GERMANY MUST RESPECT NEUTRALS

New Note from American Government Is Very Plain.

WILSON POINTS OUT PASSENGER AND CREW MUST BE REMOVED

German Officials Express Belief Crisis Over the Lusitania Has Passed Danger Point.

Washington—President Wilson's note to Germany will be called to Ambassador Gerard Monday night or early Tuesday, according to word from the State House Sunday night.

The only reason for the delay, it was said, was the president's desire to make the phraseology of the note as certain and unmistakable as to leave no room for doubt or further argument concerning the position of the United States government.

Officials familiar with the contents of the note said it was a forcible restatement of the principles espoused by the United States in its note of February 10, when the American government announced its withdrawal from the rights of the belligerent.

Suggestions have been made to the president that the recent note from Germany offering terms and requesting for the torpedoing by mistake of the Lusitania be cited in the new note as proof of the American position.

President Wilson went to church Sunday morning, took a short automobile ride in the afternoon and spent the evening in his study still at work on the note.

Attention for the present in official quarters is fixed upon a settlement of the difficulties that have arisen between Germany and the United States and talk of making peace in Europe is heard much less now than some ago.

ADVISES UNION OF AMERICAS

Senator Borah Holds Speech Alliance Superior to Treaties.

Borah, Idaho, June 7, United States Senator William E. Borah favors a union of all American countries to protect the rights of neutrals, rather than a union of all neutral nations for their protection in the European conflict.

"I would be disposed to favor a union of all American countries to protect the rights of neutrals rather than a union with all neutral nations. It seems to me that our rights should be protected by a union of American countries alone, and if so I would much prefer such action rather than to have any closer alliance or relationship with any class of the European situation. I hope to see the time when the American continent, north and south, shall be free to have its interests distinct from those of Europe, and every effort should be made to bring us into closer and more united relations."

While the men were last Friday anxiously waiting the eighth avenue ditch looking for a last child and all the mothers in the neighborhood were wrought up to the highest pitch of nervous dread from fear of a child being lost in the unguarded ditch, possibly the uselessness of such continuing anxiety may occur to all.

The Times would suggest that the Twin Falls Canal company and the City of Twin Falls, through their legal departments make a stipulation to each stand half of the cost of covering the ditch immediately. Then at the same time, start a suit to determine the responsibility and specify carry it through to the supreme court without the usual legal quibbling.

RIGHT TO FAIR TRIAL. While numerous attacks have been made from time to time upon the American jury system, that part of the law courts has stood the test and without a doubt will be always a part of our methods for obtaining justice.

While personal prejudice will often make one desire acquittal, the conviction of some offender, yet the most potent factor in the trial is innocent based upon prejudice, but upon the clear establishment of guilt so that there is no room for reasonable doubt that is justice in its essence.

In Twin Falls a peculiar situation confronts the district court because of such a criticism by a local newspaper of a verdict by a jury. The jury agreed on an acquittal and before the eyes of the law, it is innocent of the crime charged.

but also indicating the judgment of the jury which acquitted him, and holding them up to the scorn of the public. What right has any man to say his judgment on the case, obtained by roundabout, hearsay methods, is superior to that of the judge and jury sitting attentively upon the whole evidence introduced pro and con? It would seem to be out of place to say the least.

As for a affecting the case already settled and beyond the reach of the court, it can have no weight. But as affecting other criminal cases it is a warning to every defendant who may come up for trial at this term of court and to the extent of the paper's influence mitigates against his right to fair trial.

AMERICA UNREADY As the war flames higher, involving more nations and creating "incidents" that cause war-talk even here, old defenseless condition causes more and more concern. Leaders of national thought are urging action, though it must be said that most of the suggested plans would make as ready for war many years hence, perhaps 40-50, or after the danger is past.

General Wood has defined the American ideal of preparedness against war as "a large number of men trained and ready for service in time of need, and the smallest possible number with the colors at other times." The Brooklyn Eagle hears that in a few weeks the secretary of war will receive from the general staff recommendations for a system of "intensive" training.

However, we need more ships, more officers, and more men, and should continue the wise policy of increasing the size of our navy, which must ever remain our first and best line of defense.

It is the opinion of naval officials that both the speed and gun-power of the Atlantic fleet in the task that might at some time be assigned to it.

in protecting the United States from invasion were put to the test." The San correspondent also points out that the navy department admits that the same maneuvers showed that the Atlantic submarine flotilla to be defective in many respects.

"I do not advocate preparedness for war, but a preparedness against war." The preparedness which is to prevent the catastrophe of war itself will prevent the enormous initial sacrifice of human lives which has characterized every war in which the United States has engaged throughout our past history.

When Secretary Garrison appeared the following day he delivered an address on "The Problem of National Defense." His aim was to solve the problem, or even offer any practical suggestions.

"No sensible mind can believe that there is any advantage to be gained by our aspirations for peace because of an exhibition of weakness and weakness in the solving of existing problems. The voice which is firm and clear, which is heard and heeded, proceeds from the strong, sound, virile man, pledged in word and in deed to righteousness.

CARRIERS OF GERMS

Healthy Animals May Spread Disease.

The medical profession has known for a long time that one of the means to which health is exposed is the infectious material often carried and innoculated by animals which are beautiful persons and animals, but the importance of this fact has become known only in recent years.

Today we know that many persons after recovery from typhoid fever continue to discharge typhoid germs from their bodies and that such persons cause numerous cases of typhoid fever unless they are properly controlled, and we know that exposure to diphtheria, even when it does not lead to the development of disease, means that the exposed individual often becomes a carrier of diphtheria germs, which are located in his throat, a region from which they are expelled on a way dangerous to the health of susceptible persons. And we also know that this same problem of seemingly healthy carriers and disseminators of disease germs must be given careful attention because of its bearing on the health of our domestic animals.

The possibility that animals may become persistent carriers of disease germs is due to any one of many kinds of disease. For example, if we take three diseases, southern cattle fever, infectious abortion of cattle, and foot-and-mouth disease, we have one which is caused by an animal micro-organism, one by a vegetable micro-organism of a true bacterium, and one by an undifferentiated, probably ultracellular organism or a germ too small to be seen, even with the aid of the most powerful microscope. Regarding southern cattle fever, the bureau of animal industry proved some years ago that recovered cattle continue to carry its specific virus in their blood for years, so that the injection of a small quantity of such blood under the skin of a susceptible animal almost invariably causes a typical attack of southern cattle fever. Fortunately, this disease is not transmitted through contact directly from one animal to another; the only known method of transmission under natural conditions is through the agency of the tick. Later the bureau demonstrated that calves affected with abortion disease, long after they had seemingly recovered and resumed the normal production of calves, continue to "expel abortion bacilli with their milk. One cow now under observation has continued to discharge such bacilli with her milk without showing a symptom of the disease for more than six years. And recently the claim was made by European investigators that animals recovered from foot-and-mouth disease may expel the infectious material of this serious plague as long as eight months later.

There are other diseases of which it is definitely known that apparently recovered cases remain carriers of their specific causes, but it is unnecessary to speak about them here, as the object of this short article is to call attention to a source of danger to a generally way rather than to discuss it in detail.

We may say that what is true of three infectious diseases, the character and possible causes of which are as dissimilar as those of the three named, must be assumed to be true of all infectious diseases until the contrary is proved. Hence, the animals which have recovered from or have been exposed to infectious diseases must be regarded with suspicion. Farmers and animal husbandmen often can avoid serious trouble among their animals by making careful inquiries relative to the history of the animals they contemplate purchasing for introduction into their herds or flocks. The purchase of an animal lacking a clean bill of health from its birth until the time it is offered for sale, or of an animal from a herd or flock to have increased should be regarded as court-ing trouble.

OLD-TIME SCOT

Major Burke With Buffalo Bill for Many Years.

Major John M. Burke, one of the best known men of the country, was a visitor in our city today. He is an admirer of the Sells-Plato circus and Buffalo Bill alliance and rejoices in the fact that the circus business is on the high tide again. Major Burke for many years has been a volunteer in the Sells-Plato-Buffalo Bill circus and he is always glad to see him. The major brings the information that the show will be everything he claims for it. Special attention has been paid to details this year in the tented areas excellent in general appearance anything in the past, so the public is promised some very novel stunts to create thrills during the performance.

No stronger proof could be given than the only novel stunt, year phenomenon created by this out-our combination, in San Francisco lately. Considering all conditions and cold rainy weather, the success will be a notable one forever. In a recent issue of The Major says, "Who and what are the magnitude, worth and wealth of meritorious attractions of that colossal history of the Panama Exposition and the multitude of exhibitions of 'fantasies' occurring through mankind's innate love of the relative motion of man and joy through exhibitions of human and animal feats of daring and skill, physical culture and intelligence illustrated, the oldest form of amusement, the circus."

This year the standards without doubt, then have been enhanced by new tricks, new stunts, new acrobatic feats; the new features are of an extra-interesting nature. Principally this show has been a grand old-fashioned fun and frolic, and has been as brightly as a meteor outside the recorded stars and as a debutant hereof unknown except in the multitude of legends, tales and tours de force in acrobatic and equestrian stunts. The circus is a source of entertainment and joy to the people of the world. It is a source of entertainment and joy to the people of the world. It is a source of entertainment and joy to the people of the world.

Dr. Fred Snook, who in touring Europe was an agent in old Buffalo Bill's Wild West camp in Paris, and the Major to the Falls and environs of the city. The developments of Twin Falls in the surrounding country, attractive natural scenic wonders in canyon, river and cataracts, makes this rival in any visitor from the Yellowstone or the Rockies, a "real surprise."

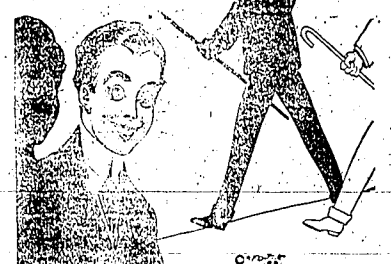

Perrier's foresight, old-timers, such as Tom Clark, who bought Buffalo on the prairie and Dr. Snook, who has sampled the fields of Europe is proof to me that you have as was the saying in other days "great country, plenty grain, fine timber, good grazing."

"THE ROAD CRUISER"
New, Graceful Yacht Lines Now The New Hudson Ever-Lustre Finish--A Roomier Tonneau--A $1350 Price

READ THIS HUDSON MESSAGE TO YOU

Countless thousands in the past few months have asked this question everywhere: "What more can Hudson do?" Now Hudson is ready, and we believe this answer will amaze the most zealous Hudson admirer.

ANOTHER $200 REDUCTION

First, we've reduced the price by another $200. That makes $1000—23 per cent—since this new type first came out.

To grasp that, remember former conditions. Only a little time ago, $1,000 was a low price for a six. The cheapest six cost 1 1/2 times Hudson's price today.

Men bought 10,000 of the 1915 Model. They loved us to triple our output, to build enormous factory additions. And now we are able to quote you $1350 on this famous Six.

THE EVER-LUSTRE FINISH

Now we have a finish of wondrous lustre, which will keep its newness. We have built in our factory enormous ovens, large enough for hundreds of bodies.

The result is a baked-on finish, brilliant, deep and enduring. We call it the Ever-Lustre finish, found only on this new Hudson car. Experienced motorists, who have seen cars quickly grow dull and shabby will consider this a great innovation.

See this car early if you want early delivery. Every new Hudson model brings an overabundant. Last July found us 4,000 cars behind orders. This 1916 model has no real competition. It is sure to oversell.

MOVING-PICTURE CITY

St. Anthony to Have a Make-Believe City.

There is a single soul in this part of the country who would have dreamed that a moving picture city would ever be built at St. Anthony, but the fact is materializing and two gentlemen, Messrs. C. R. Hays and J. H. Kelley, are here investigating the feasibility of locating a "movie" city near St. Anthony.

This picture city will take up a home of about 100 acres and will require from 200 to 300 people to run the business. During summer months race-tracks, road Indians and the local out-west "live-ropers" constitute a part of the "funny" life.

Messrs. Hays and Kelley are very well pleased with what they have well shown around here and have already decided upon the land they desire to purchase which is the Most property adjoining town on the east. At a meeting of the Commercial club Tuesday evening these gentlemen were welcomed to the city and tendered all the possible assistance that the club could possibly give.

WIND WRECKS BUILDING

School Structure at Rockland Blown Down by Wind.

Rockland, Idaho, May 30.—The handsome school building at this place collapsed yesterday afternoon in a terrific wind storm. All the rooms except the primary department, taught by Miss Lida Grant of Salt Lake City, had been dismantled, it being the close of the school term.

Miss Grant, with a few of her pupils, was in the domestic science room in the basement and, while they were frightened, no one was hurt by the crumbling walls. Miss Grant advised and had to be carried from the building.

The building has just recently been completed at a cost of nearly $40,000 and was one of the handsomest buildings in southern Idaho.

HEALTH AND HYGIENE

Many Necessary Precautions if You are Going to Take a Vacation.

Vacation is the talk of the season. Every nine out of ten people are planning to take a vacation trip sometime, somewhere during the summer.

Where to go is the question that the most dangerous mosquito and otherwise attractive resorts are not always the best. Your first consideration should be: Where can I find rest and recreation without jeopardizing my health?

First: The supply of drinking water comes not from shallow wells or from other sources likely to be polluted. Then flies and mosquitoes are well screened against. Second: That there are sanitary arrangements for the disposal of sewage. Keep these things and your chances for enjoying typhoid and many other diseases will be greatly diminished.

Third: Do not drink water that you do not know comes from a good well, cistern or spring, or from a good, safe city supply, unless it has been thoroughly boiled.

Fourth: Before taking your summer vacation have your physician examine you against typhoid fever by giving you the typhoid bacterin.

The state board of health will supply you with typhoid bacterin without charge.

HEALTH BULLETIN

Distribution of Preventive Vaccine for Typhoid Fever.

The people of Idaho are hereby notified that the state board of health is prepared to furnish free bacterin for the prevention of typhoid fever. The efficacy of this method in preventing typhoid fever has now been proven and it is hoped that the people will avail themselves of the opportunity of taking this treatment in order to lessen the prevalence of typhoid fever.

About this time of year typhoid fever begins to appear in many of the counties of Idaho. Some people are beginning to believe that typhoid fever is "catching." Well, you do not "catch" typhoid fever like you do a cold; you swallow it. Typhoid fever is caused by flies which get into the mouth from the fingers, or from something we eat or drink.

To prevent typhoid fever the greatest care must be taken to see that the well or the cistern of the spring, wherever it is used as a source of water supply, is protected from every possible source of pollution. A good well must have a sound, tight top with a water-tight casing or curbing.

A well with a leaky top or with holes around the sides, or a bucket which is touched with dirty hands, is likely to give rise to dangerous pollution.

Then, too, the outside toilet must be looked after, to see that there is no danger of pollution from it. The

FARMERS CAN GET AID

How Bureau of Animal Industry Will Help.

Congress made its first appropriation to eradicate the southern cattle tick in 1905. While there were many farmers and others who doubted the possibility of such an undertaking, still the work was commenced in a very modest way, as practically no provision had been made by the states in which the cattle tick flourished.

During the first two or three years, much of the work was experimental, but many of the experiments proved satisfactory. The farmers in the southern states gained courage and confidence in the proposition and those engaged in the work gained knowledge relative to the life and habits of the tick and the best means of eliminating the parasite which had so long held sway over the cattle industry of the South.

As large areas were freed from the ticks each year, more and more people became convinced that ticks could be eradicated at a reasonable cost. Furthermore, they discovered that as soon as ticks which kill susceptible cattle were gone, better cattle would come to the country and that two years of age raised under tick-free conditions. These plain, everyday facts were the work, and the eradication increased and developed in nearly all the states where cattle are raised, until up to the present time there has been freed from ticks an area of approximately 150,000 square miles, an area greater than the combined states of New York, Alabama, Georgia, Florida and South Carolina.

The possibility of eradicating ticks in no small measure has freed from ticks the area of approximately 150,000 square miles, an area greater than the combined states of New York, Alabama, Georgia, Florida and South Carolina.

The question now is, how soon can the last tick be eliminated from the United States? The federal and state legislatures are each year appropriating larger sums of money to the end that the work may be hastened.

The eradication of ticks is a matter of national importance and the personal efforts put forth by the farmers themselves, in some states the cost of the tick eradication, the county or state may come to the rescue. FARMERS CAN GET AID

How Bureau of Animal Industry Will Help.

Congress made its first appropriation to eradicate the southern cattle tick in 1905. While there were many farmers and others who doubted the possibility of such an undertaking, still the work was commenced in a very modest way, as practically no provision had been made by the states in which the cattle tick flourished.

During the first two or three years, much of the work was experimental, but many of the experiments proved satisfactory. The farmers in the southern states gained courage and confidence in the proposition and those engaged in the work gained knowledge relative to the life and habits of the tick and the best means of eliminating the parasite which had so long held sway over the cattle industry of the South.

As large areas were freed from the ticks each year, more and more people became convinced that ticks could be eradicated at a reasonable cost. Furthermore, they discovered that as soon as ticks which kill susceptible cattle were gone, better cattle would come to the country and that two years of age raised under tick-free conditions. These plain, everyday facts were the work, and the eradication increased and developed in nearly all the states where cattle are raised, until up to the present time there has been freed from ticks an area of approximately 150,000 square miles, an area greater than the combined states of New York, Alabama, Georgia, Florida and South Carolina.

The possibility of eradicating ticks in no small measure has freed from ticks the area of approximately 150,000 square miles, an area greater than the combined states of New York, Alabama, Georgia, Florida and South Carolina.

The question now is, how soon can the last tick be eliminated from the United States? The federal and state legislatures are each year appropriating larger sums of money to the end that the work may be hastened.

The eradication of ticks is a matter of national importance and the personal efforts put forth by the farmers themselves, in some states the cost of the tick eradication, the county or state may come to the rescue. In other cases, farmers have formed local live stock associations and provided funds to build cattle dipping vats, to buy dipping materials, and to seek the co-operation and assistance of the United States department of agriculture in carrying on systematic work.

case for the continuance of the plan of dipping for immediate slaughter cattle which are unsuitable for that purpose. The department is endeavoring to increase the production of beef by developing ways and means by which hundreds of thousands of southern cattle formerly used for slaughter only may be sold for feeding purposes at higher prices than they are worth for beef.

In a subsequent number of the News Letter will be described the activities of the Field Inspection Division in eradication studies in sheep and cattle.

NEW GRAPE PRODUCT

Method of Concentrating Grape Juice by Freezing and Centrifuging.

The fruit juice specialists of the department have recently developed a method by which the juice pressed from Concord and Iowa grapes can be concentrated into a new form of grape syrup suitable for use in soft drinks and as an adjunct in cooking. The discovery of the process followed experimentally in concentrating clear to one-fifth of its volume. The new method consists in freezing grape juice pressed from grapes into solid ice, breaking this into pieces the size of a walnut and whirling it in a centrifugal machine such as is used in separating the molasses from the sugar in sugar making. The rapid whirling of the grape juice ice in the centrifugal machine causes the sugar or syrup portion of the grape juice to separate from the molasses. Water and to fly out into the receiving chamber of the centrifugal. By this method a quart of concentrated grape juice is made from a gallon of grape juice.

The concentrated grape syrup from the Concord grape is a rich purple product somewhat thicker than napple syrup. When it is mixed in the portion of 1 part syrup to 2 1/2 parts of water, it makes a novel unfermented grape beverage with a flavor of the grape. When it is mixed in the proportion of 1 part syrup to 1 part of water, it makes a novel unfermented grape beverage with a flavor of the grape. When it is mixed in the proportion of 1 part syrup to 1 part of water, it makes a novel unfermented grape beverage with a flavor of the grape.

While the process has not yet been developed on a commercial scale, the experiments indicate that where a commercial ice plant is available, such a product can be made at a cost which should be attractive to manufacturers in grape-growing districts.

Experiments in making the concentrated grape juice indicate that the new method removes practically all of the "rough" taste which sometimes afflicts grape juice made from this variety. The fact that the freezing process automatically removes such a defect is a valuable feature.

The grape syrup, moreover, the experiments believe, will be of service as a syrup for ice-cream sodas and as a flavoring syrup in confectionery. The syrup is adapted to marketing purposes. Endeavor will be made to interest manufacturers in the new product and to test it during the coming season on a commercial scale.

the farmers of this country, as it is the general farm that the great bulk of eggs are produced. Every part of this loss can be prevented by the production of infertile eggs, which are laid by hens that do not have a male bird with them. The male bird has no influence whatever on the number of eggs laid. Therefore, as a matter of fact, the male bird should be removed from the flock.

The greatest trouble from blood ring in eggs occurs at the time of the gathering and storing of the eggs during the late spring and summer months. At these times the eggs should be gathered at least twice a day, placed in a room or cellar where the temperature does not rise above 70 degrees F. and marked two or three times a week.

Blood rings are caused by the development of the embryo in a fertile egg and its subsequent death. It is impossible to hatch an infertile egg. It is generally formed in one of two ways. First, the male bird is removed from the flock, the fertilized eggs are laid, and the male bird is removed from the flock. This shows that where fertile eggs are kept under similar conditions, the fertilized eggs are laid much quicker, due to the fact that they are fertilized faster than infertile eggs in the average summer temperature. Summer heat has the same effect on the hen or incubator on fertile eggs. It is generally formed in one of two ways. First, the male bird is removed from the flock, the fertilized eggs are laid, and the male bird is removed from the flock.
