German Agents Are Charged With Crime

Burning of Docks on Baltimore Waterfront Asserted to Be Due To Incendiaries.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 31.—The full force of the department of justice today threw behind an investigation launched here into the fire that swept the water front destroying two piers and a British steamship with an estimated loss of $500,000.

Federal agents are convinced that German agents are responsible. The fire broke out in five places simultaneously a few seconds after several points were seen to go up at different points on the pier.

Some men were seen fleeing from the scene. Guards fired at them, but so far no known name of their whereabouts.

The flames spread to pier ten which was loaded with wheat but which work by firemen saved that structure today. It was damaged but not seriously.

J. M. Davis operating vice president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, who has been in the city since the blaze was "without a doubt an incendiary origin."

Positive evidence that the fire was of incendiary origin was given by the Baltimore & Ohio guards and the firemen stationed at the pier.

The chief watchman of the pier stated that five minutes before the entire pier was in flames he had made a complete round of the pier and had found everything to be in usual shape.

While the police were pushing their way through the flames, another blaze broke out in the Baltimore & Ohio shops at Riverside Park, about a mile from the scene of the first fire.

OUR NEXT LIBERTY LOAN We are wondering if the American people really think about that which they talk.

Our next Liberty Loan will soon be forth coming, and we wonder if folks will still be unprepared. It is the duty of every American citizen, if it is within his power to do so, to lay him in store, that when the next call comes, he may be enabled to meet the demand.

Knowing as we do that there must inevitably come a Liberty Loan and that the nation expects us to subscribe, why not conduct our private business in such a manner, that when that call comes, we will be ready for it and glad to meet it.

that call comes, we will be ready for it and glad to meet it. The average man is really enthusiastic and proud about the Liberty Loan proposition, but during the interval between loans he becomes so engrossed in his own private investments that he forgets to prepare for a demand that will in a short time confront him.

We, therefore, consider it a good plan for every patriotic individual to lay by in store, to play ahead, to be ready when "our next loan" is called for. And something we feel that when we get to reading of the valor of our men at the front, we will soon see common news to us all, that we will commonly have a constant reminder before us of our duty, and will not so readily forget.

LIVESTOCK CONSERVATION THOUGHTFULLY DISCUSSED

Even though one may naturally incline to livestock production, relying to a great extent on the sale of grain to turn into animal flesh grains and forages at the prices that prevail today, livestock conservation is one of the present-day perplexing problems of the nation.

The farmers of the east and middle west are in a state of uncertainty as to this is true to an even greater degree in the west. Here we have had less experience with some kinds of livestock, especially hogs.

What is the result then of all the influences mentioned above? These results are not what many of us are expected. The livestock man is planning to reduce and hold over a comparatively small herd. In some districts where the nation's army and navy are being sent to market, even if this. Those who are without considerable experience and are timid let livestock go.

The whole movement, therefore, becomes an unhealthy one and one that will throw out of balance, the farming, and one which the nation can hardly sell that will be badly needed for work in the spring. Thousands of cattle are going to market that are far from marketable.

There has never been a better time than the present to turn entirely to the purebred male and to get rid of scrub and grade stallions, bulls, heifers and rams. Grade and scrub sires are all too common. It is estimated by an official of the Minnesota Stallion Registration Board that the Minnesota farmers annually lose seven hundred thousand dollars by the use of grade stallions. The grade and scrub sires of all kinds result in loss and are to be avoided in every time when the time, when the best possible returns that livestock herds have been increasing and that the present liberal marketing is only the process of releasing a surplus. The most accurate figures available from the census indicate the reverse. Horses have shown a slight increase in numbers in recent years but this increase is far from commensurate with the increase in population. The same is true of dairy cattle. The beef cattle supply of America has fallen from fifty-one million head in 1897 to a little more than forty million in 1915; a decrease of one fifth in eight years. While the American farm and range flocks of sheep have increased from twenty-two million head in 1897 to fifty-one million head in 1910, this number has fallen to forty-eight million for 1917. The per capita supply of sheep shows a comparative steady demand for and popularity of mutton, has fallen from .93 head per capita in 1880 to less than one-half sheep per capita today.

The census figures and the statistical experts have not been able to keep pace with sensational changes in the swine industry. In portions of the United States, especially in the west, there is only now and then a few pigs where there were large herds three years ago. The Bureau of statistics estimates the loss of sixty per cent of our swine during the past year. One large irrigation district in Idaho has had one-third of the swine today as compared with the year ago. Thousands of men have quit the business entirely due, in a large part, to the reasons cited above. Reports from the great west are indicating a similar movement but one less radical in its extent and influence on the industry as a whole.

All of this indicates a livestock problem of serious proportion, especially in the west. It does not necessarily imply disaster but certainly does mean serious concern. Coupled with the American situation is the livestock status of Continental Europe and Great Britain. Any one at all familiar with events on the continent must know that the livestock herds are fast disappearing. First, because of shortage of horses and the use of cattle, sheep and swine, second, because of shortage of fodder necessitates the use of livestock as an alternative to their starvation and requisition of a resource to the nations at war. One livestock man of experience and high standing asserts that the decrease of livestock in Europe is as follows: Sheep, fifty-five million; cattle, thirty-eight million; and swine thirty-two million. In other words, to supply the European world would take approximately one-third of the swine and practically all the beef cattle and sheep of America.

It is our purpose not to dwell at length on the problem and its serious aspect but to first show that the problem is with us and is serious and then to suggest ways of meeting the improvement. The first has been comparatively easy. The latter duty is now in hand.

There will come a day soon, therefore, when the only alternative to reduce prices and to distribute livestock without her herds and flocks than the northern part of the state can exist without snowfall and rain or its southern valleys and plains without the streams of irrigating water that make fresh and productive the otherwise arid and useless land. Not only is livestock farming necessary to permanent fertility and long continued success in agriculture as a general proposition, but examples are found everywhere that show that where the biggest crops, the greatest success and the largest profits are associated with the wide use of livestock herds including the sale of farm products in many cases entirely in animal form.

There may be sold this year, as in former years, a certain surplus from our flocks and herds. In choosing this livestock for sale there should be an effort made to dispose of the uniformly thrifty animals of excellent individuality. There are many who, due to the feed situation, may need to dispose of the surplus of their herds. Here again the elimination should be of the scrub herds, though less in numbers, are of a higher standard than before. In the case of hogs the retention of the slaughter may be made to result in the loss of unprofitable cows and the herd may yet yield as much net profit as before.

It is no more true that the state can do no wrong than when such an affirmation is made regarding a king. Kings, as everyone knows, have committed frequent and grievous wrongs, both against individuals and communities.

And states, even under our own beneficent form of government, have too often, either through unjust laws or unfair administrators, inflicted redoubtable wrongs both to persons and property.

In another column herewith is given what purports to be the plan to be adopted by the state land board in deciding who among the Salmon river settlers shall stay upon the land with a quantity of sufficient water, and who shall be advised that no longer can water be furnished them nor their land title perfected. We see no reason for criticism, either as to the reduction of the area to be irrigated in conformity to the water supply, or as to the method of selection for retention that is to be adopted. But what of the unfortunate victims of the situation that could only be ascertained in this summary manner? Is there to be no help, no recourse for them? They find themselves in this position absolutely through no fault of theirs. When they undertook to reclaim the land and make themselves homes they understood, and had every reason to believe that the State of Idaho stood behind and practically guaranteed the project in which they were investing their money, and what is much more, their years of struggle and hard work. Are they now to conclude they are abandoned without a ray of hope or a hint of assistance from any quarter? Right is right and wrong is no one. Surely these men should be reimbursed from some source for their cash investments, including improvements, and not be left losers beyond their time and labor; and if the state cannot impose the burden of this duty elsewhere, should it not assume it by legislation, if there is no other way?

MORE POWER TO ITALY

The struggle on the plains of Italy today focuses attention to a phase of the war not so closely considered in the past by Americans among the causes of the conflict on the western front. The fact is that the further away from us that battles are fought and outrages committed, the less attention do we give to them. The cry of Belgium rightfully arrests our attention. The pleading of Poland receives considerable, though less marked attention. Efforts to arouse strong resentment over the worse treatment accorded Serbians and Armenians have proven less successful. Hence, the relative indifference shown in regard to the fight in Italy is simply a manifestation of a very human characteristic.

Regardless of the merits of the quarrel between the Austrians and Italians, which runs back to the days of the Guelphs and Ghibellines, all Americans must fervently hope that the Italians will crush the Teutons at this time when any triumph of the central powers must tend to prolong the war and cost precious American lives. The cycle-long quarrel is of little interest now, but a feeling based on a misapprehension of recent Italian attitude has caused a dampening of the sympathy which Italy might have received from Americans in the past. Before the great war broke out Italy was united in a triple alliance with Germany and Austria. When the war started she refused to attack France and later on entered the war on the side of the entente. German and Austrian agents claimed that this was the height of perfidy.

As a matter of fact Italy was bound only to enter the war should it prove to be a defensive one. The war was aggressive on the part of the central powers and Italy violated no agreement by refusing to enter. Moreover, the two central powers laid their plans without consulting Italy, so that had she entered she would simply have fallen into a skillfully laid snare. On the other hand, having refused to join in aggressive war, had she refrained from entering on the other side, the victorious central powers, after defeating Russia and France, would have turned on her.

The claims for territory are complicated, and are not of paramount importance to Americans, but it is well to keep in mind that the country which is now invaded by the same military oligarchy which we are fighting, was guilty of no violation of pledges in refusing to back the central powers, and had a valid reason for joining the allies whether other motives entered into the act or not.

THE NEW WAR TAXES ARE IN EFFECT TODAY

charged under each policy (except indemnity and surety bonds, which are taxable under another title of the Bill)

Including renewals, but not including re-insurance policies.

Policies issued by any corporation excepted from the income tax are exempt from this tax.

The person, partnership or association issuing such policies of insurance is required to make monthly returns and monthly payments to the government.

Save your pennies today and have them ready when you go to the ticket window of the corner movie. For every ten cents or fraction thereof you spend on twelve movies you must be ready to turn over to the government one cent. Of course, the movie proprietor may save you the inconvenience of handling pennies by raising the admission price a nickel, as many other persons' selling goods affected by the war tax have already done.

Here is the way the admission tax and the club dues levies will fall upon the public:

One cent on each ten cents or fraction of the amount paid for admission to any place including admission by season ticket or subscription, to be paid by the person paying for such admission, except in the case of children, under twelve, where the tax is levied free of charge. Persons admitted free pay the tax on the basis of the charge made to other persons of the same class, except employees, municipal officers on official business and children under twelve. Where the charge for admission to a cabaret or similar entertainment is wholly or in part included in the price paid for refreshment, service or merchandise, the amount paid is to be computed under regulations to be prescribed by the treasury.

In the case of persons having the permanent use of boxes or seats, or a lease thereon, the tax is equivalent to 10 per cent of the amount for which a similar box or seat is sold for the performance or exhibition at which the box or seat is used or reserved by or for the lessee or holder.

Those taxes are not to be imposed in the case of a place where the maximum charge for admission is five cents or for shows, rides or other amusements in outdoor general amusement parks where the admission is ten cents or in the case of shows, rides or other amusements (the maximum charge for admission to which is ten cents) within outdoor general amusement parks, or in the case of admissions to such parks. Where the proceeds inure exclusively to the benefit of religious, educational or charitable societies or organizations, and in the case of admissions to agricultural fairs, no tax shall be levied, provided one of the proceeds are distributed to stockholders or members of the association.

A tax of 10 per cent is imposed on the amount paid as dues or membership fees, including initiation fees, to any social, athletic or sporting club where such dues or fees are in excess of $12 per year, such tax to be paid by the person paying the dues or fees.

No Post Office Change - Congressman Addison T. Smith, Postmaster M. A. Giroux and Attorney George H. Hott, took up the matter of cancelling the contract for the Harport garage for a postoffice and it is practically agreed that this shall be done if the building will be needed for storage this winter in addition to the other garages volunteered for this purpose. Part of the building is already under way for storage.

Butler Concert Interests - The story of the forthcoming concert by Charles Butler and William Colburn which will be held in the Methodist church a week from tonight, has aroused the greatest interest throughout the county since it was announced in the TIMES. Many have decided that they have been surprised that Mr. Butler did not favor the public with more entertainments of this sort, and that he seemed inclined to hide his light, or not get it "all lit up as frequently as he should, considering the manner in which his vocal accomplishments are appreciated by the people of Twin Falls county.

"War Times" - We of the United States, and especially no doubt, of the rural districts of the far west, have been slow to appreciate the fact that the "shining times of peace" are no longer existent; that our country is fully engaged in war - in the greatest, most bloody and desperate war known to the annals of history. The sad fact is that we have not really appreciated such a condition, nor the gravity of it, at all. But it begins to come home to us when we are advised that postage on letters will hereafter cost three cents instead of two; that a mileage ticket on a railway must have a war tax payment added before we can use it; and that even your evening's entertainment at the "movie" must cost you an additional cent of war tax upon each ten cents of transaction there paid for admission. But these things, while striking and significant, are only the gentle wafts of the quiet, land-locked shore so far as affording any measure of the possibilities of the existing ocean of stormy conflict. We shrink from speaking, or even thinking about it; but when the time comes that we are notified that our own sons and brothers write from the dismal trench and of the desperate charge; when the land ship that went down before the cannon's mouth or by torpedo assassination carried with it hundreds of American youths; when long lists of killed and wounded in action shall be full of the names of those nearest and dearest to us - the good, the brave, the true; then, no longer sheltered, will we begin to feel and know and bow before the grim-laden waves of this tempest of death as our English and French cousins have so long been doing.

The dwelling was occupied by a boy of twelve and his mother and two other children, among whom quite a number, including Miss Jessie Warrington, lost very largely of their personal belongings either by fire or water.

"DOUBLE CROSSED" STARRING PAULINE FREDERICK AT IDAHO

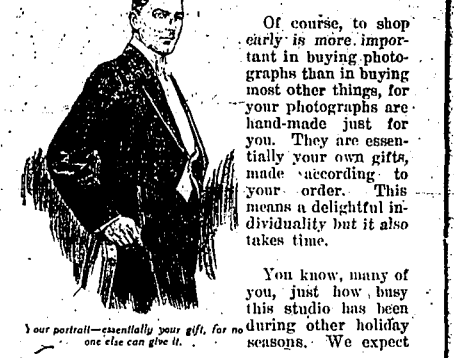

FEATURE ON THE IDAHO PROGRAM FOR THURSDAY, FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

"DOUBLE-CROSSED" a Paramount picture starring Pauline Frederick, which is coming to the Idaho theater, is a modern play of love and intrigue, with a tremendous feminine appeal. It is the story of a young society matron who discovers that her husband, with whom she is very much in love and whom she has always set upon a pedestal, has, in his youth, committed a serious slip. Miss Frederick's emotional acting in the scene where she overhears a detective trying to blackmail her husband with a signed confession, is superb and up to her highest standards. Two vaudeville numbers are included in the same program. Admission charge of twenty-five cents includes the three cent war tax.

Only 54 days till Christmas

And that means it is time to plan for Christmas gifts, certainly time if you do not like rush and hurry. Then, too, there is the resolution you made last year at holiday time - the "Shop early" slogan that you adopted.

Your portrait - essentially your gift, for no one else can give it.

Of course, to shop early is more important in buying photographs than in buying most other things, for your photographs are hand-made just for you. They are essentially your own gifts, made according to your order. This means a delightful individuality but it also takes time. You know, many of you, just how busy this studio has been during other holiday seasons. We expect to be more busy than ever this year for PROSPERITY is truly spelled in capital letters in the Twin Falls country. Already we have finished hundreds of portraits - many hundreds of them - that were to be laid away for Christmas giving. Indeed most of our business in September and October was strictly holiday work. It is not a day too soon to arrange for Christmas portraits; right now is the time.

Our Boys Must Have American Smokes

"Plenty of smokes when they want 'em" is one good way to keep a regiment of soldiers happy and contented—at least so far as they can be really happy in the trenches. They're hankering a hard game, no matter how you figure it.

But tobacco is the big thing the boys are asking for in their letters home. There is plenty of French tobacco to be had—the kinky kind that has a peppery disposition—but a real American fellow can't seem to get used to it. He wants the good old brands he had at home.

Twenty-five cents out of your pocket will provide a fat little kit full of twice the amount of smokes you actually pay for. That's the arrangement we've made for you. And inside each kit you buy, is packed a return postal card, stamped and addressed to you, so that the man receiving it may write you a message of thanks and a word or two of news from the front. These cards will be great souvenirs to keep after the great war.

UNITED ITALY IS OPPOSED TO AUSTRIANS

SOCIALISTS DECLARE THAT THEY WILL STAND BY THE GOVERNMENT

Consolidation Is Under Way

All Europe Awaits Terrific Struggle About to Begin Along the Tagliamento River on the Historic Peninsula.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The partial break on the Italian front achieved by the enormous enemy forces will not menace the rear lines of the advanced Italian positions according to General Corai, the military critic of the Rome Tribune.

the consolidation of the mass resistance along one line, while the enemy mass will diminish as it advances.

The Tribune says the battle is designing itself from operation to operation on the Italian front and it may be the decisive encounter for the future. The Italian Nation says that for the third time Italy is called upon to save Europe.

The Socialist group in the Italian parliament, following the big events of the past few days, is prepared to declare a truce to all political struggles and party lines in order to strengthen the government in the present crisis.

The Catholic newspaper Corriere d'Italia after pointing out the political aim of the Austro-German offensive, which was made in the hope of causing internal dissensions in Italy, says: "The political aim of Mackensen's attack against Italy is producing absolutely a contrary political effect to that hoped for by the central powers. In fact the political viewpoint brings about internal resistance instead of disorganizing it. Today we are all united in one thought—the mother country is in danger."

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The eyes of the world are turned today on the Venetian plains in Italy, centering on the Tagliamento river where there is a very real reason to believe the greatest battle in the history of the war soon will be fought.

The Teutonic army, already in possession of Udine, today continued its march toward the river. Another German movement is on the north, where British forces have almost reached the upper Tagliamento.

Along the Tagliamento river, and not far from Udine, General Cadorna's forces are slowly retiring. Burning their bridges behind them, exorcising a rear guard check to the enemy and fording the swollen stream, wherever possible, the retreat is slow but certain.

In the meantime British and French assistance is being hurried to the scene of the impending conflict. Everywhere military authorities say the political effect of the enemy drive in Italy is rapidly becoming apparent. The political viewpoint brings about the determination to stand firm and save Italy.

Welded to this determination is the belief in military circles that the Teuton drive will act as a boomerang to the enemy. It is now generally believed that the big spring drive which would otherwise be late on account of waiting for the full strength of the American troops, will be carried out this winter regardless of weather conditions.

Downs U-boat— Sunk by Submarine

American Gunners Destroyed Submarine But Another Undersea Boat Sank Ship.

(I. N. S. Leased Wire)
AN ATLANTIC PORT, Oct. 31.—The American steamer LeWia Luckenbach sank a German submarine to the bottom three hours before the vessel itself was sunk by another U-boat, survivors reacting here today declare.

Richard Watkins, the first officer of the torpedo vessel, acted as spokesman for the survivors, of whom there were twenty-six.

"We were first attacked about five o'clock on the afternoon of October 11," he said. "The submarine came to the surface not 100 feet in front of us. The target was too good to miss and the first shot from our bow gun struck squarely between the U-boat's two periscopes. She sank like a plummet."

"Triumphant, we steamed toward the French coast. Suddenly about 3 o'clock that night there was a loud explosion and the whole ship trembled from stem to stern. It did not take long to realize we had been torpedoed. The Luckenbach settled at once. Two boats got away safely. A third with Capt. Watkins, the first mate and one of the naval gunners smashed against the side of the ship and the three were drowned. We were picked up by a Norwegian ship."

"DOUBLE CROSSED" THE GREATEST STORY EVER WRITTEN OF POLITICS, LOVE AND INTRIGUE

A STORY IN WHICH A LITTLE WOMAN PUTS ONE OVER ON THE BEST BRAINS IN THE UNDER-WORLD

Who Is Your Neighbor?

A theme that will have a universal appeal is found in "Double Crossed," the Paramount picture starring Pauline Frederick at the Idaho on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

This is the fact that not one of us really knows all about the persons nearest to us in daily life. For instance, in "Double Crossed" a devoted young wife learns for the first time of a youthful slip on the part of her husband whom she adored and whom she had unconsciously placed upon a pedestal too high for any man.

What happened when she found out his crime and how a new and deeper understanding was brought about between them, is pictured by Miss Frederick with all the wonderful artistry of which she is capable.

Two entertaining numbers will be found on the vaudeville program.

TWIN FALLS BANK & TRUST COMPANY

THE MAKING OF A MARINE STORY OF SOLDIER OF THE SEAS

By Richard Boeckel
(Written for the I. N. S.)

A MARINE CAMPMENT, Nov. 1. Newly enlisted marines are learning many arts aside from the actual use of rifle and bayonet and the operation of machine guns. One that is of greatest importance, and in which they are drilled continually, is that of trench building. It is called "trench building" advisedly, for in the new trenches there is fully as much work at building as at digging.

"Will any of the things the men learn here be of use in peace time, after the war is over?" a marine corps officer was asked.

A few will, but most won't, except as it builds their character. There is not a little character-building going on as the men are building their trenches."

The trenches themselves are marvels of workmanship. Even at this late day, when it would be supposed military men know all that is to be known about trench building, improvements in construction methods constantly are being introduced.

To one who has had a turn in the trenches, their depth and the first surprise. First the trenches are dug so deep that the helmet of the tallest man is at least two feet below the surface line. At the front of the trench are two steps. It is on these the men stand when fighting is in progress. With one foot on the first and the other on the second step, the average man can stare over the top of the trench to take aim at the enemy. Except when the men are preparing to go "over the top," there is little firing from the trenches by infantrymen. Men with periscopes constantly are on watch. When one of the enemy is seen exposing himself above the trench the word is given to an infantry sharpshooter, who pops his head above the trench and takes quick aim and fires.

The action must be quick, for there is a man with a periscope over in the enemy trench, ready to give the word to another sharpshooter the instant the first sharpshooter's head appears. It was the fear of these sharpshooters early in the war that led the French and British armies to adopt the steel helmets for their infantrymen.

The popular conception that trenches are built in straight lines is altogether wrong. They zig-zag at the most outlandish angles. This method of construction is used to prevent one trench building from being in the exact positions. The communicating trenches that lead back from the first line cannot be traversed without a guide. In a deserted trench one might wander a full day without finding his way out.

All trenches have low platforms built on the bottom to allow free flow for the water, which always gathers there. Frequently these platforms are too low to hold the men above the water and they fight in it up to their heads.

To keep the trenches from caving in under the impact of shells on either side or because of the natural crumbling of the earth, each side is lined with a sort of lathing of fagots. Until very recently this supporting work was done inside the trench itself. Now large frames are built and the fagots woven in. Then the frame is covered like a theatrical flat into the trench and fastened to the side. Hundreds of soldiers were buried alive in the trenches before this system of supporting the sides of the trenches was evolved.

U. S. Officials Com- mend Farm Bureau

Five Valuable Objects for Farm Bureau Activity — a Government Handbook.

WASHINGTON—That the active cooperation, advice, and assistance of farmers themselves is necessary to the success of county agent work is one of the most important lessons impressed upon officials of the United States department of agriculture after six years of experience with this work in the northern and western states. The best means of securing this local support has proved to be the establishment of a county organization usually known as a farm bureau.

To enable the county agent and local farmers to organize and conduct a farm bureau most effectively, the department has just published detailed suggestions as to methods of procedure in a guide known as "Handbook on Farm Bureau Organization for County Agricultural Agents." The plan represents the fruit of experience in this field thus far. It is said. It can be adapted readily to the varying conditions of different counties. It may be carried out in counties having sufficient organizations, in counties contemplating the employment of an agent and in places where the agent is now unsupported by a local county organization.

The chief functions of a farm bureau, as outlined in the handbook are:

- (1) To co-ordinate the efforts of existing local agricultural forces, either organized or unorganized, and to organize new lines of effort. It does not supplant any existing organizations or compete with them, but establishes a clearing house through which all may increase their efficiency without in any way surrendering their individuality.

- (2) To bring to the agent the counsel and co-operation of the best farmers in the county in planning and executing an agricultural improvement program.

- (3) To furnish the necessary local machinery for easily and quickly reaching every community in the county with information of value to that community or to the county as a whole.

- (4) To encourage self-help through developing and exercising leadership in the rural affairs of each community.

- (5) To reveal to all the people of the county the agricultural possibilities of the county and how they may be realized.

SCENES FROM PARAMOUNT TO BE USED AT FRONT

Several thousand photographs, snapshots, scenes from Paramount productions, etc., have been collected at the Lasky studios in Hollywood and given to Major Ross Moore, the famous neurologist, who will be in charge of the Neurosthetic hospital, back of the American camp in France.

These photographs will be in charge of Louis Coleman Hall, of Los Angeles, who is to be aide to Major Moore in France and will be used for the purpose of distracting the minds of soldiers suffering from mental disorders as result of shell shock, privation, confinement, gas, etc.

The United States is preparing to establish a special hospital with 2600 beds to care for these cases. As the ailments are entirely mental, the object of the physicians is to take the minds of the sufferers off the war as much as possible. The pictures, accompanied by little stories appropriate thereto will be used to this purpose.

The Lasky company has also arranged to send with Major Moore's detachment, Arthur Streib, one of their photographers. He will not only take pictures of the hospital cases but will also run the hospital projection machine and tell stories of the life of the studios to the convalescents.

It is believed that this will be a very efficient factor in restoring to normal condition many of the boys who have undergone terrific strain but escaped actual wounds.

No Local Terminal on Wheat Permitted

Food Administration Points Out That It Would Make No Change in the Price.

Farmers of Twin Falls County, Care W. H. Harvey, Esq., Butl, Idaho.

Gentlemen: Your wire of the 12th to Mr. Hoover has been referred to the Grain Corporation, which directs the following reply:

Your section of the country has always based on Chicago or the coast for market. Of course, the wheat is milled there and flour has to be shipped and marketed in competition with choice of either Pacific coast markets or Chicago. This is a better protection than you have ever had.

A market established at Salt Lake would have to be full rail discount under Chicago, because flour product would have to be marketed by rail, and so would not affect your wheat price in the least.

The reason the Pacific coast has a terminal market is that they have cheap ocean transportation for their products, and Salt Lake has to pay rail rates. Hence, the price is governed accordingly.

Yours faithfully,
LOUIS STRAUT.

PITTSBURGH ASKS DRY DISTRICTS INCREASE

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 31.—Pittsburgh industries want "dry" zones. Initial steps have been taken by coal mine operators, manufacturers, munitions plant heads and representatives of the oil industry here to have the government extend the "dry" zone order to plants of all kinds in this district which are contributing to the prosecution of the war.

A canvass made by John Barth, general superintendent of the Bessemer Coal & Coke Co., which has extensive workings here, shows that efficiency has been lowered and the output lessened at the rate of 2000 tons of coal a day on account of illegal drinking places which have "quanted" near the mines, attracted there by the unusual prosperity that has come to the miners.

Mr. Barth's canvass, which extended to the northern districts in Eastern Ohio, disclosed that the same situation exists there.

National Capital Goes "Dry" Today

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The national capital today becomes the City of Beautiful Distances — Between Drinks. Yesterday it bid a long farewell to its saloons, drinks with one's meals and club buttons. It is not long John Barleycorn altogether, however, for there will be liquor—lots of it—because congress, while legislating the saloon, restaurant and club licenses out of existence, carefully avoided making Washington "bone dry." Last January, after long agitation by the Anti-Saloon League, congress finally passed the Sheppard "Dry" District of Columbia Bill. Previously, congress had passed the Hood bone dry amendment that made absolutely dry prohibition states that still admitted the importation of liquor for personal use. There was no real effort made to make this amendment apply to the dry District of Columbia and everywhere, including the Anti-Saloon League seemed satisfied. The result is that, beginning tomorrow, liquor of all kinds may be brought into the District for personal use from even nearby towns in Maryland, but the purchase or drinking of it in public will be prohibited.

Needless to relate there has been a steady and not always unappreciated hoarding of liquor supplies, and, it is hinted, by not a few senators and representatives as well as the plain people. One prominent citizen recently, and many times as carelessly, boasted over the mahogany that he had $1,500 worth stored in his cellar, whereas all present looked up his address in the telephone book for future reference. Nor did the recent bounding prices of liquor deter the hoarders.

One of the interesting features of the drying up of Washington is that it makes it the sole dry national capital of the world. Not a few who have the city's interests at heart look with apprehension upon the visitors, particularly foreign dignitaries, who look upon the offering of wine as the result of a pledge of friendship and welcome, as it is expected that the law will be construed to bar even the serving of guests with the host's home. The clubs of the famous men that gather in the political pivot of the nation also face a gloomy future, for, while many members make their own home in the capital, the doubt over whether a club is legally a domestic, even if a man lives at it permanently, seems to render it illegal for him to keep a private supply in a club.

Many saloons have already closed their doors through exhaustion of stocks and a desire to be out of the business as quickly as possible, as long as the inevitable is at hand, but there are probably enough still operating to take care of those who wish to make the doubling of the White Lights for the last time at midnight, a kind of a requiem. For the younger, heedless throng it will be simply the opportunity for "one last grand souz." But for an older, staid and more substantial group of Washingtonians there will be memories of old days with jolly gentlemen, now passed beyond. And at midnight passed some landmarks known not only from Atlantic to Pacific, but all over the world.

Shoemaker's, where the rickety was born in 1858 and popularly known as "Cobweb Hall," and which has an international reputation, will not go by the board on account of the dry law, but will be continued as a soft drink emporium, for a time at least. Probably more famous men have patronized Shoemaker's than any other bar in the country. Among its patrons have been at least one president, senators and congressmen by the score, cabinet officials and diplomats, supreme court justices, newspaper men, government officials of high and low degree and actors. Foreigners of note, when visiting Washington, frequently found their way into the place where the liquor was good and the company delightful, while famous actors always welcomed a Washington engagement, as it gave them an opportunity to taste "the best whiskey that ever came out of old Kaintuck."

General Grant, when he was President, frequently dropped into Shoemaker's for a "little of your best Bourbon." The politicians always flocked to the place and around election time, before the reformers got in their deadly work and made it a crime to wager, the betting was very active. The late Colonel George A. Williamson, who presided over the metropolitan bar with dignity, frequently held large stakes placed with him by rival politicians. One of the most unique wagers ever made in Shoemaker's was the outcome of an engagement between two well-known Washingtonians as to whether ham cooked in ink was as palatable as one cooked in champagne. The hams were cooked in the rear of the place, eight quarts of ink being required for a ham and seven of champagne for the other. The contention of the man betting on the ink proposition was that the outer

Corn Pain Stopped Quick

Corns Lift Right Off With "Gota-It" Blasted relief from corn pain is simple as A B C with "Gota-It." When you've been limping around for days trying to get away from a smart-drifting corn or bumpy callus, and everything you've tried has only made it worse, and then you put some "Gota-It" on and the pain seems right away, and the corn peels right off. It is a simple, safe, and heavenly feeling. "Gota-It" has revolutionized the corn history of the world. Millions use it and it never fails. Ladies wear smaller shoes and have pain-free feet. We old fellows and young fellows forget our toes and feel risky as colts. "Gota-It" will all walk about and enjoy ourselves again without corns. shell of the ham made it impervious to any liquid in which it might be cooked. The bet was declared a draw as the ink ham was cooked too long and broke open, allowing the ink to seep in. Portions of it were eatable, however, and many people who tasted both hams declared they were unable to tell which was which.

The Losokam, long the haunt of numerous admirals and other navy officers, has transformed its bar into a dining room. Kirby's, located on the site of the famous old Riggs House, which was established by several members of the exclusive Metropolitan club, has closed its doors. The rent was too high to experiment with soft drinks.

The passing of old "King Alcohol" will be felt by the old veterans in the Soldiers' Home, located on the outskirts of Washington. The selling of liquor within one mile of the home has long been prohibited and old vets had to come all the way into town to get their whites. The hostess always made a beeline for Xander's, which was the first saloon on their "leg" town. Its passing will be regretted by many veterans.

John Ferrard's French Castle, where the fall of the Bastille was celebrated each 14th of July by the "gentle Count" Ferrard and his host of friends with many glasses of "red wine" will not be closed, but much of the glamour will pass without the soothing influence of red wine. Almost under the shadow of the Capitol on lower Pennsylvania avenue is one of the landmarks of Washington—Mades' Tavern. For years it has been the favorite haunt of Senators and Congressmen, who flock there for the tasty sea food for which the place is famous. The closing of its bar will have its effect, of course, but the place will continue to be run.

In other days Harvey's where the succulent steamed oysters originated, was a name to conjure with. The late George Harvey was a restaurateur of the old school and his bar was not the least of the places of attraction. When he died Harvey's went into other hands, while still retaining the name, but when Harvey went the place lost much of its charm. It will continue to be operated as a restaurant with soft drinks as a side line.

For a number of years, the number of saloons has gradually been decreasing in old Georgetown, which is now a part of Washington, so the dry law will not have much effect in that part of town. One place that will be missed by the crowd attending football games on Georgetown Field is Sullivan's, located near Georgetown University. One or two places in other hands, while still retaining the name, but when Harvey went the place lost much of its charm. It will continue to be operated as a restaurant with soft drinks as a side line.

Build Your Barn Right

Constructing your barn is a scientific problem in efficiency—just like the construction of a modern factory. You should build it

- To take care of your increase in crops the next few years.
- To stand the enormous strains to which it will be subjected.
- To save steps and permit quickest handling of contents.
- To conserve the quality of your crops and the health of your animals.

The better your barn meets these requirements the more money you will make.

No one is better able than we are to help you make your barn what it should be. For years we have dealt in barn building materials and studied barn construction.

We are confident our knowledge and experience will benefit you. Talking it over with us will not put you under the slightest obligation.

Following the visit to the links a dinner was given the members at the Country Club.

A general review of the activities of the society was made by the speaker in the evening. They urged a further unification of the Rotarian ideals throughout the organization. In his address the international president touched on the war and reiterated the Rotarian club's support of the president.

CONFIRMATION AT CATHOLIC

president calls on us to ask God to send victory as a means of securing a just and honorable peace. Patriotism is part of our holy soul. It is one of the principles of Christianity. In this awful cataclysm peoples are forgetting God, but our nation is true to its motto. We wish to work out every line that our peace and liberty are endangered and our country needs our service, as at present, we must go on record and define our duty. It has been said that we seek a union of church and state. This you know to be untrue. We wish to work out our salvation in this country under conditions as they now exist. We want the church to have the privilege of growing and teaching the principles of Christianity. The church as the Mystic Body of Christ has a mission given her by her Divine Founder to teach the doctrines which Christ taught. The state cannot rightly ignore the doctrine of Christianity, and should shape her course in accordance with God's law. On the other hand we as Christians should be true to the state in all things not contrary to God's law and to the highest morality.

"We have always done that. Today it is estimated that nearly forty percent of all the military service of the United States are Catholic. The first man that shed his blood in behalf of this country in the present war was a Catholic. King of Columbus from Kansas City, for whom a monument is about to be erected. And it will be found that our boys will do their full duty in the military service to the trenches with the cross of Jesus Christ in one hand and the Constitution of the United States in the other, ready to lay down their lives in rendering to their country and to civil authority, that which should be rendered to such authority; obedience to its laws.

"We have no right to condemn our enemies. Charity is a law of God. I have no use for the calling of names and the indiscriminate abuse of all the people in the nation with which we are fighting. I have known intimately many of the people from the land with which we are at war who were honest and honorable. We are not at war with them because we hate them personally. We are at war because those in authority in the United States have decided that it is necessary for the preservation of our rights as a nation and of human liberty, that we should go to war. Were I a bishop in Germany or any of the warring European nations, and a citizen of that country, I should pray to God to give honorable victory to its arms and to bring about a just and lasting peace."

"A few days ago I read an excellent article written by one of the greatest intellects of the Lutheran church, who pointed out as a high tribute to the Catholic church, that this war has demonstrated as nothing else, its universal character, as millions of its members were to be found fighting in all the hostile armies. "It is no state church and confined to no country or section.

"When Pope Benedict, whom Catholics regard as the representative on earth of Christ in spiritual matters sent to the warring nations a proposal for the bringing about of peace, though coming from a man, whom, in religious matters, they regarded as speaking with authority delegated by Christ himself; yet when the civil authorities did not see their way clear to accept the proposed terms as a means of bringing about a just and lasting peace, the Catholics in the rival armies still obeyed the civil authorities and fought for their several countries as before.

"St. Paul in his epistle to the Romans says: 'There is no power but from God, and those that are ordained by God, and since we are at war, we as citizens of this great country, obeying the lawful commands of the duly constituted civil authorities, obey those ordained by God for that purpose. It is therefore our duty to do everything we can to bring speedy victory to our arms. We must contribute to the Red Cross; we must subscribe for liberty bonds and do whatever we can to make those who are fighting the battles of our country comfortable and heartened in order that we render victory certain and speedy.

"And we should all pray. It is our duty. We should pray for victory for American arms. We should pray that God will bless the arms of our country that shall be lasting and just. We should pray for the boys in the trenches that they may avoid sin and lead more lives in heaven in the next world and encourage them. We should pray to Jesus Christ to preserve our boys and send them back to us when home and that the victory secured may bring honor and just peace to his benighted and we should pray to God to speed that day.

"Wars and tribulations come on the world when it forgets God. For what purpose were we placed on this earth? Was it to secure wealth and honors? The little child who has learned her catechism will answer, 'To love and serve God here on earth, and be happy with Him in heaven in the next world.' To live in accordance with the law of God in this world and win salvation of his soul through keeping the laws of God by the great end of man. How far has the world drifted from that ideal! In the theatres, on the streets, everywhere, we note the laxness of morals. Not alone among worldly, but among Christians, among lax and indifferent Catholics who forget their duty to God, we see sin and vice abound. As men forget God we see divorces multiply, we see incestuous marriages, we see all sorts of evil.

"God is not mocked. In the old testament, we see the nations drift away from Him, and see wars and calamities brought upon them for their sins until they repent. God created, and redeemed man. But man ungrateful rises up and says 'I will not obey.' In these days, we should look into our hearts. We should drive out sin. We should pray from our hearts, even as the people of old prayed in sack cloth and ashes, that our sins be forgiven and that we merit the peace of God, which passeth all understanding."
