

PRESENT WAR A SETTLEMENT OF OLD QUARRELS

Natural Ending of Long-Standing Ill Feeling Between Austria and the Slav Nations.

LONG HISTORY OF INTRIQUE

Dieme of Diplomacy Played by the Czar and Francis Joseph Has Hitherto Been Won by the Latter, But Today Conditions Are Changed.

Washington.—Russian diplomacy, intruding in the Balkans, may largely be blamed for the present Austro-Serbian or Austro-Slavic situation; for while it in appearance is a quarrel between the little Slav state of Serbia and the great empire of Austria-Hungary, in fact it is a quarrel of long standing between Austria and all the Slav nations, not excluding Russia.

Bosnia and Herzegovina, once Serbian provinces, in 1908 belonged to Turkey, although they were occupied by Austria troops and in every way but on paper were part of the Austro-Hungarian empire. Austria had been quietly planning to annex the two little Slav provinces for some time, but could not do so until the Balkan war of 1912 without arousing the strenuous protest from the powers. When the Turkish constitutional revolution took place in 1909, Austria saw her opportunity and took advantage of it. She maintained that because Bosnia and Herzegovina under the new Turkish regime would have to send delegates to the Turkish Parliament it was better that Austria annex them, which she promptly proceeded to do in fact.

It was maintained by the powers that Austria's act in annexing the Slavic provinces was a violation of the agreement which had been made at the European Congress which met at Berlin shortly after the Russo-Turkish war. Austria remained firm, however, and when the power became threatened by the Russian Revolution.

France was prepared for war, as were Great Britain, Germany and Italy. Both Austria and Germany feeling that they were compelled to do so, they were prepared to fight. Austria and Germany accepted their humiliating defeat with as good grace as possible.

What Russia could not do by force of arms she then proceeded to do by intrigue and diplomacy. Her agents went into all of the Balkan states and into those provinces of Austria and Germany populated thickly by Slavs. They since that time a coalition of Slav nations against Austria and Germany.

Disaffection and revolution was fomented among the Slavs of Austria by Russian agents, and it is even said that Russia secretly aided in the formation of Slavonic societies in Austria and Germany the objects of which were the freeing of the Slavic provinces now under Teutonic rule, and the formation of a great Slavic empire, in which the Russian empire was to be the foundation. Russian diplomacy brought about the alliance of Balkan nations for the war with Turkey, in which war little Serbia greatly distinguished herself.

The final end of the Austro-Serbian conflict was seen in the Balkan peninsula, however, soon after the defeat of Turkey. Both Austria and Germany had confidently expected to see Turkey the victor, and it is said that the Teutonic statesmen had already pointed at the outcome. Austria bided her time, and by the exercise of older-a-line or more subtle brand of diplomacy than that exercised by Russia, succeeded in convincing the powers that she was an independent kingdom, but in reality under Austrian and German domination. Consequently the peace treaty was a part of the fruits of victory and of German price. William of Wied, was installed as King of Albania with the consent of the powers in the face of the diplomatic opposition of Russia. This having done, the powers and the Balkan nations were compelled to acquiesce.

Work Against Balkan Alliance. In the Balkan league, however, the triple alliance, composed of Austria, Germany and Italy, has a splendid ally in the opposing triple alliance, composed of Russia, Great Britain and France, since the Balkan league has been the outcome of Russian diplomacy. Austria then when she tried to make up the Balkan alliance. The result of this was the second Balkan war, in which Serbia and Greece, with Montenegro, were pitted against Bulgaria. The latter country was then the party assisted by Austria, but Austria's assistance due to be disappointed, for Bulgaria was sorely defeated. Besides her troubles abroad, Austria has had her hands full at home. Half of Austria's population is Slavic, although of course, the ruling

Events That Have Led to the Conflict in Europe

The causes of the war which has set all Europe ablaze are as follows: The century-old hatred of the Serbs and the Austrians, each for the other, growing out of the struggle of the Serbs for unity and freedom, in which Austria, through her possession of Serbian provinces, effectively bars the way. The impassioned rage of the Serbians that they who have grown out of the yoke of the Turkish territory once held by the Serbs should have been united with one foot of ground or a single subject from the dual monarchy. The deep resentment of Austria at the murder of Archduke Franz Ferdinand, heir to the throne, on June 28, through a Serbian plot, which brought all the long smoldering bitterness of the two peoples to a climax. The ultimatum delivered to Serbia by Austria demanding punishment of the archduke's slayers. Serbia's reply, termed by the Austrian Foreign office "unsatisfactory." The irascibility of France, Germany and Italy into the crisis by "Russia's determination" to block any change in the balance of power in the Balkans. The known purpose of Russia to gain mastery of the Balkans, and that great empire in effect an ally of Serbia, and in turn France stands to support the Russian demand through an offensive and defensive alliance.

The Russian proposal of the Balkan cause automatically brings into play the triple alliance, in which Germany and Italy are bound to rally to the support of their ally, Austria.

forces are Teutonic and Magyar, or Hungarian. The Serbs at the various Slav provinces of Austria were fermenting revolution. Serbia was dreaming of regaining Bosnia and Herzegovina, Russian intrigue was making trouble, and Austria's aid of Bulgaria had stirred the affections of Roumania, which hitherto had been friendly to the triple alliance, but which now practically became a part of the triple entente.

Austria's Small Victory. As a result of it all, Austria gained but one small victory. By causing the formation of the Balkan league, Austria had prevented Serbia from obtaining a seaport, the principal ambition of the Slav movement. But in doing this Austria brought herself into complication with Italy, which country had cast envious eyes on Albania, and it looked for a time that there would be serious clashes between the two nations. Austria then found herself in a somewhat precarious situation. She was threatened with destruction, Italy's domination, and she was threatened by Serbia and Roumania. Russia was a dangerous danger, in the North, Austria's only salvation was Germany, and it was this which Austria had to rely on. It was the opinion of Austria's statesmen that it would be better for Austria to settle the Slav question at once with her armies rather than wait and perhaps be destroyed in the long run. A Serbian plot had been discovered by papers and public men were practically demanding the test of strength between the triple alliance and the triple entente, when the Archduke Ferdinand was slain as the alleged result of a Serbian plot in the city of Sarajevo. Austria promptly stepped upon this as a pretext for demanding a "show down."

Situation Different From 1909. The situation had changed since 1909. Russia was prepared for war, and it was believed would welcome it. The result was that the Balkan league was Great Britain. If Russia came to the aid of Serbia, it was certain that Germany would mobilize her armies in support of Austria. Germany in the field would be certain to bring France into the situation, with a view to bringing herself to the aid of the Prussian war. Great Britain then also was expected to stand by her allies of the triple entente. Diplomats also argued that Great Britain would come to the aid of Austria and Germany, as the aid of Russia, France and the Balkan states, might threaten, leaving England alone to face the question of German expansion, and that therefore it would be better for Great Britain to stand by the war and aid Russia, France and the Balkan in putting a final end to German and Austrian power in Europe.

MAY NEED GOLD AT SPANDAU. German War Chest, But Aside for Emergency, to Justify Dimercak's Wisdom in Providing It. Berlin.—Ever since the close of the Franco-Prussian war in 1871 the Julea tower at Spandau has been used as a storehouse for Germany's war chest. Of the five million francs ($100,000,000) saved from France by Dimercak as an indemnity to Germany, 120,000,000 marks ($20,000,000) in gold was placed in the Julea tower. This has been added to from time to time and has now reached there to be not to be used by the empire except as needed in the direct extremity of the nation.

COUNTS WAR'S COST

French Statistician Gives the Cold Figures. Something Like $50,000,000 a Day Is Given as the Expenditure Necessary for Keeping European Armies in the Field.

Paris.—What the cost would be of a war between four, or more first-class European powers has repeatedly been subject of calculation and estimate by European experts. When the matter was under discussion at the outbreak of the Russo-Japanese war, in 1904, a well-known French statistician, M. Jules Roche, estimated that a conflict involving two of the three great powers, with say, 5,000,000 men in all under arms, would absorb $400,000,000 in the first two months. On the same basis of operations the average cost would be about $5,000,000 a day. But a war in which France, Germany, Great Britain and Austria were all engaged would require a total average expenditure, for purely military purposes, of $10,000,000 per day. His calculation may be thus summarized:

In January, 1914, the actual cost per day to the French treasury, according to the Bureau-Lafayette official report, was 78,000,000 francs (or $12,500,000); this for 600,000 men under arms. The actual cost per day of every man under arms during the first two months of the war was exactly 15 francs 50 centimes. Into the costs of forage and of keep of horses, which are usually figured at the rate of say, 11 a day for each horse, M. Roche did not go. But even with this figure, it is clear that of 1870-71 before him, he admitted that it was no easy matter to estimate the financial expenditure of a great war that might happen in our times. He continued:

"Conditions generally have considerably changed within the last thirty years, and warfare is now far more expensive. To begin with the number of men under arms in France, on a mobilization of war, would be far greater than in 1870. France then began by putting 800,000 men into the field; but in the next great war in which she may be engaged her military organization is such that within forty-eight hours she can mobilize, in round figures, 2,000,000 men and 1,500,000 horses and mules. The first troops to be called up would be the thirteen classes of active and active reserve troops. Each class numbers 160,000 men, so that the actual number of men to be mobilized in the next war would be 2,080,000. Against this the Germans can pit 2,850,000 men, the Austrians 1,300,000 men and Italy 1,200,000 men."

Herr Schaefer, the eminent Austrian statistician, who was for some time minister of commerce, once said of the war cabinet, estimated in 1893 that a European war in which any of the above powers were engaged would cost France $5,000,000 a day, Russia $6,000,000, Germany $3,000,000 and Austria-Hungary $4,500,000. On this estimate, M. Roche agrees. His calculations in American values, an estimate of $12 a man for each day for the forces under arms, in a tripartite conflict between European powers.

A still higher estimate is that of Lord Fisher in 1913, at the time of the Balkan war, by Dr. Charles Richet, a statistician of the University of Paris, in a very detailed and elaborate calculation. He bases his estimate on the assumption that, roughly, 20,000,000 men would be called to arms, of which at least half would be sent to the front. On this basis he works out the daily expenditure for the seven powers as follows, the figure being here rendered into dollars:

cut the price to 15c and the other also-of-course-had-to-meet-the-cut. A third shop has announced when it was decided to take the matter up to the commission. There is a three-cornered question involved. In the first place the cut from 25c to 15c will not only a sufficient revenue on the capital invested and a fair wage to the workmen, and it is further contended that there is no field for the third shop. The commission is expected to set a day for the hearing in the near future. In the meantime the war goes merrily on and stores go at 15c regardless of quality—contentment and acquiescence.

FILED NEWS.

(From the Piler Journal.) Vie Pense will give a dance at the opera house Saturday, August 15th. Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Stevens of Rogerson, spent the week end with their friends. F. D. Brown and family left Tuesday for a camping trip to the Idaho country on an outfit. Homer Tupper, cattle trader, has been held up near Piler within the last couple of weeks. He is improving. Andy Maitland has purchased one of Prof. Doolley's automobiles and is now enjoying the pleasures that come to those of aristocratic men. G. Sommer, John H. Hooper, Wm. Huggins and Geo. F. Allen took a trip through Payson flat to balanced rock-Saturday-in-Allen's auto. F. W. Naves is showing his faith in the Salmon River tract by making further improvements on his farm. He recently completed a nice barn and is now erecting a large barn. W. L. Huffman has purchased the bakery again and is now in possession. Mr. Huffman is a splendid baker and Piler is fortunate in him again having the charge of the bakery. Prof. Markel, of Dubi, was in town Tuesday afternoon. He was kept pretty busy while here talking county division. The Prof. is thoroughly in command on the subject and entertained quite a crowd all the time he was here. We are pleased to be able to mention the fact that it is not an uncommon thing to see a man come into the town-hall to report his anti-monopoly check he received from the local cheese factory with a smile on his face. One man made the remark Tuesday that he received more from the milk business considerable of the time during four years than he did from the creamery from the product of six cows, which were equally as good. The fact that he had come into his own and is an elegant thing for the ranchers of this section. The war between the lighters in Piler is to be taken before the "little commission." One of the shaggy impressed with what they saw on this great tract. "Last Sunday afternoon while the back yard of her home, she fell off of a bench and broke both legs in the left arm." Dr. Allen was called and reduced the fracture. A young Delwiler boy was thrown from a horse on Wednesday last week while on his way to town. He was found in the road unconscious by C. W. Case and taken to Dr. Allen, where he was soon able to be taken home.

James P. McClure and family from Patterson, Pa., who was here about a year ago visiting Wm. W. French, is back again. He has come west to look for some work, and the friends he made in this city a year ago are anxious that he make this place his home. Earl Murray will start a night school soon to give lessons to farmers who desire to learn how to irrigate scientifically. As a farmer he has already taken his high rank, and he desires to extend his knowledge to everybody. His higher rank among the irrigated sections of the earth. Rev. Will occupied the pulpit at the M. E. church Sunday evening. P. C. Graves drove away over to Amargosa and brought the genial and talented minister and daughter over. They are stopping near Amargosa where their son is farming on the Salmon. The church was crowded to overflowing, as indeed all that is necessary to fill the church is to announce in the presence of the pulpit. The other people, however, the better are our people.

EUROPE CALLS TO ARMS

Our isolated position and freedom from entangling alliances inspire our press with the cheering assurance that we are in no peril of being drawn into the European quarrel.

It is singularly unfortunate that that first engagement of the Canadian Navy should have been directed against fellow British subjects on a vessel owned by Britain's only ally in the world.

These men, some of whom are recruited from the streets, find themselves absolutely forbidden, under any conditions to set foot on one part of that empire they have helped to preserve.

Canada's rejection of the Hindu

Directly opposite treatment is handed out by the British and the French to their dark-skinned fellow subjects looking for work.

Canada may uphold her own interests and at the same time do a real service to the empire.

The French Patriote (Montreal) regards the course taken by the Hindus as "a mere bluff" and speaks of the would-be immigrants as lunatics of the English subcontinent.

RECIPROCIITY AT HOME

Many persons believe that the word "reciprocity" has merely a political significance.

But it means one of the greatest principles. All civilization is founded on it.

Let us lay aside the political significance of the word and discuss this great principle as it applies to our own individual and communal interests.

What if some great monopoly should swoop down and buy up everything the farmers raise, cattle and sheep and crops of all kinds, ship the whole crop to the city and thereby deprive our local merchants of the opportunity of handling the same?

Business would suffer. Many of our concerns would find it necessary to close up shop and go out of business.

What if the farmers should all send their money to the mail order houses instead of buying their goods from our local storekeepers?

Many of these mail order houses are in the hands of foreigners.

Reciprocity is what we need, right here at home. The storekeepers must do their best to get the goods that are being sold fairly with the storekeepers.

Keep the money at home. Buy what you need from the local storekeepers.

TALKS ON THRIFT

No. 2. The Best Place for Savings

"Too much cannot be done for the promotion of thrift. It ought to be urged upon the young in the home, in the school, everywhere.

The experience of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hawkins of Los Angeles, Cal., who lost all their savings by not depositing the money in a savings bank, ought to be a warning to anyone who is taking similar foolish chances.

The affair was given at Hotel Perrine and the table was very unique with the suggestive college decorations. The color scheme was yellow and white and at each place a box in the form of a book was found. These books had titles which represented the certain characteristics of the guests. After a delicious five-course dinner the party was taken to the lake, where they enjoyed the musical comedy "Hephzibah" and then enjoyed at the corner drug store and the party was taken home in cars. Those who enjoyed this affair were Misses Lesley Williams, Mary Carr, Wilson, Helen Pfeiffer, Mary Miller, Leah Chapman, Katherine Pitcairn, Burd Wall, Beatrice Osterling and Mrs. Harry Alexander.

WHY NOT IOWA

Propos to current announcements of gatherings of local organizations from the former citizenship of Pennsylvania. Ohio and other states, the subscriber rises to inquire: "Why not Iowa?"

Iowa is as well represented on the part of numbers at least, as any state; and it is equally sure that she is as well worth representing. Hence, if any former resident of Pennsylvania, Ohio and other states, who ever, farmer reads his club had turned down in front and up behind—could signal for "Money in banks and corn to sell" where they "raise more corn to feed more hogs to buy more land to raise more corn," where there is a school house on every hill top and no school in the valley" where—but hold on! what I want to say is that if any former Iowan, or Iowans, will second the motion, we will proceed, without delay, to call a meeting and effect an organization in the interest of mutual acquaintance and good fellowship. Let us hear from you through the Times. —HAWKYE.

MODERN MILKING METHOD

Dairy Company Install Electric-Operated Milking Machine. The management of the Sunnyside dairy has installed a three-unit Sharp's milking machine and is giving the new equipment a thorough tryout, and if it meets with the success expected, other machines will be installed on the old method of hand milking will be done away with.

Milking by machinery is the modern and sanitary method which has been adopted by all of the largest and best dairies in the country, and so far has proven to be practical. The cow being an animal of the female gender, with all of the usual necessities of course has to be persuaded that a milking machine is in keeping with her rights to kick, but after a few trials she soon learns that her rights are not being interfered with and comes accustomed to the modern method of doing business.

The machine is attached to three wheels, one wheel operated by an electric motor and the work is done quickly, thoroughly and in the most sanitary way.—Idaho Register.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON

(Special Correspondence.) Idaho Among Faithful Factors. Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—Idaho is to be congratulated on the fact that among the seven members of the house of representatives who have remained in their seats since last year during the entire session of the 63rd congress, are Gem state's two representatives are numbered: Representative Underwood in sustaining the matter several days ago made the following interesting remarks which were loudly applauded from the floor and the galleries:

"I think the gentlemen who have stayed on here during this long summer and have answered the roll calls and 'stayed on the job,' deserve great credit for it, and the commendation of the country and their constituents. I want to say also that I think the gentleman who have not been there who have been away the greater part of the last 63 congress are well entitled to do their turn at the wheel, and I say this in the hope that what I say will be carried by the press of the country. I think the credit of the absentees who are with their own people will return to the roll call of the house."

Underwood is eminently right, Washington is the place for numbers of the House of the States. Over two hundred are absent from their duties attending to private affairs. Some are at home "mending fences." Some are on pleasure trips. All should be here attending to Uncle Sam's affairs. They are in his pay, and just pay he expects them very much in his business. The present House has been very indulgent in this matter. For months a small force has been holding the fort. Only a few members have attended questions, with only a few listening. On a majority of occasions the chamber has presented the appearance of a meeting with a poor play and poorer players on the boards.

"It is to be admitted that the siege has been long and trying. A steady gait of sixteen months, on the part of the absentees, has been a great and difficult question—has developed a menaced 'nervous' in many quarters. Men have labored who ordinarily are not of the shirking kind. "The fence menders have not fared well. There are several instances where they have abandoned themselves from their House duties for long periods in furtherance of their political plans only to lose in the process the confidence of their constituents. The charge of absenteeism along with other charges. "That the necessity of attendance has been greatly increased at any time since this Congress assembled, and unparalleled situation has arisen in the twinkling-of-an-eye, and a full House should be present to meet it."

Flower Show

Are you looking for frost before Thursday, September 17, the date of the Flower Show? The ladies of the Presbyterian church are not, and are making elaborate preparations for a big crowd. An interesting program is arranged for the afternoon. There will be refreshments and another entertainment in the evening. The booth will be attractive and tempting. You may spend your nickels and dimes for candy, ice cream or punch or for many other things—things of the approval of the Japanese booth.

This is the last time the list for the flower show will be given. Cut it out and reserve for reference. The rules for the contest must be observed by who enter flowers. July 2 need not defer you for ten to ten flowers can be arranged quite artistically in a fruit jar as in a cut glass vase. "Five plants are offered for the following cut flowers: Aster—Six white in one vase. Aster—Six pink in one vase. Aster—Six lavender in one vase. Aster—Six red in one vase. Aster—Six yellow in one vase. Baby's Breath—A fancy display. Carnations—Ten blooms in one vase. Cosmos—Twenty-five blooms in one vase. Chrysanthemums—Four to eight, according to size, in one glass. Dahlias—Three blooms of one color in one vase. Gladiol—Three spikes in one glass. Golden Glow—Fifteen blooms in one glass. Hollyhocks—Four stalks in one glass, solid color. Lavender—Ten spikes in one glass. Aster—Six or eight in one glass. Nasturtium—About 25 blooms in one glass. Pansies—About 50 in flat dish. Sweet Peas—About 25 blooms solid color in one vase. Pines—Four spikes in one vase. Shirley Popples—Ten in one glass. Sunflowers—Six spikes in one glass. Sunflowers—Six red in one glass. Sunflowers—Largest bloom.

Twenty Year Extension Bill passes House. Representatives French and Smith introduced a conspicuous bill in the passage of the twenty year extension bill for reclamation projects, through the House last week.

The bill had completed calendar week in the Senate and four or five more weeks, and a very hard fight was encountered on the proposition to place an interest charge upon deferred payments. The Western States contended that such a charge would be bad faith from the government to the settlers, all of whom at the time had entered upon their lands upon the basis of no interest charge whatever. They were opposing this proposition, however, by a small effort, and the bill is now awaiting action by the Senate on the House amendments. It is expected that it will pass within the next few days.

Attuned to Higher Things. "What's the matter with the governor?" asked the nervous man. "You keep trying to run it through the roof." "You've got to excuse me," replied the governor. "I'm not used to one of these little twenty bathings."

What does business depend on?

Profits, doesn't it? Yes profits—but fair profits. We all know that—we know we have to be fair or we can't remain in business long. Thinking folks realize that as you reap what you sow, excessive profit will mean ultimate loss of business.

Political Announcement

I believe that the most important question that will come before the next legislature is that of state-wide prohibition and it elected will use every effort in my power to bring about immediate enactment of a law to take effect at once and to supplement this by submitting the matter to the people for a constitutional amendment at the next election. If nominated and elected I will advocate an amendment to the 1907 act statute that will give relief to settlers on Carey Act acreages and especially have in mind all the problems of the Salmon River Settlers. Respectedly Submitted, W. P. GUTHRIE.

PRESS SHEDS LIGHT

"Common People" Able to Learn Causes of War. Day Has "Gone" By When Monarchs and Statesmen Envisaged Their "Rights" to Force Subjects into Uncertain Conflict.

In the old days, which not a few people are accustomed to characterize as "good," the question of war or peace between neighbors was decided by their respective kings, with a little help from court favorites. The common folk, who did the fighting and paid the bills—when the decision was for war, as usually happened—had only the vaguest ideas as to the cause of the trouble, knew about its progress little more than what they could see for themselves, and exercised no influence whatever on the ultimate terms of settlement.

In some parts of the world kings and statesmen can still plunge nations into war almost at will, but no longer can they do it without having their motives promptly disclosed and their actions made the subject of general comment and criticism. For the press, nowadays, shows a special disregard for the monarchs by which the war has been and their servants always try to rub the old conditions of secrecy. Aid not infrequently the departmental chiefs, get from the newspapers they have tried to silence the first news of events in which they are themselves deeply interested.

Incidentally, journalistic enterprise and achievement create innumerable judges, all more or less well informed as to the sufficiency of the reasons for war, as to the competency with which it is conducted, and as to the propriety of the peace articles finally signed. In other words, private ambitions and dynastic interests do not have the free play they did in the good old days, and though at the present moment it is reported that the press of several countries is clamorous for war, still, even there, the papers are telling facts with more or less accuracy and completeness, and in a dozen other countries they are printing columns and columns of matter, the general tendency of which is to emphasize the disproportion between the excuses for belligerency, and the consequences that follow an appeal to arms.

PROBLEM OF THE AEROPLANE

Conflict in Europe looked for to show Best Value of the Airship in the War Games. London.—C. G. Gray, editor of the "Aeroplane," a leading authority on aviation, writes on the use of aeroplanes in a European war. "The utility of air craft in a European war would be almost entirely in connection with reconnaissance," he says. "Under certain circumstances both aeroplanes and airships might be used for offensive purposes, but no nation owns enough air craft to make them an important consideration as weapons. It is possible that a couple of German airships might make a dash for Paris or London with the object of creating a tumult of the population, but they would run big risks of being destroyed by faster aeroplanes. The aeroplane fleets of the rival powers rank as follows:

LONDON'S BLACK DAY

Stock Exchange Hard Hit at First Possibility of War. Five Billion Dollars, It is Figured, Would Have to Be Drawn From World's Working Capital to Pay Cost of Conflict.

London.—With 15 fatalities on the stock exchange and general conditions tending to justify the characterization of the first day on which a general European war seemed inevitable as the blackest day the city had known in 20 years, with the stock exchange committee considering the necessity of taking the gravest steps to protect members of the exchange, and with all Londoners rising by leaps and bounds, London financiers are in anything but a bellicose mood.

The fact that one steamer alone, the Esplanade, had had $10,000,000 in gold aboard, bound for Germany, paid out mostly insured with the London market, made for peace until the steamer arrived. As in the possible loss of a European war would impose on the world's financial authority that the cost could scarcely be less than $5,000,000,000, all of which would have to be drawn from the resources of industry, from the world's working capital. This authority points out that the South African war cost this country far above $1,000,000,000, and if a European war cost only two and one-half times as much, the total would be $5,000,000,000, which is probably a very conservative estimate.

The money publicly raised in London every 12 months is about $1,000,000,000, so a war on a $5,000,000,000 scale would be draining the capital of the world's working capital. This is the greatest money capital in the world. But when the direct cost of the war has been calculated and the bill paid to the last cent, the world would only be beginning to realize the waste only touching the edge of the actual loss. In every part of the world too capital is in a difficult and strained position. The supply is not adequate and an immense amount expended in the building of new buildings, and their amounts are not at hand to keep the works moving.

ARMY MOBILIZATION STIRRED

Sobs; No Cheers Heard. Berlin.—The Vorwaerts publishes from its correspondent, who has been on a holiday in Bohemia during the mobilization of the army, a working description of what mobilization really means, especially to men of thirty-seven or so years old who are called out with the rest.

"To every train," the correspondent writes, "they came in straggly crowds through pouring rain—men and wives, children and weeping relatives. Fruitlessly does the band of the veteran corps try to play the national anthem, 'Watch on the Rhine,' fruitlessly do the veterans try to stifle out their cheers in response to the commanding officer's speech. "There is no noise, no cheers and no sobs of misery. One unforgettable scene stirred a soul's misery as a woman, wearing a black hat, the bayonets of the country gardeners glittering over the heads of women. "Not a single person dreamed of taking up the chorus of the songs played. As the train passes on into the distance the deserted mothers, children, wives, fiancés, and sisters move weeping away, and with the next trainload the same scenes are repeated. "Near dozens of cases where children, orphaned of their mothers only a few days before, or perhaps even on the day before, are now made wholly orphans. I hear also of numerous other cases where the mother is struggling with death in hospital, and now the father is called away."

TWENTY YEARS LATE PASSED

Settlers Now Have Plenty of Time to Pay for Water.
WASHINGTON—Under the reclamation law, which finally passed Congress, all settlers on government irrigation projects will hereafter have twenty years within which to pay for their water. The law requires that complete payments in ten years, as heretofore. Furthermore, under the new law, the settler will pay five cents per acre for water right charge assessed against his entry at the time of filing his water-right application, and will then be exempted from further payments for a period of five years. Beginning five years from the date of filing, the settler will pay seven per cent annually of the water charge for 15 consecutive years. This provision relieves the settler of the burden of meeting water charges during the years when he is bringing his land into production. The law members of the House of Representatives made a determined effort to attach to the bill an amendment imposing a charge of ten cents per acre on all deferred payments, but this proposition was defeated after a two day fight by a vote of 161 to 140. It is quite likely that the next attempt at its portance to the west will be passed by Congress this season, and realizing the difficulties likely to arise in the western states, the House has concentrated their efforts to force through this highly important amendment. The bill which passed, was introduced by Senator Borah, and has the enthusiastic support of both Idaho Senators. It passed the Senate last March, and only within the past few days was put upon the calendar of the House. The opinion of the Idaho Senators that the amendments made to the bill by the House will not be injurious to the farmer and stock raiser on the Boise and Minidoka projects.
