

DEBATE ON SOCIALISM DRAWS A LARGE CROWD

Both Sides Ably Presented—S. G. Gilliland Argues for Socialist State, While Professor Bowers Opposes

Notwithstanding the fact that the reception for Company D kept many away, there was a large crowd at the Parish hall Friday night to hear the joint debate on Socialism between S. G. Gilliland of this city and F. H. Bowers, professor of economics and history of the Burley public schools. Each side presented his side with ability. H. N. Coulter was chairman of the meeting. Professor Hal G. Blue of the public schools had been asked to preside, but as he was also invited to preside over the reception for Company D, which was held in the High School auditorium, he felt it proper to accept the invitation to take charge of the reception when it was discovered that there was a conflict of dates.

The following is a summary of the most important arguments advanced pro and con on the subject: Mr. Gilliland declared that socialism did not advocate the dividing up of the wealth and property of the world, giving each individual his pro rata share, but that its intent was to extend the powers of the state and throw into public ownership those utilities and industries that are of a public nature, and to retain the private ownership of all things private. He explained that the only real asset of any person or collection of persons was their productive power. He said there was no class of true labor, one being mental, the other physical, and when he spoke of labor he did not exclude the mental workers, but that he nor any other true thinker gave no credit to the men whose mental efforts was utilized to manipulate the rise and fall of stocks and bonds and by so doing reap a profit that represented no productive effort on that man's part.

Mr. Gilliland stated that by removing the daily need of a struggle for mere existence that man's energy and intelligence could then be utilized and exercised along broader lines and enter things accomplished, that socialism embodied fraternalism, that man's intelligence was given him to distinguish him from other forms of animal life, and that it was not unreasonable to expect him in this day, having conquered all lower forms of life to attain in peace and harmony with his fellow man.

He did not deny that inequalities in ability exist today and always will exist, but said that under the socialist plan those inequalities would be so adjusted that each man would reap the full returns of such ability as he possessed in any city and that the strong mounting onto the backs of the weak, the weak would be uplifted and aided by the strong. Mr. Gilliland became aroused on this point and stated that this proneness under the present system of the strong to take advantage of the weak, and for the efforts of the weak to create the profit of the strong, was where was the trouble.

The three things that socialism would eliminate, according to Mr. Gilliland, are interest, profit and rent. Those are the terms of the present system that give the hog instead of man an opportunity of expression, according to his argument, and it is the hog instinct, that should be crushed out and abolished.

The following is the substance of Professor Bowers' argument: Socialism is idealistic and opposed to the nature of man. Its theories mitigate against ambitions and remove the incentive of working for a reward that give the hog instead of man an opportunity of expression, according to his argument, and it is the hog instinct, that should be crushed out and abolished.

The present system has raised man out of barbarism to a level far loftier than their own primal emotions would have carried them, were they left to their own devices, and had their wants been cared for by a paternal government. They having tasted the delights of an elevated life they naturally longed for greater privileges and were now demanding the same. It was expected that the droop of existence, doing so willingly, knowing nothing different, and who now demand equal suffrage with men, the working class is discontented with its bettered condition and craves a greater freedom. This is right and should be granted with a measure of reason, yet the fact should not be lost to sight. It was the system of private development that has brought about these conditions, and it is this system which will do the greatest amount of good for mankind if continued. A capitalist, said Mr. Bowers, is one who has more than he needs, and something everyone has. He has the desire and possibility of placing oneself beyond the point of want that acts as a spur to ambition and carries men from the depths to the heights. It is the opportunity to become powerful that has conquered the weakness of man in America in a short period as measured in years.

The present system is not an accident; it is the result of long evolution from the time that man has been exercised by the human race and proved successful. It will stand improvement and will absorb into its structure the best ideas of all times, yet it will continue to endure in the future as in the past, changing to meet the advancement of the race. The scientific ideas of many of them be incorporated into the affair of the state is not questioned, and the extremists will have the effect of checking the abuse of the people's rights. However, to adopt socialism in its entirety would be a death blow to ambition, a reversion to savagery or at least barbarism, an atrocious condition, and productive of revolution. It is the dream of the idealist.

REPORT DEFENDS THE AMERICAN EXPORTER

National Trade Council Says False Impression Has Been Given by Magazine Articles.

(United Press).—By the way of informing the world that blunders made by American exporters are the exception rather than the rule, the National Foreign Trade Council reported to the Fourth National Foreign Trade convention which closed there that the fragmentary reports made on American trade have given an erroneous impression. The report said in part: "A situation has recently arisen affecting the reputation of American exports which contain elements both of great good and great harm. Certain American consular, commercial, organizations and banks have done a useful service in sharply calling attention to specific derelictions on the part of American exporters. These derelictions are in many cases of a technical nature. In itself, this had done good, but it is apparent that many newspapers, magazines and individuals have made these specific criticisms the basis for generalizations highly, discreditable to all American foreign trade. This generalization is untrue. This can be proven by the fact that our export of manufactures nearly doubled between 1905 and 1913, a practically unparalleled expansion."

PRISON REFORMER RELEASED SATURDAY

Thomas Mott Osborne Spent Ten Days in Naval Prison at Portsmouth, At Request of Daniels.

(United Press). N. H., Jan. 30.—"Tom Brown," who has served terms in Kings, Sing Sing, Dannemora and had long experience in jail, was let step out of Uncle Sam's naval prison here Saturday a free man. Whether he will go back to jail again soon depends upon his own free will. For "Tom Brown," be it known, is Thomas Mott Osborne, prison reformer, the famous warden of New York's famous penal institution at Sing Sing. He completed today a ten day term in the naval prison at the request of Secretary of the Navy Daniels, who wanted a complete report on conditions in the prison and the feeling of the inmates—all of them enlisted sailors. With "Brown" for the ten days as convict were Prof. John McCormick, professor of political science at Bowdoin University, and Harry Bolansky, Osborne's secretary. The three were treated exactly like other convicts in the prison. They wore the same clothes, ate the same food, did the same hard labor on the Portsmouth rock-piles and no hint was given the convicts but that the trio were real "bad men" serving time like the rest of them. This is Osborne's third voluntary "turn" in a prison to obtain first hand information as to conditions. His first "sentence" was at Auburn several years ago.

John Baker, representative of the International Typographical union, is here from Helena, Montana, today visiting the local union.
Mrs. C. H. Krenzel in home from California, where she spent the winter, and left friends and family in Nogales, where she spent some time with her husband, Lieutenant Krenzel.
Frank Stapleton, in charge of the local branch of the Murphy Cigar company, returned yesterday from Puceto, where he went to attend a stockholders' meeting of the company.

LOCAL BREVITIES

Mr. Bern-A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Otis Kelly Saturday.
Broke Arm On Sidewalk-John Doran fell on the sidewalk in this city Saturday, breaking an arm.
Horse Sale-See advertisement in another column of the McMaster sale of draft horses, Friday, February 2.
Cigar Man in City-Fred Murphy, president of the Murphy Cigar company was in Twin Falls last week on a business visit to the local store.
Called East-Mrs. F. C. Naro was called to Kansas City this morning on account of the illness of her mother, Mrs. M. B. Holmes, who is lying at the point of death.
Goes to Golden State-Wendell Gloyntz left this week for Los Angeles and other California points on a motorcycle on-business connected with the motorcycle trade.

No Auto Applications-Because of the failure of application blanks for auto licenses, Assessor George W. Wilcox has been unable to comply with requests for such blanks by the auto owners. He expects a supply in a few days.
First Wedding Ceremony-Probate Judge O. P. Duval performed his first wedding ceremony Thursday afternoon when he married Harry Toosier of this city. The age of each was eighteen years and the consent of their parents was obtained before the wedding took place.
Sale Year Curry-On Wednesday, February 1, beginning at 11 o'clock a. m., Col. H. B. Lue will sell at public auction nineteen horses and four head of cattle for Slatton brothers, at their farm one mile south and half mile east of Curry station; three and a half miles southeast of Elmer. There will be a lunch served at noon.
Cut Hand Badly-DeWitt La Due cut three fingers of his left hand severely yesterday afternoon while trimming meat for the Independent Lacking company. The knife slipped from a bone and struck his finger with great force. Amputation will not be necessary, though he will be laid up for some time.

Brown Found Guilty-James M. Brown, expert booze extractor, who proved himself a perverted genius through his ability to make a good band liquor and dispose of it, while doing time, was found guilty of burglary in the second degree.
Local Couple Married-O. C. Leighton and Ellamay Booth, both well known Twin Falls young people were quietly married Friday evening at the home of the bride's mother, E. H. Harman. Mr. Leighton is a brother to Lieutenant Ralph Leighton of the National Guard, and is a bookkeeper in the office of the Department store. Miss Booth has lived in Twin Falls a number of years and is well known among the young people of the city.
Coal Situation Relieved-The coal situation seems to be permanently relieved unless a series of storms should impede traffic for an indefinite time. Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week, three cars arrived daily. Yesterday, only one car was received and delivered, so that everybody now has all the coal needed. The Salt Lake City dealers in an advertisement in this paper laid the blame for the recent trouble at the door of the Denver & Rio Grande railroad.

Mayor Files on Water-Mayor Sweeley yesterday received from the state engineer the permit to use as domestic supply for the city of Twin Falls twenty cubic seconds feet of water from Rock Creek. To be controlled by diversion dam or pipe to the city. Only the normal flow of Rock Creek and the underground flow of the non-irrigating season-to be secured by means of works-is filed upon. Asked when the water will get out, Mayor Sweeley said that that proposition was up to the engineer to determine. He said that he would do anything should occur to prevent the city from getting a water supply from other sources, it would be well to delay during the winter and the next season next year, when the canal company would shut off the supply. Should private persons file on this supply, the city might be compelled to pay dearly and to go to considerable trouble and expense to get possession of it at a time when it would be imperative during the winter to have the supply during the irrigating season had all been filed on.
Gideon's Representative Here-J. Graham Orr, superintendent of Bible work for the Gideons of America, was in the city Sunday and addressed the congregations of the Baptist, Methodist and Presbyterian churches. Mr. Orr spoke briefly in the morning at the Presbyterian and Methodist churches and was given the evening at the Baptist church, by the pastor, Rev. O. T. Anderson. His address was intended to give the congregations of the Baptist, Methodist and Presbyterian churches a better understanding of the Gideon Bible in every town to provide Bibles for the traveling salesman and presents his work of placing Bibles before the congregations of what ever town he happens to visit on Sunday. His plan is to tell of the origin, purpose and work of the order of Gideons to the churches of each town and ask the people to provide Bibles for the use of their own city. Mr. Orr is a splendid speaker and holds the attention of his hearers from start to finish by the illustrations of his growing out of his work. The three churches to which he spoke Sunday provided an ample fund to place a Bible in every room of the Higson and Perrine hotels.

Guilty of Assault-The trial of John R. Gourley, of Murtagh, charged with a statutory crime came on trial Monday morning in the district court. The County Attorney Stephen dismissed all charges in the complaint except that of simple assault, to which Gourley entered a plea of guilty. He will be sentenced Saturday.
Sale Next Tuesday-Beginning immediately after 12 o'clock lunch, on Tuesday, February 6, Slatton and Savage will sell twenty-two horses, twenty-seven cows and heifers, a lot of hogs and a large quantity of Dickiey wheat, at their ranch two miles south and three miles east of this city. Col. H. B. Lue will conduct the sale.
A Bigger Auction-Encouraged by the interest shown in his horse sale, Nick Smith will offer for sale at the Farmers' Corral in this city Friday and Saturday, February 9 and 10, one hundred and thirty horses and mules. This is the largest horse sale advertised in the Twin Falls tract for a long time. It will be conducted by Col. H. B. Lue.

Many at Long Beach-During a half hour stay at Long Beach, Cal., last week, I saw no less than thirty-one people from Twin Falls, and was informed that there were a great many more from this city there. Dr. C. J. Coggriff, who returned Friday from a ten days trip to California. "I went to San Francisco, on business," he said. "and when I got through I went down through the southern part of the state. Believe me, I would rather live here than in any place that I saw while away.
Hall for Company Fund-There will be a ball given for the Company D fund on Friday evening, February 3, by C. D. Lyon, owner of the hall. Company D was compelled to remain the hall during its absence at Nogales in order to have quarters to which to return. Owing to the coming of the headquarters of the Second Idaho band to this city, there will be still more expense attached. The tickets will be a dollar apiece and it is believed that everyone can find a dollar for this purpose, even though not given to dancing.

House Will Vote on Special to Two Times.
Special to Two Times.
After a long struggle and to prevent a minority report, the House Committee on yesterday agreed to report a recommendation upon the Bill which will put the bill on its second reading Wednesday. If it has no delay intervenes, on its third reading and vote on passage Thursday. Members of the committee have decided whether to delay the vote on this bill, or let it come at once to final vote. They are confident the measure will be defeated.

Starts Building in Spring-With the purchase yesterday of two lots adjoining his property on Second avenue east, C. E. Lind of the Lind Automobile company now has four lots on which to build his new garage. Work on the weather permits. With the completion of his new garage, Mr. Lind expects to have the largest garage in the city. He has ordered a full line of parts and accessories for the convenience of his patrons.
Eilers to Move-J. Guy Davison, manager of the local branch of the Eilers Music House has just completed arrangements for the leasing of the store building at present occupied by the Eilers Music House and occupation will be begun immediately after Mr. Sinclair moves to his new location on Second avenue. Mr. Davison reports stated that a strictly up-to-date music store will be maintained with the most complete stock in the state. He expects to employ an extra man and woman in the new store. The Twin Falls branch will carry a complete line of pianos, talking machines and records.

High School AG Club Will Present Program.
Addresses and Music Will Comprise the First Program of The New Scholastic Organization.
The first regular meeting of the high school agriculture club, to be held in the high school auditorium on Thursday, February 1, at 8 p. m. Some special numbers are on the program, which ought to be of interest to the public. The program as outlined will include: a play, "The Farmer's Boy," by Ives; a musical, "The High School Orchestra," address on cow testing association by O. T. Koster; music, high school club; a play, "The Farmer's Boy," by Ives; a musical, "The High School Orchestra," address on cow testing association by O. T. Koster; music, high school club; "Purposes of the Club" by Mr. Musser.
Mr. Koster, the official co-writer of the Pioneer Cow Testing association, is to give in his address, a history of the testing associations, and the present status of the work. Since this association has the best records in the world for this year his report should be of interest to all who attend.

Montana Men Prepare to Open Haberdashery.
Arrangements have been completed by A. L. Metz and George F. Leopold, both of Montana, for the opening, within the next two months, of a men's ready-made clothing store in the building now occupied by the Majestic Pharmacy, which will move to Skeels' when the present location is vacated. The store will be a complete haberdashery, and will feature better lines of men's clothing, furnishings and hats and it is their intention to have one of the most up-to-date stores in the city.
Mr. Metz has had eighteen years' experience in this class of business in the city of Helena, where he is now a resident. He is a native of Montana, and has been engaged in the men's clothing business there for the past twenty years.

UNCLE SAM MUST PAY MORE WAGES TO MEN
Returned Member of Company D Says Wages Are Justly Due and Statesman Break Out in Boils.
If the United States government desires to increase its regular army to the number of men which the law provides, there is only one way to do it, and that is the one suggested several times in the past year in THE TIMES-offer wages enough to induce them to join," said a member of Company D to a reporter of this paper yesterday. "Every other effort is being made to get men, but they will not join in large numbers, which raises in pay, while wages on the outside are as good as they are at present," he continued, "and this is something that does not seem to be sufficiently realized by those interested in increasing the size of the regular army.
Another thing, promotions frequently go to those who have recently graduated from high school and have studied sufficiently to pass an examination, while men who have grown old and efficient in the service are not promoted to be commissioned officers.
Asked if this was not in his opinion to some extent due to the persistence of ideas of social cast in the regular army, he replied that in the opinion of some this had something to do with it. He asked what he had to say relative to the rumor about the alleged bad conditions in Boise, he replied "One of the boys said that we had two afflictions in Boise. One of those was the attack of measles, the other the Boise Statesman-of the tw, the Statesman was by far the worst."

Salt Lake Prices High-Miss Lue Kirkman in charge of the ladies cloak and suit department of the Idaho Department store returned Friday afternoon from Salt Lake where she spent several days. She reports that the high prices charged in the mercantile center for all classes of merchandise, and that the high prices asked by Twin Falls merchants were far below those of Salt Lake. In some instances, she said, as high as $15 and $20 were charged for the same shoes, and explained the low local prices by the fact that Twin Falls merchants had foreseen the general upward trend of many of the prices and had prepared themselves by placing in large reserve stocks.

Mr. S. D. Parks, editor and proprietor of the Bulletin, is a welcome caller at the TIMES office last week. He complimented the TIMES heartily upon its new and commendable trend, and said that he was arranging a change of the same character for his own paper in the near future. Mr. Parks confessed to a small interest in Twin Falls, since he came here in 1907 as Principal of the high school and for two years controlled the destiny of the city schools as superintendent. Considering the facts that but seven teachers were employed when Mr. Parks came here, and that there were twenty-eight when he left three years later, and that now, after six more years, the corps of teachers in our public schools numbers sixty-eight, will give some idea of the consistent and persistent growth of our proud little city.

Great Horse and Mule Sale-Last Friday and Saturday a record crowd of buyers, attended the great Nick Smith sale of horses and mules at the Farmers' Corral. There were a great many of these animals, and the sale was the best of the year. As this sale had been liberally advertised in the TIMES, we take pleasure in chronicling its marked success. Friday fifty head of horses were sold at an average price of $190.00; and on Saturday sixty-six were disposed of at an average price only a trifle less. The sale was conducted by Lee & Vanaunder and witnessed by both management and presentation men-as always, the case with these responsible managers. Col. H. B. Lue, who has another sale at the Farmers' Corral, on February 9 and 10, permits himself to be quoted as saying that anyone who thinks the prices paid, as quoted above, were high, will have occasion to change his mind within the next thirty days.

Important Information!
TO THE PEA AND BEAN GROWERS OF THE TWIN FALLS TRACT:
The first thing necessary to grow a good crop of anything is good land; the next is good seed. The Alfred J. Brown Seed Company is putting out seed that was grown on the Twin Falls tract in 1916, and is as near perfect as it is possible for seed to be. Our best seed does not show any signs of Blight or Anthracnose, which is very liable to be manifest in seed grown in the east. Our pea seed is all last year's seed and will throw a much stronger, more vigorous plant than seed that is two or three years old at the time of planting. Our prices are as high in all cases as any other companies, and in some a little higher. We will free of charge all crops delivered to our warehouse at Twin Falls, and give the screenings back to the grower. We own our warehouse and are here at all times to receive crops and pay for them as fast as they can be taken in and milled, which is far better than to have to wait until some one has a car ready to load, or until you have trucked so that there will be enough for a car load, before they can be taken in, as is usually the case with those who do their business that way.
It would be well for farmers to make sure WHEN and WHERE the seed was grown that is offered to them and be sure and get GOOD seed, as the land on the Twin Falls tract is too valuable to plant seed of an inferior quality and take the chance of losing twenty, or thirty per cent, of it of their land. This is a subject that is worthy of careful consideration, no matter what you contemplate planting.
If you have any land that is suitable for peas or beans, and think of putting in either one, come and see us and talk over the seed proposition with one of our men, or write to one and we will give you all the information we can. Whether you contract with us or not, we will gladly give you the benefit of an experience which will be of use to you in making a success of growing either or both of the above crops.
Call Phone 226, or write to Box 407 and we will call on you.

Flood Control Bill Is TABLED BY CONGRESS.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.-Flood control problems in the Mississippi valley and in the Sacramento valley are doomed to go unremoved by this session of congress.
Smothered beneath a mass of appropriation bills and administration measures, the house bill reported favorably to the senate just before the Christmas recess, will go over to the sixty-fifth congress, for lack of time to consider it.
Meantime residents of the valleys can pray for further deliverance from floods until the senators get time to consider the matter.

"WHEN JOHNNY CAME MARCHING HOME, HURRAH!"

I'll just rise me head from the pillow and say, "Oh, hell, will you revolve" and "I'll go to sleep again!"
A few days ago I saw some rhymes written by a Mississippian man about the boys in the border and it struck me as so aptly expressing the natural feeling, under all the circumstances, that, though not exactly apropos, I'm going to read it to you.
I've done my bit on the border, I'm not tired yet, I've had my fill of the border, Of Greasers and strangers, I've met.
I've drunk of the Rio Grande, I've grabbed mosquito in the cursed heat, (The Lord never made that land!) I've seen all there is to the border, I've felt all there is to the border, I've done my time in a son of a b—, I've lost all they didn't steal.
I've done my bit on the border, I've liked and sweat in the heat and wet, I've lain in the dust and gnawed a crust of the border, At Funston's Judgment seat, I've eaten my meals with reptiles, I've quartered with huge grizzlies, In the last where things all are made with stings, From the trees to the rug on the floor, I've carried a pack in the jungle, Till it cut me down to the blood; I've sweated and lay like a thing of clay, In a stifling swamp of mud, I've risen at five in the morning At the sound of the reveille, I've had all day for a new boy's pay and the night would see me free, I've lived the life of a soldier— No chance to "beat it" or shirk— And the life of a soldier, believe me, Is little but damned hard work.
I've eaten the food of a soldier, I've had the beans—no touch of green— But Lord, they were scarce and few! I've followed the flag of my country, In khaki and plain O. D. And up to date, I'm standing straight In a way that is good to see, I've done my share of the border, I've had my fill of the g—, But I wouldn't trade the friends I've made.
For all I've lost in the same, I've had my fill of the border, Of Greasers and border men, I've done my bit and I stand to quit, I've never seen a greaser's face, but I seem to know, when the bugles blow, And I hear the reveille, That my blood will heat and my pulse beat, No matter where I be; And I'll yearn to go with a burning yearn, That only the soldier knows, At the bugle's call—hard, tack and all, To face my Country's foes!

When I spoke to you before, I took it upon myself to pay attention to the vast change in your lives and surroundings, to take place, and to offer a word of caution and advice, as a new year, and conditions, had passed through all those exigencies, you are meeting another change, equally marked, but all to the good. It being done by the ordinary soldiers of your country, which chiefly consists in obedience, both of act and of spirit—you are now to resume your regular duties, and your ordinary work of civil life. "The man behind the gun" has been rightly credited as being the potent factor in victory; but the real soul and spirit of volunteer militancy lies in the "woman behind the man." Men of Company "D," your mothers, sisters, sweethearts, and girlfriends, are your country's service and stand proudly by to see you go. They are well as the entire community, now, most proudly are more joyfully, well.

come your return. Your places in their hearts and lives, and life of the men to whom you stop in and continue to do your duty!
Happily introduced by the chairman, members on behalf of the Company, made a feeling and pertinent response. He thanked the people of Twin Falls and vicinity for the interest shown in the past, and especially for the Company D Association, and the funds it placed at their disposal—only one call upon which, he said, had been necessary. He gave appreciative thanks for the welcoming courtesy now shown; and, noting the burden placed upon a company commander who is known and held to no small degree of responsibility by the parents and friends of his men, he voiced the great pleasure and satisfaction he felt in bringing back to Twin Falls each and every man who left with him, in every way, stronger and better than when they were sent.
The chairman then called upon Lieutenant Kregel, as one who had been delegated to describe, in some few words, the activities and conditions of the United States army generally and of the National Guard's service on the border in particular. Lieutenant Kregel's address was the result of close observation and careful thought and of much interest. He spoke substantially as follows:
Friends and Members of Company D: Public speaking being out of my line, I can only ask your attention to the fact that the following are the publications and some observations made myself on the border.
Once in a while we can agree with Jonathan Daniels in his recent report to Congress. He deplores the tendency of our people to think all is well with the defenses of our country, just because unbroken air routes have been appropriated by Congress to that end. What we read, think and talk about today we forgot tomorrow. In a more defenseless state today than in any other time in our history, we are in a more defenseless state today than in any other time in our history. "Preparedness Wagon." Today people fail to realize the crisis in our national history that we are facing. When we remember that the present parade of last year and the excitement approaching hysteria, which reached a climax with President Wilson's "biggest" navy in his recent speech at Kansas City, it is hard to believe that the country is actually in a more defenseless state today than in any other time in our history. Defense Act which went into effect the first of last July, the regular army was to be increased twelve regiments and four brigades to 1,000,000 men. Today the regular army is short by over 13,000 and 14,000 men and 1500 officers. Thus, although a campaign of recruiting has been pushed to the utmost—offices being opened in every town and village and an attempt made to house canvas being made in many localities—so few recruits have responded to the effort that the cost of every recruit obtained is actually more than his first year's salary would be. The first year's salary July, instead of being increased by ten regiments, the United States army is now short by 13,000 men and about 2000 officers, unless a radical change is experienced. The attempt of Congress to increase the regular army by the failure of the law to pass to enlist. Had the act been passed, it would have increased the army to a million men, the result would be precisely the same as now. We are short by 13,000 men and 1500 officers. We simply cannot hire enough men at the wages now offered.
This new Defense Act also affects the matter of pay and conditions as in other states. Under it we must go into training camp next July with 800 enlisted men, and one year later we will have 1,000 men and 1500 officers. We have 3200 men. Friends, this means that in a time of Peace our citizens must face a draft law. The National Guard is serving in the line, and as it is at present all that we have, we must be loyal to it, and if necessary, to again go to the Mexican border or to the coast of Cuba.
It would have been criminal to have sent our present National Guard to the border, and the first called out. It is impossible to give men a few days or weeks military training and expect them to be able to make good troops on even terms; and when our legislators pretend that the National Guard upon the old basis is or ever can be of greater value than a practicing fraud upon the people.

The recommendations of our General Staff, made and re-made, to Congress, have been and are still asked for. That is one reason that the regular army was so slow in getting started after Villa, as they had no motor transportation. It is an absolute fact that we are in little, if any, better shape to cross the Mexican border today than we were seven months ago. The officers and supplies of all kinds have been and are short and inadequate. If the 6000 troops, quartered with us at Nogales for the last three months had been without Company of other funds upon which to draw, there would have been actual starvation, as the Subsistence Department was never able to get in supplies fast enough. The same condition applies to the Quartermaster's department. There never was a time when the 110,000 National Guardsmen who went to the border were all properly clothed. This government of ours went into the general market and bought cheaply, but shoddy and other articles of any color and description. Ordnance supplies were in the same condition. Thousands of men were equipped with old 38 Colt pistols, the Second Idaho Regiment alone we used four different kinds of ammunition. There was never at any time enough rifle ammunition to have lasted for one day's battle, or shrapnel shell enough to have kept our batteries in action more than two hours; and of these only one shell out of every three was effective.
The loyalty of our National Guardsmen is not to be questioned; but every one who has had the opportunity of his experience. They have discovered that because from a sense of patriotic duty they joined a semi-civilian force, so that our country was partially prepared in the event of war, they are now liable to be taken from their business and families in time of peace and kept in the border area while their less patriotic competitors are taking their places. Only a few employers actively carried out the promise of paying their men while absent, and those who did so, suffered in competition with those who did not. Being mostly young men, the absent Guardsmen naturally had the chance of promotion, not to speak of the one who happens to be in business for himself. It is safe to say that every Guardsman is now impatient with the sense of the unfairness of the whole present system and heartily in favor of universal military training.
Much of our present trouble has been on the same plane as the man who says "I would, have the best army in any in the world, and am rich enough to pay for both," but has no thought of personal service as applied to himself. People who take this idea of preparedness deserve all they get, even the fate army bill under which we are failing to get any soldiers; and they may not be surprised if the proposed increase of national strength falls short in the same way. In fact, Rear Admiral Fiske is now telling us that it will take five years to build up the navy in fighting trim. Large appropriations must wait upon shipyard capacity. The ships will be built, but the men to man them will be labor and facilities to build them, and trained men to handle them when they are afloat.

There have been times in our past history when the country was in a peril but not now. Admiral Cuyler, in command of the Fleet of Coahuila, was captured by an American sugar plantation owned by Mexican rebels. He at once sent word to his leader that this sugar was to be returned within 48 hours or would hang a forfeit. The sugar was returned; but just as noon as the report of this affair reached Washington, Admiral Cuyler was placed on the Reserve List and three months later retired.
Another incident that comes nearer home is the case of Captain Ivers of the Montana National Guard. His company was fired upon while on duty on the border. His instructions were to use his own discretion if fired upon. Hence, he returned the fire and deeming it wise to drive the bandits out of the underbrush, crossed the river to the Mexican side and drove them out without losing a man. Three days later he was removed from his command and placed on detached service. When the facts are considered, we do not wonder that such men as General Funston say, "that sense of us are getting so old that we are afraid of losing our jobs."
A few days ago we were startled by the report that a United States soldier had been found on the Mexican side of the river with his throat cut and that the bandits who held the body asked $100 for its return. This soldier being reported to the War Department and the ransom having been reduced to $50, the Department actually directed that it be paid for the return of the body of an American soldier to his own soil. Somewhere in our past history, an American declared that "we had millions of dollars in defense, but not a cent for tribute."
We can never accomplish anything, either for ourselves, or for others, by mere words used to cover up our slowness or fear of efforts or of danger. We must resolutely face the fact that the true ideal of service for ourselves and for others can only be achieved when with forethought and vision we have fitted our souls and our bodies for labor and for danger. We all love peace, but we must be ready to face war if only through war it is possible to achieve the peace of righteousness as we understand it. It is to argue in our souls the old American spirit, the spirit of Washington and Lincoln, of Andrew Jackson and of Henry Clay, Cleveland and Roosevelt, of the soldiers of Grant and the soldiers of Lee. We must be, in fact, one people, with one country, and one purpose, to preserve ourselves and our children, and to make matters not in what way we worship our Creator? It matters not where we ourselves were born, or from what land our fathers or forefathers came, we must all be Americans and nothing but Americans!
At the conclusion of Lieutenant

Kregel's remarks, Lieutenant Leighton was introduced. The Lieutenant had a vivid memory of a certain supply of canned corned beef (it was "salt horse" and without a can, 50 years ago) carried by the Captain and himself for an emergency that never came. He said that his present chief interest was in the men of Company D, many of whom would doubtless soon be looking for a job, and he appealed to the business men to see that they did not look in vain. This appeal was extended and most effectually enforced by Professor Blue, in his closing remarks.
By request, the members of the Company present were then lined up in front of the stage and received the greetings of these present. This was the most happy event of the evening. The large audience, almost to a woman and a man, went down the line with a cordial greeting and hand-shake for each soldier boy. It was a fitting conclusion of the fortuitous attempt of the community to show its interest and pride in the men of Company D, and its pleasure in their safe homecoming.

The senate has had a busy time too. Among the bills introduced are: bills to create Yellowstone and Clark counties from Fremont; proposed constitutional amendment to make land board non-partisan; memorial protesting against 640-acre homestead law; resolution seeking investigation of $100,000 Panama-American exposition fund; creating fire insurance rate bureau; annexing part of Blaine to the state divided along congressional lines; The administration bill giving the governor power to dismiss sheriffs and prosecuting attorneys who are negligent in enforcing prohibition laws, was defeated in the house Wednesday by a vote divided along party lines. Enough of the Democrats voting with the Republicans to kill the measure. Of the Twin Falls delegation Hansen and Sims supported the bill. Barker voted against it. The measure, lost by one vote. A similar bill has been drafted and was introduced Saturday which the Democrats claim they will pass across. A Republican measure giving the governor authority to appoint special prosecutors to enforce the law was taken from the floor by committee on printing Thursday and killed without ceremony, the vote dividing on strictly party lines.
An act to bar alien from acquiring title to Idaho lands, aimed primarily at the Japanese owners of this state, was passed Thursday by unanimous action. Under its terms no alien can own land in the state, and such aliens as do now own land, must dispose of it within seven years.

Under suspension of the rules, an emergency existing, the supreme court budget was passed Friday; and under suspension of the rules also, the King Hill relief appropriation was allowed Saturday. A bill providing for the education of the inmates of the state penitentiary and another giving health authorities the opportunity to prevent the distribution of milk, etc., from neighborhoods where contagious diseases prevail, were also passed at the Saturday session.
In the senate the Butte bill permitting county printing to go outside of the county or state, was killed. The Camas county division bill was passed and the Butte county bill recommended for passage. The senate also passed a bill giving school districts pro-rating officers.

Our Word For It--- AN UNUSUAL DISPLAY of Wash Goods. This is without question the most unusual display of wash fabrics we have ever shown in this store. Ladies who have the least idea of a new dress any time this spring or summer cannot afford to miss this wonderful offering of new fabrics. Included are all the best shades of the most popular colors and weaves. A personal visit to this department now will prove to you how amply ready we are to serve you. ROBINSONS
No use talking folks, the roads have been bad and the walls have tumbled, but the going to this store has been good, and what we tell you is that the sales of the store so far this month, have equalled the sales of the months of January and February of last year combined—that is, we have sold as much up to this time this month as we sold for the entire months of January and February last year—you can see that the going is good. (And by the way this does not include our wholesale business here and in other points in Idaho and Utah, which amounts to no small sum.) So keep a coming.
Besides those who live in Twin Falls, I want to thank you good folks from Kimberly, Hansen, Murtang, Filer, Buhl, Hollister, Rogerson, Castleford, Eden, Jerome and the other towns that have been in the store or sent in, and helped to bring about these splendid results.
We have more of those good warm wool winter caps at 50 and 75 cents.
Men's Silk Neck Ties, light and dark colors in the regular 45 and 50 cents kind for 25 cents.
Just a very few of those boys' sweaters, Norfolk style, straps, belt and two-pocket. Our price has been $2.50 and they will be worth $3.00 next fall. You can buy them here, now, for $1.50 each.
Children's good warm winter coats, good styles, good looking and well made at half off retail prices.
Just a few, but all good styles in Big Girls', Misses' and Women's Winter Coats at half off too.
