has seen at Osaka unhappy little girls of twelve playing the loom, from which they do their little hands of work for the eyes of twelve hours of the day. In Japan, he declares, there are 250,000 working girls under twenty. Each day, after their work is done, they clean up the shop, sleep two or three in the same bed, and have no holiday excepting once in fifteen days. Let us quote the conclusions at which Mr. Huxley arrives:

"Japan has shot to the end of her physical strength. She seems exhausted. The military aggression of the country has led to an out-of-all-proportion war. This has been endured with a true heroism, silent, unrecognized, willingly disintegrated through a pride which has enabled the people to add to the ordinary burdens of life those taxes imposed in order that iron-clads may be built, canons and rifles purchased, and a formidable army maintained on a war footing. Japan's victories over China and Russia did not enrich her treasury."

"Socialism, unemployment and even anarchy are against the reigning reaction. There have been some of the results of Japan's isolation of Western habits and usages. To quote further from Mr. Huxley:

"Japan is hungry; she is sick. The created socialism, and abject poverty has aroused the spirit of revolt. In Tokyo alone the number of the unemployed often exceeds one hundred thousand. There are, of course, plenty that lead us to this state of affairs. Beginning to blow over the Pacific, the moral principles which have given it its strength in this country."

"For instance, a violent 'populist' demonstration took place before the Imperial palace and a train which was carrying the Mikado was fired upon. Even the military virtues of the country are being impaired. According to a newspaper of Osaka, in a strike year more than 16,000 young men have endeavored to shirk military duty. But corruption in Japan goes deep, and will be perpetuated even the moral atmosphere of Japanese life, and we read:

"Faith vanishes and with it moral life. The corruption of the students of either sex is an avowed fact, according to a Japanese paper. Those who have escaped this corruption are totally lacking in energy and character."

"Mr. Huxley, who is an artist as well as a writer, writes with a keenness which is somewhat individually his. The Americanization and displacement of the country scenery, the culture of the West, and the forenoon of Japan's self in its education, its agriculture, its self-government to the 'mother' the passions are found to bring Japan down to the level of the worst states in the world while in their basest aspects. While Mr. Huxley does not dwell upon Japanese domestic politics, he remarks that the old political views of Japan as maintained by the ancient clans were naturally found to fail. They have been entirely destroyed and swept by the present generation which has a character of its own, the special needs of corruption. It is said that the naval academy shows that the naval authorities are in the pay of the German masters. It is then concluded upon the dangers of Japan's precarious position."

"Japan is enthroned by powerful members—the Imperial United States, autocratic Russia, and China ruled by a dictator. Little Japan, demoralized and feeble of her past, has terrible obligations. It must necessarily be that some day or other she must be brought in fact, before them. The progress of life which she now finds with such courage, bravado, recklessness, and dash. Literary Digest.

OVERFLOW FROM BARREL-TANK

Pipe Can Be Removed if Desired and Water Temp. Changed by Taking Out One of Corks.

Deeming it unnecessary to add an overflow to a barrel section which had fitted up for a tank and not caring to remove any of the attached pipes, I slipped a piece of rubber tubing over the end of a piece of pipe so as to make a water-tight fit, and inserted it in the outlet in the manner

Detachable Overflow.—As shown, writes James M. Kane of Hoylistown, Pa., in Popular Mechanics. Holes were drilled in the pipe at intervals and plugged with corks. The water can be made to overflow at any height by removing a cork in the plug at that level. The rubber tubing can be discarded and the pipe threaded to fit into the waste out-at-the-bottom.

Red Raspberries.—Red raspberries should not be plucked, but should be pruned back from two and one-half to three and one-half feet before growth starts in the spring. Or commercial growers use young ones that are weak. With Schaffer, of Columbia, the new growth should be tipped when it attains a growth of 18 inches. In order that a bushy growth may develop.

THE EXPRESS IS IN THIS TOWN AND IN TO STAY

For seventy-five years three-quarters of a century—the express has been the right-hand of the shippers of commercial America. The Express came to Twin Falls in 1891 and it came to stay. For 10 years it has been the right-hand of commercial Twin Falls. It is here to stay. The other day when reports went out that the express companies might retire from business, a protest went from whom this protest, the express companies? No! The merchants of the country—shippers everywhere—petitioned Congress that no action be taken that might have the effect of forcing the express companies to retire. Commercial organizations all over the land have joined in this appeal to Washington. For seventy-five years in the past and for a good many more years in the future Express Service will mean to the delicate situation in which I am placed, inasmuch as the law gave authority to say what screens, if any, should be installed, and that this authority would enable me to levy a tribute upon every screen installed if I saw fit to do so.

In view of this fact I insisted that a competent engineer should be secured to pass upon the merits of the screen to measure the flow of water both before and after installation of the screen, in order to determine whether or not the installation would work as determined by water meters by reducing the flow of water in canals and laterals where the flow is measured.

Following up this matter, I asked you, and through you requested State Engineer Kirk to designate one of his assistants to witness the installation and make the tests above mentioned, and in compliance therewith designated J. M. Barrett, whose report I have herewith attached.

The demonstration was made at Blackfoot on the 18th and 19th of October, and the report which is on file in the game warden's office, is dated October 23. You will recall that at about this time, in company with other members of the state board, you visited Mackay and while there had your attention called to the situation at Mackay.

As a result of our conference, I sent Douglas David Barrett and P. P. Rich to make an investigation. The report of Mr. Barrett is on file in the game warden's office and may be inspected by you at any time.

On November 1 I visited Mackay and looked over the situation myself and reached the following conclusions: That the present installation was not sufficient to prevent this loss was to keep the fish out of the canal by means of the fish screen matter and felt that I had your approval in the action taken.

The screens having been approved, the question presented itself as to how to procure the installation without incurring too much outlay. In furtherance of this I suggested that you take two or three times to confer with the fish screen company as to the methods of handling the screens and making them available.

to be denied by anyone who has ever investigated the loss of trout in irrigating ditches. It is also true that there are many places where screens would not serve a useful purpose for the reason that no game fish abound in the waters which supply the canals.

Each case requires an investigation and it would have been my policy had I remained in charge of the department, not to compel the installation of screens where they would not be beneficial.

I am sure the opinion that I rendered in regard to the installation of screens should be changed, I believe, the sportmen of this state will be willing to pay a greater license fee, provided the extra money so raised is put in a fund to be used for the installation of screens, and I feel certain that those who are operating their installations will make such a study of the matter as I have will agree with me.

In closing, I wish to assure you that I shall be only too glad to meet any person in your presence who has had much and course enough to make an open charge that I have acted in any unbecoming way in my connection with this office.

I am sending this letter to the public in order to forestall the circulation of such baseless rumors as above referred to. I also wish to assure you that I shall not lose my interest in the game department, but shall continue to be interested in the enactment of better laws and the adoption of better methods.

Very truly yours, O. H. BARRETT
