INDOOR BASEBALL DONEDS BEAT BACHELORS IN 1 TO 0 GAME.

The teams in the local indoor baseball league are improving fast. The games last Thursday night were a better exhibition of the great national sport than is often seen on an outdoor diamond.

The first game, when the married men and single fellows crossed bats, was no more a real game as it is possible to see. Both pitchers were right and both teams played airtight ball.

The second game was just as hot. The Alameda got together in a way they had not done before and put up the real article of baseball for six long hours.

There will be two big games Friday night this week. Dec. 26, High school boys, 7:30 p. m. Dec. 27, box score of the games follows:

CHRISTMAS FOR TWO

THOMAS L. MASSON

It is a common mistake to suppose that we are creatures controlled by reason. In reality, we are the children of impulse. Our environment often forces us to conclusions which seem to be based upon reason, but are due to the multiplicity of outward sensations impinging upon our minds.

If I had been a reasonable being, I should never have fallen in love with Miss Galbraith. It was an illogical proceeding, because it made my presence in the lancers' club, which I had formed three years before, extremely uncertain—or, at least, it seemed to me to be uncertain.

Nothing was more desirable than my club. We had every comfort, in addition to good fellowship; and the fact that we were all members did not preclude us from the society of outsiders. Indeed, it acted as a sort of guarantee, for it seemed to surround us with an additional safeguard.

Miss Galbraith's father had left her several millions. She owned the building in which our club was centered. The agent had called on me only three weeks before Christmas to tell me that we must either sign another three years' lease, or vacate on the 1st of January. There were twenty-two of us, and we had already agreed—it was in the constitution—that the club should be immediately disbanded if any member got married. We all knew Miss Galbraith, and we were all in love with her; but no yet no man had been sufficiently foolish—or successful—to break the spell.

I caught Fenon, our vice-president, calling on Miss Galbraith one night and afterward, in the club rooms, what it was all about.

"Look here, old man," I said, "it seems to me that you are taking chances. Of course, you don't play around her. Why, the future of this club depends on your keeping away from that girl!"

"You're a nice man to talk," said Fenon. "That in the world are you doing around there? You ought to set a better example."

"Of course, you ought," repeated Van Olcott, coming up. "Why, I had some notes of hers or about it myself; but when I saw you going, I made up my mind that I might as well go, too."

"That's the way you fellows—all reason," I said hotly. "Why, during the week, the entire club is around at Miss Galbraith's! The other night, we couldn't get a quorum to discuss the renewal of our lease. At any moment some member may get her."

life of you. We're actually driving you out from here at the best time of the year. It's a shame!"

"Never mind," she said softly. "I need a change, anyway. I am going to open up my country place, and have a real country Christmas." She looked at me appealingly. "How would you like to run down there for the holidays?"

Her words went through me like an electric shock. For I was the chosen one. I had suspected it for some time.

"Do you really mean it?" I asked. I could see even then, the magnificent stretches of country surrounding that beautiful estate, and the stately mansion in the center. Everything was there that the mind or heart could wish, and I was to be lord of it all. Not that I cared for the money—I felt that she knew that.

"Certainly I mean it. You can run down the day before and stay over for a few days. My aunt will chaperon us. Now, you must go, as I have some business to attend to."

It seemed too good to be true. For the next week I went about as one in a dream. Luck was with me, even to the elements, for the day before Christmas dawned unclouded, and gave me the opportunity to run my car down to Miss Galbraith's instead of taking the train, which I detest.

It was only a twenty-mile run. I arrived at six o'clock. As I stepped into the hall, I noticed an unusual commotion. Suddenly, from behind a pillar, I form appeared forth. It was that of Fenon.

"Hello, old man! All the boys are here—the boys!"

"The boys?" I exclaimed. "What the devil do you mean?"

At that instant I gazed around with a mixture of surprise and curiosity. The hall was filled with a group of young men, dressed in the latest holiday fashions. They were all looking at me with expressions of interest and surprise.

HIS FIRST CHRISTMAS SURPRISE

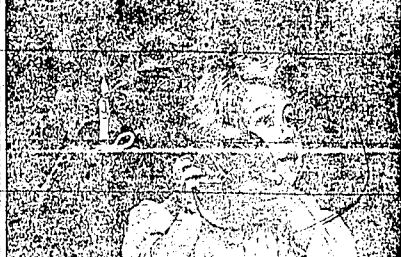

TELLING THEIR WANTS

It was not ignorance of the hours kept by the club that started him out so early as ten o'clock that evening. Tom read the society columns to good purpose. He knew that if the Kittidges were giving a Christmas Eve ball, among those present would assuredly be Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Whitmore and their daughter, Miss Evangeline Whitmore, who would probably be charming in rose chiffon and pearls. This meant that the Whitmore Christmas presents, still lurking in drawers and desks, offered an unusually wide selection, and Tom browsed peacefully among them for half an hour. Then, adding to his pocket collection Miss Evangeline's Jeweled case and two hundred dollars from Mr. Whitmore's desk, he slipped down the stairs again and made the mistake of pushing in the door.

LOOKED THE PART.

It was just the faintest little mouse-like click, but it meant a latch-key in the front door, not twenty feet away, and Tom had to act on the instant. Only reflexes save a heavy plain curtain suggesting a concealed door, but he darted behind its folds. The door was locked on the other side, and the front door had opened now, and his change of position was impossible. Tom allowed the policeman, thinking that by standing straight in the narrow space he made no perceptible lunge in the plush. With his pocket knife he deftly slit a peephole in time to see a young man come slipping, unceremonious steps into the room. Obviously this was Miss Evangeline. She was panting a little, her hands pressed nervously together, her teeth working at the lower lip. She began to pace up and down, very stiffly, with some expression in every line. Suddenly she paused, listening, her eyes directed straight at the plush hanging. Tom, served for a moment's abridgment, poised himself in readiness to act on the first notice; but she turned and went swiftly to the front door. An instant later she came back with a young man.

COUNTING THE MINUTES

"What's important?"

Juliet Wilbur Tompkins

CHRISTMAS Eve was always a busy night for Mr. Thomas Patterson. He had invariably done the biggest business of the year at that time, except for three successive Christmas days spent under the conservative regimen of the "great century."

Mr. Patterson was frankly and on the whole successfully, a bachelor. He did not take from the poor, but he had never found that worth while. His victims were always those who could afford to lose—and to be helped. It could be claimed that he belonged to the charitable type, that abundance of spirit in order to save the baby or, touched by feminine gentleness, returns, some by the next day. Nor was he the busy-rat man for whom the third hand might be the best. A little blue-green, and he might have passed for a planner's assistant. It was not ignorance of the hours kept by the club that started him out so early as ten o'clock that evening.

you so much that I don't trust my own judgment. It has seemed to me that he was unfair—I could be bolder if only I didn't realize how utterly un-justified I am."

"I have to have you take them," he protested.

Tom had waited for her to take them. The case was at that moment in the right-hand pocket, together with several other trifles from her dressing table.

"I'll be back in five minutes," she was saying, drawing away reluctant hands.

When she had gone as far as the door, Tom took charge of the situation. He threw back the curtain, fixing a cautioning hand at the faint scream.

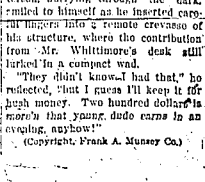

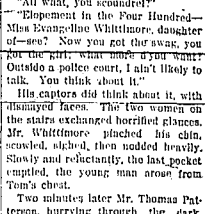

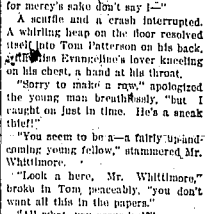

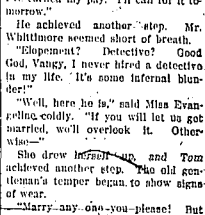

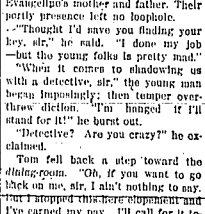

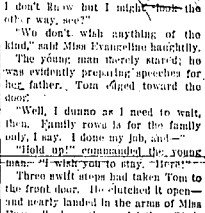

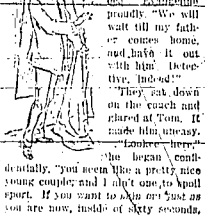

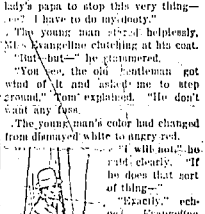

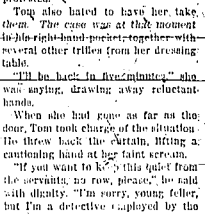

"If you want to be quiet from the servants, my own peace," he said with dignity. "I'm sorry, young fellow, but I'm a detective, and I'm a detective by the lady's papa to stop this very thing—I have to do my duty."

"The young man's eyes of helplessness, Miss Evangeline's clinging at his coat, and the fact that he was a detective, all these things were in Tom's mind."

"You see, the old gentleman got wind of it and asked me to step round," Tom explained. "He don't want any fuss."

"The young man's color had changed from diamond white to angry red. He said, 'I will not,' he said clearly. 'If he does that sort of thing,' he growled.

"You see, the old gentleman got wind of it and asked me to step round," Tom explained. "He don't want any fuss."

SEED GROWERS AT POCATELLO

Annual Convention to Encourage the Production of Better Seed.

On January 19, 20, 21, at Pocatello, the annual convention of Idaho seed growers and the state seed fair will be held.

It is the purpose of these events to give a new year's impetus to the campaign for better seed in Idaho.

The seed fair will feature a wide variety of seed material, and will include a display of the best seed material available in Idaho.

For further information and program lists address J. W. Sessions, Vice-President, Pocatello, Idaho, or H. H. Taylor, Secretary, Boise, Idaho.

and will be published in pamphlet form with the program. Copies may be had upon application to H. H. Taylor, Secretary, Boise, Idaho.

UP IN THE AIR

YOUR HAIR MAY BE YOUR FORTUNE

Beautiful hair has made the fortune of many a woman, by adding charm and brilliancy to an otherwise plain face.

Without it you can't be beautiful; with it you will be at least pretty.

To have beautiful hair, use Harmony Hair Beautifier. It will improve the condition of your hair, taking away all dullness and stringiness, softening and adding every hair in your head and making it soft, silky, glossy, and quick and thorough cleansing.

For further information and program lists address J. W. Sessions, Vice-President, Pocatello, Idaho, or H. H. Taylor, Secretary, Boise, Idaho.

It will be offered for many of the farmers' problems and an opportunity will be given for all to present their seed grain and weed difficulties before a body of persons deeply interested in these things.

All concerned in better seed and better markets for the same are earnestly invited to send exhibits to the fair and attend the convention.

For further information and program lists address J. W. Sessions, Vice-President, Pocatello, Idaho, or H. H. Taylor, Secretary, Boise, Idaho.

PREMIUM FOR STATE SEED FAIR

Narrow Brothers of Twin Falls, Give One Premium.

The state seed fair, which will be held under the direction of the Idaho Seed Growers' Association, Pocatello, Idaho, on Jan. 19, 20, 21, offering 250 cash prizes and an honor award in all classes of seed grain, alfalfa and timothy seed are required for each exhibit: 25 lbs. of grains and potatoes; and 10 ears of corn.

In addition to the regular cash premiums in which the first average yield and the second best average yield will be offered in nearly all classes, D. C. MacWaters of Jerome, offers a freighter's Dorse Jensen boat valued at $50, for the best display of corn.

The Idaho Banker's Association offers $100 in gold to the exhibitor who has the best display of wheat and timothy seed.

The John Deere Flour Co., Boise, offers a Clifton Farming outfit to the exhibitor of the best wheat.

Narrow Bros. of Twin Falls, offer a 100 lb. sack of flour to the exhibitor of the best flour.

At 10c a line you bring your wants to your neighbors' door.

You will be up in the air, too, if you wait until the last minute to buy your Christmas presents. You will have less time in which to make your selections, and the variety of offerings will be less. You will have to take what you can get, not what you want. There are scores of reasons for buying early and not one for delay. Be Reasonable! Buy Your Presents Early. Want ads speak for themselves; no arguing necessary.

PLANS FOR COLLEGE BUILDINGS

Architects Busy on Plans for Methodist College at Gooding.

Geo. W. Pillsbury has the designs that architects are busy laying out the plans of the Gooding College building.

General Treasurer of the Niagara Spring Orchard company of Salt Lake City, will submit a plan as well as Geo. H. Carley of Helena, Montana, and W. C. Bennett of Gooding.

The plan will be for two buildings and the location of six. The best one selected by the board will get the job, after which he will start the plans for the entire site.

One of the principal features in the college proposition will be a stadium, which will overlook the athletic field. This will be built of concrete.

Geo. H. Carley drew the plans for the University of Minnesota, and has been successful in securing the best several large colleges in the west.

He was in Gooding one day this week and held the designs and will give information there was available.

Wayland and Penell were the architects for the Gooding high school, and they used Pills' introduction.

RABBITS FOR THE POOR

Southeastern Idaho (In a Plenty, What Not In a Scarce)

Over in Oregon the farmers are getting in their Santa Claus, and will distribute among rabbits as the result of drives there, among the hungry in Portland. 3 Poodition aliquid says: 'I'm giving a four month wife fence, donated by the Portland Commercial Club, Oregon farmers are killing these sweet lumps of rabbit pots and they are providing food for the hungry at Portland and in many Oregon cities. The first fruits of the effort are 1200 rabbits, taken near Hammond, Pringle and Olive over two sections of land. The rabbits were sent to the needy at Portland Friday night. Farmers say millions of rabbits are overrunning the district between Idaho, on the 22nd, 24th and 26th of the month, and will be killed 250,000 and it is believed 500,000 will be taken in the Hollman district alone. The drives are to be conducted over an area of 25 square miles of wheat country. Express companies are making the shipments of the rabbits to cities without charge.

WASHINGTON NOTES

Federal Aid to be Given States for Highways

(Special Correspondence) States Enrolled.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—(Special Correspondence) The past week have made it more certain than before that the Republican national committee will call a national convention for the reorganization of the Republican party.

While Senator Ford recoiled with amazement at such a proposal, the major demands of the wing of the party headed by Senators Canning, Hays and Norris, is to a categorical demand that these same progressive Republicans have evinced no intention of yielding to demands from Kansas and Nebraska that they cut loose from the Republican ship.

While the Washington Post in giving the situation refers to Senator Dorr as a presidential possibility, it is generally regarded as occupying an exceptionally strong position at this time, the senator and his associates do not seem to be concerning themselves about it and are apparently doing nothing to further his chances in this direction.

Senator Canning has at all times been an inveterate party fighter and he enters a senatorial fight in Iowa, which is to be won only with a homogeneous Republican backing.

Progressive lines were badly broken in the November elections. It is estimated that little inducement was needed to start a general stampede for Republican ranks.

President Wilson's unexpected resignation of a presidential nomination has lifted the political balance precariously. It is on such an occasion a method of effective Republican reorganization, and caused a rift in the ranks of which Democratic has evoked harmonious tones.

Republican party, but the new era of unbridled interest in Washington. The virtues arrogated to himself by Gov. Hiram Johnson have been exposed on a foundation—frankly admitted source.

The New York conference, in its despite of the many conflicting and different indications that a successful national meeting of Republicans will be held.

In view of the proposed state and county road improvements in the states of Idaho, Washington and Oregon for the construction of a general trunk system, Senator Brady has advised with the secretary of the interior relative to the government doing its part in the way of appropriating sufficient money for the construction of highways on the Nez Perce Indian reservation.

Senator Brady called to the attention of the secretary the near completion of the Cello canal and the opening of the Columbia and Snake rivers to the benefit of the people of the country of which the Nez Perce Indian reservation is a part.

In addition to the road construction proposed by Nez Perce county, it is the plan of the Idaho state highway commission to construct a system of main-trunk roads from the Bayeto area northward by way of Grandville, Waha and Lewiston to a connection with the eastern Washington highway system at the Washington state line north of Lewiston.

A few days ago, when it believed to be the first time taken in a social conflict that has been going on for some six or eight months in official life in Washington.

The index of the cabinet tried to allay the feeling that had arisen, but was unable to do so. On the other hand, the secretary of state in a formal statement declared any such intention upon the part of the cabinet ladies and indicated the course of the cabinet ladies to be that which had been followed by their predecessors.

Court Says Federal Power Is Supreme of Federal Lands

The contention of the government that power companies can not secure rights of way across national forests without complying with the regulations of the federal government has been completely sustained, according to the officers of the forest service, by the opinion of the circuit court of appeals on November 14, 1933.

On December 15, 1933, the Utah Power and Light company has questioned the federal government's right to acquire certain public lands in the state of Utah, now forming a part of the Arco national forest. The federal government has a complete title to all rights and title to the public lands within their state.

It was contended by the company that it was protected in its tenure by the laws of the state of Idaho. On the other hand, the federal government contended that it was protected in its tenure by the laws of the state of Idaho.

Moreover, the act of May 14, 1896, which specifically provides for federal regulation of electric power on the government lands, was passed before the Utah Power and Light Company was organized in 1906.
