IDAHO BAPTIST STATE CONVENTION

REVEREND DOCTOR HINSON'S SERMON

In his address to the Baptists in convention Tuesday night, Dr. W. B. Hinson of Portland, one of the principal speakers of the meeting, took his text from John "In the garden there was a grave."

"In the first place," he said, "there is a grave in every garden and the heart knoweth its own abundance. As Longfellow says in his Psalm of Life:

Time is long and time is fleeting,
And our hearts, though strong and brave,
Still like muffled drums are beating
Funeral marches to the grave.
"It is true that the grave may be hidden from the outside world, but never from the man who holds within his heart his sorrow and does not wear it upon his sleeve. But depend upon it if it is always there. If a man desires to keep the grave a secret, respect his concealment. If, on the other hand, he mentions it, deal with the fact sanely and not with sickly sentimentality.

"In the second place every grave has its garden. Here also the prophets are in evidence for do we not say:

The darkest hour is just before dawn,
And the darkest day lived till tomorrow
Will have passed away.
Be the day dreary or be the day long
At last it ringeth to evening song.
"The quaker poet declares that of all sad words of tongue or pen the saddest of these, 'It might have been.

"But in the same poem, realizing that in the grave there is a garden, he continues:

Ah well, for us all some sweet hope lies
Safely hidden from mortal eyes,
And in the hereafter the angels may
From the tomb roll the stone away.

"In the third place there is a garden in which is no grave. Not to be found, however, on the pilgrimage journey where the mirage makes its home and the desert sand is ever evidence.

Not here, not here, not where the sparkling water

ANNUAL REPORT OF STATE BOARD

The board has faithfully tried to wisely administer the important matters committed to its oversight. Regular board meetings have been held each quarter and occasional meetings have been held by the executive committee of the board. Frequently various members of the board have been personally consulted and advised with by the state superintendent concerning important affairs which have needed immediate attention.

Harmony in Church Relations.
During the past year we have had more pastors at work than in any previous year of history and our churches have been unusually well supplied with devoted, energetic and efficient men. At this time all fields have men settled on them or arrangements perfected for men to settle, with the exception of three. We are delighted to report also that, with one or two exceptions, the most harmonious and agreeable relationship obtained between churches and pastors and conditions seem favorable in many cases for long pastorates.

A Year's Growth.
Our denomination is steadily forging ahead in Idaho. Every year marks growth and advancement. We are maintaining and developing the work already started and at the same time constantly entering new fields and starting new work.

Four new churches have been organized during the year, at the following important places: Letts, on the Payette Valley railway, between Emmett and New Plymouth; Hanna, on what is called the Emmett Branch; Pleasant View, six miles from Twin Falls and McCammon, 23 miles east of Pocatello.

One of the largest, most attractive and best equipped Baptist churches in the state was built at Caldwell during the year. The value of the house and lot is placed at $20,000. The erection of this splendid structure marks a decided forward step for our denomination in Caldwell. A new meeting house has been built at Mt. Pleasant in the Welser valley. This

CONVENTION WELL ATTENDED

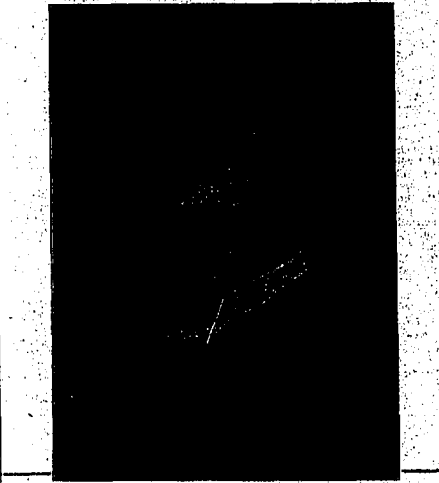

With delegates on hand from almost every section of the state and enthusiasm in the cause running high, the Idaho state Baptist convention opened in Twin Falls Wednesday for a three day session which promises to be one of the most important religious gatherings of the kind ever held in Idaho.

Every church of the denomination in the state is entitled to send its pastor and two delegates with an additional delegate for every 25 members of its congregation in excess of its first 50 members and from all indications a large majority of these are represented.

In addition to the delegates, many visitors from the various churches are on hand to take part in the deliberations of the convention and to listen to the various addresses, reports and discussions.

All sessions are being held in the Baptist church where special arrangements have been made for the comfort and convenience of the visitors. Check room, rest room and writing materials are on hand and a number of social features, including a trip to Shebena Falls have been provided for by the local church.

A number of prominent ministers are on hand from points outside the state and all the sessions, which are open to the public, are being well attended.

Judge F. S. Dietrich of Boise, President Idaho Baptist Convention.

LEAGUE CONFERENCE IN CITY

Secretary Coker of Pocatello and Secretary Spangler meet.

H. C. Coker, secretary of the Pocatello Commercial club was in Twin Falls last week in conference with Secretary Robert M. Spangler of the Twin Falls Commercial club, arranging a program for the annual meeting of the League of Southern Idaho Commercial clubs. It was decided to hold the meeting at Nampa, January 11, 12 and 13. Among the speakers, who will address this meeting will be Governor Norris of Montana, Tom Richardson and C. O. Chapman of Portland, Joy H. Johnson, president of the Salt Lake Commercial club, E. J. Ostrander, president of the Twin Falls Commercial club, former Governor James H. Brady and others.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Rogan are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Rogan of Aberdeen, South Dakota. The visitors expect to remain some little time, as the two gentlemen are brothers, and it is some time since they have met.

Rev. C. A. Woody, D. D. of Portland.

Dr. W. B. Hinson of Portland.

Fades into mocking sand as we draw near.
Wherein the wilderness our footsteps fall.
We shall be satisfied, but oh, not here.

Under the sun is there found enjoyment. Ever we want the next bit of land adjacent to that we own. Ever is the mind disturbed by anticipation. God has fashioned the soul on lines so colossal that it can never find its satisfaction in possessions or in achievements for God has said to the soul of man 'Onward and that forever.'

"But in the hereafter the land beyond this blooms the garden in which is no grave. For no chilling wind or poisonous breath can reach that bliss abode."
Concluding the speaker said "There is a grave in which grows no garden. Rarely is it met with down here for time has healing powers; the years bring us relief and nature is a tender ministrant full of consolation and cheer. But the scripture declares there is a land where no flower blooms where all is hopelessness and bitter loss."

It was a strong plea for a better life—better through the hearing of divine warnings—that Doctor W. B. Hinson made to his hearers in his address before the Baptist state convention. Doctor Hinson took for his text, Jeremiah 22:19—"He Shall Be Buried with the Burial of An Ass," which was spoken of Jehoiakim, and in the most forceful manner used this example that failure to heed divine warnings since the beginning of time has proven the downfall of even the mighty.

Doctor Hinson said in part:
And God said it of a king whose

RUSSIAN PREMIER DIES OF WOUNDS

CASE COMPLICATED BY PERITONITIS CAUSE OF DEATH

Stolypin Conscious Until the Last—Surrounded by Relatives and State Officials the End Comes Peacefully, but Was Preceded by Suffering.

Kiev, Sept. 15.—The Russian premier, Peter A. Stolypin, died today from the bitter wounds of an assassin during a gala performance at the municipal theatre Tuesday evening. The official time of his death was announced at 10:15 p. m. (The New York Times.) Almost until the last Premier Stolypin was conscious and for half an hour during his early part of the evening his wife alone was at his bedside.

Toward the end Stolypin suffered greatly. Finally the heart action became weaker and as the body grew cold, the premier realized that death was overtaking him. At a lucid interval a priest administered extreme unction.

He died peacefully surrounded by several of his relatives and state officials.

ENTOMBED IN COLORADO MINE

Rescue Party Held at Work and Buried Man May Be Saved

LEADVILLE, COLO., Sept. 15.—A hole carved on wood in the Finnish tongue, used to the hoist cable in the Morning Star mine, brought information to the surface late this afternoon that three Finnish miners were entombed 350 feet below by a caving of the shaft. The collapse of the shaft happened about 10 o'clock this morning, but those above did not know it until in response to the ringing of the signal bell the engineer started the hoisting machinery. Attached to the end of the broken cable, when it reached the mouth of the shaft, was discovered the note scrawled in the foreign tongue.

Immediately a force of miners set about establishing a pipe line communication to the imprisoned men so that air and provisions might be conveyed to them. Tonight rapping from below signalled those at the surface that the entombed men were alive. It is believed that they will be rescued without mishap.

LYNCHING IS LOOKED FOR

North Carolina Negro Held for Horrible Crime and Feeling Running High.

Waxton, N. C., Sept. 17.—Lynching is threatened tonight for George Marshall, a negro who late yesterday shot and killed Mrs. Joe Choplin, the wife of a farmer at Vicksburg, 14 miles from here, killed her father, who attempted to rescue his daughter, and later shot the sheriff and two members of his party.

Marshall barricaded himself in a house after the crime. The sheriff, with two of his posse, surrounded the place, and the negro succeeded in shooting the three men.

The house was watched all night and early today the negro's father by a posse entered it and with other negroes overpowered the criminal and admitted the posse. The posse bound Marshall and brought him to the jail here.

News of the crime spread rapidly and tonight the residents of Waxton and Vance counties are thoroughly aroused. It is reported that a mob will attempt to break into the jail tonight and lynch Marshall. The officers are preparing to prevent a lynching.

LOWER RATES ON IDAHO WOOL

Newly Elected President of Warehouse Bring Good News

BOISE, Sept. 17.—Idaho will secure a reduction of one-half to three-quarters of a cent on freight rates on wool as the result of the rate hearing in Chicago, and at the annual wool shipment from the state runs close to 20,000,000 pounds, this will mean a saving in freight each year to the men of the state of from $100,000 to $150,000.

This is the good news that Fred W. Gooding brought from Chicago on his arrival in Boise Sunday. Senator Gooding stopped at his home in Shoshone for two days before coming on to the capital. He will return home in a day or two and prepare to leave for Chicago again in a week to take up his duties as president of the wool warehouse association.

"Your fellows," he said, "were off in saying that there was a fight over the election down there. There was no fight at all. Everything passed off harmoniously and I was elected unanimously."

This was the modest way the senator had of telling of his victory. Every other sheep man in the state knew of the extent of the opposition, and they are free to say that it was only the overwhelming backing of the Idaho man that forced the opposition from the field and brought about the unanimous election of Gooding.

LEWISTON BANKER FOUND NOT GUILTY

F. W. KETTENSBOUGH RETURNS TO HIS HOME A FREE MAN

Complete Acquittal of the Charge of Falsifying a Report with Intent to Deceive Comptroller—District Attorney Said to Have Made Promise.

BOISE, Sept. 17.—Speculation was rife yesterday, following the acquittal of Frank W. Kettensboough, former president of the Lewiston National bank, on charge of falsifying a report with intent to deceive the comptroller for whether Clarence W. Robnett, who was also indicted in connection with the disclosures resulting from an 18 months' examination of that institution, would be brought to trial by Periton Gordon, assistant to the United States attorney general, and Fletcher Dobyns of Chicago, special prosecutor engaged in these cases. Rumor had it that Robnett will not be prosecuted for his part in the affair, and it is said that Gordon granted Robnett immunity on condition that he "come through" against "my" and Frank Kettensboough, "the big ups," against whom the operations of Gordon have been from the first directed.

A significant incident in this connection occurred in the recent trial, when Fletcher Dobyns introduced a telegraphic subpoena, which he claimed had been sent for service to the sheriff in Seattle, to serve on John E. Chapman, supposed to have been in that city at the time. Judge Dietrich admitted this subpoena, after objection by James E. Barb, counsel for the defense, who charged that the prosecution had not shown due diligence in trying to find and produce Chapman. "We want him here to testify, too, and I'm willing to continue this case and give the government another opportunity to get him here," said Mr. Barb. But Dobyns let the threat pass in silence.

Fire at Goldfield

GOLDFIELD, Nev., Sept. 17.—Fire originating in a tailor shop burned a half dozen down town buildings here today and threatened the entire business section. Among the buildings gutted was the Turf saloon, an old time headquarters of mining stock promoters. This is the second fire within a week the origin of which is not well explained. Following an investigation the police arrested Frank Pets, proprietor of the tailor shop.

Jess Draper and Robert Locks of Kimberly were trying their luck duck shooting last Sunday on Lake Linden.

J. W. Hardin and family motored out from Kimberly Sunday to view the new Mrs. Stansell and Mr. Hilton.

P. Jensen and wife of Murtaugh were at the flowing wells Sunday and took home a load of fruit from the Bower orchards.

Stansell and Workman have finished the deep well for Roy Perry. The well is 200 feet deep and has 40 feet of water in it. They will put on a pump and test the strength of the water supply before moving the rig.

Argon Strong is still doing jury duty at Albion, but is expected home this week.

The Saturday evening dance was a complete success and all enjoyed the new Mrs. Stansell and Mr. Hilton furnished the music.

J. W. Collister and C. R. McEwers of Murtaugh passed through here Monday enroute to Twin Falls with two loads of fruit for market.

H. E. Pickett and J. I. Talman of Murtaugh were transacting business here Monday. They each own a tract here. Mr. Pickett expects to put his in shape for crop next year, while the latter has his tract already under cultivation.

J. E. and Jim Bower were in the Magic City Monday on business.

W. D. Gass, E. D. Hunt and T. Jones are in the hills this week getting out wood.

While the ducks are not very plentiful on Lake Linden yet, the sportsmen are making regular visits to that resort and a few unlucky ducks have been bagged.

T. B. Drury of Oakley passed through here Sunday for Murtaugh with a load of fruit. While here he visited at the Lee and Beers homes, brothers-in-law of Mr. Drury.

WELCOME TO TWIN FALLS. Twin Falls this week has upon its hands the task of entertaining the delegates to the Idaho Baptist state convention to be held here September 19 to 22.

The selection of Twin Falls as the convention city is gratifying to the residents and it is to be hoped that it will prove of equal gratification to the delegates.

Those in charge of the preparations for the convention have spared no pains in arranging for the comfort and convenience of the visitors and a hearty welcome is assured to all at the hands of both the local Baptists and the citizens generally.

SECRETARY FISHER'S VISIT. The visit to the west of Secretary Fisher of the department of the interior should be productive of good results.

To those who are looking for an exponent of the old time Pinchot line of reasoning the utterances of Mr. Fisher here proved a veritable revelation. In all he said, and there is every reason to believe that he meant every line of it, there is not one single reference to the rockribbed, selfish and utterly impracticable views of the former forester of the United States.

Without actually implying an entirely erroneous line of reasoning on the part of those having in charge the public land policies of the nation, Mr. Fisher frankly states that, as he sees it, the present legal machinery, having to do with the settlement of the west is out of kilter. The changing of the present laws and the enactment of new statutes, looking to the relief of the settler on government land, is virtually promised by the secretary.

The withdrawal on one pretext or another of whole hundreds of townships throughout Idaho also came to him for a share of condemnation. During his stay in Idaho, it was pointed out to him that in many instances large tracts had been withdrawn because of alleged coal deposits where there was not one iota of evidence that coal or any other mineral existed either near the surface or at depth or, in fact, within miles of the area withdrawn. Up and down the various rivers and streams of the state further large areas are exempt from entry on account of a mythical value as power sites, when the plain common sense truth of the matter is that these have not the slightest value, either present or future, as power sites or any other kind of sites, except sites for comfortable ranch houses, surrounded by fields of waving grain, luxuriant orchards and well filled barns.

Secretary Fisher betrayed an intimate knowledge of the needs of the residents of Idaho, both on the land and in the cities, a knowledge which, in the opinion of many, is more extensive than that of any other government official who ever visited Idaho. At any rate, it is safe to assume that Secretary Fisher struck a popular chord in the discussion of conservation in Idaho and if he lives up to his views, the state will be the gain-er in more ways than one.

ers, who seek to develop the spiritual along with the intellectual and physical. The buildings of the college are located in a campus of forty acres. The present main building was erected in 1882, at a cost of some $28,000. It has four stories and contains 32 rooms. The gymnasium and observatory were erected in 1894 and 1895. The music hall was built in 1908. There are in the hands of the finance committee various permanent funds, amounting to $59,128.73, of which $16,000 constitutes the endowment fund. A conservative estimate places the valuation of the total assets at $135,000. The excellent facilities of the college the last four years have averaged 217. In 1908 it was known as the Baptist college of Oregon. Today it has far more widely known as the Baptist college of the northwest. The Baptist people of Washington, Idaho, and Montana having by actual vote of their conventions accepted it as their denominational college. The work of the college has given it an honorable record in the development of the great Northwest region, and it is expected that its high standards will go beyond the development of the country in the midst of which it stands and to which it ministers.

THE CASH INTRIGUE

BY GEORGE RANDOLPH CHESTER

CHAPTER XII

IN the morning Dr. Zelpban, crossing the library, passed before the door at the far side of the fireplace and after a moment of frowning hesitation resolutely thrust open the door and entered. To his surprise Henry Breed was not there. He crossed the room on the same side as the safe, a door stood open, and Zelpban, with an angry determination to see everything here, approached that closet. He put his hand upon the rear wall at the deeper side, and it yielded to his touch, swinging backward into a narrow space from which came a damp odor and a stinging gleam of light.

"So," said Dr. Zelpban aloud, and immediately he squeezed back into the narrow space and descended the two flights of narrow stairs to the big vault, the existence of which he had never suspected. In the center of the vault, with the light from a cluster of electric bulbs gleaming down upon his bald head, with one of the many iron drawers upon his knees and with an old, well thumbed Bible on the bench at his side, sat Henry Breed. In his hands was a package of the pease-mealy with which the drawers were filled, and he was gazing, rapt at the opposite side of the vault. He turned without surprise toward the familiar figure of Dr. Zelpban and chuckled as he patted the drawer.

"This is the first row on all that side to be filled," said he. "I began at the lower corner. All the other rows are empty, but they'll fill up—they'll fill up," and he nodded his head in satisfaction. "Those other sides were filled by the bread business, but this is railroad dividends in solid cash."

Dr. Zelpban was looking about him in amazement. "There must be millions here!" he gasped.

"Millions," chuckled Breed, his wrinkled old face breaking into a toothy smile. "There's over a billion and a half! How did you come here?" he cried. "You were told that that little room upstairs was my strictly private study—that I wished no one to come into it."

"Exactly," agreed Zelpban dryly. "But now that I have found the way I am coming whenever you do or I am not going to stay at Forest Lakes."

"Don't go away, doctor!" pleaded Breed in sudden fright. "Don't leave me. When you arrived I was a nervous wreck, but since you came I have been able to do a lot of work—good work, splendid work."

"That's because you at first did what I told you. But of late you've grown careless. You give me the slip every morning now, and I can't find you. When you should be out in the street, you are down here in this unhealthy atmosphere with unhealthy thoughts, counting money—not the money that you have, but the money you expect to make. I hadn't the slightest idea that you were a mere miser."

"A miser, doctor? Breed smilingly expostulated, "is a man who hoards his money for his own sake. He never uses it for pleasure or comfort; he never even puts it to work. But this money of mine by the mere fact of its being here is a tremendous gain, by the mighty current of which I can sway almost the entire social and economic universe—to its own good, to its own good." He hastily added, "With it, when duly increased, I can fight great wars, change national laws, destroy and build anew entire civilizations, smother and recreate governments! Think, doctor! Handled with my experience and the genius of young Kelvin, this money has already triumphed over every enemy I had in the world, destroyed the integrity of the New York Stock Exchange and given me absolute control of every mile of railroad in the United States. No miser's money could have done that."

"Incidentally," observed Zelpban, "several hundred thousand people were thrown out of work, a thousand or so starved to death, a few hundred committed suicide and other hundreds deserted their families."

"For their iniquities the Lord shall bring suffering upon his people," solemnly declared Breed, and reached down a nervous hand for his Bible.

Zelpban looked at him sternly. "I want you to come out of this place at once and stay out," he ordered.

"No, no!" objected Breed nervously. "No! I must come in every day, doctor—just a little while."

"Yes, I suppose you must," admitted Zelpban. "I'll give you thirty minutes every day, but some one must be with you."

"My granddaughter usually comes with me," explained Breed. "She is the only one besides myself who knows the combination to these locks, and only we four—Lillian and Kelvin and I—and I—know the secret. You must guard this secret well, Zelpban."

"No danger of my telling it," corrected the doctor. "I don't want to ruin any human soul with the knowledge that all this money is being gathered only by iron bolts and your hundred of armed guards. There's a curse on the stuff. More than enough to live on has never done any one any good. Look at the look of the man with me!" said Breed, pointing to his own face.

"No danger," said Zelpban quietly.

"Only you are losing your mind, that is all. If you don't keep away from this silent brooding you'll be a libelous idiot by the time I shall leave you. I had a notion to do so this morning, but Mr. Rollins came and I changed my mind."

"Rollins?" exclaimed Breed. "Is he here?"

"You'd do nothing of the sort," asserted Zelpban, closing the door after him.

"Not see Rollins? Nonsense!" he exclaimed. "He as he threw the bolt and touched the button to turn on the light. 'This is important. I must see Rollins.'"

"Important or not, you are coming out with me for a half hour's walk before you see any one."

"Then you may go," declared Breed, turning on him with sudden anger. "Leave Forest Lakes as soon as you like, but I'll not go that either," announced Zelpban flatly. "I'm interested now, and I intend to remain."

Kevin, in the bow of the boat, looked at his watch and began reading in his line. "I am sorry, but I shall have to leave you at this time. I must be back at the office in fifteen minutes."

His book caught on the door lock, and he leaned forward to disengage it. Lillian, sitting just in front of him, deliberately leaned back, though with a pretense of coughing, and he nearly rounded about and touched his cheek.

"Don't go," she said, sinking her voice ever so little below its ordinary conversational tone.

Phillip suddenly drew his cheek away from that inaudible touch, angry with himself that, until passing this to the aid, his blood had leaped to the unspoken call.

Herbert offered his hand to Lillian, who, barely touching it, poised herself upon the gunwale and sprang with a splendid muscular effort far up the bank. As Kelvin stepped out he once more looked at his watch.

"You will pardon me if I hurry on?"

"Oh, we are all going," returned Lillian. "It's too late for the fish to bite any more anyhow."

Kevin was already passing her. The bank was very steep at this point. Near the top she slipped, and he was compelled to throw his arm hastily about her, his right shoulder wedged firmly back in his embrace and allowed him to drag her dead weight up over the little rise, and Kelvin almost cursed himself aloud, for again he had found that contact more than pleasure. "After all," Phillip brought himself back to the future with the jerk. "No entanglements with women." That had been the one warning motto he had set for himself, and he must observe it if he would accomplish his boundless ambitions.

Mrs. Rensselaer, pulling from the bank by Herbert, turned to that young man with severity. "Herbert," she admonished him, "really I think you are neglecting your opportunities most shamefully. It is within your reach to make the name of Rensselaer precisely what it used to be."

"With Miss Breed's money," commented Herbert with ill concealed disdain. "If I loved her or if she herself was capable of love it would be different."

"You are perfectly absurd, Herbert," she insisted. "Lillian is the richest girl in the world. After she is married her little eccentricities, impossible in a girl, will only enhance her charm. Let me be perfectly frank with you. This girl, while she thinks she has her eye upon Phillip, Kelvin, really wants a husband. I scarcely dare usher her into society unmarried—she would disgrace us all. But any strong man, such as you, could marry her, master her and make her content, and she would be most preferable."

"But I want to work, to carve out my own fortune as Kelvin has done. I am not so clever as he. I could not make a million in five years, as he did, but I could try, which, if you only know, is a great satisfaction. Instead of that you make me stop work. You give up practically your whole income to keep me an idler at a few good clubs in New York. I don't see how you can consistently object. You're your own salary."

"Herbert" she exclaimed. "I am a guest here, and the money I receive from Mr. Breed is the income from investments which he has made for me."

He laughed. "Ten thousand dollars," said he, "and on that Breed pays you dividends of ten thousand a year. It's really nothing else."

"How crude you are!" she protested. "How do you know that Mr. Breed does not make 100 per cent on the money I gave him? How do I know? I tell you, you are ungrateful."

At the moment the house Elsie White, who had been gathering down for Lillian's room, went up on the porch, where Rollins met her and stopped to chat with her for a moment.

"If you must know," Rensselaer said, "there is an illustration of why the thought of Elsie is so disgusting to me. That's the kind of girl I want to marry."

"Lillian's maid" she said exclaimed. "Herbert, you are really past better."

"You speak awfully about her. I don't understand your peculiar one, and if I did I wouldn't have her. Her eyes see so one but Phillip."

"Do you mean to say that if you want to this girl of no class, whatever and offered her the Rensselaer name she would refuse you?"

"She certainly would," replied Herbert promptly. "My last position was but a very slight thing, and I mean to do it. I'm a good many things he does," replied Herbert wearily, "sunsets and dawns for instance. Dreadfully loud colors he uses sometimes."

HISTORY OF CHURCH IN U. S.

holding the doctrine of religious liberty. Let me not be understood as calling in question their right to so great a power.
Amendment Advances Growth.
With all disabilities removed by the first amendment to the constitution, the Baptists began to grow very rapidly. By 1776 they had increased from about 1,000 at the beginning of the Revolution to more than 35,000. By 1800 their number was estimated at 100,000, and in 1850 they had increased to 615,000. In other words, in 1776 Baptists were about one to two hundred and sixty-four of the population; in 1800 they were one to fifty-three, and in 1850 they had become one to twenty-nine. This unexampled rapidity of growth in numbers constitutes one of the striking features of this period in Baptist history. Another marked characteristic of the period is the strong missionary fervor evident. Preachers, moved by their own hearts and urged forth by the churches, kept in the very forefront of advancing civilization, and soon Baptist churches were established in Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio, and Indiana. When the Louisiana purchase was consummated and that vast region began to be settled up, the Baptists were still among the first of the gospel workers.

Period of Education.

The year 1837 saw a very remarkable wave of revival sweep over the whole country. A half million are said to have been converted in a single year. Since the birth of church life and the type of preaching seem changed. Periodic revivals have given place to a rising tide of spiritual power, and nearly every sermon today aims consciously at the conversion of man.
In these changed conditions the Baptists have continued to make advancement. State conventions of general associations have been organized in every state, and are in aim and effort distinctively missionary. Many local associations are also thoroughly missionary in outlook and work. In the larger centers city missionary organizations carry on effective work in the suburban, tenement and foreign districts.
Many Colleges Established.
During the period the Baptists have made great gains along educational lines. Almost from the beginning of their history Baptists have felt the need of a better education for their children and especially for their ministry. An academy was established at Hopewell, N. J., in 1758 and continued for eleven years. Similar private schools were established at Lower Dublin (now Philadelphia) New York and Bordentown, N. J. What is now Brown university was established at Warren, R. I., in 1760, and moved to Providence in 1770. Water-ville college, Maine, now Colby university, was founded in 1818. Columbia college, (now University) at Washington, D. C., was started in 1821. Newton Theological institution at Newton Centre, Massachusetts, came into being in 1824. The University of Rochester and Rochester Theological seminary, both at Rochester, New York, began work in 1826. An earlier school at Hamilton, New York, became Colgate university in 1863. In 1864 the University of Chicago was established. Among other important schools can be named the following: Groves Theological seminary, Upland, Penn.; Southern Baptist Theological seminary, Louisville, Kentucky; Bucknell university, Lewisburg, Pennsylvania; Richmond college, Richmond, Virginia; Denison university, Granville, Ohio, and Yassar college, Poughkeepsie, New York, the best endowed college for women in the world.

All told, the Baptists in the United States have at least nine theological institutions, besides training schools, and more than a hundred other educational institutions, perhaps 70 of which claim a collegiate grade. In 1900 the total property and endowments of Baptist schools amounted to $3,484,000. In 1913 this total had risen to $51,188,888, and the year since that date have seen this vast total very largely increased.

THOSE SUDDEN TWINGES

Bring Suffering to Many a Twin Falls Reader

Pain is nature's signal of distress. A warning that must not be ignored.
Those sharp twinges in the back—Those sudden, stab-like pains when stooping.
Are signs of kidney trouble—Signs that must not be neglected.
To cure the pains, you must cure the kidneys.
Use a tested and proven kidney remedial, Doan's Kidney Pills.
None endorsed like Doan's Kidney Pills.
Mrs. W. K. Abercrombie, Old Town, American Falls, Idaho, says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills and the results were very satisfactory. For twelve years I was in poor health and I knew that I had kidney trouble, as my back ached severely. I could not move without having a sharp twinge in my loins, and I was annoyed by a kidney weakness. Half the contents of a box of Doan's Kidney Pills gave me relief and restored me to health.

DENVER MAN IS WELL PLEASED

W. B. Thomas, a Geneva, N. Y., Twin Falls in One Day.
W. B. Thomas, accompanied by his wife and daughter, Mabel, arrived in the city yesterday from Denver to pay a visit to Plumbing and Sanitary Inspector M. Whitman.
"Have been in the city only one day," said Mr. Thomas, "but I am already a convert to Twin Falls and the best, and you may depend upon it, I will be a booster for this section from now on.
"I believe that the dairying industry is the only solution of the problem of a profitable market for the immense quantities of alfalfa grown, and when this is once thoroughly established, there will be no question that the farmer can realize at least $2 per ton for his hay, which will show a good margin of profit over the cost of production."

Southern Play Appreciated.
The Colonial Players opened at the Lyric theater Monday evening to a fairly good house, which was thoroughly appreciative of the efforts of the company.

O. A. Stalker and Co., Twin Falls, Idaho.
Have arrived in Chicago and have been watching crowds on State Street and Michigan Avenue. Have seen nothing that excells our Adler and Hirsh Wolkware Men's Clothing in quality, style or fit.
Window displays in some of more exclusive establishments are magnificent, but we are able to, and do, show just as fine men's wear at as low, and in most cases lower prices than any I have noticed yet.
Am having order sent to increase our stock of new stuff, but am convinced that shipments already received cannot be improved. Brown and slate grey and mixtures of these colors seem to predominate among most fashionably dressed. Our diagonal weaves are latest style too. Am glad we laid in full line of these shades and cloths.
Am enjoying myself but am homesick for God's country already.
O. A. Stalker.
