On All of Your Winter Matter, It is Essential Good Workmanship, Good Weaves, and Good Conditions.

The mystery of Engineer Fox's anxiety concerning the bridge matters in this county may be solved in the minds of a good many.

When the fact was known that he had drawn $1,176.45 since July, 1913, or a much better salary than is paid any other county official.

Mr. Fox's presence on the proposed bridges may account for his anxiety for some plans now in the air.

At any rate Twin Falls county cannot afford to pay more than five hundred dollars per year for the work done, and since that is set by law, should govern the county commissioners in hiring any one for the job.

Probably Commissioner Carlson as the only remaining commissioner of the old township commission of the old road can explain to the taxpayers why the above big sum was paid out for the salary of Mr. Fox and why the job was not given to some Twin Falls county man instead of an outsider.

No one has ever had the right to know why such an amount of money as Mr. Carlson has seen fit in this case to break over his prescribed rule for the rest of the county officials.

The direct primary law is up for fire in the legislative and outside the fire it will be for the state under protest, the act will be either crippled or killed.

The politicians are trying hard to get the law out of commission, claiming that it costs the poor man too much to run for office under the present system, and that it is merely an aid to the politician. It will save nothing strange to the people that will say many strange things.

The present legislature is apparently determined to subordinate every other problem of state, every other business of government, to the arbitrary handling of one question which affects only a few counties of the state.

The committee and the legislature with justice, should hear the presentation of the sides of the municipalities and counties which have their financial budgets based in part upon the revenue from that source.

The radical changes which will be effected will be used to feel in such cities as Monticello, Hiramsham and Hobbs, cities which now have to strain every nerve to meet their debts.

Again, this far-reaching bill means the practical extinction of hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of property in Alabama.

It means the destruction of stocks of lands in which thousands and thousands of dollars have been invested. It means further, that the thousands of men who are employed in many thousands of people in Alabama, at a time when there is no employment market. To deal this blow at this time is to put the finishing touch on business conditions already wretched and tottering.

Another Alabama paper, the Selma Times, remarking that "a law enacted by the legislature of Alabama, the purpose of which is to take away from the people the right to elect their representatives to the legislature, for the prohibition of the direct primary system, is a law which is a disgrace to the state."

The writer counted fourteen saloons on Commerce street, Montgomery, when Governor Comer was governor, but the direct primary prohibition statute that ever emanated from the wit and ingenuity of a legislative body was the Selma law of the state.

Mr. A. H. French also stated that the temperance banner in those halcyon days, Montgomery and Mobile, and Birmingham, had openly defied Mr. Comer and that as a result the legislature had capitulated.

Here's hoping that prohibition in 1915 will bear no resemblance to prohibition in 1907.

The Nashville Tennessee, however, has closed in a neighborly state's ability to "close up the saloons and drive the liquor traffic from the state" and is confident that the action of the Alabama legislature "will undoubtedly meet with the approval of the people of Alabama, although it may be a little pill for some of the 'clergy'."

A Georgia paper, the Marion Telegraph, remarking that "the prohibition of saloons in Alabama is one of the most just laws that has ever been passed by any state."

TALKS ON THRIFT

No. 57—Thrill Makes Happy Home.

Chairman Marvin Huggitt, of the Northwestern Railway system, said to his auditor one day: "You have a young man named Cunningham in your division, have you not?"

"Yes, sir."

"What do you know of him?"

"Well, he ought to be a law him depositing money in a savings bank the day before Christmas."

The Christmas season ought to be a time of universal happiness. It cannot be all over the world this year, but here in peaceful America, it is safe to say that the great majority of thrifty homes are happy ones this Christmas.

If you are thinking of making 1915 a year of thrift, consider these five suggestions:

1. Pay cash. As a general rule, you can get better prices by buying for cash because you are not paying for bad debts of those who buy on credit always leads to extravagance.

A credit account is not to be encouraged any family, where any member is unable to resist the temptation to buy anything that captures his fancy.

2. Buy in quantities. The plan of making one's cellar a storage plant doesn't apply to vegetables alone. April eggs can be "laid down" by methods well understood by good housekeepers so can June butter. As for apples, there should be a barrel of sound ones in every house this winter, as they are cheaper than usual.

3. Economy in food. Dr. William Brady says that the cheapest foods are also the most nutritious and digestible. The waste of food in the average American home is appalling.

We squander money by buying articles of low nutritive value, and we use little or no judgment in preparing what we eat with a view to obtaining all the energy there is in it.

Meat is the costliest staple article of food and most people eat too much of it. Fish is cheaper and just as nourishing.

Other commodities that are cheap and nutritious are potatoes, beans, lentils, peas, and turnips.

Model C25 Buick Climbing the Hill With Five Men

We contend that the Buick will climb anything that doesn't lean over backwards, and we are never happier than when proving this to people who have never seen Buicks pull. Why not give us a chance to prove it to you.

The Buick has no weak points. If it had we wouldn't put it to tests like this. Different cars have tried this hill and some have failed to come up even empty. When you buy a car—it is this difference that counts.

The difference in Power
The difference in Appearance
The difference in Economy of Operation
The difference in Ease of Control
The difference in Lasting Qualities
The difference in The Service you get from the agent who sold you the car. If he doesn't maintain a well equipped garage he can not give you service no matter how glowing his promises may be.

This service coupled with the superior qualities of our cars has enabled us to point with pride to more duplicate sales of cars to the same parties than any other automobile firm in Idaho. Stop a Buick driver anywhere and ask him about this service. Ask him how his car runs. Ask him about Buick power. Ask him how many miles he gets to the gallon of gasoline. He will have you beaten unless you drive a Buick.

THE FAMOUS BUICK OVERHEAD VALVE MOTOR is guaranteed to have more power and more speed than any other type of motor on the market. It will pull stronger on low grade gasoline than any other type of motor ever built and the full consumption is less.

GRAIN NOW CONTRABAND

England Will Seize All Grain Destined for Germany.

Washington, Ambassador Page of Great Britain called the Department of State Tuesday that the British fleet had been ordered to treat all cargoes of grain and flour destined for Germany as contraband and to seize and confiscate them. The ambassador explained that the German government had decreed confiscation of all grain and flour to be used for the nutrition of the German people, and that the British fleet was to be ordered to seize and confiscate all such cargoes. The ambassador also stated that the British government had informed him that because the stomachs of the British people were suffering from lack of food, it was necessary to import from the United States of America grain and flour. The British government has announced the issuance of a modifying decree making such cargoes contraband by the German government.

The vessel would be seized, it was said, but would be released and her cargo purchased at invoice price by the British government. The vessel was given however, that other shipments of grain for Germany, directly or indirectly, would be seized as well as the vessels carrying them, without compensation being paid.

In the British note to Secretary of State regarding the Decree, it was stated that the conclusion had not been reached to interfere with such shipments of grain for Germany, but that the population and not for the army of a belligerent state with which England was at war, and in considering carefully the whole subject.

SHORT LINE IS SAFEST

Awards at New York Have Placed Union Pacific System First.

That Chief Dispatcher H. E. Tittus was making no idle boast when he said that the Short Line has been made about as safe as it can be made, is now fully apparent from the award in New York shows that for safety the Short Line and the Union Pacific have the best record of any system in the United States. Safety Commissioner Abbott has just returned to Portland from attending the sessions of the National Museum of Safety and Sanitation, held annually in the grand palace of the New York Central, in New York City, and he much enjoyed over the showing made by the Union Pacific. Two hundred and nine railroads had displayed the exhibits which were viewed daily by thousands of people. For safety appliances and mechanical condition for the employees the Union Pacific system stands at the head of the list. It does not take second place in any railroad in the United States in the track signal system as they are operated along the entire length of the road. For safety first the U. S. I. has the best record of any road in the United States. This fact is due to cooperation of the map with the officials and to the special organization that has been developed by Safety First Commissioner Abbott. Twelve hundred men were stationed at different points along the road to direct trains for safety and these men are held at considerable expense to the railroad company. The employees are paid full wages during their attendance and at the same time are given a bonus for every day that they are away from their regular work. This, it is estimated, costs the U. S. I. about $1,000,000 annually, but it is well worth the cost.

A locomotive. To demonstrate how the Short Line was in the case of a broken rail or any disconnection in the electrical circuit, a Volapue piece of rail was cut out of the track. When this is removed, so as to break the connection as would be done in case of a broken rail, the alarm is struck immediately, the signal level of the danger to the oncoming train. An appliance of a similar nature which gives warning of an open switch was also a part of the display.

During the last year the Union Pacific system has handled 100,000,000 passengers without a fatality due to train accidents. This is equivalent to 200,000,000 passengers per mile, or 27,000,000 from New York to San Francisco in 24.71 days. This record has been equaled by any other line and is but the result of much consideration over the entire system. A medal for the stand prize was awarded to the Union Pacific at the exhibition and duplicates of it will soon be presented and placed on exhibition along the line. During his lecture in New York Mr. Abbott issued a challenge to any railroad in the United States to show as large a per cent of small towns that have a good depot, as can be shown on the U. S. I. system without an answer. Sammie Leander.

BROTHERS DIE OF APPENDICITIS

Both Operated on and Both Find Perilous—Circumstances Rare.

Death dealt a blow to the families and friends of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. SHIPPING BILL IN DOUBT

Seven Democrats Join Republicans to Defeat Measure.

Washington, Feb. 2.—While the administration today Democrats announced they will vote against the shipping bill, seven Democrats joined the Republicans to defeat the measure. The bill would require the government to purchase a certain number of ships to make the bill accessible to enough of that will to bill the cargo carried by the nation's fleet of ships. Great Relief

"John," she said, as he settled down for a hot afternoon smoke, "I've got a lot of things I want to talk to you about." "Good," said her husband, smiling. "I'm glad to hear it. Usually I want to talk to you about a lot of things I haven't got." "Dearest,

The president pointed out that even though it was intended to lay an embargo on ships, the situation regarding the right to buy might be considered as an international precedent regarding certain rights of a vessel. The president said that a provision be made about providing the results of the embargo become positive. The president said he was sure the bill would not be dropped on the committee, but if it were, it would be a great relief.

LION CAUSED A COMMOTION

The Appearance on Street Also Incidentally Led to a Lavish Display of Hoisery.

A lion in a Jersey City railway station wriggled out of his cage the other day and created a mild panic. Of course, at the animal's escape—just as he observes in the "Shakespearean Fantasy," "A lion among ladies is a most dreadful thing," and the ability and hoisery displayed upon the untoward occasion seems to have been extremely hurried and generous.

It is said by his keeper that there was no danger. The lion was an ad-apted neutral. He was out for food, but not for food of the primitive type. The glowing charms and smiles of the railway restaurant had lured him to the point of breaking his bonds. With a hop, skip and leap he would have reached the lunch counter, and in less than three seconds by a thick crench hour glass would have had the place to himself.

When his keeper arrived on the scene the unhappy king of the forest had decided to divide his attention between a fourth doughnut and a concrete pile.

As the rude chaperon fastened a thumb and finger in the lion's ear and pushed him back into his cage, he roared dolefully—the lion roared dolefully—and there is no doubt the roar spelled acute mental indignation.

Thus ended another of those rare episodes that help to break the drowsy monotony of New Jersey life.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

KNITTING GOOD FOR NERVES

Revival of Pastime is One of the Few Good Results of the War in Europe.

One of the few good results of the European war has been to make thousands of men, women and children learn to knit. There is nothing better for nerves than an unending and need tending up, physicians say, than knitting. For many years every man in the British army, from the men in the ranks to the commanding general, has been taught to knit and is now thanks to the demand for warm socks and mufflers for the soldiers at the front, the practice is spreading to all walks of life.

The monotony of plying the needles in and out of the toy loom is extremely soothing to tired brains and nerves. The effect is similar to that produced by counting sheep, which is recommended by many as a method of inducing sleep.

Once the art of knitting is mastered you can amuse it without giving your plying fingers either thought or sight. In the London "Times" these days you can see hundreds of contented soldiers, their fingers busy with knitting, while their eyes are occupied in watching what is going on around them.

No Profit in Irish Sugar Beets.
While sugar beets can be successfully grown in Ireland, writes Colonel Wesley Frost, from Queenstown, their culture would probably not be profitable, according to a statement recently issued by the head of the department of agriculture, and technical instruction for Ireland. The fact has been established that a normal price for sugar beets will yield less per acre than the normal prices for potatoes or mangels. As the sugar beet industry would not be successful under the ordinary conditions of peace, the department is not prepared to take, directly or indirectly, any responsibility for advising Irish farmers to grow beet root. It is added that whatever may be the results of England's acquisition of sugar beet in Scotland and England, it seems safe to assume that sugar production will not be developed in Ireland.—New York Times.

Faithfully Qualified.
"A Scotchman man in London, wishing to join the London Scottish, was met with the nationality problem, and admitted he was not a Scotchman. The recruiting officer was willing to stretch a point or two if possible, so he asked the lance-corporal: "Have you any relations or property in Scotland?" "No," was the reply. "You are quite sure?" queried the sergeant. "I owed on a bit," said the recruit, as a light came into his eyes. "By gum, I'd forgotten for a minute. A w'e've a pair o' trousers belted cinched at Perth Dywackan!" "Strip," said the officer: "you're qualified!"

Lack Serious Reading.
Prof. Bliss Perry, in the Youth's Companion, deprecates the lack of serious reading on the part of college men. "My first acquaintance with the great books of the last three hundred years is in their own literature," he says. "It is amazing." When it comes to the classics, Professor Perry says: "I do not believe that there are twenty-five good products of other Yale or Harvard who have read, during the last academic year, twenty-five pages of a Latin or Greek book, suitably for their pleasure and profit in reading and without reference to the demands of the curriculum."

Birds Fear Sounds of War.
The roar of loud artillery in Europe may possibly have diverted or retarded the movements of birds on their migratory course. A curious effect is noticeable in the midlands of England, where swallows and martins are loath to leave.

FRECKLES.

A distinguished professor, a Johns Hopkins man, comes out boldly in praise of the usually slighted freckle. The professor declares that the freckle is an indication of good red blood, of a proper blending of the constituents of health, and that every freckle is, as it were, a mottled badge of strength and vigor. Yet freckles, from the days of Miss Hecamler, and probably long before, have been regarded as blemishes. It may be recalled that Charles Dickens permits one of his characters to offer a safe and sure recipe for removing freckles: "Go up to the fourth floor of any building with shut many floors, carefully cut out the freckles with a sharp razor and toss them out the window." Lotions enough to fill reservoirs have been sacrificed on the freckle altar—to say nothing of mountains of cold cream and tons of powder. And all the time the freckle was dying the flag of health and vigor was flying its message of physical cheer. Yet it may be feared that despite the professor's assurance the fight will go on, and on. It certainly does seem a little queer that the feminine mind should pass by the honest freckle and tolerate and encourage the smudgy mole and the vain and tiny court plaster.

"Something new every day" is a cheerful proposition, but it is hardly to be expected that science will discover something new for us to eat when our crops fall short or when our desires cry for a greater variety. However, a bit of interesting news comes from the Pacific coast for we will now have a new kind of "beef." It is, in short, the meat of the whale after the blubber has been cut away. Seems rather repulsive at first, but a little retrospection will recall the fact that we had had fish which was subject to the same objection at first thought. It is planned to send out a canning outfit with each whale, which will "can the meat" on the spot, thus insuring it being packed fresh. A whale of average size will yield about thirty thousand pounds of "white beef," so that it is estimated that the ship will bring back 1,500 cases of product ready for market. The industry was made necessary by the decline in the price of whale oil, which has fallen from $2.50 to 65 cents a gallon.

This is a hard year for scientific research. Elaborate preparations had been made for the observation of a total eclipse of the sun from an ad-venturous point in Russia. The war has interrupted scientific preparation. The most interesting in the line, however, the surface of Egypt and Syria had been the surface of Turkey into the struggle is seriously hampering their plans. Sir Ernest Shackleton turned his back on the South pole. Aside from the usual hindrances to such an adventure, there was every prospect of an uninterrupted journey, but now comes the strike. The project is held up in Australia by a strike, and has had to postpone his intended trip until next year.

The annual cat show held in the sun-parlor of the Waldorf-Astoria brought out a large number of distinguished representatives of the feline race—namely Angoras, Persians, rare Siamese (banded cats from the royal palace of Siam) and various Apennine kittens being among the notable entries. Some of the tabbies paraded and some of the tans showed spilt, but the event passed off without serious consequences, and proved a great diversion to the fashionably dressed women who thronged the place as spectators.

An airman can see a submarine under the water when probably no boat's searchlight can see it. No searchlight should venture out henceforth without a canopy of aeroplanes.

After struggling along under the weight of its name, Preznayal has succumbed to an epidemic. One might have known something would happen.

An eastern magazine artist is said to have gone crazy over the war. He must have been trying to "get the hang" of some of the war pictures.

We are informed that "women spend in household expenses 90% per cent of all the money so used in the United States." Well, they know how.

Aviation in war times, despite the bullet, seems less perilous than in times of peace—unless, of course, a dead aviator doesn't count.

The condom itself hasn't been figured out yet, but the answer is that one is a war tax and the other is a wart ax.

The latest dance is called the goose step, but there are intellgent objectors who will say any dance is that.

"Australians quit Crowsfoot." Evidently the hay fever season is over.

It begins to look as though all the war secrets had been shot.

luck looking as if the West really meant this time.

Barcl left the chamber angry with himself for having given the old ascetic a glimpse of his heart. But he was dying; there was no doubt of that. Zudora, together with the Van Wyck boy, were taken away from the basement where they had been confined and from the whippers floating about Zudora understood that they were to be conveyed to a ship of some sort, the Van Wyck child, fumed her. Whether Miss Du Val had any place in the affair she was not ready to determine. But it was rather odd that a good woman should live in a home with secret rooms and exits.

It was through a simple countryman's arm that Zudora and the child were brought back to the world again. The old man had read about the abduction and the sight of a pathetic little boy being carried into a cabin on a sailing was enough to set his suspicions into lively action. He telephoned the police, who in turn wanted the metropolitan police. And that is how Storm and the detectives arrived in time to prevent the catastrophe.

The kidnappers put up a strenuous battle and nearly all of them were captured. Had it alone escaping. But strange to relate, Hadid had taken sides with the police. In reality it is admitted that the turn in the road had taken place. Hadid wanted to be good, wanted to go back to the work again with clean hands, and Zudora, too, wanted to be good. Zudora, into his very soul to turn this woman over to the arms of John Storm, but he did so.
