CANDIDATES OF F. B. CHAIRMEN ASKED TO QUIT

DR. WHITE WILL SUGGEST RETIREMENT IN INTEREST OF HARMONY

Open Meeting to be Urged

Long Discussion Regarding Conditions Last Night Results in Fidelity Harmony—Dr. White Is Thanked by Vote.

F. B. Dean—I think that we are together, Doctor, and all that is necessary is for you to get the candidates of the farm bureau to resign before the election, and we'll all go in together to an open meeting and elect the best man.

Dr. White—"It would be impossible for me to say that they would resign before consulting them said the chairman of the farm bureau at the meeting Saturday."

Mr. Dean—"Will you ask them to?"
Dr. White—"Yes, I will."

Mr. Dean—"Dr. White has agreed to ask the candidates notified by the farm bureau to resign before the annual election. We have had a long and warm discussion in which he has shown himself courteous and fair in his attitude and I move that this meeting extend to Dr. White a vote of thanks for the manner in which he has conducted his part of it, and the good nature he has shown."

The above resolution duly seconded and carried marked the culmination of the joint discussion last night between the "Efficiency" party which was organized among stockholders to combat the movement on the part of the farm bureau to elect a ticket chosen, mostly, by the farm bureau.

The meeting was called to order by Dr. White after Dr. White had been invited to attend. On account of the crowd it had been found necessary to meet at the rooms of the Commercial Club. Dr. White briefly stated the nature of the board, although as it developed this was not made obligatory by the changes in the by-laws.

He admitted that the candidates from the several districts with one exception of chairman; the one exception being on the west end, where the man first selected had refused to serve. He admitted that the man chosen had had previous experience in canal affairs, that it would take some time for them to get the experience and that until such time they would do their best.

A vigorous attack was made by many on the plan to keep the directors in continuous session. It was pointed out that the directors were not only occasionally and then for a short time, leaving the details of management and the formulation of plans to experts, but that the directors themselves should be allowed to handle the business of the farm bureau.

Dr. White's methods of drilling his men in what he, himself, called "dress-rehearsals," and running a steam roller over his opponents, had been pronounced against such methods himself. He conceded that much organization work had been done and congratulated himself on the result.

plan of electing one director each year from a different district and allowing all the stockholders a voice in selecting him. He said that this might result in electing a man from a district where the voters of that district did not want him and the perpetuation of a machine. He moved that the old system be retained and the motion carried as expressing the voice of the meeting.

Dr. White admitted the possibility of such a result by allowing it to be probable. J. A. Crum said he had followed White as long as he thought him right and many good things had come out of it. Dr. White overtook up plans which would cause the people to lose money and in this he would not follow.

E. Dean suggested that inasmuch as the main point centered around the methods pursued in selecting the ticket by the farm bureau to be railroaded through and that Dr. White got to resign before election and will go in and elect a ticket in an open election.

Dr. White demurred on the ground that the matter would have to go before the chairman. He added that the chairman had many proxies which they were in duty bound to vote for certain and that he would not do so if the men were out of the field.

The objections urged in the meeting are mostly summed up in the following letter which was read by Mr. Hobbs to the TIMES for publication: Editor Times:

Now that the annual election of directors of the Twin Falls Canal company is near at hand, it should be to the interest of the stockholder to investigate the issues to come up, and the character and ability of the prospective candidates.

The Farm Bureau has recently brought out a ticket that recommended very highly, consisting of three new men; and though the Farm Bureau has been active for more than a year, they have effected many fundamental changes in the by-laws, the most important being a new plan of electing the board of directors. Instead of the present method of electing directors to districts, and each locality electing its own member, as in the past, after the first year, except in case of a vacancy, the entire board is to be elected and he by the entire tract, which means that no district can be sure of the man they want, even though supported unanimously at home.

It should be possible for the stockholder to dominate the affairs of the company year after year to their own personal advantage, and a minority faction, although controlling 40 per cent of the votes would be powerless to secure a representative on the board.

Such a plan is in direct opposition to the original purpose of the president of the Farm Bureau is to go to France to fight the identical thing that has been instrumental in making a part of the management of this system an autocracy.

It seems strange that the Farm Bureau should approve of such a plan; true enough the present and past directors have done little for the management of the system, and have overlooked important matters that should have been attended to; but this is no reason why the entire plan of management should have been overturned, as all of the benefits desired could have been obtained without inaugurating such a change. It will prove to be decidedly vicious, and will lead to disunion and strife. For when a majority deliberately prevents a minority from having one voice in the management of the system, tyranny and despotism are sure to prevail.

CONGRESS FACED BY BIG WAR PROBLEMS

Much of Non-Partisan Team Work Expected to Disappear When Congress Convenes on Monday—La Follette Proceedings to Establish a Precedent for Dealing With Pacifists Holding Public Office.

MILITARIST IS URGING BIGGER GERMAN ARMY

VON FREYTAG SAYS THEY DIDN'T HAVE ENOUGH ARMY OR NAVY Wants Empire Prepared for Next War

More Complete and Extensive System of Training Than Ever Demanded for Germany After She 'Gets Hers' This Time.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 28.—With Germany facing inevitable defeat in the great world conflict now raging, German militarists are already looking forward to "The Next War."

There is a big question whether the German people will be a frame of mind after this war to tolerate preparations for another holocaust of arms, even if the entire government would permit it.

An insight into the war-sodden minds of Prussian militarists is given by a book published in Germany called "Dudum" from a "World War," a copy of which was received here today from Berlin.

It is written by Lieutenant General Hans von Freytag-Loringhoven, who was quartermaster of the German army when General Falkenhayn was chief of the German general staff. General von Freytag is now in the front line of the "World War" to the general staff. His book breathes blood and thunder preparedness.

After arguing that the German army must be expanded for the present conflict is over, von Freytag continues: "We shall have to continue to pursue our road in the future quite apart from the necessary increase in personnel, artillery and technical troops and moreover when the number of these who have fought in the great war has already reached 10,000,000, we must aim at subjecting at least to a cursory training the men of military age who are at first rejected, but who, in the course of war have had to go out to fit for service, so that when war breaks out they may form a generous source of reserves and only in this way can we arrive at a real, people's army."

So what is the use of all this, it may be asked. Will not the general exhaustion of Europe after the great conflagration put the danger of a new war in the background and does not the long period of peace, which has followed, tend to bring about a peace which is permanent?

The last chapter of the book is called "Still ready for war," and argues that the German people must be plunged into fresh conflict after the present whirlwind of bloodshed and horror is over. Von Freytag expresses the conviction that the German people will be so conditioned by the war that they will be ready to plunge into fresh conflict after the present whirlwind of bloodshed and horror is over.

WAR PARLAMENT AS CONGRESS CONVENES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Here are some of the important matters to be settled by Congress at the session beginning on Monday: Explosive proceedings against Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin. New war taxes. Bond issues probably exceeding $2,000,000,000. New draft legislation. Webb Export bill. The Administration Civil rights bill. Nation wide prohibition. Wilson suffrage.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Confronted by a war budget staggering the imagination, an accumulation of problems directly and indirectly related to the war, surpassing volume and importance any legislative program in American parliamentary annals, the Sixty-fifth Congress will begin its regular session early Monday.

Politics, too, will come out of its seclusion of the past year and threaten to take a conspicuous place in the proceedings of the session. Much of the non-war work which has characterized the last session will disappear and the conduct of business will be shaped with an eye to the Congressional campaign soon to be launched.

The Republicans have seen many things to criticize, but they have kept silent. In the concerted preparation for the great conflict, now having joined in giving the administration everything it wanted and professing their willingness to continue giving it everything it needs to win the war, they thought it best to refrain from criticism and results. Greater activity in the coming year will be their keynote. Their leaders may be heard to say that the session of this year is a real campaign issue remains to be determined by the developments of the next few months.

Foremost in the list of legislative needs are the gigantic money bills, involving bond issues, increased war taxes and appropriations probably exceeding the unprecedented figures of the last session.

Another Bond Issue. Total appropriations, including loans to allies and contract authorizations for the war, have already reached $2,000,000,000. Senator Martin, the majority leader of the senate and the chairman of the appropriations committee, has proposed a bond issue of $1,000,000,000 for the next year which will bring the total up to $5,000,000,000. This would mean additional appropriations of nearly $2,000,000,000.

One of the first bills likely to come before congress will be a measure authorizing another big bond issue. The senate's proposed bill estimates the needs of the past session fall short some $3,000,000,000 of the amount of the total appropriations, and this deficit will be met in part by the issue of bonds and taxes the treasury department, it is reported, will ask the enactment of a supplementary war revenue bill. The amount of the tax bill rests with congress for final determination, but it is said to be the wish of administration leaders that the bill be passed early in the session to provide approximately $2,500,000,000, substantially the amount of the war revenue law passed in October.

The senate's proposed bill means that heavier levies, probably a billion dollars additional, will be imposed upon war profits, and that the government will reach out into heretofore untouched sources of taxation to obtain additional revenue.

AUSTRO GERMAN DRIVE ON ITALIANS PROVES FAILURE

The night on the Combrail front in northern France was given over to violent cannonading.

British positions in the sector of Bourlon wood, three miles west of the German base of Cambrai, were heavily bombed by German guns, the war office announced at noon.

East and northeast of Ypres the German guns were active and British trench lines around Passchendaele were showered with shells of all calibres.

Violent fighting with bayonet and bomb for the possession of the villages of Fontaine Notre Dame and Bourlon three miles west of Cambrai was reported from northern France today.

Advices from the front told of fierce hand to hand struggles among the ruined houses of those villages amid storms of shot and snow.

The Germans are continually being reinforced, many of the fresh troops coming from the eastern front and are evidently determined to fight to the last gasp before they give up their key positions at Cambrai.

When Cambrai falls, as British military critics believe, the position will be untenable.

However, the end of the struggle in northern Italy is not yet in sight and the Germans and Austro-Hungarians can be counted upon to make even fiercer efforts than they have up to now to break through the Italian lines on the Piave river and on the Asiago plateau.

Both sides are preparing for a greater struggle. The reinforcements of men and guns are pouring across the Austrian frontier into Italy to strengthen the invading horde, while the Italian lines are being reinforced from France into Italy are choked with masses of French and British veterans, trains of supply wagons and long lines of artillery.

An oversight in two directions has helped to frustrate the carefully laid plans of the German general staff. First, they failed to count up to the time fighting spirit of the Italian soldiers; second, they failed to take into consideration the possibility of quick aid being given to the Italians by the British and French.

Even should the Italians and the French and British allies fall back to another line, the defenses of which are already being prepared, it is confidently believed that the Germans will be unable to advance farther than the Venetian plains and a line lying from Lake Garda through the mountains to Verona. Such a retirement by the Italians is not yet indicated, but even if it is made the Austro-German armies, for all their sacrifices, would dominate only the extreme northern corner of Italy.

The magnitude of the preparations that are being made on both sides for a continuation of the struggle is now shown by the closing of the Austro-German frontier and the Franco-Italian frontiers. These steps have been made to cloak the amount of reinforcements that are being sent into the arena of action in northern Italy.

Dispatches from Rome today said that the struggle between the Piave and Brenta valleys is continuing with the utmost fury. Powerful Austro-German attacks were made in the Italian sector, but all have been repulsed with severe losses. In intervals of the Teuton assaults the Italians are counter attacking all along the line.

PARIS, Nov. 28.—The work of preparing for the supreme, interlarded war council is being rushed to completion.

According to present plans the first preliminary session of the council will be held tomorrow.

Among the latest arrivals were that of Premier Lloyd George of England and the other members of the British mission, who held a number of conferences today.

ROME, Nov. 28.—Important gains have been made by the Italians between the Brenta and Piave valleys in northern Italy, said a dispatch from Italian headquarters today.

Military Police for Inland Water

Ports on Rivers to be Placed Under Martial Law by the United States Government.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—The military policing of water fronts is to extend to ports on the inland rivers. It was announced at the department of justice today that all river ports of water deep enough for the docking of a ship of 500 tons will go under the same martial law which already has been placed on the New York water front and shortly is to be instituted at other ports.

The extension of martial law to the various ports will be in the following order: Atlantic seaboard, Gulf coast, Pacific coast, Great Lakes, and inland waterways.

There are many inland ports on American rivers at which ships of 500 tons and over can easily dock and from which there is a good deal of shipping. The result of this policy will be that dozens of cities throughout the country soon will be under martial law so far as their water fronts are concerned.

General von Freytag then argues for a greater German navy to cope on sea with the increase of the German army on land. He says: "In the future as in the past the German people will have to seek for security in a powerful navy and in a battle-tested young fleet. Our business is to maintain the fundamental ideas of war as they lived in the Germanic days, and to acknowledge them from the experience of the present war and to make the fullest technical use of them. But we must do all this without giving an entirely new direction to our thinking on strategy and tactics."

The last chapter of the book is called "Still ready for war," and argues that the German people must be plunged into fresh conflict after the present whirlwind of bloodshed and horror is over. Von Freytag expresses the conviction that the German people will be so conditioned by the war that they will be ready to plunge into fresh conflict after the present whirlwind of bloodshed and horror is over.

R. R. Hobbs vigorously recalled the ### LETTER FROM LOCAL BOY LAUDS Y. M. C. A.

In a very interesting letter written at Hempstead, New York, Thomas Irwin of Kimberly writes of many good things in behalf of the Y. M. C. A. work that is carried on among the boys who have "joined the colors." His letter which follows is written on Y. M. C. A. stationery.

Hempstead, N. Y., November 20, 1917.

Mr. V. G. Backman, Kimberly, Idaho.

Dear Sir:

Your letter of November 12th reached today. Due, I suppose, to the faulty mail service, it has reached me several days late, and the answer will probably arrive too late to be of any benefit to you. I am only too glad to tell all I can of the army Y. M. C. A. work, and it benefits.

To begin with, it is my honest opinion that the army Y. M. C. A. is of more actual benefit to the individual soldier than any other organization.

The toughest period of an American soldier's life consists of those seven nerve-racking days that he spends aboard a transport, going "over there."

Eighty dollars will put music on a transport. We want eighty men of this city to put in one dollar apiece so that our city can have an Edison Army and Navy Phonograph on an army transport. The Army and Navy Model is manufactured by the Edison Laboratories without profit. It costs fifty-five dollars. Twenty-five dollars more will provide a library of Re-Creations—music for every trip.

Stowe's Pharmacy has kindly consented to take care of this matter, and all the men who will give a dollar or more to this cause may pay their subscription to Mr. Stowe, or mail their dollar to Stowe's Pharmacy or the Kimberly Advance. Surely we can do this and we should.

of group of organizations, working at the same time with an eye toward benefiting the army, either as an organization, or individually.

Every regiment in this camp has its Y. M. C. A. reading and writing tables, its own pen, ink, and paper, are provided free of charge. Stamps, money orders, and certain commodities necessary to soldiers, such as candles, are sold by the man in charge. Bible classes are held often for the soldiers who wish to participate in the more serious part of the Y. M. C. A. work. Programs are held at least three nights a week. Some of these entertainments are worthy of mention, such as those given by the Orphan's Quartette, and the Hawaiian Quintette. Another of special interest was a military wedding, which took place in this Y. M. C. A. last night.

On Sunday nights the Y. M. C. A. headquarters at Hempstead, and the various churches of that town, provide coffee and cake in great abundance for soldiers.

All these homelike touches help to make a soldier's life more agreeable, and I feel sure that the majority of the boys appreciate what is being done for them.

Some of the entertainments are a concert in the Y. M. C. A. at Camp Greene, Charlotte, N. C., moving pictures were shown almost every night, and all the several buildings were filled at an early hour to their full capacity.

The entertainments are a source of great enjoyment to all who attend them, but the greatest benefit in my estimation is the free paper and envelopes. Soldiers, as a rule, never have cent for days after pay day, and the folks at home are very likely to suffer for lack of news.

Candidly, if you wish to know whether or not the army Y. M. C. A. is worthy of support, I take the greatest pleasure in telling you that in my opinion, it most certainly is! I hope you will not too late to be of some use to you.

Sincerely,
THOMAS G. IRWIN

the near future, and thus it appears that the Kimberly's fine affairs, which have been ensuing for some time, some of them unknown to the rest of the community, are fast being fulfilled. Another of special interest was a military wedding, which took place in this Y. M. C. A. last night.

Mrs. Fred Burns left Tuesday of this week for a month's visit in Northville, South Dakota, taking the two little girls with her.

Mrs. J. W. Carol, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Scott, gave birth to a fine baby boy. Both mother and the baby are doing nicely.

Master Jack Sullivan, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Sullivan, is quite ill at present with tonsillitis. Mr. Packwood, formerly employed with the City Dray, is now clerking at Noble's Mercantile company.

The Starr Transfer company, owned by Dutton & Son, has discontinued business, for the present.

Miss Soidler, daughter of our new telephone manager, is now working in the First National bank.

John Strayer, Ralph Fry and Boyd Schmidt, who are working in Miller, were home over Sunday, visiting.

Several of the Kimberly sportsmen have been duck hunting this week on the Murtaugh lake, and report good success.

Mr. Willey, of Rock Creek, was in Kimberly Saturday.

Miss Talmage, of Iowa, arrived in Kimberly Saturday, for an extended visit with her father, Lawrence Talmage, of this place.

W. R. Sumner left Saturday with three cars of sheep for Chicago.

Mr. Tom Hutchinson and John LaSalle, both of this place, have each purchased a new car.

George Smith has left for an extended visit in Nevada.

Jose Steinhilber made a business trip to Ketchikan, the latter part of the week.

Louis Brock, formerly of this place, has been transferred to Long Island, New York, and expects to sail for France in the near future.

B. W. Silvers met with what might of been a serious accident Saturday evening while turning on an electric light in the library stable. He received a shock which sent him to the floor. As both hands were on the light, he was unable to get loose. One of his helpers pulled the wire away, and Mr. Silvers escaped with but few injuries. One hand was badly burnt and he reports having bruised his arm when he fell on the cement floor.

George Vance is spending Thanksgiving week with his parents in American Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Stull Swearingen and Kathryn and Mrs. Roxie Sallety took dinner Monday at the J. W. Swearingen home.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stone spent Sunday at the Stull Swearingen home.

The Wood river fishermen returned Sunday evening and report fair luck.

Clarence Decker motored to Gooding Friday and returned Sunday.

Leslie Zuck will leave Friday morning for Lenark, Ill., where he expects to spend the winter with relatives and friends.

Mrs. Della Frank is the new central girl at the telephone office.

John Wolfe of Twin Falls was in Kimberly on business Saturday.

L. G. Stettler says he believes the smallpox would not be as severe as the epidemic of 1916.

O. J. Zuck and two sons, Merritt and Kenneth, were on the north side from Wednesday until Saturday and report the fishing very good, but fishing the opposite.

Amusements on U. S. Troop Ships

Eighty Dollars Will Provide Music—Stowe's Pharmacy Handles The Subscriptions

The toughest part of soldier's life is the time he spends aboard a transport on his way to the battlefields of France.

The sailings of troop ships are unheralded. They slip out silently in the night. There are no tender parties at the pier. No one can say to our soldier boys, "Good-bye, good luck, God bless you."

Amusements are sadly needed on the transports. William Stowe, local pharmacist, who this matter was first mentioned by the Edison manufacturers and who will take charge of the local subscriptions, says that $80 will provide music on a transport for the duration of the war. The Edison Army and Navy Phonograph is a model designed under Mr. Edison's direction expressly for soldiers and sailors. It is manufactured by the Edison Laboratories without profit. Its cost is $55. $25 will buy a library of Edison Re-Creations.

We believe there are eighty men in this city who will give a dollar each to put one of these musical outfits on board an American transport. Acknowledgment of the gift will be obtained from the Transport Service. Delivery of the instrument and Re-Creations will be made direct from the Edison Laboratories in New Jersey, without expense to the donors. Every man, who thinks it's worth a dollar to him to help make life a little more enjoyable for our soldiers while on route to France, should call at the Stowe pharmacy or write the Kimberly Advance, and have his name enrolled.

Kimberly Attacked by Cupid's Forces

Romantic Spell Falls and Secret Love Affairs Reach Zenith. Are Consummated in Pretty Weddings.

Thursday of last week was Cupid's day in Kimberly, and many of the good citizens of the village were taken by a romantic spell which, as a rule, never descends upon the town. Two of Kimberly's popular young ladies had given their hands in marriage to well known young men of the community.

The wedding of Miss Eva Wilson and Mr. Wilfred Dunn took place on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Dunn, of Kimberly, with Rev. V. G. Backman officiating. Following the ceremony the company of friends and relatives present gathered about to watch the bride and groom open the most important packages, disclosing beautiful gifts of silver ware, cut glass, and other essentials of the modern home. This was followed by a beautiful wedding dinner, after which the guests departed. Mr. and Mrs. Dunn will move in the near future to their ranch on Three Creek.

On the same afternoon upon which the wedding of Miss Wilson and Mr. Dunn took place, another marriage occurred in a different section of the community, when Miss Ida King, a popular and well known young lady of the local high school was married to Mr. Roy Sullivan, of Kimberly, at the home of the bride's parents, and Mrs. Grant King a few miles south of town. The bride's grandfather, popularly known as Grandpa Eddick, performed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan left Friday night for Boise for a few weeks. They will return again to Kimberly and make their home here.

Other weddings are announced for the near future, and thus it appears that the Kimberly's fine affairs, which have been ensuing for some time, some of them unknown to the rest of the community, are fast being fulfilled. Another of special interest was a military wedding, which took place in this Y. M. C. A. last night.

A HIGHER CALL

Many calls come to the individual during these times, calls to buy Liberty Bonds, calls to join the Red Cross, and the Y. M. C. A., calls to conserve food and to produce food and clothing in greater quantities.

One is in duty concerning the purposes and ambitions of America in this great war, and that those purposes are as far from being selfish and narrow as the desire for the respect and a more worthy aspiration was never indulged in by any nation than that which caused the first statesman to demand that we should say, cast on the waters, her greatest ideals for peace and prosperity, in order that she might defend the rights of the world to the same.

Throughout her history she has followed the leadership of great Christian statesmen, whose high sense of honor and justice, have led her out of sinful pursuits into a realm and an age of highest ideals and the great hopes.

It is not that we would idealize our nation to the extent of affirming that she is without sin, and that there are no needs and no demands for great social and economic readjustments that we say these things of her, but that we might impress upon the minds of the citizens who will understand our pre-eminence above all other nations as the champion of truth, and of the highest standards of life, that it is possible that they may be happy, when we stand on the shore awaiting to welcome home our heroes, and our heroes when after waiting anxiously for their coming we find that our beloved ones have not returned and will not, shall come, the world must face a long and bitter season of reconstruction. Then we must rebuild the towers of civilization which have fallen, once more spread abroad upon the divine justice and systems.

The citizens of America, because of these facts concerning their country stand in positions of appreciation, those higher and more worthy calls, that come not so much from the nature of the world and circumstances which in union with divine law demand that such calls be heeded.

We speak of an eminently higher call than ever came from earthly conditions alone. It is the call of the divine, and the necessity of future efficiency, and of future hope. Let us explain.

After this great war shall close, and the institutions of art and progress; and also face the divine task of repopulation with great progressive men and women the desolate fields of industry and culture.

We say that we must repopulate the world with great men and great women; men and women of great mental and moral and physical power, because it will take great men to face the most magnificent tasks, the heaviest burdens, and the most difficult face. The task of reconstructing, rebuilding in a few short years the civilization which upon centuries have labored to the present.

Wouldn't you like to give the family as light and savory muffins as they've ever eaten—made without expensive butter?

We know of no better way to introduce you to good, wholesome Cottolene than through this muffin recipe.

If you should use your own recipe, use one-third less of Cottolene than you would of butter.

RECIPE

1 1/2 tablespoons melted Cottolene, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1/2 cup milk, 1 egg, 3 cups sifted flour, 3 level teaspoons baking powder, 1 level teaspoon salt, 5/8 teaspoon lard, baking powder, salt, etc. Add melted Cottolene, sugar, egg and milk.

Cottolene

The Natural Shortening

At grocers in this or convenient sizes

It will not be this generation which will have to face the reconstruction period to come, but it will be that other generation, and probably at a time when that other generation will yet be in its youth. Therefore, the greater responsibility rests upon our shoulders. For without being officers ourselves, how can we teach others to be, and without upholding a high moral standard ourselves, how can we expect our children to do so?

This call to greater seriousness, to greater efficiency, to greater morality is that higher call which we must hearken to and which demands our response. Are we as Americans equal to it? WE ARE.

HERBERT HARDIN WRITES AGAIN OF ARMY LIFE

Second Letter From Kimberly Boy Reveals Vivid Pictures of Army Life in Training Camps.

The following from Herbert Hardin, son of John W. Hardin of Kimberly, a second letter received this month, telling of the interesting affairs and activities of American army life in the great training centers of the nation.

Dear Dad:

Will try and write to you a few lines concerning my army life at the present time; my pleasures, work, misfortunes, etc.

To begin with, since I have transferred, I like the army much better than my old station as I enjoy the work I am now doing—office work for "Sam." My days work begins here at 8 a. m. and leaves off in the afternoon at 5:45, having breakfast at 11:45. After these hours I am free to do as I like and am permitted to leave the post at that time, every day, if I so desire, which makes it almost like any other position in civil life.

My work consists almost entirely of typing and clerical work, which, owing to my commercial education in four years of high school, enables me to handle the work without any difficulty, and, as I like the work, the army life is very businesslike.

However, Uncle Sam's clerical work is in no way similar to that of civil life, and it requires some time for a new man to become accustomed to the forms, etc. used.

It would be rather hard to explain all my work here in the office. I am filling clerk and assistant-correspondence clerk positions. Letters are given out of this office I enter in the correspondence book and file a copy of the letter, so that I can find any letter written from within a man's name's notice, although there are from fifteen to thirty written every day. Besides this I issue the canteen order.

Things that I have mentioned constitute the larger part of my work, although I have considerable odd typing to do besides, along various lines.

Now to recreation. For a soldier in San Francisco, there is something for him to do at most times. The people of San Francisco have certainly opened up their hearts and so their pocket books, and are trying in most every way to make soldiering more pleasurable for him. Most every night there is a great entertainment program, house party or something similar for the soldiers. At these places the boys meet their most respectable people and see the great world of very nice young ladies. If anyone does not care to dance there is always something else for him to do which he might enjoy more, such as music, and singing, etc. These matters are absolutely free and the soldier is put to no expense, whatever in going, outside of car fare.

Also there are four soldier clubs in the down town part of the city, where no one is allowed but soldiers and sailors. In these clubs there are tables, games, writing material, music in abundance, and in fact everything to make it possible for a soldier to enjoy himself. Besides these we have the army Y. M. C. A., which is a great deal on the same plan as the clubs. So between the clubs, the Y. M. C. A., the entertainments, house parties and dances given by individuals, it is a very easy matter for one of Uncle Sam's men to enjoy himself to the full extent.

I have met here some very nice people, people which I suspected in my first vision of San Francisco, did not exist. I must say that upon my first-arriving in this great metropolis I was far from pleased with it and I longed to be back in Shoshone, Idaho. However, I found that Frisco was not so bad after becoming acquainted and that there were some very nice people living within its bounds, and people who take an interest in Uncle Sam's men, and perhaps some poor chap who has never been away from home before and at times has a longing to go to his home to be back home again and be with his friends and loved ones. Not mentioning any names, but I have known some fellows, one fellow, I am sure who looked very discomfited, when his mind happened to wander back to the old home, but upon being invited to some nice place for dinner and having a good old meal on the same order as mother used to make, with lots of music and singing, the homesickness is forgotten. And so by living a clean life and not forgetting the teachings of our dear old dad and mother in the years gone by, we make many, many friends out of our good behavior and those people that are so kind to some of us homeless boys, are to be the means of sending us back home again, after this great war is over just as clean, wholesome and respectable boys, as when we left our loved ones to stand up for this great home again, after this great war.

As it is growing late, I will close this and go to bed.

Your son,

HERBERT.

SMALLPOX EFFECTS KIMBERLY WAR WORK AMONG WOMEN

Just as the Red Cross auxiliary of Kimberly was working and preparing hard constructive work for the coming Christmas season, smallpox broke out in Kimberly, and after only two days of hard work, the ladies were obliged to discontinue their efforts for the time being.

However, in the two days devoted to the work of sewing and preparing Christmas boxes for the soldiers many excellent things were accomplished, which delighted the Twin Falls ladies very much.

Twenty-five dollars was sent by the local auxiliary for Christmas boxes for the boys at the front.

U. S. OFFICERS DISCARD HELIGOLAND PLAN

Irwin Barbour (U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—As a result of the conversation of American three outstanding naval geniuses—Admirals Sims and Mayo and Vice-Admiral Benson—with the British and French Admirals, talk in naval circles here of "going after the German bases" has suddenly fallen away.

Only a short while ago the Army and Navy Club and other places where the more enthusiastic and radical of the naval officers gathered, were the scenes nightly of sanguinary conversational pictures of "what could be done to the Germans, and of frank and outspoken criticism of the "reactionary" methods of the European allies, especially England in not "at least trying" to smash the German "wet triangle," of which Heligoland is the apex and principal fortress.

Through their excursions abroad, however, American naval leaders have learned by and by and figured from facts and figures hitherto unavailable to the American navy—that any naval attack on Heligoland is not only impracticable, but, and furthermore, the impression has grown here since some of the hitherto secret information has spread among officers of the service, that an attack on Heligoland is unnecessary as well. The "commercial blockade," although a slow process, will eventually and so confidently believed, the same effect that a breaking through of the German naval defense would have immediately. And, furthermore, it is now considered that an attack on Heligoland is the very thing that the Germans hope for. They hope for it because, knowing that naval attack on fortified shores is invariably more costly to naval forces than to land defenses, they may be able to cripple the allied fleets to such an extent that their own would be an early ally with the British and a naval excursion from beyond their headlands with the prospect of a victory which would open the way to the sea and within the realm of possibilities. As it is now, they are helpless above water, and their submarines, on the word of competent officials, are losing more in effectiveness every day and hour that the war continues.

LOCAL BREVITIES

Entertainment at Hanson—The school children and members of the America and Leo W. clubs will give an entertainment and bazaar at the Hanson school house tomorrow evening, Friday, November 30, for the benefit of the Red Cross.

Box Social Success—The box social given by the public school at Berger, Friday evening, was a grand affair. The proceeds of the sale of thirty boxes amounted to $128.00, which will go toward purchasing a Victrola for the Berger school. An interesting and program was given by the children of the school.

Raided Lots of Eggs—Mrs. Almon of Pleasant View Ranch has sold this summer from April until the first of November, two hundred and eighty six dozen eggs. Her seventy chickens are Rhode Island Red and Plymouth Rocks. She is now giving them extra care and hopes to reach the three hundred mark before long.

Miss Nola Starr of Wendell visited friends and relatives in Twin Falls and vicinity last week.

Married in Church—The first religious ceremony in the new Presbyterian church was performed last Friday when Rev. A. H. Brand united in marriage Joseph D. Kohl and Miss Ona Green, both prominent local people.

G. A. R. Ladies Edition—The ladies of the G. A. R. will hold their regular monthly business meeting in the G. O. F. hall on Saturday afternoon, December 1. All members are urged to be present as there will be an election of officers.

Stone Leaves on Bushman—A. J. Stone of the Alfred J. Brown Seed company has gone to Montana and Washington on a business trip. He says that those interested in moving pea or bean contracts with his company while gone can do so at either the warehouse or by calling "Ed" Wilson of Thomas Barrington. He says that if bean men produce sufficient acreage his company contemplates getting planters to furnish bean growers another year.

El Crippen Grade—D. Marquard of Jarbridge, who was in the city yesterday, said that things are progressing nicely, the Crippen grade is being repaired and the "big" machinery for the Long Hike will be hauled this way.

Gammaler's Agala Up—Emma and R. H. Gammaler have been cited to appear in the probate court December 3 on account of alleged cruel treatment to their little girl, Eleanor. Gammaler was previously fined on a similar charge.

Alfred Wants Hay—Wire was received today at the office of County Agent John M. Harney. Alfred, head of the state bureau of farm markets, that thousands of tons of hay would be wanted at $20 a ton by the bureau or through the bureau. He urged all interested to inquire either of him or of County Agent McLean. There is a discrepancy of about $2 a ton between the price here and at Kansas City, but as cars are not available and as it is not known what the price will be when they are, hay owners are not getting as much comfort out of this as they otherwise might.

Filching Boys Arrested—Emil Neuman, a fifteen-year-old stepson of a man named Reed, who lives across the street from the South Park grocery, and another boy about the same age named Lester Samuelson, were taken into custody yesterday by Probation Officer V. H. Ormsby. The boys on being charged with purloining things said that they had taken three extra auto tires which they sold that they sold at the Jensen second hand store. They also admitted that they had long been in the habit of extracting meat and groceries from wagons and autos. They said that they took these to their homes where they were accepted without question. They were taken to where they came from. The National boy said that he and a younger half-brother, aged nine years, had helped their stepfather haul hay from other people's fields for their team. Neuman was paroled to go to the Biney & Gould sheep ranch at Richfield, the proprietors of which asked the boy and said that he would make good. The father of the Samuelson boy promised to inquire where he got things, to keep him at school and to keep him in nights, as he was also let out on trial.

JULIAN ELTINGE IN "THE COUNTESS CHARMING"

GOOD LOOKING AND FUNNY THIS GREATEST OF WOMAN IMPERSONATORS IS SEEN IN THE SCREAMINGLY FUNNY FARCE AT IDAHO COMMENCING TODAY

STAR OF "COUSIN LUCY" THE FASCINATING "WIDOW" AND OTHER BRILLIANT SUCCESSFUL AND BRILLIANT PLAY OF FUN FARCE AND FICTION.

WHEN you see Julian Eltinge "all dolled up" in feminine finery at the Idaho this week, you'll know why he is considered the greatest impersonator of women in the world.

As the Russian Countess in "The Countess Charming" he surpasses anything he has ever done in his brilliant stage career. In this play he fools sweetheart, friends and foes alike, and winds up in a peck of trouble because he fooled the peck of a man.

Fixes Fashions to Gowns

For a number of years Mr. Eltinge has made a sensation on the stage by the number and gorgeousness of his gowns and in his first photodramatic production, he introduces an entirely new wardrobe of unusual variety and style.

A Real Life Play

The plot is a whirlwind comedy in which the audience is "let-in," but in which the suspense is kept throughout as the "real" character as a beautiful Countess steals to help the Red Cross fund and himself to a bride.

Vandeville and Maude

The vaudeville program for

Thursday and the days following looks unusual, when Miss Georgia Chatterbox is booked, a comedienne and whistler who comes exceptionally highly recommended. On the same bill are Marvin and Winters in "Cabaret Capers," an original novelty number.

With the Film Folk

WITH the release of Cecil B. DeMille's superb photoproduction of "The Woman God Forgave," the new Artcraft spectacle featuring Geraldine Farrar, the production may be confidently made that it promises to equal, if not surpass, the splendid record achieved by "The Sign of the Cross" in which the celebrated diva made her first cinema appearance under Artcraft auspices.

This may seem a strange thing to say of a man, but it is nevertheless true. Julian Eltinge, the talented female impersonator, actually has a handsomer wardrobe of women's gowns than most stars or screen stars. He shows many of these off to good advantage in "The Countess Charming."

Yosemite hasn't the waterfalls in California. They've got 'em all at the Mack Sonnet studio, where Paramount comedies are being reated. It required six months to build and will be destroyed in one minute by an explosion following its appearance in a forthcoming fun film.

Jazzville has been created in California territory, where the scenes of the stressful comedy, "A Country Hero," which will be a vehicle for Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle, are being staged. The story, which is being developed in the streets of this quaint village will be one of the most original, as well as the funniest, that has ever been done into a film.

Dorothy Dalton, Ince's famous Triangle star, has completed her first picture for Paramount under Mr. Ince's direction. The title of her latest production is "The Price Mark."

Being expelled from school, running away twice, interrupting an elopement and impersonating a famous dancer are only a very few of the many adventures that keep pretty little Ann Pennington of the Zigfield Follies busy in her latest Paramount picture, "The Antic of Ann," which is to be the attraction at the Idaho first of the week.

Postoffice Open Today—Instead of mail delivery today the postoffice will be open from 2:30 to 3:30 to accommodate patrons, under conditions usual on holidays.

Has New Flag—Uncle Sam's experts have figured out that flags on public buildings should last a year. This does not work out where the ozone flows as freely as it does here, so it takes a lot of red tape to requisition new ones. The second flag for the postoffice during the year has been torn to pieces by the zephyr and while a third one has been promised it has not yet arrived, so the postmaster ordered one himself at his own expense to replace the unsightly remains left of the last official one.

Has McClure Books—On account of numerous requests for his book "Obstacles to Peace," while here, S. S. McClure the noted writer and journalist made arrangements with Miss Jessie Warrington to handle a few of them for him. The book was pronounced by The Nation, the famous critical review to be the best war book, and it is said to show the inwardness of the great struggle, as no other work which has yet appeared.

Miss Warrington who, as a result of the inhalation of smoke during the fire some weeks ago, is still unable to resume her work in the county auditor's department, may be found at her home at 121 Seventh avenue north, or reached by telephoning to No. 898.

PIANO FOR SALE
We have on hand near Hollister a new high grade piano which if disposed of at once can be purchased at a substantial reduction in price. Quality absolutely guaranteed. Liberal terms to responsible party. If interested in a proposition of this kind, don't fail to write THE DENVER MUSIC COMPANY at Denver, Colo., at once for particulars.

Are You Proud of Your Furniture?

When your guests come, do you feel like apologizing for your furniture, or do you feel like displaying it to your friends? Does its quality and beauty reflect your good taste, or does it convict you of lack of care in its selection? Only Furniture really worth while should enter your home. Cheap Furniture raises false standards of taste and taste before your children. Association with beautiful furniture helps to mould beautiful characters.

Good Furniture is the cheapest to buy. Good Furniture lasts. Its charm increases with age. Round it are associated many fond memories. Cheap Furniture soon looks shabby. It must soon be replaced. It is neither comfortable or useful. Its life is so short that it is really more expensive than the better kind. Our Furniture is the better kind. It will serve you long and faithfully. Its quality is unquestioned, our prices are fair—we are the store of fair prices.

WHO gets the freest use and the most economical service from his enclosed car?

The owner of a heavy machine, or the motorist who drives the easy, scientific light-weight Franklin Sedan?

The experienced motorist has found out that real enclosed car utility is closely related to Franklin principles of automobile building.

Principles that have made the Franklin Sedan so popular for all-around use.

Its direct air cooling system, that eliminates radiator freeze-ups and resulting damage.

Its comfort, its safety, its reliability—the result of Franklin scientific weight saving and simplicity.

Its remarkable economy in upkeep and operation, so necessary during these days of national thrift.

Everything you demand in an Enclosed Car is fundamental in the Franklin Sedan—a most economical and sensible car to use.

Morbid Crowd at De Saullies Trial

Women Faint as They Try to Crowd Into Room—Defendant Tells Dramatic Story.

MINEOLA, L. I., Nov. 26.—Three women fainted and many were hurt and several men lost parts of their heads when the doors were opened after the noon recess today in the trial of Mrs. Blanca de Saullies. Hundreds jammed their way into the narrow passageway, pushed, shored and elbowed into the doors, a mass of screaming, crying humanity that got beyond the control of the policeman. With the force of an avalanche they rushed the doors, hurled them both open and poured pell mell and on top of one another into the court room.

In the rush one young girl was buried to the floor and was only saved from serious injury by bailiffs who fought to hurl back the crowd.

In the midst of the excitement Justice Manning appeared from his private chambers and rapped for order. With his face white with passion, the judge ordered that the court room be closed.

"Such conduct is worse than disgraceful," the court said. "Clear the court room of all but newspaper folk and permit those to come in who have passes."

"When the chairs are all filled, then close the doors and clear the hall," the court said. "This is not a circus or a theater, but a court of justice."

ner as though it had been worn for a week. Mrs. Blanca de Saullies, opined for the murder of her husband was again clever, keen, flashing eyed Latin girl of former years when she took the witness stand today.

Without hesitation and apparently with well studied preparation, she answered the leading questions submitted to her by her counsel.

There was a slight flush to the usually pallid cheeks and an expression of the eyes which seemed to tell of the witness appreciation of the import of her testimony.

"Jack" de Saullies past was laid bare to her by her counsel. "I had $100,000 he was very much disappointed and said to me 'this is no money much'."

She then told of the many amounts she had given him ranging from $500 up to $16,000. She told of two blank checks she had signed before leaving on a trip to Europe. Those checks were later filled out by her husband for $8000 each, she said.

"When I asked him what had become of the money," she said he had paid it for a house on 78th street in New York city," she said. "Later I found that he had only paid $7500."

A copy of "Seven Topics" detailing the doings of the Duke of Manchester was then introduced because Mrs. de Saullies testified she had read it after having had her attention called to it by friends.

The article was a scorching denunciation of the Sunday brawls held in a cottage rented by the Duke at Premium Point, L. I.

The story told of how Jack de Saullies assisted the Duke in entertaining prominent dancers and devotees of the night life of Broadway, and of how dance clothes plunge into the ocean.

Later Mrs. de Saullies moved into the house at 78th street where she made a trip to receive her husband who was then in Canada.

On his return she said he told her he was going to Europe on war contracts. De Saullies did not return from Europe as he promised, she declared, but cabled her to meet him at London.

"When I arrived there he told me he could not go, but he was stopping at because he was too busy and there were too many men," she testified.

She went to visit her friend at another hotel, she declared and the subject of her separation caused much comment among her friends.

While in London she said she went to a hotel and asked if her husband was there.

"Who are you?" the clerk asked. "I am his wife," was the reply. "Who is he?" was the rejoinder.

On another occasion de Saullies showed her a card from a woman who was well known to the lower world.

"I asked him if he knew her well," she said, "and he told me he did."

"Then I asked if he ever kissed her and he said he did. That made me feel miserable."

By a peculiar trick of fate, she explained, she was prevented from talking to her husband on his return on his fatal trip. A misunderstanding of her husband's orders prevented the trip, she said, then adding:

"When I heard of his going down, I wished I was on it."

The witness said de Saullies drank a great deal and was in the habit of giving parties at home and then absenting himself.

"I was very unhappy," she added "and asked him if he wouldn't try and do better."

"He said he could not help the kind of a life he was living as he was not made to settle down."

She told him she wished to go home in China and he permitted it, she said. She sailed with her baby in 1915 and, as she left the United States she felt very happy to get away from him. She testified she did not tell her mother, or others about her married troubles.

Headquarters will be found temporarily in room 9 in the Baugh building in the room occupied by the recruiting office. It is with deep regret that the present quarters are vacated, which were placed at the disposal of the Red Cross only until such time as they should be restored.

The Red Cross sewing department is nicely settled in the basement of the Methodist church. The large sheets of material so long delayed has arrived and the knitting will be continued at the sewing room instead of the headquarters as formerly. Experienced knitters are badly needed as the demand for socks and sweaters increases as winter advances.

The Girl Who Was A Soldier Boy

HOW I WENT "OVER THERE" WITH PERSHING'S DIVISION By HAZEL CARTER

Mrs. Hazel Carter of Douglas, Ariz., is a young woman, twenty-two, whose young husband, Corporal John J. Carter of the United States Army, was ordered to France with the Pershing expedition. Determined to accompany him, she obtained a soldier's uniform and left in a motor car the day before the departure. After the arrival of the famous division in France, she was returned home again, but she is now in France.

It is a story of romance, dramatic in its qualities, full of the soldier color and still is of real news value, since Mrs. Carter is the first to relate the details of that voyage and safe arrival first hand—one that made history.

CHAPTER I I Decide to Go to France.

I T'S a long way from Douglas, Ariz., to "some port in France," but I made the trip flaked up as a dough-boy, and I would go farther than that to be near my husband. However, the "old man," as every commanding officer is called in the army, sent me back on the same transport after I had spent five days in port within sight of my husband, but out of reach, and five nights walking the floor and without sleep.

I am going back again—and pay my own way and let behind the lines and take care of the boys I know so well when they are hit. The income from these stories is going to help pay my fare, and then I want to fool the officers, as I did, with the regulation salute and "heels on the same line and as near to each other as the conformation of a man permits, knees straight without stiffness, body erect, from the hips including slightly forward; shoulders squared and falling evenly, arms and hands hanging naturally, back of hands outward, little finger opposite, seam of trousers, head erect, chin slightly drawn in without constraint, eyes looking straight in front, catching about fifteen feet forward. That is the position of a soldier." ... I looked them all right.

I think the authorities were mean not to permit me to land in France. As long as I was there, it seems to me, they might have stretched out their arms and allowed me to have had a look at the war. But they were firm. They said nothing by might set an example for their girls to follow and the first thing they knew Uncle Sam would have a row of lady soldiers on his march.

At that, I cannot see why I shouldn't be a soldier—and a good one, too. My grandfather fought in the civil war. My father was a regular in the Seventh Cavalry. I am the wife of a soldier, hurrying home and then I am going to the front. He is over there now on the job, doing his bit to make the world safe for democracy, as they say. And I am over here praying he won't stop a German whiz-bang while at it.

Exactly when the idea of posing as a "troop" came to me, who do not remember. My husband, John J. Carter, was a corporal in the Eighteenth Infantry, encamped at Douglas, Ariz. He belongs to K company. There was a lot of talk among the boys for a long time about being in the front line, but the boys of the Eighteenth would be sent. They used to come to our house in Pinalville, right outside of Douglas, when they were off duty and do a heap of surmising and guessing. Some of them thought they would be kept on the border to see that things remained quiet there and kid with the Mexicans. Others had a hunch they would follow Pershing to France. The old timers were pulling for the latter.

As I look back now I must have had the germ of the idea in the back of my head even then, though I never voiced it even to myself. You see, I was married only last December, and the thought of my husband going away and leaving me behind stirred my imagination. We were together for a year and a half before we dug up the prison. I wish I had that year and a half with him now.

One day Corporal Carter came home from the supply depot, where he had been on guard duty. The minute I saw his face I knew he had his orders. He was not excited, because he is an old timer at soldiering. He told me he was leaving the next day under secret orders. There was not much warning. The troops just packed up and left. I did not tell him I was going, too, because he knows I always go through with anything I take a notion to do and it might have worried him. But I had determined to make a try at it anyway. That evening, as he was packing the details of packing and getting off, I was pretty busy myself. I knew where there was a discarded khaki uniform, regulation army, that would fit me. By the uniform I mean the trousers, coat, shirt and campaign hat.

Ready to March. Getting the rest of my wardrobe was easy. I bought shoes, boy's size, which looked exactly like the army shoes. Canvas leggings and boy's underwear completed the outfit. I was ready and eager to go on the march. I was twenty-two and full of health and boyish in appearance. My husband said his farewell about noon. He was pretty blue, because he thought it would be goodby for a long time, perhaps for always. But he is first, last and always a soldier. I suppose he did it as a soldier should. I suppose he wondered that I took it so calmly, but of course he thought it was on the level and didn't realize what I had decided—had no hint of it, in fact. No sooner was he out of sight than I began to do some very tall bustling. I went to a lady barber and told her I wanted to have my hair cut close to my head, soldier style. I had an unusually good head of hair, long, luxuriant and black. The barber almost wept when I insisted it had to go. She cut it so I could part it on the side. The only thing I regretted was when she began shaving my neck. The razor made me realize I was in for something mighty big. I had a good laugh when I took my first peek in the mirror at myself as a boy. I went back to the lady barber and told her I wanted to have my hair cut soldier style. The sight of her scissors seemed to make her sad. She told me most folks wanted to grow hair—not lose it.

had to do something. It was now or never. My first danger was over. I had fooled a man who knew me. "Aw, quit your kiddin'!" I answered boldly. "No Fritz can get me a prisoner." The soldier passed on. I had changed my voice and talked slow. It sounded good. My first danger was over. I had fooled a man who knew me. Sleeping quarters had been assigned to the men. I did not know exactly what I was going to do, because I was an extra and nothing had been provided for me. I might have to sit up all night hidden away. But soon I saw the lines were not so strictly drawn. In the confusion of getting settled I grabbed a place and acted as if it belonged to nobody but me. I was in a compartment. Two other soldiers were there with me. We were well into New Mexico before I ventured forward into the troop cars. The men were having a great time, singing and talking and calling back and forth. You would never have guessed they had said goodby to those they loved only a few hours before. If there was any one among them inclined to weaken at their prospects he was too much of a man to show it. In one car where there was a number of good fellows they were harmonizing on the barber shop chord. Some one struck a big note. There was almost as much commotion as if it had been a dum-dum bullet. Soldiers always sang. The men had eaten a hearty dinner. They were tired from the bustle and heat of getting off. They began to drop off early. Once their heads hit the pillows they were dead to the world. You would think they had nothing more on their minds than a pleasant few weeks' outing, so peacefully they slept.

I began to feel like turning in myself. The prospect of bunking in a stateroom with two strange troopers did not frighten me. I was one of them. It was easy to avoid detection. We slept with all our clothes on but our hats and shoes.

In New Mexico, well out of Arizona, it was I first walked forward and passed my husband. I never gave him a glance, but he recognized me. I can't remember exactly what he said, but it was something like "My God, what are you doing here?" He was not as much surprised as I thought he would be. He said not to worry. He was not even angry.

"Now that you are on the train I suppose you might as well go as far as Chicago," he added. "But you will be a good girl and go straight home from there, won't you?"

I told him I would think it over, but I could not. I was doing this on my own responsibility, and it was not up to him to interfere. He was quartered three cars ahead of me. I used to sneak forward at night and try to reason with him about my going to France to join the Red Cross. I was still with the cooks. Whenever I heard any one coming I'd grab a dishpan or something and get very busy. If an officer gave me a suspicious glance I looked him square in the eye and stood at attention like the rest of the doughboys. Army officers are easy to fool.

Sometimes we laid up as long as twenty-four hours in a town. Whenever we stopped the soldiers had to get out and exercise. It was this standing order that saved me my first close call. We had been put on a siding in some town, and the troops were off stretching their legs. I was sitting in a seat talking with a young sergeant when an officer came through.

"What are you two fellows doing here?" he asked me. "Why aren't you out at exercise?" I don't mean he was gruff. The United States army officers treat their men well. We were on our feet and out of the car in a minute. I turned around and came right back. The "C. O." did not say a word. I thought he was a couple of lazy rookies. There were so many young men among the recruits—mere boys some of them. They had to obtain the consent of their parents before they could enlist. I passed for one of these boy soldiers.

Firits With Girl. It was fun stopping at the towns. The people came down to see the troop cars and they certainly certainly treated us royally. They brought us fruit and candy and cigarettes and all sorts of delicacies. The girls were especially enthusiastic. They struck up conversations with the soldiers, exchanged addresses and promised to write. I talked with a number of girls on the way and managed to fool them. (Continued on page 3)

THE GIRL WHO WAS A SOLDIER

All there is a packet of mail waiting in France now for Private Leo C. Carter. That is the name I gave. I remember particularly the little girl in a small town in Ohio. She was about twenty years old, dark, very pretty and very sentimental on the subject of soldiers.

"Where do you come from?" she called to me, as I was sitting in the car window. "Arizona," I replied. "Where are you going?" "Somewhere in France!" I answered proudly and hopefully too. She looked so shocked that I got out and talked with her. We chatted for quite a while. She told me her address and said she would keep me posted on things back home when I was in the trenches. I carried the thing through to the end. I even kissed her at parting. She was awfully surprised, but thrilled at the romance of the situation: Being a Romeo is easier than being a soldier.

Just before we reached Chicago my husband came to me and begged me not to go on.

"It will be better for you to go home with the folks," he said. "You can study nursing and get the Red Cross as soon as you qualify."

"Yes," I replied, "I can spend months in preparation, and when I finish they will send me to the eastern front or put me on some hospital ship or keep me on duty here in the U. S. A. Not for me, I will not do that. I want to go before. If I along there will be a chance of my being sent for duty back of your lines. At least I will request that position."

"I command you to return," he said in his sternest military manner.

"I'll think it over," I said. "I'll think it over," I said. "I'll think it over," I said. "I'll think it over," I said.

Rogerson School Has Great Fair

Splendid Program and Many Prizes Features of the Gathering Last Week.

Fully 150 parents and children gathered at the Rogerson school house on Tuesday night to hear the fine school program, rendered by the pupils of the Rogerson school, under the able direction of their teachers, Mrs. Abbie Leighton and Miss Bertha Meyer, which was followed with talks by Miss Britton, Wolf, county superintendent; Miss Z. Fay Fowler, state club leader; Mrs. Alpha Holt, in charge of food conservation in this part of the state; County Agent McLean and Mr. Anderson, chief of grazing, from the district forest office at Ogden, Utah. Mr. Anderson gave a very interesting exposition of the work the government is doing to improve the range conditions and the results they have obtained since the ranges have been so administered. He had a lantern and slides and illustrated the lesson as he went along. Mr. Campbell, supervisor of the Mindoka forest assisted him in this and answered the questions about the administration of the forest after the talk was over.

This program followed the school fair which had lasted all day. There were good exhibits of potatoes, grains and garden truck which were judged by Mr. McLean. The Rogerson people themselves were much surprised at the things that could be raised in their district. The live stock which was a good display of dairy cows, draft horses, and horses, sheep and animals, were judged by H. T. Avery, County Agent of Lincoln county, who gave the boys talks on why he placed animals as he did as he judged. There was a large and interesting crowd of youngsters and grown-ups following him the whole time.

Mrs. Holt judged the domestic science and conducted a hot-making contest in which four teams of girls entered and were very interested. Miss Fowler and Miss Wolfe judged the school work, which showed excellent attainments for this early in the year. The teachers deserve great credit in getting up such a creditable fair which was the first effort of anything of this kind ever made in that part of the county.

The merchants contributed generously for prize money and the whole district showed the community spirit in the way they attended and backed up the efforts of the teachers. They hope to make this an annual affair. There is no question of its educational value to both the scholars and people in the community. The list of awards follows:

The Dolco Light people came down from Twin Falls and brought with them the entire hall with electricity. This added greatly to the pleasure of the evening.

A prominent credit man recently said that he considers A Merchant who still clings to Horse and Wagon Delivery a Bad Risk.

The profit and loss account of America is being written by machinery. Methods that made men rich yesterday will make them poor today. The nose-bag has no place in a progressive community. With corn at one dollar a bushel and gasoline at twenty odd cents a gallon the most extravagant truck is a money saver. But the is the thriftiest truck ever built. A penny counter, a general expense reducer. The greatest single force for better business that the past year has witnessed. At this moment when conservation of energy, time and dollars is so vital to national welfare, when merchants are making so many unexpected outlays—the Maxwell is fighting for economical administration, laboring day and night at a minimum wage and furnishing competent and reliable transportation at the lowest load cost at which goods have been carried in our time. Maxwell maintenance and repair bills are the lowest of record. It furnishes American Commerce, never so sadly in need of labor, a truck which even a boy can operate and understand. Just the right size for the average firm. 2400 pounds. But muscled for giant burdens. Worm drive—a feature hitherto associated with the highest priced trucks. Sold under the same guarantee as $5000 trucks are. Electric lights and generator. 10-foot loading space. 16 miles to the gallon. The lowest priced one-ton truck in the world and sold on liberal terms. $985; and it will earn its cost out of the savings it effects. Pays its way from day to day.

ward a 'new civil rights' bill, sometimes called the soldiers' and sailors' 'moratorium' bill, designed to protect men in both arms of the service against the annoyance of legal complications while at war, and to prevent unscrupulous persons taking advantage of their absence in the courts. The measure sent to congress at the last session was believed unconstitutional and it will be presented in a somewhat changed form to meet the objections raised against it. Several important measures relating to the draft are ready for presentation. Among these are the Chamberlain bill declaring aliens, with certain exceptions, liable to the draft. The measure has been passed by the senate, but was held up in the house at the administration's request to avoid international complications. Efforts will be made to have it passed at an early date in order to make more than a million aliens available for the army.

men that composed the Farm Bureau in favor of limiting the number of proxy votes that any one man could represent, but since the Farm Bureau feels that they are the "whole cheese", they seem to have no chance to make good, and the danger of having an amendment and as the Farm Bureau president explained in answer to my inquiry "they were too busy at the special meeting to attend to it."
The president claimed that in electing directors for three years, the danger of dispensing with efficient men before they have had a chance to make good, and the danger of having an entire new board will be eliminated; yet in the face of these assertions, they propose to make an entire change in the personnel of the board, but as a majority of the candidates are Farm Bureau men, we are asked to assume that they are fully competent and safe men to tie up; but are they?
Are men who will either deliberately approve of such uncalculated and arrogant methods as these, or else be willing to be led blindly around by an ambitious organizer, safe men to intrust with the management of our affairs?
Personally I have always insisted on a board who would do their own thinking, and I see no reason for changing my views at this time; but now it seems that under the present regime we do not need a board who will do any thinking, as other powers behind the throng will do that "for them" gratis, and our system will be controlled by a ring within a ring.

The president of the Farm Bureau openly made the statement that the Farm Bureau was the only body of means by which we could depend upon—securing good men for directors, and if we would leave the matter with them that we could rest assured that the system would be properly managed.
Considerable objection has been made to the plan of employing a 19000 board to supervise a high priced manager, and that we will be going to the other extreme; but even if this 9000 should prove to be a virtual waste, it is of comparatively little consequence, for this leak could be easily corrected by the stockholders, but these other evils once firmly seated will remain long after the 9000 are forgotten.
It would seem that the only feasible plan now is to make the most of it and try and secure competent men for directors, and among the old board, carefully chosen as they have been by different localities, surely there is at least one who would make an efficient man for the coming year.
