

FIRST NATIONAL BANK HOME TO BE COMMODIOUS

THOROUGHLY MODERN IN EVERY RESPECT IT WILL BE CREDIT TO CITY

Interior to be Beautifully Decorated

One of the Finest Edifices in the West Will Take Care of Business of Prosperous Institution When Completed.

Judged from the description of the work to be done by Hoggson Brothers, the Chicago and New York builders, the remodelled home for the First National bank will be a thoroughly modern banking institution, fitted out with up-to-date appliances and equipment, fully adequate to meet the demands of the bank's rapidly increasing business. The alterations to the banking room will practically double the available space. The store facing on Main street will be thrown into the banking quarters, resulting in a room 48 by 62 feet. In addition there will be storage rooms and vaults in the basement. Hoggson Brothers, who are the recognized bank planning experts of the country, have given careful consideration to the layout of the banking room, so as to insure the greatest facility and economy of operation, while providing at the same time for the utmost comfort and convenience of the bank's patrons. The alterations to the exterior include the remodeling of the entire first floor front on Main street to provide a suitable bank facade, with a handsomely designed central entrance of Indiana limestone. This entrance will have a double vestibule with three sets of double doors. On the outside will be the heavy paneled night doors, which give necessary protection during the hours when the bank is closed. Back of these will be the double storm doors with a single plate glass panel, and on the inside will be the in-and-out doors dividing traffic. The vestibules will have marble floors with trim of the same material. The interior of the bank will be beautifully and tastefully decorated, and finished in marble, mahogany and bronze. There will be a commodious public space 20 by 40 feet. The terrazzo marble floor will have panels outlined by mosaic borders. The public space will be enclosed by a handsomely designed marble and bronze counter-screen, the lower portion of which will be of Taverneville Flouret marble with base of the same material. The upper portion of the counter-screen will be clear plate glass framed in delicately moulded and chased bronze. The space between the counter-screen and the public space will be enclosed by a handsomely designed bronze grille, through which public business may be transacted. Special consideration has been given by the architect to the banking room and working space. A most pleasing effect will be obtained by the use of lignite oil reflectors back of the counter screen, giving continuous lighting along the whole case system. At each wicket will be installed a polarized sign of special design, in brass cut which is etched. The designation of the case, which, by means of light from overhead reflected through the glass, is thrown in distinct relief. The space set aside for the officers' back of a low rail, is to the right of the public space. Immediately to the rear of the officers' quarters will be the space for the collections and one for special business. Extending across the public space at its rear, and facing the entrance, are the three cages for receiving and paying tellers; on the left hand side of the public space are three cages for special business, statements, and exchange. At the rear of the cages, and adjoining the tellers' cages and exchange cage is an open railing and enclosed office for assistant cashier. On the Shoshone street side, where the natural light is obtainable, and back of the cages, is the working space equipped with modern labor saving devices to expedite the routine business of the bank. A concrete vault structure will be built from the foundation up through the banking room, independent of the building construction. This concrete work will afford space in the basement for storage of old books and records, and on the first floor for safe deposit boxes and on the second floor to the security vault will be eight inches thick, composed of tool-resistant chrome non-burnable and open heart steel for tonnage strength. The equipment will include automatic locking and locking devices, such as a continuous train of bolts, double pressure bar system, goose-neck pattern frame and door, which is set in glass cover cases, double combination locks and three-movement time locks. The vault will also have a day gate to guard the vault during business hours when the door is open. The interior of the vault will be divided by a heavy steel grille into compartments for the bank's safe deposit boxes, customers' safe deposit boxes. These compartments will have up-to-date equipment of heavy steel doors, bronze hinges, double master key guard locks and inside the hand cases. The vault will have a full assortment of metal filing devices to accommodate the bank's checks, deposit tickets, books and records. A large room for the directors and for committee meetings will be located at the rear of the Shoshone street side. Ample locker and rest room facilities have been provided for the working space. Special attention will be given to the women patrons of the bank. Provision has been made for a private room for their use in the front of the bank, at the left of the vestibule. The room will be decorated in gray enamel and fitted up with easy chairs, writing tables and other conveniences. The enlarged quarters, with its ample accommodations for the increasing volume of business of the First National bank of Twin Falls. In equipment, appointment and conveniences it will be the equal of any like edifice in the west.

Borah Talks of Labor Shortage

Senior Senator Says Conditions are Serious Throughout The Western States

(I. N. S. Leased Wire)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Lack of proper transportation facilities and methods coupled with scarcity of labor is seriously menacing the prosperity of the west, United States Senator William Borah said today. Discussing the situation as he found it during a three weeks trip, the senator said: "There is a serious condition in the west, but it does not arise out of the want of patriotism but a want of means by which to effectuate the desire of the people to do the proper thing in this emergency. "Last spring the farmers went forward and produced crops in splendid fashion. Now when the crops are being gathered it is impossible to find transportation facilities to carry the products to market. Any amount of fruit and potatoes going to waste. There is very little use of talking economy and conservation when stuff is rotting and going to waste about now and there is no arrangement to plant crops under such conditions. "Now that the boys are being taken from the farms under the draft, the situation is such that you cannot find labor to plant and certainly not sufficient labor to take care of the crop. Unless the situation is changed through some method there will be a vast decrease in the crop acreage next year through the inability to plant or sow and take care of it."

WANT HIGHER RATES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—The western railroads this afternoon moved to secure a general increase in freight rates. Through E. S. Keeler, vice president of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, the roads operating west of the Mississippi asked the interstate commerce commission to set a date for a conference on the proposal. The chairman has fixed December 17.

Patrick McGunigal Gets First Medal

First Prize For Extraordinary Bravery Goes To Man Who Saved Pilot From Drowning.

(I. N. S. Leased Wire)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The first medal of honor "for extraordinary bravery" to be awarded to an American fighting man during the war has been given to Patrick McGunigal of Youngtown, Ohio, the navy department announced today.

McGunigal is a ship's fitter aboard the U. S. cruiser Winona. His heroic deed in saving the pilot of a naval kite balloon from drowning brings him, with the honor, the gift of $100 from the navy department.

The captive balloon of the cruiser was four hundred feet in the air, its observer searching for submarines, when it was struck by a squall. The balloon dropped 200 feet. The captive was hoisted in on the ship but the basket was whipped and twisted and the pilot entangled in the ropes. The balloon was hauled to the ship's side, but the basket drifted in the water, submerging the pilot.

McGunigal, who has been fourteen years in the naval service, went over the ship's side and jumped to the water. He cleared the tangled ropes and fastened a bowline around the pilot, who then was hauled on deck. McGunigal was so exhausted from the struggle with the heavy seas that he had to be rescued by others aboard the cruiser.

Von Tirpitz Demands Great Concessions

Would Annex Belgian Coast to Germany and Mouth of Danube To Austria and Get Indemnity.

(I. N. S. Leased Wire)

ZURICH, Nov. 12.—Admiral von Tirpitz, one of the founders of the new national party in Germany, in a short speech at Munich, said that Germany must retain part of the Belgian coast for submarine bases, and also Antwerp, according to advices received here from Munich today.

Peace without economic indemnities for Germany would mean defeat for the central powers, von Tirpitz was quoted as saying today.

In conclusion the German junker added that Austria must secure control of the mouth of the Danube and retain its ports, but these questions, he said, affected Germany as much as Austria.

The German national party was forced to offset the growing strength of the liberal coalition by the German reichstag which is on record as favoring without negotiation and indemnities the nationalists are junkers and Pan-Germans.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Mary Sheldon's making pies for Pershing.

That is the expression common at Salvation Army headquarters here today.

When General Pershing landed in France, Major D. W. Agnew, in charge of the Salvation Army here, called asking him what the Salvation Army could do that would be most appreciated by the commander of the American forces in France.

"Send me someone who can make an apple pie," was General Pershing's request, and Ensign Mary Sheldon forthwith was dispatched. Ensign Sheldon gained fame here showing mothers of Chicago slums how to cook.

The council also has instructed Governor Gooding to call a conference of stock and sheep men to discuss problems confronting the industry.

47-YEAR-OLD AMERICAN WINS FRENCH MEDALS

Daniel Dillon (I. N. S. Staff Correspondent) AMERICAN FIELD HEADQUARTERS, Expeditionary Forces, Oct. 13—At sixty-four years of age he was a second-class private in the French army. Today at sixty-seven he is a lieutenant and wears on his breast the French military medal the Croix de Guerre with palm, and over his left shoulder hangs his regimental Four-ge.

That but darkly silhouettes the remarkable story of George Le Mesurier, an American who has become attached to the headquarters of the Alpine Chasseurs, the instructors of the American army, to act as an English interpreter. For three years he has fought in the French army and always as an American citizen.

At the age when most men are beginning to look back on the road of life he looked forward to the big adventure stretching before him, and with an enthusiasm and intrepidity of spirit that shamed even youth has revolved in its perils and dangers.

His own story, as he narrated it to me with a simplicity unadorned and a delightful current of humor carrying it along, was material worthy of a modern Odysssey and a tale that made you proud that your country had given France such a man.

"At seventeen, I landed in San Francisco," he told me. "Then he continued, 'all the world was young and all the trees were green. America became my young wife;

France was my mother. And when in 1870 I heard my mother was attacked I hastened to her defense. I had sprit then. Why, when I left America I felt single handed I could defeat Germany. But I was too small for the job or the job was too big for me. I do not know which. But I did know, when, at the close of the war, I returned to California, because I fought in that war as in this, as an American, that I had witnessed the opening scene of a terrible drama. I had been present at the birth of Prussian world domination. I did not know whether I would live to see its denouement.

"With a limp in my right knee from a wound and a tiny medal of honor that my country gave me, and there are 'mighty few of us in the French army today left to be wearing them, I came back to the good U. S. and located in Los Angeles when it was an adobe town of 2,500 people, 2,000 of whom were Mexicans.

"Today, sir, it is the finest city in the world." I will spare you the dissertation on the Queen City of the world that he gave to me for fifteen minutes, because inadvertently, I had asked him if it was a better city than San Francisco. Just imagine a thirty degree Los Angeles booster, the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, the leading real estate agent of the city all bound in one, and you will have some idea of the talk he gave me. He showed me photographs of his home, No. 554 Douglas street, that he had carried safely through all his campaigning.

"California has been good to me. I have prospered. I have raised a good American family and they are loved by all residents of California. At sixty-three I was nursing the delusion that the best part of life trailed behind me. I had forgotten. 'Gone' grow old along with me, the best of life is yet to be. But the rumors of war, and then war itself, swept me away from my life's estate again.

"I saw the final act of the play, the first act of which I had seen staged in 1870, was to be enacted. And I saw clearly if it was a better time a struggle this time between France and Germany. I know that it two world forces contending — autocracy against democracy. I know that in this struggle I would not only be fighting for France but for America as well. I made up my mind to get in it.

"Employing a stratagem, I left home without worrying my family.

"I landed in Havre, but had not been on the street an hour before a gendarme halted me and asked me my business. 'I have come to enlist and fight for France,' I told him. He scowled at me and said: 'Old man, don't get in a funny way. These are dangerous times, and I want to know your errand here.' 'Take me to the nearest enlistment office, my good man,' I said, 'and I will show you. Not knowing what else to do with me he did as I suggested.

"We entered the office, and fortunately a Colonel in charge. I walked up to him and said: 'Colonel, I have come five thousand miles to fight for France, and if your regiment will take me, I'd like to get at it right away.' The Colonel laughingly said: 'Why didn't you come earlier?'

"And I retorted: 'Why didn't you start the war earlier?' 'Well,' he said, 'maybe we can use you as a cavalry driver.' 'No, you won't,' I said, boldly, 'I didn't come all the way from Los Angeles, California, to drive a pair of mules. I've come to fight.'

"'Bravo,' he says, 'that's the spirit we want. You come back at two o'clock this afternoon, and if you can convince the doctor that your heart is half as strong as your spirit, you may get a rifle.'

"'Promptly at two, I was back in the office. The doctor ordered me to an once strip. I did so. He thumped and bumped me prodigiously, and that was enough. When I joined my new regiment they were fighting at Verdun; men were weary, no one asked me any questions; within a week after I arrived I was in the hospital nursing a wound.'

He was very reticent in explaining how he had obtained his medals, but by dint of persistent prodding I found that he had won the Croix de Guerre when in a front line position in a command discovered they were about out of ammunition and asked for a volunteer to creep rearward over a shell swept field to notify headquarters. He successfully made the perilous trip, receiving only a slight wound. His palm came to him when he left a position of comparative safety to rescue his wounded colonel and install him in his retreat while he guarded him during the night until relieved in the morning.

"This medal militaire I never expected to wear," he said. "The action in which I won this I never believed I would live through. Three hundred of us took a German advance trench, and before we had consolidated it a thousand or more Boches, springing from the ground like the famed harvest of dragons' teeth, had surrounded us. They called on us to surrender. Our answer was voiced with lead. Of the three hundred, twenty of us got back to our own trenches, and I, who was then a sergeant, was the senior officer in command.

"Three times I have been wounded. The most serious of the was when an exploding shell buried me against a tree, fracturing my knee cap. I was in the hospital then for three weeks. My eye has never hand-capped me.

"I am happy beyond words that I have escaped death so as to be able to serve my own country in this war. My comrades said when I left the regiment: 'Ah, you are deserting us.' I said: 'Not so, men. What have you called me all these months that I have been with you?' 'The American,' they answered. 'Well,' I said, 'now I am showing you that you were right. I am not deserting France, but I am going to help my own America.'

WHO CAN VOTE SATURDAY?

Why such an every man and woman "who is over the age of twenty-one years, who is a citizen of the United States and who shall have resided in this state six months and in this county thirty days immediately preceding this election" immediately preceding this election?

Such are the qualifications prescribed in the official notice; and this is the reason why the vote can be, and one of the reasons why it ought to be, a full and decisive one as to the question at issue.

PROGRESS OR STAGNATION?

Whatever may happen to the proposed issue of bonds for the improvement of county highways, it should not be afterwards said that the question was either carried or lost, because the voters of the county failed to go to the polls and register their wishes in the matter. Such a result would be unjust to everybody. Should the bonds carry with only a partial vote, their opponents will feel overruled; should they fail under the same circumstances, their supporters will say that no fair and full expression has been had, and will strive to try it again at the first opportunity. The question is now up under favorable circumstances; all its points and bearings are being made known, canvassed and understood. By all means let it be settled one way or the other in such manner that the will of all the people of the county is made clear and unmistakable. If we are to continue to wallow through the mud in winter and to bump the bumps, cut dust and break springs on summer, let us know it, once for all! It, upon the basis of progress and to fall into the ranks of progress and to expand road money systematically upon a real system of real roads, let us know that, also, and rejoice therein.

For, in addition to all personal comfort and convenience to every person who uses our public highways, either for business or for pleasure, the settlement of this question in favor of the desired improvement will mean an immediate addition to the present strong demand for homes and lands in Twin Falls county. So, "choose ye this day (next Saturday) whom ye will serve," Progress, or Stagnation!

THE ITALIAN DEFEAT

The explanation so far given for the great defeat and retreat of the Italian army seems inadequate. The Italians up to this catastrophe had conquered the most stupendous difficulties. The English and French could barely make progress in a level country. Yet those plucky Italian fighters could hack their way over precipitous cliffs and high mountains.

It is hard to believe that the Italians could have met this great defeat on the basis of fighting ability alone, or even from superior German strategy. It looks like treachery somewhere. Not that any unit of the Italian army or any commander has played false, for these soldiers have shown splendid patriotic feeling.

It will be recalled that when the Roumanians were defeated last year, it was reported that German spies had secured for German headquarters the full plans of the Roumanian staff.

It looks like a case of that steady leak of information that goes on all the time through the German spy system. This system, established by the Germans in all the allied countries before the war, is now producing results. It constantly informs the German commanders about conditions inside the allied armies. One can't help feeling that through this spy system Germany became aware that there was a weak and poorly guarded back door to the Italian line, and was tipped off by its agents as to how that door could be broken open.

This does not mean that any Italians have sold out their country, only that all through each allied country German spies are secretly listening and transmitting information. It shows what a terrible threat German power is, and how the nations of the earth must strive to put down a power that thus seeks to control the whole earth by these insidious means.

MAINTAIN THE LAW

The great speech of President Wilson before the American Federation of Labor yesterday, was especially significant in the message in which it advised the maintenance of law and order and the discouragement of mob violence. Superior in most things to all other peoples, the Americans have not made a crowning success in law enforcement. This to a great extent is due to the fact that law has been looked upon as a curio, for every evil, "if anything is wrong, pass a law against it," is a theory on which, as a people, we have too much professed. Having enacted more laws than it is possible to enforce, we see some wholly unenforced and many others enforced with laxity.

To supplement this we have resorted to lynch law. This in turn has meant less law enforcement against criminals. The twin evils fed one another. Some years ago an investigator showed more crimes of violence per capita in this than in any other country. Not only that but in populations of similar origin and ancestry, in this country and Canada, the difference against us was striking. Canada had fewer laws, enforced them better and lynching was practically unknown. We lynch more than any other people.

An abstract proposition, there can come a time when law is so completely overthrown that the people are compelled to take the law in their own hands. In practice it seldom happens. Violence breeds violence. One trouble with lynching is that the wrong men are often lynched. Official investigations during the past year showed that in no less than eleven instances it was proven that innocent men were killed in this way. The effect is doubly bad. The criminally inclined who are deterred by fear of punishment, get the idea that they might as well commit the crime as they are likely to escape if they don't, and maybe be lynched if they don't. The guilty seeing others punished, are encouraged to repeat their offense. That is why lynch law and crimes of violence have proceeded in a vicious circle.

Crimes of violence growing out of labor troubles are lynch law, or mob law, on a big scale. A corporation threatened with strikers is disaffected with the manner in which officers of the law act toward the workmen and hire a lot of strike-breakers and "detectives" to "protect" its property.

A bunch of striking laborers, tired of waiting for conditions to work out, will use violence on the property of the company and destroy its property. Right or private war of two lawless mobs within the country in defiance of its authority. Every time mob violence is used, it weakens the country and defers settlement of differences. The government has been obliged to do at present. It has enacted legislation that is broad enough to take care of any situation, and as President Wilson says: "Those who kick over the traces will be put in a corral." The thing to do is to encourage officials in discharge of their duties and help them corral the malcontents, and deal with them after they are corralled.

Col. House, to Europe who is as great a lover of peace as there is in the world but I didn't send him on a peace mission. I sent him on a mission to find out how the war can be won.

LABOR CHEERS PRESIDENT

As university man I have been surrounded by men trained in Germany. Nowhere else could they get such training. They are the most competent in the world. She had access to all markets in the world, but men in these markets, for Germany had the most of her almost irresistible competition.

"Her industries were perhaps the best in the world. The label 'made in Germany' was a mark of good workmanship. She had a place in the sun. Why was she not satisfied? What more did she want? There was nothing in a world of peace she did not have. Her heart was not satisfied. There is no important industry in Germany upon which the government has not laid its hand to direct and it necessary to control it.

"They were the same kinds of competitions that we have tried to prevent by law. The conditions of competition were not controlled by the German government.

"A political control which would enable her to control all labor and industry of the world was behind it all.

THE FIGHTING TRAIL

THIS STORY SHOWN AT THE ORPHEUM THEATRE
AN EXTRAORDINARY PHOTOPLAY Each character in this story is a real person, and a jump can be made from one to the other without in the least destroying the sequence of the story. William Duncan and Carol Holloway in the stellar roles accomplish some death-defying stunts. The tale in brief follows the adventures which befall the discoverer of a valuable ingredient for the making of a powerful explosive, and the efforts of a foreign enemy to get possession of the secret. The photoplay is unusually beautiful and artistic.

The marvelous adventure story of the great outdoors—written by J. Stuart Blackton and Cyrus Townsend Brady.
THE CAST

Hendrick Von Bleck.....Walter Rogers
The eye of the Central Powers, not an enemy to an invading army, but to a country—an international spy.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS
John Gwyn, an American mining engineer, contracts to furnish the government with the ingredients of a powerful explosive essential to the manufacture of the new gun. He comes from a lost mine in the west, and he is fought from the start by an agent of the Central Powers who employs a gang of cut-throats. The outlaw Rawls murder the owner of the mine, which reverts to the daughter. She and Gwyn are trapped in a burning house, but escape back to camp, where they are married. On the following moon, in a cabin near the mine, they are overpowered by the gang, but are rescued by cowboys. The leader of the cutting gang is killed. Gwyn escapes and Gwyn follows him. A death struggle ensues on the brow of a cliff overlooking a mountain torrent.

CHAPTER 8
It was over two months now since anything had been heard from Von Bleck or any of his men. Gwyn, Nan and Casey were standing on the brow of the main shaft of the mine, watching the operations of the men. All about them things were busy. Ore cars were traveling into and out of the mine, cars of train, iron and tin, cinnamon, were moving along the narrow gauge railroad which had been built from the mine to the town, and which, incidentally, had been one of the big improvements which Gwyn had installed in Lost Mine.
"It seems," said Gwyn, as he and Casey stood outside the shaft, "that we finally scared Von Bleck away. He hasn't been heard from for nearly nine weeks, now, and it looks as though he'll stay among the missing. I have written to the financial powers in New York and they are mighty well pleased with the outlook. I believe that they will send someone out soon to see how we are getting along."
"Well," replied Casey, "if they do, the report ought to be a hum-dinger. We sure are progressing—and, don't forget, this is the only mine in the world that anyone knows of. And this would have been drained long ago if anybody except Don Carlos had known where to find it. He, therefore, called suddenly to a man operating an ore-car which had just come from the entrance of the mine. "Stop your loading and drive up here. We got no time for vacations between loads. Move up!"

The person to whom this curt order was addressed looked up at the car with a scowl. His unshaven face, covered with a ragged beard of several months' growth, was black with dust. And though no one knew it was so intentionally. As the laborer proceeded to push his car toward the engine boss, in obedience of his command he read hastily a note that was stretched on the ore between the shaft in such a position behind the pile of ore, that it could not be seen by the three who stood talking some distance away. He read:
"One Lung:
"Keep yourself under cover. I need you where you are. Have learned that Gwyn and his wife found the mine and the deeds from the mine and the old land grant which gives them legal possession of the mine. This had been hidden in the mine by Don Carlos as a precaution should his house be robbed. It must be somewhere in Gwyn's cabin now. Get it! But don't let yourself be seen as I may need you where you are." Later Gwyn got the deeds and the grant now. You know what failure means!

"VON BLECK!"
"One Lung" tore the paper into tiny fragments which he had finished reading and put them into his pocket. He pushed the ore car past Casey and the others, just in time to hear Gwyn say to Nan:
"I am terribly busy and want to finish up some things with Casey before it is too late. This is my night. Do you suppose you could drive one of the motor cars to town and get the money from the bank? I'll send a man along with you, in case you don't get back until after dark."
"That car can go," Nan answered. "I'll start now and get back as soon as I can."
"Gwyn hailed one of the men who was nearby and ordered him to pull up one of the automobiles. "One Lung" who had skulked along slowly so he could hear what was being said, hurried along with his car to the end of the track and then disappeared behind some ore cars. Casey and Gwyn walked slowly toward the former's office and left Nan as she was preparing for her departure to town.

The four men who were seated about the table leaned closer to each other and spoke in low tones. About them, standing in the rear room of Brown's cafe, in the center of the town of Lost Mine, were a score or more of the roughest, hardest type of men that had ever been seen in the town. They talked among themselves, glancing frequently at the group about the table, waiting to hear the decision of the conference. And Von Bleck, "Cut Deep" Rawls and "Shoe String" Drant were firing questions and statements in subdued voices, at another individual, a huge, fleshy person, went of face, although not went of body. This fourth man was known to Lost Mine as Sheriff Causley, whose main object in holding the position was to try to assure himself of re-election at every text election.
In a sudden spasm of duty, which struck him but infrequently, Causley had threatened Von Bleck and his band, but when the agent of the Central Powers gave him to understand that interference would result sadly for him both physically and politically, he had seen things in a different light. "Everything is just ripe for our next move—and I'll be our biggest nose-tee," said Von Bleck. "We have to act quickly and sensibly. The main thing is to get the deeds. I'm pretty sure 'One Lung' can take care of that; he might even have them already. Then an attack on the mine. We'll capture that, and with the deeds and Sheriff Causley's own influence, we can hold it—and I can go back to New York and take things easily. You boys," he spoke to the others about the table, "will get your little pieces, and they'll be enough to keep you from worrying for some time to come. Now go to it!"

"Wait here a while, boys," Rawls addressed the crowd of men in the room. "We'll be back to get you soon. Be slipping up your guns, meanwhile. Then he, accompanied by Drant Sheriff Causley and a few of the others left the room and rided into the sheriff's automobile which was standing by the door.
Just as the auto filled with men shot away from the curb to go down the road, another car swung around the corner ahead. In it were two occupants, a man and a woman—Nan and Casey. The man, who had come with her. She caught a fleeting glance of the passing car and recognized the outlaws in it.
It was very evident that the expected presence of Rawls and the other of Von Bleck's men in Lost Mine alarmed Nan. She speeded up the motor, swung in by the bank and came out again almost immediately with the money for the payroll. In another moment she was back to the car and driving at a dangerously rapid rate of speed toward the narrow gauge railroad which led back to the mine.

Some distance from the terminus of the railroad was a bridge, a wooden affair which ran several hundred feet above a river, whose waters rushed and whirled from the mountains. Before this was reached, when a train was coming from the town and going toward the mine, it was necessary to cross another bridge over a chasm. This latter structure was not straight, but made a turn, as a bow. Why? The string of the bow would have been a wire cable which also bridged the chasm, with the town end lower than that nearest the mine. By means of this, and a basket attached to a rope and pulley, ore had been sent across the chasm by means of the cable ferry before the bridge had been erected. Since then, however, had not been in use, and the basket was rotten from exposure to the weather.

As Nan, in her motor, approached the chasm bridge, she noticed an automobile that was standing on a road near the trail. It was Casey's car. She guessed in a moment that Rawls and his men had headed her off and were about to attack her. She did not think of the money she had with her, perhaps she thought, for the money she had with her, perhaps to capture her and use her as a sort of modern hostage against Gwyn. A glance at the car and she threw the throttle wide. The engine dashed by the cut upon the bridge, just as Rawls, Drant, Causley and the others who had left Brown's office, as the man in the motor with her opened the hood to speed the flames. As they rode over the river and almost lost all the fire when many of the burning cinders fell to the bridge. Nan looked back and could see the bridge over the river beginning to flame. The cinders had set fire to the dry logs that served as ties.
When the engine drew up before the main shaft of the mine, she saw Gwyn and Casey talking excitedly before the superintendent's office. It was evident that something had gone wrong. The engine had scarcely stopped when Nan jumped from it and ran up to the two men.
"Von Bleck," she cried, breathlessly. "He and his gang are on the tracks. They tried to get me. There's something mighty troublesome in the wind and we'd better do something quick."

"Von Bleck!" Gwyn echoed, his excitement at even a higher pitch. "You bet he's making trouble. Nan, your deeds to the mine are gone. They've been stolen. I was just in the house and the safe has been ransacked. Casey, we've got to keep them from hitting them. Nan and I'll get on the engine again and ride back. You stay here, Casey, and guard the mine with your men. It's two to one they'll attack here and try to get possession."
Gwyn lost no time. Casey understood and shouted that he would do his part while Gwyn and Nan went to town. Gwyn ran to the engine, followed by Nan, threw open the throttle and sped along the rails in the direction of the town of Lost Mine. There was nothing to hinder them until they reached the bridge over the river. This they saw to their horror, as they rounded a curve and came with full view of it, was blazing in flames.

"There's nothing to do, Nan," Gwyn shouted above the din of the grinding wheels on the track. "We've got to take a chance—I'm going to drive over, full speed. Hold, now!"

LEGEND

Full lines - paved roads. Broken lines - gravel or crushed rock.

A BOORBAK COMPLETELY ANSWERED.

The following (Sec. 1) from S. B. 134, passed into law at the last (1917) session of the legislature of Idaho, effectually settles and silences the claim that the improvement of roadways within the Buhl highway district, or elsewhere, as described in proceedings of county commissioners and shown on map herewith, can be neglected or prevented.

"Sec. 1. Nothing in this Act shall be construed as a limitation of the power of the Board of County Commissioners to issue bonds of the county for the construction or the repairs of roads and bridges, and whenever the Board of County Commissioners shall issue bonds of the county for the construction or repair of roads and bridges under the provisions of Article 6, Chapter 2, of Title 11 of the Political Codes of Idaho, and Acts supplementary and amendatory thereto upon the authorization of two-thirds of the qualified electors of the county voting thereat at an election held for that purpose pursuant to a resolution of such board entered upon the Journal of the board, specifying, describing and defining the road or roads and bridge or bridges to be constructed or repaired and giving the terms and the general course of each road and the approximate location of each bridge it is proposed to construct, and appropriating a specific amount for any road or bridge wholly or partially within any organized highway district; then the Board of County Commissioners shall have full jurisdiction and power to locate and construct or repair such road or bridge within such Highway district, and to apply such specific appropriation so derived from the issue of such bonds or so much thereof as may be necessary thereto."

Twin Falls County Good Roads Election Saturday, November 17, 1917

ALL THE VOTERS OF TWIN FALLS COUNTY ARE NOW CALLED UPON TO DECIDE WHETHER THEY WILL CONTINUE TO THROW AWAY $50,000 ANNUALLY FOR ILL-TIMED AND TEMPORARY ROAD REPAIRS, OR BY A LESS ANNUAL EXPENDITURE WILL BUILD 200 MILES OF PERMANENT, ALL-THE-YEAR-ROUND GOOD ROADS—THE MOST IMPORTANT PART OF A COMPLETE COUNTY SYSTEM THAT WILL BRING EVERY FARMER 25 PER CENT NEARER HIS MARKET, ENABLE HIM TO HAUL 25 PER CENT LARGER LOADS AND TO UTILIZE 50 PER CENT MORE FALL AND WINTER DAYS. A VOTE-AGAINST THE COUNTY ROAD BOND ISSUE SAYS "YES" TO WASTE AND "NO" TO ECONOMY. IT WILL REQUIRE TWO VOTES "YES" TO EVERY ONE "NO" TO CARRY THE BOND PROPOSITION.

WHAT HOOVER SAYS

The so-called telegram, receipt of date indicated, is a complete answer to a specific question and must finally settle any doubts or fears, or captious cavil, as to whether the proposed road bond issue at the present time is unpatriotic in any sense or degree:

WASHINGTON, D. C., 7:25 p. m., Nov. 5, 1917.

O. H. Carlson, Chairman County Commissioners, Twin Falls, Idaho. Sincerely hope that you will be able to carry election for the bond issue intended for permanent roads, as all improvements of this class tend for general betterment in any community; and particularly for efficient transportation, which is one of the problems we face in our endeavor to reduce the cost between the producer and consumer.

HERBERT HOOVER.

THE COUNTY ROAD BOND ISSUE

FULL STATEMENT OF WHAT IS PROPOSED AND WHERE AND HOW Do Not Vote For or Against the Bonds Without Considering All the Facts in the Case

ROAD WORK PROPOSED BY COUNTY Under sanction of the Citizen's Advisory Committee, the Board of County Commissioners proposes, in case the bonds are voted, to use them—by sale only as the actual work progresses—in the construction of highways within the county as below specified, which can be fully located and understood by reference to the accompanying map:

Improved highway. The proposed highway improvement will include permanent concrete culverts over ditches and laterals on roadway involved, but no other bridge-work. Money Questions Involved. Twin Falls county at the present time has an assessed valuation of twenty-one millions in round numbers. The road levy is 2 1/2 mills, or $52,500, and that for bridges 1 mill, or $21,000—a total of $73,500. Approximately three-fourths of this is devoted to the county roads outside the towns. In 1917 the amount so expended was $18,000. It is safe therefore, to take $25,000 as the present average, with a sure increase from year to year should existing conditions prevail. The mud of last winter and spring and the dust and devil-tails of the summer and fall offer abundant testimony as to why towns the public has been getting for its money! Upon the other hand, with two hundred miles of real roads, "repairs" would be reduced to a minimum and the money applied to the extension of the system. Money spent for "repairs," when there is nothing to repair, must necessarily be wasted.

But the interest on the bonds you are saying, "how about that?" Listen! In 1916, 612 automobiles were registered in Twin Falls county and the sum of $10,532 collected for license. In 1916, 1,283 cars and $20,974 cash. In 1917, (10 months to Nov. 1) 2,688 cars registered and $43,936 collected. In 1917, under existing present law, the amount "paid" in a safe and modest estimate. This will insure the collection of over $50,000—three-fourths of which, or $37,500 can be applied to payment of interest on county (and no other) highway bonds. Any figures that can be given as to the present liability placed against land

In this county by the proposed bond issue would only be misleading, since the bonds will run twenty years with option of payment after ten. To pay the entire issue at once, however, would not tax each acre one-half of its increase in value upon completion of the proposed system of good roads. The payment of this principal will be the duty of the next generation, as it should be. But it is worth noting that the county is now practically out of debt, and that the assured revenue from auto licenses will much more than pay the bond interest—the bonds being sold by installments and not all at once, and that the excess can be turned into a sinking fund for payment of the principal. Any rational view of this matter must include the rapidly increasing property values of the county—to which nothing will contribute like good roads, and must make the creation of this indebtedness, for this purpose, appear but the feather's weight that it really is.

Will the Money be Wisely Expended? So many problems enter into the planning and building a complete and satisfactory county road system that some voters will no doubt question the wise and economic use of the money, if voted. Realizing the gravity and importance of the duty imposed upon them, the county commissioners have invited the assistance and co-operation in planning and in executing this work of an Advisory Board, consisting of seven well known citizens, representing all parts of the county. This board, at its first meeting, the duty indicated and advising the public regarding the plan to be adopted and its purpose to see that "the county get one hundred cents for each dollar expended" is appended hereto in full. The location of the proposed roads as shown by the map and described in detail in the board's proceedings, is in fact a part of the proposition submitted to you, and as such is absolutely binding not only on the present county commissioners but on their successors.

What Experience and Common Sense Teach. California is no doubt the greatest exponent of the value of good roads, which although built at great cost are now regarded as the state's best paying asset. In this connection it will be worth remembering that when the first issue of eighteen millions in bonds to inaugurate a state highway system was submitted to the voters in 1910, only carried by a majority of 12,783; fourteen counties giving adverse majorities, but that, upon the submission to the voters of a proposition to issue fifteen millions more bonds last November, after six years experience, the vote was 542,219 "yes" to 137,107 "against"—an almost four to one majority.

The application of a trifle of common sense will dispose of the objection which some patriotic (or otherwise) people may base upon a signed undesirable at the counties for the purpose of bonding for public works. That the proposed road improvement is a patriotic measure and an absolute advantage in the present national stress, will appear upon a moment's consideration. No present necessity is greater than that for more sugar, and good roads will double the area from which bests may be profitably hauled and thus double the output of our large sugar factories. They will also greatly conserve food products generally all over the tract by added facility of getting them to market or storage, away from the frost.

The example of California has already been emulated in this immediate vicinity. The Buhl Highway district has recently voted for one hundred thousand dollar bond issue by a large majority; and our own Buhl Independent district voted an issue four times as large almost without opposition. What is good for a part of Twin Falls county must be good for the whole county—and especially for the portion of the county which will not have to use its own funds until after fifty-six miles of roads have been built from the county funds.

OFFICIAL NOTICE OF SPECIAL ELECTION Whereas, the Board of Commissioners of Twin Falls county, Idaho, have found that the interests of the county require it and the Board of Commissioners of the county deem it for the public good to bond the county in the sum of one million dollars ($1,000,000) for the purpose of acquiring funds, the proceeds thereof to be used in the construction, building and repair of roads within said county; and whereas...

Notice is hereby given that on Saturday, the 17th day of November, 1917, between the hours of 8 a. m. and 7 p. m., an election shall be held according to law for the purpose of determining whether or not the said Twin Falls county, State of Idaho, shall issue bonds in the sum of one million dollars ($1,000,000.00), the proceeds thereof to be used in the construction, building and repair of roads within said Twin Falls county, State of Idaho.

DECLARATION PEOPLE'S ADVISORY BOARD The outline offered by the County Commissioners for the proposed hard surfacing of roads indicated a fair and impartial program, well calculated to meet the needs of the various districts.

RESOLUTION STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSION Be it therefore resolved, that in the event of the said bond issue being voted in Twin Falls county, this commission co-operate with Twin Falls county in the work aforementioned and as the work progresses that the state pay its proportion of the cost of same so far as funds are available therefor, and, further, that the state will reimburse Twin Falls county for any sums which said county may

Editorial Greeting

Our business is the Big Business of Life. It demands as careful attention to detail as the same kind of executive ability that is required of a manager of a bank or a railroad.

Women spend 90 per cent of the money earned, but all do not spend it judiciously. The object of this department is a get-together proposition: "You tell me, and I'll tell you."

It is our desire that every woman and girl consider this page her own outlet. Who can prepare the best meal from "what is left in the cooler"? What has a new idea that will benefit others? What has a problem that needs adjustment?

Who has a suggestion as to little ways or big ways of earning money? Whose experience will help some other woman to bear her trials? Besides all this, remember, this is first of all a Pure Food Page. Patronize our advertisers and tell us if they serve you well.

CUTTING DOWN DELIVERY SYSTEMS

We notice in the East and also the large Western cities there is a determined effort to conform to the expressed wish of the government to have but one delivery per day. The system of service which has grown up with many retail businesses of the present day has, of course, brought with it some of its attendant evils, of which the four or five deliveries per day is one.

Housewives who understand and appreciate the present situation are concentrating their purchasing and planning same intelligently so that one delivery will usually cover the whole day's purchases. The enormous amount of man power that is necessary now to deliver in some cases unnecessarily, can be used to very great advantage in more necessary work.

NEW DEVICE FOR WRAPPING BREAD ELECTRICALLY

The Royal Bakery, whose wide awake proprietor is always trying to give his patrons the very best, showed to a representative a unique machine last week which wraps and seals a loaf of bread electrically without any additional help.

The wrapper is loosely rolled around the loaf when it is pushed into a very small and inconspicuous looking affair. The bottom and both sides of this are electrically heated somewhat. The paraffine paper becomes just warm enough to start the wax to run slightly which automatically seals the loaf hermetically without the aid of human hands.

This ingenious arrangement is merely one of the new ideas which are in Proprietor Smith's mind for the absolute cleanliness and sanitation of his plant.

FOOD IS WASTED

(a) When we eat more food than our bodies need for growth and repair and to supply energy for our work. Overeating tends to poor health and fat instead of brains, makes us sluggish and indolent instead of energetic and resourceful. Eat enough and no more. Eat for physical and mental efficiency.

(b) When food is burned or spoiled in cooking. Improperly prepared or poorly seasoned food will be left on the table and probably wasted. Buy food wisely and then prepare it carefully.

(c) When too much food is prepared for a meal. Unserviced portions are apt to be thrown into the garbage pail or allowed to spoil. Many housekeepers do not know how to use left-over foods to make appetizing dishes.

(d) When too much food is served at meals. Unserved portions are left on the plate and later thrown into the garbage pail. Learn to know the needs of your family, and serve each no more than you think he will want.

(e) When anything edible is allowed to go to the garbage pail or allowed to spoil for lack of proper handling.

(f) When food is handled carelessly. Buy clean food, keep it clean until used, and be neat in all details of cooking and serving. This lessens the waste and is valuable health measure as well.

Today is the second of the meatless Tuesdays in Twin Falls, which same we are glad to note are being patriotically carried out by the eating places in town, and are proving a big success. This voluntarily working-together with the food administrator is much appreciated by the government.

Mr. Porter of the Palace Cafe-says a great many people have the impression that the restaurants are making these more profitable business days than others.

The reverse is exactly the case. In addition to having to re-arrange their menu very much which is more or less inconvenient, they really show a loss. However, let it be said that these business people are more than glad to do their bit along this line and without complaining.

BISHOP OF MISSOURI APPROVES A JUST WAR

(International News Service) SPRINGFIELD, ILL., Nov. 13.—Conscientious objectors to the war by right of divinity received no support from the Rev. Daniel S. Tuttle, aged eighty, Bishop of Missouri, and presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal churches in America, in a dress here before the Mid-Day Luncheon club.

He declared America has entered the war to show that "right makes might" and asserted the nation is more divine than the church.

"Three great divine institutions have been placed in this world by Almighty God," Bishop Tuttle said. "First and strongest—the family; second, the state, and third, the church. The state is an organization of families. Hence this view of divinity permits of Christians conscientiously going to war."

Bishop Tuttle is the oldest ranking bishop in the United States.

MURPHY AT THE "TIMES" WANTS RE-ENFORCEMENT FROM SPUDLAND

Other Vegetables Welcome to the Capital of Tuberville—Collection Made for Charity During the Winter—Investigation of the Pool Hall Bum Indigent, Who Is Strictly Ruled Out—Associated Charities and County to Handle Vegetables—Charities Need Some Funds From People of City.

The TIMES vegetable collection for the needs of the unfortunate of Twin Falls this winter is growing, the spud department is getting along very nicely. This amount collected at this time, however, is relatively small compared with what it might have been had the condition surrounding the gathering been less strenuous. Calls sound vegetables that, on account of their unavailability, have been asked, and the TIMES guarantees that these will be distributed through the county commissioners and the Associated Charities, where they are needed and only where they are needed. In this connection it is deemed advisable to lay before the TIMES reader the facts with which some of them are perhaps not familiar.

In the first place it is not true and never has been true to any appreciable extent that the present board of county commissioners are "easy" and are habitually worked by a class of loafers that he around pool halls all summer and then sponge on the community during the winter months. Anyone who gets any money from the county board really needs it. Similarly anyone who gets assistance from the Associated Charities needs it and gets it only after a careful investigation of the case. Loafers are frowned down upon systematically. The work of the board of the Associated Charities is complementary; the latter taking care of cases around the city not easily handled by the board. In some instances this work consists of extending aid to children of unfortunate families who through misfortune are in real need and are unable to secure enough property to enable them to go to school. In other cases, whole families come into town from dry claims, or from other towns looking for money and are in need and some of them fall sick. These are tided over, where the investigation reveals the fact that the case is a worthy one. Sometimes these are sent in a position ask aid from the county. They are "borderland" cases, which fall in a "twilight zone" into which the commissioners have found it inexpedient to ask aid from the county, and which are, nevertheless, meritorious cases, deserving temporary alleviation. Still another class consists of young men who, through lack of support, who are helped in securing good positions, while going to school and have clothing enough furnished to them to enable them to pass through without their employers knowing that they are assisted; the obvious advantage of this method, so far as character building for the improvident young man concerned, need not be enlarged upon. Sometimes clothing donated to the Associated Charities is mended and sold second hand to poor people in limited means, and the proceeds used to buy necessities for others who cannot buy it themselves.

Index are fictitious and only the president knows the person to whom the aid is extended. The costly machinery for the distribution of charity in the large cities shows nothing more systematic than the work carried on gratuitously in this city by the board under the leadership of Mrs. Kennedy "net by" who are unworthy; since no machinery is incapable of error.

The so-called "pool hall bum" situation came in for some investigation. The statement is general that there are plenty of men to do all the work of the community and that the labor shortage comes through a great number of men not doing their share of support, who are around the pool halls and other loafing places and wait for winter, when it is assumed that without reason, that they will sell their stores wanted by coal furnished by the county, and clothed and fed by the Associated Charities; or worse still, that good cash is paid out to them through the last name organization to be spent playing pool.

The fact is that the county has generally been able, when weather permitted, to get out work for the indigent and to send him home, and would not get nothing. Similarly no man who was able to work got any aid from the Associated Charities; some ask for jobs, but when there is a few instances the wives and children of improvident men have been assisted; it has been on the condition that the man get busy on the first job available and that he keep out of the pool halls. A few perhaps have occasionally evaded the last condition surreptitiously.

Relative to the men vaguely described as loafers, who are hanging around the pool halls and places or standing on the street corners, the TIMES reporter appealed to City Clerk W. A. Minick, head of the municipal employment agency, Saturday for an estimate of the number of men who pretended to want work, but who would refuse steady employment, when they were asked for jobs. He thought that the number might be as high as fifty. Sometimes, during the busy season as many as twenty would come in to get work for a few days, but would refuse them, when tendered on the ground that the wages were insufficient. They were always looking for work and they were always ready. He had had few such applications during the previous week and few applications for men so he thought that the men were over. He said that the great majority of working men here, labored steadily. Some days, as many as half of the floating working population asking for jobs were refused. They did not want steady employment. The majority of the loafers were floaters.

Secretary W. F. Edwards, head of the Twin Falls County Farm Bureau employment department, was called to agree with the city office, with this amplification: "There are practically no men around this city who do not work sometimes. At the same time, the street corner at times and found a dozen or more men in a bunch who would refuse to accept offered employment. A few desirable loafing places in town, where they could get some work, which they would come in and spend after they had earned it. The trouble was not that they would not work at all, but that they would not work enough. They were not doing the best that they could. Counting all the men who declined or failed to work as much as the street corner men, I guess the estimate of fifty is not far from wrong. A large number of this class is itinerant. Some follow the potato diggers, but they do not want to do anything else, and stick out for big wages. Others follow other kinds of special work and drift around from place to place. All the men will leave this tract. They will not remain for the winter. There are men around this town who do not work as much as they should, but they are sometimes mistaken in regard to the number of those, who without means of support all around pool halls and other loafing places in the city. There are a number of men around this city who are pretty well to do, who spend part of their time in such places, just to kill time. Sometimes they come down town with old clothes on and spend some time sitting around the pool hall. If a man who does not know them comes in, he always tells the waitress, and she tells them perhaps some of their own good farms and have mortgages on others. "I do not believe that there will be much poverty in this city this year. I believe that all the men who are not sick can get work. There will be potatoes to sort and an unusual amount of other work. At the same time, sickness and special conditions will make it necessary, no doubt, to extend charity in a number of cases."

D. W. Brunk, who formerly ran an employment agency here, and who conducted one free this summer before going into the real estate business, agreed with Mr. Edwards that there were some men in town who should work more than they did. He further agreed that work would be unusually plentiful this year and that there would be fewer cases deserving aid. He thought that some of the men who worked very little were also smooth enough to "work" the county and the Associated Charities. There were not many of them, however, in his opinion, and there would always be some cases deserving aid. He favored co-operation between the county and the association in segregating the sheep from the goats. He believed that both the county and the city should put on work during the winter, and that those who were unable to get work should be properly cared for. He thought a majority of those refusing work were itinerant and would be gone before winter.

It has been pointed out that men with big families who work during the winter months, even when they are doing well, are liable to run short toward the end of the winter in ordinary years. Then a protracted spell of sickness leaves a family on the verge of destitution. Their clothing is insufficient. Clothes-wearing out the children of these unfortunate parents are not in condition to attend school unless helped some. Workers sometimes get the idea that they can get employment here in the winter and come here "broke." These conditions in ordinary years. As suggested by Messrs. Edwards and Brunk conditions promise to be better this year. "There will be more work. As also suggested, sickness in cases cannot be expected, and misfortune will come. As far as helping the food situation, the TIMES will look after the storage and help in distribution through the proper channels. It only asks that all who voluntarily can, furnish such potatoes and other vegetables as will keep. It is not taking money donations." It believes that there will be plenty of good, wholesome foodstuffs that will otherwise go to waste, which might with little trouble and with no cost be brought in at convenient times by the farmers and turned over. It believes, moreover, that when the real situation is understood, and with THE TIMES guarantee that none will be misused, many such donations will be received. At the same time, it realizes that small spuds, carrots and parsnips do not wholly fill the bill. The Associated Charities has no money and has taken no collection. It contemplates on the form of two or three previous years. They caught the ball, whether passed or batted, which was a new departure.

The game opened with Neuman of Twin Falls kicking the ball. Buhl did not carry the ball out of their territory. Twin Falls got possession of it in the first quarter. Neuman making the touchdown and also kicking goal. During the rest of the first quarter the game was played in Buhl territory, but Twin Falls was unable to score again. In the second quarter the game was played steadily toward Buhl's goal and Neuman made another touchdown, but failed to kick goal.

Both teams came back strong in the second half. Twin Falls introduced some new plays, which made for them good gains. Buhl was unable to penetrate the Twin Falls line but several good gains were made on forward passes. In the third quarter Neuman made two more touchdowns and also kicked goal. Buhl fought hard throughout the entire game, but the Blue and white boys showed superior play, mainly by their good formation and team work. In the last five minutes of play the ball was being carried to ward Buhl's goal by Twin Falls. The ball was carried by Glasgow for a line plunge, he fumbled the ball, and Balle recovered it and fell over the line for the last touchdown. The Twin Falls team played together so that little credit can be given any individual, but Captain Fix played an excellent game at left end. Several times he broke through the line and reached long forward passes. He also made good gains by carrying the ball on end runs. Lavender, Davis, and Glasgow played a good game in the back field. Lavender and Davis making good gains around the end and Glasgow on line plunges. Neuman also played a good game. He made many good gains on line plunges. He has the speed, is a good judge and hard to tackle. The line men played a good game and Buhl was unable to force their way through them for any gain. Final score: Twin Falls 33, Buhl 0.

TWIN FALLS HIGH GAINS

has an anxious eye on the "hudding crowd"; the h. s. principal changes feet pretty often when it seems to be going forward; and the tall, handsome and very dignified young member who shows great reserve in response to anything like familiar address, greets each spectator with a good pluck of the home team by yelling like a Comanche and waving both arms, while dancing on the adjacent cornfields. Oh, it was all good; no person without sentiment and enthusiasm is worth having—or knowing? But all this tells nothing about the game of foot ball, which was one of the cleanest and best ever seen here. Contrary to rule in the past, the Buhl team was clearly outclassed; but the boys stood by their colors and put up a clean, consistent and game fight to the last moment of play. Without knowing, we should say that the Twin Falls team had a little advantage in weight. But their training and team work was certainly an improvement on the form of two or three previous years. They caught the ball, whether passed or batted, which was a new departure.

The game opened with Neuman of Twin Falls kicking the ball. Buhl did not carry the ball out of their territory. Twin Falls got possession of it in the first quarter. Friday was the finest day the Twin Falls team has so far had for a game. The new field was in excellent condition. Friday's crowd of spectators was the largest ever attending a Twin Falls football game. The full lineup is omitted because we are not able to give it for both teams, but that of Twin Falls was substantially as heretofore. Messrs. Barker and Downman acted most satisfactorily as referee and umpire, respectively. In the second half Van Tassel substituted for Carter and Hilsenbaum for Strone. The next game will be this coming Friday, with the Blackfoot high school team. This will be the biggest and most exciting game of the season. Blackfoot claims the championship of eastern Idaho. They defeated the Polytechnic Technical Institute, while the latter defeated Gooding with whom Twin Falls played a tie game. The three coaches are working hard to get the team in the best of shape for this game and E. M. Sweeney is also giving the boys some pointers on the game.

ROBINSONS

There are a lot of people in this city and county who do not do all their trading at this store and a lot more who do not trade here regularly, but there surely are a lot who do trade here regularly and a lot more who come here often for we "do" some business these days.

There is one feature of this store's business that stands out as an important one and that is the uniformly good quality of the merchandise carried. I give special care to quality and aim to handle only goods that are dependable. This counts for much in the end. There are some who care only for price, but I believe that the majority of people prefer good goods at RIGHT PRICES to poor goods at any price.

I would like very much to have every one who has any goods to buy in this line I carry, come in and see us. Come often if you can, but if you can't, come as regularly and as often as you can, for it will pay you to see what we have to offer. We're glad to see you if you only come and look and do not buy.

Prices Here Are Always Right

Prices Here Are Usually Lower

Perhaps I should say SHOES oftener than I do, but our shoe trade is growing so fast that it would seem that the word that I am giving unusually good values in shoes is being passed from those who have bought, to others, and my best advertisement seems to be those who have become regular customers for shoes here.

It is perhaps not so hard to understand why we do such a good business in shoes when you stop to think of the following:

- Boy's shoes up to size 13.1-2 for $2.00 a pair
- Boy's shoes up to size 6, for $2.50 a pair (These come in either button or lace)
- Girl's school shoes up to size 2 at $2.50 a pair
- Girl's school shoes up to size 2 at $2.85 a pair (Good looking, good quality, well made)
