke is cheap and easily applied.

Before smoking, trim each side to weigh out 6 pounds of salt, 2 pounds of granulated sugar, 2 ounces of saltpeter and mix. This is enough for each 100 pounds of meat. Rub the meat with the mixture. While the meat is curing it will be in a cool room where it will not become warm or freeze. Two barrels may be used, changing the meat from one barrel to the other. It is rubbed after the last rubbing let the meat lie in the barrel for a week or 10 days, then take it out to smoke.

SAID TO BE INSANE.

Resident of Twin Falls Detained in Salt Lake City.

Salt Lake City, Jan. 12.—Suspected of having suffered a temporary mental aberration, Mrs. J. S. McMichael of Twin Falls, Idaho, who with her year-old baby had undertaken a journey to her old home in the east, was removed from an Oregon Short Line train here today and given over to the care of the police matron. The woman's transportation shows that she intended traveling either to Chicago or Cincinnati.

Her refusal to change cars at Ogden this morning, coupled with the actions previously noted by her fellow passengers, drew upon her the suspicions of the conductor. The latter was unable to get a satisfactory statement from the woman and decided to notify the authorities in Salt Lake City by telephone. A physician and two patrol officers were on hand when the train arrived in this city an hour later. The woman was persuaded to leave the car but later she resisted the officers and was with considerable difficulty controlled by them. She was brought to police headquarters and will be detained pending efforts on the part of the authorities to communicate with the woman's husband—Statesman.

JAYNES-SPRAGUE WEDDING.

Young Couple Popular in Twin Falls and Milner, Married at Milner

On Wednesday evening at 7:30, occurred the wedding of Arthur W. Jaynes and Miss Myrtle M. Sprague, an event looked forward to with great pleasure by the many friends of the couple on both the North and South Side tracts. The affair took place in the Riverdale Inn at Milner, in the presence of a number of friends from Twin Falls and Milner.

The bridal party entered the parlor to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march played by Miss Hazel Kirkpatrick of Twin Falls. Miss Hazel Greenhow of Twin Falls was maid of honor, while the groom was attended by C. C. Willburn, of Milner.

The bride was beautifully gowned in white and was given away by her father, Mr. E. E. Sprague. At 7:30 o'clock Rev. H. W. Parker of Twin Falls, performed the ceremony which united the happy couple.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Sprague of Milner, and is very popular among the young people of both the North and South Side tracts.

Mr. Jaynes is employed in the office of the North Side Land and Water company at Hollister, and has a host of friends in Hollister, Twin Falls and Milner. He is also a member of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity at the University of Nebraska.

The young couple were tendered many beautiful presents from their numerous friends, both absent and present, and immediately following the ceremony they left for Boise, Salt Lake and other points on a short honeymoon. After a short trip the young people will be at home to their friends at Hollister, in a home already prepared for them.

RAILROAD COMES TO TERMS.

Harriman System Does Not Merger Salt Packed.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Having for their object the establishment of some basis of understanding upon which a settlement of the government's suit for the dissolution of the so-called Harriman Lines may be reached, a number of conferences between officials of the railroads and the government will probably be held during the next few days.

The first of such conferences was held yesterday and President Taft was among the foremost. The government's suit is pending under the Sherman anti-trust law, and it is understood the Harriman lines desire to effect a settlement without having the courts adjudicate the case. President Taft is understood to be awaiting a revelation of the railroads' purposes as to compliance with the law before indicating what his position will be.—Capital News.

PLAN SERIES OF LECTURES.

S. P. I. Club Making Great Progress In Its Work.

The S. P. I. club of the Methodist church are going to give a series of lectures for the benefit of its members and prospective members, at the church on the last Thursday of each month, on subjects of interest to all young men. The first lecture will be given on Thursday evening, January 27, who will deliver for this, the first lecture, Dr. E. W. Weaver, of this city. He will deliver a lecture on "Social Hygiene." All young men of the city are invited to take advantage of this opportunity to hear some of the best speakers of the city. We believe in helping the young man, not only on Sunday, but every day.

The S. P. I. club is in a flourishing condition and its membership is increasing rapidly. Young men not affiliated with other Sunday schools are invited to join us on Sunday mornings at 10 o'clock. Club rooms open on Thursday evenings.

$200,000 IN TAXES COLLECTED.

Balance of Delinquents Amount to Only $60,000.

L. G. Hayford, tax collector for this county, gave in round sums the amount of taxes collected by his office prior to the day the ten per cent penalty was added an approximately about $200,000 with less than $60,000 to be collected. A statement which will be a surprise inasmuch as the increase in the tax, has made it extremely difficult in many cases for the taxpayers to meet payment. While the rate of payment does not equal that of last year, yet it aggregates a sum considerably over the amount paid in last year owing to the increase in valuations and the amount of land placed under cultivation during 1909.

INSTRUCT HORTICULTURISTS.

Methods of Protecting Orchards From Frost to Be Shown.

Something new in the interests of the fruit growers and potato raisers along the line of the Oregon Short Line is about to be undertaken by the railroad company, being nothing less than the installation of a demonstration or lecturing train which will pass through the counties of northern Utah and southern Idaho.

The train will be a special, consisting of a baggage car, two large composite coaches and a large day coach, carrying implements for the demonstration of potato culture and orchard heating, and on these two subjects lectures will be delivered by experts secured for the purpose by the railroad company.

The personnel of the party will be as follows: Eugene H. Grubb of Carbondale, Colorado, expert on potato culture.

H. L. Edgerton, expert on seed potatoes.

James Hamilton and M. Mahoney, of Grand Junction, Colo., experts on orchard heating.

J. E. Wing, editor of the Breeder's Gazette, of Chicago, Ill., expert on soils.

W. S. Gullford, director of the agricultural department of Twin Falls North Side Land and Water company, general agricultural expert. The whole subject of potato culture, which has assumed such startling proportions throughout northern Utah and Idaho, will be fully dealt with by these experts, their talks being illustrated and amplified by means of implements, samples and demonstrations of methods. Orchard heating will also be completely demonstrated.

The train will leave Salt Lake City on Thursday morning, Jan. 20.—Two stops will be made at Delta county, where lectures will be delivered, probably at Farmington and Layton. Lectures will be delivered at Ogden, Brigham City, Garland, Staked, Olathe, Preston, Richmond, Logan, Hyrum and Trenton, in Utah, when the train will proceed to Idaho, where stops and lectures will be made at all the principal points on the Short Line.

The total cost of the special train, expert lecturers, equipment, etc., is borne by the passenger department of the Oregon Short Line, and has been arranged by D. E. Burley, general passenger agent. The train will be on the coast nearly a month, according to plans of the present itinerary. The lecture course has been prepared especially for the benefit of the farmers, ranchers and fruit growers of the country through which the Short Line passes, and contains the latest scientific developments in the way of fruit protection and potato culture known.

LECTURES DAILY.

Lectures will be given daily, and for the most part in the cars attached to the special train. It has been so arranged that one lecture will be carried on in one of the cars, and at the conclusion of the first talk the lecturers will exchange places and as a consequence, those in attendance will secure the benefit of the entire double course.

O. S. L. DEMONSTRATION TRAIN.

Farmers Adjacent to Twin Falls Invited for Jan. 25th.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Jan. 18, 1910. Mr. J. F. Stoltz, Secretary Twin Falls Com'l. Club, Twin Falls, Idaho.

Dear Sir: We will arrive at Twin Falls at 12:45 p. m., or noon, January 25th, and leave there at 3:00 p. m. Lectures will be given in cars at depot. There will be two coaches on the train, which will each hold probably 80 or 90 people, crowded, and we are particularly anxious that these coaches be filled with growers, and we trust that the local town people will not crowd the cars to the exclusion of the actual growers themselves.

There will be a lecture in each of the coaches at the same time on the different subjects, and lecturers will change from one car to the other, so that growers occupying either car will get the full benefit of entire course.

Am extremely sorry we cannot give you more time. I trust that your club members, and citizens, will help the good work along by seeing that actual growers themselves have an opportunity of hearing the lectures.

Yours truly, D. E. BURLEY.

PROPHESY BIG CAMP.

Recorder Smith and Surveyor O'Bryne In from Jarldge.

Chas. E. Smith and Joseph F. O'Bryne arrived Tuesday from Jarldge and were immediately besieged with inquiries about the conditions prevailing at the camp. They stated that there were now about 300 men in camp and that all were in a high state of excitement over the size of the ore bodies being uncovered.

Mr. O'Bryne had recently completed a survey of the Escaloon claims on which he had traced the distinct ore vein for 3,000 feet.

On their own property Messrs. Smith and O'Bryne have uncovered a vein forty feet in width assaying from $250 to $300 on the surface. They expect to incorporate Friday on the Hill Top Mining, Milling and Power Co.

Soils for Various Fruits.

Peaches must be on high, well drained soil; years may be grown on the heavy clay; the same is true of plums; the apples may be put on soils from those types on loams, clay loams and even gravel loam or even sandy loam. The Baldwin will do better on the gravel loams or sandy soils, and the Greening will do better on the clay loams.

Most of these soils will be benefited by underdrainage; in fact, this is the most important improvement which can be made in most of the old orchards and on most of the land which is to be planted to young orchards. The drains should be 30 inches to three feet deep in possible and if there can be a drain tile between each row of apple trees it will be an advantage for from sixty to a hundred years. If either manure or fertilizer, since the apple tree has to stay in the same place for sixty or a hundred years. If it is to succeed it cannot be grown on land which is dry for only three months of the year.

Such land may be fit for growing buckwheat, that is, it may dry off by the end of June and be fit to walk on until early in November, but this class of land had better not be planted to trees. The fruits, then, should be put within the young and old orchards.—Farm Progress.

Manslaughter in First Degree.

but the fact that two bullets had penetrated Ellsberg's body, both of which were fatal. He also stated upon questioning that it was highly probable that that Ellsberg could not have clucked after receiving either shots.

Dr. Clouchek gave testimony corroborating in detail the result of the autopsy and stated that it was improbable that the deceased had walked any distance after receiving either wound.

The gun taken from the prisoner and the knife found open in Ellsberg's overcoat pocket were introduced in evidence.

Mrs. Ellsberg was next called and testified in the main for the prisoner. She stated that Ellsberg had come to her house about four days previous to the killing and in the slouch had offered her a check of $1,000. This testimony of the dramatization was corroborated by Mrs. Van Ostrum.

Mrs. Ellsberg then related the acts leading up to the killing, and stated that Ellsberg came to the place about two in the afternoon and threatened to break down the door, demanding to see his daughter. He was diverted and directed to Mrs. Van Ostrum's house. Later Ellsberg returned with Mrs. Van Ostrum, who persuaded Mrs. Ellsberg to come out and talk with her former husband. While out in the yard Ellsberg demanded to have the child and made more threats and the women turning to go into the house discovered that Ellsberg was following.

They began to run and he pursued. They gained the house and he heard one shot fired and after waiting some five minutes went out and found the body. At the same time Salmgren entered the house and about five minutes later left for Rock Creek.

Mrs. Van Ostrum testified to the same with minor diversions.

Peter Larsen, a neighboring rancher, testified to loaning Salmgren the rifle used in the killing. Larsen also testified that he heard only one shot fired.

The court after hearing all the testimony, ordered the defendant bound over to the district court and placed the bail at $5,000. The two women were also put under detention bonds to appear as witnesses.
