THE 38

The Times prints the intelligence of its readers for the smaller paper published on New Year's Day. A four-page paper is not to be the ordinary size of the Times and next week eight pages will be published each day.

The printing and some things, the publisher has no objection to the holiday and this Christmas day and New Year's Day occurred on the press day for the Times, therefore without further apology the Times is striving to force a rest.

The meeting in the high school auditorium next Monday night should be the place of interest for every parent in this city when the question of what to do with the boys will be discussed. The sentiment is pointing rapidly toward a more liberal and sane policy of dealing with the boys and to make it the social center in a great many ways.

PAID-POST CHECK FOR CHRISTMAS.

A Christmas gift that appears to be wholly appreciated is Districtmaster General Thurston's order increasing advertising limits, reducing rates, and adding books to the parcel post. Most of these changes will take place on January 1.

ing eight ounces or less is to be expected for each two ounces (the present three-ounce rate) on these weighing over eight ounces the same parcel-post rates are to apply.

In an editorial estimate of the effect of the changes the Philadelphia Record points to the conclusion that the increase in the weight limit in the parcel post is to be made, the parcel post will carry two-thirds of the traffic hitherto carried by the express companies, while a great volume of new business may be expected from the rural districts, which are articulated with the parcel-post service by the free rural delivery.

There is no doubt that this development of the service will be very beneficial to the people who have already enjoyed a light and general appreciation of the facilities in this connection with which they have been supplied, and if it puts the express companies out of business, as is not unlikely, these companies will only have themselves to blame for their elimination.

government to finish this project at cost. If the reclamation service should show that sufficient funds are not available, I trust that your board may go so far as to propose to reauthorize to your next legislature the passage of the necessary constitutional amendment, so that the state may cooperate with the national government in joining for dollar lands the Oregon project.

The plan of asking the government to complete the project certainly appears worthy of the attention of the state. If the company makes an honest effort to secure the cooperation of the United States, Mr. Meredith would be pleased to see a bill for the purpose that the government be reimbursed by the government for every dollar that they have expended in legitimate construction work in their behalf.

Mr. J. H. Hild informed me that in a few days it will be necessary for him to apply for another extension of time in view of the fact that a number of the settlers are applying to the reclamation service for assistance. I should be glad to see you, board chairman, responsible for the extension of time that the settlers have entered into their contracts with the company and the state, but the contract holders under this project must be completed within five years; but that the law was subsequently changed so as to allow them to extend the term of their contracts, and that the settlers who were parties to the contract granted this company three years additional in which to complete the project.

MAKING AND MENDING MISTAKES

We all make mistakes—it's human to do so. You make them, and so do we, for we're human, too. Our biggest mistake was that we didn't know that you, as a partner—in our business (your business) wanted to know how we ran your company.

We've shown you, and we're going to keep on showing you, that our finances, our methods, our rates, and our revenues are clean, right, and honest. We've shown you, and we're going to keep on showing you, that our finances, our methods, our rates, and our revenues are clean, right, and honest.

It cost that much to make your service. We don't believe that any corporation in the country can show a balance sheet that has that kind of a showing is fair, both to the public, and to the investor. You see your company is different from other corporations.

SOCIETY NOTES

During the Christmas holidays the young ladies of the younger set have assembled at several parties. A number of the young ladies who are spending the Christmas holidays at home from college on Monday evening, Jan. 1, were entertained at a dinner and stunner party and on Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Harry Alexander entertained at a luncheon at her home on the Kimberly road. The house was beautifully decorated with the Christmas colors of red and green, and the young ladies enjoyed the Christmas entertainments at a five hundred party. At the close of the afternoon the ladies separated on their various homes.
