The citizens in the residence district are getting rather wrought up over the dog nuisance and rightly so. Dog owners in various parts of the city have failed to obey the ordinance which states that the dog is to be kept on a leash, and that the dog is to be kept clean. Many of the dogs are regularly licensed and protected from the dog catcher and still have just as much power to annoy the unlicensed citizens of the city. Still a nuisance is a nuisance and under the ordinance of this city can be suppressed provided the city takes the right attitude in the matter.

Not a citizen owning a dog of any color animal has the right, morally or legally, to annoy his neighbors and should take the right view of the matter. Dogs can be made to behave nicely through the night. If sufficient attention is given the problem by the owners. Those owners who cannot keep the dogs from annoying the public should complain if the city demands the elimination of the dog. A little more attention to the concerns of the night police would certainly make a hit with the public and possibly bring the nuisance to an abrupt termination.

At any rate any citizen complaining of broken rest from howling dogs can be made to know why and what to do. As a taxpayer he is entitled to a certain amount of protection from nuisance of all kinds.

The ideas of economy which are being carried out by the school board through its superintendent, are possibly the wisest ever put forth on an economic basis. At the beginning of the year when the new system was first introduced added expense to the school system, the board went forth that if the parents would economy they would get it. Naturally people expected that the board would show up everything in the way of luxurious or added curriculum. As a starter for that wonderful economy the first step was the addition of a sewing department with a new instructor, a number of new sewing machines and a number of little electric motors to run the same. Of course the new instructor expected a good salary and got it. The equipment cost some more. Besides, added expense instead of curtailment. Now instead of the information that the actual system is to be supplied with a milking machine for the agricultural department, more expense. This new department is presently being attended by the superintendent in order that the number of girls have not exceed fifty in the room. Other schools have at times exceeded that number and survived. Wonder if enrollment of expense in order that Twin Falls may get the maximum of students in other of her times the size. The board should be so of this.

quoted to the kickers here as an pattern for Twin Falls schools. How to bring on a new staff, about the same sort. Twin Falls citizens must continually boost or be classed as undesirable citizens by the school board and pay it all, the limit set by the state. Why should Twin Falls have to pay more per capita for educating its children than its wonderful pattern, Boise. After considering all of these wonderful economies it occurs to the writer that what is needed is not a similar economy but a change of the administration of the schools to men who can distinguish real economy from the brand that is being passed off on the taxpayers at present.

AN AMERICAN SLAP AT THE MONROE DOCTRINE

Professor William H. Hall, an expert on Latin America, where he has traveled extensively, has published a work under the title, "The Monroe Doctrine in a Critical Study." He was unfortunately consulted by the editor of the Berliner Tagblatt, to communicate to its readers, in the columns of that leading German paper, his views on United States policy in South America, a country where German interests are yearly becoming of great importance. The professor begins his article, telling his readers that they must be careful to distinguish between the Monroe Doctrine of 1823 and the newer Doctrine which was developed under Cleveland's administration by Secretary of State Olney on the occasion of the Venezuela incident. On this point Dr. Hinchman says:

"The new Monroe Doctrine rests on false premises and its activity is derived from impossible theories. Only listen to what Olney says: 'The States of North and South America by their geographical position, their political history, the similarity of their form of government, commercial and political interests and all other things, constitute a single geographical unit, the Latin and Anglo-Saxon republics establish the soundness of any such presumption. On the contrary, he remarks: 'Any scholar knows that this statement is not in harmony with the real geographical position and proximity of South America to the countries of the world. The greatest of these is Great Britain, which is situated north nearer to Spain and Portugal for instance. That they are to New York and New England, Key West is not nearer to Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires than it is to Gibraltar, and the general route from Valparaiso to San Francisco is longer than that from Valparaiso to London. Peru is bordered by the Pacific Ocean, and yet is further from Puerto Spain than from London.'

To talk about national sympathy, says the professor, is merely to throw dust into the eyes of the American people. 'Such sympathy has no existence, at least in regard to South America.' To quote further: 'From the South American point of view the Monroe Doctrine of today is not only a burden to be borne, but an actual injury which, on a later date, because we are ignorant of the position of things in South America, we have assumed the attitude of the Helot brother with the Club who at one time might have been justified in assuming a control which today is unprofitable. . . . It is necessary for us to understand one for all—that the ruling powers of South America are quite able to take care of themselves and already are strong enough to meet our Monroe Doctrine with defiance.'

The implications of this fact are before us. It confirms the authority on diplomacy and South American affairs. The newspapers, monthlies, and university teachings show that in Latin America the claims of the Monroe Doctrine "everywhere exists, hated and antagonized." This point he discusses, "before" as he says, the action of his essay, but lets his voice be warning. "The writing on the wall is visible," he says dramatically, "Brazil has the largest dreadnought in the world." Argentina and Peru are building ships of war." He continues:

"The writing on the wall—I will not say that a Monoclonal hand has shaped the letters. It is not so simple to cover so many thoughtful minds in South America the Atlantic in which Latin, Indian, and Gaelic blood are to be closely intermingled. The leading Indian inhabitants of Peru, Bolivia, Ecuador, and Colombia, according to an eminent anthropologist, do closely resemble the natives of Northern Asia. This the hypothesis of South America being originally colonized by Asiatics negates any idea of spontaneity. It is a present, quite probable that this colonization is actually going on. One thing is certain. The Mongol question in South America has reached a critical stage. The position Brazil has taken with regard to Japanese immigration is exactly opposite to that taken by California. Argentina actually welcomes the Japanese, and these immigrants are so numerous that the Japanese government has established a direct line of steamships by the Cape of Good Hope route. Another Japanese line passes by way of Honolulu to the west coast of South America."

If Latin America is powerfully reformed from Asia it is better for us, says the writer, to have "a fit" Argentina, Brazil, and Chile for their aid and not for enemies. "This, we must not forget," says the professor, is not a debatable, he continues, to think that the Monroe Doctrine helps our commerce. We should follow Germany's example: "Germany has shown, especially by her action in Brazil, how this is to be done. It is true that she is only a powerful in army and navy as America and not a white stronger." He looks at the matter from a local point of view we should find that nothing hurts commerce so much as political interference, which makes enemies for us not only in South America, but also in Europe, and involves a costly loss of the world. It is not wiser to heed the warning of James Bryce, who holds that an advocate of peace should gain the greatest audience and eventually control the whole western hemisphere, and thus insidiously, really from holding an umbrella over other people who already have one of their own, or from holding it over a friend when it is not raised. Translation made for The Literary Digest.

IMMENSE FEDERAL BANK IN N. Y.

Reserve Bank Capital of $100,000,000—50 Per Cent of Capital Paid.

New York—The task of setting up the machinery which is to put into motion the new banking system of the country was taken up here Monday by the federal reserve organization committee, composed of Secretary of the Treasury, department and Secretary Houston of the department of agriculture.

In this committee devolves the responsibility of mapping out the regional reserve districts and locating a bank in each. To add it in reaching the decision the committee Monday by a series of hearings which will be conducted three days later in New York and subsequently in the important financial centers of the country.

A number of New York's leading financiers, who are outlining on the subject Monday Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the National City Bank, said he thought his committee would find it impossible to set up a plan that would fulfill all requirements.

"It presents almost an insurmountable problem," said Secretary McAdoo, when Mr. Vanderlip had given his opinion as to the manner in which the regional reserve districts should be drawn up.

"I think that what you are facing," said Mr. Vanderlip, "is essential and correct, but the whole spirit of this law, if we get the proper oversight and control the law will work in spite of its defects. It will do that."

The majority opinion of the witnesses favored the creation in New York of a regional bank of such magnitude that it would absorb at least 50 per cent of the $100,000,000 capital available for the entire system of the country. Such a district would include not only New York, New England, New Jersey, Delaware and part of Pennsylvania.

Secretary McAdoo suggested that the regional bank here be divided into the other regional banks, of which, according to the law, there must be at least seven. The reply was made that a bank of such size would be needed here in order that it might command the respect of European bankers and hold its own with the great individual banks in New York.

Establishment of a large bank in New York was advocated by Francis J. Time, president of the State Street bank; Walter Frew, president of the Corn Exchange bank; Charles A. Conant, financial expert and writer; A. Vernon Stephens, chairman of the House National bank; Alexander J. Cassell, president of the Guaranty Trust company; James M. McLaughlin, president of the National bank and others.

CHURCHES

Combined Service to be inaugurated.
Next Lord's day the First Methodist church will introduce the combined order of the Bible school and church service. The Bible school will convene at 10:30 instead of 9:45 and the church service will close at 11:45, at least effecting a saving of 45 minutes by this arrangement. This arrangement has all the advantages of the old order and many new ones and the aid of the old advocates.
