ARMY AVIATORS JUMP OFF FOR ALASKA FLIGHT

Four Planes Leave Mitchell Field, Long Island, on 9,000 Mile Round Trip to Nome as Trail Blazers

MINEOLA, N. Y., (AP)—Four army airplanes, comprising the Alaskan flying expedition, left Mitchell field, Long Island, at 12:33 o'clock this afternoon on a 9,000-mile round trip flight to Nome, Alaska, one of the longest and most difficult air trips ever attempted in the Western hemisphere.

Mitchell Gives Signal.
The expedition was started on its historic flight by Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, director of the army air service operations, who came here today from Washington to give the "take off" signal.

While weather conditions were not ideal for flying, the pilots were assured by the government weather bureau that general weather conditions for the first 350-mile leg to Erie, Pa., would be good.

The expedition, headed by Captain St. Clair Street, United States air service, on reaching its Alaskan destination, will fly 100 miles to Cape Prince of Wales, which will bring it within 50 miles of the continent of Asia.

Purposes of Flight.
The flight to blaze the way for an aerial route to the northwest corner of the American continent. Data for the establishment of an air mail route to the interior of Alaska will also be obtained, as well as information that will be valuable for the development of commercial air routes into the far north. The expedition will take approximately 45 days.

Each plane will carry an army pilot and a mechanic or observer. Sixteen stops have been provided, the distance between stations ranging from 200 to 350 miles. From Mitchell field the planes will fly to Erie, Pa., and thence to Grand Rapids, Mich. The remainder of the route lies along the northern border of the United States to Saskatoon, Canada, and thence northward to Alaska. Army photographers will travel in two of the planes for the purpose of obtaining a pictorial record of the trip.

Carry Message to Amundsen.
Before the machines "took off" Captain Street was handed messages of congratulation to carry to Explorer Ronald Amundsen, who is expected to arrive at Nome early in August by way of the northeast passage, having circumnavigated the globe north of 63°.

The messages are from William H. Garrison, president of the Explorers Club of New York; Henry Fairfield Osborn, president of the American museum of natural history, and officials of the Norwegian government.
Carefully Selected Personnel.
The personnel of the expedition had been carefully selected. Captain Street, flight commander, will fly in No. 1 machine, as an observer and mechanic. Sergeant Edmund Henriques, Lieutenant Clifford C. Nutt, pilot of No. 2 machine, is second in command, carrying Observer Lieutenant Eric H. Nelson, engineering officer of the flight and also a pilot. Lieutenant C. H. Cummings, photographer, will fly in No. 3 plane, had Sergeant Long as mechanic and observer, who was substituted for Sergeant A. T. Harris, withdrawn from the flight assignment because of the early expiration of his enlistment. Lieutenant Ross Kirkpatrick, pilot of No. 4 machine, is the expedition officer of the expedition, and is accompanied by Master Electrician J. E. English, as observer and mechanic.

Fourteen Year Old Girl Killed and Probably Fifty Injured in Accidents Resulting from Congestion in Streets

CHICAGO, (AP)—A 14-year-old girl was killed and probably 50 persons injured today in automobile accidents resulting from congestion caused by an unexpected strike of 125 power house electricians which seriously crippled the street car lines. The elevated lines were not affected.

The girl was killed when a motor truck carrying 40 persons to work crashed into a telegraph pole. The strike affects 3000 workers, according to union officials, but the company declares that it can maintain partial service with non-union employees.

Street car officials said that 140 cars were running on the principal lines this morning and that more would be added through the day.
The company was given practically no warning of the strike. Union officials said the men were demanding increases in pay of about 35 per cent. The strike was authorized for 8 a. m. today at a series of meetings last night but the men walked out an hour earlier. The strikers also express dissatisfaction over working conditions and declare that non-union men have been employed by the company.

Dr. W. H. Aaron has returned from an absence of some weeks and has resumed his duties as chief of the Main avenue north, opposite Perrine Hotel.—adv.

Sir Thomas Lipton conversing with members of the crew of the Shamrock IV, his challenger for the America's Cup. The photograph was made at the Horse Dry Dock, Brooklyn, L. I., where the challenger and defender were measured and fitted in preparation for the first of the series of races on July 15.

Animals as well as Prophets.
Few believers are older or more widespread than that animals, and especially wild animals, have foreknowledge of what the weather is to be, and something that amounts to such foreknowledge many of them doubtless do possess, but there is no reason, and only poor excuse, for assuming that there is a source of information accurate enough and of application remote enough to give any appreciable extension to the weather bureau's prognostications.—Exchange.

Daughter's Comeback.
Mother—"Shame on you, Dorothy! The idea of letting a boy whom you've known only a week, kiss you! Why, when I was your age a girl was considered vulgar who would let a boy even hold her hand until he'd known her several months." Daughter (tossing her head)—"And didn't you say, once, mother that it used to take you two weeks to go from New York to Chicago?"—Xale Record.

A Love Story in Japan.
What would the American reader think, having been brought by the author to that place where the hero's voice becomes soft and the heroine blushes and lowers her eyes, to see a row of asterisks indicating a foot-note, which says: "At this point he asked her to marry him." That is what the Japanese have done in the love scene in "John Hatfield's Confession," so that it might accord with their peculiar sense of delicacy.—World Outlook.

Standard English Pound.
The original English pound was derived from the weight of 7,680 grains of wheat taken from the middle of the ears and well dried. This remained the standard from the time of William the Conqueror to the time of Henry VIII, in whose reign the avoirdupois pound of 7,000 grains came into use. This was established as the standard pound during the reign of Queen Elizabeth and has been continued to the present day.

A Learned Capital.
Aurau, capital of the Swiss canton of Argovia, possesses one of the hardest working libraries in the world. Though the library consists of only 50,000 volumes—which is so large as public institutions go in the United States—the population of the capital itself is only 10,000. With eight volumes per inhabitant, the library of Aurau has just cause to boast of itself as a miniature Athens.

Tree Furnished Timber for Church.
A unique church has recently been completed in Santa Rosa, Cal. Every piece of timber in it, except the floor, was cut from one tree—a giant redwood 32 feet in diameter. The tree, which produced 78,000 feet of timber, grew on a high mountain range near Greenville, 15 miles from the Pacific ocean, and when cut was found to be about eight hundred years old.

Useful Kerosene.
Housewives, with but few exceptions, do not properly value kerosene. As a lubricant a drop or two will set things going which refused to go before. As a cleanser it can often be used with great advantage in place of soap and water. Floors can be more quickly and more thoroughly cleaned with a well-oiled mop than with soap and water, leaving a bright shining surface.

Cornish Tin Miners.
The men who work in the Cornish tin mines are a class by themselves, and all their differences are adjusted by the statutory courts, as they are called from the Latin word stannum. These curious courts have existed in their present form since the middle of the thirteenth century, and, in a simpler form, much earlier; and the miners claim to be free from all other jurisdiction, "except in matters affecting the land, life or limb."

Got Her Pommes.
Mary had attended Sunday school for the first time. Upon reaching home she was asked by her mother: "Mary, what did you do at Sunday school today?" To which Mary made the immediate reply: "Oh, nothing much. They took me down in the basement of the church and took my pommes away from me."

Two Causes of "Eye Spots."
Spots before the eyes are of two kinds, namely floating and stationary. The former is a normal effect from natural imperfections of the eye, more noticeable in case of digestive disturbances. The stationary spots are a symptom of cataract, or opacity of the crystalline lens.

Milk From Coconut.
Along the Orange river natives have an ingenious way of producing "milk." After cutting the top from a coconut they place it over ashes so that the warmth may cause the fat and "buttermilk" contained in the husk to be absorbed by the milk; this changes the milk's quantity and gives it a palatable taste.

Introduction of the Umbrella.
The umbrella was used in England as a luxurious sunshade early in the seventeenth century. Ben Jonson mentions it in a comedy produced in 1616. The eighteenth century had half disappeared before the umbrella had even begun to be used in England by every person as it is now.

Remedies for Cholera.
Old-fashioned Turkish physicians have plenty of remedies for cholera. An agate in the pocket and a hyacinth worn near the neck are much esteemed, but the bone of a dead child carried in the pocket is regarded as nearly as efficacious.

The Tricolor.
This really owes its origin to Mary Queen of Scots. It was she who, according to tradition, gave the tricolor device to Paris—the white to represent the house of her royal husband, the dauphin, the blue for Scotland, and the red for the red-coated Swiss of the royal bodyguard. The French tricolors in 1789 adopted Mary's colors for their own.

Opportunity for Every Boy.
"It was a wise dispensation of Providence to have invented so many games for boys that every boy can pick out at least one in which he can excel all rivals, and have the memory of his prowess to support him when he has grown old."

How Feet Reveal Character.
A foot may be known by six things: Anger, without speech; speech, without profit; change, without progress; inquiry, without object; putting trust in a stranger, and mistaking foes for friends.—Arabian Proverb.

Uncivilized People Led.
The Indian mind is called imitative rather than initiative, but in the employment of designs it is stated on authority that every known weave has been first used by uncivilized people.

Industry's Advantage.
In the ordinary business of life, industry can do anything which genius can do, and very many things which it cannot.—Beecher.

Customs Worth Preserving.
In Bavaria, before the war at least, there were all sorts of kindly little celebrations and other things which made life friendlier and more pleasant. If an employee had remained in the same place for five, seven, ten years, etc., his employer frequently gave him a sort of little jubilee celebration. Nor did the employer forget the chief's birthday or "namesday." Nothing expensive—a glass or two of wine, a cake, a little friendly speech.

THE COURAGE TO ECONOMIZE

Considerably more than a century ago Benjamin Franklin propounded to the American people a gospel of thrift upon which was established the prosperity of the republic. His homely advice to take care of the pennies, to keep everlastingly and jealous watch upon the odds and ends of extravagance and waste were followed by the founders of the nation, of necessity as well as of choice. His advice, valued in the days when the land was being rough-hewn from the wilderness, became invaluable to the struggling states recovering from a long and exhausting war for independence. Americans saved, and from their economies rose the colossal prosperity that marked ensuing decades.

With plenty came less need to conserve, and with a slackening of the grip of necessity came a weakening of the will to save. Prosperity became commonplace. And with the distribution of wealth, and an easing of the bonds of circumstance, came a lessened respect for thrift. Men took pride not so much in what they saved as in what they spent. They feared to be thought niggardly. Rather than be thought penny wise they preferred to be pound foolish.

The pity of it is that the extravagance which in recent years has become a national characteristic has not been confined to those who could most afford it. It has invaded all ranks and has been most pronounced by men and women who sought to clothe their modest circumstances by a show of plenty. There is a story told—and a true one—of a millionaire and a young friend who were walking down one of our great shopping avenues. It was the day when a half dollar would buy a good pair of suspenders—and suspenders were worn. The younger man was about to enter a haberdashery to spend his half dollars when his more experienced mentor saw a sign across the street advertising suspenders at 45 cents. He called his friend's attention to it. "Oh, I wouldn't walk across that street to save five cents," the prosperous youth remarked. "Young man," said the veteran of finance, "I work a year—sometimes longer—to make it to the end of my money. You have a chance here to save as much in five minutes."

There is food for thought here for every employer and every employee; for every household in the land. We should not be ashamed to practice the small economies. We may some day be ashamed if we don't.

WHERE TO BUY

Much has been said and written as to the causes and reasons for the high cost of living during the last three years. Numerous investigations have been started at several points and shown more or less speed for a time. Some of these investigations are yet going and some are gone. But no decrease in the cost of living has been noticeable.

A few dealers in life's necessities have been prosecuted found guilty and have paid fines. And the high cost of living goes merrily on.

The prosecution and conviction of a few small profiteers semi-occasionally will not bring down the cost of living as long as present conditions which control the supply of necessities exist in foodstuffs and wearing apparel in the cities and towns produce any part of that in which they deal. Every article, from the greatest to the smallest, comes originally, in some form, from the farm. Many articles of food and clothing are put through many processes of manufacture, refining, etc., before they reach the ultimate consumer. Nevertheless, they are the product of the farm—not of the manufacturer or the refiner.

A concentrated effort on the part of the country's consumers to get and keep more people interested in farming will solve the problem of the high cost of living.

Tenantless stores or dwellings in any city or town bring about low rents, and the longer they remain tenantless the lower the rent of necessity goes. Likewise tenantless farms bring about high prices of foodstuffs and wearing apparel. And the longer farms remain tenantless the higher go prices of these commodities.

The war called our boys from the farms. Thousands of them gave up their lives for their country. Thousands were disabled for life and other thousands have found other occupations more to their liking. Consequently we have thousands of tenantless farms.

Just as long as these farms remain tenantless, just so long will the cost of living soar skyward, though we hang a profiteer every morning before breakfast.

And not alone in the agricultural sections does this condition exist. In Allegheny county, Pa., the county in which lies the industrial center of Pittsburgh, there are many tenantless farms, according to a report of the state department of agriculture. It says:

"State agricultural experts who have been going over reports in regard to tenantless farms believe there are over 200 in Allegheny county. Almost 100 have been listed and in some cases photographs have been taken of the buildings on idle farms which are in a good condition and could be worked at a profit. In Armstrong, Butler, Washington and Westmoreland counties there are also a number of idle farms, some of which, state reports say, look as though they had been abandoned entirely by their owners."

How any thinking person could hope for worth-while relief from the high cost of living with conditions like this existing is not quite clear.

Every encouragement possible should be offered able-bodied men and women to take up farm life. They are needed on the farms today just as much as were our boys in France in '17. And they will find the task much more pleasant and particularly remunerative than did the boys over there.

FARM FIRE'S TOLL

Of 39,306 fires involving farm property in the United States last year, 75 per cent were due to negligence and preventable, according to figures compiled by the National Board of Fire Underwriters. Uninsured buildings or those insured in local mutual companies destroyed by flames are not included in the total. The loss is estimated at $18,169,701.

Analysis of the loss shows that lightning was the principal incendiary and that not one building fitted with lightning rods properly wired was destroyed by fire this started. Years ago the farm building without its lightning rods was an exception; today the reverse is true. Defective chimneys, which a little care would remedy, come second as a cause.

A farm house is not often set afire by lightning, but barns are its especial prey. Being filled with material that is readily inflammable they quickly ignite, and usually nothing can be done to check the flames. Since the means of fighting fire once started in the farm buildings is so limited, due to isolation, it would seem that regard for one's welfare would demand careful inspection of fire hazards. A heavy charge is made against neglect by entirely preventable farm fires, with a loss last year of $4,000,000. High cost of replacement would seem to make it this year of wisdom to exercise the proverbial ounce of prevention.

"HOLLISTER — Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hazard are 'at home' to their friends, residing at corner Main and Idaho street."

Haying and irrigation are in full swing, and crop prospects are fully 20 per cent above 1919.

Word has been received that Mrs. C. Cavanagh's condition is much improved. She is taking treatment at Rochester, Minn.

C. W. McKee and family of Minidoka have moved to Hollister to make their home.

Harold Beatty made a shipment of lambs from Rogerson Tuesday for Chicago.

Mrs. E. L. Hazard's condition is reported to be much improved. She is still greatly troubled with asthma.

E. A. Beckman is Thursday on a business trip to Salt Lake City.

Friends of the Chautauque backed up the committee Saturday evening and contracted for a four-day course for 1921, to come, probably, during the latter part of July.

BANK CLEARINGS

Bank clearings for the week ending last Saturday amounted to $225,530.44. With the exception of the annual holiday the total shows a decline over the previous week, but the daily average holds up. By days the clearings were: Tuesday, $187,420.44; Wednesday, $158,211.28; Thursday, $131,716.20; Friday, $105,990.78; Saturday, $136,051.04.

I only took two or three doses but they did the work."

STATE'S WHEAT CROP IS GREAT

State Statistician Returns Illuminating and Pleading Report on Outlook

That the outlook for wheat is excellent in this state is the gist of a statement contained in a general crop report just issued by the statistician of agriculture in Idaho, Julius H. Jacobson.

Mr. Jacobson avers Idaho will produce more than four million bushels of wheat this year than was produced in 1919. He intimates there will also be larger crops of oats, barley and rye than were gathered last harvest. A potato crop of nearly a million bushels, too, will result from this season's cultivation of Idaho acres over the crop of last year. The prospective hay crop, the expert says, is more than half a million tons greater than in 1920. In addition, there is a double acreage of sugar beets this year; the largest prune crop ever borne on Idaho trees and a bumper apple yield in sight.

The report says:

Crop prospects for the state as a whole are better than during the past three years. There have been fairly rains followed by excellent growing weather. Ranges are growing luxuriantly. North Idaho is on hand with one of her own times bumper crops. The total storage for the Boise reclamation project is 90,000 acre feet in excess of a year ago. Jackson Lake reservoir has about three times more water than a year ago and the needs of that vast irrigation empire from Ashton to Buhl, 240 miles in length, are being well cared for.

The railroads will be taxed to their limit in moving the crops to market. Additional storage facilities are imperative or else the farmers stand to lose heavily.

The total wheat crop now indicates a production of approximately 4,200,000 bushels, a decline of three hundred ninety-seven thousand bushels from last month. Oats gained two hundred sixty-four thousand bushels since last month, totaling nine million. Four hundred thirty thousand bushels. Barley also improved and now indicates a crop of one million one hundred thirty-three thousand bushels since June 1.

Wheat acreage is placed at 37,000 acres, or a gain of 1000 acres over last year. A year ago the condition was only 75 per cent of normal and the final crop amount was 3,500,000 bushels. The present condition is 95 per cent of normal, forecasting a final crop of 4,200,000 bushels. According to the report, figures at hand, southern Idaho shipped 6727 cars of potatoes from July 1, 1919, to May 31, 1920, compared with 5000 cars in 1919. Total, 5605 cars; Twin Falls and Jerome branches, 2103 cars; Ada, Canyon, Gem and Owyhee counties, 351 cars; other counties, 451 cars. All of these districts show increased acreage and with the present high condition holding up through the season, there will be in the neighborhood of 9000 cars shipped from this territory.

It is interesting to note that the estimate of the condition of the crop made last November was 6320 cars, within 100 cars of actual shipments, or less than 1 per cent.

Wheat crop improvement from last month. A condition of 94 per cent of normal forecasts two million two hundred thirty-four tons. In July, 1919, the condition was only 60 per cent and the final crop amounted to one million seven hundred fifty thousand tons.

MAINTAIN EMBARGO ON STOCK IMPORTS

Secretary Meredith Announces Ban is Still on Against the Australian Cattle

The embargo against the importation of Australian cattle and sheep into the United States will not be lifted until the Australian authorities succeed in eradicating contagious pleuro-pneumonia from their country. This was stated by Edwin T. Meredith, secretary of the department of agriculture, in a letter to an inquirer upon this subject.

The inquirer called attention to an article published in an Australian trade paper purporting to contain a statement by the chief inspector of stock of New South Wales to the effect that there is no foot-and-mouth disease in Australia, and that as contagious pleuro-pneumonia is purely a disease of cattle, and can be carried only by them, its existence in Australia is not a good reason for the embargo against sheep.

While agreeing that sheep are not subject to pleuro-pneumonia of cattle, the secretary pointed out that the fact that there is no positive evidence that they may not serve as carriers. "The disease," he said, "is only finally eradicated from a country in the early months, after the inauguration of methods of operation which included the elimination of possible indirect sources of infection, one of which is believed to consist in the possibility of sheep carrying the infection in their feces."

The secretary said, "Having in view the responsibility imposed upon it by law, of protecting the cattle interests of the United States, the department declines to issue permits for the importation of cattle, sheep, or other ruminants from countries in which either foot-and-mouth disease, or contagious pleuro-pneumonia of cattle exists, and it is considered that until such time as the Australian authorities succeed in eradicating contagious pleuro-pneumonia from such country, favorable consideration cannot be given to the request for either cattle or sheep from Australia."

SECRETS ARE WITH SCORES CONGRESS ON APPROPRIATIONS

Federal Cabinet Officer Says Curtailment of Fund for Carrying on Work of Agricultural Department is a Waste Instead of an Economy — Urges People to Get Back of the Work—No Mention of Bruneau.

One thousand or more people who are studying the grandstand and in the city park last night to hear Secretary of Agriculture E. T. Meredith, speaking to be told of the prospects for early maturity by the government of plans for the future reclamation of lands in Idaho, heard only a booster speech for the department of agriculture. No mention was made of Bruneau or other planned irrigation projects. Mainly the speech delivered by the cabinet officer was a scathing denunciation of the action of congress in curtailing appropriations for the carrying on of bureau work connected with the various sections of the federal department of agriculture. Mr. Meredith charged that the economy thus practiced is an extravagance that could save agricultural interests of the country great loss in the long run. He denied the charge made, he said by the unlighted and uninitiated, that the heads of department bureaus and county agents are clean and honest men who have no communion with the soil. Secretary Meredith credited bureau heads with working out the salvation of the agricultural industry of the country at large and for the benefit of dispossessed farmers. He said that the federal department is working for a better salary than is being paid for similar work with industrial organizations of the country. He declared that annually large numbers of federal agriculturalists leave government service for employment with corporations where larger remuneration is given.

"The agricultural department has helped the country save billions of dollars in crops," Secretary Meredith said. "The department has a long list of service rendered by department and bureau workers for the eradication of plant diseases such as wheat rust, cotton boll weevil, and the like through the carrying on of this work. He said congress had not been so economical as it would appear since the cut of cash for the agricultural department meant a curtailment of benefit work among the producers of the country, while on the other hand congress declined to stop the practice of sending out free garden seeds at an extraordinary heavy expense to the government."

During the latter part of present week meetings were held at Glens Ferry, Gooding and Shoshone and are scheduled for the 17th on the 16th and Burley on the 17th.

A big meeting is scheduled for Twin Falls on July 19, followed by meetings at Pocatello, Idaho Falls, and Boise on the 20th and 21st.

For southeastern Idaho the schedule so far as outlined is as follows: Pocatello July 22; American Falls July 23; Soda Springs July 28; Montpelier July 29; Shelly July 30th; Blackfoot July 31; Idaho Falls Aug. 1 and 2; and Aug. 3; Revere Aug. 4; St. Anthony Aug. 5.

Dr. Fredrick Vining Fisher is accompanying the tour. Mr. Frank Chase is also on the tour. His address is Americanism among intense interest and his illustrated talks prove most convincing and interesting speaker.

COMMITTEE WILL NOT STOP HERE

Congressional Appropriations Board to See District Only from Rail Cars

Although a congressional commission, comprising the major portion of the appropriations committee, will be in the Twin Falls district on July 18 no stop of moment will be made in Twin Falls, and about the only observation of the big agricultural district made will be through the windows of the rail cars.

Explanation of this failure to stop in Twin Falls comes in a letter to Congressman Addison T. Smith from Barry Dibble of the United States reclamation service at Buhl. He explains that the committee is inspecting only government works, completed and in prospect. The Twin Falls irrigation district, which is under construction, does not come in the devised schedule of inspection of the committee.

It is the plan of the committee to leave Boise on the evening of July 17, reaching Buhl early the next morning. The train will be turned at Buhl and the committee members will have an opportunity to see this irrigated section from the windows of the dining car as they pass on the way back east. It is intended to reach Boise by the next train to take on any local persons who care to make the trip through the district with the committee.

Mr. Dibble's letter to Congressman Smith follows:

"Your telegram regarding the trip of the appropriations committee was promptly received, and through cooperation with the various organizations of this state interested in irrigation, I believe we have worked out a program that will come very close to meeting the desires of all."

"It was thought to be very desirable to give the committee a general idea of the extent of the Snake River valley. Our present plan is to have a special train leave Boise late in the evening of July 17, and have the train stop at Buhl where it will be turned around and immediately start back toward the Twin Falls project. Leaving Buhl before 8 o'clock, the committee will have an opportunity to take breakfast on the dining car and see the Twin Falls project during the breakfast hour."

"A stop will be made at Twin Falls to permit anyone who desires to go on the train and travel with and talk with the committee. An account of the short trip will be given to the committee at Idaho, it is out of the question to have the committee get off the train, except at Buhl, where they will take automobiles for their inspection trip over the Minidoka project. This trip will be limited to about three hours, and the committee will leave Buhl before 8 o'clock, and will not be able to deliver to the train at Minidoka. They can then eat their dinner en route to American Falls, where a short stop will be made. The committee will then be taken to the plans in connection with the American Falls reservoir. The trip will leave Buhl on the morning of the 19th, and will reach Twin Falls about 10 o'clock."

"It has been a difficult matter to so much things that we would like to show the committee and explain in connection with the plans for development, but we believe we have made much more out than we can include. I am pleased to hear that you plan to be here and to accompany the committee while they are in Idaho."

FIRE AT ROGERSON DESTROYS BUILDING

L. E. Duncan Store Structure Falls to Fire King—Most of Stock is Saved

Fire of an undecided origin destroyed the L. E. Duncan building at Rogerson Wednesday morning. The loss is estimated at approximately $200.

The Duncan building was occupied by Grover Tanner, who carried on a toasting and candy plant. Most of the equipment was removed before the fire got beyond the building, but the building was practically destroyed. The fire was observed first in the corner of the building at about 2:30 o'clock, and was made rapidly aheadward after that. Valiant work was done to check the fire but it could be kept from spreading except in the securing of pool hall and cigar department equipment. Some insurance, it is said, was carried.

BRYAN RETAINS MAGNETIC FORCE

Statesman Speaks with Great Power and Logic—Charges Profiteers Hold Control

Charging that profiteers control the country, both industrially and politically, William Jennings Bryan, in an address delivered from a platform in the city park yesterday, urged the churches of the nation to take steps toward the immediate ostracism of this unwholesome element.

"By testifying the profiteer inside the walls of the church the church itself is inviting the own destruction. God rid of the foul menace," Mr. Bryan charged.

The great commoner of Nebraska reached Twin Falls about one hour later than his published schedule, and immediately upon arrival was hastened to the speaking place where a great concourse of people had gathered for the occasion.

Mr. Bryan spoke on the general subject of "Present Problems," the principle of which he designated as profiteering, prohibition, the league of nations and politics. The first he denounced in his strongest terms as a national menace which must be trodden under foot immediately. He said he found this element in large number at both the big political conventions.

With relation to the prohibition topic Mr. Bryan cautioned the people not to be complacent, or to think the battle done. "These were a sharp people and if we don't keep our eyes open night and day they will put something over on us. Let us, therefore, stay awake and continue their every move," he urged.

The speaker made an urgent plea for the league of nations, saying only through such a league can world peace ever be permanent. Mr. Bryan said both the democratic and republican nominees for the presidency are inclined toward the "weak".

The Nebraskaan retains a lot of his old virility on the platform, his speech being forceful, logical and replete with dry humor. His voice has lost much of the ring that caused him to be titled the "silver-tongued orator of the Platte" in the year 1890. There is a noticeable hoarseness and "ragging" in the tone, but the volume is still retained.

Mr. Bryan left immediately after dinner at the Hotel Perrine for Burley, being taken to that place by automobile.

Pacific Ocean Once South Sea. The South sea is the name originally given and sometimes still applied to the Pacific ocean. In 1588 Balboa crossed the isthmus and arrived on September 29 at a mountain from the summit of which, looking south, he beheld the expanse of the ocean stretching out before him, while the northern part was closed from view. He named it, therefore, the South sea.
