SCHOOLS OPEN IN THIS CITY YESTERDAY

BANNER REGISTRATION IN THE HIGH SCHOOL AT BEGINNING OF THE YEAR

Many Still Out Because of Busy Season

Many Improvements Made During Summer—Athletics to be Active—Football Outlook for Season Is Encouraging.

Monday was devoted to the registration and enrollment of the students for the coming term.

Owing to the shortage of farm labor and the unusual rush in harvesting, many country students were unable to register at the beginning of school...

This year's enrollment is another record-breaker; a total of 417 having been registered.

On account of the crowded conditions of the grade schools, pupils of the eighth grade have been given rooms in the high school building.

The school building has been thoroughly cleaned through the summer. The new bookcases, given by the class of 1917, have been installed in the library.

Although the First Idaho Field hospital claims to have "almost the entire Twin Falls" high school football team," yesterday's registration list shows that a great part of last year's varsity men are back, and some promising new material has entered school.

Three coaches are ready to work with the boys so Twin Falls will very probably have another championship team.

A new athletic field is being prepared near the Lincoln school and the football work will commence this week.

Cuts Off The West End Proposition—Committee To Investigate Alleged Crooked Deals in Lands.

The state land board eliminated the Carey act of Friday when it ordered cancelled the contract between the state and the West End Twin Falls irrigation company which for some years has been endeavoring to finance the Carey act.

On the question of the number of extensions of time to place the project on its feet, unable to raise the money, the promoters could not go ahead with the Carey act.

As the investigating committee the governor appointed Nathan Hicks of Rexburg, Mark Austin of Rexburg and A. B. Stevens of Pocatello.

A majority of the committee are Republicans, and the Carey act was passed by a vote of one Thomas E. Domain that he was denied an opportunity to bid on the land.

COLD STORAGE HOARDING IS EFFECTUALLY STOPPED

By KENNETH McKELLAR
Senator from Tennessee.
(Written exclusively for the International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—Practically over nearly six years, I have been urging government regulation of articles held in cold storage, believing that such legislation will bring about lower prices for such food articles as are ordinarily preserved in this manner.
The provisions of my bill are substantially included in Section 6 of the Food bill recently passed. Section 6 of that bill provides as follows:
"That any person who willfully hoards any necessities shall, upon conviction thereof be fined not exceeding $5,000 or be imprisoned for not more than two years, or both. Necessaries shall be deemed to be hoarded within the meaning of this act when either (a) held, contracted for or arranged for by any person in a quantity in excess of his reasonable requirement for use or consumption by himself and dependents for a reasonable time; (b) held, contracted for or arranged for by any manufacturer, wholesaler, retailer or other dealer in a quantity in excess of the reasonable requirements of his business for use or sale by him for a reasonable time, or reasonably required to furnish necessities produced in surplus quantities seasonally throughout the period of scant or no production; or (c) withheld, whether by possession or under any contract or arrangement from the market by any person for the purpose of unreasonably increasing or diminishing the price."

This furnishes to the Food Controller, Mr. Hoover, full, ample and complete authority to regulate under such rules and regulations, as may be determined by him, the keeping of food products in cold storage to enhance the price.
It is a complete realization of everything that I have been fighting for on this subject for the past five years. Not only has the Food Controller the right to regulate under ample powers, but the department of Justice has also a duty to perform, inasmuch as the act directly prohibits hoarding and fixes a fine for $5,000.00 and imprisonment or both for hoarding.
If foodstuffs are held hereafter in cold storage for the purpose of enhancing the price thereof, it will be because the Food Controller and the department of Justice fail to do their duty and not because of any fault of the law.
In a recent article Admiral Samuel McGowan gives a graphic account of cold storage speculators undertaking to unload on the navy an immense "surplus" amount of poultry that had been accumulated by it. Why did the packers accumulate a "surplus" of poultry? There can be but one answer and that answer is a desire to make in this great crisis an unconscionable profit.
The most an egg packer, by means of cold storage, can keep foodstuffs virtually indefinitely, and in that way can control the price to suit themselves, putting little foodstuffs on the market or much foodstuffs on the market, as they deem advisable to their own interests.
Senator Doherty's figures given in the senate, comparing the business of Armour & Company and Swift & Company for the year 1913 with the business of these same two companies for the year 1916, tells the whole story. In 1913 Armour & Company made net profits of $6,028,597. In 1916 they made net profits of $2,100,000 and in addition declared a stock dividend of $40,000,000. In other words, this firm made marvellous profits in 1913, and then made $100,000,000 more in 1916—a difference of $94,000,000. Swift & Company made in 1913 $1,250,000 and in 1916 $20,455,000, and declared a stock dividend of $72,000,000.
Other food packers did relatively as well. Can anyone doubt who is reaping the benefits of these high prices? Can anyone doubt who is fixing these high prices? They are enabled to manipulate these prices very largely by means of cold storage. Whenever Mr. Hoover does his duty in reference to these packers, and I believe he will do his duty, prices of food products will go down. At the same time, it might be well to remind the department of Justice that under this law they do not have to wait on Mr. Hoover. The law has been in effect a fortnight or more. The people are waiting for results, and they are entitled to have them. I am hopeful that effective action will not be delayed.

MISSISSIPPI DELTA IS FLOODING BONANZA
(International News Service)
GREENWOOD, Miss., Sept. 8.—Land in the Mississippi Delta has doubled in value within the last two or three years. A few years ago land could be bought for from $10 to $15 an acre. Some of the same land two years ago could be bought for $50 an acre. Today it is selling at $100 an acre. In corn and cotton some of the delta land is producing single crops that bring returns of from $150 to $200 an acre each season. Plantations of a thousand acres have been known to more than pay for themselves in one year.

1500 SOLDIERS' WIVES WILL OFFER TO FIGHT
(International News Service)
SALT LAKE CITY, Sept. 8.—Not to be outvoted by the Russian battalion of women, Texas and Oklahoma wives of soldiers in the regular, national army and National Guard units, are organizing a regiment of about twelve hundred and offering to follow the army to France and help in the world war in any way the war department sees fit even to entering the trenches. While offering to shoulder rifles and stand by the guns, the women of the southwest believe there is other valuable service they can render the American army with the expeditionary forces, such as guard duty, patrol work, signal corps service, thereby releasing men for the actual battle line. Selection of soldiers in the regiment is being made with care for fitness and an effort to avoid those with dependents.
HEARS TROOPS ARE OFF SHE KNITS ALL NIGHT
(International News Service)
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 8.—When the news of the call of troops to France reached here a few days ago frequent repetitions distorted it until the story in certain sections of the city was that all the boys in olive drab were to leave at once.
A patriotic elderly woman was stirred by the news. A pair of warm woolen socks were not complete. They were her bit for the boys.
The next morning she rushed to the institutional church, breathless and tired-eyed from a night without sleep.
"I'm not too late, am I?" she asked. "All night long I worked to get them finished before the boys left today. I've done in the bunch of my own that I know of—but somewhere I have a boy who has quit writing home. Maybe he has enlisted some where and he might even wear these socks some day."
At the church were members of the draft board. The explained her mistake. Back to the street she went. "I'll finish my morning's work," she said.

KENTUCKIANS TO PROTECT DRAFTED MEN'S FARMS
(International News Service)
HICKMAN, Ky., Sept. 8.—S. L. Dodd, one of the wealthiest men of West Kentucky, has started a movement to save the homes of men drafted into the army. He has announced that any mortgage in force in the state against a man drafted into the army will be automatically extended from the date of enlistment to the date of discharge.
Mr. Dodd said that unless this practice is generally followed thousands of mortgages on farms and on homes will be foreclosed while the farmers are at the front. He has also announced that he will make good for all those men employed by him who enlist or are drafted by the government and the wages he was paying them at the time of enlistment.

DR. WHITE AND TIMES REPORTER HAVE HOT COLLOQUY OVER ETHICS OF THE JOURNALISTIC PROFESSION

Refusal to Agree to Publish a Still Unwritten Communication Without First Determining Whether Libelous or Not Leads to Animated Discussion as to Duties and Responsibilities of Newspapermen—Final Parting Friendly.

"Say, we are going to tear things wide open on account of the action of the commission today," said President White of the Farm Bureau Friday night, to James D. Whelan of the Times staff, "and I want to know whether you will publish anything that I may write about it if I sign my name to it?"

"We will publish it if it is not libelous," replied the reporter.

"There," said Dr. White, "I see that I cannot get before the people except through the columns of the Farm Bureau News."

"Oh, you can," replied the reporter; "you may say anything that is not libelous over your own signature and we will be glad to publish it. I personally pass on all ordinary matter, especially in the Sunday Times of which I am editor; but Colonel Longley as general manager has the final word in case of doubt, and I should not O. K. anything that might result in making the Times liable for libel without consulting him. I cannot assure you without seeing it—that anything you might see fit to write would be published, I would not do that if I had that final say so. No intelligent, self-respecting newspaper man would, in my opinion, turn his columns open to anyone on earth with the assurance that anything written by that person would be published."

"I see that the newspapers are all afraid to tackle this thing, or stand with the farmers when the country and city are lined up against each other," declared President White.

"You see nothing of the sort, although you may think you do," retorted the reporter impatiently, "you know that you can get a fair hearing in The Times."

"You said that you would not publish my article," retorted President White.

"I said nothing of the sort, you know it very well," said the reporter angrily, "and you are deliberately perverting what I said for the purpose of creating a false issue. You asked me a question in a way which you knew would necessarily bring a conditional answer which you are waiting to suit your own purpose."

"I asked you the question to see what you would say," flashed back President White.

"To be sure you did," said the reporter, "and when you got the answer, you deliberately misconstrued it to suit the purpose you had in mind, which was to show that the press was owned by influences you claimed to be fighting."

"Well," said President White, "there isn't anything to get hot about. I want to get before the people, but I shall use the Farm Bureau News for that purpose. I do not want to have my article blue penciled. I do not see anything to get hot about. Of course, I do not especially enjoy being called a liar when I am one of two gentlemen discussing a question of public interest."

"No," answered the reporter, "and I do not enjoy intimating that anyone is a liar. But, I will say that anyone who says or implies that the Times is owned or controlled by any element or that free access for all legitimate communications cannot be secured in its columns is—well, a preparator, at least. You have been treated fairly by The Times and you know that very well. Only the other day we published a long article by you."

"And then attacked me about it," said President White.

"We did what?"

"Well you criticized part of it in your editorial columns," said the Farm Bureau head.

"To be sure," said the reporter, "we expressed our opinion editorially. Is it your contention that a newspaper is bound to turn over unlimited space to you to publish what you like, agreeing to publish all of it before hand, and then be restrained from expressing an opinion on it? Speaking of myself personally, I wrote the Times news stories on the Republican speakers last fall. I wrote many articles, some signed and some editorial, criticizing those speakers, in some instances severely. Yet several Republican candidates as well as other Republicans complimented me for it, and on some occasions complimented me personally, because while their doctrines were criticized, a fair and full statement of them was published so that people could judge whether the criticisms were fair or not. We contend that is the proper spirit. Do you insist that those opposed to you must hold their peace? Moreover you have frequently complimented The Times on its fairness."

"Yes," said President White, "and I meant it. Only the other night at the Parish hall I mentioned that and complimented you. When sugar beet men charged in Salt Lake City that all the press was owned by them and that they could not break into it, I said that we had one paper in Twin Falls where we could get a hearing. I admit that we have been absolutely fair in the past, and have for that reason favored you."

"Yes, but we also gave a great amount of space to you when you, and only the Bootleggers' association and before you had any favors," replied the reporter, "yet after we had done all this, you cast doubt on the good faith of the paper and myself in your own office, by saying that when I learned the influences that were opposed to you, I would not publish your interview. Well, I did write it and the paper did publish it, didn't it?"

"Yes, and the intimation I made was disproven by the publication," said President White.

"Yes, but it should never have been made, as it was an unwarranted reflection both on the paper and on me," said the reporter. "In spite of this and of further evidence of good faith on our part, you repeat the same thing more forcibly tonight, because I insisted otherwise and neither you nor the Times can either repeat or construe it. Any lawyer will bear me out when I say that the paper is equally liable with the writer for a libelous publication."

"Then we are muzzled," said President White.

"No, you are not muzzled unless you desire to write libelous or untruthful matter," replied the newspaper man, "and the law is a good one for the protection of the good name of honest people. Suppose a man named Richard Roe, without properly should write something at once civilly and criminally libelous and publish it in the Times over his own signature, unjustly charging Mr. Blank, a merchant, with being a thief and then quietly slip away to avoid arrest. Suppose I see the name of Mr. Blank. If we are not liable where is his redress? As a matter of fact, we are, as we should be, responsible both criminally and not O. K. anything that might result in making the Times liable for libel without consulting him. I cannot assure you without seeing it—that anything you might see fit to write would be published, I would not do that if I had that final say so. Ladies of G. A. R.—The Ladies of the G. A. R. will meet with Mrs. Edna Branhorn on next Saturday afternoon. The afternoon will be spent in making for the Red Cross. Every member is urged to be present.

Big Closing Sale—J. E. McCulloch who lives on the state highway two and a half miles east of Hanson, having decided to quit the ranch, offers for sale eleven head of horses, three cows and 360 hogs, besides a lot of farm implements and machinery and household goods. The sale will begin at 11 o'clock next Monday morning and will be conducted by Col. H. D. Lue. There will be a free lunch at noon.

Mr. H. A. Vincent and Wife, of this city, have been enjoying a visit from the father of the latter, Captain C. F. Hansoline, of Ripon, Wisconsin. Captain Hansoline is a veteran of the civil war, having been a member of one of Illinois' most noted military organizations—the Chicago Mercantile Battery, which was raised in 1861 and largely manned by the Board of Trade in the city named. Although past eighty years of age and once reported "killed in action," the Captain seems both hale and hearty.

New Library Books—The following juvenile books have been added to the Twin Falls Public Library: "Nolle's Silver Mine," Jackson; "Napoleon Bonaparte," Sprague; "Little Black Mingo," Bannerman; "When I Was Little," Kelley; "Lodrig, the Little Lake Dweller," Wiley; "Children of the Cliff," Wiley; "Tree Dwellers," Dopp; "Sunny-sulky Book," Rippey; "Fairly Tales," Anderson; "Household Tales," Grim; "More Than Conquerors," Gilbert; "Story of King Arthur," Pyle; "Frank in the Woods," Castlemon; "Frank in the Mountains," Castlemon; "Bophomore Co-ed," Lee; "Tutor Co-ed," Lee; "Senior Co-ed," Lee; "Boy Scout," Cruesen; "Burrhead," "Fighting a Fire," Hill; "Carriers of Danger and Daring," Moffett; "Abbie Ann," Martis.

Mrs. Stephan Better—After a long illness following the birth of her child, Mrs. F. L. Stephan is now rapidly recovering.

Marines in Baugh Building—The headquarters of the United States marine corps have been moved from the quarters behind the First National bank to rooms upstairs in the Baugh building.

Enter Pleas Yesterday—S. L. Sanford yesterday entered a plea of not guilty to the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses and Jack King entered a similar plea to the charge of horse stealing.

Jarbridge Road Re-Advised—The county commissioners decided yesterday to re-advertise the Jarbridge road proposition owing to the fact that only one bid was received for the work. The call for bids is published in this issue, the bids to be opened October 4.

Making Many Changes—Many changes in the interior of the Hotel Perrine in the way of painting and decorating are being made by the new proprietor, John E. White. New writing tables and desks will be installed in the inside hall and other changes made.

Yarn About Red Cross—A large quantity of the yarn, eagerly awaited by those interested in Red Cross activities, arrived in this city yesterday. Those who wish to knit for the soldier boys can obtain a supply by applying to Mrs. W. F. Edwards at the Red Cross sewing rooms in the high school. All the yarn asked for has not yet arrived, but enough to make a good start is on hand.

Home Visit—The "Union," published at Vermont, Illinois, very pleasantly notices a recent visit to his old home town—the first during 34 years—of Senator S. P. Atherton of this county. While there visiting a resident brother and sister, Mr. Atherton attended a reunion of the old-time pupils and teachers of the Pleasant Dale school, and was also one of the speakers at a mass meeting held in the park to speed the young soldiers departing for service; and by a rather curious coincidence it was held on the fifty-fifth anniversary of a similar meeting upon the departure of Congressman F and B. 34th Illinois Infantry (in which were many of Mr. Atherton's relatives, including his father) for the civil war.

OLGA PETROVA WEDNESDAY ONLY IN "THE WAITING SOUL"

In plays dealing with the great problems of life Mme. Petrova is at her best. She shines to unusual advantage in "The Waiting Soul," a play that will appeal to every woman.

In this powerful production Petrova portrays a woman who permitted love to rise above good judgment. She atones for her mistake and marries a good man. Then her past life rises up to threaten her. A tiny visitor is expected in the family—a "waiting

"The Waiting Soul" in Mme. Petrova's last picture with the Metro company. Like most of the other stars, she has joined Paramount and her future productions will be shown in due time at the Idaho theater.

Intuencing the mind of the "waiting soul" or shall she tell the truth and face the scorn of conventionality? She tells the truth. It is a play that only Petrova could depict with the proper shades of dramatic power. "The Waiting Soul" combines natural beauty with a powerful drama of the mind. It might be called "a photoplay of conscience." It affords Mme. Petrova an opportunity to display strong emotional ability, and to wear beautiful gowns.

Suffering From Gunshot—O. J. Ross of Jarbridge is in a local hospital suffering from a gunshot wound said to have been inflicted as a result of a dispute which is said to have arisen over dice by an alleged gambler called "Slim." Ross is recovering and will be out in a few days. "Slim" is in jail at Jarbridge.

Important to Advertisers—The next issue of the SUNDAY TIMES will be printed on Saturday evening and in time for the mails and will consist of an unusual number of pages, including the comics, filled with local and general matter of special interest. A large edition will be printed and will go to all parts of the tract, by special delivery if necessary. All business men who desire to reach the public will do well to bear this announcement in mind when the advertising solicitor for the TIMES calls on them.

Denied The Necessaries—Jella Hood, because the complainant, Stella Hood, had found it necessary, according to some of the testimony, to spend $100 on a piano recently, the stock-judged jury of more men yesterday returned a verdict of not guilty in the case against Frank Hood, charged with failure to support his wife. Although the prosecuting attorney is said to have quoted the famous saying of James G. Blaine, "The luxury of yesterday is the necessity of today," the "good men and true" refused to be moved and acquitted the defendant.

The Idaho State Fair, which is to be held at Boise, September 24 to 29, inclusive, submits to the public an extended list of premiums that are claimed to total $25,000 in cash and $25,000 in "roughs." The stock departments—horses, cattle, sheep and swine—are especially well cared for in respect to prizes; and the grounds and buildings are to be open to receive them and all other exhibits on Saturday, September 22. The boys' and girls' clubs of all kinds, are also given recognition, as well as the mothers. Boise Day, September 26, will be distinguished by a barbecue given by the Boise Commercial club, to all "Boise wives"—and that does seem to be intended to shut out the men folk.

Business Removals—During the present week two well known business institutions will change location. Mr. D. C. Watson will remove his office and store room for Electric Light and Power from the Johnson Auto company's building to that now occupied by the Gooding Motor company, on Second street, where he will not only have room for the exhibition of his wonderfully practical system under full operation but also for storage of the car line of Defco plants which he is expecting in the near future. The room vacated by Mr. Watson will at once be occupied by the Irigoin Land company, which, under the management of Messrs. George F. Sprague and T. M. Robertson, has been domiciled in the First National Bank building so long that memory hardly runs to the contrary.

The Times has received a handsomely gotten up "Catalogue and Bulletin of Information" of the Idaho State Normal School at Albion. From it we learn that there were 519 students in attendance in the last school year with a training school enrollment of 260; that the current school year commences on Tuesday, September 13, with the annual reception for new students and new members of the faculty to be held on Saturday, September 22; that the first term ends December 7, 1917; the second term on March 8, 1918; and that the third term and school year will close on May 29, 1918; that a six-week summer term will be held from July 1 to July 17, 1918; and that the institution is provided with a large and capable faculty and offers what appears to be a long and profitable curriculum to the would-be pedagogues.

A Breadless Picnic—Indicative of the absolute necessity for a sufficient amount of substantial rations Napoleon is credited with saying that "An army travels only on its belly." Equally true is it differently worded testimony to similar effect could doubtless have been obtained from any one of the small army of our public school teachers who were picnicking at the Blue Lakes, about four or five o'clock last Saturday afternoon. For it was about the time indicated that the preparation for serving a grand spread for the fifty or more jolly participants developed the fact that, while the commissary department contained an amazing assortment of vegetables, preserves, cheese and pickles, there was not a single mouthful of breadstuff of any kind or character included there. Investigation and use of the phone showed the farther fact that some eighteen dozen rolls and sundry loaves of bread had been ordered, the night before, from a local bakery, BETSY ROSS designed the American flag, but George M. Cohan made it famous. Born on the fourth day of July, it is easy to understand George M. Cohan's great patriotism.

It will not be George M. Cohan's aim to improve the "breath of a nation" as evidenced by many of the big chewing gum concerns of late, but it is his idea to give the public a gum that will not only meet with instantaneous approval, but will be in a great demand as a result of one of the most enormous advertising campaigns ever displayed.

In order to get the best results Mr. Cohan took over an immense chewing gum factory several months ago and personally assumed the management, but for one week only, that is, just long enough to become a chewing gum manufacturer for the benefit of the motion picture camera in connection with his first Artcraft photoplay, "Broadway Jones."

Chewing Gum Magnate

When produced at the George M. Cohan theater, on Broadway some three years ago, "Broadway Jones" immediately proved itself the biggest popular success in which Mr. Cohan ever appeared, as well as the hit of the entire Broadway season.

a certain letter written by State Leader H. W. Hochbaum to the county board, following a conversation with Deputy County Auditor I. E. Finney. Mr. Finney complains to the state leader that the methods of collecting funds from the county of such as in work hardships on the assessor's office, as the amounts collected had not been shown monthly and accounted his going back over the books. Finally it was suggested that the county board should have the amounts, O. K. the bills and show the available balance of funds each month, so that it would necessitate no further work on the part of the assessor, wrote a letter suggesting this. President White took it to mean that this was the authorized way. It was not quite clear, but he thought it was ever brought specifically to the attention of the board. President White claimed that bills had been paid for two months after their endorsement and he supposed the arrangement final. He asserted that the bills were contracted with the understanding that they should be paid by the county. Deputy Auditor Finney declared that recently the farm bureau managers had failed to comply with some features of the arrangement so as to save the extra work. There seems to have been no specific endorsement of the plan by the county commissioners.

President White said that it would go willing to see that the county was reimbursed for amounts alleged to have been used in violation of law, as soon as the money on the wool and other pools would come in. He said that the bureau had saved large sums on certain purchases and he could see why merchants would think it improper to pay money in advance to support the bureau, whose such purchases were in competition with their business. He was willing to have the bureau pay for the money required for compliance for all bills not contracted in conformity with the interpretation put on the law by the commissioners, but as the bureau had proceeded under what he understood to be the understanding of everybody, he thought that the bills should be allowed for the present. He complained of the money withdrawal of the county agent from the bureau.

Replying specifically to the question as to whether the commission-
