ONIO PLAN PRESENTED

Road Plan of Buckeye State Considered.

TWIN FALLS AUTOMOBILE CLUB INTERESTED.

Plan Has Worked Well in Ohio and Seems Practical Here, At Least Is Worthy of a Trial.

A plan for co-operative continuous maintenance of highways that is proving successful in Ohio, has been introduced by the Twin Falls Automobile Club of Carleton W. Bloom, president of the county, Ohio, Good Roads Association. Mr. Bloom is a practical farmer, who has devoted much time to the good roads question, and is a member of the National Good Roads Association. He is anxious to see his plan tried in other states, believing that both the farmer and the townspeople will be benefited thereby.

The Twin Falls Automobile Club, in co-operation with the Idaho State Automobile Association, has taken the good roads problem up and asks the assistance of the farmers in giving this plan a trial.

Secretary Arthur J. Peavey, of the Twin Falls Automobile Club, will be glad to bear from the farmers of the tract, and asks that they read carefully this Ohio plan and then take steps to put it into practical use. Mr. Bloom's plan for the better maintenance of the public roads is as follows: The plan is based upon a clearly defined distinction between road maintenance and road construction or repair, a distinction not made under present methods of operation, and it also contemplates the use of the road drag as a means of road maintenance and recognizes the so-called King Drag as the ideal implement for this purpose, first, because of its demonstrated efficiency and secondly, because of its low cost of construction and operation. For the best results the drag should be correctly made and used, for in this as in everything there is a right and wrong way. Farmers Bulletin No. 221 on the subject of agriculture, Washington, D. C. gives detailed directions for making and using the drag and may be obtained free by any one requesting it.

In order to a clear comprehension of the plan the following universally recognized facts should be stated and borne in mind in consideration:

1. By law, all citizens of ages from 21 to 65 are required to perform two days labor on the highways, as poll tax.
2. Under existing conditions practically all the labor performed on highways is done by the farmers living adjacent to the roads, and contractors and even contractors rely almost entirely on them for hands and teams.
3. By present methods little or nothing is done to the roads except to deposit new material on them, which is then left indefinitely without further attention.
4. By reason of the last mentioned fact many roads provided with abundance of material are nevertheless bad roads for lack of proper attention and maintenance.
5. Little or nothing can be efficiently done toward smoothing or shaping the road surface when the dry and cold, but this is usually done when the surface is softened by moisture.

There will be universal agreement as to the above mentioned facts and they are of common knowledge and do not admit of dispute.

The proposed plan contemplates such a change in methods as will virtually introduce the "king" system or continuous maintenance in vogue in France and other foreign countries, though at far less cost. It is a principle well recognized by all road experts that the best results can not be secured except by constant oversight and the application of the "stitch in time" principle. It is apparent, even to the casual observer, that far better roads would be had if the holes and ruts could be filled, ridges scraped off and the loose stones removed whenever and just at the time it is needed to be done. What is required is a little work done often, at just the right time. This could be accomplished, of course, by the constant employment of men, on the roads, but this would necessitate a heavy increase of expense and a consequent increase of the tax rate, besides being open to the further objection that these men would be employed much of the time when the roads were not in the best condition for treatment and consequently would be working at a disadvantage, besides losing much time in going from place to place on extensive circuits.

The proposed plan provides that the road authorities shall divide the roads into short sections, according to the number of poll tax payors, and assign to each man the section nearest and most convenient to him, who would assume the responsibility of keeping the same in good condition by working his poll tax on it, not all at once but at intervals as needed, thus introducing the valuable essential features of the patrol system. It is estimated that in no case would these sections comprise more than a half mile of road.

A sufficient number of the road drags already referred to would be provided so that two or three drags of these section men could have one, or each have his own if more desirable. As soon as the frost is out in the spring and while the roads are yet somewhat soft and plastic, these men would go on the road each on his own section, dragging it thoroughly, scraping down the ruts, filling the ruts and holes and crowning and smoothing the surface so that it would be done at a time when it would least interfere with farm work. Let this be done, whenever there was a tendency to develop ruts or holes, each would gladly apply the same treatment, just following the other. Only the rain would make the fields too wet to work for at least a few hours would soften

The Idaho Press Club, through its legislative committee, is preparing a number of needed legislative bills for the coming session. Every legislative year the editors of the press club discuss and reviewing conditions in the various sections agree upon certain reforms which should be made. These legislative recommendations if they possess merit are then urged by all papers in the association until passed. Some of the measures give the editors the best of it, but more of them are in the line of general needs of the general public. In no case, however, have bills been urged for passage that do not lessen the opportunities for getting by state holders, or from which benefits accrue to the people generally.

Greater publicity of the records of the public office holders is the one thing which tends to do away with crookedness and laboring along that line, the press of the state is endeavoring to secure laws that will compel publication.

While the primary election law was a disappointment to many of the newspapers, yet not one in ten would advise its repeal. The press club does, however, find it ineffective in its present form, and asks for radical changes. The enactment of the campaign expenses in the present law operated directly opposite to the result desired. It made falsehood and deceit the leverage for office getting and put the honest man at the mercy of the dishonest. Rather than such departments from his methods, the press club favors publicizing the press account with no restriction upon the amount expended. The omission of the second choice or rather its compulsory use is hit a hard blow by the pen pushers.

RAILROADS AND THEIR HISTORY.

A laudatory article on J. P. Morgan and his father, in McClure's, tells of the opening of the career of J. P. Morgan, how he and the Drexels helped the government in its refunding operations in 1871 and later "reopened America to the huge investing resources of England."

No doubt in that work Mr. Morgan revealed his greatness as a financier, but looking back there is a grave question whether he benefited this country very much or not, especially in the railroad financing. The writer admits that most of the stock in many of the roads of that day was nearly pure water. What Mr. Morgan did was not to reduce the roads to what they had cost and what they were then worth, but to consolidate one system after another, which enabled them to collect higher fares and freights and for improvements to borrow foreign money on high rate bonds. Perhaps that is the best that could be done at the time but it opened the way for more straw roads to be built on more high rate bonds, until the burden of railroad interest, which annually has to be sent abroad taxes all the resources of this country and enables foreign capital to hold a perpetual clutch over the United States.

But by this time this borrowing of foreign money surely ought to stop. It cannot under present financial methods. So long as the only money system that we have is founded on an interest bearing debt and the only real money that we have being gold, and that being perpetually held under the hands of Mr. Morgan and his associates, there will be no abatement of interest charges, and the failure of one crop will mean the utter financial collapse of the country. Some one may ask: "Why worry over the interest on railroad bonds?" The answer is because the people have to pay that interest. They pay it in added fares and freights and the volume has now become so immense that it absorbs all the profits of our mines and with the cost of the other mistakes that have been made, takes not only all the products of the mines, but absorbs nearly or all the profits from the field and forest and factory. If it was paid at home it would not be so bad, but at it goes abroad and is a completely lost to us as though it were consumed in Europe. There must soon be a change or utter prostration of business.—Salt Lake Telegram.

THE BALLINGER REPORT.

The majority of the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating Committee have made their report. A summary of their conclusions has been published. As every one who has followed the case has almost from the first expected, the result of the investigation is a personal vindication of Mr. Ballinger. The report declares that in regard to the coal claims in Alaska his conduct is not justly censurable; that he was justified in revoking the Indian co-operative agreement; that his action regarding water power sites was taken in good faith; that he was not to be criticized for his administration of the reclamation service; that he is not an enemy to a reasonable and judicious policy of conservation; and that there is nothing to justify the opinion that he is not a faithful and efficient public officer. As the Outlook has reported, with these conclusions a minority of the committee consisting of all the Democratic members and one Republican are not in agreement. It should be remembered, however, that point charges of corruption have been brought against the secretary. The real cause of the controversy which led to the investigation was the belief that Mr. Ballinger was not, as head of the department of the interior, efficiently guarding the public interest, and that he was so far out of sympathy with the conservation policies in which the American people believed and to which the Republican party had committed itself as to be unfitted to carry those policies into execution. On this point the Outlook reached its conclusion and stated it last June. We see no reason for changing the opinion then expressed. Now, after investigation, the majority of the committee, at the same time that they announce their opinion that Mr. Ballinger should be relieved of any stigma, reach a conclusion that, of itself, justifies the belief regarding Mr. Ballinger's unfitness for the great office he occupies. This conclusion is in direct issue with Mr. Ballinger on one of the fundamental questions of conservation. While the secretary in his recent report, after the evidence regarding Mr. Ballinger's honor and faithfulness, there was during the controversy "plenty of evidence brought out to show that if

Your committee believes that it would be the height of unwisdom to permit the great coal-fields to be monopolized or gathered into the private ownership of a few for speculative purposes. As they increase in value the income should inure to the benefit of all the people. To bring about this result and at the same time put an end to the unreasonable condition now existing, your committee recommends that the government refuse to sell these lands, but that, retaining their ownership, it shall grant leases at fair royalties for periods limited but long enough, and covering areas large enough, to justify the necessary investments upon sound business principles, and thus secure the opening and operation of sufficient mines to meet the necessities of Alaskan consumption, afford relief from the present outrageous prices paid by consumers, and at the same time afford some revenue to the government. We recommend legislation to that end, and that pending such legislation, the existing withdrawal from entry of the Alaska coal lands be continued.

This is an emphatic statement, in outline, of the very policies concerning the preservation of the public domain which Mr. Ballinger's administration has imperiled. The New York Journal of Commerce is not chargeable with leanings toward impractical idealism or with sympathy for doctrinaires. That our readers may see how impressive this aspect of the majority report is, we quote from its columns. After contrasting with the secretary's plan the recommendation of the committee, the Journal of Commerce continues:

This is substantially in accord with the Roosevelt-Pinchot policy, and not at all with that of Ballinger. With which President Taft is personally in sympathy appears in his brief reference to the matter in his message. He refers to the secretary's objections to the leasing plan and approves of his stating them at length, but says, "After full consideration I favor a leasing system and recommend it." He had in fact, committed himself to it without reserve in his speech at the St. Paul conservation congress.

In this difference of policy the "Journal of Commerce" sees "an illustration of the cause of the whole trouble, in which Ballinger and the administration have been involved over the conservation policy inherited from the Roosevelt-Garfield regime regarding public lands." And it concludes that, what the secretary in his recent report, after the evidence regarding Mr. Ballinger's honor and faithfulness, there was during the controversy "plenty of evidence brought out to show that if the conservation policy established by the previous administration was to be adhered to and consistently carried out, the wrong man had been appointed to the head of the department under which this was to be done." Whether this report will lead Mr. Ballinger to believe that it would be best to resign his office we do not know; but at least it gives assurance that the great wealth in the public lands cannot now be heedlessly handed over to private interests by the trustees of the people.—The Outlook.

While awaiting the wheels from a college three-year Saturday morning at the home of his mother, Mrs. Mary E. Robinson, Miss G. Robinson suffered a very painful wound in the side from the accidental discharge of the gun. Mr. Robinson was taken immediately to the hospital, where he recovered so rapidly as to be removed to his mother's home this afternoon. As soon as he is able Mr. Robinson expects to leave for Nevada.

Twin Falls people on the streets Saturday noon were furnished a little excitement in the nature of a wild charge down Main street on the part of a team and a lone occupant of the buggy. The runaway started at the Perrine corner and was stopped at the end of Main. The driver hung to the lines with a bull-dog grip and showed that he had superior powers. A couple of hundred people watched what looked like a chariot race down the Rialto.

EFFICIENT DIRT ROAD IMPLEMENT

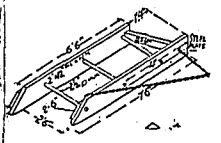

Construction and Methods of Using a Plank Drag.

WORKS BEST ON MOIST SOIL.

Better Results Achieved by First Crowning Roadway With a Blade Grader—How to Operate the Machine Successfully.

How to construct and use one of the most useful and handy devices for improving dirt roads is described in the Brooklyn's Gazette by Professor L. V. Chase of the Nebraska experiment station, who says:

The split log drag, or as it is commonly called, the King drag, is without doubt the best implement for keeping roads in shape and in many instances is as efficient as any other implement in the construction of earthen roads.

The King drag can be constructed of either a split log or a plank, but in Nebraska the plank is much easier to obtain than the log; hence this brief description pertains to the construction from planks.

Select a good yellow pine, ash or oak plank two inches thick, twelve to sixteen wide and fourteen feet long. Cut this in two at an angle so that one edge of each piece is seven feet six inches long and the other edge is six feet six inches long. Spike to the back and along the center of each of these planks a two inch by six inch piece, which re-enforces the plank. Bore the holes for the cross stakes about twenty-six inches apart and four inches from each end and one-half inch apart, using care to keep the auger perpendicular to the plank. The two inch by four inch brace at the front end should start from the middle of the rear plank and drop to the bottom part of the front plank. The blade, which is generally made of stock cut steel, should be given the proper cutting slope by placing a wedge shaped strip between it and the plank. One end of the chain is fastened to a cross stake, and the other passes through a hole in the plank and is held in position by means of a pin.

The use of the drag is more satisfactory if the road is first crowned with a blade grader, but whenever this is not convenient and the traffic is not too heavy the road may be gradually brought to a crown by means of the drag.

The surface of the ordinary country road should be covered in one bound with the drag. One horse should be driven on the inside of the wheel track and the other on the outside, the drag being set by means of the chain so that it is running at an angle of forty-five degrees with the wheel track and working the earth toward the center of the road. In the spring, when the roads are more likely to be ratty and soft. It is generally better to go over the road twice and in some places often.

The drag should be doored with boards which are separated by open spaces of sufficient width so that the dirt which falls over the sides will go through, and yet they should be close enough so that the driver can move about upon the drag quite freely.

To insure the successful operation of the drag it is necessary for the driver to use careful judgment. Sometimes it is essential that the blade be held down so that the drag will cut roads and weeds, while at other times the front edge should not bear too heavily upon the surface, as it will dig out a soft place which would be better if left undisturbed. This regulation of the cutting edge can be accomplished by the driver moving back and forth or to the right and left on the drag.

The road is to be crowned with the drag it is often well to plow a slight furrow along the sides and work this loosened dirt to the center. On roads with heavy traffic the drag should be used much oftener and with more care than on roads with light traffic.

The distance from the drag at which the team is hitched affects the cutting. A long hitch permits the blade to cut deeper than a short hitch; likewise a heavy double-team will cause the cutting edge to settle deeper than a light one.

There are very few periods of the year when the use of the drag does not benefit the road, but it does the best work when the soil is moist and just too dry. This is frequently within a half day. This is after a rain. When the earth is in this state it works the best, and the effects of working it are fully as beneficial as at any other time. The Nebraska soils when mixed with water and thoroughly worked become remarkably tough and impervious to rain, and if compacted in this condition they become extremely hard. This action of the soil in becoming so hard and smooth not only helps to shed the water during a rain, but also greatly retards the formation of dust.

So much has been written and said pertaining to the great benefits from the use of the road drag that many people beginning the use of it become discouraged before they are well started. They should not feel thus, as it often takes a whole season for the road to become properly puddled and baked to withstand the rains and traffic. After a road has been worked with a drag only a short time it is not well to expect to stand up to heavy traffic during a continued damp spell without being affected. However, it will take far heavier traffic than most earth roads receive to more than scuff up the surface. During the four years that the writer has observed the road shown in the illustration only once has it ever become so soft that teams were not hauling a ton and a half of coal in each load over it. Even in the fall of 1909 teams were delivering 3,500 pounds of coal at a load to the country farm boiler house before the roads became frozen.

It is not well to consider the benefits from a good road as solely confined to heavy traffic, for there is no doubt that the time saved to light vehicles and the greater pleasure derived from their use over good roads far exceed the economy in heavy hauling. While driving over a well crowned, smooth road the team does not have to follow the usual rut, no slacking has to be made for irregularities in the surface, and it matters not whether one or two horses are being driven.

Calcium Chloride For Preventing Dust. The Houston (Tex.) Post has the following discussion of dust preventive:

Second in importance only to the construction of good roads themselves is the solution of the problem of automobile traffic has had a revolutionary effect upon road building and has taxed the utmost energies of road engineers throughout the world to cope with the new conditions which it has created. The dust that is raised by a rapidly moving machine is disagreeable and annoying not only to other users of the highway as well as the occupants of automobiles following in the wake of the car ahead, but also to the driver. The dust that is raised by the real and permanent solution of the problem is the construction of a binder that will not yield to the effects of automobile traffic. Oil and tar together with various other preparations have been tried and especially abroad, with only fair success. In most cases their application is expensive and their effects disagreeable. The greatest satisfaction from all standpoints has been obtained both in the United States and abroad from the use of calcium chloride. It is the cheapest of all binders, with the exception of water, and in some cases is much more economical than the latter when the cost of dust prevention for the whole season is taken into consideration. One of its greatest advantages is that it is clean and absolutely odorless. In fact, it seems to have been demonstrated that calcium chloride can be used with profit on frequently traveled highways.

Good Road Helpers.
Don't be jealous of the automobile owner, for if he doesn't happen to own land in your township he is paying taxes in some other place and thus contributes his share toward the making of better roads, and in many instances he is advancing money to aid in road construction. If a road is made better for an automobile it is also made better for a buggy with a load of eggs in the back end.

A Good Move.
It is a good idea to have a clean ditch at each side of the road before winter. The other day a farmer plowed a good furrow out of each ditch of the road alongside his farm, and he pulled the dirt over the grade with a road drag. It was a neat thing to do. The dirt put on the grade was not enough to make mud, but enough to open a clear track for the water into each ditch.

PRODUCTION OF BROILERS.

Money in These Choice Poultry Products if Well Handled.

The production of broiler chickens in the season when they are supposed to be the choicest and most correct article on the menu is a very special branch of the poultry industry, says Farm Progress.

The "spring chicken" at the same age and of the same weight does not rank with the high priced "broiler" of the latter requires special conveniences and special care.

It is not a branch of the business adapted for general following, and before making arrangements to engage in it the market should be secured in one or more of the large cities, and the production to be profitable must be in very considerable numbers.

Broiler chickens are between three and four months old and must weigh from one to one and a half pounds, live weight, and at this age should be plump and symmetrical with white flesh when dressed. For this purpose the white or buff breeds of the American or English races are to be preferred to any of the Asiatic on account of their more rapid maturing.

Sunny and weather proof houses must be provided, but except in very cold climates no arrangements for artificial heating need be made in addition to those for warming the brooders.

The chickens are necessarily hatched in incubators, as during late September and October, when the eggs are set, the hens are mostly molting and, even if some show broodiness, are not in condition to be hatching and brooding young. Incubators and brooders, the former of the most improved pattern, are to be selected and their management experimented with and thoroughly mastered.

Quite a large number of brooders will be required, but some of these, designed for the chicken when quite well grown, many of the fireless sort or of home construction, to be warmed with jugs of hot water which, when well wrapped, will retain their heat for many hours.

Late hatched chicks become quite hardy and when well cared for and properly fed are not subject to any of the diseases to which summer chickens are liable.

They will not need much range, but on warm, clear days may be permitted to exercise for a few hours on the lawn or in a wire fenced yard upon which the houses open, and on such days all the brooders ought to be sunned for several hours.

Of course the strictest cleanliness in all the appointments as well as in the food and water must be observed, and if the houses are new or have been thoroughly disinfected there will be no insect pests of any kind. The first broiler chickens often sell for $1 a pound and later seldom for less than $5 per dozen.

Orchard and Garden.

Clean Ullage. Everybody believes in it, but few practice it. Raspberry plants affected with crown gall should be dug out and burned. There is no cure.

Where orchards are kept in grass, the grass should be moved and left to lie in place under the trees to rot.

A neat, clean, well painted and lettered market wagon attracts attention and helps to sell produce at good prices.

If the leaves of your apple and peach trees show dark green and the growth is vigorous, you know that the soil is all right.

The soil for the apple orchard must be thoroughly drained. It will not do to let the water stand about the roots of the trees.

Apples trees do best at a distance of two rods each way, unless it is a variety that tends to grow upward rather than outward.

Placing a small heap of rich stable manure around the base of each tree in the orchard will prove to be a little time most profitably spent.

It costs money to step on a ladder. As an orchard owner soon finds, and all that can reasonably be done by pruning to start the head of the trees low and keep it low is paying investment.

An Experiment

After putting a frog in a pan of cold water over a gas burner, it was found that by very gradually heating the water, so the frog did not notice the change, it was only a matter of several hours before the frog was dead. At all times the frog was at liberty to leap out, but he did not do so because we were not aware that any harm was being done to it.

There are a number of eye defects that fasten their grip upon humans and did the heat on the frog—unconsciously but surely. These defects in time assist in undermining the Nervous System to the vital organs and that by the age of forty the victim is an over-sensitive nervous wreck—or nearly so—and we find them "doping" themselves with every kind of nervous disorder man can imagine—and very often both doctors and patients are ignorant of the Real First Cause.

We all—doctors and patients—have a long way to go to catch up with Nature and get at the real first cause of our bodily trouble. So many of these troubles are caused by eye defects that in cases of nervousness, headaches, etc. it is inadvisable to see that the eyes are put in normal working order before bodily treatment is commenced. Much Coal--Little Ashes

When you buy coal you want to pay for heat, not ashes. There is no heat in ashes. Ashes are the refuse, the waste matter. In our coal we give you the maximum of heat and the minimum of ashes. Few ashes and practically no slate or other clinkers. Just clean, pure coal--solid heat. Ours is the most truly economical coal we know of. Try a few tons, and next year you will order your full winter's supply of us.

LARSON LOSES HIS COLENECY

Action Follows Long-Drawn Out Controversy and Incident Closed.

Acting upon the report of the examining board appointed to inquire into the qualifications of Colonel Robert Larson (secretary of state) to hold that office in the second infantry division national guard, Governor James H. Brady, Tuesday afternoon commanded Adjutant General A. Rowe to issue general orders discharging Larson from the military service of the state, declaring a vacancy thereby in the office of colonel, and ordering that an election to fill such vacancy be held.

The company officers of the Second Infantry are also directed to vote for the person whom they desire to fill that office and to send the ballot to the adjutant general on or before Wednesday, December 28.

The board of officers appointed to canvass the vote on Thursday, December 29, includes Colonels E. M. Meyer and E. M. Hoover and Major E. B. Durall.

The adjutant general's orders likewise find that Lieutenant Kiam ball's failure to take the required examination constituted flagrant disobedience of orders and contempt for the authority, and he accordingly demoted to private and is discharged from the military service of the state.

Governor Brady yesterday said: "In approving the action of the examining board I have simply performed my duty as I have seen it. I have no personal feeling in this matter, whatever, and have acted wholly for the good of the service."

"The incident is closed and I have every confidence that the national guard will fill the vacancy with a competent and efficient officer."

COMMISSION ON RATE ABUSES

Says Fight Against Rate Discrimination Is Not Won.

Washington, Dec. 21.—In its twenty-fourth annual report, submitted to congress today, the interstate commerce commission gives particular prominence to the fight against rate abuses of the eastern and western freight cases which are now pending before the commission. This report has been assigned for argument on January 9, 1911, and succeeding days.

Immediately following the passage of the Mann-Elkins law, the commission began to exercise the most far-reaching power conferred upon it, the authority to suspend proposed advances in rates pending investigation. In the first half of 1910 numerous carriers had given notice of general advances in rates.

As a result of conferences between the government and the carriers, the dates of the proposed advances were suspended pending the enactment of the law. Thereupon two general investigations were instituted, one relating to the general advances proposed by eastern and the other to those proposed by western carriers.

Since the last annual report the commission has announced decisions of 822 proceedings and 125 cases have been reported to congress and removed from the commission's docket within the year. 660 complaints were filed and 11 proceedings were instituted by the commission. In addition 25 proceedings involving suspensions of tariffs were instituted.

The number of informal complaints taken up by the commission shows a considerable decrease, 3840 having been filed in 1910 as against 4425 the previous year. Within the year 737 investigations and 200 proceedings respecting alleged violations of the law were held in Washington and various parts of the country.

In the twelve months ended November 30, 1910, 154,588 tariff publications were filed with the commission, approximately 30,000 less than the preceding twelve months. The number of schedules filed was considerably increased by the filing of supplements proposing the effective rates of tariffs, which continued advanced rates now under investigation by the commission. In the same period the number of special permits granted for special rates effective on less than statutory notice was 3940, substantially the same as in the previous twelve months.

A reference is made to the work of the commission for the establishment of a uniform freight classification. Practically all the rules and regulations governing classifications have been reviewed, revised and unified.—Salt Lake Tribune.

CONGRESS MUST "GET BUSY"

President Anxious to Have Measures Made Into Law.

Washington, Dec. 31.—There is much discussion at both the White House and the capitol over the outlook for the administration's legislative program. The president's legislative program with senators and representatives, has indicated his strong desire that as many as possible of the measures recommended in his message be pressed through congress without delay in view of the coming change of political control. It is used to this policy, which the president is still urging on congress through frequent conferences with its members. His legislative program has been rushed unprecedentedly.

No conclusions have been reached as to the order in which the program will be brought up in congress, but the regular Republicans have warned the insurgent members of their party that they will accept the one if they put any obstructions in the way of the proposed Republican legislation. The mail subsidy, the tariff commission with least objection, and assimilating tariff data, Panama canal fortifications and tolls, and a bill to regulate the leasing of injurious lands, are the measures in accordance with the best practice in vogue in the United States current are all matters upon which the president especially wants action.

ELECTRICITY IS POPULAR.

Towns On Mindokoa Project Use It Instead of Coal.

The operations of the coal trust will hereafter bring forth no walls of terror from residents of Heyburn, Barley and Rupert, towns on the Mindokoa project. When the price of coal becomes so high that it is unprofitable to transport it to these towns may sell by their warm electric heaters and thank the reclamation service for delivering to them from the hands of the coal dealers.

The Mindokoa dam develops 9000 horsepower of water power in irrigating 60,000 acres of land during the growing season. In the winter months there is no need for the power for irrigation purposes, and about the same time the idle officials of the reclamation service have decided to utilize the power for heating and lighting purposes.

The power is sold in the towns at the rate of $1.25 per kilowatt per month, which means that the electric bill is not so great as some people figure as coal heat when coal is at its cheapest.

The power comes to the towns at a voltage of 23,000 volts. In connection is located a central transformer, where the power is stepped down to 2300 volts. Each building in which the heat is used is connected to about the same former, which reduces the voltage to 220. For lighting purposes the usual voltage is 110.

Electric heaters are supplied by the consumers of the power. The prices paid for them vary with the type of heater from $10 to $30, which is about the same as the cost of stoves.

Many of the business blocks and residents of the Mindokoa towns have already been equipped for the electric heating, and others are being equipped as fast as possible.—Boise Statesman.

TWO MILLION DOLLARS LOSS

Cincinnati Visited By Bad Fire In the Factory District.

Cincinnati, Dec. 21.—Fire in the modern factory district of this city early today, caused damage estimated at $2,000,000. The fire started at 2 o'clock. The fire, which started at 2 o'clock, was one of the most disastrous the locality has ever known. It broke out with for many years. At the time it broke out a high wind was blowing. When the flames were finally brought under control the fire had burned out and eight large buildings destroyed.

An entire block from Nuth and Sycamore streets to Broadway was swept by the flames.

While the fire was at its height a wall of the Krippendorf building fell and killed Robert Grear. His body was recovered. Four other firemen were also caught by the falling wall and all are badly injured.

Shortly afterward Fireman Luhn was at work in a stable in the rear of the Gries-Pfeger company, when he stepped into a hatchway and fell two stories, breaking several ribs. He was the most seriously hurt of any of the firemen.

Hardly had he been taken to a hospital when an iron electric light pole 200 feet from the apparent danger zone of the fire toppled over and crushed Young Morris. He died on the way to the hospital.

ISIS CHRISTMAS TREE.

Popular Theatre Gives Big Treat For the Little Folks.

More than six hundred of the little folks of Twin Falls, under the age of ten years, were entertained by Manager and Mrs. William "The Little Folks" Christmas tree, on Saturday afternoon. The tree whatever was made to the little folks, they being the guests of the theatre management.

There were more than six hundred children present during the afternoon, and it is needless to say that they enjoyed themselves to the utmost. As an exception to the usual program of pictures, a big Christmas tree was displayed on the stage, beautifully decorated and lighted with electric colored lights at the sight of which a big chorus of "Ohs" went up all over the house.

Miss Fafek sang "Star of the East," and at the close of the afternoon the little folks each given a sack of candy, and their mothers were presented with souvenir calendars.

A special Christmas program will be given Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, for which the following exceptionally good numbers have been secured: "Two Little Walls," "Sellsy come"; "The Sanatorium"; and the religious drama, "The Women of Samaria."

MAY-BE-REGENT.

Humored That W. H. Eldridge Is To Receive Appointment From Hawley.

It was rumored on the streets yesterday that W. H. Eldridge was to be appointed by Governor Hawley to be regent of the Albion Normal school.

Mr. Eldridge, when asked if he had received the appointment stated that he had received no notification of such nature from the part of the governor. He stated, however, that he had received a letter from the governor in regard to the matter.

The action of the part of the governor comes as a slight surprise when it is known that the probable recipient of the honor is a Republican. A prominent Democrat stated that it showed that Hawley intended to divorce himself from partisan lines in making appointments.
