NON-PARTISAN LEAGUE IS HARD HIT IN IDAHO

Fairchild Carries Only Two Counties in Gubernatorial Race, Only One Man With Endorsement in Legislature

BOISE, Idaho (AP)—The Non-partisan league suffered a severe reverse in Idaho in Tuesday's election. The league's candidate for governor, R. D. Fairchild, carried only two counties and his majorities in these were not so large as those obtained in many other counties by the republican candidate, Governor D. W. Davis, who sought reelection.

Figures from 647 precincts Friday showed the following relation between the three candidates in the race:

Davis, 57,761; Fairchild 19,990. All other non-partisan state candidates were defeated. Returns from the legislature showed only one man who had league backing elected.

Two years ago the Non-partisan captured the entire democratic political machinery and, students of politics aver, the democratic in retaliation, fled to the republican standard in such through that Governor Davis was given a majority of nearly twenty thousand over his opponent, R. P. Samuel, in an election where the total vote cast was only about 95,000.

VOTERS OF COUNTY FAVOR AMENDMENTS

Road Bond Issue, the Supreme Bench and Utilities Appeal Art Approved

Approval of the proposed $200,000 state road bond issue and of constitutional amendments to increase the membership of the supreme court from three to five, to provide for appeals from orders of the public utilities commission to the supreme court, and to permit the state to engage in promotion and development of unused water power, together with disapproval of the proposed amendment to permit the sale of 200 acres of school land annually is shown in the official canvass of the vote cast in Twin Falls county last Tuesday.

The total vote on each proposition is as follows:

Road bonds—Yes, 3202; no, 2666.

To increase the membership of the supreme court—Yes, 3246; no, 1894.

To provide for appeals from orders of the public utilities commission—Yes, 2560; no, 2301.

To permit sale of 200 acres of school land annually—Yes, 2560; no, 2301.

To permit the state to engage in promotion and development of unused water power—Yes, 2540; no, 2322.

First German Vessel Since 1914 at N. Y.

NEW YORK (AP)—The first merchant steamship flying the German flag to come to the port of New York since July, 1914, arrived here Thursday.

The vessel, which marks the resumption of trade with Germany under the flag of that country, was the Sophie Rickmers, a steamer of 4,961 tons, built in Germany during the war. She is flying the old German merchant marine flag.

She is assigned to the Kerr Steamship company as American agent. The ship is in ballast, and will take cargo here for the return voyage.

BERNESE SUSS COMPANY—Charles H. Krenkel is plaintiff in a suit filed Tuesday in district court by Attorney E. L. Ashton against John R. Kimes, D. F. Grubb, and Arthur Gates, a co-partnership operating under the firm title Idaho Shrubbing & Sheet Metal company. The suit is on foreclosure of a lien covering materials said to have been furnished the company.

REPUBLICANS IN HOUSE 293 TO 138 DEMOCRATS

Victories for G. O. P. in Missing Districts Determine Congressional Line-up

NEW YORK (AP)—Republican victories in three congressional districts, two now represented by democrats, the fifth Minnesota, eighth Minnesota, and twenty-third New York, secured with the receipt Saturday night of the last related returns, determined definitely the line-up of the house of representatives after March 4 next, according to unofficial returns.

The republicans will have 293 representatives in the house to 138 democrats.

A PROPHECY?

Was Lincoln's voice the voice of the prophet? In some instances events supply a strongly affirmative answer. To Shad L. Hodgins we are indebted for a clipping from a newspaper published in eighteen hundred thirty-seven, years before the Mexican war, which seems to bear out the thought that to Lincoln it was given to view men and events in terms of cause and effect, stripping each of the glamour lent by surroundings, and to analyze human character in a manner which has never since been equaled.

In a Lyceum address at Springfield, Ill., on January twenty-seventh, eighteen hundred thirty-seven, Lincoln spoke as follows: now review the political career of President Wilson in the days which have followed the war, in the light of Lincoln's pronouncement:

That our government should have been maintained in its original form from its establishment until now, is not much to be wondered at. It had many props to support it through that period which now no longer support it, and it has been a long time since it has been able to support it. Through that period it was felt by all to be an undecided experiment; now it is understood to be a successful one. Then, all that sought celebrity and fame and distinction expected to find them in the success of that experiment. But this field of glory is harvested, and the crop is being appropriated. New reapers will arise, and they too will seek a field. It is to deny what the history of the world tells us to be true, to suppose that men of ambition and talents will not continue to spring up amongst us. And when they do, they will as naturally seek the gratification of their rising passions as others have done before them. The question then is: Can that gratification be found in supporting and maintaining an office that has been created by others? Most certainly it cannot. Many great and good men, sufficiently qualified for any task they should undertake, may never be found whose ambition would aspire to nothing beyond a presidential chair, but such belong not to the family of the eagle. What think you those places would suit an Alexander, a Caesar or a Napoleon? Never! Toward goals, following a beaten path. It seems regions hitherto unexplored. It seems no distinction in unexplored story to story upon the monuments of fame erected to the memory of the great. It denies that it is glory enough to serve under any chief. It seems to tread in the footsteps of any predecessor, however illustrious. It shrinks and burns for distinction; and, if possible, it will have it, whether at the expense of compromising safety or of involving freedom. It is unreasonable, then, to expect that some man possessed of the loftiest genius, coupled with ambition sufficient to push it to its utmost stretch, at some time spring up amongst us. And when such an one does, it will require the people to be united with each other, attached to the government and laws, and generally intelligent, to successfully frustrate his design.

IS BOLSHEVISM CRUMBLING?

Even the most casual reader of the reports that have been coming out of Russia for several months must feel that the soviet, or bolshavist, government is gradually losing its grip on the people of Russia. Whether it can recover from its present condition of weakness remains to be seen.

There is hardly any doubt that the Russian government entered into peace arrangements with Poland as much because of conditions at home as the defeat of the Russian armies by the Poles. Russia has practically unlimited man power, and if the people were in sympathy with the war there would be plenty of men to do the fighting.

Nearly every person who has been permitted to study the situation in Russia at first hand, except the radical adherents of bolshavism, agree that economic conditions in Russia are deplorable, that the masses in the cities are in great want, and that the morale of the people has fallen to a menacing depth.

It does not yet appear that Lenin and Trotsky and other representatives of the soviet government will be able to save themselves by making peace with Poland. They have yet to deal with the anti-reds under General Wrangel, and the Ukrainians are still able to give the bolshavists a great deal of trouble.

France is reported to be critical of the attitude of Great Britain toward the bolshavists during the last few months. The French diplomats, according to dispatches, hold to the opinion that the allies missed an excellent opportunity of giving the death blow to bolshavism by aiding the Poles to a larger extent, or even going farther by striking direct.

General Wrangel was given recognition by France a few weeks ago as the de facto head of the Russian government, but France may not be able to give the anti-bolshavists enough help to enable them to withstanding the attacks which will be made against them by the red Russian troops, just as soon as the war with Poland is definitely ended.

FARMERS PROPOSE TO HOLD CROPS.

The manufacturer holds his product until he can obtain a price that covers the cost of manufacture and gives him a reasonable profit, and the merchant only in exceptional cases will sell goods from his shelves at a loss.

Representatives of the farmers' organizations of the United States, who recently held a conference in Washington, have agreed upon a plan to withhold farm products from the market until such a time as the price shall be at least equal to the cost of production.

Briefly, the farmer proposes to follow the method adopted by other productive and distributive interests of keeping his products until he feels justified in disposing of them. He seeks to avoid being the victim of efforts to force down the prices of his products while the cost of things he must buy remains high.

The farmers propose to limit the supply of wheat and other grain and the other products of the farm to an extent that will cause the market to bid them, thereby bringing the price to a point that will insure a reasonable profit.

If the farmers, even in reasonably large numbers, adopt the policy suggested by the Washington conference, what can the government do about it? Well, it is practically assured that the government can do nothing at all.

The farmers do not propose to raise prices by agreement which would bring them in conflict with the law. The penalty lies in restraint of trade. What they propose to do is to act as individuals, but in harmony with the plan which they believe will bring results they desire—better prices for their products.

The experiment will be watched with interest. There is no law that can compel the growers to dispose of his crops; and if large numbers of farmers decide to wait for better prices, the ultimate consumer, who feels the effects of a rising food cost, will be the loser.

A STEP FORWARD

Result of the vote on Twin Falls special bond issue Tuesday is another testimonial to the good sense and business judgment of Twin Falls citizens. General appreciation of the fact that the argument was practically all on one side of the questions presented accounts, no doubt, for the relatively light vote cast. Only 757 ballots were cast while more than 2,000 taxpayers were registered voters on the issue.

The proposal for issuing $75,000 worth of bonds to take up the deficit in the street intersection paving fund was carried by a majority of 211, while the plurality in favor of issuing $20,000 worth of securities for purchase of motorized fire equipment was 180.

Defeat of either proposition was unthinkable if Twin Falls not only was to retain its reputation for progressive action but to make proper provision for safeguarding its credits and possessions. Indorsement of both propositions is by the name token, a matter of great satisfaction.

LABOR ENTERS BANKING BUSINESS

An interesting experiment in banking was inaugurated in Cleveland a few days ago by the opening of a national bank under the auspices of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, one of the "Big Four" of the railway fraternity and one of the most conservative organizations of labor in the country.

According to the charter the new banking house will be known as "The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers' Cooperative National Bank." The name is somewhat unwieldy, and it will probably be shortened to "Brotherhood Bank" by its patrons.

The promoters of the new bank have made it plain that it has not been formed for the purpose of making class distinctions, but that the facilities of the bank will be open to all persons who desire to avail themselves of them. The bank will be operated under strict supervision and by experienced banking men.

A considerable number of labor advocates have been somewhat critical of what they call the "capitalistic class," and it may be helpful in a general way to have a branch of organized labor enter the banking business. It may have the effect of giving many members of organized labor a new light on the financial interests of the nation.

The new bank will find it desirable to maintain the closest affiliation with their national banks, all being subject to the same general regulations, and this should give it a standing that will create a greater appreciation of banking methods on the part of many persons who have looked with suspicion upon banks and bankers.

The business of the banks of the United States has made an unusual record in deposits and resources during the last twelve months, according to figures recently issued by the comptroller of the currency. Deposits and depositors are increasing, and there is room in each large city, probably, for such an institution as has been established by the railway brotherhood in Cleveland.

CONGRATULATIONS DUE

Not only the personnel of the Chamber of Commerce but the community at large is to be congratulated on the selection made at the annual election Tuesday evening of officers of this most important civic organization. Each and every one of the men selected stands high in the community and in his own field of endeavor. Under their administration the Chamber of Commerce may be confidently expected both to continue the beneficial work so well entered upon and to extend its sphere of influence and usefulness.

BREVITIES

From Salt Lake—Mrs. George D. Aiken has as guests her mother, Mrs. Juliet Fielding, and sister, Mrs. R. M. Tuttle, both of Salt Lake.

Patience Recovers—Mrs. William Lindau who has been a patient at the county general hospital for the past two weeks has returned to her home at Murtagh.

Gone to Coast—A. R. Ostrander left Thursday morning by automobile for San Diego, Cal., where he has recently purchased a home. Mr. Ostrander has been in the city for some time looking after his farming interests.

From Auto—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lindau and children returned Saturday morning for California going overland. They have purchased land near San Diego and expect to make their future home there.

IDAHO FIRMLY FOR G. O. P. IN COUNT OF VOTES

Returns to Date Give Solid Pluralities for Every Repub- lican Candidate for State and National Office

BOISE, Idaho (AP)—Although there were 177 voting precincts yet to report the results of last Tuesday's general election, when tabulation of returns stopped, it was estimated there was not a total of more than 9000 votes to be tabulated outstanding and that there was small likelihood that the official vote would cause any over-throw in results apparent on the face of the incomplete returns. These returns gave solid pluralities for every republican candidate for state and national office, indicated republican majorities in both houses of the state legislature, and showed a great number of republican county officers elected.

Probably not until the county canvassing boards have met, ten days hence, and the state board of canvassers has tabulated the reports from the county boards, ten days later, will the actual total of votes cast and the pluralities of the various successful candidates be determined.

Law Regarding Canvass.
November 15 is the legal day for the county canvassing boards to meet and November 25 is the date set by law for the state board of canvassers to begin its work. This board, consisting of the governor, secretary of state, auditor, state treasurer and attorney general, has power to adjourn from time to time if the returns are not all in, but must make the canvass on the second Wednesday of December following the election, at the latest, regardless of whether all returns are in. This year, this date falls on December 8, 30 days after the election.

Tabulation to Date.
The returns, as they probably will stand until that time, show the following:

35 precincts: Cox, 41,709; Harding, 78,551.

35 hundred and fifty precincts: For senator, Frank R. Gooding, republican, 67,031; John F. Nugent, democrat, incumbent, 56,820.

35 hundred and fifty precincts, for governor: D. W. Davis, republican, incumbent, 66,833; Mrs. Nell K. Irlan, democrat, 55,758.

Three hundred and forty-six of 433 precincts in the second district, for congress: Addison T. Smith, republican, incumbent, 41,480; W. B. Whitaker, democrat, 23,228.

For the constitutional amendment seeking an increase in the number of judges on the supreme bench, only 87 precincts had reported when unofficial tabulation ceased. These gave "no" 5,531; "yes" 2,302.

No returns on the other four amendments on the ballot were tabulated.

Gooding's Lead Secured.
Interest in Idaho centered in the Gooding-Nugent fight, a renewal of a contest staged two years before when Nugent was returned the victor by 970 votes. In that contest Nugent carried 21 counties and Gooding 14. In the contest this year, Gooding led in all but in 34 counties when tabulation ceased. Payette county, complete, gave Nugent a plurality of 100.

Gooding had led in large tabulated figures in several of the incomplete counties, which included Boise, where 12 of 13 precincts gave him 72 more than did Gooding; Bonner, where he was 245 ahead; Cankon, 31 of whose 32 precincts gave him approximately 800 votes more than Gooding; Blaine, lead 283; Latah, where he had a lead of 121 from 19 of the county's 14 precincts; Minidoka, where five of eight precincts gave him a lead of 336; and where Nugent led by eight votes on returns from three of 18 precincts; Owyhee, which gave him more than Gooding on returns from more than 27 precincts; Valley, seven of whose 11 precincts gave him a lead of 88; and Washington, where he led by 159 on returns from 13 of 15 precincts.

Davis Loses Two Counties.
For governor, Davis carried all counties except Camma and Minidoka on the face of the incomplete returns, and these two went to Fairchild by pluralities of 13 and 180, respectively. Davis obtained from the tabulated returns a majority of 12,659, while his plurality over Walters was 33,004.

No democratic candidate for a state governorship carried even one county in the main, their republican competitors distanced them to the extent of two to one or more.
