TOO LITTLE PUBLICITY

For a government which is supinely arbitrary in the dictates of the law, our own nation gives mighty small amount of publicity to the laws which affect all people. Only a very small proportion of the population of the entire country obtain any knowledge of national legislation. No effort is made by the government to acquaint its citizens with the laws for the violation of which there is a fixed penalty. All of the meager information given is in the newspapers who most of course confine their attention to the expense in connection with publishing all news. When the federal corporation tax law was passed several years ago, corporations all over the country were caught delinquent and compelled to pay heavy sums of money, just because of their lack of knowledge of the passage of the law. The same thing happened with the income tax law, passed two years ago. The same can be said of that arbitrary bed law, of which the actual requirements is not known to the public today, because of no published schedules of amounts and names for the different seasons of the year, yet a number of specimens have been compelled to pay heavy fines for their lack of knowledge.

Taken altogether, "The Petromax Novo Vranyx says that under German influence, Turkey has gathered together fifteen million army corps. They are preparing Turkey an auxiliary force of all federal laws, but able fighting force of German and where a law such as the recent war tax stamp law concerns so many people, an extra effort should be made to place a concise digest of the law in every postoffice in the country. Some of this expense is much more necessary than the filters and Hayburn's part in the national park bill.

TURKEY'S FATE

Against what they term the "anity of Turkey," the English papers predict swift retribution. They therefore view the disappearance of the Turks from Europe and its relegation to the role of a minor Asiatic power whose dominions will be confined to Anatolia. Like all the other organs of English opinion, the London Times sees the hand of the Kaiser in Turkey's act, and says:

"By her foolish yielding to the insidious of Germany, Turkey has pronounced her own doom. The Ottoman empire in Europe soon will be merely a memory. Since the Turks have resolved upon their own destruction, we do not regret their appearance in the ranks of the combatants."

Their acts of war mean that, when the mighty struggle is over, Europe will be rid of two factors which for more than fifty years have been the chief menace to the peace of the Old World. We shall get rid of Prussian militarism and we shall simultaneously get rid of the Turks in Europe. The peoples of Syria, of Arabia, and of Mesopotamia will also benefit from the blighting influence of the Turks, and the Ottoman race will be reduced to the obscurity of Asia Minor from which it long ago emerged."

These hard words from an avowed friend of the Sublime Porte are echoed by another former supporter, the Paris Times, which considers that Turkey's entrance into the war will "not in any way embarrass the Allies and adds:

"The Turkish accession has been foreseen at Petrograd, as it has been foreseen by the English in Egypt. It is not the banks of the Bosphorus, but the gate of the Ottoman empire, which has been guilty of treachery and complicity with the enemy, will be settled."

On the Russian side more attention is paid to the practical aspect of it. It is held that the practical aspect of it, the national laws are unknown and dangerous factor in the war. The American citizen, who is law-abiding and desires to do everything just and right, there is no doubt to great an expense incurred with the publishing of all federal laws, but able fighting force of German and

Here in 4 Weeks*We love commercial battles but we cannot successfully fight unseasonable weather conditions.*

THE Summer weather which has prevailed until now, results in conditions unprecedented in the clothing trade. The Winter selling season usually comprises September, October, November and December. Now we are forced to turn this normal four months supply of overcoats and suits into cash in 4 weeks selling. Nothing will accomplish this except the most radical price cutting. We are forced to it, as over 500 suits and overcoats must leave this store between now and January 1st. This sale is your opportunity.

There are corresponding price sacrifices to be found in every department of this Big store.

For a $5.00 Deposit

If for any reason you do not wish to take your overcoat or suit now, you can select it from this mammoth assortment, and for a $5.00 deposit we will lay it aside and keep it pressed and ready for you when needed.

Special Dress Purchase

Velvets--Serges--Silks

A large New York dress maker wired us he would make us very special prices on these dresses for quick action to get money. We wired an acceptance of a lot of fifty dresses. They will arrive here Friday or Saturday and be on display at $7.50 to $20. These are very high class dresses and velvets are very scarce. This promises to be the dress sensation of the season. An opportunity to save $5 to $10 on a gown and so reasonable they should sell on sight. Visit this big department to look.

COLEMAN TRIAL DEC. 28

Accused Former Deputy State Treasurer, ure Arraigned in District Court

Fred M. Coleman, former deputy state treasurer, will stand trial on the charge of embezzlement of state funds and on the charge of falsifying the state records, on Dec. 28, 1914, beginning at 10 o'clock.

Coleman was arraigned this morning in the district court, the before were paid.

to both informations. By agreement of the county attorney and Attorney Frasier, the court set the date for trial at 10 o'clock.

Judge Davis yesterday directed that notice be sent to the attorney and bondsmen for Coleman to have him present Wednesday morning, but Coleman arrived from Portland and arranged to have his arraignment this morning. Paul A. Frasier, deputy prosecuting attorney, appeared on behalf of the state and A. A. Frasier appeared for Coleman.

After the arraignment, the attorney for Coleman or by Coleman himself as to what his defense will be, or how he will explain the presence of the check book written on the personal account of each drawer of former State Treasurer O. V. Allen in the amount of $22,000, which is charged against Coleman. This check, it is understood, came into the office of the state controller, and it is believed the defense of a man or less than reasonable character will be presented.

appeared for Coleman, he informed the attorney for Coleman or by Coleman himself as to what his defense will be, or how he will explain the presence of the check book written on the personal account of each drawer of former State Treasurer O. V. Allen in the amount of $22,000, which is charged against Coleman. This check, it is understood, came into the office of the state controller, and it is believed the defense of a man or less than reasonable character will be presented.

part of the audience of the state legislature said that the mode of life of Coleman, the lavish expenditure of money and other matters called for an immediate recall of Coleman. It is said that it is said that the mode of life of Coleman, when he found the check for twenty-five wired Coleman at Portland and called his men and wired to him, when Coleman wired him back to wire a message which is taken to indicate an acknowledgement of his shortage and his responsibility. for it. — Capital News.
