After Discussion of Situation With Cabinet.

Washington—President Wilson has issued a proclamation that the Atlantic fleet will sail to Mexican waters to force a public apology from the Stars and Stripes from the Huerta government as an apology for the arrest of American marines at Tampico last March.

No ultimatum has been issued—that is, no specified time has been set within which the Huerta government must comply—but the naval demonstration has been ordered as a concrete evidence to the United States to back up Gen. Alvaro Obregon's demand for reparation. Up to Tuesday night General Huerta had not made satisfactory response to that demand.

Further developments depend upon how long it will take a high administration official—close to the president—announced the situation.

The decision to send the fleet was reached after the president and Secretary Bryan had conferred for a hour with Gen. Luis M. Obregon, representative of President Wilson in Mexico, and after a two hour cabinet meeting during which dispatches from Charge O'Shaughnessy revealed that the Huerta government delayed the fight of American sailors and ships to Tampico—conceded that its recent statement of apology was ample.

Immediately after the cabinet meeting Secretary Daniels issued his order to Admiral Maye to proceed to Tampico, flushed up and down the Atlantic coast to put the fleet under steam for Tampico. It will be the largest fleet force the American government has assembled for possible action since the Spanish-American war. Forty-six warships and 21,000 men will comprise the force of Tampico.

Everywhere, at the White House, the state department, and the navy department, the hope was expressed that the Huerta government would not lead to serious consequences and there was a confident prediction among administrative officials that General Huerta would see the wisdom of satisfying the American demand.

Other officials, however, were careful to point out that negotiations with the Huerta government had not ended and that the way was still open to General Huerta to make amends.

The many departmental experts, including the chief of the Atlantic fleet, on board the battleship Arkansas, at Hampton Roads, Rear Admiral Pike, chief of the bureau of operations, left Tuesday night to personally explain to Admiral Maye the importance of the situation and the dispatches from Gen. Alvaro Obregon indicating the exact ships which will accompany Admiral Badger the following day.

"Admiral Badger will take with him the battleship Arkansas, Louisiana, New Hampshire, Michigan, Vermont, New Jersey and South Carolina, which Adm. Maye has intercepted en route from Haifa to Hampton Roads."

The gunboat Tacoma, now at Boston, Mass., also has now docked, to wait for the first regiment of the expeditionary force of marines."

The gunboat Waukegan, in addition to the Utah, Connecticut, Minnesota, Des Moines, Chester, Duluth and San Francisco, now at Tampa, and the Florida and Prairie at Vera Cruz, the torpedo boat Mutilla, at Pensacola, Fla., has been ordered to stand by for orders—intermediate.

The Wilson administration is certainly having more than its fair share of trouble with the tariff, currency, Panama tolls, and the like—present Mexican interests threatening to break out into war. Probably President Wilson will be glad at the end of four years to go back to the quietude of Princeton and its friendly sphere of influence.

The merchants and manufacturers of this city cordially should be recommended for the enthusiastic way in which they have added in making home industry work a success. One lady in this city in speaking of the courses chosen here during inspection of the various manufacturing plants stated that everywhere the proprietors and managers were very eager to give all information and attention to the visitors. The same spirit was shown by many merchants in generally allowing the use of their display windows for the home-manufactured products. A spirit of cooperation was shown on all sides this week and should not be allowed to die out during other fifteen weeks of the year. The sooner every business realizes that steady success of the other businesses is a stepping stone to the success of all the other, the quicker will Washington begin growing in popularity and wealth.

The statement of finances for the Commercial Club given in this issue shows a fairly loyal support of the institution by the business men. Closing the year with a small surplus in the right direction. The Times would suggest, however, that the publicity side of the club could be given greater impetus and that it should receive greater support than that by the people here. Not that there is any criticism for the club directors in the matter, who have done the best possible with the budget allowed for advertising, but any railroad development or anything in the way of industrial must come through the exploitation of the great resources here. It is in this feature of club work that should be given greater attention this year with the view to interesting tourists to the exposition next year in visiting this section and thus giving it greater publicity from their stories of their visits and actual inspection. There should be concerted effort on the part of this portion of the state to get publicity back in the eastern section. Not that the Times believes in getting more people into this section unless those here now can prosper, but to get the industries which will add to the welfare of the whole nation.

PRESIDENT WILSON APPEALS TO CONGRESS TO REOPEN THE NATION'S HONOR.

With the boldst blow President Wilson has done since entering the White House was to make a direct appeal last month to congress on the Panama canal tolls. He asked congress to reverse itself on a measure adopted only two years ago by a vote nearly three-to-one. He urged it to act in direct opposition, moreover, to explicit planks in the national Democratic and national Progressive platforms, and to the expressed views of his predecessors, Taft and Roosevelt. He must have known also that he was forcing himself into conflict on this subject with the Republican leader of the house, Mann, and with his own Democratic leader, Underwood, "ad. well." What is more, he knew that he was receding from his own position taken in the campaign of 1912. None of these considerations deterred him. Statistically forced to face with congress in full session for the sixth time in a year, he made his appeal to Congress but deeply earnest.

Now at first glance the subject of the president's appeal does not look like one of such tremendous import. The question is this: Shall we allow our own coastwise ships to pass through the Panama canal free of tolls, or charge them $1.25, or something, for each ton of cargo? As the law stands, they will be exempt from tolls. This question regards a "minutest economic policy," but it is not because of this that he makes such an earnest appeal. It is because he regards it as also "in plain contradiction" of our treaty with Great Britain. The national honor is, in other words, at stake, and one standing with the nations of the earth. Speaking to both houses of congress, he said:

"I have come to state to you a fact and a situation. Whatever may be our own differences of opinion concerning this much delayed measure, its meaning is not debated outside the United States. Everywhere else the language of the treaty is given but one interpretation, and that interpretation precludes the exemption I am asking."

Both houses of congress, to the tune of $15 of the $1.25, voted to accept the president's proposal.

The only thing to do is to withdraw from a position everywhere questioned and misunderstood. His voice took on an increased intensity as he closed with the following words: "I ask this of you in support of the foreign policy of the administration. I shall not know how to deal with matters of even greater delicacy and nearer consequence if you do not grant it to me in ungrudging measure." This appeal of a London paper, the Star, describes as "one of the most able attacks of statesmanship in the history of nations."

In taking this position, the president assumed a heavy risk of losing the hold he had acquired upon congress and upon his own party. He has, as one Washington correspondent puts it, "forced the administration into a blind alley the only escape from which is victory." The first fight came in the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce. The result was a majority report establishing the president, signed by 14 out of 18 members, and three minority reports, one signed by two Democrats and each of the other two signed by Republicans.

The majority report bears down hard upon our treaty obligations. "In the whole family of nations," it says, "we stand alone in our contumaciousness." The foreign governments objecting to our present construction of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty "can find a hundred points to retaliate and discriminate where we may blunder into us in one." The exemption of tolls, it moreover, "not in the interest of our entire people but in the interest of a small special class," a class "the most highly protected in the world," one "having no competition" and whose only request has been "that they may continue to enjoy protection against foreign competition in the domestic trade." As a nation, "we cannot afford to rest under the imputation, whether just or unjust, of disregarding our plighted honor, nor should we hold a debatable point far enough to stir up friction, resentment, or retaliation."

The clause of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty around which the controversy ranges is as follows:

"The canal shall be open to the vessels of commerce and war of all nations observing these rules, on terms of entire equality, so that there shall be no discrimination against any nation or its citizens or subjects, in the exercise of the conditions or charges

of traffic."

The points made by those who oppose the president are lucidly and briefly drawn. Senator O'Gorman insists that the word "vessel," as used above, means vessels engaged in overseas trade, not those engaged in local or domestic trade. He claims that this is the way the word was construed by Great Britain in the treaty of 1816 for more than sixty years, and that English lawyers writing in the London

Law Review have conceded that it may be so construed in the Hay-Pauncefote treaty. The N. Y. American, Mr.

Heard's paper, lays stress upon the word "observing these rules," as drawing a clear distinction between the United States, which adopt the rules, and all other nations, which observe them. Another point is made, by Lewis Nixon and others, that the words "and war" also clearly imply all nations other than the United States, as is our government placed in the position of having to pay to it for the passage of its own war vessels, the same tolls other nations

pay. Still another point persistently urged is the fact that since the Hay-Pauncefote treaty was made we have become the possessors of the Canal zone and the canal now runs through territory that virtually belongs to us,

making it as much an American canal

as the Erie or the Soo St. Marie. A little point rests upon the fact that our railway trade is already limited by law to American ships, and consequently a provision applying to these vessels engaged in the coastwise

trade of the United States is a matter pertaining to domestic commerce exclusively. On these five points rests the legal argument of those who depend the free tolls clause.

Reply to these five points run

about as follows: The Canal zone

has not become American territory

except in a limited sense. We possess sovereignty over it for a long but limited period, and possess it for one purpose only—to build, operate and maintain a canal. If we cease to operate the canal the territory reverts to Panama. It is not, therefore, an American canal in the same sense as the Erie canal is. Moreover, in the privately held before we obtained the Canal zone, is a clause providing that no change of territorial sovereignty or of international relations, of the country or countries traversed by the canal shall affect the general principle of neutrality. Great Britain's main contention in this case is that our country's ships mean an increase in tolls for all other ships, place under the rules already adopted, the

To All Who Desire to Ship Potatoes on Commission

A number of our farmers are of the opinion that better results can be obtained by shipping to Eastern markets through first-class distribution service. If you include yourself among these growers, we want to make you the following proposition:

We are most excellently equipped to give you the finest kind of service along this line. We are most centrally located in the natural market for Idaho potatoes. You will find that we have one of the best equipped and most efficient selling organizations to be found anywhere. You will find that we are favorably known in every Eastern market. And if you patronize us ultimately, you will find that it will pay you to take advantage of Boyle's offer to market your potatoes to us.

Having dealt with you and your friends for so many years, you know who we are, what we can do and how we can serve and protect you.

As having specialized in potatoes, we are familiar with every phase of the spud business. We have outlets that our competitors do not have. We have learned how, where and when to get the best potatoes for ourselves and how, where and when to sell them at the greatest profit.

All of this knowledge and experience and ability is at your service. Let's get busy for you. We give every care personal attention—and that means "personal" attention. We take care of your claims for loss due to negligence of the railroad company. We guarantee you prompt return. We see that you secure the very highest market on every car you allow us to handle.

Deal with us and be certain that there will be no pooling but that every car will be sold honestly and fairly on its own merits. Remember, too, that this proposition does not cost you anything for membership. We take care of everything. All you do is to give us your order. Rates furnished immediately upon request for same.

Competition or Regulation--Which?

This should interest those who have favored competition in this community.

It must be conceded as self-evident that competition results in duplicated local investment and division of revenue of each concern.

This being the case, where will the customer profit under competitive conditions when the rates of all utility concerns are subject to uniform state regulation and based upon a fair income upon the capital invested?

"What will it profit a consumer if he gains the competition of the whole world if he thereby loses his own right to reasonable rates?"

Can you convince yourself that lower rates will ensue under modern commission regulation in communities where competition is rife?

We are not quitters—we are willing to be game in a fair fight. It is obviously unfair, however, to every interest concerned to tie the hands of those capital-invested-in your community by commission regulation and then force it to battle for its very existence under competitive conditions.

POWDERY SCABA New and Dangerous Potato Disease

Powdery scab of the potato is a European disease which doubtless followed imported potatoes before the quarantine law went into effect. Every possible effort is being made to rent this disease and its friends on the part of the state boards and the co-operation of all interested in this crop is much needed to deal with this new potato malady. The department is issuing a bulletin (No. 82) entitled "Powdery Scab of Potatoes," giving full information on the disease and giving all the practical advice available at the present regarding its control.

Powdery scab does not attack the portion of the potato vines above the ground. It is primarily a disease of the young tubers which develop below the surface in the ground. The disease is made apparent by small, slightly raised pustules and a slight discoloration of the surface. When cut open, the infected areas appear watery purple and extremely friable, approach the rottenness of some of the tubers thrown away during harvest.

The "powdery-scab" fungus, if conditions are favorable, may eat large cavities into the immature potatoes, leaving them porous and the tubers brittle. It attacks the tubers growth and causes them to become deformed.

Last spring the department imported 35 varieties of potatoes from Scotland for seed purposes. All were found to be infected with powdery scab and had to be condemned. Nine varieties were imported from England for similar purposes and all infected with the disease. The disease has been found on potatoes from Holland, Norway, and Sweden. On the potato's native land—South America—the disease has been found. It was reported in several Provinces of Argentina.

From Canada the disease has made some headway across the border into northern Maine. This is the one place where there is a real danger at present from the infection, but artificial measures are being taken to prevent the disease and to prevent the shipment of diseased potatoes to other sections.

The "eradication" of powdery scab may be realized from the following statement by a conservative Canadian agriculturist:

"The eradication by me would be regarded highly. Severe attacks occur when potatoes are planted year after year on infested land. Where this is practiced the result will be potato blight, similar in quality to that of the potato blight in Ireland. This fact is worthy of notice, especially since, as in the case of cancer, no preventive measures have proved of much value."

American consumers Object to "Scab" Potatoes.

Any kind of plant or other injury that marks or defaces the potato tuber is a most serious handicap in the American market. This is true in foreign countries, also, in the fact that consumers abroad often refuse to buy scabby potatoes than consumers in the United States. There is even a whole potato market in Europe which is entirely composed of tubers which are not infested with scab. In the United States, when potatoes are put on the market, scabbed tubers must be sorted out, and therefore great care is used except for stock feed.

In the country of manufacture of scabbed tubers, the market for scabbed tubers is limited to the "pig" or seed potatoes in the autumn. This was 50 cents per barrel, while the clean stock brought $1.50 per barrel.

In the country of a whole hundred of varieties of seedlings of potatoes, there is no market for scabbed tubers, so they are put into the market. It is often difficult to market. There are frequent instances in the New York markets, according to import dealers, where certain requirements are rejected because of the presence of many scabby tubers. This is especially true in sections where potatoes constitute the chief crop.

In addition to the fact that potatoes affected with powdery scab are less acceptable to the American than to the European consumer, there is also the probability that American varieties of potatoes may prove more susceptible than European varieties to this disease in a new environment than in an old one. The varied climate and soil conditions of several of our states offer a wider range for the new potato malady. The brief experience

Mr. Master-of-the-House—be serious about this. It's not "play" you're buying so much as it is very important health and happiness.

→ Old-fashioned cooking methods cost nearly two hours a day of stupid work in preparing and cleaning up a dirty fire. That's five years!

→ Think it over and talk to us about it. Surely you can spare 3 cents a day for such a purpose.

GOVERNMENT REPORT ON IDAHO

Idaho State Debt, Funds, and Investments—1890 to 1912.

Washington, D. C.—Preliminary figures from the forthcoming bulletin pertaining to national and state indebtedness and funds and investments have been given out by Director W. J. Harris, of the Bureau of the Census, who is in charge of the work. The information will be given in detail in the Idaho carriers. Information for the states of Idaho, as well as for other states and the United States. The data were compiled under the supervision of Mr. John Lee Counter, expert special agent in charge of inquiry on wealth, debt and taxation.

The preliminary bulletin will soon be issued and will contain statistics for each year from 1890 to 1912, inclusive, and will also contain details for the year just nearly encompassing to 1890, thus making it possible to compare the financial condition during a period of over 20 years. The bulletin will show the total debt of the state for which no money details, such as the various classes of outstanding bonds and capital debt obligations to public, trust and semi-public and private parts. Under "Funds and Investments" will be shown separately all the different funds, and in each case cash and securities will be shown. The population of the states for each year under consideration will be given, and the amount of clear sinking fund assets will be given.

An inspection of the tables for Idaho in the bulletin soon to be issued shows that only nominal reported was obtainable. The amount of the bonded indebtedness increased from $147,000 in 1890 to $2,364,000 in 1912, while the floating debt, though changing greatly during the period covered, still shows a decrease from $93,000 in 1890 to $85,000 in 1912.

In the case of funds and investments no statistics were available for the securities held in 1890 and 1910. No securities were reported in 1890, but in 1891 the value fell to $60 in 1895, increasing steadily thereafter until 1912, when they amounted to $4,000,000. The cash shows a general increase from $24,000 in 1890 to $128,000 in 1912.

The floating debt increased from $1,000,000 in 1890 to $205,000 in 1912, and consequently the debt less sinking fund assets was less for each year reported than the total debt.

The population more than quadrupled during the period, but this was not sufficient to offset the increase in the number of households, which, while fluctuating to a marked degree with each year reported, showed a general increase from 2,15 in 1890 to 5,02 in 1912.

In 1890 the total debt of Idaho at the close of the fiscal year December 31, was $52,000. In 1912 it was $2,451,000, the increase being due to the constantly increased bond issues. The population of the state increased from 37,000 in 1890 to 362,000 in 1912; this increase, however, as stated above, was not sufficient to offset the increase in the number of households.

The per capita debts. The debt per capita more than doubled during this period. In 1890 the per capita debt was $2.54; in 1899 it was $2.15; in 1902 the amount was reduced to $1.65; increasing to $3.52 in 1912.

In the case of the funds and investments we find that, taking the entire debt less sinking fund assets) for the 48 states, the per capita, according to the latest report, is $3.52, $2.10 less than the then per capita debt for Idaho. Comparing the increase in the per capita debt with the decrease in the per capita debt of the total for the 48 states, we find that more than an inverse ratio, the total amount of increase for Idaho being $3.38 for the 30-year period, while in the average for the 48 states the increase was $1.55, slightly more than half the increase for Idaho.

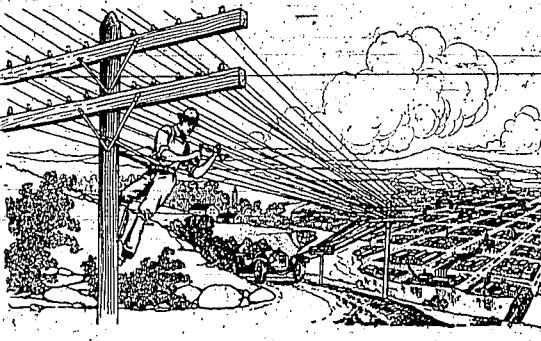

At the present time about 9.1 per cent of the total population of the United States will be found in the state of Idaho, and 0.6 per cent of the total debt (less sinking fund assets) is attributed to that state.

SEES OWINZA CUT-OFF

Richtfield People See Vision of Another Railroad.

Richtfield—Several officials of the Short Line visited this place recently, while their visit is cloaked with mystery, it is generally understood that the new line from this point to Owinza will be built through the valley, and when the completion of the Hill City branch west to Boise will eventually be the main line for all through traffic and Richtfield will be their division point between Pocatello and Boise. A glance at the map will show that this will make an air line between these points.

A few days ago a mysterious bunch of engineers dropped into Richtfield, from the northeast where, it is said, they are looking up the conditions for a road from the place to Caribou, and to the south, following the Little River from the point the Sinkers up the Birch creek valley and over to Leadore, where they will connect with the Gilmore road.

If the Northwestern or Hill Line are looking for an outlet to Boise a more favorable route could not be found.

This would give Richtfield two transcontinental lines, and make it one of the most strategic points from railroad view in southern Idaho.

The wonderful water power that can be developed in the Big Wood River would furnish cheap power for the machine shops.

While these things are going on the people are rapidly converting this into one of the best stock and agricultural trade centers in the state.

The great possibilities for this can be readily seen when the van area of grazing land tributary to Richtfield and the wonderful fertility of the soil, coupled with the best Carey act projects in the state.
