WATER SUPPLY IS NOT IMPURE

Claims of Idaho Chemist Disputed by Harms.

UTAH STATE CHEMIST GIVES CRITICAL ANALYSIS.

Says Water is Decidedly Fit and Pure Enough for all Domestic Purposes.

Shortly after the visit of Inspector Wallis to this city when he gave out the information that the water supply was impure, the Commercial club appointed a committee of three editors to take samples of the water and send the same away to have critical analyses made of the water of this city to expert chemists outside of the state. The reason for doing this was that the state chemist of Idaho had not made his tests of the water while the sample submitted was comparatively fresh. For this reason the water supply of the city was condemned by the state board without due consideration of such analysis. The members of the committee, Fred Moran, W. H. Hornbrook and W. S. Hill, together with Supt. Ramsey of the Waterworks department, took samples from the city hydrants and sent them to three different chemists outside the state. The following analysis made by Harman Harms, recognized even by State Chemist Mason as an authority, was made within four days of its shipment.

TWO MILLIONS FOR HIS CLAIM

Discoverer of the Jarbidge Strike in City.

D. A. BOURNE REFUSES HAND-SOME OFFER FOR PROFIT.

Claims That He Has Twelve Millions in Sight on the Famous Bourne Group.

D. A. Bourne, famous all over the United States today as the discoverer of the new gold strike at Jarbidge, was in Twin Falls for several days last week, making arrangements for getting workmen and supplies out to his group of claims. Mr. Bourne when interviewed very readily gave the "Times" reporter all the information possible. He stated that there was no doubt in his mind that Jarbidge would make a great camp and that the present excitement was not a criterion of the mad stampede which will take place as soon as the weather breaks. When asked about the offer of $2,000,000 for his claims Mr. Bourne stated that such an offer had been made and that it had also been refused. He stated that simply the ore in sight was worth at a close estimate about that figure and that the Bourne claims were, not on the market.

MEYER & COMPANY KEPT BUSY

First Load of Merchandise Stock for Jarbidge Mercantile Company.

Old time miners were all attention when bag after bag of Jarbidge outfits were loaded up last Thursday morning at Meyer & Company's big department store. The wagons were James Cameron's, and bore the first shipment of the Jarbidge Mercantile Co.'s stock, brought from Meyer & Company. Cameron says: "It's only a starter; wait till spring opens up and Jarbidge will keep Twin Falls busy forwarding goods."

Meyer & Company's store was a busy center this week for miners and prospectors, who came from all over the country to outfit with sturn hooks and rubbers, tents, blankets and warm clothing. Joe Meyer was at his wits' end. He kept the wires hot to Salt Lake and Denver ordering supplies forwarded by express, and managed to satisfy everybody.

This company (Meyers) have a carload of blankets, tents, traps and cotso coming this week for the Jarbidge trade.

Manager Banta of Idaho Department Store Home.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Banta, who have been in Los Angeles for the past four weeks, returned home the first of the week. Mr. Banta, while thinking California well enough for a change, still thinks Twin Falls the liveliest and best place in the west.

FIFTY-TWO CARS OF COAL.

Twin Falls Receives Large Amount During Month.

Agent D. E. Sullivan stated this week that the amount of coal shipped into this city during the month of January would surprise some of the men who were howling the most, if figured out. On going over his daily reports he found that in spite of the continual clamor for coal that fifty-two full car loads had been received in this city alone. The company Mr. Sullivan stated had in many cases let other freight go in order to bring the coal in on this branch. Ten cars of coal were received yesterday by the local dealers.

The schedule of the service is as follows:

No. Bound. Station. No. Bound. Lv. 8:00 a.m. Twin Falls Ar. 6:00 p.m. Lv. 9:15 a.m. Hollister Lv. 5:00 p.m. Ar. 10:00 a.m. Rogerson Lv. 4:30 p.m. On Saturdays an extra into this city from Rogerson and Hollister will have the following schedule:

Peaches On The Farm.
About ten years ago I decided to plant a small peach orchard in connection with my other farming, says a writer in the Southern Agriculturist. I selected twelve acres of land that had been overgrown with weeds, lyfars and plum bushes.

I set to work in August to clear up the land and get it ready for the plow. In the fall I broke and harrowed; in November I planted the trees 21x21 feet apart, cut them off about knee high in order to give good shade to trees, and whitewashed to keep rabbits from destroying. During the first two or three years the orchard was planted in truck and heavily fertilized, with commercial fertilizer. By this means the trees were kept well cultivated, profit came from the land before the trees reached bearing age.

After the third year the trees began bearing, and the orchard was then planted in peas or peanuts, or both, which helped to build up the land by turning under the vines, also keeping down all weeds and undesirable growth. I never plow, cultivate or hoe and I do not think it a good idea to plant cotton in an orchard.

After the trees began bearing I gave them good cultivation during the winter by thoroughly plowing and harrowing both ways, taking care not to get too deep, another in April. In May, or when the fruit is developing, I hoe them thoroughly in order to destroy weeds and cultivate close to the trees where I could not reach with the plow or harrow. The more hoeing and harrowing the better, as it keeps the trees healthy, and have never been bothered with mice of any kind.

I prefer the Siberian, as they are the best for shipping purposes, being very attractive in size and color, and the finest.

Although I did not plant on a commercial scale, out of a twelve-acre orchard I shipped quite a number of crates for which I received very satisfactory prices. Some other varieties, a few of which came on earlier, and Nixon Citing, which came on later than the Siberian, I shipped out of good prices, thus bringing in cash all along.

Living in the fruit belt, as I do, I packed my fruit in four-basket crates and shipped in car lots to non-fruit markets, some few early early or very late varieties I shipped by express to local markets.

In addition to the shipments, plenty was canned and preserved at home for winter use, and all culls fed to pigs and poultry. Now, at 10 years of age, the trees look well and bid fair to yield several more crops.

The orchard and dairy go well in hand toward helping the southern farmer solve the problem of diversification.

From these primitive forms all other numbers are formed. A careful study of the following combinations of numbers will show upon what principles the complex numbers are formed:

ok, 8
dek, 10
dek-un, (ten and one) 11
dek-sis, (ten and six) 16.
dek-du, (two tens) 20
du-dek-du, (two tens and two) 22.

Ordinal Numbers.

Ordinal numbers are formed by adding the affix ESMA to the cardinal form of the number. Examples: unesma, first; duesma, second; dek-sepesma, seventeenth; sop-dek-triesma, seventy-third; tri-cent-ok-dek-sepesma, three hundred and eighty seventh.

INVESTMENT VALUE OF IRRIGATION BONDS.

(Reprinted from the Financial Age of January 3, 1910.)

Irrigation may briefly be said to be the application of water running to waste, to land otherwise of little or no value.

The farmer operating under irrigation has an enormous advantage over one operating under natural rainfall, even in the richest part of the Mississippi Valley. He gets the water for his crop just when it needs it and turns it off when it is not needed, the latter being a very important consideration in the harvesting of grain and the ripening of fruit. The farmer using irrigation is able to get ahead in the world much faster than the other, because he can produce much more money value out of his land per acre. This is conclusively proved by the following table, giving the United States Government figures for the year 1905:

NON-IRRIGATED STATES.
	Acres.	Farm value of product.	Per acre.
Iowa	15,575,000	$23,116,000	$13.68
Missouri	13,470,000	178,510,000	13.25
Nebraska	14,550,000	182,642,000	12.65
Kansas	16,537,000	189,671,000	11.40
	57,232,000	$304,932,000	$12.75
IRRIGATED STATES.
Idaho	1,023,000	$ 23,149,000	$22.62
Colorado	1,362,000	30,451,000	22.52
Utah	686,000	14,764,000	21.52
Neveda	251,000	5,299,000	21.11
Montana	983,000	19,708,000	30.04
Wyoming	414,000	7,456,000	18.00
	4,709,000	$100,827,000	$21.41

The above shows the money product per acre in these western irrigated states, the average being $21.41, as against $12.72 in the west-established and rich farming states of Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska, in which states irrigated farming is so small as to be negligible. The comparison is based on the total production value of the following staples: Wheat, corn, oats, barley, rye, potatoes and hay.

If comparison is made between any one of these products individually, except corn, the irrigated states show a large and conclusive advantage. The acre of corn in the latter is relatively insignificant. To take a few random examples, the wheat yield in Idaho is 32.2 bu. per acre, against 12.5 bu. per acre in Kansas; the oat yield in Montana is 51.6 bu. per acre, against 24.3 bu. per acre in Iowa; the potato yield in Colorado is 125 bu. per acre, against 80 bu. per acre in Missouri, and so on through the list. The comparison is a fair one, for the general crop yield in the year 1908 was a normal one in the rainfall states. The results given in the irrigated states represent actual conditions and not what might be under ideal conditions, for much of the assistance farming at present is done under primitive methods and without the assistance of storage reservoirs to supplement the natural flow of the stream which supplies the water. The introduction of the modern large storage reservoir system adopted by the United States government, municipal districts, and irrigation corporations, will year by year widen the difference between the figures given above. It is by a first-class upon the land, water and irrigation system producing these results that the modern irrigation bond is secured, whether municipal

LEAVES FOR JARBIDGE CAMP

Takes Gang of Men With Him to Work Property of Local Men.

Dan Greenwalt, one of the pioneers of the new gold camp of Jarbridge, leaves this evening with a gang of men to start operations on the Jarbridge-Bunker Hill property which was recently incorporated by local men. Mr. Greenwalt is taking with him a number of experienced miners and work will begin on the property at once. Some excellent showings have been obtained from the property and it is believed that with a little depth the Bunker Hill will be one of the big things of the district.

The party will go into the camp by way of Twin Falls where it will be outfitted. Mr. Greenwalt, who took up the property early in the fall, is thoroughly familiar with it, and therefore will have no trouble in pushing work in spite of the heavy snows—Desert News.

Railroad Activity of Short Line Increasing.

ATTEMPT BEING MADE TO COVER ALL IDAHO TERRITORY.

Vice President Bancroft Gives Assurance of Completion of Buhl to Nysa Circuit.

A program of railroad building in the Gem state during the current year has been decided upon by the Oregon Short Line in an extension of its policy, according to W. H. Bancroft, vice president and general manager of the road, who, in an interview with J. E. Clinton, Jr., in Salt Lake Saturday, stated that the beginning of work on the new Central Idaho line from Owyhee through Boise and Boise valley to Puyallup, would mark the commencement of a campaign of railroad construction which will not cease until no less than five new lines are added to the present Short Line system in Idaho and one in Oregon.

Mr. Clinton, who has just returned from Salt Lake, when he spent some time in conference with Short Line officials, yesterday, made the following statement: "Mr. Bancroft told me Saturday that the Oregon Short Line has a location for the new Central Idaho line which would be taken up at once and as soon as this is completed the laying of rails will commence. He said that the plan is to lay which can interfere with the project will be the shortage of steel rails. As an evidence of the shortage of rails at this time, it may be said, that orders placed for delivery of rails last May are only commencing now to bear fruit. The steel mills are all worked beyond their capacity, although signs of improvement in the situation are very apparent and we really anticipate very little further trouble in this respect."

Extend Twin Falls Branch.
"Mr. Bancroft stated to me that it had been decided to extend the Twin Falls branch of the line beyond Buhl to Nysa, Ore., to double track the line from McCollum to Minidoka, to construct a line 20 miles in length from Buhl to Oakley through the heart of a rich agricultural section, to build a line from Rupert to Hites and to extend the present line from Terra Grande on the Mackay branch to the town of McCollum. He also told me that it had been decided to extend the line in Oregon from Vale through the creek for a distance of 25 miles.

"The extension of the Twin Falls branch to Nysa will necessitate the construction of the longest and the heaviest railroad bridge in the world across the Salmon river, the bridge as planned to be 2000 feet in length and will span now in use. Mr. Bancroft states that it is not unlikely that this two foot or a little more will be made up in order that Idaho may have the distinction of having the highest bridge in the country, bar none.

Bancroft Boosts Idaho.
"What the fact is, I am generally known, W. H. Bancroft is himself one of the greatest boosters Idaho has. He tells me that at recent meetings of the directors of the Short Line in New York he has at all times taken the position that Idaho is one of the most profitable pieces of territory on the entire system and that no state west of the Mississippi river has anything like its chances in the way of immigration in the next few years. There is no question but that the Gem state is backed up to the last word by the general manager of the Short Line, a fact the importance of which cannot be overlooked.

Mr. Clinton says that the present plans of the line are the outcome of a thorough investigation of the possibilities of Idaho from a railroad standpoint, and the decision to proceed at once with the many improvements decided upon is the best recommendation which the state could possibly have as to future development. "There is no question," says Mr. Clinton, "but what the Short Line people are doing is sincere in their statements with regard to the program mapped out and I am convinced after talking with Mr. Bancroft that no policy will be pursued to get the steel into Boise and the balance of the proposed line completed within as short a period as possible."

Work Will Start Soon.
"It is, of course, difficult to say just how long it will take to decide on a permanent location for the new line. But it is expected that the work will be well under way before the close of the current year, there is no question. As to the amount of traffic which will pass over the new line, it is only necessary to glance at the comparative grades presented by the old road, which is to be abandoned, to determine this point. The new line will have a minimum grade of 1 per cent, whereas the present line runs as high as 4 at King Hill and presents a general average grade of 1 in the neighborhood of 2 per cent. This can mean one thing, namely that the large part of the through passenger traffic and all of the heavy through freight traffic will come by the new line via Boise. In addition to the railroad work alone, in my opinion, the prospects of the Gem state were never brighter or the possibilities of rapid development along the line better than at present."—Statesman.

Dear Sir:—Complying with your request of Jan. 28, 1910, I respectfully submit herewith my results obtained in chemical analysis of the sample of water sent in by express.

Sanitary Water Analysis. Sample marked: Submitted by: J. F. Stoltz, Esq. Collected by: Not stated. Date collected: Not stated. Date received: Jan. 21, 1910, noon. Quantity: One (1) quart in beer bottle, sealed.

Information. Source of water: Not stated. Surrounding conditions: Not stated. Possible contaminations: Not stated. Contaminations suspected: Not stated. Object of analysis: To determine purity and fitness of the water for household and drinking purposes.

Analysis. A—Physical. Color: Bluish tint. Odor: None. Taste: Neutral. Clearness: Fairly bright. Sediment: Fair amount; grayish and brownish flocculent.

B—Chemical. Reaction: a—Litmus: Neutral. b—Phenolphthalein: Exceedingly faint alkaline.

Nitrates. a—Brucine Reaction: None. b—Diphenylamine Reaction: None. Nitrites (Griess-Idoway's Reaction): (Aceto-sulphanilic-alpha-naphthyl-imine). a—Cold: None. b—Water heated to about 175 degrees F.: None.

Sulphurated Hydrogen: None. Chloride: None. Sulfide: None. Metallic Impurities: None. Total Solids, dried at 212 degrees F. per U. S. Gallon: 16,218 gr.

REMARKS: This water contains a fairly small amount of solids, consisting of the ordinary water constituents. Calcium Chloride, Magnesium Chloride, Free acids, Metallic impurities and other objectionable constituents, are entirely absent.

It is especially considered, The water is of ordinary purity. No Nitrates or Nitrites are present. Upon gentle ignition of the residue, no foreign odor is emitted. Furthermore, the residue does not clatter, or blacken, but darkens considerably. (Chiefly due to the Iron present). The amounts of Free and Alkaline Ammonia, and also Oxygen Consumed are such as are found in waters of ordinary purity. Chloride, respectively, Sodium Chloride, is present in relatively small amount.

All of the above tests confirm that no contamination of the water by sewage, seepage, drainage or other sources of pollution has taken place. The water is odorless, of a normal taste and fairly bright in appearance. Even upon the above detailed Chemical Analysis, I am forced to the conclusion that the water submitted to me is absolutely free from contaminations or pollutions by organic matter as well as Mineral Impurities and the Water is, therefore, "perfectly fit and safe" for all culinary and domestic purposes.

The above conclusions are subject of course, that the natural surroundings of the water supply are first-class and kept in such condition. Feb. 3, 1910.

ADVANCEMENT IN POULTRY.

Mechanical Devices Keep Up With Demands on Business.

As with all other productive enterprises, the rearing of poultry on a large scale has made necessary a great number of mechanical inventions and patented devices and preparatory to the taking of the hatchery, to secure exact results, promote the well-being of the flocks and add to the attractions and profits of the pursuit.

Until within the last half century the production of eggs and the growing of domestic fowls received merely incidental attention, and rarely was there any expenditure of money for the express purpose of housing or affording special accommodations.

Chickens, and often turkeys, geese and ducks were found on most farms, and some eggs and poultry were sold, especially in the vicinity of cities, and as no accounts had been kept with this line of stock, the prices obtained were regarded as a satisfactory return for the small amount of care that had been bestowed on it. In the summer the flocks roamed the yards and fields, picking up an abundance of food, roosting at night in the trees or on the roofs of cribs or sheds, and in winter shared the stables with the cattle and horses, if permitted to do so, settling themselves at night on any convenient beam or upon the upper edges of the partitions between the stable stalls.

These were the days when "hunting the eggs" was no mere figure of speech, for "biddy" could choose her nest to her liking, and many times it escaped the most vigilant search.

But as cities multiplied and increased in size, and as luxurious living became more general, such haphazard methods in the production of eggs, broilers, roasters and stowing fowls were gradually superseded by more restrictive methods. Special chicken houses were built and yards inclosed in which the fowls could be confined when desirable.

This necessitated more lumber, fencing and carpentering, which had to be put down on the debit side of the account.

Then with the development of many improved breeds the nonlayers called for some artificial method of hatching, and the incubator was invented—very uncertain and dangerous in use in its early eridenses; but as the years passed, improved simplified in some particulars; complicated with various automatic devices in others, until at the present day it is a machine that scarcely falls short of perfection in all its workings, and its management is more easy.

Accompanying the incubator an artificially warmed brooder was a necessity for early spring and late fall hatches. No brooder as yet absolutely meets all the requirements, but most makes answer their purpose fairly well when handled with judgment and in exact accordance with directions.

These two machines are the most expensive of the poultry grower's outfit, and their manufacture has been made a specialty by a large number of artisans in various sections of the country, from whose annual sales divisions comparable to those of most furniture manufacturers are realized.

The weaving of the chicken yard wire is another important line of the ironworker's art, million of feet being required annually for yards, screens and pigeon flies. In the building and furnishing of the houses, in which costly and fancy breeds of chickens and other poultry are maintained, many ingenious mechanical devices in the way of drinking fountains, automatic feeders, trap nests, anklets, punches, etc. the prices of which are considerable, are in use, as well as green house centers, rollers, sifters and numerous other conveniences, which in the aggregate afford large profits to their makers.

From the poultry pharmacopoeia the druggist derives a measure of gain, while quiet-selling books and numerous beautifully illustrated journals devoted to this subject crowd the book shelves, and flood the table of those interested, bringing revenue to the authors and publishers.

A still more important source of gain dependent upon poultry production are the various "chick feed" preparations, which, that pure grain foods are so expensive, have become almost indispensable to commercial growers.

In these nutriment of various elemental qualities is combined, so as to provide special rations adapted to the growing chick, the laying hen and the fattening cock; and in their manufacture many products of milling, many otherwise valueless seeds and packing plant waste, is utilized to the advantage alike of the manufacturer and consumer.

This enumeration—not by any means complete—of the indirect profits derived from a single productive industry affords a good illustration of the interdependence.—B. K. T., Okla., in Farm Progress.

The position of the Boise papers with regard to this city should demand some pretty determined action by the citizens here. Both the Statesman and the Capital News were altogether too ready to print the statements given out regarding the water supply of this city and by so doing give circulation to something detrimental to the city of Twin Falls. It is not for the Times to say what motive lies back of the action of the Boise papers in giving space to the matter published without due investigation, but the citizens here all have their opinion of that motive. But now that the articles have been published there remains the question for the citizens here to decide whether the subscriptions to the Boise papers should be continued. Something should be done at least to show the feeling of the business men at the unwarranted publicity given to unsubstantiated articles.

The number of ranchers who are making payment on the suits against the Lath & Water company, is on the increase every day, but there are still a great many who are not giving to the movement. To such ranchers the great necessity for the suits should be apparent. And they should have the same interest in the success or failure of the suits as do those who have already contributed. Without some clearly defined decision from the courts concerning the ownership of the dam and the priority of the water right there can only be doubt and hesitancy among the ranchers themselves and among the incoming settlers. On the other hand, if the decrees of the court, sought for are obtained, it means a great increase in the value of the land in this county. Every rancher in the county will share this benefit whether he contributes to the suits or not and for that reason should not selfishly allow his neighbor to pay more than his fair proportion because he failed to do the right thing.

The Boise Stammer this week comes out with statements from State Chemist Mason and Dr. Conant, one of the members of the state board of health, in defense of the state's interference in the matter of the water supply of this city. Dr. Conant after saying in one breath that the board had no jurisdiction in the matter, turns round in the next breath and attempts to defend the unwarranted interference of the state by such a broad interpretation of the board's duties that a school boy would laugh at him for his logic. State Chemist Mason also makes the statement that the water sent up there for analysis was sent by the city physician of Twin Falls, but he fails to state that the physician did not go along with it and view the disposition of the sample of water during the sixty days it was held in Boise before the report of the analysis was made. Mr. Mason also by his statement that water was analyzed four days after its receipt by him is in direct contradiction of the statement made by Mr. Wallis before the Twin Falls Commercial club at the time of his visit here when he stated that about sixty days elapsed before the sample was analyzed. If Mr. Wallis stated the truth about the length of time that the water was kept in the original vessel, then Mr. Mason did not and the water after being kept for sixty days could not and would not give a satisfactory test on the amount of free ammonia present, even Mr. Mason cannot deny that water standing that length of time in a close vessel would after a time give off free ammonia (which might not be on the analysis of fresh water give any trace beyond a slight amount of vegetable matter), such as all river water might contain. Dr. Conant then showed his ignorance of conditions by stating that the canal from which the water was drawn was contaminated by animals entering the canal and by the canal running through pastures and other localities having a tendency to contain animal decomposition. Here again the facts are brought out that the low line canal through all of its course is hemmed in by steep retaining banks that make all possibilities of such contamination out of the question, and even should a pasture or pigsty as the doctor claims border the canal, seepage into the canal is almost impossible owing to the character of the soil. Now the Times is not going to throw mud at state officials who may or may not be acting from the purest motives, but the truth remains that between the analyses of Utah's state chemist and of Idaho's there is a discrepancy and difference and that the difference is due without doubt to the length of time that the sample sent to Idaho's chemist was kept before anything was done, and that had Mr. Mason made the tests within the proper time, all chances for hitting Twin Falls a blow, would have vanished.

GIFFORD PINCHOT.

We congratulate the country on the election of Mr. Gifford Pinchot to the presidency of the National Conservation Association. The association could have found no one so well qualified to carry on the work which its retiring president, Dr. Charles W. Eliot, so well began. Whatever may be thought of the wisdom or the propriety of Mr. Pinchot's famous letter to Senator Dooliver, it has not caused any loss of esteem for him as an efficient public officer and a wholly unselfish public servant. He never had more than he has today the confidence of the country. And it is not improbable that his transference from the office of chief forester to that of president of the National Conservation Association may enhance his usefulness. Hitherto he has been rendering a double service to his country. As chief forester he has been a skillful and efficient administrator of an important bureau of the government. As lecturer, orator, and writer he has been at once, a public teacher and a public reformer. Henceforth this double duty will be divided. The work of administration will be entrusted to his personal friend, the expert head of the Pinchot school of forestry at Yale, while he will be free to devote his time and talents to the work of arousing and instructing the public. And the public needs both arousing and instructing. Up to the beginning of this century the American people have been living like a young man who has just come into the possession of a great fortune, and who makes it his business to see how rapidly he can spend it. We have been living on our capital. Our problem has been to see how fast we could get the coal out of our hills and cut the forests off from them; how quickly we could exhaust our soil and clog and poison our rivers. About ten years ago Mr. Roosevelt spoke to the country on this subject, and the country listened. Mr. James J. Hill followed Mr. Roosevelt and added the weight of a business man's counsel to that of the publicist. Other voices chimed in, but less significant—not least among them that of Sir Horace Plunkett, the great Irish agricultural reformer. In this movement Mr. Pinchot was a pioneer. We are inclined to think that he was the pioneer. If we are not mistaken, he was the one who first urged on the attention of Mr. Roosevelt the waste of our national resources and the consequent peril to the country; we believe that Sir Horace Plunkett was the second. But questions of priority are always difficult to settle. Whether or not Mr. Pinchot was first in time, he has been first in importance among the special leaders in this movement for the conservation of our forests. And the work for which his devotion, his personal magnetism, and the affection and esteem which he deserves and has secured, combine to fit him still greatly more to be done. Of most immediate importance is the national action. There are still left large areas of forest land which belong to the nation, and which congress can by appropriate legislation preserve for the nation. But congress will set only in obedience to a public demand. It will not reverse, it will hardly even modify, the national practice of individual ownership and unregulated cutting unless the people ask for a change. The president has intimated that he can make no change in the policy of the government without orders from congress; congress will make no change without orders from the people. And special interests, enforced by an unselfish individualism and a not unselfish though we think mistaken, fear of federal centralization, are combined in an effort to let him enough alone. If we are not careful, the parable of the New Testament will be enacted in a slightly changed form: while the good man of the house is sleeping, the enemy will cut down all his forest trees. But if this is the matter of the most immediate importance, it is not the matter of the greatest ultimate importance. Mr. Pinchot himself has told the nation that "forests privately owned cover three-fourths of the area and contain four-fifths of the standing timber. The timber privately owned is not four times that publicly owned, but is now generally more valuable." It is in the forests owned by the public that, thanks to Mr. Pinchot, the work of conservation has made progress. In this respect the nation is in advance of private enterprise. "Forestry is now practiced in seventy per cent of the forests publicly owned and in less than one per cent of the forests privately owned." To introduce the practice of forestry into these private forests is as much a national problem as to continue the practice of forestry in the national forests. And if this is to be done, there is still a great change needed in public opinion. This needed change is twofold. The people need to realize the right of the state governments to regulate the cutting of timber in their privately owned forests. "What's mine is my own and I can do what I like with it," is a popular motto in America, and it is not true. Most of the states in the Union have game laws. Men are not allowed to catch fish under a certain size in the brooks that run through their own land, nor lobsters under a certain size in the bays and inlets that adjoin their shores, nor to kill game in their own woods except at certain specified seasons of the year. But the preservation of our forests is far more important to the public welfare than the preservation of game. And the courts have accordingly held that the state has a right to regulate the cutting of timber by the owner on his own land. Such legislation, says the supreme court of Maine, "would be within the legislative power and would not operate as a taking of private property for which no compensation must be made." But it is not enough that the people possess this power; they must know that they possess it and must exercise it. There is yet a great deal of work to be done before they will possess either the necessary knowledge or the necessary will. And there is no man in the country so well fitted to do this work as Mr. Pinchot. But still more important are the conversion and the instruction of the owners of timber land. There is something better to be done with our forests than to see how rapidly an itinerant sawmill can cut the trees down and how quickly men and machinery, working ten or twelve hours a day, can grind them up into wood-chip, or cut them up into firewood, or saw them up into lumber. There are a great many men in America who "hold a penny so close to their eye that they cannot see a dollar at arm's length."

Such men have yet to learn that a forest is more profitable of trees are treated as a crop to be cultivated than as debris to be removed. Our woodmen need to learn a lesson from the meat packers, in whose establishments, it is said, nothing is wasted. The waste in the remorseless destruction of our forests is appalling. No forester wishes to prohibit all cutting. Even where a forest is to be preserved for a park, properly directed cutting of underbrush is necessary; for underbrush is the kindling-wood which makes the destructive forest fire. What is wanted is common sense applied in the use of our forests, where it has been eminently lacking. We should get rich faster if we were not so much great haste to get rich.

In leading this great reform, which is moral and intellectual as well as economic, Mr. Pinchot will not lack followers. The Outlook asks for him the co-operation of the press of America and pledges to him its own support.—The Outlook.

RAISING SPECIAL CROPS.

Too Many Are Content to Follow Precedent Established by Neighbors.

I do not doubt that American farmers,
like most, have not oversteerped than any other agriculturists in the world; but it is nevertheless true that in one particular they seem to be locking in their steps.

I am quite certain that a great many farmers, like myself, have in the main regard their farming as a means of what seems to be the consensus of opinion in the vicinity as to what crops are most suitable. It is questionable as to whether this is a wise policy.

In some localities, at least, especially in the older states, there is a great variety of soil and surface of land that the crops that best on one farm might not do so well on the one adjoining. In that case it is evident that one should not do his farming according to the habits of his neighbors; the lay of the land, as well as the markets, make a program accordingly.

In England, I am told, where farming is on land of higher money value than in this country, and it is necessary to get the best possible return, the adaptability of different crops to the land is studied very carefully; and both the markets and the suitability of the soil are important factors in determining what to grow.

In this country, on the contrary, one will find on fifty farms in one section corn, wheat, grass and oats. In Kentucky there will be corn, wheat, clover, grass and tobacco. And in other states some difference of general nature, but in the main the same on each farm in the entire community. In other words, large areas, without the exception of one farm, will be planted to the same crops, and, as a rule, all will be planted some of each kind.

It seems to me rather surprising that to have so much enterprise, shown by so many farmers in a matter of this kind.
No doubt local markets and demands have much to do with the selection of crops; but I think, in the main, if every farmer would study the conditions of his own farm many of them would find that they could make various crops in the neighborhood of their own farms. In a pretty big one, it is worthy of careful study. For instance, for a money crop potatoes may often be found more profitable than anything else. Both rye and barley may be found better crops than oats and wheat. Alfalfa may be found an satisfactory as to replace almost any sort of crop. Broom corn is in many localities a very profitable market crop.

In some sections potatoes have been extremely profitable crops; and in almost all parts of the country cabbage is a crop for which there is enormous demand.

Now it is true, of course, that the great staple crops are good crops to raise almost everywhere. Corn, wheat, oats and such things find a market
everywhere, direct or fed to stock;
but if local conditions make any other special crop much more profitable than the man is standing in his own field not to test some of them.

He should, of course, study all the conditions affecting the crop and market. If it is true he is content that special crops pay better, he should by all means devote his energy to those crops. Some men have made fortunes from sweet potatoes and white potatoes, while their neighbors stuck to the same old staples.

The wise-awake, observant farmer,
like the wise sort of business man,
the one who gets best returns from his labor.

Another matter that is a common thought of often helps a man to make his farming pay well. That is to manage the quality of what he sells as the best, and so that nothing but the best goes. The man who will not sell a lot of small potatoes with what he sells in order to get rid of them will no doubt get rid of them, but he will not get a high price for the entire crop.
And so of anything else.

The man who always sells the best,
the best wheat, hay, corn or potatoes,
will make more money than the man who makes more money when they buy from him they will get the best and full measure, will build up a reputation that will help him to make the most successful success in his business.

It is a good thing, too, for a man to have a tag with his name on it attached to the bags and other things that carry his produce, with his name of the quality, as well as name of his farm and his post office address.

This is a little thing, but it often means more money customers, and guarantees the sale of his produce when perhaps a glutted market makes prices fall. Every farmer should remember that the more he puts upon these methods into his business the greater will be his success.—Geo. B. Morton, Virginia, in Farm Progress.

Mares for Farm Work.

The cost of keeping horses at present rates of feeding stuffs suggests the importance of having the farm horses consist of mares-to-as-large-an-extent as may be. The most of keeping a good mare is no greater than that of a gelding of the same size, and if the mare is a good one, and intelligently mated, she compensates for the extra cost of her keep in the cost she drops.

In this connection it may be said that the mare which is bred in the fall carries winter to the greatest advantage as making the best return for her winter's keep. In that she is in the best condition at that time to develop the foal she is carried by. But of this there is great diversity of opinion.—Farm Progress.

Mr. Denny reported in regard to procuring a permanent secretary to act for the governing board, that he had a proposition from Mr. Darrow, that he would act as secretary for as long or short a period as the present board desired for $35.00 per month from the time of the organization of the present board. That he would donate any back salary due him up to the organization of the present governing board.

Mr. Vanandelin made motion that Mr. Darrow's offer be accepted. Motion being duly seconded, on vote the same carried.

In regard to a permanent place for the board to meet, Mr. Denny reported that he had had a talk with Judge Stockinger and they had concluded that it would be best to meet at the office of Stockinger & Bowen.

On motion duly made and seconded, it was decided to meet at the office of Stockinger & Bowen, except in case of large meetings or mass meetings, where more room would be required, when a different place of meeting could be arranged for.

In regard to agreements being circulated to collect in money to cover the expense of the suits to be started and the suit already under way, those present reported very satisfactory progress and were requested to continue in the work.

No further business being taken the meeting adjournment was taken sine die.

J. P. DENNY, President.

WILL NOT MAKE A SETTLEMENT

say that it would be wise. You certainly lose nothing by paying. In the end, you will have payments to make. Whether it is a club that would be of any benefit to you, I would say that I do not think it would amount to anything. I cannot see that it would be any advantage in the court for you to refuse to make your payments. I very seriously question the wisdom of Mr. Crocker's suggestion to refuse to pay. If it was me, I would pay and have it off my hands. I question seriously the propriety of the settlers doing anything except complying strictly with every condition of the contract. My opinion, as far as the deed for the system is concerned, is that it is something to be considered later.

Mr. Denny stated that he had had a letter from Mr. Bowen in which Mr. Bowen stated that he was going to Salt Lake on account of the decree and would meet Mr. Edwards, the attorney for the Land & Water company, while there, and Mr. Bowen suggested that Mr. Denny go with him and that they take matters up with Mr. Edwards while there. After some discussion, Mr. Bowen made motion that Mr. Bowen be instructed to see Mr. Edwards when in Salt Lake and inform him that nothing would satisfy Next Sunday the Sunday school will observe Decision Day.

Died—On Monday night at 9 p. m., at the Grinnell hotel at Milner, Mr. Elias T. Gilliland aged about 25 years, after a short illness. Mr. Charles J. Walker was called and went up on the 6:30 a. m. train Tuesday, and brought back the body to be buried at Twin Falls. Mr. Gilliland has two brothers in Greenfield, Mo., who were wired, and they wired Mr. Walker to hold the body until they arrived. Mr. Gilliland has a ranch of 120 acres just 6 miles north of Milner, where he had lived for the past two years. He has one sister.

Several years ago there was known in the vicinity of Omaha a boy soprano, having a voice which was considered phenomenal. People listened with great interest when the beautiful soprano should be changed into a mature voice which might not be so enjoyable. But their fears were unfounded, for in the rich baritone of Mr. Longstreet, people forgot to be sorry and just listen and enjoy as of old. Since coming to Chicago Mr. Longstreet has continued to sing under most able teachers. It is with pleasure that management announces his appearance with Mrs. Wales' company.

A novel entertainment is announced for Friday, Feb. 18, in the Methodist church by the Apollo club, "Songs of the Nations." This entertainment, which will be both musical and dramatic in nature, is given for the benefit of the Public Library, which is in need of additional funds for the purchase of new books and periodicals. The Apollo club will be supported by other musical societies, the Orasis orchestra, the Methodist choir, and the Apollo quartette, and leading soloists of the city, some of whom will appear in the appropriate national costumes. A unique feature of the entertainment will be the Welsh chorus, which will render some of the popular songs of their native land in Welsh and English. The entertainment aims to give a connected account of the various nations and some of the circumstances under which some of them were written. This part of the program includes an account of the Battle of Waterloo, and an oration on the "Marsellaise," the greatest war song ever written. Since the Twin Falls Public Library is a free public institution, maintained by voluntary subscriptions, the board of directors feel justified in asking for the hearty support of the public, in helping to erect an adequate fund for the purchase of much needed books and magazines.

Miss Barger and Mr. Wilton Entertain.
On Monday evening occurred one of the most elaborate and delightful affairs of the season, when Miss Grace Barger and Wilton Peck entertained about ninety of the young people of the city at the Elks' hall, in honor of their birthday. The hall was beautifully decorated in pink and white, the color scheme being carried out at the dinner tables, by means of pink and white carnations. The evening was spent in a number of interesting games, including a very original guessing contest in which Dana Elliott captured the prize.

Immediately following, the company was entertained by a number of musical and oratorical selections, including piano solos by Miss Martha and Mrs. Gilbert, recitations by Miss Nelle Rauch and Miss Ethel Howard, and a violin solo by Ildoro Friedman, all of which were greatly appreciated. The evening closed with an elaborate luncheon, at which Chas. H. Kiska acted as toastmaster.

BURLEY HAS JARBIDGE GOLDBUG

Prospector Blaked By Citizens Gets High-Grade, Exciting Farmers.

Burley, one of the most conservative agricultural communities of southern Idaho, is said to contain more Jarbridge excitement to the square foot than does even Twin Falls. A number of the citizens of Burley, prominent among them being Waring, are going to Jarbridge. Waring located a group of claims covering one of the characteristic dykes of the camp and will give several talks, including $40 a ton in gold. When Waring drilled an eight-foot hole in the dyke it revealed ore worth $200 a ton. It was then that all Burley saw visions of golden wealth in its grasp.

Waring's strike is five miles south of the original Jarbridge discovery, but the ores are identical in all features to those of the strikes made by Bourne, and also of the secret recesses which carry the higher grades throughout that entire section.

In this respect Jarbridge is said to differ from all others of the famous gold-producers of the West, in that it is alongside and immediately adjoining the rhyolite dikes which cut diagonally the contact of lime and porphyry.

In no instance has the condition of the real intersection of these dykes with the contact yet been disclosed, because there has not been sufficient work done to reach them. The theory is advanced, however, by most experienced geologists, that the richest of the real points of intersections shall have been reached there will be disclosed the greatest bonanza gold deposition ever made anywhere in the west, excepting Cripple Creek.

The Belmont-Jarbridge company, of which C. A. Stevens is general manager, is anxious to commence development operations as soon as materials can be placed on the ground. Further tests on ores from this company's property indicate that the higher grades carry $600 to $800 and that there is an average of about $15 a ton in the lower grades.

Manager Stevens is anxious to get arrangements made soon for the shipment of a carload of the best grade from the camp, and for this end is so working. He is in receipt of hundreds of inquiries from mining men all over the United States inquiring about the camp.

To all he says: "It is the biggest discovery ever made in the United States in the shape of a gold camp."—Salt Lake Herald-Republican.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES.

Interesting Programs Being Prepared for February Holidays.

Attendance in the public schools continues to increase though not quite so rapidly as at the beginning of the semester. Two new pupils only have been enrolled this week.

Arrangements are being given in the various rooms at both buildings Friday afternoon, February 18th, promptly at the opening of school at one o'clock. These will celebrate the birthday of Washington and Lincoln and will be for the most part patriotic, though several general numbers will be given on each program. The preliminary debate will be held at the Dickel auditorium on the same afternoon at 2:30. The debating teams will be selected at that time. All parents and others interested in the school are invited to attend the programs and the debate. There will be no admission charged.

Miss Estabrook's room at the Lincoln building was the first to have twenty-five perfect half days; half days without anyone absent or tardy, and without any disorder. They were given a half holiday last Friday afternoon.

The examinations are being given in the high school and the first, closing the second period of the second semester. Much excellent work is being done as will be shown by the reports on cards which will soon be issued.

The architects are very busy completing the plans and specification for the central portion of the new high school building, which will be begun as soon as the contracts can be let.

Secretary Stoltz of the Commercial club gave a very interesting talk at assembly on last Wednesday night. Mrs. Stoltz urged the students to select occupations which will have to do with the development of the Twin Falls valley, as which will soon be an important resource. The talk was practical and of much value.

An invitation has been received by the high school to participate in an invitation track and field meet to be held on the new cinder path of the academy of Idaho May 14th. There are to be thirteen events, consisting of dashes, runs, hurdle races, pole vaulting, hammer and shot put, jumping and a relay race. An enthusiastic meeting was held on Thursday evening and the invitation accepted. Gold medals, a loving cup and a beautiful banner will be given to the winners.

The first debate will be held Friday evening, Feb. 25th. The negative team will debate at Albion and the affirmative at home, the first debate being with the Albion Normal school. Interesting music is being prepared by the girls' glee club under the direction of Miss Crocker.

Expectation is at its height among the customers of the Booth Mercantile Co. Mr. Booth is in the camp now, buying new stuff, and he writes that he has purchased a lot of the sweetest stuff for men that he could find in the market. The men's department of the Booth Mercantile Co. is making enormous strides and this season they will have a very choice selection of all that is new in men's wear. Better watch for their new Tubular Ties. They are 17.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE

Program for February 16-17 Should Prove Attractive to Ranchers.

Moscow, Idaho, Feb. 3rd, 1910.
Mr. J. F. Stoltz, Twin Falls, Idaho.
Dear Sir: Referring to yours of January 31st, which has just been received. Regarding the Farmers Institute which is scheduled for Twin Falls will say that Professor J. H. Fransdon will be in charge. He is our Professor of Dairying. He will be accompanied by Don H. Bark, Irrigation Expert of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and I am asking Professor C. J. Griffith of Wendell, and Mr. Edward L. Wells, of the U. S. Weather Bureau, Boise, to also attend as speakers. Professor W. L. Carlyle is sick with a serious inflammation of his ear and will be unable to attend. The gentlemen referred to above will write you directly. Mr. Wells' topics will be "Frost Fighting," "The Work of the Weather Bureau," and "Weather Forecasts." He is a very entertaining speaker. Professor Fransdon will discuss "Better Dairy Methods," "Dairying Soil Fertility," "Winter and Summer Dairying," "Testing Milk and Cream." Mr. Bark will discuss "Irrigation Investigation," and "The Practice of Irrigation." If Mr. Griffith attends, he will send his subjects directly to you. Sessions should be arranged to suit your convenience. The party will arrive from Burley on the morning train, Wednesday, Feb. 16th. There can be a morning, afternoon and evening session that day and two sessions on Thursday. Kindly attend to the advertising, the bills of which will be paid by us.

Very truly yours,
E. E. ELLIOTT,
Dean, College of Agriculture.
The farmers' institute which will be held in the auditorium of the High school on February 16 and 17, should be attended by every rancher upon the tract, if possible. The presence of the faculty of the agricultural school should be the drawing card, to say nothing of the profitable discussions arranged for among the local men. The following program with the explanatory letter from Prof. Ellott of Moscow, should be convincing to every rancher that the institute this year should be worth any time spent in attending the meetings, which may be continued beyond the original dates.

Says Water Is All Right

President of State Health Board Examines Water Supply.

Dr. Hyde, president of the Idaho board of health, arrived in this city last night and spent some time in consultation with the mayor and some of the citizens. This morning the state official was taken out to the filtration plant south of this city and given an opportunity to investigate to his heart's content.

On his return Dr. Hyde stated that he was satisfied that the water at present was perfectly fit for use. He advised the water company to have the water analyzed every month in order to determine its condition the year around and offered the services of the state chemist in making any analysis.

JARBIDGE HAS PRODUCED GOLD

Declared That $5,000,000 Were Taken From Placers in Days Gone By.

"More than 40 years ago placer miners look-out, $2,000,000 in gold, from the crecks below the Jarbridge forks, or at least that is what one of Idaho's oldest mining engineers told me the other day," said G. G. Stacey of Boise at the Kenyon hotel today. "And what we are now after down there in Jarbridge is the mother lode that has given off all this wonderful wealth. It is there somewhere and some one is going to find it. The Bourne and other properties have shown some remarkably rich surface indications, but it yet remains to be proven who will be the lucky person to discover the real source of the ore."

It is up in the cliffs, and it is in those high places where the rich ore has been found, and it is up there where the prospectors hope to make their find, and probably discover the mother lode. But they cannot now do much other than stake off blindly ground that when the snow disappears may not be worth the trouble. "What can men do in six to nine feet of snow?" "My associates and I have a number of prospectors in there. A mile and a half from the Bourne property they uncovered something that looks so good I am taking samples to Cleveland, O., where there are interested parties awaiting me. The boys got down 20 feet and uncovered an eight-foot vein I consider as good as anything yet found in the camp. And there are many others who are finding the pleasure at a considerable distance from the first rich finds. Every indication is that Jarbridge is one of the coming great gold producers of the world."—Desert Evening News.

NEW SUBURBAN PLAT.

Powers & Dew Will Place New Property on Market.

The Powers family acres, located across Rock Creek, was sold this week through the agency of Powers & Dew, real estate agents, to Dr. A. S. Ramnuge, for $15,800, a net price of $170 per acre. The land, which is within a shorter distance of the business center than any other addition, will be platted into residence lots and sold by the above realty firm. The new addition will prove very popular with the people of this city on account of the pleasant slopes toward the center and the short distance from Main street.

JARBIDGE GOLD ASSAYS $92.32

Specimen Results in Several Bets and Test to Settle Same.

An ore sample taken from the Jarbridge district is being displayed in the show window of the Steptoe Drug company in Aultman street, and is attracting a great deal of attention from mining men of Ely. The ore has been assayed by Frank W. Millard, and shows values of $92.32 a ton in gold. The sample is a disintegrated quartz porphyry, which would be passed by the ordinary prospector as valueless. Bets were made yesterday that the ore would not carry $25 a ton, and the assay was made to decide the bet.

The ore on exhibition is a grab sample from five of the east and west ledges cutting the main dyke, which runs north and south, and comes from the property owned by Ralph Herbert, who was in the district two years ago and again last year. The greater part of the ore comes from a twenty-five foot vein that was sunk from a fifty foot tunnel on one of the ledges and according to Mr. Herbert there is fully six feet of this character of the ore in this vein.

"The sample on exhibition," said Mr. Herbert, "is a general grab sample which I took from five distinct cross ledges, to determine what value could be secured in raw material, merely as a view of determining if the property could ship in its present state. "Other samples that were taken from these ledges and were sent to the United States Mines and Smelter company at Salt Lake City for tests show that the ore delivered at the plant in Garfield is worth from $105 to $110 a ton. These analyses show that the values are as follows: Gold, 6.38 ounces; silver, 1 ounce; lead, 4.6 ounces; insoluble material, 74.4 per cent with a small percentage iron and with a showing of sulphur.

"Another sample, grabbed from various dumps of waste material, merely as a test to show their character, showed general values of $12 a ton. All of the ore of the district will be amenable to milling, or wet treatment, either cyanidation or chlorination. There will be an immense district opened up in the spring, and fortune will be made. It is a coming out of the Cripple and Goldfield."

Mining men who examined the ore show in the drug store window were divided in their opinion as to its character. Some thought it was quartz porphyry; others declared it to be disintegrated quartz, heavily stained with oxide iron. Mr. Herbert says that it is quartz-porphyry.—Ely Expositor.

LADIES OF THE MACCABEES

Tuesday Marked the Advancement of Fraternism in This City.

After a private installation of the officers for the ensuing year, an entertainment was given under the direction of Deputy State Commander Mrs. C. M. Kasser, which will long be remembered by those in attendance. Program consisted of a military drill given by twenty-five little girls, acting in the capacity of juvenile guards, after which a very able and appreciative discourse was given by Mr. Floyd Harsh, Public Librarian of the city, which was well received. The juvenile guards did themselves great credit in the military cross drill, after which Miss Augusta Gloyen offered a very pretty instrumental selection to the great pleasure of the audience.

Three new banners have been provided by the ladies, and their significance was exemplified, during a very eloquent explanatory discourse rendered by Miss Lillian Johnson, daughter of H. H. Johnson, one of Twin Falls' leading hardware merchants, and Miss Ada Avant, daughter of the proprietor of the Avant hotel. After this Mr. F. A. Kasser rendered two choice vocal selections, accompanied by Miss Agnes Barry, one of Twin Falls' able musicians. Mr. Kasser was welcomed as usual with hearty applause from the audience. Owing to the inability of the state commander, Miss Lou Turner, to be present, Mrs. Kasser made a few remarks, and offered an article from the "National Economy," portraying the early struggles of the upstart officers to realize on their "then dream of success," now a grand and sweeping reality of the betterment of this human family, of which the L. O. M. stands out so prominently. "I feel the lack of power to do justice to the efforts and results of these noble women. Suffice it to say, that in the bonds of this order the names of Holter and Kasser must forever stand out the Guiding Star of the destinies of its constituents."

As a closing feature the "Juvonillo guards" were accompanied with light refreshments. Photos of the "juvenile guards" were taken by Mr. Bisho, the leading photographer of the city. "This the exciter," the officers also proceeded to have their photographs taken in commemoration of the event. The result of the entertainment proved not only an enjoyable event, but also a very beneficial one, as the deputy state commander reports that they have added to their roster eleven new names and some thousand dollars of insurance. A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. C. M. Kasser, deputy state commander, for her energetic and untiring zeal in carrying out the intent of the live vis. "That Twin Falls must lead the rest follow." Since the spirit of the state of Idaho is expressed in one word "Forward," we like it to say that we constitute a portion of the same. (Continued.)
