"IF IT'S FROM JENKINS IT'S GOOD"

FARM LOANS WILL IMPROVE CONDITIONS

Believed That Measure Will Reduce Tenantry, and Result in Conspicuous Soil Fertility.

(By Frank H. Wilson)

WASHINGTON—Since the farmers of the United States is the food producers for a good share of the world, the granting of cheaper credit to the farmer for the purpose of enlarging his opportunities and, cheapening his cost of production is likely to have an important part in the solution of the great cost of living problem.

The records of the United States census office show a constantly increasing trend toward the cities. Each year shows that there are more persons to be fed, whereas the acreage that has been producing food and the number of hands to cultivate these acres have not increased in the same proportion.

It is patent therefore that to meet this increasing demand for food more farms must be established to provide homes for more producers and the land now under cultivation must be farmed more carefully and with more and better equipment.

Provision of cheap capital for land purchase and farm development will mean at least a partial realization of these ideals.

If the farm loan act will reduce the percentage of tenantry in the United States it will have accomplished a great deal toward putting American agriculture on a more substantial basis.

More than half of the farms of the United States are now in the hands of tenants. The tenant is a transient farmer and the temporary nature of his operations prevents him from operating at maximum capacity. Short leases make it out of the question for him to be a large meat producer. The tenant is usually a grain farmer, and in many sections of the country a single cropper. He is engaged in hauling the fertility of his landlord's soil to market.

The farm owner conserves the fertility of his soil by marketing his crop through his live stock and returning the fertility to the land. A nation of land owners means a nation with a constantly increasing capacity to produce food for its people.

A reduction of farm tenantry and a substitution of a class of land owners means improved social conditions in the country and a more permanent form of country life.

Since the farm loan act provides how the borrowed money shall be spent and limits its use to purposes that make farms more productive, it is bound to have an elevating influence on the standard of agriculture in the United States.

Every borrower under the Farm loan act makes it a part of his contract that he will use the money either to reduce existing indebtedness or in some way that will contribute to greater production on the same number of acres.

Since the formation of these small groups of farms is the foundation upon which the farm loan system is developed, curtailing farm production will foster the spirit of co-operation among farmers. When farmers put their mortgages together for the sake of cheaper money it is reasonable to presume that they will form the habit of co-operation in other problems of common interest.

The present farm loan indebtedness of the United States is probably approximately four billion dollars, and the average interest rate now charged is between 3 1/2 and 5 per cent. If the farm loan act would reduce the interest rate of the United States by 4 per cent it would mean a financial saving to the farmers of between one hundred and fifty and two hundred million dollars per year, and this estimate of saving takes no account of the fact that high interest rates have reduced the volume of farm loan indebtedness far below what it will be when a lower rate is established.

High interest rates, and unfavorable terms of farm mortgages have been a serious handicap to farm development. Curtailing farm production has taxed the consumer as well as the producer because the limited production of food gave an increased advantage to the food speculator. The farm loan act is, in a measure, revolutionary. It stands for equality of opportunity. It says that the aggressive farmer who gains new lands to enlarge the sphere of production is entitled to the same opportunities as the man who operates in a territory already developed. It puts the public interest above the interest of any individual. It takes individual profit out of the business of financing food production.

REPLIES TO "STOCKHOLDER AT END OF THE DITCH"

Hansen, Idaho, Jan. 25.

In the issue of the Times for January 15 is an open letter to the stockholders of the Twin Falls Canal company relative to connecting parts of the canals and laterals of our irrigation system. In reading this letter, I was struck by two serious defects in the argument of the "stockholder at the end of the ditch." First, he assumes that the question of connection is one to be decided by debate; to be settled by the approval or the disapproval of the stockholders. I am not familiar with conditions along the high line and the low line canals, but I do know considerable about conditions along the main canal, having lived directly under the main ditch for about eight years. From my personal observation I can assure this stockholder that the matter of connection or otherwise safeguarding the main canal is not an academic one to be settled by debate. While the stockholders are debating, Nature is working day and night to tear down and remove the banks. In the spring, when the frost is coming out and the banks are soft and crumbly, the heavy waves formed by the high winds cut into and undermine them, and the erosion began by the waves in the spring is carried on by the terrific current of full head of water during the summer. The present system of fighting this erosion by rip-rapping with sagebrush is a makeshift, and like most makeshifts is unsatisfactory and expensive. If there were absolutely no question of the saving of water involved, it would still be necessary to cement the main canal, or else adopt some more permanent and satisfactory system of rip-rapping in order to save the banks from destruction.

My second defect in his argument is that he is granted that, if we should decide to cement the canals and laterals for the purpose of saving water, the water thus saved must be used only upon lands for which water rights have already been sold. He makes the unwarranted assumption, that, the lands at present irrigated on this tract are entitled to all of the water taken out at Millner dam. This, however, is not the case. The lands at present irrigated are entitled to five-sixths of the water originally filed on for this tract; that is, to 2,600 of the original 3,000 cubic second feet. The original filing of 3,000 cubic second feet was for the irrigation of 240,000 acres of land, whereas we have, as shown by the latest annual report, sold shares of water for about 200,000 acres, leaving 40,000 shares unsold and held as treasury stock. But while the stock has remained in the treasury the water it represents has not been kept out of the canal. We have always used our full appropriation of 3,000 cubic second feet for watering lands entitled to but 2,600 cubic feet, the additional 400 feet being used to make up a shortage caused by leaks, seepage, evaporation, and the like. The question is not how to divide this 400 feet of water among the present landowners, assuming it could be saved by cementing or otherwise improving the canal system, but how some one is permitted to retain this 400 feet of unappropriated water. How long can we continue to use water for 240,000 acres of land on only 200,000 acres. In view of the letter recently written to our board of directors by the Twin Falls Land & Water company, it may be a more pressing and important question than some of our stockholders realize.

Suppose that outside parties file an application for 400 cubic second feet of water, claiming that we have not complied with the law and made beneficial use thereof, and that their filing, after the long and expensive litigation which would surely result, is finally allowed by the courts. If, as has been roughly estimated, we now lose 500 cubic second feet through seepage and other forms of waste, and if our original filing were cut down by 500 cubic second feet, it would mean that we would have but 2,000 cubic feet actually available for irrigation by the time the water reached the main body of the tract, or enough, on the present basis of one cubic second foot for each eighty acre tract, for 160,000 acres. In that case we would have to spend hundreds of thousands to cement all of our canal system so as to save the last possible drop of the 500 feet of water now wasted, and even then we might have to reduce our present allowance of five-sixths of an inch per acre, or perhaps substitute a system of rotation for our present continuous flow.

On the other hand, let us suppose that we have available tracts of good land on which a part or all of this unappropriated water can be used. If we can save this water and apply it to lands now unirrigated, the owners of lands under present canal system will not be hurt thereby, since it makes no difference whether the water is taken out of the canal by means of tanks (as at present) or by means of a pumping plant. On the contrary, they would be benefited, since all of the water now wasted is gone for good, whereas a considerable part of the water pumped onto higher lands will drain back into the main canal and thus increase its flow. If it can be shown further that the construction work can be done at a profit sufficient to pay the cost of cementing the worst parts of the main canal, (thereby avoiding an issue of bonds or else a heavy assessment on our stock), that the installation of a pumping plant at the "drop" will do away with the dangerous condition now existing there; that it will give us electricity for heat, light and power, that it will add thousands of acres of high priced lands to our tax list and greatly increase our population; then it seems to me we ought all of us to be in favor of the proposition. At any rate, come to the meeting on February 20 and hear through the matter out.

J. H. BARNES.

FOOTBALL TAUGHT HIM THE JUDICIAL POISE

Detroit Judge Says He learned Principles of Law as Quarter Back in Michigan University.

(United Press.)
DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 30.—"The things I learned on the football field are the ones that fitted me for life. The fact that I went to college for two reasons—to seek up knowledge and to learn football—was the greatest point in my preparatory life."

Tim's Willie Weston, former quarterback at Michigan university, and twice selected on the mythical all-American eleven, has the thing said in a village near Detroit, just as Willie may more. He's Police Justice William M. Weston and he puts it out.

One of the ambitions of Judge Weston's life was to rid himself of the name "Willie." He tried it in a few ways, but he did his best to shake it but it was no avail. Finally he got himself elected judge and they had to quit calling him "Willie."

Weston declared that if every youth were given the chance he had to learn football—to get the spirit of fair competition in sports drilled into his system—there would be little need for police courts.

"I know what it has taught me," he said, "I believe it would do as much for any other man. When I see poor, weak, spineless underlings come before me for one crime or another, the way that he could have seen service under Yost or Keene Fitzpatrick hits me right between the eyes. "Football and parole are two things that I have learned from my gridiron training. I know that when ever we were beaten we always were cheered by the thought that next year we would have another chance. I don't believe there's a man alive, who, if given the opportunity to put everything behind him would not be in the thought of another chance. That's what the parole is for, and I'm a firm believer in it."

"Studying football in colleges may be the subject of a good many jokes, but it builds strength of character and strength of body. With these assets a man can be a good student. When he gets out into the world the traits football has put there will make a useful, honorable citizen of him."

ASSESSMENTS RAISED ON SOME PROPERTY

Sheep and Hogs to Pay—Consentation Made To Auto Owners In Method of Making Levy.

Taxes in general will be assessed on the same basis as formerly for the year, according to George W. Wilcox, who returned Friday from Boise where he attended the gathering of the men who levy taxes.

Sheep have been tentatively raised from $4 to $5, and fine sheep from $6 to $10. Hogs have also been raised somewhat. Although not specifically stated it was understood that there would be a tendency shown to raise the assessment of merchandise. An arrangement with reference to auto taxes was agreed upon, whereby those coming into possession of an auto between January 1 and August 1 shall pay for a whole year; those buying a machine between August 1 and November 1 will pay only for a quarter. This was done to abolish the old system of charging taxes for a whole year to those purchasing in the tenth or eleventh month. It was recommended that a plate be placed on both sides of cars to facilitate recognition.

Governor Alexander suggested raising taxes in certain cities, asserting however, that in Twin Falls, he believed them high enough. The board of equalization will go over the recommendations and determine whether to adopt them finally or not.

The assessors of the state met in the board room at the state house in the call of the governor for the purpose of getting a more uniform assessment with the state board of equalization. This is the first such conference in four years.

Governor Alexander addressed the conference on the subject of the meeting. He asked that conditions in various counties be looked into and that in towns where business is not flourishing the rate be reduced. Taxation on their market value for sheep, cattle, hogs and horses was urged. Banks, the governor said, should be assessed at the full par value of their stock, surplus and undivided profits. He declared that there was no occasion for raising the valuation of farm lands, but that they should be better classified.

There were 29 assessors present and six absent. Those in attendance are: William A. Kincaid, Ada; William A. Woodland, Adams; R. O. Graham, Hanneke; James Dunn, Bear Lake; C. Fred Freyhold, Blaine; J. P. Malt, Bonanza; Bingham; John E. Schlad, Blaine; James D. McCall, Boise; J. J. Crowley, Bonnellville; H. E. Russell, Canyon; O. E. Pickett, Coeur d'Alene; H. H. ## THE UNITED STATES AND THE WORLD WAR.

H. G. Wells, an English author of note, made a recent contribution to the Saturday Evening Post entitled "How People Think About the War." After summarizing the contradictory "forecasting" in various quarters, he pays special attention to the past and present attitude of the United States and the apparent trend of thought there, as well as the feeling in France and England with regard to the same. The latter, by no means complimentary, and not in all cases kindly, he rather discounts by the following pregnant reflections:

"And I will further confess that when Viscount Grey answered the intimations of President Wilson and ex-President Taft of an American initiative to found a World League for Peace, by asking whether America was prepared to back that idea with force, he spoke the doubts of all thoughtful European men. No one but an American deeply versed in the idiosyncrasies of the American population can answer that question, or tell us how far the delusion of world isolation, which has prevailed in America for several generations, has been dispelled. But if the answer to Lord Grey is 'Yes,' then I think history will emerge with a complete justification of the obstinate maintenance of neutrality by America.

"Every country is a mixture of many strands. There is a Basic America; there is a Dull America; there is an Ideal and Heroic America. And I am convinced that, at present, Europe underrates and misjudges the possibilities of the latter."

FIVE-THOUSAND DAYLIGHT SAVERS IN MEETING

Convention Gathers Today in Effort to Conserve Extra Hour of Day Light in Twenty-Four.

(United Press)

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Five thousand delegates to the National Daylight Saving convention came here from all over the country today to see if they can't get Father Time to shoulder his scythe and walk back sixty minutes the first of May.

It may be news to a lot of folks to know that in Cleveland and Dayton, Ohio, this daylight saving scheme has been in force for two years. Everybody knows it was used throughout Europe and in Canada last year with good results.

The Old Man With The Scythe will have plenty of evidence presented to convince him. Through President Mark of this city will introduce each of the speakers, among whom will be Representative William P. Borah of Missouri, whose bill making daylight saving a national law, is now pending in congress.

Then President Marks will introduce representatives of practically every civic organization in this country and delegates from England, Scotland, Russia, Poland, Holland and of Canada.

Robert Garland of Pittsburgh will speak for the Chamber of Commerce; ex-Governor John K. Tener for the health experts; day light to fight the white plague; John B. Harlan and others also will speak.

Columbia University's astronomer, Harold Jacoby, will speak scientifically to the venerable gentleman and J. S. Whitelaw, a member of Parliament from London will argue with him. George Ade of the National Lawn Tennis association will speak on the added time for recreation afforded by the plan. S. P. Hale of the Standard Time Committee of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce will tell how they like the idea in Ohio. All the speakers will stress the point that this city will save the country $100,000,000 in light and power expenses during the summer months. This is expected to knock the old man off his seat.

MAYOR GILL OF SEATTLE INDICTED BY GRANO JURY

Charged With Violation of United States Law Forbidding Importation of Liquor Into Dry State.

SEATTLE.—The long expected indictments against Mayor C. H. Gill, Chief of Police Charles L. Beckingham and former Sheriff Robert F. Hodges, charging conspiracy to violate the interstate commerce and liquor laws, and acceptance of bribes were returned by the United States grand jury Saturday and were placed in the hands of the district marshals for the arrest of these defendants, and ten others who were indicted.

As soon as they learned of the indictments Gill, Beckingham and Hodges, they fled to the federal building. Gill was arrested and $3500 bail each. Ex-Sheriff Hodges is said to be arranging a bond. The Billingsley's and Plow and Fruster, transformed, are already under bond for earlier indictments and new security was not required from them.

Mayor Gill, who had looked for the indictment, issued a statement early in January, in which he defied his enemies and declared he would prove his innocence in any charge made against him. Mayor Gill's attack on the office of United States District Attorney Clay Allen of Seattle, led to the appointment of United States District Attorney Clarence L. Beames of Portland, as special prosecutor, after Attorney General Gregory had said that the cases did not require special prosecution.

Leaders of the prohibition movement here said Sunday that in all probability their organization would offer financial aid for the defense of Gill, who was indicted by the federal grand jury on the charge of conspiring to violate the interstate commerce law by bringing liquor into this state from California.

Laurence Colman, one of Gill's bondsmen, who is a member of the Seattle prohibition committee, said that he was in the last campaign to urge enforcement of the dry law, said that no formal motion had yet been taken by the committee looking toward supporting the mayor in his defense but that he regarded the mayor as having stood for the committee's principles and that in a few days the matter would be considered by the members.

Gill announced that he and Chief of Police Beckingham would interpose no technical objections to the indictments and that they would demand speedy trials.

TWIN FALLS LOSSES THIRD GAME TO BUHL

West-Enders Spring Surprise on Local Men and Romp Away With Game—Score 38 to 27.

The strangeness of the Buhl floor, a good competing team, and an "off night" for Twin Falls, accounts for the loss of the third basketball game of the season to Buhl by the score of 27 to 38. The outcome of the game was a great surprise to the Twin Falls rooters who admit that Buhl was there with the goods.

The first half was a walk away for Buhl. Ruggs, their star forward, made eight field goals within that time, while Buhl made three and a half. Of the Twin Falls quintet Boone made four field goals and Neuman made two. Buhl threw one free throw and Neuman was credited with three. The score for the first half was 23-15.

In the second half Twin Falls showed improvement, but was unable to keep up with Buhl's ten point lead. The score for the second half, was 13-12; also in Buhl's favor, making the total final score 38-27.

The line-up for Twin Falls is: Boone, forward; Neuman, forward; Glasow, center; McCracken, guard; DeWitt, guard; Strong, forward; Scott, guard. Buhl line-up: Hall, forward; Rugg, forward; Baymiller, center; Mills, guard; Woodward, guard; Edwards, forward.

The next game is with Rupert on the home floor tomorrow night. The boys expect to find the Rupert team the hardest to conquer of any encountered this season. The succeeding game is to be with Buhl on the home floor.

BUHL TO HAVE A PUBLIC LIBRARY SOON

Movement Started to Form Organization to Select Books and Get Community Cooperation.

A movement for a library in Buhl was started this week when several men decided to present a plan before the Parent-Teacher association which would result in the opening of a library this spring, says the Buhl Herald.

The library boosters will ask the association's sanction of their plan before starting the organization. The men interested in the movement will make a canvass of the town and ask 150 people to give a book for each of three or five years. This will start the library with 150 volumes. The books will be loaned out at five cents a volume and, according to library statistics, each book will earn from twenty-five to thirty-five cents a year. This money will be spent for reference and other books. The second year the number of books in the library will be more than doubled. In addition to the 150 books which will be added each year it is expected many library patrons will donate books and in two or three years Buhl will have a fairly large number of books for circulation. When the interest is fully developed and the plan is carried into application will be made for a new Carnegie library.

The location for the library will be determined as soon as it is assured the plan will succeed. It has been suggested the books be placed in the Women's rest room on Main street. This location is central and easily accessible, and the cost of maintenance would be small. Volunteers would be called for to help find the book and get the system under way.

A feature of the proposed library will be a magazine and newspaper section. Boise, Twin Falls and Buhl newspapers will be received regularly and magazines will be on the reading table. These will be solicited from town people and publishers.

It is probable the library plan will be brought before the Parent-Teacher association at the association's next meeting. In the meantime, the library boosters are perfecting the plan and feeling out the sentiment toward it. If the proposition is not feasible in Buhl, other plans will be asked for, and considered. The time is at hand for the library movement to be carried forward, according to the people most interested in it, and they say that enough interest is being shown to assure a library.

Hollister News

Quite a number of Hollister citizens were over to Twin Falls Friday night to attend the big horse sale.

The biggest snow of the season fell Sunday night, being about 7 or 8 inches.

R. D. McElride of Twin Falls will be among us this season as he has rented Jess Saltee's farm and will take possession on or about Jan. 29. Mr. Pennington, who came from Oklahoma last year and settled on the Salmon tract, has rented and will farm Charlie Robinson's farm just south of the townsite.

An auto trailer turned turtle in the streets of Hollister one night last week but no one was hurt. Jess Saltee is going to settle in Twin Falls for a while till he finds a final destination.

Dave Kennison has been buying some more horses lately, and will probably go back to general contracting again in the spring.

The Hollister water works has been frozen for about a week during the cold weather.

John Nelson went to Twin Falls Monday where he will help Theodore Cheney get his things gathered up and will move Wednesday to the Salmon tract for the coming season.

Mr. Morte has been building a house on Mr. Beatty's ranch east of town.

They were the twenty-two house, while the immense rotaries worked to open a way. Nine other trains came after the one on which he was riding, all were double headed, so that there were twenty-eight engines all told. Many of these engines were snowed out of the road from cold. ## SOCIETY NOTES

"LISTEN TO MY TALE OF WOE"
Last Sunday, while dressed in my finer and more elaborate attire, I received a rough deal from an amateur which plastered my garments with smirch.
Twice on lower Shoshone I do swear and deplore. While crossing the bridge on my way in a moment of time I was hit by a car. I was covered with filth and dismay.
There was no place to flee. At the driver's wheel, I stood. And it filled him with cruel delight. So he threw on the gas. As he swiftly did pass And the way the mud flew was a fright.
I could see the "book" grin While committing this sin And my anger most righteously burned.
I looked for a gun And a murder well-done, As homeward I grievously turned.

This will show how a man's Good intentions and plans Can be easily lost in the lurch. For I'd sure rather shoot Than get killed and get hurt. Then I own the best pen in the lurch.

The churchmen all preach "And religiously teach" It is blow an one cheek we receive. Turn the other at once For it is doing such stunts. To our Heavenly homes we achieve.

But the truth I must tell If it sends me to jail I would rather get square with that guy. Then to wear a Saint's crown And a money-worth gown. Or to win a fine home in the sky.

With genuine pride I could take that gink's hide And nail it with joy on my fence— And I'd bust every wheel In his automobile. Regardless of time or expense.
—K. C. JONES.

GENERAL ADVERTISING

Good portraits have a permanent value. They are not for a day or for a week; they are for a life-time.

Some things we purchase to fill only a temporary need; for instance, when we buy a sack of flour, we eat it; when we buy clothing, we expect to wear it out, but all of us have photographs we have kept and prized for years.

Treasures of the generations, likenesses of loved ones, how important that such enduring things should be well made. Surely, only the best is good enough in photography.

The Bisbee Studio

Prizes were won by Mrs. Robbins and Mrs. MacVicar. The ten double portraits were most attractive with its centerpiece of white hydrangeas in a wicker basket tied with yellow tulle. Tea was served by Mrs. Allen and Mrs. Hamilton. The two ladies who assisted in serving were Miss Japanese kidon and yellow chrysanthemums as hair ornaments.

The D. C. Watson company is the successor to the firm of Watson and Hammond, as the result of the purchase last week by D. C. Watson of his partner's interest in the old company. No change in location was made and the new company will remain at 214 Shoshone street east.
