DID BETTER WORK THAN ANTICIPATED

OPINION AS TO RESULT OF SESSION IS VEERING.
General Feeling as to the Twelfth session is steadily becoming more favorable at the Capitol.
(Special to The News.)

Boise, Idaho, March 11.—It is still too early to say a precise prediction of the work of the Twelfth session of the legislature, and it is still impossible to know what bills Governor Hedges will veto or approve. Furthermore, it will take time to test out some of the measures that have been enacted last year.

But at this early day there is a disposition to admit that the legislation did very much better than was expected of it. It is admitted that a number of good measures were enacted into laws, measures for which there was a real demand from the people of the state. It is also an opinion widely expressed that the legislature defeated many bad bills, and in the senate in particular there was a wide demand for the outcome on the whole is giving general satisfaction.

Both north and south have fared especially well. Their influence felt as never before and as a result of the creation of new counties in the state a still stronger position for the future.
Early in the session the southeast "took" in the session of January 21, under the leadership of Carey Act. On the last day of the session it secured in what many regard as a much more important matter—the enactment of a law providing for a Carey Act. Important. Southern Idaho has long fought for this and at this time she has the delegation from Twin Falls county to thank for her victory. The fight made in the house for this measure by Representative Nihart and in the senate by Senator Robinson was a splendid exhibition of legislative tactics.

In addition to the United States senator as the Carey Act committee, the south and southeast secured six new counties, counting Jefferson and Madison, which are certainly new to the state. The addition of six additional senators in the next legislative session.

THE LIFE OF LIVINGSTONE.

On the nineteenth of March, one hundred years ago, David Livingstone was born. His earliest life gave little promise of the epoch-making events which were to form a part of his subsequent career. In a general way but little is known of the life of Livingstone prior to the departure

Henry M. Stanley, charged with a commission to "find Livingstone."

Then came the story of Livingstone and the civilized world passed in his work to do honor to the man who, almost alone, had penetrated to the inner recesses of the Dark Continent to bring the light of his ministry to the warlike and savage tribes who up to that time had never seen a white man.

The accomplishments of David Livingstone must always rank among the greatest examples of single handed heroism that the world has ever seen. When Stanley reached him the results of his efforts had made themselves felt over a territory which extended miles in every direction and to the planting of this, the first seed, is directly traceable the prestige of the British Empire in Africa today.

Worn out with his labors, stricken with a mortal sickness, it was not given to him to see the later fruits of his magnificent courage, his simple faith and heroic self-denial. Today the world appraises him at his full worth, rating his works as among the greatest ever accomplished by one man in the annals of missionary endeavor.

A ROUND MEASURE LOST.

There is one bill which went down to defeat at the hands of the Legislature which surely should have appealed to the decency and manhood of the men honored with election to the lay making body. If there was one single bill entitled to passage on its merits in the whole conglomerate seven hundred odd introduced, it was the Kolesch bill providing for examination as to fitness of those applying for marriage license.

The News during the past two months has carried many arguments in favor of the measure, has cited facts and figures in earnest support of the measure and has endeavored to show that the passage of such a bill would make for the better health and cleaner morals of the entire State.

The bill was defeated and post mortems are rarely in good taste, but in casting about for a person for its defeat but one idea suggests itself. The members did not thoroughly understand the bill.

Eventually such a law will come into effect in every State in the Union and two years from now an Idaho Legislature will probably pass such a bill.

There can be no question as to the wisdom of such a step; and next time the members from Twin Falls county at any rate will understand what it is they are asked to vote on.

THE TWELFTH SESSION.

The Twelfth session of the Idaho Legislature is over and by way of review it is difficult to figure out just what has been accomplished in comparison to the cost to the people of the State.

A United States Senator was elected, a number of counties cut up, a new district primary law enacted and a public utilities commission brought into being. A number of excellent bills went by the board, a State office or two was abolished by means of withholding the customary appropriation. A few men were given opportunity to prove their manhood and a few reputations were torn to shreds and the pieces cast to the four winds of Heaven.

A more intimate study of the work of the session will be possible a little later on, when it may be that the scales will carry a different balance. As far as can be seen at this time, however, the Twelfth Session occupies a unique position in the Legislative annals of the State.

POLITICAL ROTTENNESS.

Messrs. Nugent, Pence, and Elder, Democratic warhorses of the capital and high in the confidence of President Wilson, are doing all they can to bring about the appointment of Will R. King, of Oregon, to the post of commissioner of the general land office. They do this, not because of any hard and fast views as to King's fitness for office, but solely in opposition to former Governor James H. Hawley. Governor Hawley was a candidate for Secretary of the Interior, as was Mr. King. Led by Moses Alexander, the King boom in Idaho grew apace. Pence, Nugent, and Elder say in it only a club with which to belabour Hawley, but that was all they wanted.

The only point which suggests itself is as to just how the fair State of Idaho benefits by such action.

ed, of course, in the failure to have an agricultural college established within her borders, and this was the one thing upon which that section of the state seemed to set its heart. The real reason for the failure did not come to the surface till the last day of the session, although it is generally conceded that the more to divide the county and the desertion from the cause of the agricultural college of Representative Nibart and Hawford at the critical stage of the contest, cut a big figure.

But the influence that outweighed all others in defeating the establishment of an agricultural college in Twin Falls was the fixed determination of a large majority of the legislature, especially the house, to make no permanent change of any kind with reference to the educational institutions of the state until the state board of control had canvassed the entire situation thoroughly and reached a definite conclusion as to the best thing to be done for the state. It was this determination that defeated every bill proposed for a permanent improvement for an educational institution. A few days before the close of the session Governor Haines approved senate bill No. 331. This was the bill introduced by Senator Robinson and fought through the legislature without an amendment by him. It provided for a complete overhaul in the educational system of the state and was one of the most important measures of the entire session.

This law provides for a state board of control and a board of regents for the University of Idaho. Into the hands of this board goes the fate of every educational institution in the state and the public school system as well. It is in conformity with the constitutional amendment adopted last fall and represents the work of the best educators and school administrators in the state for years.

The Main Obstacle.

When the bond bills came before the senate on the last day of the session, after having passed the house, bond bills carrying a total of practically $600,000, Senator Hart and Senator Robinson took the position that as the state board of education had been created, and that as this board was to have control of every educational institution in the state, no provision should be made for permanent improvement of any institution until after this board had made its recommendations.

This was the main obstacle in the way of moving the agricultural college from Moscow to Twin Falls county.

ly. There is a widespread impression that the entire university is to be moved south from Moscow, and that this determination was back of the determination to make no permanent improvements there or at any other state school. Many here in Boise insist that the university should come to this place and that the Boise barracks, now to be deserted as an army post, should be the site of a great university. This is still but a dream, but it need surprise no one if a determined effort is made under the new board of control to consolidate a number of the state schools at Boise or some other accessible point in southern Idaho.

A Real Battle.

One of the real battles of the legislative session was made over the public utilities bill, and here again Senator Robinson, of Twin Falls county, played a conspicuous part. The bill went through the house easily and received the support of all the Twin Falls county members. The real fight was in the senate, the opposition combined their efforts on that body to prevent the passage of any bill at all, or failing in that, to amend the bill so that it was so changed that it was impossible to make it a farce.

Before the fight was over the line between the two forces was drawn straight and true, and every senator was forced to take a stand out in the open on one side or the other. Senator Robinson made an intelligent and effective fight for a law that meant business. He used the situation at Twin Falls with telling effect. The fact that a bill of any kind was passed by the present legislature is conceded to be due to the influence and tireless work of Frank R. Gooding.

Everybody informed in such matters claims that the Ryan bill as it finally passed the senate is a good bill, one that will result in great good to the state. It is expected to have immediate relief to such communities as Twin Falls and result in the construction of many branch lines of railroad. The one glaring defect of the friends of an effective public utility bill was the amendment providing that the attorney general of the state shall be the attorney for the commission. This it is claimed by all, will have the effect of throwing the commission directly into politics, making of it an appendix of the administration that happened to be in power.

POTATO GROWERS TO MEET.

A meeting of the potato growers will be held in the Commercial club rooms next Saturday afternoon, March 16. The meeting will be addressed by successful growers and farmers along agricultural lines. All persons interested in potato growing are invited to attend.

THIS IS YOUR CHANCE

Such an Opportunity Seldom Offered to Acquire a Small Tract of Land at Such a Sacrifice

I have secured the exclusive handling of about thirty acres, only one-fourth mile from the city limits, and can cut it into three ten-acre tracts. This land is one-half mile west of the Rock Creek bridge, and 1/2 mile north of the Hollister branch of the railroad, and south of the north road. The land slopes to the north and is all first-class soil. There is about 10 acres in orchard; 4 acres of which is six years old and worth on the present market, $200 per acre. You can't duplicate it for more than that price within five-fourths mile of this city. However, I can deliver the exact 10 acres, including the orchard and improvements, for $150 per acre. The 10 acres adjoining to the west for $225 per acre, and the west 10 acres for $210 per acre. This land will double in value within a very short time. I would advise you to call at once and secure first photos of these tracts.

Very favorable terms will be given, considering the low price of the land.

GROWING OF BERRIES STRONGLY ADVOCATED

COOPERATION IN MARKETING IS NECESSARY FOR BEST PRICES

J. A. Waters Points Out Advantages of Culture on Tract—Local Section Without Competition—Work Through Association.

The extensive growing of berries, and cooperation among growers, in the marketing of their crop, is being strongly urged by J. A. Waters, agent of the Twin Falls County Fruit Growers' Association. Speaking on this subject a few days ago, Mr. Waters said:

"There are several good reasons why berry growers on the Twin Falls tract should cooperate in the marketing of produce. The good that comes from cooperation last year through the association should be sufficient to induce all growers to get together this year and maintain a strong organization. Last year was the first time in the history of the tract that there were sufficient berries to ship. A certain amount of berries was marketed, and realized a market price of $1.50 per crate. Individual shipments could not have brought more than 75 cents per crate. Growers who would leave the grower no profit after paying for the crates and the picking of the berries.

No Competing Territory.

"We need more berry growing. There is no danger of flooding the market with berries grown on this tract, with a result in the lowering of prices. It is for this reason: The Hood River berries are all gone before our first berries are due. Berries in the middle western states are three weeks ahead of us, and the Utah crop comes in a little earlier. We have but little berry growing country in competition with us at the same time. We are nearer the eastern markets by 600 miles than Hood River and Yakima. Our berries withstand the hardships of transportation much better than those of most any other country for a number of feet. Berries grown in high altitudes have more firmness than others.

"Notwithstanding the many varieties of berries grown on the tract last year, not all were really of the shipping kind. Yet all kinds were shipped and the car arrived in Wichita, Kansas, in fine good shape. The packers wired for two more cars immediately. The sad part of it was, we had no more berries to ship.

Sell Through Association.

"I cannot urge too strongly the need of more berry growing on the tract. It is the only crop that gives a better return for the money and labor expended. Berries planted this spring will bear a year hence. I would like to see a large number of farmers devote considerable acreage to this culture, and have them market their crop through the Fruit Growers' association. There is no reason why we should not be one of the leading berry sections of the country. The growing of more berries and cooperation in marketing is sure to bring this result."

AMONG BEST OF DRAMAS

"Graustark" Here March 17, Rank High in Romantic Plays of the Day.

Ureco Hayward's dramatization of the popular novel of George Barr McCutcheon, "Graustark," will be the attraction at the high school auditorium Monday evening, March 17. "Graustark" is expected to rank high among the dramatic plays of the present day. It is replete with strong human interest. It is full of life and color. The story is about as much and enjoyable in outline. The hero of the play, Graustark Lory, is a rich young American who pursues a mysterious Miss Gishgahbar across two continents to her home in the little country of "Graustark," where the attractive young lady is reigning monarch. The princess is about to marry a man for whom she has a natural antipathy, in order to free her country from a burdensome and oppressive dynasty. The rich American, however, after having saved the life of the young ruler, comes to the rescue and saves the nation from bankruptcy and insolvency by paying the debt. As a matter of course, the accommodating American is enabled to induce the princess to banish all ancestral prejudices and to become his wife.

The company presenting this romantic play has been made up by the United Play company from the ranks of the very best people in the province. The scenery and the equipment has been acknowledged by press and public to be the best ever seen in the theatre in the entire season.

WHY

The Best Fence Is the Cheapest

The difference in cost between a loosely-woven fence made of brittle, poorly galvanized wire and the best fence you can possibly buy is only a few cents, at the most. In fact, it is so slight that it takes just as many posts and just as much labor to put up a short-lived fence as it does one that will last you two or three times as long, and when you stop to figure the cost of repairing broken-down fences - the loss to your crops from cattle breaking through, horses going over and pigs crawling under - you will agree that to buy any fence just because it is cheap is poor economy.

Square Deal Fence

will outlast any other farm fence you can buy and costs no more than any other fence of equal weight and quality of material. Every rod is guaranteed by The Keystone Steel and Wire Company - the mill that makes both the fence and the wire that goes into it.

Come In and See It before you buy fencing - See how trim and neat it looks, how easy it handles, see the non-breakable, non-slipping Square Deal Lock - See the very strand wires that keep Square Deal Fence tight and trim the year around. See the one-piece stay wires that makes this fence self-supporting, non-sagging and non-rotting.

SABBATH SCHOOL LESSON

THE TEST OF ABRAHAM'S FAITH.

Genesis, 1:12.

1. And it came to pass after these things, that God did tempt Abraham, and said unto him, Abraham: and he said, Behold, here I am.

2. And he said, Take now thy son, thine only son Isaac, whom thou lovest: and get thee into the land of Moriah; and offer him there for a burnt offering upon one of the mountains which I will tell thee of.

3. And Abraham rose up early in the morning, and saddled his ass, and took two of his young men with him, and Isaac his son, and clave the wood for the burnt offering, and went to the place which God had told him.

4. Then on the third day Abraham lifted up his eyes, and saw the place afar off.

5. And Abraham said unto his young men, Abide ye here with the ass, and I and the lad will go yonder and worship, and come again to you.

6. And Abraham took the wood of the burnt offering, and laid it upon Isaac his son, and he took the fire in his hand, and a knife; and they went both of them together.

7. And Isaac spake to Abraham his father, and said, My father, and he said, Here am I, my son. And he said, Behold the fire and the wood: but where is the lamb for a burnt offering?

8. And Abraham said, My son, God will provide himself a lamb for a burnt offering: so they went both of them together.

9. And they came to the place which God had told him of, and Abraham and Isaac built an altar there, and laid the wood in order, and bound Isaac his son, and laid him on the altar upon the wood.

10. And Abraham stretched forth his hand, and took the knife to slay his son.

11. And the Angel of the Lord called unto him out of heaven, and said, Here am I.

12. And he said, Lay not thine hand upon the lad, neither do thou say any thing unto him; for now I know that thou fearest God, seeing thou hast not withheld thy son, thine only son from me.

13. And Abraham lifted up his eyes, and looked, and behold behind him a ram caught in a thicket by his horns; and Abraham went and took the ram, and offered him up for a burnt offering in the stead of his son.

14. And the Angel of the Lord said unto Abraham, I desired mercy, not sacrifice; and the knowledge of God more than burnt offering.—Hos. 6:6. Expository.

1. By the tempting is meant a testing a trial of the father's faith. It was shown to his own and to all subsequent generations how strong and true was the conviction of his soul that he had been called of God, and honored of God; God came and spake to Abraham, so that the latter understood him; but just how the speaking was done we do not know. Abraham answered, and declared himself ready to do the bidding of his God.

2. Nothing of all that Abraham had was so dear to him as his son, whom he had received under peculiar circumstances, according to the promise of him who came and talked with him and ate with him under the tree at Mamre. It was this beloved son with whom he is now called to part. There has been much difference of opinion as to just where this "land" was. It is generally believed to have been in Palestine, and to have been the hill, or "mountain" upon which the temple of Solomon was built.

3. It was, and is, common in that country to make journeys by night, or to start upon them early in the morning, before the burning heat of the day comes. Abraham made all needed preparations for his journey, and especially for the burnt offering which he was to make. The matter of wood was of much consequence, for it was not always to be found. Wood could be found when needed, and especially wood of enough and fit for such a use as this. So he took wood as he did for his servants and Isaac, with him.

4. It was possible, if one came from the south by a certain way, to see Gen. 22 at Jerusalem a long way off, looking at it past the hill of Olivet, where the temple is located.

5. Abraham did not care to have the agents see what he was doing. They might interfere with him and prevent his accomplishing his purpose. When he looked forward and saw the hill he was impassioned with, the assurance that it was that to which God was directing him, and he had no need of further attendance, nor of the animal. When he told the young men that he and the lad would go yonder and worship, he had no doubt that such would be the case; because he expected that God would raise up Isaac again, before he should be permitted to return. He believed that God had said unto Isaac, and he did not doubt that he would raise up Isaac a son that he might be a blessing to all that are of him who were buried upon the altar. (See Hebrews 11: 19).

6. It is possible that something more affecting than the fact of offering Isaac was the putting upon him of wood by which he was to be burnt. It was to consume him, and wood which was to consume him. But, of course, he was unconscious of what was to be done. He did just what his father told him; and his father did what God had bid him. Most have seemed very strange to the servants, as it did also to Isaac. But Abraham's will was sure to prevail, though ill. He was a man to be obeyed. It was a day when matches were unknown, and it was needful to carry fire in a brazen vessel. Travelers often carried fire with them, because it was not easy to kindle it otherwise.

7. This was a not unusual question, but here it must have gone home to the heart of the father. He was going to offer a sacrifice, to worship his God, and had taken fire and Isaac and wood, but no victim. Isaac was familiar with the habits of his father in the matter of sacrifice, and he missed now what he was accustomed to.

8. What a wonderful answer! God had provided the sacrifice, had given it to Abraham, and had designated Isaac as the one which would be grateful to himself. It stirs our heart to think of what must have been the thoughts and emotions of Abraham, and of his son, so dearly beloved, walking along by his side, laden with the wood with which his own body was to be burned.

9. Abraham knew how to build an altar, and how to so place the wood that it might not fall to bits on the offering. He fixed everything up as he had been accustomed to do when he was about to offer a lamb. Isaac was accustomed to do whatever his father said; and now he did not hesitate to submit himself to his father's bidding—probably, at the first, little thinking what it all meant, till resistance was made, when he had been flung to resist. We can hardly believe that Isaac's faith, was of the same firmness with that of his father. He was a child, not Isaac, that was being tested.

10. There was only one more thing to be done, and that was to plunge the knife into the body of his son. He had done everything but that, and there could be no longer any doubt that he would do that. The testing of the father's faith was complete. He had done nothing to do anything that he had not been accustomed to do when he was about to offer a lamb. Isaac was accustomed to do whatever his father said; and now he did not hesitate to submit himself to his father's bidding—probably, at the first, little thinking what it all meant, till resistance was made, when he had been flung to resist. We can hardly believe that Isaac's faith, was of the same firmness with that of his father. He was a child, not Isaac, that was being tested.

11. The angel was on the alert, watching for the last moment before the fatal plunge was to be made. He was to give God to raise up Isaac, it was not needful for him to do so, in view of what he had done. The testing was sufficient.

12. The man who could do what Abraham had done could give no higher, or no more conclusive proof that he loved God, and his God, and that he did not forget that fear and love are very closely allied to each other. To love God is to fear him. To fear God is to love him. The love God is to fear to offend him; to have a desire not to offend him.

13. This was the "lamb" which God had provided. "And Abraham went and took the ram, and offered him up for a burnt offering in the stead of his son." His work of obedience was complete. He had been fully proved. We are to copy Abraham's faith.

14. There is a difference of view among scholars as to just what we are to understand by the phrase "John the baptist." The popular interpretation of the word is "The Lord will provide," and we sometimes quote the Hebrew as a support for the saying, "But our translation does not mean that, but, "In the mount of the Lord it shall be seen." Some scholars say that it should be "John the observer," or "takes care" others say "The mountain of Jehovah is the mountain where he himself selects and provides his sacrifice."

CLUB-MEN GUESTS OF PROF. ELLIOTT

WEDNESDAY LUNCHEON AT HIGH SCHOOL GREAT SUCCESS

Business Men of the City Were Highly-Pleased With the Menu and Plans for the Institution's Future.

That the girls of the domestic science class of the Twin Falls high school can cook and serve a meal in the most called for taste, was demonstrated yesterday noon when they prepared and served the regular Wednesday luncheon to the members of the Commercial club. The luncheon was served in the high school cafeteria. The course is given under the instruction of Miss Madeline Libert.

Appetizing dishes, plenty of it, and dessert constituted one of the distinct menus, to which the club has ever been served. The work of the members of the domestic science class is being exceptional and was of special interest to the visiting diners.

Following the luncheon, the members of the Commercial club visited the gymnasium and witnessed a class of girls in their under the direction of Miss Cash, physical instructor. A visit was also made to the manual training department, where the work of the classes under the direction of Professor Crouse was exhibited.

School Report.

At the close of the luncheon Professor Elliott outlined the present condition of the schools as to equipment and finance, and briefly told of the needs that must be met in the next few months. The enrollment for the year totals 1760, and it is expected that about 300 more students will apply for instruction in the high school and grades of this city next fall. Professor Elliott said about $15,000 will be

IT'S A FINE LITTLE NICKEL, BUT IT WON'T FIT THE SLOT MACHINES

Have you seen Uncle Sam's new nickel? The new five-cent coin was placed in circulation March 1 in the large eastern cities. Although they have not yet been received by the western banks, a few have found their way through the mails and in the pockets of transcontinental travelers to Twin Falls. While a rarity now, a few weeks will find the new Indian head medallions jingling in the pockets of everybody who will want them and exchange for equally good currency of the same value. Only one thing wrong with them—They won't fit the slot machines.

The new nickel, which is to take the place of the "Goddess of Liberty" nickel, which has been in use for many years, show the American lion on one side, and on the reverse side is a reproduction of the head of an American Indian. No one appears to be in the least troubled by the change. It is said the coins will not stick. Only the date "1913" appears on the Indian side of the coin, while on the other, in circle, are the words "United States of America, Five Cents," and also "E. Pluribus Unum."

New currency bills, to take the place of the present one, two, five, ten, twenty, and other higher denominations will soon be issued by the government. Local bankers state that they will require several years for the replacing of the bills, the printing of the bills to take from two to three years.

INFORMATION FOR FARMERS

Agricultural Bureau to Issue Booklet for the Stock Raisers and Fruit Growers.

The printing of a booklet, embodying a treatise on prevalent diseases among stock and their cure, written by Dr. F. T. Kennerly, of the Twin Falls Veterinary hospital, was ordered at a meeting of the agricultural bureau of the Commercial club last Friday evening. The booklets will be distributed among the farmers and stockmen of the tract. It is also proposed by the bureau to compile a booklet relating to fruit growing, that will contain valuable information for the grower from the planting of the trees to the marketing of the crop.

Arrangements are being made by the bureau to place exhibition cases in the club rooms which will contain produce samples from all parts of the tract with data as to methods of growing and cultivation. The bureau is planning the collection of statistics from the tract which will be sent to the farmers of this section of the country as well as sent throughout the country.

NO DEPOSIT GUARANTEE BILL

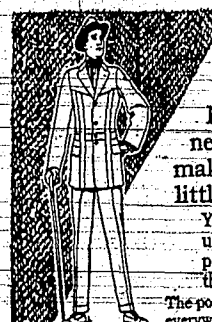

Through an error a report is current that Senate Bill 16, providing for a guarantee of bank deposits, was recently signed by the governor. Upon investigation it is learned that this bill was killed in committee, but that Senate Bill 96, by Robinson, was duly signed on Tuesday.

This bill provides for amendments to the banking law, but bears no resemblance to the matter of guarantee of bank deposits.

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the entire system, such articles should never be used.
