

ENGLAND REVENGES HER NAVAL LOSSES Big Sea Battle Off American Coast.

ENGLISH SIX GERMAN CRUISERS IN FLEET-FIGHT Land Battles Waged Furiously on Both East and West Fronts. No Decisive Victory.

Official Statement. At 7.30 a. m. on the 8th of December, the Behn Meyer, Giesbaden, and Dresden, were destroyed by a British squadron under Vice Admiral Sir Frederick Bantock.

Loss of Life Heavy. The statement makes reference to some officers rescued from the Giesbaden and the Leipzig, but no mention is made of any crew of the Scharnhorst.

British casualties were light, but beyond the fact that the British squadron is estimated to have been reduced to three ships, no information is given regarding the ships engaged, and the newspapers are generally silent on the subject.

German authorities say advance captures of German mail bags and other documents were required. In East Prussia fighting has diminished in intensity.

NOT TO HURT BUSINESS

Present Session of Congress Will Avoid Any Commercial Legislation.

President Wilson Delivers Message Before Congress on the Policies of the Administration. Prosperity Assurance.

Washington, Dec. 8.—President Wilson departed from the prepared text of his annual address to congress today, which was devoted principally to answering those who contend that the United States is unprepared for the international defense.

The president's remarks in full with relation to business legislation were as follows: "Our program of legislation with regard to the regulation of business is now virtually complete. It has been put forth, as we intended, as a whole and leaves no conjecture as to what it is to follow."

The president's statement that the bill for the building of government ships for the navy and the military training for citizens.

Washington, Dec. 8.—President Wilson's second annual address to congress today was the clearest and most logical in the real work of the short session.

The joint session of the house and senate was held in the chamber of the house to hear the president. Both branches met at noon, the members of the senate marching over to the chamber for the joint session, which with Vice President Marshall and Speaker Clark presiding, commenced promptly at 12:30 o'clock.

SUDDEN DEATH OF J. R. JONES

Young Man Drops Dead at Darrow Brothers' Seed Warehouse.

J. R. Jones dropped dead Tuesday afternoon at the seed warehouse of Darrow Brothers where he has been employed for the past four years.

The Democratic side of the chamber was the first to enter the chamber exactly at 12:30, greeted by applause and cheers as he shook hands with the speaker and the vice president.

After speaking of the "notable record" of legislation of the administration, the president departed from the text of his prepared address to say that the program of the administration with regard to legislation affecting business "is now virtually complete."

Another burst of hand clapping greeted the president's statement that the bill for the building of government ships for the navy and the military training for citizens.

The necessity regarding the constitutionality of the state automobile license tax will make the following year out of the question until all points have been cleared up. This year ninety per cent of the automobile owners have paid their taxes. The other ten have refused or neglected to do so and have had the same sort of the highways as the ninety per cent and have likewise escaped any county tax for their cars.

Highways. But the whole system depends vitally upon the collection of the tax. If unconstitutional, the state should find it out before the money is expended upon the highways, for it must be refunded dollar for dollar to those who have paid it.

BEING ACQUAINTED. North Americans never get acquainted with South Americans, and the two has now come for doing so, as a new era of mutual interest and knowledge of one another has dawned upon the people of both North and South America. The present great world struggle having thrown the people of these countries, and ourselves closer to each other, it is time to take the opportunity to get acquainted to become better acquainted.

THE MAN IN THE MIDDLE. The man in the middle, who has the office and makes the men who buy our machinery, might profitably come and look us over, so that kind of people we are, what we can do for them, what we can sell, what our products are, and so on, and so on.

tion, that we now exercise in our relations with European and Asiatic nations. We must go direct, for example, to Paris, Berlin, or Columbia, and we wish them to come direct to us as part of an all inclusive busily woven policy, but as a matter of special mutual advantage.

For the United States of North America the best Pan-Americanism is not a large, vague attitude of protective god will, gratuitously folded upon the other American Republics, but the other American Republics are the only ones that are not of this sort of Pan-Americanism. It has been too much in the past. The healthy and abiding relationship of the future, which may grow out of long-sustained conditions created by the war, is that of mutual respect and inter-relationship with nation. Out of such conditions an understanding and Pan-Americanism will in time grow, founded on proved advantages, not uttered as a doctrine by the strongest, but subscribed to as a policy by all alike.

WHY IT IS READ. One of the foundation principles of successful newspaper work is that the news matter comes home to the personal affairs of the reader, the more interest it excites. An item about business interests of a neighbor is likely to be read with more attention than a report of some-far-off disaster many miles away, affecting thousands and tens of millions of people, and many of which no one knows anything.

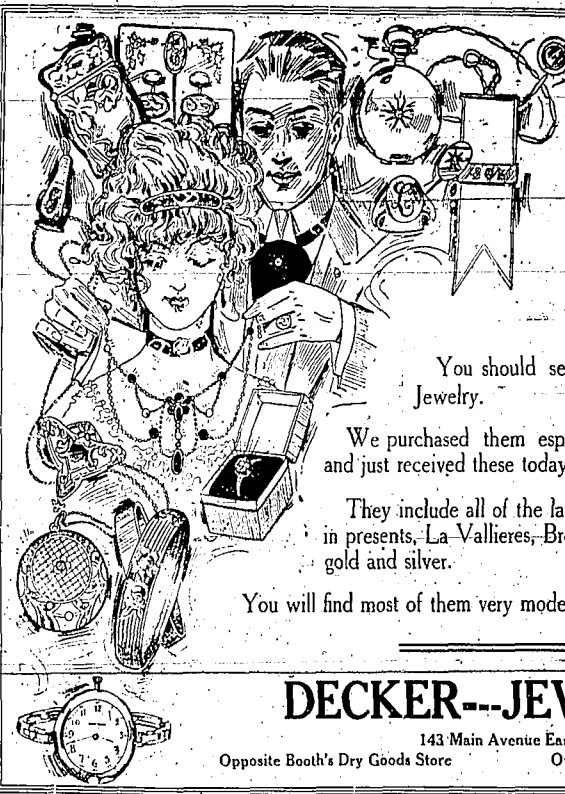

This gives you an idea why it is that advertising rates in newspapers read with such abiding interest. They relate directly to the personal affairs of the reader. The forward bits order and cash with out completing the invoice he is doing himself. His merchant, and his home town.

Locality is the greatest virtue which man is endowed, and the greater it is, the more he is inclined to favor the local merchant who is his neighbor's neighbor. The retail customer's trust would be a display of grossly unbusinesslike behavior, if it were not for the fact that the merchant is his neighbor's neighbor.

VARNEY---LIVE CANDY MAN

THE MOTOR AND THE SILO

In many sections of Idaho where dairying is coming to the front rapidly as one of the most important factors in the farming industry, the silo is recognized as an indispensable part of the economical production of cream and butter.
After the silo is built and ready for active operation, the cutting of the ensilage and the filling of the silo are matters that demand immediate attention. Here is where electricity comes in as especially valuable.
The farmer who has electric power at his command has a tremendous advantage over the farmer not so favorably situated. He can perform his work of ensilage cutting at any convenient time which he not always has in the case when the power plant for this work has to be run.
Electric machines may be safely set up in the barn or other building, near all kinds of combustible material and operated freely without danger from fire. And with all this ensilage cutter the motor may usually be mounted on the machine itself. The operation of the cutter by means of a motor does not require the presence of an engineer or expert attendant, as the motor can be started and stopped by simply throwing the switch. The element of personal danger in operating machinery of this class is reduced to the minimum by the simple and strong construction of the modern electric motor, coupled with the fact that it is under the instant control of the man who is feeding the machine.

neer. This year the same work was done by a 15 horse-power electric motor which cut about 12 tons an hour, with a total cost of $16 for electric current.

Of course it is useless to talk of operating machinery of this kind in rural communities where there is no rural power available. It is equally useless to talk of building transmission and distribution lines into sparsely settled rural communities in this state if the cost of the construction is to be made prohibitive by arbitrary rules set up by the Public Utilities Commission in response to demands from the telephone and railway interests.
The building of modern silos with the other indications of advancement in the dairy industry is regarded as one of the most encouraging indications of the day. The dairy should be fostered in every way possible, and the silo is an essential part of the modern dairy.

HONEY DEW ON RED CLOVER SEED
Much red clover seed comes from the butter this year held together by a sticky substance, resembling honey, and often referred to as "honey-dew." This sticky substance is in some instances, held together into small pellets or balls after threshing, and the sticky substance can be seen covering the surface of the seed, and which causes them to stick together.
This substance is really the honey-dew, commonly associated with aphids or plant lice. It is the substance upon which ants feed, and is responsible for their presence among clover lice. In this case the sticky secretion or "honey" is secreted by a small green plant louse with a red-brown tinge, and which is commonly found feeding in heads of red clover while it is in bloom and while the seed is still young. The lice are often found massed together in the blossom heads where they feed and secrete their honey-dew, which is rubbed off on the fingers as they handle them through the heads. Sometimes these heads when collected can be squeezed together into a ball due to the amount of honey-dew within. It is relatively easy through the autumn, and fall, filled with the seed during the hulling process and makes the seed stick to the fingers. The most of the honey-dew is rubbed off the clover heads before they are threshed. After the clover heads begin to dry in the field, the plant lice leave them and travel to the ground and to the stems near the ground, where massed on the stems and foliage, they feed during the latter part of the season. During October most of the clover stems and fly away to the apple trees, where they later develop into forms that lay small black eggs on the twigs and other limbs of the apple and pear trees. They are deposited in pocket-like places on the limbs and under leaf scars. They are deposited along with the eggs of the iron apple aphid, which tree in the spring. And their eggs cannot be distinguished from those of that species. These eggs, hatched in the spring, lay on the twigs that soon give birth to honey young, and which feed on the apple leaves for a time. The third generation develops wings and these fly away from the apple trees and are found feeding on the early clover heads and on other plants, such as the clover, and on the plants where a few of their brethren and sisters, or rather cousins, secrete the water without leaving the clover. They multiply rapidly during the season. They are not abundant enough to cause injury to the first crop of clover, but are at least the beginning of the second or seed crop is in bloom. Besides leaving their honey-dew on the heads they cause a falling away of the seed from feeding upon the flowers.

While present every year, and abundant in some sections, the honey-dew rarely causes the sticky condition of the seed that is present this year. They are not injurious to alfalfa, or as far as known, to any forage crop except red clover. There is some injury to the apple in the spring and they can be searched then with the common sprays used against green aphids, such as nicotine or soap solutions. Little can be done to control the pest in red clover fields with the exception of fall plowing, which turns under many of the lice before they can leave the young growth in the spring for the serious illness of a plant more than all winter in the egg stage.

The best method of preparing the "honey-dew" seed for market or sowing is by washing the seed with warm water to dissolve the secretion from the seed coat. The seed should be left in the water for a short time and then spread out in the sun to dry. This should put the seed in good shape for sowing.

BRITAIN'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER

History of Island Empire of 250 Years Founded in St. Columba.

Modern newspaper enterprise has scarcely started the importance of the London Gazette. Britain's oldest newspaper, which for 250 years has officially chronicled the history of the country. Today it is practically indispensable for such announcements as the King's birthday, honors and local notices. Time was, however, when the Gazette was the only medium through which the public could learn any foreign news or any public announcement.

Nowadays such announcements being sent to the London Gazette are simultaneously communicated to the more important newspapers.

But even today the London Gazette is controlled by the government, and is practically watched over in every of the advertisements in its pages which are regulated by law. These advertisements are mostly of an official or legal character, of which it is necessary to keep a record and earn for the million about $50,000 a year. No great manufacture could afford a puff in its pages, even though he were willing to pay $5000 a line for it. Altogether the Gazette yields the country a profit of about $100,000 a year, although practically the only people who buy it are government officials and lawyers.

One of the most curious facts pertaining to the London Gazette is that while it is Britain's oldest newspaper, it is also one of the youngest. In the year 1842, when it was first published at the general post office, the transmission by inland post was inaugurated. Previously it had been regarded as a government publication only, and was dispatched "by H. M. S."

In this way it escaped postal charges altogether. But apparently the government saw a way to reap additional halfpence by having it restricted to the Gazette's rates in six very valuable instances. It is not a matter of one page and sometimes of two pages and two hundred, but the price always remains the same, 10s. 6d. There was one notable exception in 1871, which was known as the "Railways Year" when so many railway notices had to be published. It is noted that the Gazette for the week totaled about three thousand pages.

One of the most interesting incidents of the Gazette's history is the publication of the "Diamond Jubilee" number, the whole paper being devoted to an advertisement of that historic celebration.

A curious incident in the importance of the Gazette in the country is mentioned that as recently as the year 1841 the Gazette was the first newspaper that carried the news of the death of King William IV. At that time the London newspapers had to wait the publication of the Gazette in order to receive the news of a monarch which the war office at those days sent them by post.

It is the only one of the London newspapers which has more than one hundred and thirty years published the London Gazette, then although king and cabinet ministers, and other public figures during the time they published the paper, and although thousands of envelopes were changed in the work of producing the Gazette, no official secrets seem to them to publication have ever leaked out.

The Gazette is probably the only paper which carries the advertising copy to its readers along with the post. This is done in the case of cabinet ministers from secretary and cabinet members.

STOCK OWNERS ARE WARNED

Investors Claiming to be Inspectors (Collecting Money).

Reports are now beginning to come in to the department of agriculture from several of the states quarantined for the foot-and-mouth disease that persons who have a connection with the department are attempting to pass themselves off as federal inspectors. There are several possible motives of these impostors. In the outbreak of 1908 there were instances of men who obtained money from the department of agriculture from fraudulent returns were believed that in this way they would escape the consequences of quarantine and confinement. It is of course a very simple matter of extortion. Another motive may be the sale of some quack remedy for the disease.

Stock owners in footed themselves very easily against this fraud, for there is no specific remedy for the foot-and-mouth disease. Since the preventive measures should be taken, never been possible as a matter of fact to claim that would act either a cure or preventive, and the public may be misled to believe that anyone who claims that he is an employee of the department of agriculture and at the same time attempts to sell or extort money from anyone of the sort, is strictly an impostor. For this reason stock owners are warned not to allow strangers to visit their stock or present any representations of so-called cures by injections or otherwise.

There is, however, very great danger that such people might do some harm if the disease is a well known fact that the disease can be carried on clothing, in infected feed, etc. Therefore it is quite possible that a man who has come in contact with infected animals may bring the disease to his property nearby. The above is a general warning for such as the spread of the disease.

The department therefore requests all farmers to keep their animals males from contact with all save those who have definite business with them.

KRUPP GUN IDEA STOLEN

United States Designed Monster Cannon Which Germans Use.

London. A strange report is being circulated here as to how the Krupp came to build the famous 42 centimeter guns that played havoc with the French and British fortifications.

Ten and a half years ago, it is said, an American firm finished the plans for the construction of these guns. The design was sent here to a big firm of patent agents to be patented. This firm had in its employ a clever young French draughtsman, who recognized his line and returned to Germany shortly after the American plans and specifications had been lodged with his firm. Which the German army based on its 42-centimeter guns. His disaffection was understood by those interested.

However, it is said here, that the Krupp American firm has improved and perfected its famous design and that several of these improved guns now are under construction here for the British navy. It is said that the newest United States battleships are to have guns of the same caliber. Made in France.

POWER MEN FIGHT RULING

W. C. Clark says promulgation of Order Would Hurt

Kellogg, Idaho—Walter C. Clark, superintendent of the electrical department of the Idaho Bell Telephone company, has returned from a conference with the Idaho Light & Power Men's association relative to the regulation submitted to the Idaho public utilities commission, governing all overhead construction of power lines.

Sets of proposed regulations have been submitted by the American Telephone & Telegraph company, of New York, the Great Western Line, Mr. W. R. & N. and the Power & Light Men's association. The hearing on the matter will come up before the commission in Boise in January, at which time all of the interested individuals and corporations will be given a hearing and will be permitted to state their objections to the proposed regulations.

This hearing is a sequel to the one which was held last July, said Mr. Clark, at which time the American Telephone & Telegraph company, through its subsidiaries in this section, the Mountain States Telephone & Telegraph company, and the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph company, submitted a proposed order to the commission.

This order would have compelled the power interests of Idaho to elect into the state eastern poles, as the use of the Idaho cedar would have been prohibited and for this and other reasons the power interests of Idaho objected most strenuously to the promulgation of the order with the result that the commission postponed the hearing and instructed the different interests to submit regulations for consideration which would provide for the best of the employees and the public.

While the new regulations submitted by the American Telephone and Telegraph company do not provide for the use of the Idaho cedar, the power people claim that many of the requirements are unnecessary for safety and will increase construction costs so as to make prohibitive the building of electric light and power lines into sections of the country where electric power plays such an important part in the development of the mining industry.

Let Hrown discuss. Much of the immediate development of the territory of Idaho, particularly in the rural communities, hinges on the nature of an order soon to be issued by the public utilities commission. This has to do with the rules to govern the construction of overhead lines for the transmission and light.

There is now a danger that these rules may be so arbitrary as to make it impracticable to extend power and light lines into rural communities, where there are rapidly growing demands for them, if other interests are permitted to interfere.

Complaints by the telephone and railroad companies to establish rules of such character as to add heavily to the cost of construction, and to make it possible for this added expense would be borne out by power and light companies from a vast domain of rich and undeveloped Idaho territory.

Rules such as are now demanded would make it impracticable for the power and light companies to construct rural lines carrying upward of 2,000 volts. The country has grown away from this antiquated standard that it is now proposed to set up. This is particularly true of the west. It has been demonstrated that a line carrying 2,000 volts is not only economical and safe for small outlying districts, but just as safe as a line with a smaller voltage.

Drummond and Washington have established 7,000 volts permitting the use of voltage up to 15,000 for rural development and this, without requiring any of the expense which is now demanded by the telephone and railroad interests in Idaho.

The Idaho demands a type of construction at a time in the state so expensive and cumbersome as to make this a breeding ground for telephone companies, compelled to install appliances. As the railroads and telephone are already on the ground, it is thrown upon the power and light companies alone.

Because of the low cost of the construction and the early adoption of the service of this kind, the telephone companies have large areas of the state covered with a network of wires. And now these telephone companies propose to make it impracticable for the power and light companies to enter much of this territory. They would make it impossible for the power and light companies to parallel the service of any telephone which would first accept the rates laid down by the telephone company.

If the telephone companies were to have their own way in these matters, they would shut the power and light companies out of the use of all streets and highways occupied by telephone lines unless they kept their lines away from the telephone a distance equal to the height of the tallest pole.

TO DO EVERYTHING WITH REASON TO PREVENT THEM OF ANY KIND

Power and light companies are anxious to reach the people with their service. They are anxious to sell their products. They cannot make their business profitable in no other way. It is to their interest to develop every community in the state to the highest possible point, to bring more wealth, community and every resource, out of the district, where people live and work into direct work with the conventional methods of modern life.

It is within the power of the public utilities commission at this time to give the power and light companies a serious setback. It is within the power of the commission to hamper them in their least profitable operations to have been with additional and unnecessary rules, to load them down with useless expense, to bar them out from many districts and to force a commission to confine them to the thickest portions of the state where they are already established, and where the heavy and additionally expense might be justified.

This is a matter of grave concern to the public. It is a matter of grave concern to the public that it be not so easily interested.

WINNING THE PUBLIC

The Della Pringle Company, which has been on the boards at the Laverne theatre for the past two weeks, is still making a hit with the public. In the class of plays given and the excellence of the company supporting Miss Pringle and Mr. VanAcker. This week the farce-comedy, "The Applaud Show," was the attraction for the first of the week and proved that the Pringle company can make good in comedy as well as in the heavy drama. Wednesday and Thursday evening, "Paid in Full," a more serious play drew a good crowd and delighted the audience. For tonight "The Lion and the Mouse" is slated and will no doubt be up to the standard set by the excellent company.

ANGER NOW PASSED

Telephone People Have Adopted Safety First.

Denver, Dec. 7.—A settlement of the dispute between the power and the light interests in Idaho and the telephone company which is now up before the Idaho Utilities Commission is expected by the officials of the Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph company as a result of conference that are being held. Engineers representing all of the wire using companies in Idaho are meeting with officials of the power, light and telephone companies at a reasonable agreement of the long standing trouble in the outlook. H. S. Burgess, vice president and general manager of the big Bell company which furnishes telephone service to every part of the state, made the following statement in an interview to-day:

"Our sole purpose is to be fair but the overhauling of our telephone lines by the high voltage power and light companies has not only interfered with our telephone service, but it is the cause of great danger to our employees and to the general public. Our current in itself is not dangerous, but with our hot work of lines extending to all parts of the state, there is great danger to life and property when they come into contact with the lines of the power companies which carry a high voltage."

"We do not want to impose hardships upon these companies, for we realize that the subsidizing and subsidization of the state is just as much to their advantage as it is to ours, but we have insisted all along that the lives of our workmen and the public be properly safeguarded."

"We have recommended to the Utilities Commission a set of safeguarding regulations which are fair to both parties alike, and which will greatly reduce the danger of contact with the high current of the light and power circuits. These rules are exactly the same as those adopted by the majority of telephone light and telephone companies all over the United States and they should not be objectionable to the power interests, as their sole object is to guard life and property. Their enforcement by the commission would cost our company a great deal more than the other companies."

Conferences are now being held in New York between our officials and the power people and a fair settlement of the question is expected.

Mr. Easley is popular with the justness people of this city and rightly so, because of his genial disposition and steady industry. Both Mr. and Mrs. Easley will be heartily welcomed and congratulated by their friends here.

Reductions in Prices at An Opportune Time

for the thrifty shoppers. Dollars saved at Christmas time when the family purse is none too big means much to everyone. That is what the many bargains in real necessities in this store will do for you. It will make your Christmas money go farther.

Shoes Reduced 60c Per Pair

For the next ten days we are going to reduce the price on every pair of ladies shoes in our big shoe department.

This does not mean reductions merely on odds and ends and broken sizes, but every pair of ladies' shoes in our stock. The lines are complete and the styles up-to-date and in making the reduction we are turning over to your inspection real shoe bargains. Our cost prices on children's and young Misses' shoes will continue until the line is sold out. There are no bargains left.

Big Cut in Furs

For the next ten days also we are going to sacrifice our profits upon one of the biggest and best lines of furs ever brought to this city, consisting of Sitka Mink, Alaska Beaver, Hudson Bay Seal and many other well known lines. Twenty-five per cent in these furs brings the price down to cost, but we must close out a portion of our big stock at these figures. It is your opportunity.

25% Off

Shirtwaists Reduced

One of the biggest and most stylish lines of shirtwaists ever shown in this city is selected for sacrifice in prices that will make them go like hot cakes. These shirtwaists range from cotton to crepes and silks, but the sizes are broken and we want to cut down until fast.

Twenty-five per cent reductions means something on this line, which was priced lower than elsewhere in the city.

New Shipment of Ladies and Misses Cloaks

We received this week an express shipment of high grade ladies' and misses' cloaks, which represent big values at our normal prices, but which we bought under the regular price. Cloaks ranging in misses' sizes from 14 up to 48 for the largest sizes in ladies' cloaks, gives us a line which will fit and satisfy any patron. These cloaks priced regularly at from $17.50 to $35.00, reduced to $12.50 up to $25.00

Ladies' and Misses Suits $7.50

We have a few suits, sizes 15 to 18 and 36 to 45, which we will offer at the wonderful low prices of $7.50, for any suit in the lot. These suits are the broken lines of our regular suits selling at $15.00 to $25.00, and are both stylish and beautifully tailored. They are worth at least your investigation for your size.

Misses Coats $3.50

We have eight stylish misses coats, which we will sell at the low price of $3.50. Every one is a beauty, and worth $7.50 to $10.00. Sizes 13 to 20.

It will be the policy of this store to offer genuine reductions on lines which have become broken and to give the public real values and at real reductions. We believe that honest merchandising and honest advertising make permanent customers. We want your continued patronage rather than excess profits on spasmodic sales.

BRITAIN'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER

History of Island Empire of 250 Years Contained in Its Columns.

Modern newspaper enterprise has developed the importance of the London Gazette, Britain's oldest newspaper, which for 250 years has faithfully chronicled the history of the country. Today it is practically the only source for such announcements as the King's health, honors list and local notices. Time was, however, when the Gazette was the only medium through which the public could learn any foreign news or public announcement which locally and stationers had to make.

One of the most curious facts regarding the London Gazette is that while it is Britain's oldest newspaper, it is also the youngest. It was first published in 1665, but its history goes back to the year 1534, when it was first published as a newspaper. Previous to that time it was published as a government publication and was called "The H. M. S. S."

In the year 1665, when the plague was raging in London, the government saw a way to reap a few extra shillings by having it reprinted.

The Gazette varies in size from 16 to 24 pages, and sometimes as many as 32. It is printed on a single sheet of paper, and is bound in a cloth cover. It is published every day, except on Sundays and public holidays. It is published at the Royal Station, Whitehall, London. It is published at the Royal Station, Whitehall, London. STOCK OWNERS ARE WARNED

Imposters Claiming to be Inspectors Collecting Money.

Reports are now beginning to come in to the department of agriculture from several of the states quarantined for the foot-and-mouth disease that persons who have no connection whatever with the department are attempting to raise themselves off as federal inspectors. There are several possible motives for this imposture. In the outbreak of 1908 there were instances of men who obtained money from credulous victims who believed that in this way they would escape the inconvenience of quarantining and detention. This, of course, is a very simple form of extortion. Another motive may be the sale of some quack remedy for the disease.

Stock owners are warned to themselves very as it is called the fraud, for there is no specific remedy for the foot-and-mouth disease. Since the disease has never been found in Idaho, it has never been possible as yet to find anyone that would act either as a state or provincial inspector and the public may be quite certain that anyone who says that he is an employee of the department of agriculture and at the same time attempts to sell or even to collect money for the disease is an impostor. For the reason stock owners are warned not to allow strangers to visit their stock or attempt any demonstration of its condition by injections or otherwise.

There is another very important fact that stock owners should be sure to know. It is well known that the germ can be carried on clothing. It is quite possible that a man who has been in contact with a truck animal may bring the disease to a perfectly healthy herd. This step is quite possible for the germ of the disease is quite resistant to heat and cold. The department therefore recommends that farmers to keep their animals from contact with all save those who have definite business with them.

KRUPP GUN IDEA STOLEN

United States Designed Monster Cannon Which Germans Use.

London—A strange report is being circulated here as to how the Krupps came to build the famous 12-centimeter gun that played havoc with the French and Belgian fortifications. Two and a half years ago, it is said, an American firm finished the plans for the construction of these guns. The designs were sent here to a New York firm of patent agents, to be patented. This firm had in its employ a former young German draftsman, who resigned his place and returned to Germany shortly after the American plans and specifications had been lodged with the British. When the German army turned out its 12-centimeter guns, his disappreciation was understood by those interested.

However, it is said now that the same American firm has improved and perfected its former designs and that several of the improved guns, now are under construction here for the British navy. It is said that the newest United States battleships are to have guns of the same caliber. —Utah Falls Reporter.

POWER MEN FIGHT RULING

W. C. Clark says Renoulation of Order Would Hurt. Kellogg, Idaho - Walter C. Clark, superintendent of the electrical department of the Banker Hill & Sullivan company, has returned from a conference with the Idaho Light & Power Men's association relative to the regulations recently submitted to the Idaho public utilities commission, governing all overhead construction of power and light wires in the state.

This hearing is a sequel to the one which was held last July and in which the American Telephone & Telegraph company, of New York, the Oregon Short Line, the O. W. R. & N. and the Power & Light company, of Boise, were present.

This order would have compelled the power interests of Idaho to shift into the state eastern poles, as the use of the Idaho cedar, which has been prohibited and for this and other reasons the power people of Idaho objected most strenuously to the proposition.

March of the immediate development and prosperity of Idaho, especially in the rural communities, hinges on the nature of an order soon to be issued by the public utilities commission.

There is grave danger that those rules may be so arbitrary as to make it impracticable to extend power and light lines into rural communities, where there are rapidly growing demands for them.

It is proposed by the telephone and railroad companies to establish rules of such character as to make it impossible to extend power and light lines into rural communities, where there are rapidly growing demands for them.

Because of the low cost of line construction and the very demand for service of this kind, the telephone companies have large areas of the state covered with a network of wires.

These telephone companies propose to make it impracticable for the power and light companies to enter much of this territory. They would make it impossible for the power and light companies to parallel the existing lines laid down by the telephone company.

The demands of the telephone and railroad companies are based on the proposition that the present type of construction is unsafe. That it makes life and property dangerous.

An damage caused by personal injury are liable to result in verdicts of large amounts to the injured, it is not surprising to suppose that the power and light company would be anxious to do everything within reason to prevent accidents of any kind.

Power and light companies are anxious to reach the people with their services. They are anxious to get business profitable in not other way. It is their interest to develop communities in the state to the highest possible point.

It is within the power of the public utilities commission at this time to give the power and light companies a serious setback. It is within the power of the commission to have them build their lines in a way to direct touch with the conveniences of modern life.

There is not a community in the state that is not vitally interested.

DANGER NOW PASSED

Telephone People Have Adopted Safely First.

Denver, Dec. 7.—A settlement of the dispute between the power and the telephone companies which has now up before the Idaho Utilities Commission is expected by the officials of the Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph company as a result of conferences that are being held. Engineers representing all of the wire using companies in Idaho are meeting with officials of the power and telephone companies and a reasonable agreement is being worked out. The long standing trouble in the outlook of E. M. Brown, vice president and general manager of the Bell company which furnishes telephone service in every part of the state, made the following statement in an interview today: "Our sole purpose is to be fair and the overhauling of our telephone lines by the high voltage power and light companies has not only interfered with our telephone service, but it is the cause of great danger to our employees and to the general public. Our interest in that is not dangerous, but with our best work of them extending to all parts of the state, there is a great danger to life and property when they come into contact with the lines of the power companies which carry a high voltage. "We do not want to impose hardships upon these companies, for we realize that the stabilizing and settlement of the state is just as much in their advantage as it is to ours, but we have insisted all along that the lives of our workmen and the public be properly safeguarded. "We have recommended to the Utilities Commission a set of safeguarding regulations which are fair to both parties alike, and which will greatly reduce the danger of contact with the high current of the light and power circuits. These rules are exactly the same as those adopted by the majorities of railroads, light and telephone companies all over the United States and they should not be objectionable to the power interests, as they are also subject to guard life and property. Their enforcement by the commission would cost our company a great deal more than the cost of the power companies. Contractors are now being held in New York between our officials and the power people and a real settlement of the question is expected."

Reductions in Prices at An Opportune Time

for the thrifty shoppers.—Dollars saved at Christmas time when the family purse is none too big means much to everyone. That is what the many bargains in real necessities in this store will do for you. It will make your Christmas money go farther.

Shoes Reduced 60c Per Pair For the next ten days we are going to reduce the price on every pair of ladies shoes in our big shoe department.

This does not mean reductions merely on odds and broken sizes, but every pair of ladies' shoes in our stock. The lines are complete and the styles up-to-date and in making the reduction we are turning over to your inspection real shoe bargains. Our cost prices on children's and young Misses' shoes will continue until the line is sold out. There are bargains left.

Big Cut in Furs For the next ten days also we are going to sacrifice our profits upon one of the biggest and best lines of furs ever brought to this city, consisting of Sitka Mink, Alaska-Beaver, Hudson Bay Seal and many other well known lines. Twenty-five per cent cut in these furs brings the price down to cost, but we must lose out a portion of our big stock at these figures.—It is your opportunity.

25% Off Shirtwaists Reduced One of the biggest and most stylish lines of shirtwaists ever shown in this city is selected for sacrifice in price that will make them go like hot cakes. These shirtwaists range from cottons to crepes and silks, but the sizes are broken and we want to cut down still further. Twenty-five per cent reductions means something on this line, which was priced lower than elsewhere in the city.

New Shipment of Ladies and Misses Cloaks We received this week an express shipment of high grade ladies' and misses' cloaks, which represent big values at our normal prices, but which are brought under the regular price. Cloaks ranging in misses' sizes from 14 up to 48 for the largest sizes in ladies' cloaks, gives us a line which will fit and satisfy any patron. These cloaks priced regularly at from $17.50 to $35.00, reduced to $12.50 up to $25.00 Ladies' and Misses Suits $7.50

Misses Coats $3.50 We have eight stylish misses coats, which we will sell at the low price of $3.50. Every one is a beauty, and worth $7.50 to $10.00. Sizes 13 to 29. It will be the policy of this store to offer genuine reductions on lines which have become broken and to give the public real values and at real reductions. We believe that honest merchandising and honest advertising make permanent customers. We want your continued patronage rather than excess profits on spasmodic sales.
