RANCHER LOSES BARN

Perry Patterson of Artesian City, Has Distressing Fire.

A large barn together with several stacks of hay adjoining, nearly a carload of stock, and a large quantity of all of the harness was destroyed Sunday evening on the ranch of Perry Patterson, near Artesian City. The barn had been built into the hill at the time, thus saving a very heavy loss to the owner.

THREE CHAINS OF STRONG FORTS PROTECT PARIS

Defenses of France's Capital Have No Equal Anywhere Else in the World.

THEY COST FIFTY MILLIONS

Total Area Encircled by These Tremendous Fortifications, Relied on to Balk the Germans, is at Least 500 Square Miles.

Ever since the terrible days of November and December, 1870, when the German army camped at the very doors of Paris, the French have been building forts to withstand the German invader.

Should invading Germans break through the network of frontier forts, should they elect to skirt the heavily fortified cities and strike at Paris, then there would be in front a line of fortifications the like of which the world has never seen.

Surrounded by Network. The network of forts about Paris occupies so many miles of front that none knows the exact number and strength.

The tourist who visits the country frequently comes upon a little clump of trees about which the ground is cultivated, the grass sown and the weeds rank. If he moves close to the clump of trees he gets a glimpse of a block of masonry that reminds him of some neglected ruin.

If he tries to find out what sort of ruin it is and walks up to the clump of trees he sees not a neglected ruin but a block of masonry that reminds him of some neglected ruin.

If the visitor has any imagination, while he sees nothing but a few soldiers, he can fancy that behind those huge eyes and big guns lurk.

Baked by "White Lat". It is to be attempted, however, to verify his fancy by following the footsteps of the people through the line and to find out what sort of masonry and earth there is upon it.

These artillerists know to a foot the height of each of their guns and just how their guns must be pointed to reach a certain spot and annihilate an enemy.

While Paris has had her walls, draw bridges and castles, she has had trenches for a thousand years. It is in the year 1310 that the growing city was first protected against artillery fire.

May Still Be Seen. These fortifications which are still to be seen today are 21 miles in length and have no less than thirty-four bastions.

The most, in which some 2000 men were killed, is 45 feet wide. The range of modern artillery has practically made these fortifications obsolete, except to resist an assault of old-fashioned hand-to-hand fighting.

To keep back the invader, however, to a distance of at least thirty miles on all sides, is the reason for the existence of the fortifications which have been built at an expense of at least $50,000,000.

Small Army Needed. These are the great chains of forts which encircle the city at the fortifications, the second on the higher plains two miles distant from the city, and the third at a distance of twenty to fifteen miles according to the day of the ground and the hills that afford points of strategic defense and offense.

Were any army to dare to go within 10 miles of the outside chain of forts, it is not too much to say that the invaders could be held off and probably utterly destroyed by a few hundred men.

While the actual number of these forts—and even their position—is known to only a few, it is estimated that there are no less than a total of two hundred. They are planned to work together like the crew of a boat. Each big one has a particular bit of territory to guard, and about this one has been arranged a system of co-operation through which it would be next to impossible to break.

For an army to venture to Paris is a useless undertaking. In the second great chain of forts there are no less than thirty, each of which is considered impregnable to charge by troops or from bombardment.

There are some fifty other fortresses scattered in the outer zone lying at a distance of twelve to fifteen miles from the heart of the city.

The total area encompassed within these great fortifications is no less than five hundred square miles. It is estimated that if an invading army were held at the outer line of forts enough vegetable produce could, in summer, be grown on the lands of this outer chain to feed the total population of Paris and the French troops defending the city.

FOUGHT TILL THEY DROPPED

Medical Officers Say That Many Belgian Soldiers Collapsed From Sheer Exhaustion

London.—Medical observations in the war now being fought will be peculiarly complete than in any previous conflict. A London medical correspondent stationed at Brussels has sent a report part of which follows:

"I have had an opportunity during the last few days of visiting several of the great Brussels hospitals and ambulances and of seeing some of the wounded who have been sent down from the front.

"Two facts have struck me very forcibly. First, the very large number of the Belgian soldiers are wounded only in the legs, and secondly, many soldiers seem to have collapsed through sheer exhaustion.

"Some of the Belgian soldiers were at work on the march during the storming of the city of Ypres on Wednesday and Thursday of last week, practically without a moment's respite.

"The fact that so many of the Belgian wounded had been shot in the legs aroused considerable surprise at first in medical circles. It is now clear that the soldiers were merely a matter of chance. When the German prisoners began to come in and were interrogated, the explanation was forthcoming. It transpired that orders had been given to fire, not down in the belly, but in the leg, in the hope that the wounded might be placed hors de combat. While there may be something in this theory, it remains a fact that a flesh wound in the leg is not so serious as a wound in the chest or the abdomen.

LONDON HAS FOOD IN PLENTY

Supplies for One Hundred Days on Hand, With Much More on the Way

(International News Service.) London.—There is today in London only food enough to provision the city for 100 days. Inquiry showed other English cities to be in about the same straits. About the only commodities of which there are a noticeable shortage were bacon and eggs, the staples of the British breakfast table.

There is little alarm over the situation in London, it is felt that vessels are on their way from Australia and Canada with foodstuffs, which, barring accidents of war, will arrive soon, and it is anticipated that the present shortage of food in the United Kingdom and the United States will be largely restored before the 100 days elapse.

Coming to actual figures, J. G. Woodcock, chairman of the docks and warehouse committee of the port of London, said that the present stock in the port warehouses and in ships discharging cargoes included 35,000 tons of meat, but that he was not so plentiful that it was necessary to open a new warehouse for a part of it. The warehouses were having a very busy time, said the chairman.

One Expletive of Belgian. MAARTELT, Holland.—Thrilling incidents of the fighting about Liege are being told here by wounded men who were taken to the hospital in the Belgian city. One said that a half-dozen Belgian carabinieri came upon 20 Germans who were escaping through a tunnel. As they emerged the Belgians shot them down. The last of the four had been killed the remaining Germans surrendered, believing they stood a large force.

NATION'S LABOR PROBLEM

OVER A MILLION AND A HALF WOMEN WORK AS FARM HANDS IN THE UNITED STATES

By Peter Radford

Lecturer National Farmers' Union. Our government never faced as tremendous a problem as that now lying dormant at the doors of congress and the legislatures, and which, when aroused, will shake this nation from center to circumference, as no other civilization has its face in shame. That problem is—women in the field. The last federal census reports show we now have 1,641,000 women working in the field, most of them south of the Mason Dixon line. There were approximately a million Negro slaves working in the field when—liberated by the emancipation proclamation. We have freed our slaves, and the women have taken their places in bondage. We have broken the shackles of the Negro, and welded them upon our daughters.

The Chain-Gang of Civilization. In million women in the field of the southern fields form the chain-gang of civilization—the industrial tragedy of the age. There is no over-ripe soil so cruel as that of untrained greed, to whip that stings like the lash of suborned destiny, and no auctioneer's block so revolting as that of organized avarice.

The president of the United States was recently lauded by the press, and very properly so, for suggesting mediation between the engineers and railroad managers in adjusting their schedule of time and pay. The engineers threatened to strike if their wages were not increased from approximately ten to eleven dollars per day and service reduced from ten to eight hours and a similar reduction in the other direction. Their women are working in the field, many of them barefooted, for less than 50 cents per day, and their schedules in the field are no less than 16 to 18 hours and a similar reduction in the other direction. Their women are working in the field, many of them barefooted, for less than 50 cents per day, and their schedules in the field are no less than 16 to 18 hours and a similar reduction in the other direction.

Ob, America! The land of the free and the home of the brave, the world's custodian of—civilization—the champion of human rights and the defender of the oppressed—shall we permit our millions fair to be torn from the heartlands by the ruthless hand of duty and chained to the plow? Shall we permit our millions fair, whom we encountered with first to charity and protect, to be hurled from the home to the harvest field, and our millions dear to be driven from the old farm to the new farm?

It is hereby ordered, That the forces of civilization, can we not apply to our fair Dilettante the rule of the sea—"women and children first." Shall we permit our millions fair, whom we encountered with first to charity and protect, to be hurled from the home to the harvest field, and our millions dear to be driven from the old farm to the new farm?

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE

Why application for leave to sell real estate should not be granted. In the Probate Court of Twin Falls county, Idaho. In re: the estate of Eleanor H. McDonald, a minor. J. C. Cleaden, guardian of the person and estate of Eleanor H. Cleaden, a minor, hereby gives notice to you, to this court, and filed heretofore, his petition, duly verified, praying for the order of sale of certain real property owned by the said minor, for the cause and reasons therein set forth, and it appearing to the court from the said petition, that it is necessary and would be beneficial to the said minor, that the said real estate should be sold in public.

withheld at Washington held the favored hand and soothed the feverish brow of her sex who sows and reaps the nation's harvest and who permit the male of the species to shove a whole world's worth of suffering and a headline of industry to the back alleys of poverty?

Women and Children First. The census enumerators tell us that of the 1,541,000 women who work in the fields are farm hands 493,000 are sixteen years of age and under. What is the final destiny of a nation whose future mothers spend their childhood days behind the plow, sifting hay and baling manure, and what is to become of womanly culture and refinement that grace the home, charm society and entice man to loan to glory in noble adventures? If our daughters are raised in the society of the ox and the companionship of the plow?

In that strata between the ages of sixteen and forty-four are 555,000 women working as farm hands and many of them with scolding babies kicking at their breasts, as drenched in perspiration, they wield the scythe and guide the plow—What is to become of that nation whose daughters break the crumple of the agent of the home, despair their mother's love from its throne and hunger-driven innocent children from the schoolroom to the home?

The census shows that 155,000 of these women are forty-five years of age and over. There is no more pitiful sight in civilization than these sadly mothers of boys and young men, aged, dragging in the mud from silt and sun and at night dropping their tiny pillows with the tears of despair as their aching hearts take it all in too many years.

Ob, America! The land of the free and the home of the brave, the world's custodian of—civilization—the champion of human rights and the defender of the oppressed—shall we permit our millions fair to be torn from the heartlands by the ruthless hand of duty and chained to the plow? New Construction Julius Bauer Piano

There has been no material change in the construction of pianos in the past forty to fifty years to meet the modern conditions such as steam, hot air and hot water heating. It is known that the temperature constantly maintained through this method of heating is extremely hard on pianos. The manufacturers of the BAUER PIANO have entirely overcome this in their NEW CONSTRUCTION.

Other particular advantages claimed for this New Construction Piano are:

- The absence of rattling tone, achieved through the "rigidity of the strings."
- The increase of smoothness in the treble section of piano which has been gained by the break or breaks being eliminated through the method of detaching the piano above the string frame.
- The strings are freer to vibrate, being about 5/16 inches away from the sounding board as compared with the ordinary 3/16 inches of freedom in the pianos constructed in the usual manner.
- The tone of this remarkable instrument has to be heard to appreciate it.
- The Bauer Piano especially ordered in the Low Laying theatre has been received and will be on exhibition for a few days on our floors before installing in the theatre, would be pleased to have you call and inspect it.

Orchard Information

DISEASES OF PEACH TREES

All Can Usually Be Controlled by Proper System of Spraying. Location is Main Problem.

(By C. H. THOMPSON) The peach is grown over a wide range of country, but its really successful commercial culture is limited to a comparatively few localities. This is practically in growing the peach trees in the early spring and blossoming habit of the flower buds. A week or so of mild weather in winter or early spring may start the buds into growth, only to be killed by a subsequent frost.

One of the main problems in peach culture is to select a location for the orchard where the buds are least likely to start into growth and bloom before settled weather comes in the spring. The rule is to avoid low lands for peaches; low lands are covered there. Orchards planted on sunny southern slopes come into bloom earlier and such locations when possible. A high altitude, where the cool air will flow off down to lower levels, and a northern or western aspect is generally the best for a peach orchard.

There are several diseases of peach trees which also cause destruction if not promptly controlled, but as proper spraying will accomplish this, there is really no reason why a peach orchard should show a loss on account of disease. The brown rot is a most destructive disease of the peach. It thrives best in warm, moist weather and under favorable conditions may affect the fruit. The disease may also affect the leaves and is often referred to as "twig blight." "Mummy peaches" are caused by this disease. These should always be removed. Bordeaux or lime-sulfur is best for control. It should be sprayed just after the blossoms fall with arsenate of lead. Two weeks later spray with bordeaux and arsenate of lead. Apply bordeaux every ten days or two weeks until fruit begins to color.

Crown gall forms knobby galls on the lower part of the trunk and roots of peach trees and is very easy to detect. Trees affected with this disease should never be planted. Leaf curl is a disease which is very wide spread, being found practically everywhere the peach is grown. It appears as soon as the buds begin to open and shows a characteristic curling of the leaves and deeper green color. The twigs are also affected and become swollen and have a lighter colored, webbed or honeycombed appearance. It is to be especially valuable for this disease. Rosette is a contagious disease for which no positive remedy has yet been found. The cause of the disease is unknown and the best remedy is to dig up and destroy the tree.

The yellow, like the rosette, is a contagious disease of the peach. It appears as a yellow discoloration on the leaves and causes premature ripening of the fruit and death of the tree. The cure is to dig up and destroy the tree. The yellow, like the rosette, is a contagious disease of the peach. When a crop on a tree is too large for normal maturity, thinning is required, and should always be given. Thinning should be given to increase the size of the fruit; avoid breakage of the tree; yields grain on both tree and soil by avoiding unnecessary seed production; and probably increases greatly by affording opportunity for normal development.

DAIRYMEN MUST MOVE QUICK

Three Things Menace Industry: Intelligent Cow, Antiquated Methods and Ignorance of Public.

(By EUGENE DAVENPORT, Idaho Agricultural College.)
A good deal is going to happen in dairying within the next 25 years! Dairy husbandry represents the most intensive form of agriculture practiced on this side of the water. We have been so busy about other things that we have not yet settled down to the development of the industry in this country. I think the individual dairyman has his attention too exclusively on his personal affairs, and too little upon the industry as a whole. When I see a man advocating a system of buying cows instead of feeding them I know that he is looking at it purely from the individual standpoint. He knows, or ought to know that no business can thrive on such a plan. What you need to do and what we all need to do—and do it quickly—is to attend to those things that will establish the dairy business as a whole upon a permanent basis.

There are three things that underlie the prosperity of the dairy business: First, the intelligent cow; second, the intelligent farmer; and third, the intelligent public.

The intelligent cow is the one that produces the most milk from the least food and with the least labor. It is up to the dairymen to educate both themselves and the general public as to how to get the best from the cow. We must look a long way ahead. There are some things that must be done now for the improvement of dairying 20 years from now.

DAIRYING ON GENERAL FARM

To Be Most Successful Financially Business Should Be Carried on With Other Lines.

(By H. A. HAINES, Idaho Agricultural College.)
Studies of the financial side of the dairy industry, so far as they have yet been made, indicate that dairying is the most financially successful should be carried on in connection with other types of farming. The reason for this is quite evident. Owing to the need of milkers and labor in connection with the care and attack which must be given to dairy, a considerable amount of labor is necessary. The corn and alfalfa will keep this labor busy engaged during a comparatively short period, during the year. If the farm operations are restricted to the growing of these two crops, during a considerable portion of the year there will be no labor during the day to profitably employ the farm help and horses which must be at hand during this other portion of the year. A consideration of these facts makes it perfectly plain that if dairying is to be continued most profitably it must be combined with the growth of other crops upon the farm, which will probably employ the men and boys throughout the time when they could not otherwise be profitably employed in connection with the dairy operation. Studies of the returns from various types of farms show that the financial considerations are well borne out by the results.

TEST THE COWS REGULARLY
Responsibility for Existence of Tuberculosis Rests With the Owners of Infected Cows.

The establishment of tuberculosis in the case of the dairyman with the assistance of the state. The responsibility for the existence of tuberculosis in the case of the dairyman rests with the owners of the infected cattle. Remarkable progress has been made in eradicating tuberculosis without great loss in several dairy sections. The men above all others who should early test their cows are the owners whose herds are from the west. Constant vigilance is necessary to keep a herd of dairy cows free from tuberculosis.

PRACTISE OF THINNING FRUIT

Of Great Value When Crop on Tree Is Too Large for Normal Maturity. Increases Quality.

When a crop on a tree is too large for normal maturity, thinning is required, and should always be given. Thinning should be given to increase the size of the fruit; avoid breakage of the tree; yields grain on both tree and soil by avoiding unnecessary seed production; and probably increases greatly by affording opportunity for normal development.

It is also desirable, from time to time, to thin a crop of such young trees, though this has not yet been actually proven experimentally. Where needed, thinning should be done as soon as possible after the June crop is largely over. In some localities, late thinning is also made as the demand grows, and such thinning increases the removal of defective fruits, so that the crop at picking time is practically all first grade.

FACTS EVERYONE SHOULD KNOW

This Is True

When you are sick—the best medicine is none too good. Protect your system, be sure the medicine you take will help and not harm you. Great harm has come through the indiscriminate use of drugs and medicines of unknown value and unknown contents. In taking medicines—have a care—use judgment.

Our Position

We serve to satisfy, knowing we can only hold your trade as long as we sell you drug merchandise that produces satisfactory results. As professional pharmacists, we are always pleased to give you the full benefit of our pharmaceutical training. Do not be afraid to ask questions. You can always rely on our judgment. We want your business because we deserve it. Anything that you might expect to find in an "up-to-the-minute drug store"—you'll find it here. In our store, "customer is king."

Our Confidence

We have the exclusive sale of those well renowned Nyal Family Remedies. These are the remedies that "make good" all the time. We sincerely recommend these Nyal Remedies—we know just how good they are. When we sell you one of the hundred or more Nyal Remedies you may know you are getting the best the drug world produces. When better remedies are made they will carry the Nyal label.

The Reason Why

When buying a family remedy, your natural preference should be for Nylals. These remedies, though vastly superior to all others cost no more than the rest. Then, too, we know just why these remedies are made, of what they are made and who makes them. There is nothing secret about the reliable Nyal Family Remedies—we are pleased to tell you all about them. Back of each of these Nyal Remedies there is a half century of flawless success. We know what benefits Nyal Remedies have brought to thousands; we know how well they will satisfy you—that's why we sincerely recommend them to your use.

Our Guarantee

We have such confidence and faith in these Nyal Remedies that we guarantee each Nyal preparation we sell to give desired results or refund your money. You can't ask for a better guarantee. We can afford to make this guarantee on Nyal Remedies—they never fail to satisfy. If you would be safe, sure and satisfied, use Nyal's Family Remedies. The kind we guarantee to give desired results. We can only hold your trade as long as we continue to sell you remedies which produce results.

ATTENTION

If your system is run down and you want to tone up the entire system—use Nyal's Tonic. Equally good for man, woman and child. Nyal's Tonic is far superior to all other reconstitutive remedies. There's a big volume of red blood in one of those large dollar bottles. Brace up. Enjoy perfect health. Try Nyal's Tonic. It's mighty good.

FOR THE COLD

Get a bottle of Nyal's Cherry (cough syrup)—it breaks up a cold quickly. It's easy to take and contains no harmful drugs. Along with this—exceptional cough syrup, use Laxacold Tablets. They keep the bowels open.

A PERFECT COMPLEXION

Nyal's Skin Soap is endflow and antiseptic. It keeps the skin clear and free from blotches. This is soap that produces the best labor. Be good to your skin. Try Nyal's Skin Soap. It only costs a quarter.

TO WOMEN

Wherever there are women or growing daughters in the home, there also belongs a bottle of Nyal's Vegetable Prescription. There is a wealth of comfort and relief in a bottle of Nyal's Vegetable Prescription.

FOR BOWEL TROUBLE?

For constipation there's nothing so good as Pigeon. It's positive in action and quickly corrects constipation. Pigeon is sold in three sizes—10c, 25c and 50c.

The Home of Nyal's

The Nyal Family Remedies are made in one of the world's largest and best equipped laboratories. Not only that, but these result-producing remedies are manufactured by trained chemists and pharmacists. Nyal Remedies are made from the best procurable drugs and chemicals—they are quality remedies. You take no chances when you use any one of the Nyal Family Remedies. You know they are good—a half century of phenomenal success has made them so. Put your faith in the Nyal Family Remedies, you can't go wrong. There are no "cur-alls" among these remedies. Each preparation is especially and scientifically prepared for the treatment of an individual ailment. Money can't make better remedies than Nylals.

Remember

When we sell you a Nyal Remedy we sell you the best we've got. Next time you are in need of a good household remedy ask us to show you the Nyal preparations. Ask us to tell you the Nyal story. Nylals cost no more than the rest—they are much to be preferred. We are agents for these—the world's best family remedies. Satisfaction or money refunded—that's our Nyal guarantee. When you buy Nylals, you buy big medicinal value. If more people knew the real merit of the Nyal Family Remedies, there would be less sickness in this vicinity. To be safe, sure and satisfied—use Nyal's Family Remedies.

About a Sign

Note the disk sign. You'll find it in the windows of all Nyal Stores. Wherever you see this sign displayed, you will find one of the best drug stores in America. This is the sign which directs the way to better drug merchandise at better prices. Make the Nyal Store your drug store and you'll always be sure of absolute satisfaction. The reliable Nyal Family Remedies are only sold by druggists who show this sign. Let this sign be your guide and you'll never go wrong in your drug purchases. For years the Nyal Family Remedies have led in quality and satisfaction.

An Example

Buy a jar of Nyal's Face Cream. It's what particular people use for chapped skin, cracked lips, tan, freckles and sunburn. There is nothing quite so good as this. Being greaseless, it is readily absorbed by the skin, leaving it soft and smooth as velvet. Containing peroxide, it is thoroughly antiseptic. Then, too, that flowery, fragrant odor of this ideal face cream makes it truly delightful. Men use it after the shave, it relieves skin irritation. We sell this cream in two sizes of ornamental jars, 25 and 50 cents. Take a jar home to-day. You'll find it superior to anything you have ever used before. For your complexion's sake—USE NYAL'S FACE CREAM.

On All of Your Printed Matter, It Represents Good Workmanship, Good Types, and Good Conditions.

The Times would suggest to the State-man the handling of the following matter upon the walls of the editorial column.

"A railroad day will drive the lines away."

The appointment of a Twin Falls man to the public utilities commission is a highly pleasant to his many friends here, who believe that he will make good in one of the most difficult positions in the state. He has been a business-student and has had similar appointments and has some very firm expressed ideas on the subject of corporation control, and will no doubt be an influential member of the commission. When the first commission was created, Mr. Graham was an aspirant for a position and had the backing of all the business men of this section, who had faith in his strong character and unimpeachable integrity. The Times believe that the appointment of Mr. Graham will immediately strengthen the commission in the minds of the people who know his ideas on the real work of the commission. To the people of this section in particular, the appointment of a man thoroughly familiar by actual residence with the situation is pleasing in the belief that at least the real situation will be made plain and relief given, if possible, to a condition that has brought all electrical development to a standstill in this section.

It seems that corporations have their troubles too. From the fact that the first of the next month, the utilities commission will hear the arguments of the power companies and the telephone companies on the requirements which the commission will make for all future construction work in the state in the matter of the cross-arms and brackets. Under the present conditions it is possible a mighty hard condition for the power companies to comply with the specifications which the construction work of the telephone companies is made comparatively easy. Owing to the fact that the field telephone and telegraph companies were the first in the field, it has been a case nearly every time of getting advantageous positions on the matter. If the construction of the latter companies, to make the common ground, there will occur many places where the power companies will be forced to make alterations and made to purchase private rights of way with an almost prohibitive cost to themselves and to the taxpayers. The matter of power line crossings is nearly in the same category because of the elevation of power lines above telephone lines to a point where it is necessary to maintain doubly expensive. It would seem to the Times that the state should at all times, in the development work and while the utility commission should render strongly proper safety for the citizens that technical rulings should be made only after the closest investigation into the needs of the community and the conditions which confront all utility companies, rather than arbitrarily in a hard and fast rule which is arbitrary and almost unchangeable.

ONE BODY LEGISLATURE

When the Republican state platform was being considered at the convention in June the editor of the Signal, who was a member of the committee on resolutions, faulted strenuously for the adoption of a plank providing for the abolition of our present two-body system, and the establishment of a one-body legislature with one member from each county in the state. After a debate of a couple of hours the resolution was only defeated by the narrow margin of 17 to 14 although at the beginning it had few supporters.

The measure made in so short a time in the convention leads the Signal to believe there is a possibility—if not an absolute certainty—that a constitutional amendment may be submitted by the coming legislature providing for the much needed change. At least the effort should be made and no stone left unturned in doing about a change which will mean so much to the people in both the matter of efficiency and expense. The voters will jump at the chance to adopt such an amendment and then the representatives from the several counties can meet, as the board of directors of the large corporations meet, and consider this proposition, and without the usual procrustean legislation for the government of the people.

Not only would a savings of almost two-thirds in the salaries and per diem of legislative members be made, but a horde of useless clerks and attendants could be dispensed with. The sessions would not cost the people to exceed one-third of what they do now, and the efficiency would be doubled. There would be less talk and more real work, less politics and more business and less trading and back-scratching and more consideration of the welfare of the state as a whole.

The argument may be used that change is revolutionary and experimental, but it does not hold good. Considering that both claims are true, there is no reason for being afraid of a revolutionary measure which means better service and there is no justification for rejecting an experiment which will reduce the cost of government to the people and relieve them of some of the present burden under which they are groaning. Simplification should be the watchword and economy the slogan of every member of the legislature. The way to reform is to reform and a one-body legislature is a long step in the direction of eradicating some of the existing evils.

EUROPE'S CONCERN OVER OUR ATTITUDE

The importance of American sympathy appears to be recognized, by all the warring nations, to judge from the strenuous efforts being made by some of the Powers to exert a direct influence upon public opinion in this country. For example, the London Daily Chronicle has sent a well-known English writer to this side to survey the field of American thought and to find out how best to secure and preserve American friendship. So, too, the German government, influenced by the reports of the anti-German stand taken by the American press at least in the east, has sent a statement of the first rank upon a mission to present the truth to the American people as it appears to German eyes. The recent appointment of Congressman Gardner, of Massachusetts, for a "state of preparedness for eventualities in the United States" has excited much comment across the water and Gabriel "Hannau," once the French Minister for Foreign Affairs, says in an editorial in the Paris Argonne:

"This speech indicates a certain evolution in America in the past two months. Parliaments, private letters from the United States, show clearly that so per cent of American citizens favor the Allies. Germany to-day does not conceal her desire to ruin England and dismember France. The result of her victory would be the destruction of the English fleet and the occupation of one or more French and English ports on the Atlantic. Then America would find herself as the neighbor of a colossal empire whose object before everything is economic triumph. How could the United States maintain first her economic and then her political independence if she found herself in such a position?"

More times small companies are organized with inferior assets, start up on "the road" with a small capital, or more at all, to make two, three or four night stands, calling themselves "Brook's Stock Company." This company is nothing more than a very naive "travelling" migration, and a few little plays, but nevertheless, they turn themselves a stock company, thereby leading the public and fellow actors into a very wrong. A stock company is one that is permanently located in a good theatre, producing good standard plays on the same plan that they were originally produced by "stock actors," especially engaged for one particular line of parts. To be a stock actor, one must have brains, intellect, education, to be a repertoire actor, such as tour the smaller towns, requires great actors on the stage. The most public are tickled into believing (for a little while) that they are paying to see a stock company. The great actors on the stage today may have been stock opportunities offered in stock engagements by the great actors on the stage. The stock company is the field looked over by prominent managers, for that is where the "travelling" stars are found. Miss Prince, who came to the Laxa, the theatre for a stock engagement, one of the best known stock actresses in the west and she has surrounded herself by an excellent company of eastern stock actors. Miss Prince will be at the Laxa theatre for an indefinite engagement.

Animals Around Meridian Hiten by Mad Coyotes.
There have been dogs and coyotes affected with hydrophobia in several sections of southwestern Idaho this year which were killed before the dread madly made its appearance here. made its appearance. Allen, north of Meridian, a cow and two dogs were after being inspected by the state veterinarian, declared afflicted with real hydrophobia. The cow had high fever, frothed at the mouth and was biting her horns into other stock or anything she met. She had all the symptoms of the disease and appeared in a frenzy of rage. She was killed by order of the state official.

O. D. Boyd, who has been one of the operators and check agents at the Oregon Short Line depot for the past eight months, leaves Tuesday for Hottel, where he will take the position of foreman. He will move his family to the Salmon tract city in about ten days.

A quiet wedding took place Sunday afternoon, November 22, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Neal, of Kimberling, when Mrs. Neal's brother, Mr. Alvin F. Eaton, of Eden, and Miss Solie South of Greenwood, Mo., were united in marriage. Rev. H. P. Shoemaker, of the Kimberling Christian church, performed the ceremony in the presence of a few relatives and friends.

APPEAL IN DIVORCE CASE

Prof. L. Keller Appeals for Change in Court Decision.

Alleging alienation of the affections of his three children and not satisfied with the decree of the lower court, Prof. L. Keller carried his appeal to the supreme court yesterday in the suit filed for divorce instituted against him by his former wife, Eva L. Keller. The appeal is from the fourth judicial court of Twin Falls county. Keller asks the supreme court to amend and modify the judgment.

The facts as set forth in the brief show that Eva Keller brought suit for divorce against her former husband in the county court. She was given, in addition, alimony of $20 a month and the custody of their three children. Keller says that she was forced to and Helena, need to Keller says in the appeal that prior to the decree being entered, they had reached an agreement with reference to the annuity property consisting of a house and lot valued at $2000, located in Twin Falls, two and one-half acres of land located near Kimberly, valued at $500, and other property, the effect of which the transcript, he believes if just the decree was granted.

Eva Keller married Paul Hansman shortly after the decree was granted and she removed with the three children away from Twin Falls. Keller says he has repeatedly tried to see his children. But his former wife will not let him. He avers that their affections have been alienated. He asks that the court modify the judgment in his behalf.—Capital News.

People Are Owning the Best Watches They Can Afford

Time was when people were satisfied with indifferent timepieces.

Today men and women, and young men whose time has a value put all the money they can afford into a watch.

But as the amount that people can afford varies so greatly, this store is prepared to price-piece people at from $5.99 to $50.00.

All the best known and highest grade watches are shown by us in larger variety than you generally see.

And, while it is always preferable to buy enough to last years and years of perfect satisfaction, still that doesn't mean that you have to go high in figures.

Start carrying accurate time.

GROWTHS OF STATE SCHOOLS

State Board of Education Press Bulletin No. 6.

For the first time in many years, the six state education institutions, which were under the management of the state board of education for a little over a year, will all come before the legislature without a deficit. Furthermore, at least three of the six will show a balance of hand over the other two less than $15,000. These are the figures which were presented to the members of the board at their meeting in Boise last week. It was indicated that when the figures were compiled, further creditable results might be found in the purchase of fuel and supplies. This is the showing that the board will make at the next session.

The absence of deficits will probably be more appreciated by the legislature than by the newly elected members. In former years deficits have been the rule rather than the exception, while an actual surplus was out of the question. A creditable surplus, which might have been spent for the betterment of the state in the past, has been the exception rather than the rule. The board has been able to keep the state's educational institutions in a financial condition which is a credit to the board. The financial report of the board is a credit to the board.

tion will also be included, at Mrs. Shepperd's request. University President Teachers. President Bramson, of the University of Idaho, will be most college presidents, teachers classes himself, in plant physiology and plant pathology, chiefly for Agricultural students. There are few men in the country who are equal in these and similar subjects. As a matter of fact, the class in plant pathology, or diseases of plants, had been waiting more than a year for this advanced and technical instruction. These subjects are exceedingly practical for a great agricultural state, but the board determined to relieve Dr. Bramson from part of this extra burden by employing a plant pathologist as soon as funds were available. Dr. J. H. Hill School leaves. The large attendance of the Gooding Board and Hill school has made necessary the employment of an additional teacher. Not only is the school overcrowded, but a considerable number of deaf and blind children in various parts of the state are still neglected for Board Confines to Stand for Economy. The preliminary canvass of requests from the six institutions for financial appropriations showed that their work and their financial needs were growing. The distribution of buildings, and the equipment for an important item of expense. The board stated as their belief that the people of the state designed at all times to pay reasonable support for their educational institutions, and yet they have from the outside world clearly in mind the aspect of economy in all their affairs at this time of general financial stringency. In December the board will meet to pass finally upon the request for appropriations for all state institutions under its control. The requests will be presented by the board to the legislature, as the law directs. The large volume of routine business sessions required day and even the sessions for four days.

GRANDSCOUR OF IDAHO'S SCENERY

Pellicious Boat Ride Through Glimy Canyon in Wildest Country in U. S.

Tell us tales of adventure experienced in taking the wildest ride in America and of marvellous escapes from being deluged to death on the treacherous rocks as their boats twisted and turned and shot through the canyons and scorching torrents of the lower Salmon river, a number of Idaho amateurs have arrived in Butte for a visit with Montana friends while enroute to their homes. The party in the first boat ever risked the "dangerous trip on what is said to be the "widest water in America, to hunt wild game in the remote, scenic regions of central Idaho. Not more than a half dozen men have made the death defying journey before them. The party consisted of the adventurous party are Dr. W. B. Horn, Carl Clark, W. K. Harmon, Jay Fry, in Martin-Mulroy and driver. Most of the men reside in Salmon City and are engaged in business there. They are enthusiastic sportsmen and each year make extended trips into the hills in search of the game. Clark, who is manager of a hardware firm in Salmon, spent several years in Alaska in the late '80s, exploring that country with a party of United States geological surveyors. Dr. Horn has traveled extensively and has hunted in all the big game countries of the west and Canada, while the others have also had considerable experience in the mountains. Captain Harry Gulick, known in Idaho as the "conqueror of the Salmon river," and the only man who has ever successfully lifted his sail and started against the snister power of the rapids, was in charge of the boat, with George Smith, another well-known riverman, at the rear sweep. The boat in which the trip was made was built in Salmon. It is a flat-bottomed barge and had the appearance of being a rather clumsy affair, but is the only kind that can be man-to-ride through the waters and against the bars and rocks that lie close to the surface. It was 28 feet long, 3 feet wide and 5 feet high, and was equipped with two helms or sweeps 25 feet long and six inches in diameter. At the end of each pole a plank 10 feet long was attached. One pole was attached to the front end of the boat and the other at the rear. With camping outfit and supplies the party drifted from Salmon City on October 1st. The Salmon then flows through the largest canyon in the United States and for about 200 miles along its course the country is generally uninhabited. Between the whirlpools below the "headwaters," where danger first lurks, and the "Whiplash" rapids, the first of the treacherous dangers before the Salmon flows into the Snake, there are more than 100 rapids, in any one of which, had the men at the sweeps made a false move, the boat would have been crushed to splinters. All these rapids with one exception, were successfully passed. The water level was low, and the men at the sweeps were happily and slinging fast. An accident happened, however, near the river bank toward the hazardous one and putting his hands to his mouth called out: "Talk and sail them that rifles and you won't see no dura fun!" His prediction came true. The current suddenly changed and the tumbling waters soon became a drifting zone. The water holed and raged and it surged inside the narrow walls and great rocks, its course making a sharp hook in the shape of a large letter S, where barren granite walls extend nearly straight up for a distance of 2000 feet. The boat abruptly shot out into space, then plunged downward into the torrent, as if it made a sheer drop of eight feet. A splashing sheet of water broke over the boat, drenching all hands. A swollen current from fall rains had here changed the course of the stream. The force dashed about the whirling pool though it had been feather, struck a rock creating a hole in the side. Pulling their heads from their backs two of the men held them over the opening while others grabbed poles and began to haul on the craft. It was a perilous moment, and every one of the passengers seems admit that his heart stood still. It was no detour, they say, to lose one's color on an occasion like that. The rafting alone was cool and collected and with quick tremendous action he threw his huge bulk against the sweeps. He was recomposed and before it had time to sink he pulled it safely through the rest of the channel to a landing place below the rapids. The entire trip on the water covered a distance of 225 miles, from Salmon City to Lewiston, Idaho. The hunters found big game plentiful, getting deer, bear and an abundance of chickens, grouse and fish. Dr. Hart caught two large trout, one weighing 16 pounds and measuring 34 inches in length. The Salmon river is probably the only navigable stream in the world that requires a new boat for every trip. Boats are built in Butte to take supplies and machinery to mining camps and small ranches down the river for a distance of 50 miles. They are built for a short haul and the lumber used to build mills, residences and for other purposes. There are not many miles in the course of the entire river where even a power boat could navigate up stream. It is impossible for any kind of craft to return up stream after it has once descended into the lower canyon waters.—Butte Daily Post.

Million Dollar Mystery

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS

Stanley Hargrove, millionaire, after a succession of brilliant thieftowns known as the Black Hundreds, lives the life of a recluse for eighteen years. Hargrove eventually meets Braine, the leader of the Black Hundred. Knowing Braine will try to get him, he escapes from his own home by a balloon before he writes a letter to the girl's school where eighteen years before he mysteriously left for the daughter of his first daughter, Florence Gray. This day Hargrove still draws $1,000,000 from the bank, but it is reported that this dropped into the sea when the balloon he escaped in was punctured.

Florence arrives from the girl's school. Countess Olga, Braine's comely, visits her and claims to be a relative. Two horns detectives call but their plot is foiled by Norton, a newspaper man.

Countess Olga, the rendezvous of the Black Hundreds, a plot known of the recovery from the sea of the box of jewels by a sailor and of its subsequent history, and he quickly communicates the fact to Jones. A duplicate box is planted and later secured by the hand, but before the contents are examined the box mysteriously disappears.

Finding himself checked at every turn, Braine endeavors to break through the Hargrove household in the law in order to gain free access to the house. The timely discovery of the plot by Norton and the police at the heels of the pack and results in a raid on the bank's rendezvous, which, however, proves to be barren of results.

The Black Hundred begin to fear Norton and plan to dispose of him. Again Braine learns that Florence is being held by Norton and Braine's hand by rescuing Norton and defeating Braine.

Florence secures a mysterious package of vital importance to her father's safety. Braine knows the package of accurate; the $1,000,000 and turns to revenge.

CHAPTER XXII A Packet of Papers.

Jim said nothing at first about his situation to Jones, whom he met half an hour later.

"Was it necessary to keep that invisible letter?" he asked.

"I don't know," Jim answered. "Would it have given our affairs a serious turn if it had fallen into other hands?"

"Possibly," answered Jim. "It would mean flight for the Black Hundreds, a long time under cover, if our father's income had been stopped."

"You're taking an active interest in the doings of the Black Hundreds. And eventually all our work would have to be done over again."

"Ah!"

"You look a bit mugged up. Anything happened?" asked the keen-eyed detective.

"Nothing much. I made a cigarette out of the letter and smoked it."

Jones chuckled. "I see that you have had an adventure of some sort; but it can wait."

"I can," Jim said.

"Because I want you to pack off to Washington."

"Yes. I want you to interview those officials who are most familiar with the extradition laws."

"A new clerk?"

"What I wish to learn is this: Can a man formerly indicted, take out naturalization papers and hold to the protection of the United States government? That is to say, a person, once indicted by Siberia, becomes an American citizen. Is he indicted and carried back to Russia. Can he look to this government for protection? That is what I want you to find out."

"That will be easy. When shall I go?"

"As soon as you can pack your trunk."

"That's always packed," replied the reporter. "You see, I'm always ready to go. You can see from a moment's notice, so I always have an extra trunk packed for quick travel."

"The Russian agent wants Braine."

Ask us How We'd Buy Lumber and see

If we don't put a few aspects on this high cost-fall. Sure, some lumber is high priced, but in building a house you don't have to specify "clear," "through-out," "lights," more than that one grade of lumber and there's many kinds of wood. All you need to insure you full value for your money is a suggestion here and there from some one who knows lumber. We believe we can qualify in that respect. We've been handling lumber for a good many years and have watched its wearing qualities under different conditions. Most all lumber is everlasting when properly used and cared for, but right there is where your need discriminating judgment. If you're figuring how to get the biggest value for your money we'd like to talk over this question of lumber with you. Come in.

Gem State Lumber Co.

Late-Howard Serwan received a telephone call. He was informed that his purpose in America would be recalled by his presence at each and every box that night at the opera. Further information could not be given until he telephoned Serwan, who well satisfied. He dressed carefully that evening, called up the office clerk and inquired if his box tickets for the opera had arrived. He was informed that they had. Instantly the spy, who had dared to linger about the hotel, overheard the conversation, determined not to miss a single detail of this man's movements. And at the same time, Norton, in disguise, determined not to lose sight of this man whom he had set himself to watch.

"The spy left by one entrance and Jim by another. Jim had learned what he desired, that the Russian agent would be followed to the opera and that it was going to be difficult to maintain the disguise. He had entered a tax store and telephoned. Jim walked outside. When the man came out he stroked up the street and was back in the hotel."

It was Braine's lieutenant, however, who took the news to Braine.

"What was successful?"

"He'll go to the opera. He will have a box. Doubtless they have arranged to deliver the papers there."

"And the next thing is to get the number of his box. This Braine had no difficulty in doing. "So that's all that. He calls himself Serwan and registers in Paris. I'll show the foot that he has an Amalgam to deal with this time."

"And what of these documents?" asked Olga.

"Ah, that's what we're so anxious to find out. Some papers are going to be exchanged between this Russian spy and Jones or his agents. That these papers concern us vitally I am certain. I don't wish to get into the matter if there has to be murder at the opera tonight. Norton has been to Washington. He has been coming out of the Russian embassy, from the secretary of state and war and a dozen other offices. I've got to find out just what he's doing."

"It means that the time has come for us to fly," said Olga. "We have hidden all our money here. It is time we folded our tents and stole away quietly. I tell you that I feel it in my bones that there is a pit before us somewhere, and you force upon us, we shall all fall into it."

"The white feather, my dear."

"There is some difference between the white feather and common sense caution."

"I shall never give up. You see free to pack up and go if you wish. As for me, I'm going to fight this out to the bitter end."

"And take my word for it, the end will be bitter."

"Well?"

"O, I shall stay. You know that my future is bound up in yours. In the first place my advice generally applied to you as sound; and when you followed it you were successful. From the first I have advised you not to pursue Hargrove—see what has happened."

Enough of this chatter, I've got to do some thing. It will be with my face toward this man I hate with all my soul. You trust to me—I'll pull out of this all right. You just fix yourself up snugly for the opera tonight and leave the rest to me."

Olga shrugged. She was somewhat of a fatalist. This man, of hers had suddenly gone mad; and one did not reason with mad people.

"What shall I wear?" she asked finally.

"Everalls; they're your good luck stones. You will go into the box before I do. I've got to spend some time at the curb to be sure that this Serwan chap arrives. And it will be quite possible that our friend Jones will come later. If not Jones, then Norton. I was a fool not to shoot him when I had the chance. We could have covered it up without the least difficulty. But I needed the information about that paper. With Norton going to Washington and Jones conferring with this Serwan, I've got to strike quick—it concerns us, that is certain. Perk up; we've lots of cards in our sleeves yet. Be at the opera at 8:30. Pay no attention to anyone. Wait for me. Remember, I shall be waiting for you—some phone message or some other way. Now I'm off."

Jones approached Florence immediately after dinner.

"I have an important business in the city tonight. Under no circumstances have the house. I shall probably be followed. And our enemies will have" need of you far more tonight than at any previous time. I shall not send you alone or in written message. You have your revolver. Shoot any strange man who enters. We'll make inquiries after."

"We are near the end?" whispered Florence.

"Very near the end."

"And I shall see my father?"

Jones bent his head. "If we succeed."

"There is danger?" thinking of her lover.

"There's always danger when I leave this house. So be good," the banker advised with a smile.

"And Jim?"

"He has proved that he can take care of himself."

"I'll do so, but if it will not be necessary, and with this Jones set forth upon what he considered the calmest of adventures."

The most brilliant crowd began to pour into the opera. Braine took his stand by the entrance. He waited a long time but his patience was rewarded. A limousine drove up and out of the door came his man, who looked about with casual interest. He descended the limousine, which whirled slowly around the corner where it could be conveniently parked. Then Serwan entered the opera.

Braine hurried round to the limousine. The lights save those demanded by traffic regulations were out. The chauffeur was huddled in his seat.

"My man," said Braine, "would you like to make some money?"

"How much?" intensely. The voice was muffled.

"Good night, sir."

"Good night and good marauding!"

"A hundred?"

"Now you've got to be interested. What kind of a joy ride do you want?"

"No joy ride. Listen."

Briefly the conspirator outlined his plan, and the chauffeur, who had been five minutes pressed into his limousine and had been curled up in his seat, now sprang to his feet.

Serwan entered his box. In the box next to his sat a handsomely gowned woman. He threw her all his glance which was repaid in kind. Later, Braine came in and sat down beside Olga.

"Everything looks like plain sailing," he whispered.

Olga shrugged slightly.

During the intermission between the first and second acts, Serwan took the rear chair of his box, near the curtains. Braine watching with the eyes of a lynx, suddenly observed the curtain stirring. A hand was thrust through. In that hand was a packet of papers. With seeming indifference Serwan reached for the papers, and the papers, closing their way in a pocket.

Braine rose at the beginning of the second act.

"Where are you going?" asked Olga nervously.

"To see Otto."

"A full attempt" was made to rob Serwan while in the box, but the timely arrival of Jim frustrated the man. Braine was forced to rely on the chauffeur of the limousine.

"As Father's face thrilling note died away, Braine and Olga rose.

"Be careful. And come to the apartment as soon as you can."

"I'll be careful," Braine declared softly. "You can watch the play if you wish."

When Serwan entered the limousine he was quietly but forcibly seized by two men who had been lying in wait for him, due to the operation of the chauffeur. Serwan fought valiantly, for all that he knew what the cost of the fight was, and he lost one of his fingers as he succeeded in getting the documents from Serwan's pocket.

"Fare you, my boy?" cried the victor.

"He's taken a crack on the case and will beat it."

"Just a moment, gentlemen," said a voice from the seat at the side of the chauffeur. "I'll take those papers." And the owner of the voice backed by a cab, snatched looking at him, rushed for it in a twinkling, and the spot was vacant.

"He's a good fellow," said Serwan, shaking himself free from his captors.

"Don't mention it," said Norton softly. "I've thought something like this would happen. Keep perfectly quiet, your clasp. Drive on, chauffeur, drive on."

"I'm my lord. To what particular police station shall I lead this gentleman?"

"The nearest, Jones; the very nearest. Think of it, some day when I'm rich, I'll hire you for my chauffeur. But for the present I shall expect at a box of Farnous out of this hundred."

Jones chuckled. "I'll buy you a box out of my own pocket. That hundred men to shirts."

"Here we are." Out with you, he said then to his policemen. He shouldered them into the police station, to the captain's desk.

"What's this?" demanded the captain.

"Nothing much," said Jim, "excepted this man's car and tried to rob him."

"This man, A. where you?"

"I'm showing his badge and card card."

"That's all right," said the captain, leveling a finger at Otto.

"Lift up that hat, lift it up. Sure, it's been taken off. He's wearing a scarf. He's been looking for you for ten months on the last forty days," Mr. Norton, my thanks. Take 'em below, sergeant. You'll be here to make the complaint in the morning, sir," he added to Serwan.

"I'll be here."

"I'll make necessary against Otto's part I don't know him."

"Very well."

Jim and Serwan, Norton and Serwan, trooped out of the station.

"You're a wonderful man, Jones, even if you are an Englishman," said Jim as he called for the checks.

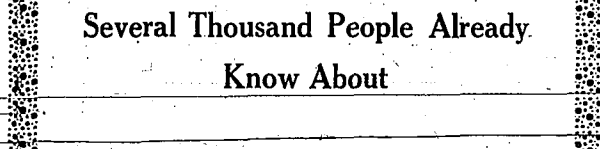

"English? What makes you think I am English?" asked Jones with a curious right in his eye.

"I'll tell you on the night we put the rollers under Braine and company."

"You started lame and I went at his young partner. What did he really know?"

On the evening of November 13th, last Thursday, a S. H. Miller, found the bones and skull of a human being in a creek in the lava rocks about one mile above Milton dam.

The bones were brought to the city and identified as those of Mrs. Anna Anderson, wife of John Anderson, formerly a business man at Helena, in Montana.

On the evening of November 13th, last Thursday, a S. H. Miller, found the bones and skull of a human being in a creek in the lava rocks about one mile above Milton dam.

It was reported that the bones were found in a cave in the lava rocks about one mile above Milton dam.

The bones were brought to the city and identified as those of Mrs. Anna Anderson, wife of John Anderson, formerly a business man at Helena, in Montana.

At present there appears to be some disagreement between the officers of this county and those of Cassia, as to which has jurisdiction in the matter as the bones were found in the latter county. What will be done in the future will be determined.

U. S. BUILD-BIG GUNS

Guns More Powerful Than German Pets Under Construction.

WASHINGTON - The largest and most powerful naval gun ever designed has just been completed for the United States navy. It is a 14-inch rifle, which it became known Friday night, has been constructed without publicity at the Washington navy yard and is now being put through tests at the Indian Head proving grounds on the Potomac below this city.

When the new gun goes to sea it will be the success of its trials. In all probability will be adopted as the type of gun for the main batteries of the dreadnoughts authorized at the last session of congress. These vessels are of two classes, the first class with a displacement of 20,000 tons and the second class with a displacement of 15,000 tons.

As the new rifles which just about 20 per cent more than the 12-inch guns, the 14-inch gun will be able to penetrate armor of the latest type.
