DYNAMITER GETS 25 YEARS

Man Who Blaw Up His Residence in Hope of Killing Wife Goes to Prison. San Francisco, Sept. 2.—Charles S. Picard was sentenced this morning by Judge J. Blundie of the superior court to serve twenty-five years in Folsom prison for planting dynamite with intent to kill. He was convicted by a jury Thursday.

Some months ago Picard's wife secured a divorce from him. She was awarded the property at 1929 Fifth street. Frustrated Picard, who was living in the house refused to vacate it on the order of the court and was told that the deputy sheriff and Mrs. Picard's attorney would go there to forcibly put him out of the place.

Picard who is an expert mechanic placed a can containing forty pounds of gunpowder in a room of his home. The powder was set to be fired by the discharge of a pistol, the trigger of which was connected with the knob of the front door. Deputy Sheriff H. K. Kibin and Attorney Harry C. Kibin went to the house on May 28 to carry out the order of the court and eject Picard. Kibin turned the knob of the door and in a moment the powder exploded, throwing Kibin across the room and severely injuring him. The house was wrecked.

Picard defended that he was insane over domestic troubles and that he set the infernal machine, hoping that his wife would be killed. In passing sentence Judge Blundie severely condemned dynamiting and denounced those who resort to this extreme "system of philosophy as a means of vengeance or to right political or social wrongs."

OPERATE GAMBLING HOUSE

Police of Minneapolis Come Across Elaborately Appointed "Joint." Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 2.—A splendid gambling house patroned exclusively by women in the eighth ward of life and operated by a woman has been in operation in Minneapolis for weeks, according to the police. The place was handsomely furnished and luncheon was served. Following complaints of husbands who were trying to locate their wives, a woman operator was summoned to police headquarters. She was allowed her freedom on her promise to suspend operations and the woman gave the promise, the police say.

Floyd George Appeals to Church. London, September 1.—David Lloyd-George, chancellor of the exchequer, while laying the cornerstone of a chapel at Heath yesterday, appealed to the Christian churches to fight the wrong from which the masses are suffering.

There are multitudes in the country, who, notwithstanding grinding toll, do not earn enough to keep body and soul together, he said. There are members of Christian churches who never have missed a penny, yet they become angry when another class of the population makes an effort to ameliorate its condition. "Let them cease reviling and consider the condition under which the poor workers live. If they do so, they will realize the responsibility and remove the cause for unrest, lest the next struggle might prove infinitely worse."

SANCTIONS SEPARATE RESIDENCE

Entryman's Inability to Obtain Water to Fulfill Proof Requirements Evokes Important Opinion.

According to an opinion of the state land board rendered last week, an instance of an entryman who arrives after the completion of the final delivery of irrigation water this season to make final proof on his holdings on the Salmon river at the same time is possible for entryment under these circumstances to fulfill the thirty days' required residence at any time. The board's opinion is that the entryman should be allowed to make final proof on his holdings as soon as water shall be delivered for the next irrigation season.

It will be necessary for the entryman establishing residence on his land now for the purpose of making proof to set forth in the notice for publication which must appear during his period of residence on the land, the date on which he expects to complete final proof, which date will probably be coincident with the beginning of the next season's first water delivery, about May 15th, 1912.

POET EXPLAINS HIS VIEWS

Man Who Broke Friends' Home Gives Ideas on Marriage.

New York, Sept. 2.—Howard Kemp, the hobnob poet from Kansas, who broke up his home last week, today told the story of his love for the first time and also gave his views on marriage, and the like.

"I have been struggling to make my little voice heard but without much success," he said, "when one day about four years ago while I was at the University of Kansas, I had a letter from Sinclair praising me for my efforts."

"That started a correspondence between us and he invited me to visit him at Arden, but it was not until six weeks ago that I found it convenient to come east. Then I beat my way on a cattle train as far as Buffalo and packed my trunk and left for New York."

"From the first it was apparent that the Sinclairs were not in harmony with each other, although each tried to be considerate of the other in every respect."

"Mrs. Sinclair and I were extraordinarily sympathetic—each finding in the other a complement of our own. At least I found in her my perfect ideal. There, you will appreciate I must drop the curtain."

MODERN NOAH BUILDS ARC

Aged Weather Prophet Prepares for Old Time Deluge. Now Haven, Conn., Sept. 2.—Uncle Horace Johnson of Middle Haddam forecast a deluge and the Noah of old is preparing for it. Country folk aware by Uncle Horace's weather predictions. At 89 years he regards Wilkes-Barre and the official forecasters as mere meteorological tyrants. Uncle Horace makes this announcement:

"I have been following refrigerators and substances for the last sixty days to keep comfortable. I have now commenced an ark. It will be needed in the Thanksgiving day. This nothing small about me; I will take you all in."

It is believed that the robbers escaped to the mountainous country to the west. A post of 25 sheriffs and deputies is in pursuit of the fugitives. This is the third robbery on the Shasta line within a few months.

BURNED TO DEATH IN MID AIR

Tragic and Horrible Death Overtakes French Aviator. Troyes, France, Sept. 2.—Lieutenant De Graillier of the Eighth cuirassiers, while making a seroplane flight from this city today was burned to death in midair. The disaster probably was caused by an explosion of the fuel tank, the burning fuel being scattered all over the machine. The blazing aeroplane fell with its pilot at Rigny Nonouais, about 25 miles from this city, and was completely incinerated.

ALL BUT ONE DROWNED

Sad Interruption to Labor-Day-Parade in Ohio. Toledo, O., Sept. 2.—Preparations for the celebration of Labor Day in this city were halted today while citizens lent aid in the search for the bodies of city officers and employees who were drowned early today when a launch was rammed and sunk by the barge Philip Mince, and only one of the eight passengers in the launch escaped by a water gate.

No Gathering of Cardinals.

Rome, Italy, Sept. 2.—Cardinal De Lai, secretary of the consistorial congregation, who was received in audience by the pope yesterday, denies the report that a consistory is imminent. He says the pope is determined not to appoint any cardinals in the year when the celebration of Italian unity and the usurpation of Rome is being held, and he has decided to delay the consistory until the festivities are concluded.

THE WISDOM FROM ABOVE
Daniel 1, 18-20—Sep. 12.
"It is good neither to eat flesh nor to drink wine, nor to marry, whereby thy brother stumbleth."—Romans xiv, 21.

We have noted the cruelty of the plagues, therefore, that we note also certain instances in which they manifested great breadth of generosity and wisdom. Today's study illustrates this. Amongst the captives brought by Nebuchadnezzar from Jerusalem some twenty years before its destruction, were four young men of evidently noble birth and religious training. Daniel, Hananiah, Michael and Azariah. These captives were not maltreated nor enslaved, in the ordinary sense of the term. Their intellectual qualities were discerned and they were put into a superior school that they, with others, might be fitted to constitute a board of wise men, counselors of the king. So different in all this from the apostles, "grain" and "poor" of our day that it seems almost incomprehensible. At the same time the instance was an overruling of Divine providence by which, not merely rebels against God in Israel were suffering to be captured and deported, but some also who were most loyal of heart to the principles of the Divine Law. We may here learn a lesson of how God is able to make even the disaster of life work out blessings for those who are truly loyal to Him, even as Daniel and his companions were blessed and prospered in the enemies' land and advanced to positions far higher than they would ever have attained in their own land.

Advantages of Abstemiousness.
The young Hebrews were attached to the king's household and were provided with extraordinary delicacies, including spirituous liquors. The policy of the king in providing sumptuously for his students was that, being well nourished, they might be in their best physical and mental condition. This lesson shows that it is a mistake to suppose that high living is especially conducive to intellectuality—not to mention spirituality.

From the beginning, under God's providence, the deportment of Daniel brought him into special favor with the prince of the eunuchs, who had in charge the temporalities of these students. There is something in a meek and quiet spirit that is impressive, and as a rule such a spirit comes only from a proper, religious training. To this eunuch Daniel, and his associates through him, appeared to be a diet that, instead of the fine food and liquors provided, they might have a plain, vegetable diet.

The eunuch replied that he would be very glad to comply with the request, only he feared that, when examination time should come, these Hebrews, fed upon the plain fare, would appear to a disadvantage and cause a reflection upon himself and possibly cost the loss of his position. It is indeed the loss of his life. Daniel, however, agreed to a trial of the matter for ten days, agreeing to abide by the results. At the end of this short time, comparison showed that the four young men who practiced abstemiousness were fatter and fatter in flesh than were those who shared the king's bounty; so the diet was continued.

At the end of the period of their preparation, the king communed with the students and among them all was found none like Daniel, Hananiah, Michael and Azariah—and in every matter of wisdom and understanding concerning which the king inquired of them he found them ten times better than all the magicians and enchanters that were in his realm."

The Secret of Daniel's Success.
What was the secret of the wisdom and understanding? Did not the secret lie in the blessing of God and in the fact that these young men sought to devote their lives to the doing of the Divine will—to the doing of righteousness? Thus we see that our hearts and minds can be free from selfish motives, free from fears, free to do the will of God at any cost. Such minds anywhere, at any time, are scarce. Such minds always, be speak wisdom. On the other hand, sensuality, selfishness, the grinding of personal axes, always becloud the judgment.

What we need in at all of today, in every walk of life, is consecrated men of the stamp of Daniel and his companions—whole hearted men—who will give their best for the service of their fellow men—in whatever sphere their lives may be cast. The world has grown wiser (?) since those days. Today a Daniel could not get into such a position of influence; or, if perchance, he did get there, it would be a miracle if he were not removed—such a miracle as has kept Judge Lindsay of Colorado in office for several years in spite of every pressure of high handed politics which has sought to crush him because of his faithfulness to the principles of righteousness.

Dare to Be a Daniel.
Although few of us today can be Daniels or have his high position and wonderful opportunity, and though few are leading spirits as was Daniel, yet all may have the same spirit of devotion to the principles of righteousness, which devotion will be tested under Divine providence, step by step, through the "narrow way," as they seek to maintain a conscience of Him who set us an example—our Daniel, our Leader, our Lord Jesus. Let all, then, who have named the name of Christ depart from iniquity. Let all such be faithful. What is really needed is the Daniel spirit; and that is a possibility with every man and every woman—young or old. "Dare to be a Daniel!" Alas! how few appreciate the privilege, how few are emulating the Daniel spirit!

Christians, throughout this Age, are in a position very similar to that of Daniel. The great King of Glory has them in the School of Christ. He wishes to select a few to be joint-heirs in the Messianic Kingdom, whom it shall be established. The test of examination will come in the end of this Age. Those who shall then be found worthy will be such as have the Daniel spirit of devotion to God and to the principles of righteousness—willingness to lay down their lives in the service of the truth—followers of the footsteps of Jesus. Of course the Lord speaks, saying, "They shall be mine," saith the Lord, in that Day when I make up My Jewels."—Malachi iii, 17.

"Whereby Thy Brother Stumbleth."
Our text gives the thought that in addition to our consideration of what is best for ourselves in the way of food and drink, to enable us to best serve the Lord, we should also have a mind as to the effect of our example upon our neighbors. The more noble our character the better will be our influence upon those who are naturally weaker. Our influence should always be used for the good of others, for the lifting up of the highest possible standards of thought, word and deed. Whatever will assist us in this direction should be considered by us as a command from God and followed to the extent of our ability.

THE ULTIMATE SOLUTION.

It is a matter for congratulation that, following a period of months during which the entire state has been split wide open on the question of tax assessments, the board of equalization has finally found a way to so adjust matters as to virtually guarantee that this year's taxes will not be excessively greater than those of last year.

They need not have been greater in any amount had it not been found necessary to actually raise a greater sum for maintenance than was required last year. In other words, the assessment of property at 40 per cent or 100 per cent of its full value has no direct bearing upon the amount of taxes to be collected. A certain sum is found necessary to carry on the public business of the state, and this sum, neither more nor less, is to be collected. Upon a cash value basis of assessment the ultimate result to the taxpayer is precisely the same as it would have been upon any other basis.

There is, however, another side of the question and one to which the state board of equalization appears to have paid but little attention. This is the constitutional question as to whether or not the fixed levies for tax purposes may legally be disregarded and the laws of the state set at naught at the will of one man. The law calls for the collection of so many mills for school purposes and so many mills for a sinking fund, and the interest on bonds, the rate in each case being so fixed as to yield just about the right amount on a valuation of approximately 40 per cent of cash value.

Now these laws still stand and are just as much laws, until revoked by legislative enactment, as any other constitutional provision or statute included in the revised codes of Idaho. Yet the state board of equalization has seen fit to proceed exactly as if none such existed.

There are one or two fine points involved in the situation, as it now appears, not the least of which is as whether or not these laws can be set aside at will to ameliorate a tangle of this kind, especially when the aforesaid tangle is brought about through the mere whim of an office holder, who, as governor of Idaho, saw a chance to "start something" which might or might not rebound to the advantage of the state.

Certainly congratulations are in order for the comparatively happy outcome, but the people and not Governor Hawley are logically their recipient.

A GREAT OPPORTUNITY.

With the dates of the various eastern land shows, and exhibitions drawing nearer day by day it behooves the farmers of the tract to get busy without further delay and make an effort to secure for this section an adequate share of the prizes and premiums offered for samples of produce of various kinds.

Exhibits by individuals need not necessarily be large and each and all may be shipped straight through to the East free of charge by merely bringing them to the Twin Falls Commercial Club, plainly marked as to contents, together with a simple affidavit as to the area of the land upon which each sample was grown with the computed extent of the crop as to the number of bushels to the acre of the sample sent.

Robert W. Spangler, secretary of the Commercial Club, has made arrangements with the railroads for the shipment free of cost to the sender of every exhibit, which the farmers will appreciate. These will be carefully listed and properly ticketed, and will form a part of the cargo of the special train bearing samples of Idaho products and which will be assembled in Omaha early in October. Care will be made up throughout the various western states and the entire train will be in charge of Reilly Atkinson, secretary of the Boise Commercial Club. From present arrangements the entire cargo of this train will be exhibited at the various shows including Omaha, Chicago, Pittsburgh, New York and St. Paul and it is generally conceded that this is about the best opportunity ever offered to demonstrate to the people of the East just what the lands of Idaho can do. An added advantage lies in the fact that the exhibits will be in competition with those of nearly every other state in the West and for this reason if proper attention is given those sent out from this section the train should prove one of the best advertising mediums for the Twin Falls tract ever devised.

As to the prizes, here are a few of them offered by the American Land and Irrigation exposition at New York. Award of the $1000 prize cup will be made for the best exhibit of one half bushel of marketable potatoes, the yield per acre (officially surveyed) to be sworn to by grower and attested to by two or more reputable witnesses.

Professors Carbet and Carleton, potato and cereal experts of the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., have been appointed judges to make the awards in the potato and grain contests, so that absolute fairness will govern.

Percentage will be based upon the edible quality of the potato, yield per acre, uniformity of size and smoothness; trueness of type and condition of eyes.

No restrictions will be made as to variety.

Silver cup valued at $1000 for the best 100 pounds of white oats grown anywhere in the United States. Quality of grain, yield per acre and chemical composition of grain to be considered in making award.

Silver cup valued at $1500 for the best bushel of barley.

One thousand dollars in gold for the best 100 pounds of hard red spring or winter wheat grown anywhere in the two Americas and a silver cup valued at $1000 for the best wheat grown in America.

Five hundred dollars in gold is offered for the best apples of any variety and innumerable other prizes of a similar character are also offered by the various shows.

The opportunity is one of a life time for the farmers of the West in general and those of the Twin Falls tract in particular.

Entry blanks have been sent for and will be on hand at the News office within a week. These may be had upon application together with any information desired by those who contemplate sending exhibits.

NEW COMPULSORY SCHOOL LAW

Enacted by the Eleventh Session of the Idaho Legislature, 1911.

Section 160, Art. XVII of this act: "In all school districts of this state all parents, guardians, and other persons having care of children shall instruct them, or cause them to be instructed, in reading, writing, spelling, English grammar, geography and arithmetic. In such districts, every parent, guardian, or other person having charge of any child between the ages of eight (8) and eighteen (18) years, shall send such child to a public, private or parochial school for the entire school year during which the public schools are in session in such district; provided, however, that this chapter shall not apply to children over fourteen (14) years of age, where such child shall have completed the eighth (8th) grade, or may be eligible to enter any high school in such district, or where his help is necessary for its own use or for parental support, or where for good cause shown it would be for the best interests of such child to be relieved from the provisions of this chapter; provided, further, that if a reputable physician within the district shall certify in writing that the child's body or mental condition does not permit its attendance at school, such child shall be exempt during such period of disability from the requirements of this chapter. It shall be the duty of the superintendent of the school district, if there be such superintendent, and if not, then the county superintendent of schools, to hear and determine all applications of children desiring, for any of the causes mentioned here, to be exempted from the provisions of this chapter, and if upon such application such superintendent hearing the same shall be of the opinion that such child for any reason is entitled to be exempted as herein provided, then such superintendent shall issue a written permit to such child, stating therein his reasons for such exemption. An appeal may be taken from the decision of such superintendent on passing upon such application, to the probate court of the county in which such district lies, upon such child making application and filing the same with the clerk of judge of said court within ten days after the refusal by such superintendent, for which no fee to exceed the sum of One Dollar ($1.00) shall be charged, and the decision of the probate court shall be final. An application for release from the provisions of this chapter shall not be renewed after the end of three months. The above is published for the information and guidance of the residents of Twin Falls county.

Remedies are Needed

Were we perfect, which we are not, medicines would not often be needed. But since our systems have become weakened, impaired and broken down through indigestions which have gone on from the early age, through countless generations, remedies are needed to aid Nature in correcting our inherited and otherwise acquired weaknesses. To reach the seat of stomach weakness and consequent digestive troubles, there is nothing so good as Dr. Fiero's Golden Medical Discovery, a glycoic compound, extracted from native medicinal roots—sold for over forty years with great satisfaction to all users. For Weak-Stomach, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Pains in the Stomach after eating, Heartburn, Bad Breath, Belching of food, Cholera Diarrhea and other intestinal Derangements, the "Discovery" is a time-proven and most efficient remedy. The genuine has on its outside wrapper the Signature Robbieremo. ## Clean Wheat--Clean Flour

Every pound of grain used in our mill is CLEAN, absolutely so. Before being ground it is put through a series of separators and scourers, machines that scour and polish the outside of the berry until it would seem that surely all the dirt was removed. But even then the wheat is a long way from being clean, although it may appear so to the naked eye, so we finish the process with a wheat washer, and you would be surprised if you could see the dirt that is removed in this way. The machine used for this purpose requires thirty gallons of water for every bushel of wheat. Do you wonder that the wheat is then clean? And, by the way, we have the only wheat washer in Southern Idaho.

Crocker-Blountborough Nuptials

One of the prettiest weddings of the season was that of Miss Beatrice Crocker, only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George Crocker, and Mr. Norman Blount Blountborough of Harris, Illinois, which was solemnized on Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the handsome new residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Grant on Lakes boulevard. Rev. John Ouellet officiating. The guests were received at the door by the little daughter of the house, Margaret Grant, clad in a dainty white frock.

The spacious living room, where the ceremony was performed, was a bower of pink autumn flowers, relieved by a profusion of ferns and aspidistra. The bride and groom stood at one end of the room and which was banked to the ceiling with smilax, an improvised altar was formed of ferns and sweet peas. The bridal party stood beneath an elegant trolley formed of white bells, the lights softly shaded with pink.

Shortly before the ceremony Miss Blount sang the "Song of the Heart" and "The Wedding Morn," accompanied by Mrs. Gilbert. As the last notes of the song died away, Mrs. Gilbert began the wedding march, at which the ribbon bearers appeared carrying ropes of fern and sweet peas with which they formed an aisle. Next came the page, Miss Arthur Jacob Peavey, Jr., bearing the ring on a pink and white lily-like pillow. He was followed by Rev. Ouellet, and a moment later by Dr. Franklin McLean of Chicago, the best man, who joined the groom at the head of the aisle. Next advanced up the aisle the maid of honor, Miss Dorothy West, gown in Parisian mauve over pink messaline and bearing a huge shower bouquet of pink sweet peas and smilax. Last of all came the beautiful bride on the arm of her father, wearing an exquisite gown of white crepe motor over duchesse satin, trimmed with pearls and princess lace, her long veil, reaching to the end of the court train, was caught with an ornament of pearls and she carried an immense shower bouquet of white sweet peas and ferns falling in graceful spray to the floor.

Former Pupils Present

The ribbon bearers, all of whom were former pupils of Miss Crocker in the junior and senior classes of the high school, wore Misses Vesta Thomas, Margaret Conley, Margaret Conway, Fern Costello, Mary Milner, Ruth Stafford, Margaret Wilson, Leah Williams, Bessie Henstock and Mrs. Kirk Boyd. The bridesmaids wore alternately in pink and white, with ribbon gilets to match. After the ceremony the bride and groom received the congratulations of their friends. In the dining room the same color scheme of pink and white was oberved. A large white wedding veil was suspended over the table, from which long ropes of smilax were draped to the four corners of the table. The bride and groom were seated at the center-piece was an immense wedding cake lavishly decorated with sweet peas and ferns. A buffet supper was served by the bride.

The out of town guests were Mrs. John H. Crocker of Maroa, Illinois, grandmother of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Miller, Maroa, Illinois; Dr. Franklin McLean, Chicago, Illinois; Miss Grace Faucher, Boise, Idaho; Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Baker and Mrs. Anna Miller, Idaho; Mr. Wilbur, Oakley, Idaho and Miss Turner, Cleveland, Ohio. The others present were Messrs. and Mesdames M. J. Messrs. McCauley, Cummings, Skeels, Bennett, Elliot, Wm. McCauley, Younger, Sinema, Battolph and Taylor.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful gifts of China, silver and cut glass. Mr. and Mrs. Blountborough left on the evening train for Salt Lake, Denver and Colorado Springs enroute for Maroa, Illinois, where they will make their future home.

Luncheon for Guest

The decorations were beautiful and unique and in keeping with the harvest festival theme, wheat forming a frieze and a beautiful arch, which separated the living and dining rooms, and also decorating the dining hall painted lily cards, and the exquisite china cream and sugar set and plate which was awarded to Mrs. A. P. Senior and Mrs. Ernest White for first and second scores, respectively. The pretty mint cases were miniature shavers of the same golden grain.

Party at Shoshone Falls

One of the most delightful affairs of the week was the luncheon enjoyed by several friends of Mrs. Robert W. Spangler on last Friday at the Shoshone Falls hotel. Not the least enjoyable feature was the ride in the hotel bus, past fragrant clover fields and fruit laden orchards, down the picturesque canyon road to the falls. The table was tastefully arranged in accordance with the natural surroundings, a huge bowl of glowing sunflowers gracing the center and tiny yellow cups holding the nuts. Covers were laid for Mesdames B. D. Tippett, G. W. Kenneth, O. M. Elliott, H. J. Wall, L. B. Owens, K. H. Dixon, W. H. Graham, P. H. Smith and Mrs. G. G. Treat of New York.

CLUBS

Lobster Club Again Meets

Mrs. E. J. Ostrander entertained the members of the Lobster club on last Friday evening. The Lobster club is a new organization which derives its name from an amusing coincidence. The four feminine members were in the habit of meeting together to enjoy a game of bridge in the afternoon, and it became the custom to invite the husbands either to luncheon or dinner upon these occasions. Lobster being a favorite dish of each of the hostesses it appeared in some form or other in every menu, which led to the organization of the four couples under the name of the Lobster club. The members are Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Ostrander, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Moran, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Falling and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Robbins.

Additions to Emerson Club

Three new members were added to the Emerson club at its last meeting swelling the membership to twelve. The novitiates are Mrs. R. J. Ostrander, Mrs. K. H. Dixon and Mrs. O. M. Elliott. A business meeting of the club will be held tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. M. Seavers, when plans for reorganizing into a study class to meet in the evenings will be taken under advisement.

THE CONWAY 60-ACRE ORCHARD—MODEL IN HORTICULTURE

The Owner of the Largest Individual Orchard on the Tract Tells the Story of How It Achieved Success

FOR several weeks past, the Conway sixty acre orchard, which is situated three and one-half miles to the southwest of town, has been contemplated as the subject for one of the series of stories of success made land yet leaving the rows but 30 feet apart. In the case of very compact upright growers such as the Wagener 35 feet apart by the same system is the proper distance.

crop of apples as soon as possible, and have the fruit so distributed on the body limbs and lower limbs of the tree, that will stand a light but gradual increase in the number of apples per tree each year, without injury to the tree or the next year's crop of apples. As a result of this careful pruning every tree which bore a few apples last year has an increased number on it this year, and there are but very few trees in the whole orchard which have not a few apples this season, the fourth year after planting.

The photograph of the Jonathan shows that a tree of that variety, planted at two years old, properly pruned and cared for, may produce a few apples the second year after planting, and yield slightly and increasingly from that time on, without injury to the tree, as it will be noticed that the distribution of the fruit on the limbs is such that no limbs are bent out of shape or broken, and the tree contains upward of fifty apples, and is full of fruit spurs for next year's crop. The fruit on the trees in the accompanying cut was thinned out in the spring the same as all the rest of the trees in the orchard. It may also be noticed in the individual tree pictures that in starting the frame work of the tree it was pruned in such a manner, that the main limbs come out from the body of the tree at different heights from the ground, thus avoiding the danger of the branches splitting off yet the limbs all stand close enough to the ground to admit of easy access for pruning, spraying, thinning and picking; also that the trees have been sufficiently pruned to cause the body of the tree to become stocky enough to support the amount of top that is left on, and the main limbs heavy enough to bear the weight of the apples without bending.

Experience here as well as elsewhere has proven to me the value of constant cultivation. I have practiced this method continually, except while the trees are in bloom, for the past four years and ascribe by success largely to the fact that since planting the orchard four years ago next spring, it has never been irrigated more than once a year. Even last year which was so extremely dry, the orchard was only watered once, but has been cultivated from five to ten times each year, last season and this going over the ground thoroughly ten times with the cultivator, disk and harrow, using mostly an extenon the Twin Falls tract. Personal inspection of many orchards tends to the belief that it would be almost impossible to find a more desirable location, or a better arranged or better kept orchard tract.

able location, proper choosing of varieties adapted to this locality, the setting of the trees, irrigating, pruning, spraying, cultivation, and finally the production of a crop of well developed, highly colored apples, without pest of blightish, mark Mr. Conway as a practical and successful horticulturist.

The land was purchased from the Twin Falls Land and Water company, in February, 1905, with the express purpose of planting a large apple orchard, so it has been developed from the sage brush to a bearing orchard by the present owner.

The record made of raising all but three out of twenty-one hundred and sixty trees to a bearing age, speaks well for the grower and the country.

The orchard covers sixty acres and contains three thousand apple trees. It was the sole aim of the owner from the start to develop a productive orchard for commercial purposes and to build thereon a permanent home, and he says the orchard is not for sale.

Mr. Conway had some experience as an orchardist in the east when a boy, but has been in business in the west for twenty-seven years, following "shipments" and "trades." For seven years he had charge of the horticultural department of county and state fairs, having won for his county the first prize at the Idaho state fairs at Lewiston, Idaho, four years out of five. Being a business man he has applied business methods to his orchard management, and will this year have several hundred boxes of apples to market. His methods of orcharding can best be told in his own words which are as substantial as follows:

detritment of the forming of fruit buds, and I have known of Jonathans being over pruned, which made phenomenal growth of wood but the bearing age was put off to the tenth year. However, as pruning is so vitally necessary, if I had the choice between two evils I would prefer the man who over prunes, to the one who acts as a sponge holding up or drawing up the moisture from the lower depths to the surface roots of the trees, and the cloudy surface shades the ground from baking and cracking, which would allow the moisture to evaporate from below.

The way the rows are laid out they can be cultivated in four different directions crossing each time the way they were gone over before, and not going over the same way twice, thus cultivating up to the tree within less than a foot on all sides. In the last cultivation of the season, which is about the middle of August, the corrugators are put on the machine, which throws deep ridges, thus leaving a ground rough as possible for winter, and which allows the snow, instead of blowing over a smooth surface, to hold and fill those ditches which hold it until it is gradually absorbed by the ground and is ready to be refilled by another snow.

Cultivation is begun as early in the spring as the ground is dry enough to hold up the hogan.

I came to the Twin Falls tract in search of a suitable location for apple culture on a large scale, after careful examination of conditions in the Grand Junction valley in Colorado, the Lewiston valley in Idaho, and the Bitter Root valley in Montana. After my investigation here, I at once decided that I had found the right place at last, and my opinion in this direction has been strengthened year by year.

This tract has not been troubled with pests to the injury of the fruit, but nevertheless judging from experience elsewhere I believe spraying is a necessary as a precautionary measure. My trees are sprayed in the winter or spring with a lime sulphur solution before the leaves appear, and the trees are all clean, vigorous, and healthy.

Besides the three thousand apple trees there are five thousand forest fir and spruce trees on the place, twelve hundred black walnut trees grown from the seed, planted where they stand, surrounding the orchard along the fence row, and from six to ten feet high. Inside of this is a row of Carolina poplars, basswood and catalpa trees planted alternately, many of which are twenty-five feet high. A mulberry grove of two hundred was planted to attract the birds from the other fruit and is now bearing the catalpa forest of three thousand trees planted four feet apart each way has made a growth this year of upwards of six feet. They are of the hardy catalpa variety which is grown by the railroad companies for telegraph poles, and at the present rate of growth will soon make splendid posts and wood.

CHAPTER X.

KEVIN did not laugh outright, but he came near it. "You have tried that, haven't you?" he ventured.

"Only in a minor degree," declared Breed, "but found no trouble about it."

"No," admitted Phillip, "you had no trouble about it. When your agents found they could not influence certain papers they took others, and they took the easiest ones and the ones least worth while. Remember that the majority stockholders of practically every one of those concerns are the public. In order to reach them you must completely control almost every paper in the land, and even you have not enough money. You cannot subsidize the press of the United States. Count that final."

Breed nodded. He remembered one or two disastrous experiments during his early operations. "What, then, do you propose?" he asked. "From your attitude you evidently have in mind a plan of action."

"I am not quite ready to lay it before you," replied Phillip. "It still requires some figuring."

Breed frowned. "Don't get too high handed, young man," he warned. "Remember that, after all, I am providing the weight which gives our plans momentum."

"Mr. Breed," said Phillip, rising, "any time you object to my methods tell me to go, and I will not require your private militia to put me out of the grounds. I was worth two and a half million dollars when I came to you, and this you cannot take from me. I am here with you, however, because I want to use the enormous power of your money for purposes of my own. Aside from that purpose, which are not a matter of life and death to me, I assure you, I don't need you or your money."

Breed looked at him a moment, then lay back in his chair and rubbed his hands together and chuckled until he threw him into a fit of coughing. "Go ahead, my boy, and see who gets the most out of it. I wouldn't part with you for anything. This two million and a half of yours, by the way, is it in cash?"

"No," replied Phillip. "It is a highly profitable oil, coal and iron lands, into the extension of which my profits are going as fast as I am making them. I hypothesized them in order to get in on our Stock Exchange deal, but immediately renounced that idea, because as soon as the deal was concluded, so far as the cash is concerned, I would rather you should have it than I; it has so much more weight when thrown into one pile."

Again Henry Breed lay back and chuckled, and he followed Phillip out of the room with extremely friendly eyes.

Mrs. Rensselaer, always drowsy after a meal and always fighting off the drowsiness for reasons not entirely unconnected with ambivalence, sat upon the balcony outside her own apartments after the early dinner customary at Forest Lakes. Young Rensselaer and Elsie White came strolling toward the back of the house, talking quite earnestly, and struck out into the southwest road of Mrs. Rensselaer's. It was perfectly disgraceful of Herbert so far to forget his station in life.

From the front porch Phillip and Lillian stopped and stood up by the northwest path, Lillian clinging to Phillip's arm and chattering volubly, often excitedly. Mrs. Rensselaer, estimable lady, arose at once.

"How indiscreet!" she murmured. "I must see that the dear child is instantly chaperoned."

She went quickly down the stairs, and at a turn in the road she saw them under the dim avenue of trees just ahead of her.

Even as she looked she saw Lillian suddenly turn and throw her arms about Phillip. For a moment she stopped to gasp and then hurried on with an intention born of fear. What had really happened that Lillian had attacked Phillip?

"Instantly!" she murmured. "I must see that the dear child is instantly chaperoned."

"How indiscreet!" she murmured. "I must see that the dear child is instantly chaperoned."

"How indiscreet!" she murmured. "I must see that the dear child is instantly chaperoned."

"How indiscreet!" she murmured. "I must see that the dear child is instantly chaperoned."

strong, ink hands clutched Phillip by the shoulders, and a pair of eyes, phosphorescent in the dimness, like a cat's, blazed into his.

"Let her alone!" blazed the voice of Blagg. "You don't care for her. Let her alone!"

"Take your hands from my shoulder!" commanded Phillip firmly.

"Let her alone, I say!" repeated Blagg fiercely.

"I'll give you just one more second of warning," cautioned Phillip, drawing up his arms and clenching his fists.

Neither one had time for parley, however, for a huge black shape hurled itself upon Blagg like a whirlwind, huge black fingers seized him by the throat, and a huge black body bore him to the ground.

Kevin sprang forward in flight.

"Sam!" he cried. "Sam, Sam, Sam!" in desperation to save Blagg's life Phillip halted back and gave the negro a resounding kick in the side. With a loud aspirated "Robb!" Sam suddenly relaxed, but still his heavy body hung poised over that of Blagg, with his weight on the man's throat.

Now, however, it was no longer for Kevin, stooping down, to topple Sam over.

Phillip bent over Blagg and loosened his collar and was fanning him.

"Sam," said he sharply, "there is a spring down there in the ravine. Hurry and get some water in the great jar."

"Ah hope Ah ain't gone gone Ah done no damage to 'em, Mistah Phillip," said Sam contently.

"Hurry and get that water," ordered Phillip. "Remember, Sam, next time to give me a chance to handle my own difficulties."

"Yes, sah," said Sam as he plunged over the bank.

He brought water, but it took some time to revive Blagg. When he rose to his feet there was a little trickle of blood running from the corner of his mouth, and Phillip offered him a handkerchief.

"Never mind," said Blagg, waving it away. "He was just himself and treated my assistance. He started toward the house, wiping his lips with his own handkerchief and feeling his neck. He staggered for a few paces, then squared his shoulders and walked sturdily away."

Phillip, having seen Hollins safely off, walked into Breed's study contentedly the next morning. "It is going to cost you something to get those proxies. I can't tell you how to subsidize the newspapers, but I know how to subsidize the public," said Phillip, "and here are the figures."

Breed glanced at it and elevated his eyebrows; then he whistled. "This is going to cost an enormous amount of money," he declared.

"It would seem so at first," admitted Phillip, "but here are the figures," and he handed Breed another sheet of paper.

Breed studied this latter long and earnestly; then he rose and gave Kevin his hand. "Young man," he exclaimed, "you have had only blessed me with a son or a grandson like you?"

"It is a pity that your granddaughter was not born a boy," suggested Phillip.

Breed shook his head and sighed. "It is a gift that ship was not," he replied. "That is the only family luck for which I have to be thankful. No human being susceptible to emotion or sentiment can ever rise to great achievement."

Phillip colored slightly, and Breed's sharp eyes caught the flush. He raised a warning finger.

"Remember, young man," said he, "that it is in youth these things must be fought. Were it not for that old age would have no chance in this world for reform. In the meantime, go ahead with your scheme of subsidy. At what time does your plan include making the attempt for proxies?"

"Within two weeks," replied Kevin. "If you will excuse me I will put this on the wire at once."

"Possibly," agreed Phillip dryly. "In the meantime you might get the message away."

For the ensuing month there was a new order of things. Phillip had never sought Lillian, but now was availed her persistently. The propaganda he had put forth soon began to bear fruit. Breed would not say how well pleased he was with the outcome as a step toward his New Jersey office, but secretly he was delighted, and daily he went down into the vault and gloated over the money that was there.

Meanwhile Phillip delved into trash canals, covering wider and still wider areas of which Breed knew nothing, and Blagg practiced upon his combination lock.

The name of Breed was now upon every lip. It had always been, for that matter, but in terms of exertion. Now that sentiment was tempered. There were thousands of columns of editorials printed about him and his great philanthropic movement. Phillip's plan had been very simple. It was merely the issuance to the newspapers of this proclamation:

"Beginning tomorrow, the price of bread, of the same weight and quality as heretofore will be reduced throughout the United States from 5 to 1 cent a loaf. This price will continue until a committee, to be selected by the public in systematic manner from my books and records the actual cost of bread delivered to the consumer. Immediately upon that investigation bread will be provided at actual cost. I have made my fortune and desire no more. From this day on my bread factories shall be run in the interest of the public alone."

HENRY BREED.

There it was—bread at cost! It was the most tremendous sensation that had ever been given space in the papers since Breed had completed his consolidation of all the cereal food industries in the United States. No argument could hold against that. It was an argument which was additionally clinched every time a man bought six loaves of bread for a quarter and received a penny in change.

At exactly the psychological moment Phillip launched his campaign for the control of railroad stocks, and for thirty days thereafter waged the great battle of the proxies, a battle no less bitter because silent, no less ferocious because unseen, no less relentless because there was no bloodshed.

THE KEY OF KNOWLEDGE.

Things You Ought to Know—Especially Why God Has Permitted Evil.

Every Christian Bible Student SHOULD KNOW the satisfactory proofs that the Bible is a Divine Revelation—reasonable and trustworthy—presenting a Plan which is systematic, full of Justice, Wisdom and Love.

The Key of Knowledge of the Scriptures, long lost (Luke 11:32), is found, and gives God's faithful people access to the "Hidden Mystery" (Col. 1:26).

YOU SHOULD KNOW that the Kingdom is to come and God's will be done at the Second Advent.

YOU SHOULD KNOW that God's Plan is to select and save the Church in the Gospel Age, and to use this Church in blessing the world during the Mediatorial reign on earth.

YOU SHOULD KNOW that a "ransom for all" implies an opportunity for Restoration to all.

YOU SHOULD KNOW that the Day of Judgment is 1,000 years long—the world's Trial Day.

YOU SHOULD KNOW that the Spiritual and Human natures are separate and distinct.

YOU SHOULD KNOW that the "Warfare" of self-sacrifice will cease with this age.

YOU SHOULD KNOW that the "Highway of Righteousness" without suffering will be open to all of the redeemed race during the Messianic reign on earth.

YOU SHOULD KNOW that the Kingdoms of This World are but for an ordained period and must then give place to the "Kingdom of Heaven"—"The Kingdom Come."

Especially YOU OUGHT TO KNOW why God has permitted evil for six thousand years, and the relationship of God's people to this reign of sin and death and to the results.

These subjects and many others of deep interest to all of God's people are discussed fully and in language easy of comprehension in "THE DIVINE PLAN OF THE AGES."
