Automobiles and Good Roads

RELIABLE TIRES AS EMERGENCY BRAKES.

Every motorist knows what trials beset the man who tours through rugged mountain country or into out of the way places where good roads are as rare as it is pleasant to discover. Driving under these conditions, even when his car is equipped with every device that modern motor building has been able to devise, is anything but enjoyable. In many cases there are stretches of roads that can be driven over only by the most careful motorist.

If the motorist has not chafed long or does not wish to take the time to put them on he had better be sure that his tires are so reliable that they will hold him back on any kind of grade for with the motor and brakes they will have to perform this vital function on many a steep hillside road.

In the West where there are still to be found many stretches of poor roads, especially in the less frequented districts, the above condition of affairs is often brought forcibly to the motorist's attention, and he is lucky if he can place absolute reliance upon the tires of his car, for if he cannot he may find himself in difficulty in going around some hair-pin-curve or when climbing a steep grade.

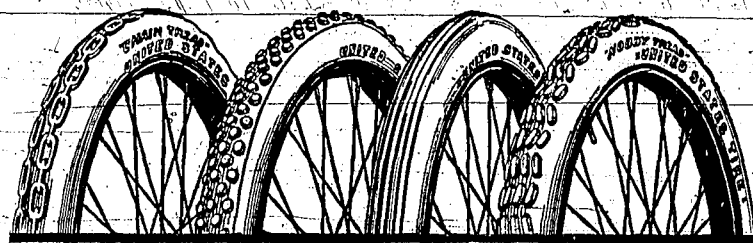

The safety features of the "Nobby

Tread" and "Chain Tread" tires are ideally adapted for just such conditions and for this reason they are popular all over the West. Motorists have learned from experience that the strong rubber knobs on these tires have the facility of gripping the road and preventing skidding and slipping while going over dangerous surfaces. The way United States tires stand up under adverse road conditions has been a revelation to owners of cars who have used tires that did not always live up to the reputation their salesmen gave them and for this reason the increased sale of these tires is greater than ever before in their history.

The mere selling of the tires is only a part of the transaction, as far as the United States tires are concerned, for long after the original sale has been made, the service branches which are located in most of the big cities, attend to the needs of United States tire users and offer them unrivaled service facilities.

STUDEBAKER WINS CHINESE TROPHY.

P. F. Richter, driving a Studebaker, won the first formal motor car competition ever held in China by capturing the cup offered by the government of that country. The car was an economy test, over a 25-mile course.

THE TWIN FALLS SPIRIT.

There were just twenty-four men and women in attendance at the "mass meetings" at the high school auditorium Tuesday evening at which Mr. George B. Irving delivered his message of a Greater Twin Falls.

Mr. Irving did deliver an inspirational message and many of the things he said to his audience were things that can and will be done in Twin Falls.

The coming of Mr. Irving at this time was inopportune. Twin Falls business men are not in a mood now to follow in the footsteps of the smaller cities of the East.

Mr. Irving's chief object was to increase the membership of the Commercial club.

Twins Falls is a great many things. Just how it needs a railroad above all other things.

Mr. Irving will stand by and watch Twin Falls get into action on the railroad matter.

"LET US HAVE PEACE"

These magic words fell from the lips of the commander-in-chief of the United armies during the darkest hour of the civil war.

1898, is a matter of profound national pride and gratitude.

Though the friendly relations between the United States and Mexico seem to be a little strained, it does not necessarily need to end in war.

One of the chief reasons also of Secretary Bryan should call forth unanimous assent: "The life of a single American means more than every American dollar invested in Mexico."

A PLATFORM FOR YOU.

There is food for thought in the resolutions promulgated by the Idaho League of Commercial Bodies at the convention held in Boise last week.

These resolutions, as printed in another column, are commended to you, dear reader, for your careful and prayerful attention.

THE WEATHER.

Last Sunday the city of Cleveland, Ohio, was cut off from the world as was a telegraph and traction facility.

In Twin Falls the sun shone bright all day, and in homes where there was no company for dinner, the men ate in their shirt sleeves.

WHY NOT?

A citizen takes the Twin Falls News to task because of the editorial in the last issue in which the suggestion was made that the county officials be investigated and helped in their endeavor to lower taxes.

French Statements on Mexican Problem

What measures ought the United States to take, if any, to put a stop to the anarchy prevailing in Mexico? This was the question put by the New York American to leading Frenchmen.

One policy which is possible, it is practicable to organize in Mexico, either collectively or by delegation, as was done in China and even in Europe on the Mediterranean, the indefensible police measures upon which all European nations interested are in accord.

It is not a matter of course that the intervention of one or several European powers, it would just be the cooperation of the entire civilization of the world on the appeal of the United States.

It is not a matter of course that the intervention of one or several European powers, it would just be the cooperation of the entire civilization of the world on the appeal of the United States.

I regard the dilemma of the American Government in the presence of the Mexican problem, and I am convinced it is insoluble by force of arms; only patience and consideration will produce the desired result.

I suppose it will not be denied that Diaz, who for more than forty years kept Mexico quiet and brought it from anarchy and a thriving state to a comparatively high state of prosperity, was obliged to abandon the supreme power by American influence, which favored Madero from first to last.

I think nothing would go farther toward creating such a conviction, than an American declaration of intention to withdraw government troops from Mexico, and to confine the Mexicans of the entire disinterestedness of that government.

I am by no means of the opinion that the Monroe Doctrine has outlived its usefulness, and I believe that the doctrine itself by the very nation which has attached so much weight to it.

It is certain that since America has been brought so near to Europe by means of communication, the Monroe Doctrine has lost something of its importance.

The fact is many people, as well as myself, do not know exactly what President Wilson or America wants.

Rome, November 7. Commenting on the Mexican situation today the Giornale d'Italia says: "The sky is dark over Mexico. The situation is becoming tragic. Intervention is unpopular and is not desired by the United States, but it is difficult to avoid, as Provisional President Huerta will not yield."

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

Dating back practically to the first settlement of this continent, the people have prevailed of setting aside one day in each year as a day of thanksgiving to Almighty God for his manifold blessings to our people.

This hallowed custom should ever be perpetuated. Each year brings its joys and sorrows, its trials and deprivations, and devout people should ever be willing to voice their obligations to Divine Providence for His sheltering protection and abundant moral and material gifts vouchsafed to them.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State to be affixed, at Boise, Idaho, this fifth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and thirteen.

JOHN M. HAINES, Governor.

Reverend Clinton is requested by the Governor to appear in court in interest to this effect so that they may know just what to expect.

The result of Governor Haines is the direct result of careful consideration of conditions on the Big Lost River project.

Cause of Delay. We realize that because of the legal difficulties which have heretofore stood in the way it has been deemed impossible for you to have been able to effect reorganization of the company and to proceed with the work of supplying water to the project.

Must Act at Once. We have been given by under-standers of the matter several suggestions that there is no likelihood of an appeal from the decision of the court of appeals.

Land Ready to Help. On the other hand the land board will lend any reasonable aid in the matter of reorganization which should be proceeded with at once.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON—NOV. 10

LESSON VII

The Death of Moses:

Deut. ch. 34.

1. And Moses went up from the plains of Moab unto the mountain of Nebo, to the top of Pisgah, that is over against Jericho. And the Lord showed him all the land of Gilead, unto Dan.
2. And all Naphtali, and the land of Ephraim, and Manasseh, and all the land of Judah, unto the utmost sea.
3. And the south, and the plain of the valley of Jericho, and the city of palm trees, unto Zor.
4. And the Lord said unto him, This is the land which I swore unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob, saying, I will give it unto thee; and he has caused thee to see it with thine eyes, but thou shalt not go over thither.
5. So Moses the servant of the Lord died there in the land of Moab, according to the word of the Lord.
6. And he buried him in a valley in the land of Moab, over against Beor: but no man knoweth of his sepulchre unto this day.
7. And Moses was an hundred and twenty years old when he died: his eye was not dim, nor his natural force abated.

8. And the children of Israel wept for Moses in the plains of Moab thirty days: so the days of weeping and mourning for Moses were ended.

9. And Joshua the son of Nun was full of the spirit of wisdom; for Moses had laid his hands upon him: and the children of Israel served Joshua, and did as the Lord commanded Moses.

10. And there arose unto a prophet among the Israelites after Moses, whom the Lord knew face to face.

11. In all the signs and the wonders, which the Lord sent him to do in the land of Egypt, to Pharaoh, and to all his servants, and to all his land.

12. And in all that mightily had, and in all the great terror, which Moses showed in the sight of all the Israel.

Golden Text—"Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints"—Ps. 116: 15.

Introductory.

The journeying is ended. Israel is now on the border of the promised land, having reached it by a roundabout way. He has seen the Jordan, and the arid valleys of Idumaea and Edom, and the land spread abroad over the mountains of Moab, and Bashan, occupied largely by the descendants of Lot, the cousin of Isaac, and so, by figures of speech, the "columns of Israel" but he has not yet seen the promised land. Instead of worshipping the true God, the God of Jacob, they are idolaters, having some traditions of the true God, but they are not, but quite indifferent to him, choosing, rather, gods of their own fashioning.

Expository.

1. Nebo is a cluster of high peaks, or mountains rise up out of the valley—rather level country, called plains. It is distinctly visible from the plain of Moab, especially from Tekoa, one of the most conspicuous outlooks in all Palestine, a point which few travelers visit, but which is well known to the Jews. Especially from the summit of Nebo, or Pisgah, the view "to the westward" takes in a large part of the waste country, reaching up to the mountains of Ephraim to southern Judah. God enabled his servant to see "all the land which he had sworn to give unto Israel, reaching up as far as the land of the far north.

At the same time, he could look over the intervening country, including Naphtali, Ephraim and Manasseh (on the side of Jordan) farther south. Then, turning farther southward, he could reach even to the Mediterranean sea, to the westward. He was taking in practically the entire country, whether east or west of the Jordan.

2. At his feet, "near at hand," lay the plain at the mouth of the Jordan, reaching over to Jericho, at the foot of the high plain on the east. The valley of the Jordan, at its mouth, was fruitful and abundant in palm trees. Zor, we remember, was the city into which he had taken the other cities of the plain were destroyed.

3. Now God called Moses to notice that this is the promised land which Abraham, sojourning, traversed it up and down, and becoming familiar with it. Moses, he never seen before, though he believed the promise and longed to get into the country. It was a very great trial for him to get so near to it and yet not be permitted to go over into it. But the word of God to him was sure. He had to pay a penalty for his persistent disobedience in what seemed a very small matter.

4. We need not elaborate the statement that Moses the servant of God, died there in the land of Moab.

5. God buried him. It was easy to dig away his grave among the fastnesses of the rocks, in a cleft of the rocks, or in a cavern. It was easy for God who had used him as he had done to do this thing for him. He buried him where his grave could not be found. It was in a valley, or a depression in the mountain, not far from the place where great sins were committed by the intermarriage of Israelites and Midianites, or Moabites.

6. He had reached the age of one hundred and twenty years. He was forty years old when he fled from Egypt to Midian, and he spent forty years in a shepherd's life and now forty years more on the way from Egypt. His strength had been preserved, so that he was able to lead him to the place where great sins were committed by the intermarriage of Israelites and Midianites, or Moabites.

7. He had reached the age of one hundred and twenty years. He was forty years old when he fled from Egypt to Midian, and he spent forty years in a shepherd's life and now forty years more on the way from Egypt. His strength had been preserved, so that he was able to lead him to the place where great sins were committed by the intermarriage of Israelites and Midianites, or Moabites.

8. According to custom, thirty days, or a month, of formal mourning followed. There was a great reason for mourning, and yet the realities of their position and the remembrance of their journeying, and the fact that all the fathers, except two, were now gone, made the death of Moses only more to be mourned than that of so many others.

9. Moses had already come to understand that Joshua was to be his successor as leader of the people, as recorded in Chapter 1. He had given charge to Joshua and told him to be strong and very courageous; and this he was doing in giving him a soldier, just the kind of man needed for what was to come afterward. Moses had laid his hands upon Joshua and God had approved it, giving him the qualifications needed for his work. Joshua, so that they become willing to obey him as implicitly as they more implicitly than they obeyed Moses.

communicated his will, not in dreams and visions, but by an audible voice, clearly enunciated words, which Moses could understand and record. From the day that God called him, when he was a shepherd in Midian, to the day of his death, he was conscious minister to do God's will and to teach his people.

"WON'T STAY TO CHURCH."

Louder and Louder become the constant complaint that the members of the Sabbath school will not stay for the church services. Nor can there be any doubt that the complaint is just and that something should be speedily done to remedy the situation. Several causes have combined to produce this deterioration upon the part of the Sabbath school. First of all the great and needed emphasis that has been placed on the Sabbath-school movement during the last decade has naturally tended to magnify, by comparison, the worth of the Sabbath school. Many have thus been led to believe that the Sabbath school is greater than the church. It is scarcely necessary to say that no one is to blame for intentionally making this false estimate of the relative worth of the school and the church. Any comparison in this connection is useless, as it is only comparing a part to the whole. The Sabbath school, as we understand it, is distinctively the teaching agency of the church, and should be, if not identical with the church, directly under its control and management.

Naturally, it has contributed to the neglect of the church by the school has been the neglect of the school by the church. If many of the church members would go to the Sabbath school, a large number of the school would stay to church. The church would be benefited if the church will not attend the school, they create the impression that the school and church are two separate and distinct institutions. Certainly the church has as great a claim on the school as the school has on the church. Hence it is that the church should do its full part in trying to build a bridge between the church and the school.

A YOUNG MAN'S CREED.

First—I will never patronize an establishment that brutalizes man or shames his race.

Second—I will always do some part of my playing in the open air.

Third—I will not be made a lazy spectator of sport; I will taste for myself its zest and thrill.

Fourth—I will avoid over-ambition as I pray that I may be saved from over-work.

Fifth—I will choose the amusements that my wife can share.

Sixth—I will not spend Sunday in caring for my bodily pleasure so much that I forget my soul and its relation to God's kingdom.

Seventh—I will never spend on pleasure money that belongs to other aspects of my life.

Eighth—I will remember to enjoy a boy's sports again when my boy needs me as a chum.

Ninth—I will recollect that play should be for the sake of my mind as well as for my body; hence I shall not abuse these forms of entertainment that deal with ideas.

Tenth—I will never let play serve as the end of existence, but always as a means to make a man a better workman and a richer soul.—Rev. Herbert A. Jupp, Pastor, Oakland, Cal.

Week in Society

Twin Falls social life is undergoing a change. The time when a hostess could entertain all her friends at one afternoon or evening party is past. Twin Falls is growing and so many newcomers are now enjoying the social events that it is impossible to hold such large parties in the homes. The result is that the ladies are not living so much as they used to. Many small clubs are being formed now that the holiday season is approaching. Informal gatherings are popular. These are frequently neighborhood affairs and many new ideas for Christmas parties are being developed. It is almost impossible to find an afternoon to entertain without interfering with some club or account of so many local events and because of lack of space, the list of names at social functions will be omitted from this column. All social affairs should be by Wednesday night.

During the evening several musical numbers were given by the Misses Grooms. Miss Grooms, and Mr. C. J. Reid. The Misses Graham, Dick, Conover, Martin and Austin assisted in serving refreshments in the dining room, which was especially pretty in the prevailing autumn tints.

The bride was attended by Miss May Boyie of Jerome and the groom by Mr. H. T. Fulton. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. M. Anderson, using the ring service. Those in attendance at the wedding were immediate friends and relatives of the family. A further noteworthy event in the family history was also commemorated at this time, the same day, the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson. Dr. Anderson presented Mrs. Wilson with a name bracelet and a watch. A gold headband, on which was inscribed 1853-1912. These gifts were from the children. Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. E. A. Hamilton, Mrs. Wiley, and the bride and groom, and were intended as an outward token of the joy which the bride and groom bear toward their worthy and venerable parents. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson were also the recipients of the hearty congratulations of the guests at having attained an age so ripe and a life so worthy and full of good works.

After the very delicious and well-served wedding supper was tastefully served, the guests adjourned shortly after the conclusion of the repeat. Those in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilson and daughter, Fred Wilson, Joe Wilson, Mrs. Katie Ray, Mrs. Marion Atkin, Mrs. E. A. Hamilton, Mrs. Frank Hazel, Mr. H. T. IDAHO HONEY LEADS.

L. C. McCarty and party of specialists shipped a car of choice honey, consisting of 38,000 pounds, from Caldwell last week to Cincinnati. It brought a good price, 11-1/2 cents per pound being received for it here. Mr. McCarty says Idaho honey brings the top price as it is thicker and heavier than honey from Colorado and most other honey-producing sections. It is also of superior flavor to any other than the California product. While some of the California honey is high class there is much of it that is not highly flavored.—Nampa Record.

Coffee

A roasted coffee bean is as porous as a sponge; it can't keep in its aroma, or keep out odors, if exposed to air. Leaving it whole, to be ground as used, doesn't keep it fresh.

The modern scientific way, as used with Schilling's Best, is to granulate it promptly after roasting and preserve it in aroma-tight cans.

1 lb., 2 lb., and 2 1/2 lb. cans 40c, 75c, and 90c each.
