

HARRY ALLEN IS ACQUITTED Result is Highly Pleasing to Many Friends Here

COMPLETELY VINDICATED BY ADA COUNTY JURY Prosecution Falls to Prove any Complicity to Defraud State in Jury Case.

The many friends of Harry F. Allen in this city, rejoiced greatly Wednesday morning when the news of his complete vindication on the charge of complicity to embezzle state funds was received. While none of his friends here have ever believed his guilt in the matter, it was evident that an acquittal was the only just result.

The trial of the case occupied the district court two days. Judge Burke presided. Not a single witness was placed on the stand for the defense. Attorneys for Allen relying on their evidence to show that the state produced sufficient evidence to warrant a conviction.

Dismissals Probable. There are four similar cases pending before the district court against J. H. Peterson, F. L. Hovatta, H. W. Galt and J. L. Long.

ULTIMATUM TO CHINA

Japan Endorsing to Urge China to Terms.

Tokyo, May 4.—Minister of Justice Otsuki is quoted by newspapers as having announced that the cabinet had decided to send an ultimatum to China urging her to reconsider her decision to make no further concession to Japan.

The press considers the ultimatum the proper step. The Times believes that if China refuses to yield, Japan should occupy provinces like Pankun until China comes to her senses.

The Yonkers, in an extra edition, declares that the chief statement, approved by the cabinet, is that the ultimatum received leads to the conviction that China's last unwarlike offer Japan to resort to this logical step.

Continuing Yonkers says the concessions made by Japan, particularly the restoration of Kiao Choo to China, are not satisfactory.

No British-American Negotiations. London, May 4.—The United States and Great Britain have entered into no formal negotiations on the subject of Japan's demands on China.

The flat failure of the district court to make out cases against most of the men indicted by the Ada county grand jury makes the whole deal look more like political jobbery than ever. Some of the charges under which indictments were made looked supremely technical and without much foundation. The cases which have gone to the jury so far have resulted in acquittals, a fair criterion of the opinion of the unbiased people. There has been evident since the beginning of the grand jury that an effort was being made to discredit the Republican party. A great many of the people thought that where there was so much smoke that there must be fire. But from all indications the guilty persons were all eliminated before the Halverson administration went out of office. The rest of the smoke has been arising from political fires stirred-up by Democracy.

A SMALLER UNIT PREFERABLE The action of the Commercial club in advising against entering into the Idaho Publicity association after a second thought, will probably be received favorably by most of the citizens. While any move which will bring Idaho to the front should receive attention from the good citizens here, yet all people of the Twin Falls country are vitally interested in the promotion of this section above all other parts of the state. Such is to be expected. With all community boozing the question of expense is ever present to mitigate against the exuberance in boasting and the expenditure of money. The Twin Falls country must, because of limited funds, its disposition, make a choice between a smaller unit of co-operation and the larger one. Naturally the choice would fall upon the smaller unit, which will allow all money to be spent in fostering the prosperity of this section rather than by scattering the same small sum over the boasting of the whole state.

country is doing its best to promote peace, while it is the greatest nation that is not engaged in a terrible war. And it is also pleasant to know that economically and commercially it has reached an enviable position among the greatest nations, with the probability that it will be the world's banker, and second to none in prosperity after the war ends.

"That fact that a southern-born man is president, and that both the North and the South applaud his efforts to keep the nation at peace, shows how far away are the feelings that set North and South to fighting each other. But while the animosities have been definitely put away, the whole country remembers this month the end of General Lee's final campaign, and is proud of the fighting record of the armies on each side."—Literary Digest.

TALKS ON THRIFT

No. 6.—THE GREAT VALUE OF SAVINGS BANKS

"There is no surer evidence of the prosperity of a community than when its savings banks show healthy and growing deposits."—Burlington Hawkeye.

Following are half a dozen outstanding advantages of using a savings bank or the savings department of a commercial bank of trust company.

1. Safety. Savings banks are the safest financial institutions in this country. Recent statistics showed the total liabilities of failed savings banks in proportion to the aggregate deposits of all such banks to be only about six ten-thousandths of one per cent (.0006 per cent). Deduction for the amount realized on the substantial assets of those few unfortunate institutions will further reduce the already infinitesimal loss to depositors.
2. Ability to deposit or withdraw any amount at any time. Some banks have a minimum for deposit, although it is usually a low one—5 cents, 25 cents, 50 cents or a dollar, as the case may be. In different states there is a different maximum for savings deposits, ranging from $1,000 to $2,000 or $5,000. Ordinarily money can be withdrawn without any notice whatever. In times of panic, or possible panic, however, a 30 or 60 day rule may be enforced.
3. Regular Income. There are few, if any, other investments where it is possible to put in small, odd amounts at any time and have your money begin to earn interest promptly, as it does in a savings account. Savings bank interest is something you can depend on.
4. Compound Interest. The investor in bonds or stocks must collect his interest or dividends, and if he does not use the money, must attend personally to investing it. Interest allowed by the bank at the end of a given period if not withdrawn, is placed to the depositor's credit and itself draws interest from that time on, thus automatically becoming part of the deposit. That means a constant increase in the amount at interest and in the interest payments.
5. Freedom from Tax. In most states savings banks deposits are free from taxation by state or local authorities.
6. The habit of Saving. Lest but by no means least, of the advantages of a savings account is what might be called the reflex influence on the depositor himself. It breaks down his habit of saving which will be a lifelong benefit to him.—T. D. MacGREGOR.

RAISING DRY LAND POTATOES

Best Soil on Farm Should Be Selected by Those Who Desire Success—Plow Deep as Possible.

By A. J. BRIDGEC, Orestes, O. D. The man who desires success in potato raising should select the best land on his farm for this crop. In the preparation of the soil, backsetting is best. If possible, the soil should be double disked as early as possible in the spring and harrowed after each rain as soon as dry enough to handle. If the weather is favorable, the potatoes should be planted as soon as possible after the 20th of April. Get good, clean, lump-free seed, free from scab. I advise some early variety; the Early Ohio is good. If possible, cut the seed potato so as to have but one eye to a section. When ready to plant, plow (at least six inches) and drop the potatoes into every fourth furrow. If furrows are narrower than 12 inches, drop seed into every fifth furrow or so that the rows are about ten feet apart. Drop one piece of seed potato in a place, averaging about fifteen to twenty inches apart.

If one desires extra fine potatoes, the ground should be plowed as deep as possible, and the potato seed covered not less than six inches.

As soon as thorough plowing, the land should be harrowed, and harrowing should not be neglected after rains. The potatoes are five or six inches high. Harrowing should be done each time in a direction opposite to the last previous harrowing. After the potatoes are up six inches, the harrow should be directed east and the cultivator used after deep rain until the plants are in bloom. The first cultivation should be deep, but subsequent cultivations should be an abatement in depth to give results—that is, kill the weeds and keep the match. Cultivations of the ripening plant should be so close to the plant as to be nearly ground.

The cultivator will always leave some weeds near the plants. These should be cut out carefully, but the land should never be "billed up," as the plants do much better with leveled land.

Potatoes can be produced on sod land if dropped into the furrow of the breaking plow, provided the land is soft or sandy; but with heavy soil the sod should be broken at least three inches deep and then chopped up with a disk. After diskings it should be plowed about five inches deep and the potatoes dropped into the furrow.

BOOTH'S MERCANTILE COMPANY

TALKS ON SILAGE

(C. W. Melick)
 Ever since Mr. Morris of Maryland built the first silo in the United States the knowledge of silage and its value as a feed for live stock has rapidly been disseminated among the farmers and stockmen.
 Wherever this knowledge has spread it has met and overcome scepticism and has crystallized into an astonishing development of the use of silage.
 Ninety-nine per cent of the farmers were at first sceptical and had to be shown that the "sour chopped corn" (silage) was fit food for cows. I remember hearing a member of the Nebraska legislature say when first shown silage at the State Agricultural College in 1895, "Why I would be willing to sign a petition to send any man to the penitentiary who would feed that stuff to cows." I also heard a Kansas farmer say in 1895 that he hoped that his cows would never be starved into eating that "blasted truck." Such prejudices were rapidly overcome in every community a silo was erected and silage fed, until now there are very few farmers who are not convinced of the fact that silage is one of the best known foods for milk production. The modern farmer can no longer afford to let his cows harvest what remains of his corn stalks in the cold stormy winter where half of the food consumed must necessarily go into the production of body heat. The loss of milk thus sustained would pay for the entire crop of the cow. We have amply proved this with our twenty-one herds ranging from one hundred to two hundred cows by standing them during the greater part of the day throughout the year. We have no reduction in our milk supply due to weather conditions, mosquitos or flies. Then by feeding silage the year round with about half its quantity of dry feed, we have a very uniform condition both in our milk flow and in the health of the cows. Our cows are never constipated or have even a congested condition of the bowels. We realize the advantage of having their bowels carefully regulated, for our milk is used entirely for infant feeding.

 A few years ago our Detroit herd was without silage from January to September. Although they were carefully fed and healthy, their condition showed lack of succulent feed, a rough, ill-nourished skin and too dry feeds. These "burned-out" cows when given silage, soon overcame the effects of dry feeding and at the same time showed a marked increase in their milk production. We would not therefore be without silage in some form or other for our cows. Our supply of silage became exhausted last May, and as we had no available pasture at that time we cut three acres of coarse swampy grass and put it into the silo, green, in inch lengths, the same as corn silage. It made very fair silage, in fact, much better silage than it would hay or grass. We are therefore convinced that most any kind of forage when cut at the right stage or maturity will make edible silage. Forage should be cut just after it has reached maturity and at the point, or drying or ripening. At this stage the stalks have the highest percentage of available food matter, especially protein. When cut earlier than this the percentage of water is higher and the food loss. When cut at a later stage some of the food of the stalks has been hardened into fibre which is only food value is to make bulk for milking with concentrated feeds.

 The main things therefore to be observed in the feeding of silage is to cut the forage at the proper stage of maturity, use corn if possible, if not almost any other available forage that is not too green and juicy, such as green sorghum, and feed with about half its quantity of concentrated feeds. Our twenty-one herds supply us with many silos in different states with our milk. We therefore have a variety of conditions with which to contend. Whatever the conditions of weather or kind of forage grown we aim to have silage for every herd throughout the entire year. We are free to say that in rainy districts where forage can hardly be cured before it begins to decay, in dry semipasture at that time we cut the material at state is devoid of succulence, where pastures dry up in the fall of the year and through the winter when no green forage is available, and which his livestock through stretch the farmer may preserve his feed in a fresh, succulent state, and which his livestock may be kept in the best condition at the least expense.

HARRY ALLEN IS ACQUITTED

but it was the impression that they would be dropped. It is possible that the Allen case will be appealed, but on that point Mr. Givens was not decided either.

Motions Overruled.

At the opening of court Tuesday morning Judge Davis announced his decision to overrule all the motions offered by the defense Monday night in support of a request for non-suor or an instructed verdict. Upon this, counsel renewed their motions made at the beginning of the trial for dismissal of the charges, that the defense, if any, was committed in another county, that the state law did not recognize such a relation as accomplice, that the complaint was insufficient and that any accomplice of O. V. Allen must have been an associate in public office.

Court then adjourned until 1:30 to allow the preparation of instructions to the jury.

Address for State.

Each side was given one hour to present its argument. Mr. Givens opened for the state. He called attention to the records in books of the Twin Falls Seed Farm company which showed that H. F. Allen was the principal stockholder. He reminded the jury that the entries stopped just before the time when the first of the money started coming from O. V. Allen.

The methods of drawing the money was reviewed by Mr. Givens and he urged that the amount received in this manner was much too large to come without investigation when the persons were so close in their business relations as were the two Allen brothers. He asked why no security was given for the Allen loans when security was given for the ones secured from the Bank and Twin Falls banks, and said it appeared strange to him that a man who was drawing on his partner for amounts each month as great as the yearly salary of the partner, should blindly shut his eyes or fail to advise himself of the source of this income.

Brown Replies.

Mr. Brown was the first speaker for the defense. He reminded the jury that the defense was resting its case on the state's proof, believing that it did not need retaliation. He again on the fact that the amount of O. V. Allen's annual salary was drawn each month by Harry Allen and asked why this was not worthy of consideration. The fact that no security was given for the loan, he considered a strong point because he could not understand, why, even though H. F. Allen had promised his brother half of the profits of the venture, he should not realize that a brother's promise of this kind is not the kind of security required when the money is borrowed and must have realized that it was coming from some other source than the regular channels. In such a case, Mr. Givens asserted, it would not be reasonable to believe that he would not investigate.

FARM POULTRY

TO SECURE EGGS IN WINTER

Hens Have No Particular Laying Season—Do Well in Cold Weather—If Given Attention.

If allowed carefully, the hints given below will insure a satisfactory supply of eggs during the winter:

Never exposing the fowls to blustery, snowy weather, remembering that a cold, uncomfortable hen cannot be expected to be a prolific one. Therefore the houses must be of generous size.

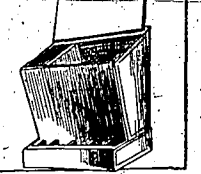

Early hatched pullets. Strong, healthy yearling hens. Roomy, comfortable, well-ventilated houses.

Regular feeding of food rich in nutritious qualities. Scratching sheds and the fowls made to hunt for the grain among the litter.

Each year breeding from the strongest and best layers and never inbreeding.

Using trap nests by which the drones can be detected, so as to give the rooster and feed to the workers.

Never overfeeding, but given just as much as they will readily eat up clean and not waste or allow to become exciting heat, but rather keeping them tame so that they will have confidence in the feeder and not become scared.

Keeping the houses perfectly clean and healthy, so that good health may be maintained, and that lice may be discouraged in making their headquarters about the premises.

Never overcrowding the flocks, as small families will do more work. It is better to keep 15 hens in a house built for 25 than 25 in a house only big enough for 15.

If these warnings are carefully heeded, there will be no difficulty to secure winter eggs. Hens have no particular laying season; they usually lay best in warm weather because conditions are better—it is up to the poultry man to supply these.

WINTER PRODUCERS OF EGGS

Question of Keeping Old Hens During Cold Winter Season Should Be Decided by Conditions.

The hen more than a year old is not a winter-producer of eggs. Why this is so it is doubtful if anyone can tell. The pullet produces the winter eggs, but as she gets older, her season of egg production is later. The question then is whether it is profitable to winter the hen two years or more old. The answer is yes; if one has a good market for eggs in the spring and summer, even though you buy the food, and decidedly yes, if one grows the food for the fowls. If the market in the spring and summer is not good, then it will not pay to winter the old hens, so that, after all, it is not a question of management, but one of being governed by conditions. In feeding the old hens during the winter, economy must be practiced, and the best way of doing this is to have all these hens by themselves and feed them a light ration.

said that H. F. Allen was a farm operator on a large scale and believed the sum of money which he had received from his brother to aid in these operations. He recalled to the jury the statement of O. V. Allen to the effect that the defendant had come to him with an offer to manage the operations of H. F. Allen and arranged to finance it and promised to divide any profits half and half. As to the custom of drawing $500 at a time, he said the inference was that H. F. Allen did not wish to burden his brother with the payment of any more interest than was necessary.

No Attempt at Surrender

There was no effort made to avoid publicity, Mr. Bowen said. The drafts were presented and handled in the same way as ordinary. "A glaring inconsistency with the possibility of anything being wrong," he stated—it was his experience that when a man was doing wrong, the members of his family were the last ones to be told of it and inquired why Harry Allen should have questioned the ability of his brother to raise the money needed when he had been able to do it when they had been associated in other deals.

Guthrie's Point.

Closing for the defense, Mr. Guthrie called the attention of the jury to the fact that they were not trying O. V. Allen but that the state was endeavoring to fasten a part of the blame on another man. He said he was unable to see anything strange in the business transactions. He laid especial emphasis on the fact that eleven of the drafts were returned unpaid and asked why if H. F. Allen knew that O. V. Allen had all the resources of the state of Idaho at his disposal, he should not have expected that all drafts would be honored as they were presented. Nothing inditing guilty knowledge on the part of the defendant had been produced by the state in the way of evidence, he said and cautioned the jury against the danger of convicting on suspicion.

Another point on which Mr. Guthrie dwelt with some emphasis was the testimony of O. V. Allen. This was the only one he said, testified that his brother did not have any idea of the source of the money supply. Mr. Allen was placed on the stand by the state, he said, and the state vouched for his integrity.

Givens Closes

Mr. Givens closed by cautioning the jury against being affected by any plea for sympathy. He dwelt

ONE WEEK ONLY

THE PAYETTE LAKES

Wonderful Summer Resort in Heart of Idaho Mountains.

A little over one hundred miles north ofampa, Idaho, on Short Line's Lakeport branch, lies Payette lake, which next to Jackson lake is the largest lake in the North Forest service district. Payette lake is 6 1/2 miles long, a little less than 2 miles wide, with a large arm from the upper end on the eastern side, so that it covers 2 square miles or over 6,000 acres. Twenty-five years ago Thomas McCall located on the southern shore of the lake, where the thriving town that has grown up about him and bears his name held its second election on Tuesday. When McCall located here had the habit of coming down to the lake to drink, and a hunter who knew their haunts could go out and kill an elk any day. Early settlers in Warren often saw elk grazing with their oxen in the morning. Across the lake from McCall the Payette lake club has had its own grounds and is building an attractive three-story clubhouse. North of McCall, on the east side, is Pleine Point where a lodge firm has camp in which about 50 tents are rented furnished. On the eastern arm of the lake, where there has been no buildings have as yet been erected. Near "the narrows" is Sylvan beach, an ideal bathing resort, where athletic swimmers show their prowess by crossing the lake, here a quarter of a mile wide. Here a large launch is kept to receive parties coming by train to McCall. In all about 60 boats on the lake in the summer, many of them launches or boats equipped with a motor. The "Lodge" having become unmanageable, Captain Dodson has built a new 60-foot steamer. The lake has thirty-eight miles of densely wooded shoreline.

At the lower end of the shore of the lake the gradually, like the outer part of a great saucer, but above the Narrows they are abrupt hills, rocky promontories extend into the water. At the rear of catrauks can be heard and seen on other side. The Payette river above the lake is navigable at this season of the year for some distance if a sharp lookout is maintained that the motor of the boat is not fouled by a submerged log. Here horse-shoe bends, wealth of forest to the water's edge and rocky cliffs abound, where are abundant, like the "Lodge" having been unmanageable, Captain Dodson has built a new 60-foot steamer. The lake has thirty-eight miles of densely wooded shoreline.

McCall is the headquarters of the Idaho national forest, which, excepting a few sections of state land contiguous to the lake, where narrows, the lake on all sides but the south, and has a half million acres tacked on the northeast, lying next to the main Snake river in the district. Across the lake the smoke from Frier's sawmill is visible from the supervisor's window, four-horse teams of sawed ties from Loe's sawmill, four miles west, and hewed ties from the camp are frequently passing, while 800,000 feet of logs lie in booms and 250,000 feet of sawed lumber in piles along the side of the wharf. The hum of the Hoff and Brown sawmill is heard early and late, having begun on Monday the season's run of about a million feet. And there is inspiration in the thought, when in raising the eyes occasionally from the book, the big logs are seen going up the incline from the lake, soon to emerge in the form of boards, dimension stuff and ties that Ben McCall, chief sawyer, and Carl Brown, edgerman, have no opportunity to correct an estimate, made almost as it must be, almost instantly.

WOMEN'S BREAST CANCERS CURED

Weighting 8 lbs.—Without Knife or Pain
Overruled from S. F. Examiner, Apr. 17, 1910
Mrs. Josephine Helmer has just been cured of open, eating breast cancer, which started a small lump in the breast. She learned that her next-door neighbor, Mrs. Modesta Avery, 2734 26th St., near York St., San Francisco, 26th St., near York St., San Francisco, had cured a cancer which weighed 8 lbs. without knife or pain. Dr. Chamberlain's Iodine Plant Painless Plaster cured her at home. Her cancer nothing until cured. This is the physician who, cured Lucky Baldwin, the millionaire burglar of southern California, so had that surgeons would not operate. Also Mrs. H. E. Porter, Northwester's Twelve H. B. Hall's now at Zareba, Va. Hundreds of other prominent people have been cured, as Mrs. Rebecca Pichard of Vallejo, California, known from the "Athletic of the Pacific." The need for a book describing all kinds of cancer and tumor, which prove any tumor, lump or sore on the face, or body long a cancer. Surgeons do not remove them unless they have a patient's deep thanks or attaches to home with guarantee. Dr. Chamberlain's Iodine Plant Painless Plaster is sold at all drug stores in every city in San Francisco. One woman in every 7 dies of cancer.—U. S. Report.

MOTOR TOPICS

One of the places where progress in motor car construction is most evident to the user, is in the top and curtain construction. Few realize that only four years ago not only top and curtains, but such essentials as windshield and diaphragm were regarded as "extras." Today "one-man" tops and "lift" curtains are proving themselves the last word in security, comfort and ease of operation, an applied standard equipment on the Marmon "41".
For instance, on the Marmon "41" it takes but five minutes to change from the protected luxury of the limousine to the open phaeton, battery opening side. This is made possible partly by the convenient one-man top, partly by the convenient one-man top, curtains, one from each bow and one from the front and partly by the clever "lift the dot" fasteners, which are snapped on and off as easily as an electric push button, but resist any other tendency to break them. Another feature is that curtains can all be lowered or raised from within. The location of the spark plug in the cylinder has a great deal to do with amount of power to be received from an engine.
For instance, in the "T" head type of motor, if the spark is placed over the intake valve, the spark occurs at an angle of the combustion chamber, and the new one can burn in one direction only.

In order to ignite the gases in the cylinder with greater rapidity, the many years of the "T" head type of motor have placed two, spark plugs, which fire simultaneously and ignite the new one to the extreme ends of the combustion chamber.

The designers of the Marmon "41" six cylinder engine have directed their attention to the usual method of placing spark plugs over the valve and have placed it in the center of the combustion chamber. This allows the flame to spread to all parts of the gases equally and consequently complete the ignition of the charge quicker and give more power.

The placing of the spark plug in the center of the combustion chamber, also tends to keep the spark plug core free from oil.
To those of us who have been in touch with civilization all our lives, there is nothing very wonderful in the railway train, the electric street car, the telephone, the wireless telegraph, the automobile and the flying machines. Though if you can, being an old man and seeing all these things for the first time in a period of less than two weeks.

The very thing was experienced a few days ago by a man 72 years old. The man's name is Many Tail Feather. He is a full-blooded Indian and a member of the Blackfoot tribe, whose reservation adjoins the Glacier national park. Many Tail Feather is one of the delegates sent to the Great Pacific exposition to take part in the dedication of the great Northern Railway company building.
A big six-cylinder Buick valve-in-head automobile took the party, consisting of Many Tail Feather, Chief Eagle Chief, Chief Medicine Owl, Fish Wolf Robe, Paul White Horse, Johnnie Red Eagle, two squaws and a pageant, out through the Presidio to Golden Gate park, then out the great highway, where Cy Christofferson gave the strange visitors an exhibition of flying in his new millimeter airplane. After the exhibition flight, Chief Eagle Chief called to be taken up as a passenger, and it is safe to say that the eagle feathers which formed his massive head dress never flew faster when they were attached to their original owner. At the end of the trip, after getting out of the big Buick, he walked slowly around it several times, inspecting everything closely, and then said to the interpreter: "If the Great Spirit will only give me a machine like this when I reach the happy hunting ground, I will be satisfied."

A CLEVER, CLEAN CIRCUS

At G. Barnes Animal Circus Will Delight Old and Young.

A line of clean, wholesome, clever comedy is generously interspersed throughout the program given by the Barnes Wild Animal Circus. The laughing part of the show is one of its distinctive features.

Forty comical clown bears, dogs, elephants, monkeys, goats and ponies, supply pleasure throughout the entertainment where the visitor may relax after seeing a "delicious" wild animal act, and have a good hearty laugh.

A quartette of mules--Maud, Danger, Dynamite and Gunpowder, present some very laughable situations. A dollar per minute in paid to anyone who can sick on Danger or Dynamite's back. Many applicants try for the coin, but the one result is inevitable: they go away afeer and without the money.

The big feature acts on the Barnes program are given with wild animals in which large groups of lions, tigers, leopards, bears and jacuars are shown. These acts are amazing and thrilling. 24 full grown, man-eating African lions being handled in one act by one man.

Domestic animals also take a prominent part in the entertainment, among which are the harness challenge horses and ponies, said to be the finest collection ever assembled. These horses are all actors; in fact, the entire entertainment provided by the Barnes show is given with educated animals--over 600 of them. Sixty-five feature acts are presented by these animals.

Performances are given at 2 and 8 p. m., and the new feature, the lion street parade at 10:30. The date for Twin Falls is Wednesday, May 12.

WORK ON STATE HIGHWAYS

Work Progressing Nicely According to Chairman Brodhead.

Chairman W. A. Brodhead of the State Highway commission returned yesterday from a few days' trip in inspection of the state highway.

Chairman Brodhead met Halley on last Wednesday and was met at Pocatello by State Highway Engineer Ed S. Smith. At Shoshone they were met by H. Correll, division engineer of the state highway.

The party left Shoshone Wednesday night for Twin Falls via Hesperman and Owyhee Ferry. The next day they traveled over the state highway along the Twin Falls county line. From there they went to Albion and held an interview with the commissioners of Cassia county on road matters.

The party then visited Hurler and went from there to Pocatello. On Friday they went to Hanford and drove over two proposed new routes in Idaho county.

Chairman Brodhead states that construction work is now going forward over 400 miles of state roads.

ELOPEMENT

Mrs. Richard Ford's Maid Elopes With Neighbor's Coachman.

There was great excitement in the Ford household in Twin Falls, when it was discovered that Ellen, the maid, had eloped with the neighbor's coachman. Mrs. Ford said of her brother, Bob, who was spending the week end at his sister's home, "Why, you know, Bob, a maid has never left me without warning before, or all my experience."

Formerly six weeks' amplified Bob, the horrid man thing.

Mrs. Ford succeeded in getting a divorce made with extraordinary ease. Affairs, together with those of a certain other young lady, make up one of the nicest comedies the people of this city have ever been privileged to see.

And to make it even more attractive, this splendid play will be put on by the Boy Scouts, assisted by some of their highly talented girl friends and directed by the Boyd Fullers. The affair will be staged at the Laying on Thursday evening, May 25th.

The work of the Boyd Fullers is well known and it is a foregone conclusion that the play will be out of the ordinary in the home talent line. There will be specialties between the acts, showing the boys in some of the stunts they learn in their scout work, first aid drills, etc.

All are familiar with the splendid work being accomplished by the Boy Scout movement and the boys will undoubtedly receive the widest hearty support of the whole community. They are planning another camping trip for this summer and will use the proceeds of the entertainment to help finance their journey.
