

Bruneau Project Assured 600,000 Acres of Irrigable Land Will be Reclaimed.

Long Awaited Announcement Made During Past Week by Buhl's Representative.

The announcement of the Buhl corporations that the Twin Falls-Bruneau project will be assured is glad news to the settlers on this tract and also good news to thousands of prospective settlers on unproductive farms in the east who have been looking to the west for their future home. The project which will place approximately 600,000 acres of rich land within the reach of the homeseekers, while it has been generally conceded that it would be financed and built by Mr. Buhl and his associates yet the small uncertainty which retarded somewhat on the tract and the assurance of the construction of the canal system will make reality values all over the tract go up rapidly.

Other projects which have been waiting on the decision of Mr. Buhl will immediately be pushed ahead. The extension of the Mindoka and Southwestern railway from Buhl to Nyssa, Oregon, will be rushed through in order to convey materials to the new irrigation project in accordance with an agreement made between the railroad and the Buhl company. The following article covering the assertion of the company's representative is reprinted from the Statesman:

The construction of the greater Twin Falls-Bruneau project for the reclamation of 600,000 acres of land in Owyhee county is assured, according to an announcement made yesterday by Fred A. Voigt, before the state land board, and negotiations for a final contract between the state and company will be taken up within the next few weeks. The undertaking will be the greatest in the history of irrigation and will mean the expenditure of more than $200,000 in Idaho.

The decision of F. H. Buhl of Sharnon, Pa., and his associates, who have been figuring on the gigantic project for more than two years, to go ahead with the work, also insures the construction of the extension of the Mindoka branch of the Oregon Short Line from Buhl to Nyssa, passing through the very heart of the great agricultural tract to be created.

Mr. Voigt's announcement to the land board was made by him as the Idaho representative of Mr. Buhl, the pioneer irrigation project builder, who financed the original Twin Falls project, known as the "South Side."

The Twin Falls Land & Water company made application for the segregation in Owyhee county two years ago, contemplating at that time the reclamation of 150,000 acres. A force of more than 100 engineers has been continuously in the field since and as a result of their work it was discovered that so large a project was impracticable, and 140,000 acres, which had been selected, were released.

A great system of storage reservoirs, extending from the headwaters of the Snake river, reinforcement of the Milner dam and enlargement of main canals on the South Side Twin Falls project, so as to carry an additional volume of water sufficient for 600,000 acres, the construction of an inverted siphon of immense capacity across the Salmon river at a point where it is 300 to 400 feet deep, and the running of great tunnels, will, it is stated, make this project a wonder of the age from an engineering standpoint. The old south side project will serve as a key to the new construction and the point of diversion for all water will be at the Milner dam.

The Mindoka & Southwestern Railroad company at a meeting of directors held in Pocatello last fall, voted to build the extension of its road from Buhl to Nyssa on condition that the construction of this project was assured.—Idaho Daily Statesman.

HOUSE MEN LEASE BUILDING FOR PERIOD OF FIVE YEARS.

Furniture House of Capital Will Open
Branch Store With a Complete Stock.

On March 1st E. C. Lavering, proprietor of the Lavering furniture store, will yield possession of his big store building and turn over what is left of his once big stock to the Allen-Wright Furniture company of Boise. The new firm, which is considered one of the strongest furniture houses in the west, will at once begin to fill up the big store room with furniture to meet the demands of the trade on this tract. Frank Lytle, who has been with Mr. Lavering during the past year, will probably have charge of the local business of the Boise men, owing to his familiarity with the conditions here, and to his efficient service while with Mr. Lavering.

Mr. Lavering, who recently returned from Portland, Ore., stated to the Times that he had purchased 2,000 acres of this land contiguous to the city of Portland, and had secured option on 2600 acres more in the same locality. Mr. Lavering, who has one of the finest homes in the city, has placed his property on the market and expects to wind up his affairs in about three weeks and move to Portland with his family. Mr. and Mrs. Lavering have made many friends during their residence in Twin Falls and they will be greatly missed.

R. Y. Bogard Brings Good News to Local Capitalists.

RUSH EXCEEDS THE MOST EN- THUSIASTIC ESTIMATES.

Curious Scenery in District—Returning
Prospectors are all Most Exalted
Over the Showings in the Camp.

Recent reports from Jarbidge estimate the population of Jarbidge district at one thousand or more, with a daily increase of from twenty to fifty men.

R. Y. Bogard, who returned this week from the great gold camp, brought word to his associates in this city, Messrs. Walter McLaren, G. S. Aldrich, Fred E. Ramsey, J. E. White, D. M. Denton and E. T. Hamilton, of the discovery of well defined veins of ore upon the group of eleven claims which he had located for his company. Mr. Bogard expects to return to the camp within a few days and he and his associates will probably commence development work sometime this spring.

Speaking of the scenic beauty of the district, Mr. Bogard stated that C. E. Lind was at Jarbidge preparing to take a series of moving pictures of the great canyons and mountains and especially of the huge rock man on the East Fork of the Bruneau, several miles from Jarbidge. This stone figure is quite a curiosity, having been carved out of solid rock by ages and ages of winds and storms.

J. P. Kennedy returned Sunday from a short trip to Jarbidge. Mr. Kennedy reported that the excitement at Jarbidge was running high and stated that the rush to the camp had already exceeded all expectations.

W. P. Catlin returned Monday from a careful examination of the Jarbidge district. Mr. Catlin practically confirmed all the previous reports as to the richness of the district. He suffered from a partially frozen heel and stated that the personal suffering of the prospector was due to lack of tents and restaurant accommodations, a lack which would soon be remedied by the arrival of several hotel outfits, the big ranges of which were being studded over the snowy trail. According to Mr. Catlin about the only class of business enterprises of which there was a sufficiency, were the assayers, of whom there were three set up and another one reported.

J. C. Swan, a prominent mining man of Salt Lake City, arrived this week and left today in company with Mr. Winston for Jarbidge.

A party composed of Geo. Shante and W. C. Swan, a prominent mining man of Salt Lake City, arrived this week and left today in company with Mr. Winston for Jarbidge.

Among those leaving for Jarbidge from Twin Falls this week were Mr. Olor, a mining man from Dolser; J. J. Thell, and C. D. Dewitt.

Biggest Flour Mill in State

Twin Falls Milling & Elevator Company Will Spend $125,000.

Capacity of New Modern Mill be 300 Barrels Daily. Capacity Can be Doubled.

Through the courtesy of Manager L. L. Breckenridge of the Twin Falls Milling & Elevator company, information of the speedy building of the new flour mill for the company was obtained this week. Mr. Breckenridge stated that work on the new mill will begin without fail just as soon as the frost is out of the ground.

The new mill will be five stories high with a ground space of 3200 feet and the company is considering the possibilities of using reinforced concrete in the construction of the whole structure, although the last point has not been decided.

The mill will be electrically equipped throughout with every modern device known to the milling world, and will be able to turn out 300 barrels of flour per day and will run throughout the whole year.

Later the mill will be increased to six hundred barrel capacity, making it the largest flour mill between Denver and Portland.

Besides the mill which will be erected just east of the large elevator the company will be erected a three-story warehouse. All of this contemplated work is to be finished and the mill in operation about October 1st of this year.

One of the features of the new mill will be modern electric freight and passenger elevators. The new plant will cost approximately $125,000.

MINING COMPANY ORGANIZES

Local Men Form Company to Develop Rich Claims.

The Jarbidge-Vulcan Mining Co., this week brought to a close hitherto uncompleted arrangements for the incorporation of their organization.

The articles of incorporation filed this week, name the following officers: President, T. W. Potter, superintendent of schools; vice president, Robert M. Murdoch, of Logan, Utah; secretary, F. C. Schindler, treasurer, County Commissioner E. T. Sherman, and directors, Sheriff C. W. Dyer and F. O. McFall of Salt Lake City.

The new company is organized with a capital stock of $1,000,000, of which only a limited amount is for sale. The new company owns some of the best property in the camp, and expects to commence active operations with the opening of spring.

LOCAL LAND PRICES ADVANCE

C. H. Hempleman Makes Forty Per Cent Profit On Investment.

One year ago this January, C. H. Hempleman, a then recent arrival from the west, purchased forty acres of land two miles south of Twin Falls, just east of the City Waterworks Co.'s filtration works. About a week ago Mr. Hempleman sold this forty for which he had paid $110 per acre, for $157 per acre, thus making him a profit of $47.00 per acre, or to be exact, 43 per cent in his money during the year. Mr. Hempleman still holds eighty acres adjoining, which he expects to make his permanent home, and on which he is erecting a fine residence.

The above example is but typical of the rapid increase in value of the lands adjacent to Twin Falls, and shows the great profits to be made in investments on this tract.

Keep on the lookout for men's neckwear at Booth's. They will have a special showing in a week or two that will eclipse any stock of ties ever seen in Twin Falls.

POPULAR CO. DRAWS CROWD

Curtis Comedy Company at The Orals This Week.

At the Orals theatre, the popular Curtis Comedy company is drawing the usual good houses that greet its appearance here. The plays presented during this week are far stronger than upon their former engagement, and everyone attending have been highly pleased. Friday they will be seen in Willie Collier's great comedy, "A Man From Mexico," with Mr. Curtis in the Collier role of "Flashlight." The cast is a large one, and to lovers of comedy, the play will be found delightful.

Saturday, the four-act story of Washington society, "The Senator's Daughter," will be given an elaborate production. Few if any dramatic companies have given such universal satisfaction as the Curtis Co., and they will always find a warm welcome from our play-goers.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES' CONVENTION

Beneficial Directors' Session Called for February 23rd.

The school trustees of Twin Falls will meet in the Elks' lodge hall, this city, on February 23rd, at 8:30 a. m. in accordance with the provisions of an act of the Tenth session of the Idaho state legislature.

State Superintendent Chamberlain, President Axline of the Albion State Normal, Professor Wooster of the Lewiston State Normal, Professor J. W. Slaughter of the Academy of Idaho, City Superintendent Elliott of Twin Falls, and Dean Elliott of the State Agricultural College will address the meetings on important educational topics, and problems confronting trustees and teachers will be thoroughly discussed. Dr. Truman O. Boyd of Twin Falls will deliver an address on "School Sanitation."

The Twin Falls Commercial club will entertain the delegates at luncheon at the Rogerson Cafe at 2:40 p. m. County Superintendent Potter anticipates a large attendance at this, the first annual meeting of the school directors of Twin Falls county, and feels sure that great good to all the schools will result therefrom.

A cordial invitation is extended to all friends of education to be present at both morning and afternoon sessions of this convention.

NEW HEAD OF WATER COMPANY

E. B. Williams Succeeds Critchlow as General Superintendent.

Edward B. Williams will have the whole load of troubles when he takes up his new duties as general superintendent of the Twin Falls water-works system, a duty which E. B. Critchlow of Salt Lake has abandoned. Mr. Williams will have sole charge of the general business of the company, with headquarters in this city. The selection of Mr. Williams by the company may tend to do away with a great deal of the present friction between the public and the company because of his well known fairness on all public matters. At any rate the change will result in quicker action than possible with the offices of the company in Salt Lake City.

THE INTERNATIONAL LANGUAGE

IN TEN EASY LESSONS Prepared by FLOYD HARDIN UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE LIBRARY CLUB

LESSON SIX. GENERAL REVIEW.

Before proceeding with the Reading Lesson, which the remaining four lessons of the course will set forth, it is well for the student to review the elementary principles of the language.

Pronunciation.

The letters A, E, I, O and U always have the following sounds:

- A is like a in father. O is like o in go.
E is like e in me. U is like u in too.
I is like i in me. U is like u in too.

All other letters have the same sounds as in English with the following exceptions:

- C is like "ts." CH as in "church."
G is like g in "go." SH as in "shoe."
H as in "home." QU as in "quaker."
S as in "so."

The letter R is trilled, and the accent is on the next to the last syllable.

Nouns and Adjectives.

Singular nouns end in O, as "rozo, kato," etc. (Roses, cats). Plural nouns end in I, as "rozoi, katoi," etc. (Roses, cats).

An adjective is a word describing some quality of an object, as "good, white, warm," etc. All adjectives end in A, as "bona, blanka, varma," etc.

Present, Past and Future Time.

The endings, AS, IS and OS indicate whether the verb relates to present, past or future time:

- Me es-as, I am (present time.)
Me es-is, I was (past time.)
Me es-os, I will be (future time.)

Infinitive, Imperative and Conditional Moods.

Infinitive mood of the verb ends in AH, and is always indicated in English by the presence of the little word "to": As "to run, to learn," etc. "Kurir (to run), lernar (to learn), etc. Note that the infinitive always has the accent on the last syllable, that is, on the AH.

Imperative mood of verb denotes a command, wish, or request, and has the ending EZ, as, "Venec ad mi!" (Come to me!)

Conditional mood expressing what might, would, or should happen, has the ending US, as "Se ti venus, me esus felica." (If he would come, I would be happy.)

How to Ask a Question. Adverbs.

The question word is KAD. To change any simple statement to a question prefix this word KAD. Examples: La patro esas bona. (The father is good.) KAD la patro esas bona? (Is the father good?)

Derived adverbs end in E. Examples: Amiko, friend; amlike, friendly; bona, good; bone, well, etc.

How to Count.

- The cardinal numbers are:
un, 1.
du, 2.
sis, 6.

From these primitive forms, complex numbers are formed as follows:

- dek-un, 11 (ten and one.)
du-dek, 20 (two tens.)
du-dek-du, 22 (two tens and two.)
cent-un, 101.
cent-dek-tri, 113.
tri-cent-ov-dek-tri, 393 (three hundreds, nine tens, and three.)
tri-mil-ok-cent-kin-dek-sis, 3856.

Ordinal numbers are formed by adding the affix ESMa to the cardinal form of the number. Examples: unesma, first; dek-esesma, seventeenth, etc.

Vocabulary.

- Kiso, kiss.
Kash box.
or, or.
patrino, mother.
me, I.
Hevar, to receive.
letro, letter.
de, from.
il, he.

WHAT IS REFORMED ESPERANTO?

In reply to many inquiries as to how the "reformed" Esperanto differs from the original, and what advantages it has over the primitive form, we sketch the following brief history of the reform movement:

At the Universal Exposition of Paris in 1900, numerous learned societies and individuals, recognizing how serious was the diversity of tongues represented at the exposition, and what an effectual barrier to the free interchange of scientific thought was found in this differentiation of speech, proceeded to name a committee to investigate whether something could not be done to remedy this intolerable condition of affairs; this committee, representing men of note in the scientific world, therewith adopted a working program that should lead to a definite result. Through the active work of this committee, over three hundred learned societies and academies, together with twelve hundred or more professors, notable in the world's great universities, had endorsed the work of the committee by the year 1907; and as a definite outcome of their adhesion, a delegation of twelve eminent men was selected to examine into the various schemes for a Universal language then clamoring for the world's attention, and report to its constituency which of the proposed schemes was the most desirable and worthy of official endorsement. Under the direction of such eminent linguists as Professor Ostwald of Leipzig, Professor Jespersen of Denmark, Professors Coutant and Leau of France, and other linguists of international renown, a careful examination of numerous schemes was made, with the result that the language known as "Esperanto," which had already achieved considerable progress, was endorsed and spotted with the important stipulation that certain necessary changes in the way of reform must be made in the original Esperanto. The decision of this delegation bears, of course, the endorsement of the various learned societies and individuals that gave it existence, and as such, carries with it a dignity that no other scheme for a universal language has ever had.

The decision of this delegation representing the scientific world, caused a split in the Esperanto forces, because of the refusal of certain Esperanto publishing houses and other obtinate individuals to give endorsement to a reformed Esperanto that would render obsolete all of their books and magazines, and mean financial ruin to them. These individuals were forced then to take the "middle" stand, "the Esperanto did not need the endorsement of the scientific world." It is significant, however, to note that the leading Esperanto scholars

REFUSES $30,000 FOR CLAIM

Thomas Clifton of Dahl, Believes in Jarbridge.

Thomas Clifton, a farmer of Dahl, but formerly a mining man and who was grub-staked into Jarbridge a month ago by citizens residing in the vicinity of his residence, made a strike early this week, and refused to sell his claims for $30,000. As a reason, he exclaimed: "Heretofore I have looked for a mere song several prospects that I discovered in new mining districts, and now that I have found a mine in a district which is going to be a great wealth producer for many men, I intend to work this proposition myself. If it fails I will have a loss all to my profit; but I have the farms and will not feel the loss. However, I do not believe I am going to again meet with bad luck."

The lots in the Hilltop claim, whose surface rights are being leased for townsite occupation, and which will form the heart of the business district, have almost been closed out, and prices have advanced until the bonuses offered equal almost the amount of the original price. Another claim adjoining is being prepared for similar purposes.

Mayor Hahn has received a letter from "Death Valley Scotty" in which he says he is enroute into Jarbridge camp with his big pack train of fifteen mules, which have transported, according to report, vast wealth from his southeaster California bonanza, which is said to have been exhausted about eighteen months ago. "Scotty" mailed his letter to Emley, Nev.

Twenty outfits bound for Jarbridge are delayed at National camp, northern Humboldt county, Nevada, by the deep snows on the ranges just north of that district, according to information brought here today by Wallace Erwin, who came around via Winnemucca and Odean. He said: "The Ogden railway route, which brings one in by the way of Twin Falls, is the only and practical route into Jarbridge that I have discovered. Almost every one in National is coming through this way very soon, expecting that they will have their teams and men who will wait until late in the season and come over the hills."

Telegrams received this week here from Seneca Heyburn of the National announced that the post office at Jarbridge will soon be established with W. A. Wines as postmaster.

"Who'll start the coming week on a telephone line from Twin Falls to Jarbridge, which is expected to be completed in about six weeks. The Bell company is making the extension to its system."—Salt Lake Tribune.

WINTER TEA-ROSE BEDS.

Earth Blanket Sufficient Protection in the South.

North of the latitude of Central Missouri the choicest of tea-roses are seldom able to survive the winter in the open air.

They must be lifted and transferred to cold pits and sheltered trenches, where, as little exposed as possible to the sunlight, they are kept in semi-dormant condition until the spring is so far advanced that they can with safety be returned to the garden.

In more favorable climates, even where there are brief periods of very severe cold, they will pass the winter in safety if two conditions are complied with, namely: That the bed in which they grow is so much elevated that no water can possibly stand upon it after heavy rains, or that little ditches are dug between the rows to drain it from the roots.

It is dangerous to the health of the stems to cover with leaves, straw or any vegetable matter. The best protection has been found to be the soil itself. The plants, if they have not dropped their leaves, should have all of these, except perhaps those at the tips of the stems, taken off and the stems drawn together and fastened with strings.

Then the earth may be heaped up around each plant until all but the tips are covered, care being taken to not remove it from very near the roots. When this is done late in November or early in the winter, a heavy mantle of partially decomposed stable manure compost should be placed between the rows of the banked-up bushes, but not to come in contact with any of the exposed stems.

Thus cared for even the most delicate varieties will pass the winter with but little killing back, which, when it does occur, will but slightly retard their blooming, as unlike the hybrids and other classes of these shrubs they bloom freely on shoots from the roots the first summer.

In planting this class of roses the manner in which they will need to be cared for in winter needs always to be taken into consideration, and they should therefore be placed in a bed or beds by themselves, and in rows, rather far apart, to admit taking out the soil around for the cold weather blankets.

In spring, when the buds begin to swell the earth is shaken off the tops, the coarser litter raked off, and the bed smoothed and rounded up into shape and some pruning of weak or ill-shaped stems may be done.—M. P. Kentucky.

"It's the biggest camp that can be found out of doors" is the verdict passed by J. F. Malone on the new Jarbidge camp. Mr. Malone returned to Boise several days ago and will leave within a few days for the Nevada field where he will spend the balance of the winter, spring and summer. He holds the distinction of locating three valuable claims, three miles from the Hoarne discovery, before the news of the strike was announced, or during the month of September last year.

Associated with Mr. Malone is Arthur Harvey. Both are well known in this city as mining men of experience. They located on the Jarbidge claims upon the advice of James P. Kennedy, chief clerk of the International Smelting & Refining company of Tooele, Utah, and who is located at Salt Lake. Kennedy had been over the ground and knew that there were rich values to be found there. He so informed Malone and requested that should he be in or around the Jarbidge country to locate several claims. Following Malone's advice and with consent to locate early last fall Mr. Malone stated out the claims. He believes that he has some of the best pieces of ground to be found in the district.

"No one can properly locate a claim while this snow is on the ground and if they do they may find that the values are very low," declared Mr. Malone when interviewed by a representative of the Capital News. "I believe that the new gold field is going to be bigger than Goldfield or any of the other camps that have been worked. It looks as good as the Jarbidge, and I look back into the Jarbidge country before the warm weather sets in."—Evening Capital News.

some man or woman who makes a specialty of operating machines, and they can give one good advice about them.

One man or woman will have good hatches regularly while the machine is located in a bedroom; another uses a living-room, another a cellar, another a hallway. My experience is that a room with steady temperature is better than a cellar. Normal atmosphere is better for the hatch for eggs in incubation, as cellars are usually damp, and dampness is not advisable. A normal and steady temperature is always the best for the successful operation of an incubator.

After the machine is started it is poor policy to give no attention to the incubator lamps, as the hatch is hinged on that part of the machine. If the lamp gets too hot, a setting of eggs will be ruined, or, on the other hand, if the heat is not sufficient they will either be chilled or will not develop. Therefore it should have special care; they should be cared for twice daily. When beginning a hatch do not use poor oil. Use the best that is obtainable, for it is cheapest in the long run.

If an old wick is in the lamp, take it out before starting and renew it for each hatch. Trim the wick twice daily and use only an even flame.

A coarse cloth will keep the metal parts of the burner in good condition if they are burnished with a cloth that burn too high without apparent cause will be found dirty and sooty, and the oil working up to this will be

STARTING THE INCUBATOR.

Time Depends on Purpose of Hatcher and Breed.

The time for starting the incubator depends much on what the poultry-raiser is working toward and the breed of fowls he is using. To get the best results from any pullets of the Cochins, Langshans and Orpington breeds they must be hatched very early.

Chicks of these breeds hatched in February and March will be none too early if they are given care. In good brooder houses to place individual brooders in is necessary. Early broilers or fryers should be hatched in December, January and February and given every chance for fast growing. Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds and others of the general purpose class may be hatched in April, May and pullets getting good care will begin laying in November.

Leghorns and other small breeds may be hatched in May and June and will begin laying before the snow flies. It is useless to start the incubator unless the brooding birds are in prime condition and the eggs fertile. Running an incubator on poor eggs is a waste of time, oil and eggs.

So many locations are used for the operation of incubators that it is not wise to lay down any rule for the matter. In every neighborhood there is gin to burn and cause the lamp to smoke.

Give the lamps special attention so they will not blow up too high, and oil the heater of the machine with soot. Clean the heater often.

Incubators are simple machines and must be handled as such, but I know from experience that when they are cared for properly they will do their part.—T. S. H. Ohio, in Farm Progress.

The Capital News of Boise in an editorial in its Sunday edition attempts in a half-hearted manner to tell how all of the state papers have boosted Twin Falls. The attempt will prove of little avail after the prominence given the conditions alleged against the water system here. If there was no purpose to be served by the Boise papers publishing something detrimental to the city of Twin Falls and unless there was some malice intended the object in having the articles published is lacking. It will take more than soft answers from the Boise sheets to take away the feeling of dissatisfaction in this city against such unfair treatment.

One of the biggest jokes with regard to the Jarbidge trade appeared in the last week's issue of the Mountainhome Mavrick as an editorial in which Talbot says it was rumored that Bourne sat down hard upon members of the Twin Falls Commercial club. Trux must have had a pipe dream about the matter because if giving five thousand dollars for the completion of the new Jarbidge wagon road is being set upon Twin Falls can stand a lot of such insubstantial matter, another guess, Talbot. It will be some time before Mountainhome's alrship line will be carrying Jarbidge tourists, although not air seems prevalent in the above town (presumably piped there from Boise.)

The Times is this week printing in full the text of the proposition submitted to the settlers by the Land and Water company with regard to the deed to the dam and canal system. This proposition was promptly turned down by the Canal association on behalf of the settlers, upon advice from their attorneys. The reason for turning down the proposition given by the governing board of the Canal association was that it was practically no compromise and left everything for settlement after the deed was accepted after all power to draw out was taken away. But owing to the fact that the matter of the deed is vital to every one any action taken should be known to every rancher and the text of the submitted proposition is given for that reason; in order that no criticism of the board's action will result. The deed, if the settlers will notice, is practically no more than the one first submitted in which the total right to the dam is jeopardized and offers nothing in the way of shutting out the claims of the North Side settlers and the company in the dam. It does not in any way offer a just settlement of the questions at issue between the company.

In another column, and under another head will be found the original deed as agreed between the settlers and the company made at Boise at the time of the transfer of the canal system to the Canal Operating company, Ltd., and which deed the company refused to give later when the matter came up. There are several points in the deed which seemed satisfactory that will bear investigation on the part of the settlers in case the company comes back again to the original deed as the basis of settlement. These points will be brought out in a later issue after the readers of the Times have an opportunity to read the full text this week. The Canal association in order to get the consensus of opinion from the settlers wish publicity of the widest scope and it should be the aim of the water users to acquaint themselves with every point at issue. The responsibility placed upon the shoulders of the governing board is such that they want the full knowledge of their actions made known to every rancher. The deeds when accepted must be approved by the majority of the stockholders in the canal organization.

THE BALLINGER-PINCHOT INVESTIGATION.

In many respects the sessions of the Ballinger-Pinchot Investigating Committee resemble those of a court. Seated about a long table in one of the larger rooms of the Senate Office Building in Washington, this Committee, made up of Senators and Representatives, under the chairmanship of Senator Nelson, of Minnesota, listens almost continually from ten o'clock in the morning until five o'clock in the afternoon, with an adjournment for lunch, to the reading of documents and the testimony of witnesses. Since the members of this Committee have other important public duties, they do not sit every day. Mr. Glavis, the first witness, continued his testimony last week. In brief, it may be described as statements of fact, of belief, and of opinion in support of the view, to paraphrase his own words in answer to a question, that the coal in the public domain in Alaska would be better protected with Mr. Ballinger, the secretary of the Interior, and Mr. Dennett, Commissioner of the Land Office, "out of the way." A charge not heretofore brought out was made that Mr. Ballinger, as attorney for claimants, participated in a transaction which involved fraud. It was a dramatic coincidence that, on the very day on which Mr. Glavis was testifying in regard to this transaction, a court on the other side of the continent was pronouncing the transaction a violation of the law. In fairness to Mr. Ballinger it should be said that his relation to this case has not yet been fully established. The rest of Mr. Glavis's testimony consisted of the narrative of his experiences in the Land Office which led him to make his protest against Mr. Ballinger to the President. This narrative has been told under the direct examination of Mr. Brandeis, who corresponds in this investigation to the counsel for the prosecution, has been supported by a large number of letters introduced as evidence, and has been tested by cross-examination on the part of the Committee. Inasmuch as, till last week, Mr. Ballinger had no counsel present at the investigation, it became the duty of the Committee itself to conduct the cross-examination. This, probably as much as anything, accounts for the apparent attitude of hostility which some of the members of the Committee have displayed toward the witness. It has been announced that, at the request of the Committee, Mr. Ballinger is now to be represented at the investigation by counsel. From the beginning of his testimony Mr. Glavis proved an exceedingly cool witness. He answers; given slowly and in a voice in spite of its drawl is low and clear, were always well considered and sometimes so apt as to call forth a ripple of appreciation from the spectators and a suspicion of a smile from the Committee itself. For some reason the newspaper reports of these proceedings have, together, failed to give an adequate impression of the strength of the case Mr. Brandeis is presenting. The public interest in the personal elements of this investigation is very great, and may obscure the principles that underlie the various personal interests. It is right that men who have unjustly assailed or unjustly treated should be vindicated. The question before the Committee is not merely whether this man or that man should be vindicated, but what constitutes that undivided allegiance to the public welfare which the public has a right to demand of every public official.—The Outlook.

EXPECTS RUSH FOR JARBIDGE

Nevada's Floating Population on Way to New Camp.

"Nevada's 10,000 migratory mining population has heard the first 'honk' for Jarbidge, and like a great flock of geese they have started their flight in that direction," said Louis Smith of Luning, Nev., at the Callen today, having reached town Monday evening from the Yerington district. "All through the Goldfield, Tonopah and western Nevada mining districts the miners are sitting up and taking notice of Jarbidge. Our immense floating population, that can in a night, as we see scores of men from there resort place into a camp of thousands, is turning its face toward Jarbidge, and the indications are that early spring will witness one of the greatest rushes in the history of mining."

"No. I have not been in Jarbidge yet, but as on my way now. I have my opinion of the camp on the word brought back by a great many practical old miners from Goldfield, Tonopah and Yerington, all of whom are looking for a second Cripple Creek there. I am yet to hear the first 'knock' at the new gold camp, and I've seen scores of men from there whose opinions I would rely on as quickly as I would my own."—Desert News.

Starting Plans in the House.
 In starting vegetables or flowers in the house it is a good plan to cover the boxes with wet blotting paper or wet newspaper until the plants begin to appear, to prevent the top soil drying out. A crust is not so likely to form over the top of the dirt at any later time if the boxes or pans are set in a pan of tepid water until the moisture is drawn up to the top by capillary action, instead of pouring water over the surface.—Farm Progress.

CANNOT STOP RAILROAD.

Government Injunction Suit to Check Damnage Denied.

Federal Judge F. S. Dietrich in the case of the United States vs. the Mindoko & Southwestern Railway company, yesterday denied an application for injunction by the government to prevent the construction of what is known as the Onkley branch of the Oregon Short Line. While the court declines to absolutely prohibit the defendant company from extending its railroad across the canals of the Mindoko project, it provides that all such crossings must be made in such a manner as not to infringe upon the government's right or in any way damage construction work completed by the reclamation service.

The suit was instituted by United States District Attorney Lingenfelter and E. F. Stouturey, special attorney, for the reclamation service, the complaint in the case alleging that damage in the sum of $50,000 had already resulted to the government project and that a much greater loss would be incurred should the company be permitted to carry on construction work in the same manner. In the opinion handed down by Judge Dietrich yesterday the issue of damages was not considered and will have to be determined by other proceedings.

The court at the time of the filing of the application by the government, issued a temporary restraining order against the railroad company and the Utah Construction company. Tuesday, Attorney P. L. Williams of Salt Lake and D. Worth Clark of Pocatello, appeared in opposition to the issuance of the injunction and made arguments before the court, insisting that the railroad company had purchased its right-of-way for the branch road from settlers under the Mindoko project and that it was not necessary for the company to procure a permit from the reclamation service. The secretary of the interior before going ahead with construction. Counsel for the plaintiff set up the contention that in crossing lands withdrawn for reclamation projects, a railroad company was required to procure official permission, the same as if the proposed construction was to be upon lands withdrawn for forest reserves.—Statesman.

Automobile Show. The Oregon Short Line will sell round trip tickets to Salt Lake City from all points in Idaho, for the one week on Feb. 18th and 19th, and will return limit Feb. 27.

OVER A 1,000 IN GOLD FIELD

Rush Continues to Keep Up With Prospects of Increase.

PROVISIONS AND BEDDING SCARCE OWING TO HEAVY TRAVEL.

Many Claims Change Hands—Twin Falls Men File On Good Property.

Jarbridge, Nev., Feb. 10, 1918.

The need of a road in here has become very acute during the last week and at a meeting of the district association held last Sunday it was decided that something must be done to hasten the construction of a road. The Twin Falls Mining Exchange. Volunteers were called for to donate time and money and over $500 was raised at once. Many others gave from one to two days' work and since that time there has been between thirty and forty at work every day. The road is now finished from Jack Hill to the pick and shovel work has commenced on the grade to the top. It is hoped that another week will see enough done so that a wagon can come in from the island to camp. It is hoped that the gang at work on the grade down from the rim rock on the west side of the hill will be able to go down to a normal figure. The present freight rate is six cents a pound from the rim rock and ten cents from Twin Falls.

A number of options have been taken during the last week on different properties. Will Smith and Bert Winnes have given an option to Catlin & Hart on the Sandy Fraction for $25,000. Catlin & Hart have also obtained control of the Golden Pine, Apex Quartz, and Canyon Quartz, all of which are considered good properties and are well located in the heart of the district.

B. H. Hull has recouped the Alice May and Colquhoun claims and they were surveyed last week. Very favorable showings have been found on these claims and it is Mr. Hull's intention to proceed with development work as soon as possible. Mr. Hull left camp for Twin Falls Friday to make necessary arrangements for procuring machinery and supplies.

William Van Alder and Nick Vackovich have a bakery outfit at the rim rock and expect to have their shop open the early part of next week. They came from Warner, Idaho.

E. T. Golden of Payette, came in early and decided to start a hotel. He departed for Twin Falls to buy furnishings and said that he would call his house the Jarbridge hotel.

Ward & Lind of Twin Falls are to start a pool hall on Bear Creek, their tent which is 24x50 is the largest in camp.

Hurry W. Lambertson of Boise, is here trying to secure a good ground for Capitol City people.

George C. Tyler of Kimberly, who has secured several more claims, has sold options on them and taken a lease for mine Hill-Top company.

Work on the Hill-Top tunnel has been resumed, a good supply of powder having arrived in camp again. The tunnel in the Hill-Top No. 4, is now in fifty feet and a new one has been started on the Big Shaft. Snow slides have stopped the work on the Chinaman. There is more real development work on this group than any other in the district, but several other parties are making strenuous efforts.

H. D. Scott of Kimberly, Idaho, has been looking over the district with a view of starting a bank.

W. G. Mann of Twin Falls, was the first one to get a restaurant open and is doing a fine business.

T. C. Graham has his barber shop open for business on Sundays and stormy days. He is doing a rushing business and is making a great change in the appearance of the population.

Jimmy Cameron arrived with his general store and rooming house Thursday and is hard at work getting it in shape for business.

Robert Burns from the Salmon dam, is putting up a building which spans Bear Creek. It will be used for a laundry.

Torrey Gund has formed a partnership with T. T. Hayes of Wallace under the firm name of Gund & Hayes. They will put in a complete line of miners supplies. Mr. Gund arrived in camp Thursday accompanied by Jim Vero of Twin Falls, having made the trip up via the Perrine stage in less than two days. Mrs. Vero is starting a restaurant and has secured a good stock from the hills. They will be open for business in a few days.

A barber shop has been opened at Placerville by Bill Rawlins president.

Bert Winnes has made arrangements to have the post office in the Riddle building for the tunnel and for a complete line of cigars and stationery, which he will carry in conjunction with his post office.

C. M. Lane of the Log Cabin company has gone to Idaho with the forestry department for the opening of a townsite on the Log Cabin and Hill-Top properties. Land for townsite purposes having been leased from these companies. Lett will be purchased from the government for $10,000 acres and deeds can be given before the permit is received to the mining claims.

W. D. Green has opened an assay office in Hill & Taylor's tent.

C. G. Winter, manager of the Twin Falls-Jarbridge Development Co., is making great progress on the Pick & Shovel group. A well built log cabin thirty by thirty has been built and another is under way. A track has been started to the place where the shaft will be sunk. A contract has been made for the tunnel and one for the shaft will be let the early part of next week. Dodd and Waite, who have a 30,000-pound freighting contract with Mr. Winter, came in Thursday night with their first pack. They report that the holding apparatus has been received at Hollister, and that they expect to have it in place inside of two weeks. A special sled is being constructed with sled bars to carry the boiler, which weighs three tons.

George Culliker has sold a half interest in the Rambler claim to Fred Warwell.

M. DeMours, a mining expert, has been inspecting the camp during the last week in behalf of Butte capitalists. Monsieur DeMours is very enthusiastic over the future of the camp and secured several good claims for himself.

Ledgard Perrine has made arrangements to locate the wire electric lighting apparatus which I. B. Perrine is to put in, on the Rambler claim. This is right about the town and very accessible.

Bungle and Price have their assay office open for business at last. They have been waiting on a shipment of gasoline for several weeks in cold storage. G. E. Brownfield, a surgeon from Salt Lake has opened an office and will also be assaying.

Fairbanks & O'Byrne have their blue printing apparatus in operation and are making a district map which will soon be on sale.

Tom Fowler does in cold storage and is making a district map which will soon be on sale.

Provisions have been short in camp for the last week as the packers have more than they can do. Parties leaving the island should make sure that their beds are to follow them the same day as accommodations are as yet incomplete here and there has been much hardship in consequence. Wednesday night a party of over a dozen camped out in the Hill-Top tunnel around a fire without any beds.

The population is now estimated to be more, as many are away back in the hills and only come out at rare intervals.

Encumbrances With Fruit Bel. A bulletin sent out by the New York Agricultural Experiment Station deals with the problem of fruit rot. It says that the best way to prevent this is to have a disputed question between the owner of the fruit and its seller, or the proprietor of the storage house, who is storing fruit for a better market. Sometimes the dispute has been taken into court, but absence of carefully secured data on fruit diseases at different temperatures has made the task of deciding the case very difficult for judge or jury.

The bulletin gives some interesting facts regarding experiments conducted at the station. It has found that what is called "blue mold" was unchecked, however, simply dormant. As soon as the fruit is brought into a favorable temperature the disease develops rapidly. The bulletin has this to say about fumigation: "In tests of sulphur fumigation in light rooms it was found that burning a quarter of a pound of flour of sulphur in a room containing 700 cubic feet killed the spores of all the common apple diseases except blue mold. Fumigation with sulphur, while effective in checking or destroying disease, often results in injury to the appearance of the fruit. The skin becomes spotted, or has the appearance of having been bleached. The bulletin says, in conclusion, regarding Bordeaux mixture as a remedy for scab: "This mixture is a preventive, not a remedy for scab, as was repeatedly proven by careful tests."—Farm Progress.

WORK THAT TELLS.

The Blind Twin Falls Readers Appreciate. Cures that last are cures that tell. To thoroughly know the virtues of a medicine you must investigate its ingredients and see if they prove permanent. Doan's Kidney Pills stand this test, and plenty of proof exists right here in this locality. People who testified years ago to relief from backache, kidney and urinary disorders, now declare that relief was permanent, and was cured—permanently. Can you or your sufferer longer doubt the evidence? Ora E. Long, of Jerome, Idaho, says: "I began to have trouble from my back and kidneys about a year ago and as time passed, the dull ache across my loins became worse. I was treated by a physician and also wore plaster, but received only temporary relief. Having my attention called to Doan's Kidney Pills, I was led to try them and they helped me so greatly from the first that I continued their use. The contents of three boxes entirely removed the pain in my back and disposed of a kidney difficulty which had caused me much annoyance." Mr. Long made the above statement on February 11, 1907, and confirmed on February 12, 1909, stating that his cure had been permanent. For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. The disagreeable and painful trouble caused by piles can be quickly relieved by a few applications of Manzanita ointment. The remedy is put up in a tube with nozzle attached, so that it can be conveniently applied to all affected parts. It is used for any kind of hemorrhoids. It is sold by City Pharmacy, Twin Falls, and Davis & Carter, Kimberly.

LOST MINE IN FOOT HILLS

Correspondent Teller of Rich Strike Formerly Worked Near Rock Creek.

Hansen, Idaho, Feb. 15, 1910. Tales of mythical mines have an irrefutable interest for the man who never hunted for such a mine—and for some who are persistent searchers for lost bonanzas. And the older the tale and the more crusted it with the accretions of generations of imaginary the greater the romance and charm of the story.

The "Bluebecker" mine, the "Old Cabin" mine, Old Spruce mine, Shepherd's mines, to get closer home, the lost Rock Creek treasure, all have about them the halo of bare possibility. And that is secreted there is in any such tale. Speaking of lost mines, your correspondent has lately seen some very promising looking rock said to have been found on the Cassia hills not far (see how indefinite it is) from the head of Rock Creek. The story that goes with the rock has it that an miner who once upon a time within recent generations probed around the rocks of the nearby hills used at intervals to bring in pokes of clean gold, enough at all times to supply his primitive needs and leave a surplus in the old sock. Conditions changed, however, and the miner, yet dwelling here says that this gold was not the alluvial product of a placer but here its own evidence of being scars, leaves and granules of gold taken from the quartz in pieces; the matrix marks were shown on the yellow metal that the old fellow grudgingly doled out in exchange for bacon and beans. And no placer gold has ever been found in Rock Creek. But neither has any gold been found in other parts of the hills since the miner's untimely taking off by a snow avalanche, as the story goes. There you have the story. An old fellow who lived near to Rock Creek, he bought supplies and paid for them in raw gold; he is said never to have come far in his prospecting and mining; he lived in a hut half shack, half cave, on the precipitous side of one of the little tributaries of Rock Creek; a slide of snow and loose rock wiped out about all vestiges of his hut; the old fellow was never seen again about his former haunts, and his secret died with his poor old body. Did he have a hidden mine near to his shack? Did his shabby hut cover its entrance? Or did he deal out from the gold in some secret hoard gained in some remote region? Quies aube?

Frederic Hansen, in charge of one of the several bands of sheep being fed near here this winter by Newman Brothers of Shoshone, has returned to that place and will begin early spring work on the extensive ranch owned by the Newman family.

W. O. Brown, who has been foreman here for Joseph Kiefer, sheepman on the Shoshone, will go into business here or in Twin Falls, for himself.

William Schoenfeldt of Shoshone, who has been in charge of the sheep tending near Hansen, has returned to the North Side sheep town.

Charles Colner, prosperous young rancher being reared by Hansen, has recently had the misfortune to suffer infection of blood poison, which at one time was so grave in condition as to require amputation of a hand almost necessary. Mr. Colner has returned from the hospital at Twin Falls with the injured member almost recovered.

H. B. Willey, of Twin Falls, president of the Bank of Hansen, was a visitor on business to the village on last Saturday.

Judge Lawrence Hansen of Rock Creek, was a Sunday visitor, leaving Hansen that evening enroute for Boise, where he had been called to serve on the federal grand jury to be in session in the Capitol City this week. T. T. Rutledge of Artesian City, has also been down on the same grand jury list and came to Hansen to take the train for Boise last Sunday evening.

Judge Lawrence Medley, postmaster at Artesian City, was a business visitor in Hansen one day last week.

The new residence building being erected for Peter Larsen of Rock Creek, is nearing completion and when finished will be occupied by John F. Hansen and family.

Morton Kellogg and family, lately of Hozenan, Mont., are recent additions to Hansen's social community. Mr. Kellogg expects to become a permanent resident of this vicinity and will probably go to ranching near this town.

F. M. Towne, local sheepman and successful cultivator of an extensive irrigated ranch near Hansen, is an enthusiastic advocate of dry farming. Mr. Towne believes that nearly all of the lands about here that cannot for any reason be economically irrigated can be made to produce profitable grain crops by following correct dry farming methods, and he instances excellent yields of winter wheat on which no irrigation water was turned. He says also that at least one big annual crop of alfalfa can be taken off of South Side tracts without irrigation and is convinced that such land as is not now irrigated will be reclaimed by dry farming on a big scale and correct method.

Professor C. C. Peerman, principal of the Hansen school, has rented a tract near to the town and will reside on it this year.

Plans are being prepared for a new station and hall building to be made of brick and concrete, to be erected on Main street near the intersection of Overland. Work on the excavation of the cellar and foundation is expected to be begun as soon as the frost is out of the ground. The new building will have its lower story situated for store purposes and the second story will give room for a commodious hall with the usual and necessary ante and resting rooms for lodge purposes. As soon as the new building progresses so that a meeting place is assured it is planned to form a local order of Odd Fellows and one of the objects, there being enough members of those orders resident here and communicating with other lodges to make strong local organizations.

M. O. Anderson, who owns a fine ranch one-half mile southwest of Hansen, has recently returned from Fox, Va., where he sojourned during the winter and where he was wedded to Miss Rosa Halsey. Mr. Anderson and his bride are now seated in their new home which is one of the best ranch houses in Twin Falls county, and are receiving the congratulations of their many friends.

Elvis Laxson and family are now occupying the temporary house hastily built for their use while a handsome bungalow to be built later is being constructed.

J. O. Kanenator, ranch owner living on the Rock creek road south of Hansen, is building a 16x24 feet addition to his residence.

G. L. Redhead is an auctioneer par excellence of the unknown at a box-social, and can guarantee to wheedle and browbeat more than any other in baskets and boxes than any other known to the calling. The box-social and supper given by the ladies of the Twin Falls Y. W. C. A. for the benefit of the social and financial success, thanks to the donors of the delicacies and to Mr. Redhead as auctioneer.

Walter Rose, local manager for the Weeter Lumber company, received injuries during the gale last Monday night. He was missed last week, but fortunately were only minor bruises, being caught in a whirling vortex of boards from a high lumber pile which he was trying to secure against the wind. Mr. Rose will be doing business just as usual, but it will be with a bruised head and temporarily dull wits.

J. R. Hinton and G. W. Crater expect to disperse some surplus livestock soon at a public sale.

Hay and grain, butter and eggs, produce, meat or fat, are all being sold locally. Offers on alfalfa of $15 per ton, and on clover of $12 per ton, are required by those holding a surplus of these products. Butter offerings are scarce at 35c per pound; the hens are on a fast, and the price of eggs is 10c; hogs fit for market have been cleaned out and cattle fit for beef are at prices hitherto never realized here. The lowly turkey is plentiful and locally just about as scarce. Other vegetables, usually kept in store in collars are scarce and high in price.

Y. Jarboe, state auditor, drew out the tract for milk dairy and meat products where are we going to get off with summer prices? It looks to your correspondent as though the rancher and dairyman have the edge here right now and will hold it next summer. Glorious!

Last Tuesday evening was made the occasion for a delightful social gathering, when about forty friends of Mrs. G. L. Redhead, who is the sole possessor of her genial home, it was her birthday, and all enjoyed themselves with music, games and delicious refreshments.

Each wishing Mrs. Redhead many happy returns of the day.

Mrs. Elma Workman came in from Elgin, Ore., Tuesday, and will remain for an indefinite visit with her daughter's family, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Waters.

Miss Erle Smith of Twin Falls, visited her many Hansen friends several days last week.

Mrs. Auehri arrived Friday from Ogden, Utah, to look the place for her son, Luther Austin, Creek, to visit her son, Luther Austin, Creek.

Miss Henry LaCourse entertained the Ladies Aid of the M. E. church last Thursday. All members and nine guests being present, a profitable as well as a good sociable time was enjoyed. Mrs. LaCourse was hostess to the good friends of the church, and which was not the least enjoyable part of the program of the day.

The friends of Mrs. Mary C. Woods will be pleased to hear of her return from Griswold, Iowa, where she has spent the winter. Mrs. Woods is in Twin Falls at present, but expects to make some extensive improvements on her 20-acre fruit ranch east of Hansen, in the spring.

WINTER MILK PRODUCTION

Fall Fresh Cows Make Good Returns In Cold Weather.

To be successful in winter dairying it is not necessary that one has the faculty of caring for cows, a good business man and be naturally patient.

One of the best ways to increase the productiveness of a cow is to lengthen her milking period. This milking period and brood cow in the spring is cut short by hot weather and flies. Fall fresh cows, with good care and feed milk well through the winter, and do not put the cow in the spring as practically as good as those that freshen in the spring, until their milk supply is affected by hot weather and flies. This means that the milking period of cows that freshen in the fall has been lengthened by nearly two months.

Ideal cow should have the best care at all times, be regularly fed, watered and milked, and in the winter be confined in a stall wide enough so she may lie down with ease, and not so long that she cannot keep clean.

The temperature should not go below freezing, and the ventilation should be good. Unless the weather is too stormy, she should have fresh air every day, whether she is a breeder or a milk cow.

A variety of food is desirable, and the digestibility of foods should be considered. Cows should not be made to eat the same food all the time. After the blossoms have left it, ensilage can be placed first in the economical for profits. Cows cannot consume the digestible food dry feed to work their milk-producing power to its full capacity. Without succulent, easily digested food they will not thrive, and produce milk to the limit of their capabilities. The grain ration is when a good many fall down. Profits are increased from the amount of food over and above the actual maintenance, so the feeding should be done with a liberal hand.

Some cows will milk without protein. It can't be done. Protein should be fed in the cheapest form, whether in bran, gluten or oil meal. If one studies the art one can tell how much to feed. If a cow is in full flow of milk and does not lay on fat, her appetite is a good guide, and should be given all the grain she will eat up clean.

I think that one of the greatest drawbacks to profitable winter dairying is that many keep cows so poorly through the summer that it takes half the winter to get them into good working condition. It is not all the profit, is lost in so doing. It is an old and true saying, that "an animal well summered is half wintered, and well wintered is half summered."

The real value of a milk cow lies in her pedigree, her prepotent power that is given her by her long line of ancestors. The cow that can tell how good a quality to her offspring. A good dairyman does not chance to have good cows. It is with a man whose progeny he understands the necessity of linking good blood with good feed and care, and of rearing his calves as well as such a way that they will be profitable producers.—E. P. F., Illinois, in Farm Progress.

Saturday Night, Feb. 26.

In August, 1909, we bought the Famous Shoe stock, consisting of $10,000.00 worth of men's, Women's and Children's Shoes, to be converted into cash at prices advertised, in 30 days. We did exactly as we advertised, and held one of the most successful sales ever held in this city. This big sale will be a repetition of the above; all goods in our house will be marked to bed rock prices, and sold exactly as advertised. We hold no fake sales, as you see advertised daily, but put prices on that will move the goods. Our store room is small and we are compelled to utilize every inch of space to accommodate our fast growing business, and as our spring stock is arriving daily we are obliged to have the room. We are going to move our entire line of Men's Suits, Overcoats and Odd Pants. In order to do this we have cut them to 50c on the Dollar.

THE STETSON PARLOR

LEASE FOUR OF BOURNE'S CLAIMS

Famous Jarbidge Pay Claims Leased to Capitalists.

A. D. STAFFORD OF THIS CITY SECURES ONE LODE CLAIM.

Stafford & McLearn of Twin Falls, Will Work One of the Richest Strikes in New Mining District.

The same policy of developing which was pursued in the camps of Goldfield, Tonopah and Rhyolite some years ago, has been decided on at the scene of the recent gold discovery at Jarbidge, that of leasing to reputable mining men for the period of from one to two years. This was made known yesterday when it was given out that the North Star property owned by James E. Clinton, Jr. and others of Boise, had been leased to some of the best known mining men in the Intermountain country and who represent some of the largest interests in the state. With much has been said of the camp and the excellent surface indications, little or nothing has been done in a material way looking toward the development of the camp. The leases are all for 300 feet on the North Star claim and 20 per cent of the proceeds will go to the mine owner.

Those who have been interested and active in the mines in the Goldfield region, declare that the leasing policy was responsible for the unprecedented boom of that country. It brought practical miners to the camps and they waged a campaign of development which was productive of results. The move taken by the owners of the North Star group is looked upon as the signal for a repetition of the Goldfield boom, and will lead others to follow in the footsteps of the home company. Lease No. 1 was let to J. Riddle of Nevada. Mr. Riddle is said to represent some very influential mining and smelting interests of Salt Lake and the fact that he has been through the Goldfield and Tonopah booms and is thoroughly conversant with the Nevada district, indicates, local mining men claim, that he will at once get busy on the lease.

The second lease of 300 feet has been let to E. J. Roberts of Salt Lake. Mr. Roberts is well known in mining circles of the Mormon capital, and, it is said, is working in the interest of J. C. Davy, one of the biggest mining men in the West. The new lease to mining men who have made their fortunes in Utah properties, are interesting themselves in this new camp, shows that there is more to the new camp than mere talk and humbugs. Mr. Pinckney and Hart, representing the Eccles-Pingree capitalists of Oregon, have secured the third lease. Mr. Pinckney is well known in Utah, being the owner of the First National Bank building in Salt Lake City. There are there also treasurer of the Oregon Smelting company owned principally by David Eccles. The Oregon interests are considered very powerful, and it is said, they have great faith in Jarbidge and its tributary country.

The fourth lease of 300 feet has been let to Stafford & McLearn of Twin Falls, prosperous agriculturists of southern Idaho, who are very much impressed with the Jarbidge country and who will go into the camp at once.

With such men on the ground and assisting in the development of the country, the camp yesterday was spoken of by local mining men with more earnestness than heretofore. Some who have been cynical about the discoveries there and who have scoffed at the idea of another Comstock, stated that there is probably more to the camp than they realized. Other leases are expected to be made in the near future and when the winter breaks within the next two months, some of the best and most practical miners will be on the scene digging into the much exploited country.

Mr. Hart, who with Pinckree secured the third lease, speaks very favorably of the camp, and every indication points to the fact that the camp is being leased for 1200 feet and found the vein was six feet wide. "The six feet is not the width of the entire lode, which has been spoken of so much, but seems to be the pay streak of the dyke," Statesman.

FIRST STORE IN JARBIDGE.

H. A. Hanson Writes of Experience in New Mining Camp.

"Some men of what the conditions are at Jarbidge at this time is given in a letter just received from H. A. Hanson, who has established the first store in that camp. In part he writes as follows:

"Arrived here in several places today ago and am well located on the one business street of Jarbidge. The sign I erected this morning over the entrance looking like a well planned store to the world that the first store in what will be one of the greatest gold camps in the country was open for business.

"There seems to be no question but what this will be a great camp. By experts and old miners alike this is conceded and every indication points to 5000 people here in ninety days. There is no way to tell accurately how many there are here now, but it is estimated that there are about 150 or 175, with more coming in every day.

"There is a townsite on a quartz claim in the canyon of Jarbidge creek, and this is being sold in town lots, little being given to holders of lots as soon as patent is received, which will probably be in ninety days. The townsite is being located every day, but there is so much danger from snowslides that some of the best country has to be left to be prospecting in the spring.

"He further states that there are several Nevada capitalists in the camp looking over the prospects.—Salt Lake Evening Telegram.

COMMERCIAL RATING BOOK

Finney Collection Agency Prepares Handy Data for Business Men.

The publication of a rating book, containing about 5000 names, and their ratings, has just been completed by the Finney Mercantile Agency. This system of reporting delinquencies extends from Duhal to Burley, and brings the applicant for credit on the tract, face to face with these questions: What has been my attitude toward my obligations in the past? What attitude shall I take in the future? In which column shall my name be found? In their regular reports, the business men are very careful to do no one an injustice, and will further the interests of every man deserving credit, but they also intend to protect their own interests by noting the business counts that have been knowing at their profits in the past.

If similar local organizations elsewhere have proven beneficial, the operation of the merchant in this whole tract on such an important feature as the extension of credit, is bound to be productive of beneficial results.

ROCK CRUSHER WORKING.

Lively Interest Shown in New Plant on Right of Way.

The new rock crusher ordered by J. M. Maxwell, City Engineer Mill and C. C. Bedford, has been in place for about two weeks while the machinery has been put into working order. The crusher is now ready to turn out lava rock in any kind of fragments desired. The crusher, while a new venture with its owners, is already bringing in returns from the crushed rock furnished the contractors and builders as time arrives for the paving of the machine will probably gain a great deal of business from the paving contractors.

Fruit Tree Culture.

The following spring after planting the trees should be plowed deep and thoroughly and as close to the trees as practical without disturbing the roots. As the trees get older the plowing should be more shallow, especially close to the trees. In no case should any of the main roots be torn up by the plow.

During the first two or three years the trees should be plowed and hoed regularly. Never plant such crop as corn or small grain in the orchard, as they are very injurious to the fruit trees, though peas or potatoes may be planted with some advantage until the trees get large and shade the ground.—Farm Progress.

COMMENTS ON JARBIDGE CAMP

Prospector Sent Out By Railroad Men Sends In Report.

Jarbidge, Nev., Feb. 8, 1910. Messrs. Quinn, Sullivan and McManis, Gentlemen: Have been looking around the camp and come to the conclusion that it will be one of the great-est boom camps in late Nevada mining history. As to its merits, will say that while they have a good surface showing it is too early for anyone to say what the ultimate results will be. There is only one feature about this place that I do not like, and that is what has happened in every mining excitement in Nevada—viz: Altogether too much townsite booming and building and very little energy and muscle spent developing the different showings on properties. This is a true and conservative statement. There are one store, two barber shops, two assay offices and two livery stables. No restaurant or lodging house as yet, but said to be on the road. Not an idle man in camp at present. Conservative estimate of people in camp and vicinity 275 to 300.

Lots of snow on the hills and storms are quite frequent. Have moved my camp a mile and near head of the East Fork of the Brunson. Country around there is not staked and looks identical in contour and formation as it does around here, and chances are good to make a discovery in that part of the known mineral zone. Some placer has been found up to date. Shall do all I can to get something with merit and as soon as weather conditions permit shall prospect the "higher" ranges.

Stopped at Mr. Lewis' camp while here. (He is Mr. Sullivan's brother-in-law.) He has 3 or 4 claims out about 5 or 6 miles from here. My camp is about 5 miles from here; or about 4 1/2 miles in an air line.

Well, I will close. One remarkable feature of this camp is that there is not a single prospect in the entire district. Will drop you a line on or about 10 days from date.

Respectfully yours,
WM. A. KOPPLIN,
Jarbridge, Nev.

Farmers' Institute in Session

Prof. Frandson in Charge of Instructive Program.

Attendance at Each Session Has Been Very Good and Ranchers Express Lively Interest.

The annual session of the farmers' institute was begun in this city yesterday morning with Prof. J. S. Frandson, of the state dairy department, in charge. The session held at 10 o'clock in the Hickett school auditorium, was well attended, although many of the farmers were not sure where the meetings were to be held. Prof. Frandson in opening the meeting spoke at length on the advantages of the dairy business under the topic of "Better Dairying" and on the proper feeding of the dairy cows. This address will be given in a later number of the Times for the benefit of those who could not attend.

Secretary Stoliz of the Commercial club, delivered the address of welcome, after which the subject of Irrigation Frandson was treated in a most able manner by Don H. Bark, of the government experiment station, who in his address on the duty of water gave one of the most comprehensive talks of the session. "In connection with the talk on irrigation Mr. Bark gave a practical talk on the most successful method of raising alfalfa, which was very timely and highly interesting to the ranchers of this tract. This morning Prof. Frandson gave some good advice to the ranchers on farm sanitation and later urged the ranchers to send to the state agricultural station for all of the pamphlets published there, which publications are free to the farmers. All that is necessary is for the ranchers to send their address to the director of the state experiment station at Moscow and they will be put on the permanent mailing list.

The balance of the session today was taken up with articles by the local ranchers on topics of general interest, many of the papers being exceptionally written. Music furnished by the members of the public school added greatly to the pleasure of the audience.

Directors and officers are: J. L. Karr, president; G. J. Field, vice president; H. G. Boyd, secretary and treasurer; H. N. Lawrence, Dan Greenwalt, general manager.

Mr. Greenwalt, who is the locator of the Bunker Hill group of claims, taken over by the new company, will leave for camp at once to start development work. He was in the camp last fall with the early ones, and he has a showing which he believes warrants him in saying that he will be able to make shipments of high-grade ore as soon as the roads leading from the camp are in condition for heavy freight.

How he narrowly escaped being the one to bring the Jarbidge district into prominence, instead of Bohanna, was told yesterday by Mr. Greenwalt, old-time prospector and mining man of Idaho, Montana and Nevada, when he related how he came to locate the Bunker Hill group of claims. "Two years ago in Spokane," said Mr. Greenwalt, "I met a veteran prospector who told me of a wonderful country in northern Nevada where he had done placer mining thirty years ago. He told of a particular ledge from which he had taken ore that assayed as high as $20,000 a ton in gold, describing in minutest details its exact location, which was at the forks of Jarbidge river and Pine creek, the Jarbidge being a prong of the Bruneau river.

"Naturally I was not a little chagrined to find that ranchmen and others who had preceded me had staked most of the country within a mile or two of the Bourne strike, but I set out to look the country over and to get my bearings, and before nightfall of my first day in camp I had found the ledge described to me by my old prospector friend, and not a stake was there. Everything was just as he had told me I should find it, even to rock with gold in it. True it is that I have not had assays running as high as he told me about, but in the brief time that I had for prospecting before snow fall, I uncovered most showings of ore running from $2 to $800 a ton, and I have no doubt that even richer strikes are there.

"I located a solid group of four claims, covering the ledge, and a number of cross-lusters, and I know that if the camp makes good—of which I have no doubt—it will be one of the good things of the camp. I called it the Bunker Hill group on account of the close resemblance of the locality to Bunker hill, in the town of Auburn.—Salt Lake Herald-Republican.

HANDLING FALL APPLES.

Good Money In Them If They Can Be Stored a Few Weeks.

There is one part of the apple crop that is always discouraging to the orchard owners who have considerable fruit and yet are not well situated to keep it. I mean the fall ripening apples, that are fully ripe before the really cold weather sets in, and are therefore not easy to keep. Many of these apples are of fine quality, but, of course, less salable than winter apples, merely because they are ripe before the best demand for apples comes on. As a rule, apples, while valued for their quality as fruit, and enter for the mere pleasure and enjoyment of the eating, are really among the most wholesome of the common foods. I am not prepared to say how apples rate as to their content of nutrition, but I know from experience that their food value is considerable, and they surely do serve a most excellent purpose when taken with the ordinary staples, in making the diet both more enjoyable and wholesome. For this reason it would well if a great many people would make apples a regular part of their diet. Apples which especially fine are apples, when baked and eaten with cream and sugar.

On many farms the selection of the most desirable apples is made without a full knowledge of the subject, and in most cases a larger portion is composed of summer and fall apples than of the long-keeping winter varieties. However, the fall apples would be more profitable if it were possible to put them into cold storage as long as they could be kept safely. When this is done these late fall apples will be in their prime, when the winter varieties are still too sold to be very valuable. This is the subject that orchard owners would do well to investigate. It might result in making a very good profit out of apples that in many cases are sold at unprofitable prices. Of course, where there are only a few apples in any particular section, it will not pay to provide a storage plant, but as the best sale is always in the cities, it will in most cases pay to ship to a city where there are good cold storage facilities. Always recommend, however, that anyone having a large quantity of late ripening apples should get a city commission merchant who is known to be trustworthy, and have him to investigate the subject fully.

The fruit crop has always been one of the troublesome to handle in this portion, as fruit is perishable, the risks become greater. This makes the business of growing very perishable fruits unsatisfactory, unless all the arrangements are made for handling from grower to consumer. It is a business, too, that one should never go into on a large scale without having grown up in it. The mistakes of two or three seasons may cause losses that it will take several years to recoup. But the farmer who is not a grower also is not expected to plunge in this business any more than in raising his farm crops. If this policy is adopted of planting only a reasonable number of trees each fall or spring, the arrangements can be made each year to increase the quantity shipped, as the supply grows larger.

I know very well that we who do a good deal of farming will always find it troublesome to handle fruits in the busy fall season, but since a fruit crop costs so little to produce, it is usually only the expense of handling the crop that has to be charged against it. But this is like any other crop, it requires a full knowledge of the subject to get the most out of it. In connection with the apples it is always a good policy to plant quite a number of pear trees of good keeping varieties. As a rule, they sell better than apples.—J. W. Hillcutt, in Farm Progress.

GOVERNMENT TOWN LOT SALE

Town Lots On Minidoka Project Auctioned In Early Days.

In laying out its great irrigation projects in the west, many of which were located in the center of an uninhabited desert, the reclamation service set aside certain tracts of land for beneficial purposes.

On opening the agricultural lands to the homeseekers who flocked thither from all parts of the country, there was created at once a demand for town lots upon which to establish the varied lines of business required to supply the needs of the settlers.

Public auctions were held and portions of the townsite were disposed of for cash to the highest bidder.

The growth of the country has promoted that of the adjacent towns, which under the stimulus of the excellent crop yields of the farms, have steadily prospered. The rapid increase in population in a number of the new communities necessitates the holding of another auction sale of town lots.

On the Minidoka project in southern Idaho, embracing 132,000 acres of exceptionally fertile land now occupied by more than 2,000 families, there are four new towns, three of which are government towns. In the geographical center of the project is the new town of Rupert, containing 320 acres. Its growth has been such that the government has decided to offer at public sale, beginning April 8, two hundred acres and running west to Bliss, Idaho will be completed in 1910. Transportation facilities are excellent and are being improved in advance of the needs of the community.

From the big government dam, a large amount of cheap power is developed, surrounding it are 60,000 acres of land divided into 40 and 80 acre farms. The diversified crops and intensive farming of this region, the fertile soil, and favorable climate, assure the future and continued prosperity of the farmer, and furnish sufficient basis upon which to predicate the substantial growth of the town.

There is today a good demand for homes to rent, and it will doubtless prove profitable to improve these lots by putting up houses which will produce good revenue. As a plan for future residence, Rupert has advantages and usually found in a new country like this. It has an $18,000 public school, Ave. denominational churches, several fraternal societies, a woman's club, and a well equipped manufacturing plant. It is a fine place for a home.

LUMBERMEN MEET.

C. B. Channon Gives Address Before Session In Portland.

The seventh annual convention of the Western Retail Lumbermen's association began at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the hall on the top floor of the Marquam building. This is the seventh convention of the association, which was opened by the Rev. W. J. Hindley of Spokane, who, being a most fluent talker, was also selected to make the response to the address of welcome by Mayor Simon on behalf of the Rose City, and by L. J. Wentworth, on behalf of the Oregon and Washington Lumber Manufacturers' association, whose guests the visitors will be at a banquet at the Commodore club next Wednesday night.

Then followed the reading of the minutes of the meeting of 1909, and the annual reports of Vice President C. B. Channon of Twin Falls, Idaho, and Secretary-Treasurer A. L. Porter of Spokane. Vice President Channon called attention to the fact that the association's purpose is not to do away with competition, or to assist members in maintaining profit-producing prices, which, if attempted, would possibly result in the undoing of the association itself.

"The remedy for buccannering business methods," said the speaker, "is in educating ourselves and the other fellow to be better and broader business men. The association is doing much toward the teaching of a better conception of sound business principles."

He contended that the manufacturer and retail dealer should co-operate in the manufacture and distribution of forest products, to the end that the consuming public may be best served and any unnecessary waste eliminated.

A Correction.
Pocatello, Idaho, Feb. 12th, 1910.
Editor Twin Falls Times, Twin Falls, Idaho.

My Dear Sir: Our representative in your city, Mr. J. F. Hogan, has just furnished us with a copy of the Times of February 2nd, calling our attention to the last page in which you quote Mr. Hill and myself having visited your city and that we were favorably establishing a retail department in Twin Falls.

We positively never considered any such move as the visit mentioned and will place a heavy wholesale stock of groceries in it very soon, from which to furnish the legitimate retailers on the Twin Falls branch. This means the enlargement of our force in your city.

Please publish this letter at once, conspicuously, so your merchants will fully understand our intentions.

Yours very truly,
D. H. POTTER, CO.

AUTOMOBILE TO JARBIDGE.

Twin Falls Men Spread Jarbidge Dope In Salt Lake.

Automobile Route to Jarbidge. An automobile line will be run into Jarbidge next summer, according to I. B. Perrine and A. McPherson. These men were down from Twin Falls, Idaho, and while in this city made arrangements for the establishment of an automobile line from the Falls to the new gold camp of Jarbidge. Before their departure from this city they admitted that the line could not be opened up until spring, as the roads are impassable during the winter months, owing to the heavy snowfall and extremely cold weather.

A large influx of people is expected as soon as the weather conditions will permit entry being made into Jarbidge diggings. The new camp has already attracted a great many mining people from all sections, and Messrs. Perrine and McPherson report a considerable improvement in business at Twin Falls since the first strikes were made. They say the Twin Falls business houses are preparing for a great rush in the early spring, as outfitting will be done from that point almost entirely.

A great many Salt Lakeers have stipulated their intention of going into Jarbidge early in the season. The reports from that camp are all of the most favorable character, and the general impression is that it will prove to be one of the biggest gold camps that has been opened up since the first discoveries were made at Goldfield.—Salt Lake Telegram.
