BUSINESS TIDE IS TRENDING

Revival of Trade Prospected by Eastern Market

ORDERS FROM SEAT OF WARE READY TAXING INDUSTRIES

Dull Times Are Given a Jolt by Actual Conditions Stripped of Artificial Disguises.

The tide has turned and a general revival in business is at hand. In many lines activity has already begun. Foodstuffs are going to Europe in great quantities, and there are buyers for manufactured articles...

Exports for September show an enormous increase and the October figures will doubtless exceed all expectations. The British treasury agent, who had gold deposited in a Chicago bank for the past week's purchases, and France has made arrangements for a $10,000,000 loan in New York...

One of the most gratifying happenings of the week is the announcement that the federal reserve board and the New York banks have evolved a plan under which the foreign exchange market will be cleared up within three months...

The only real feature of this situation remaining may also be overdone. The paper industry is still portending trouble, but the railroads continue to suffer declining revenues. With the revival of business, however, the carriers will meet by the same action...

SEE MOTOR CAR BUILT

Twin Falls People Invited to View Industry in Pictures at 10 p. m.

Mr. E. S. Johnson, the local representative of the Maxwell Motor Sales Corporation, announces that there will be a free public exhibition of the great educational moving picture "From Mitten Steel to Automobile" at the Yale theatre, Twin Falls, Friday, Nov. 6.

The following article from the Washington Post, will give the citizens of Twin Falls some idea of the excellent opportunity that is presented to them by Mr. Johnson.

NEW $50,000 FILM IS SHOWN

Stationers and Business Men See Educational Picture, Which Shows Every Detail of Manufacture of Cars, From Blast Furnace to Final Road Test—Exhibit Requested by Colleges.

A large and distinguished audience of representative men in the business, official and social world of Washington, D. C., the assembly room of the Washington Chamber of Commerce last night the first presentation of the $50,000 moving picture, "From Mitten Steel to Automobile," which gives a thrilling and complete film history of every step in the building of the modern automobile.

The picture was presented under the direction of Charles F. Reichen, general sales manager of the Maxwell Motor Company, to the

From Eugene to Lead. The spectators were taken from the steel mills to the vast forge shops and foundries, through acres of machine shops and body building departments, into the factories and on an scenic stage, until a view was given of the completed car being put through its grueling road test before final shipment to the consumer. The interesting of the film was the pictures of the chemical shops and their fitting units, particularly the treatment of the rubber for the tires.

In fact, none of the secrets of the trade was withheld. The picture will be shown in every city and town in the United States and Europe, and in many places in Asia and South America. It marked an epoch in the automobile business—a business which represented last year an investment of $750,000,000 in this country alone. One of the most prominent figures among the spectators was Foster C. General, Harrison.

Praised by Statesmen.

"It is hard to imagine a more intensely thrilling and educational entertainment," he said. "The scenes from the foundry and forge shops are dramas of spectacular action. I heartily endorse this typical enterprise, which will show the capacity and the skillfulness of American inventive genius and industrial achievement."

Champ Clark, speaker of the house, made this comment: "I was more than entertained by the show. The magnitude of operating and the intricate detail of the automobile business is a business which is so important and intricate, that it is essential that it should be understood by the public."

"The picture that struck me," said Senator Warren of Wyoming, enthusiastically, "is the way in which the picture shows the large combination of men who share the labor and the intricate details of the automobile business. It is a very interesting picture."

Various colleges and universities have announced that they will purchase an educational feature next fall.

IMPROPER MANAGEMENT OF GRASS LANDS

Grass Land That Has Had Care Shows by Yield.

Nothing can be further from good management than the common practice of leaving the grass to grow to the top of the blade. On the average, one acre of the best of the grass practically yields the same amount of hay as a fresh field to give the stock a chance to eat the hay.

There are many devices that largely will suggest. A simple one is rather easily, would be to make the best in a broad-based block of concrete.

The weight would then be on the top instead of the side, and the number of gravel would be supported by the base of the block, whether the rain should splash or blow.

Whatever device is adopted, let there be no delay about the proper handling of rates. This is a matter that gives away the character of a farmer perhaps more than anything else about his place.

While on the subject of gates and gate posts, we may call attention to the fact that many a gateway in the wet season is a regular eye of mud, and the fields on each side cut up badly for some distance.

Gateways should be high and unyielding, not only to provide clean and easy passage for foot or wheel, but also to secure firm gate posts. A soft gateway gives the material support to a post.

Where there is a hard bottom, the gateway may have the surface cleared away and the hollow filled with stones packed on the end. With a soft bottom, a foundation may be laid with bundles of faggots, which are to be covered, as before, with the stones. Faggots in such a position last a long time and provide the drainage which is required in such a position.

Let the center of the gateway be higher than the sides, so as to prevent the lodging of water, which does so much harm in this position.

To Seal Bottles.

Bottles may be securely sealed to the following manner: Melt together a quarter of a pound of sealing wax, the same quantity of resin and two ounces of beeswax. When the mixture froths, stir it with a tallow candle. As soon as each ingredient is melted, dip the tops of the corked bottles in the mixture. It will completely exclude the air.

ARSENATE OF LEAD FOR POTATO PLANT

Bugs and Blight Are Greatest Enemies of Crop—Spraying Is Recommended.

The soil for potatoes should be of a light or sandy soil. The amount of fertilizer should be determined by the soil. In certain soils, the amount of fertilizer should be determined by the soil. In certain soils, the amount of fertilizer should be determined by the soil.

Potato bugs and blight are the greatest enemies of the crop. The best spraying chemical for the bugs is arsenate of lead, which gives better results than paris green and is not so inconvenient and dangerous to handle.

The blight can be guarded against by constant spraying, especially during the month of August, with bordeaux.

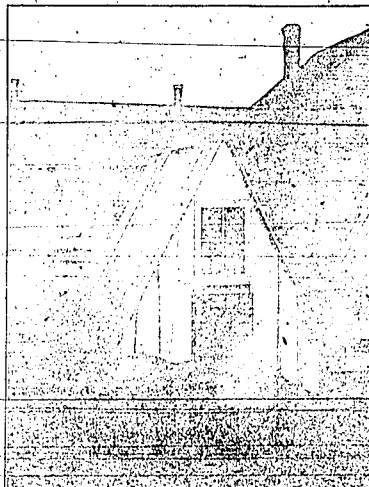

For Late Crops. If you have failed to get the mare with foal do not give up too easily. Try her again, remembering that a fall foal is almost as valuable as a spring foal in these days of high-priced horses.

Stables for Horses. Stables for horses should be better ventilated, with sufficient windows on all sides for good circulation of air. The doors should be arranged so that during hot nights they may be left open when the animals are feeding or resting.

THE CANDY-DATE

They used to give me on the street. With a nod and a slyly grunt And maybe if they felt real smart They'd say "Hello, you runt."

FLESH IS MAIN POINT IN RAISING HOGS

Hogs Exposed to the Hot Sunshine Day in and Day Out During the Summer Will Lose Much of the Gain They Make.

It is true that warm water is just as wet as cool water, but it is not so palatable, and the hogs will thrive better if they have a cool drink at least twice a day. Water should always be within reach.

Hogs exposed to the hot sunshine day in and day out during the summer will lose much of the gain they make, even though the clover fields be the best.

The main and only point in raising hogs is to produce flesh that will bring the most money, and every little thing that will work toward this end should be put into operation.

No farmer that continually stuffs his breeding sows with corn can hope to secure the best pigs. Breeding stock requires more clover, bran, alfalfa than corn.

The short-horn pig is always to be desired against the long, slender-faced type. The sow should be hard-bodied and the boar should be of the same type.

It has always been a disputed question as to whether a hog gains anything by roasting. Even if he doesn't, he has plenty of time to fatten, and roasting will certainly not hurt him in any decided extent.

So the Public May Know.

For some time past we have been doing the French Dry cleaning and dyeing for the Troy Steam Laundry. We have discontinued doing their work and give this information in order to protect ourselves against the work done by the so-called cleaners of the city. We have the only modern, up-to-date cleaning and dyeing plant in the city, which enables us to turn out first class work, which we guarantee.

THE WASTE OF WAR

The war that now engulfs Europe is only a prelude to the story of sorrow and desolation that will follow.

The lives that are lost, the cities that are destroyed and the resources that are wasted will have their greatest effect upon future generations.

Until the last enemy is reached there will be a story of stagnant industries, desolate homes, barren fields and fatherless children.

While this great conflict of waste is being waged we Americans are fighting the Battles of Peace.

PLEA FOR WIDER ROADWAYS

Fourteen-Foot Road Will Outlast Three Nine-Foot Roads and is Much Better in Every Way.

Have not our counties and townships been wasting a good bit of our money by building 9-foot roadways on 24 by 20 foot wide road grades? A 24-foot wide grade is plenty wide enough for a 14-foot roadway. Then why spend a good grade by putting on a 9-foot road when it costs less than one-third more to make a good job of it? Fourteen feet is sufficient width for two tracks that would carry just one-half of the wear on the road. Thus we can drive so as to have a wheel on each side of the center and that makes more track and will be equal to a 9-foot road. So you see we have three times the wearing surface on a 14-foot road than we do on a 9-foot. Then we have a chance to pass other rigs without one or both going into the ditch. Now this is claiming quite a bit for one-tenth more expense, but I think a 14-foot road will outlast three 9-foot roads, has a handier surface and is better in every way, writes John D. Van In Michigan Farmer. If you come up behind a rig you have a chance to get by. If you are driving an auto you do not have to go outside of the hard roadbed and take chances on skidding into the ditch.

A 9-foot roadbed has but one track. Where the wheel turns gets packed perfectly solid and a heavy load will crush all small stones into dust, and the first auto that comes along sucks it up on the front side of the wheel, and then blows it clear off the track when they let go. This doesn't seem much, but when from one to fifty or more go over the same track it soon gets so badly packed that you have a chance in the center with front-end hooks have kept that dug loose and it gradually wears out, leaving the road low in the center where it should be high. Then when heavy rains come the rigger where the wheel tracks come hold it in and it washes down the center to the lowest level, where it runs off at the sides, cutting ditches and causing a bad chock-hole.

This road is hard to keep in repair. If you use a road grader or drag to scrape the sides to the center the wheel tracks are so solid that they will hold up the blades and you will do but little if any good. If you have

GOOD TIME TO WEAN LAMBS

Wisconsin Expert Recommends Youngsters Be Taken Away From Mothers When Four Months Old.

A large percentage of the mortality of lambs and the poor condition to which ewes in far too many flocks go into the winter season is due to the mistake of allowing the lambs to nurse with their mothers until late in the fall or until they wean themselves in the belief of Frank Kleinfelt, sheep head of the flocks maintained by the Wisconsin College of Agriculture. He recommends that after the lambs have had the benefit of their mother's milk for from four to four and one-half months they be taken away and placed on fresh pasture. This, he says, keeps down the most common sheep parasite—the stomach worm—will give the ewes an opportunity to be in a strong, vigorous condition at breeding time. This means that a large percentage of lambs of a more uniform size will be born from the flock the following spring. The common practice of separating the lambs from the ewes for three or four months, at weaning time and the turning them back again, so that the lambs may remove the milk that has accumulated in the absence, is condemned because of the danger that lambs may incur after defecating this accumulated milk.

The ewes should be milked out as often as necessary after weaning time to prevent the udder from caking. This should be done until the ewes are all dry, and to hasten the drying up they should be placed on scant pastures for about eight or ten days. In addition, to plenty of green pasture the lambs should be furnished a small quantity of grain to prevent any possible check in their growth.

RAISING CATTLE FOR BEEF

Shorthorn Does Well on All Lands Where Pastures Are Good—Cows Prove Excellent Milkers.

The Shorthorn, Aberdeen-Angus, Hereford, Red Poll and Devon breeds of cattle all do well in the South. The Shorthorn does well on all kinds of pasture, and is a good feeder. It is plentiful—the cow usually proves to be very good milkers, giving milk enough for the calf and to supply the home as well. The result of the good milking quality of the cow is usually a good, healthy calf. Hereford and Angus are good grazers and will do well under range conditions, as well as on the small farm. The Hereford stands ahead of all breeds as a range animal. The Angus have the advantage over all breeds in the feedlot, as they flesh out very smoothly, are high in quality and sell out a high percentage of market meat. The Devon is slower of growth than the other breeds, but are great cutters and fatten on pastures. It is no such thing that some of the best breeds could hardly stand. The Black Poll is a dual purpose breed which ranks next to the milking strain of Shorthorn in the production of milk and beef. They are not as well known, not so popular as the Hereford, but have done well wherever known in the South. Any of the breeds grow well with the native cattle and can be used advantageously in breeding up the herd here.

MAKING PROFIT WITH PIGS

Animals Must Not Be Stunted, But Kept Growing—Selling Them at Fatness During Fattening Period.

By J. W. McNICOLS. We begin with our pigs about the 15th of March, when they are eight weeks old, put them in the clover field and feed also with milk and wheat middlings. The pigs must not be stunted, but must be kept growing steadily, and made fat by giving plenty of corn during the last two months. Meat made in this way is much better and more healthful than when the pigs are raised in a filthy, close pen, and the meat can be made at less cost with so much grass and green food.

A Good Road in Michigan.

more gravel it will not pack in the center, but keep working into the center tracks, making them still higher, when they are too high ready. If our roads were 14 feet or more in width, then the driving would be all over the whole road, making a hard, smooth road, and by going over it in a wheel with a road drag it would keep the center high, the wheel would drain off at the sides and not wash down the center, and there would not be wear enough in any one place to wear or crush the surface into dust to blow down by winds or autos. You can repair a 14-foot road at any time, and it will pack and make a smooth, hard surface, far superior to any drive so as to fill the whole surface, but not so with a 9-foot road. It will fill all over the same track, no matter how crooked the first pattern is. It will be better to build 14 feet of extra in the first place, than to build nine feet and then wider afterward, for it is hard to get a smooth, even surface, because the new gravel will work off the old, hard surface, causing a sag on each side which will have to be filled several times before it will get good enough to match the old roadbed.

Means Better Highways.

Where the dirt roads are in question the farmers need not fear any damage to the roads from the motor cars. Their coming means better highways and possibly state aid in the construction of real roads of a permanent character.

To prevent beetle injury. A good way to prevent young cucumber and melon vines from the attacks of beetles is to set a box frame around the plants and cover with mosquito netting or wire screen.

MUST ACT SPEEDILY

Government Lays Down New Rules on Extension Act.

In order to enjoy the immediate benefits of the reclamation extension act, passed September 21, 1911, set forth on all government irrigation projects must, not later than Nov. 15, file formal acceptance of the terms of the act with the local project manager. Failure to do so will result in the date named will result in filing settlers to meet the payment falling due on December 1, 1914, on which date also they must meet any and all deferred payments. In order that the reclamation extension act may be fully availed of by the settlers, the reclamation service has sent to all project managers acceptance blanks to be filled out by the settlers and to be returned to all water users possessing an irrigated tract, under the terms of the act, on or before December 1, 1914, on which date the act will become operative.

Although, under the terms of the reclamation extension act, water users have six months within which to re-accept and file their acceptance, the reclamation service calls attention to the fact that unless such acceptance is made, recorded and filed before November 15, payments due to the reclamation service under the terms of the reclamation law as they existed prior to the passage of the extension act must be made on December 1. That is to say, there will accrue on December 1, 1914, an installment of $2.20 per acre on the Minidoka project, Idaho, which must be paid on that date, unless the settler has previously filed his acceptance, and in order to have his acceptance recorded or at before December 1, it must be left with the project manager not later than November 15.

How It Would Benefit. In event acceptance is on file by December 1, there will accrue instead of the installment of $2.20 per acre, an installment amounting in only 2 percent of the balance due under the construction charge of $2, and which therefore owes a balance of $18.70 will on December 1, 1914, be required to pay only 21 cents per acre, whereas under the act as it existed and on file by December 1, such person will be required to pay $2.20 per acre. If the water user is in arrears for any one year to December 1, 1914, and has not filed his acceptance of the terms of the reclamation extension act before that date, it will be necessary for him not only to pay the $2.20 per acre installment due on December 1, but it will also be necessary for him to pay the balance of the accrued charges which he has failed or neglected to pay heretofore. This payment, it is officially announced, will be collected under the provisions of the old law. Failure to pay the $2.20 will work a forfeiture of the water right application or entry. Assumed that the amount due and payable prior to December 1, 1914, is $2.20 per acre, the total amount which the Minidoka settlers will be required to pay if they do not file their acceptance of the act will be $6.60 per acre, there having been three years of deferred payments on this project, whereas if they file their acceptance they will be required to pay on that date only 21 cents per acre. This illustrates the advantage of immediately signing the acceptance of the reclamation extension act.

All Should Act. This formally announces the reclamation service, "should not be delayed one moment longer than is absolutely necessary, for if these acceptances are delayed until the last moment it will be impossible for the reclamation service to compute the balances due and render its bills under the terms of the reclamation extension act. Therefore, bills will be rendered against the water user for the balances due under application of the old law, unless such acceptances are executed, recorded and filed as required by the terms of the public notices of September 24, 1914, not later than November 15, 1914.

From Shakespeare to Harold Bell Wright is a long jump, but no writer from the dramatic dawn to that of the novelist, has attained the number of records. Mr. Wright's most popular novel, "The Shepherd of the Hills," has been made into a play, by its author, or with the assistance of Elsbury W. Reynolds and will open its engagement at the Lafayette theater November 24th. The story is one of the Ozark mountains and teaches a lesson of the simple life. Its characters live and act naturally. It is a play that attracts by its simplicity, yet holds the auditor with breathless interest from the first curtain to the last.

Stears Gaskill & MacVittie, the producers, are said to have given the play an augmented cast and a new gorgeous scenic production.

EXHIBIT FOR EXPOSITION

Twin Falls' Part in State Display Being Gathered.

L. M. Campbell, one of the efficient demotic employees of the state commissioner, Major Reed, was in the city for several days last week, making final arrangements for the portion of the state exhibit allotted to this county. While here Mr. Campbell secured the services of several of the local experts in field production. Mr. Campbell gave out the following interview to a Times reporter:

The gathering of the exhibition material for the San Francisco exposition is now completed. The exhibit consists of one hundred fifty boxes of wheat, flax, barley, oats, alfalfa, clover and a few other varieties.

In gathering the exhibit we have chosen principally the varieties and sizes that are best adapted for commercial purposes.

Mr. C. W. Brennan, deputy state horticultural inspector, has had supervision of gathering the exhibit. These apples will be shipped in a short time to San Francisco and put in storage. The fair will open Feb. 4th, and close on Nov. 4th, 1915, and the plan is to maintain a display of the Idaho products throughout the entire exposition.

The gathering of the potato exhibit, of one hundred fifty boxes, is now well under way. The arrangement in gathering the exhibits from the different sections of the state, are keeping in mind at all times the commercial interests of Idaho and are trying to put up only such exhibits as will bring best results commercially, to the state.

We now have an assortment of grains in the shed that will be forwarded to Boise for processing, into feed for our FFB, 4th, and from other sections of the state to San Francisco in the near future.

The county commissioners of Twin Falls have responded very largely and have done everything in their power to assist in getting a creditable exhibit.

The gathering of grasses and grains is under the direction of Mr. Wm. Check and any who have threshed grain, need that would like to donate or help advertise the state, if they will notify Mr. Check, he will call and procure the same. The management would like to have grain and grasses in five-barrel lots, there to be given out as samples to the visitors at the exposition. Any one who can furnish the above in quantity may have the privilege of furnishing envelopes for advertising purposes, and the management at San Francisco will see that the names are placed on them, they will bring the best returns to the state.

Never in the history of publishing of books has a novel attained such widespread popularity in the short space of five years. It has exceeded by over one hundred thousand copies the sale of the previous biggest seller, "David Harum." In making a play of his story, the author, in conjunction with Mr. Reynolds, has retained the big dramatic possibilities of the book, making the love story of "Young Mat" and "Sunshine Lane" his highlight. The play would be interesting, even if it only depended upon its excellent character-drawing to entertain, the characters of the main characters of the Ozarks are indeed unusual upon the stage and lend a picturesque quality that is really worth while.
