EXCELSIOR EXCERPTS

We seem to be having a few days of summer now. It had begun to look as though we would have to summer this year. In a badly coated baseball game Sunday, Buck Creek won by the score of 7 to 5. Up to the last half of the game Artesian City was in the lead position. Then the fast-break men ran in six men. The last half of the game was not played on account of the late hour.
At Mrs. E. H. Butler's social at the Salmon tract last Wednesday and Thursday.
Mrs. Gardner has returned to her home at Artesian City. We are sorry to hear that she has left but feel sure that some of the boys will overtake their heart trouble now.
Baby and Orlin Butler have been suffering with the mumps the last week.
The baseball team will play Thursday and the basketball team Saturday. A good game is expected.
Several of the farmers are clipping their sheep clover this year on account of the weeds.
W. F. Edwards and family were visiting Marlon Edwards and wife on the Salmon tract last Sunday.
Many of the farmers are buying cars this summer. This can be seen from an example of southern Idaho crop city.
Mr. Dawson, who has been working in the hills on the mow, states that they had but one or two days of sunshine weather in the last month up there.
Many of the people of the community are planning on seeing the circus at Twin Falls next Monday.
Miss Vera Butler and Miss Helen Edwards were Twin Falls visitors Saturday.

Stroeter, who was captured by Bonnevill county officers some time ago and who was sentenced to the Idaho penitentiary for horse stealing, was shot and killed here last night by Deputy Sheriff Thompson. Traveling Guard Danielson of the Idaho penitentiary was here to take Stroeter and another man to the pen, and was to leave on train No. 2 early this morning. About 9 o'clock last night Thompson went to the county jail to lock the two men up for the night. As he was entering the cell the other man grabbed him, throwing his arms to his body, and Stroeter hit the deputy over the head with a mallet. The Thompson sawed him over in jerking back and shot Stroeter, killing him instantly. The other man was then backed into the cell and locked up. Stroeter, who stole his horse some time ago near Mackay, was captured about three weeks ago by officers, and taken to the county jail. He was caught away from his camp, and off to jail. He was known to be a bad man and had served a five-year sentence for grand larceny in the Idaho penitentiary. At the time he was captured by the local officers he made the remark that if he had been in his camp there would have been an artillery battle before he would have been captured. Idaho Falls Post.

MacDonald Watering Chautauqua Lambs

GRAND men are usually very human, although with some of them we do not come closely enough in contact with them to find this out. A famous Chautauqua man has been seen watering thousands of lambs on both sides of the Atlantic is here shown making friends with children at a Chautauqua. This man is H. Rutven MacDonald, Canada's famous lambman. He will appear at the Chautauqua here this summer, when he will sing such favorites as "The Meadow," "Summer," "The Creation" and "The Redemption." One never forgets his powerful yet sympathetic voice when he attended MacDonald's concert. This lambman is equally at home with humorous and descriptive songs, folk songs and ballads.

A Characteristic Pose of Nelson S. Darling of Oklahoma

Did you ever hear of Nelson Darling, the Town Doctor? Well, he is just that. He will spend a day here during Chautauqua and will be at the disposal of the business men except during his hours in the law office. A favorite plan is for him to be guest at a luncheon. In the meantime in his own way, he has been "sizing up" that town, and then he tells the people plainly, yet with marvelous wit and good humor, just what is the matter in that locality and what to do to put things on a go ahead basis.

Signor Salvatore Circillo

NO band leader of recent years has received greater attention than Signor Salvatore Circillo, who, with his world renowned Italian concert band will make his second tour of the Pacific coast this summer. He is unquestionably the most interesting personality before the music world to day and one of the most successful of all conductors, a master genius of the highest order. In 1904 he toured the cities of the middle west with a boys' band, which was recorded great applause. His present band is the mature fruit of that band, and many of his present players have been with him since boyhood. Circillo began the study of music at eleven years of age in his native land, Italy. It was only a year later that the leader of the municipal band of Campo Basso, his birthplace, asked Circillo's parents to permit the boy to play in the band. He soon afterwards entered the Royal Conservatory of Music at Naples and graduated at eighteen. He came to the United States in 1902. His first tour was successful, and he has traveled extensively every season since that time.

The Town Creed

By NELS DARLING

I BELIEVE IN MY TOWN. I believe in her people, in her boys and in her girls. I will make myself a committee for one to make of this a good place in which to live and a mighty hard place to leave. I BELIEVE IN MY TOWN. I believe in her institutions, in her schools, in her churches and in her stores. I believe in the street broom and street sweeper and in the post office. I believe in the empty eye on the vacant lot or plot, but many a full one in the latter. Never again will I throw waste paper or rubbish in the street or alley. I BELIEVE IN MY TOWN. I believe in trees, God's first temples-green instead of ash heaps and flowers instead of weeds. May God bless the tongue that gives honest praise and commendation, and may he doubly bless the ear that is deaf to scolding and gossip. If I cannot speak good of my neighbor I will hold my peace. When it rains nothing, at least, I will spend my money here and by so doing leave a part of the purchase price to circulate in the channels where its equivalent in wealth was originally created, to do good among the folks who are a part of the community of which I am a part, in the place that I call home, sweet home.

Modern Chautauquas and American Business Methods

One cannot review the attractions comprising the Chautauqua, which has been arranged through the magnificence and public spiritfulness of some of the people of this city, without wanting to attend every entertainment on the program. The Chautauqua had its inception many years ago at Chautauque, N. Y., which gave the institution its name. Other cities took it up, and as the fame grew and the benefits were realized people went hundreds of miles to spend a week listening to great men and entertainers and musical attractions of a high order. And finally the American prejudice of combination and cooperation was applied to it, and the whole country may now enjoy Chautauqua. It is cheaper to bring the lecturer to a thousand people in a town than for the people to go to the lecturer. This is what makes it a most timely and valuable result of the advantages of such a gathering, and another important factor in its success. By a bureau which has ability, organization and big financial responsibility carrying the talent on like a great scheme is effected. High class people can be engaged through the whole season for much less than where each must have a separate manager and make his own dates, and best-time and low jumps are avoided. Thus a series of programs extending through a week can be secured at a price which would pay for only a few modern attractions elsewhere. The Chautauqua is an excellent illustration of the economies of American business methods.

With true regard for climate, that Intubular traveler, Evelyn Bargett, has been arranged as one of the entertainers of the closing day of the Chautauqua. A Permanent Community Asset

Edies Have Found That Chautauquas Pay In The Largest Sense. It is pretty generally admitted that there is no community enterprise in which a town can engage which pays so good returns as a Chautauqua. It is not difficult work to make a success of a Chautauqua, and, aside from the equipment of its program, the whole influence it leaves behind is a permanent asset. Such a gathering pays well to raise the standards of the community. With a series of concert programs as an asset to be secured under any other circumstances, the musical work of the people is considerably advanced. The lectures give instruction and enjoyment at the same time, and other entertainers, whether comedians, magicians or trained dogs, are different from those that appear in the same town under private auspices. The wonderful part of it all is the low cost of such a series. Thirty attendances, one after another and merging into one another, will be here and there making high in its particular field of entertainment. And a ticket admitting to every one of these programs costs only a nominal sum. The grand open or bank program is worth the money.

FROZEN FISH GOOD

No Cause for Popular Prejudice, Is Wholesome Substitute for Meat. Recent investigations carried on by the Department of Agriculture appear to indicate that the prejudice against the eating of fish, especially frozen fish, because of the alleged danger of ptomaine poisoning, is quite unfounded. A partial decomposition of either fish or meat may result in the formation of certain substances that cause digestive troubles. These substances are popularly known as ptomaines, although many of them have not yet been fully studied and their nature determined. The whole question is a very complex one, but there is, however, no reason for assuming that there is any more danger in ptomaines in fish than in meat. Now processes of preserving fish by freezing, glazing and cold storage make it an safe article of food.

Another objection raised by many is that the composition of which is not altered in any way by the process of preservation. Canning, smoking, salting, or pickling all alter the flavor of the treated article. When frozen fish, however, the envelope of ice has only to be melted in order to give us back an article of food that is practically identical with that taken from the sea. If it were not for such a method of preservation fish could not be kept upon as a constant source of food. In the fish trade there is a succession of glutted markets and periods of scarcity and, in consequence, prices fluctuate. The frozen fish is so little that there is no profit in catching them, and there are other times when they can not be obtained at any price. The frozen fish is as good as a balance wheel for the trade.

Whether a bird is beneficial or injurious depends almost entirely upon what it eats, in the case of species which are very abundant, or which feed to some extent on the crops of the farmer, the question of their advantage or disadvantage is a matter of importance, and only by stomach examination can it be satisfactorily solved. Field observations are at best but a guess, and in many cases are unavailing, so no final results. Birds are often accused of eating this or that product of the atmosphere, when an examination of the stomach shows that the article is unaccounted for. Accordingly, the biological survey has conducted for some time a systematic investigation of the food of those species which are most common about the farm and garden.
