

NEW PRESIDENT TAKES PLACE AT NATION'S HELM

Coolidge Quietly Assumes Office; Executives Discuss Funeral Plans; Hughes Orders Offices Closed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3 (AP)—Calvin Coolidge grasped the helm of the ship of state as it fell from the lifeless hands of his captain, Warren G. Harding.

Quietly he took upon himself the duties of pilot. Up until the sudden death, he had taken, in the sitting room of his father's farm house in Plymouth, Vermont, the oath to perform the duties of the thirtieth president of the United States.

Those who came with the president consider it unlikely that he will announce any important steps in his administration until after the country has recovered from the shock of the death of Mr. Harding.

Across the station plaza, newly washed by a shower, the president's party led by motorcoaches, proceeded to Pennsylvania avenue and the Willard hotel.

Small crowds waited to greet him at West Philadelphia and Baltimore, and on each occasion he stepped out on the rear platform with Mrs. Coolidge.

Quiet Ceremony. The whole transition was made quietly and without flurry or confusion.

HOME FOLKS RECALL DAYS OF CAMPAIGN

MARION, O., Aug. 3 (AP)—The famous Harding front porch, the focal point of the 1920 campaign, today presented a sorrowful contrast to the summer afternoon of three years ago when President Harding, then only a candidate for the presidency, had announced his policies to thousands of enthusiastic pilgrims.

WORLD STUNNED ON RECEIPT OF DEATH MESSAGE

Loss of Nation's Chief Strikes Severe Blow to Foreign Nations; Statesmen Send Condolences

PARIS, Aug. 3 (AP)—President Harding's death is taken in France as an event of first importance. It even has placed the grave political crisis which may lead to an end of the entente in the background for the time being.

The president of the republic and other officials and public bodies today transmitted expressions of sympathy to Mrs. Harding and to the United States.

Dispatches from the provinces show that the feeling of regret is not limited to the capital.

FRANCE SHOCKED

PARIS, Aug. 3 (AP)—Premier Poincaré this afternoon sent the following cable message to Secretary of State Hughes:

"Painfully shocked by the cruel loss of the United States just suffered, I want to assure you, Mr. Secretary, of the most feeling sympathy of the French government.

"With President Harding there disappears not only a grand figure, eminently qualified to head the nation to which we are bound by so many ties, but also the generous and enlightened friend that all Frenchmen have learned to like and respect.

HARVEY OVERBOOME

ALLENTOON, Pa., Aug. 3 (AP)—George Harvey, ambassador to Great Britain, a close friend of President Harding, was so overcome with the sudden death of your husband, Otto Weiditz, the German ambassador, today sent this telegram to Mrs. Harding:

"I beg respectfully to express to you, dear Mrs. Harding, Mrs. Weiditz's and my heartfelt sympathy for the sudden death of your husband.

Burial Will Be In Beautiful Spot In Marion's Cemetery

Body of Dead President to Be Posed Near Town to Which He Hoped to Return

MARION, Ohio, Aug. 3 (AP)—The spot in the Marion cemetery where all that is mortal of Warren G. Harding will be consigned to final rest, is one of the most beautiful in the vicinity of the quiet town to which he often said he hoped to return as an "ordinary citizen."

Situated at almost the exact center of the shady expanse of the old burial ground, the Harding family lot, where a president of the United States will resume his place among the kindly folk who have loved and neighborly, lie-cupped in a tiny valley.

Saddened Journey Homeward Is Started; Cortège Viewed by Misty Eyed Throngs

Mourning Party in Black-Shrouded Cars Will Reach the National Capital After a Ninety-Hour Trip

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3 (AP)—An avenue of mourning stretched tonight across a land of sorrow. It began here at the Golden Gate and it ended in the nation's capitol, and over it for four days and four nights will travel a funeral train bearing the body of President Harding.

When the train, draped in black, drew out of a black-draped station here tonight, there began the saddest transcontinental trip in the history of the nation.

Ninety and a half hours will be required for the trip. When it is ended at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday, the body of Warren G. Harding will rest awhile in the White House, where he served the American people for nearly two and a half years, and then in the capitol, where as a senator from Ohio he represented his native state for six years.

Funeral Friday. Arriving on the morning of Thursday at Marion among home folks the president loved best, the body will be given the tender and loving care of his neighbors and friends until the following day, when funeral services will be held and a national day of mourning observed.

San Francisco was afforded the first opportunity to pay respects to the dead leader, though for a lesser degree from the Palace hotel, where it had rested since the end came last night, to the Third and Townsend street station.

The arrangements for this trip to Washington were made by the grief-stricken members of the president's party today while literally thousands stood about the hotel or walked slowly through the streets, though for a lesser degree, for the train only will be stopped to change engines and for other operating purposes.

Mrs. Harding obtained some rest last night, sleeping fitfully until morning. Though she had moved from the presidential suite, all ways, according to those who met more mournful of others than of herself. She remained steadfast to her determination made last night not to break down, but whether she could continue to do so for the long trip ahead only time will tell.

Supporting Mrs. Harding in withstanding her sorrow were messages of sympathy from all parts of the world. Telegrams poured into the hotel all through the day. They came from the head leaders of the United States, from members of the cabinet; from governors and mayors; from rulers of foreign countries, and from citizens unknown beyond the borders of their communities.

SIMPLICITY MARKS FUNERAL CEREMONY

Nation Waits in Sorrow as Harding Funeral Train Leaves on Sad Trip Following Brief Services

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3 (AP)—In sorrow unutterable, San Francisco tonight bade good-bye to all that was mortal of Warren G. Harding, who until a few hours ago was president of the United States.

At 6:57 p. m. the body of President Harding was removed from the sitting-room of the presidential suite in the Palace hotel here and was started from the eighth floor to New Montgomery street, where it was to take its place in the funeral procession to the Southern Pacific depot en route for the national capitol.

Thousands of people with uncovered heads lined the streets along the line of march from the Palace hotel to the Southern Pacific station at Third and Townsend streets, where the presidential party's special train was in waiting. The line of escort was led by Chief of Police Daniel J. O'Brien and a detail of police.

Troop E of the 11th cavalry sat at attention before the hearse. After the band played "Lead Kindly Light" the bugles sounded "Right wheel" and the cavalry troop swung into column at the head of the cortège.

All traffic had been stopped. All public offices and stores were closed. The only sounds were made by the army of men and horses. There was no hysteria or audible weeping or commotion of any sort.

The casket, before it left the hotel, had been heaped over with flowers, loving tributes from friends. Telegrams and messages by the city and state and national officials. Among them were Secretaries Hoover, Work and Wallace and Attorney-General Daugherty, cabinet members, and the attorney-general got up out of a sick bed at the Palace Hotel to take his

ABILITY FOUND AS QUALITY OF NEW EXECUTIVE

Coolidge Arrived at Vantage Point in Public Career After Long Struggle; Was Diligent Student

There is much about John Calvin Coolidge, former vice president of the United States, and who has now automatically become the nation's leader because of the death of President Harding, that bespeaks the distinguished man whom he succeeds.

Both men were of hardy stock and both made successive victories in the field of public life after beginning in comparative obscurity.

John Calvin Coolidge, of Calvin Coolidge, as he is better known, was born in Plymouth Village, Vt., on July 4, 1872.

Yankee Ancestors
He came from a long line of Yankee ancestors, who had engaged principally in farming. His father was John C. Coolidge and his mother Victoria Moor Coolidge.

John Calvin Coolidge (as he was christened) attended the public schools of the village and then went to Amherst college.

In his college days Coolidge was known to his fellow students principally for his prolonged silences and his scholastic ability. He was a raw country lad, with his trousers tucked up at his boot tops and the marks of rural Vermont still plainly upon him.

In these days, Coolidge dropped the "John" from his name. He was graduated from Amherst in 1895 with an A. B. degree and highest honors.

When studied law in the offices of Hammond and Field, Northampton, Mass., was admitted to the bar within 20 months and entered the practice of law in his own office.

Gets First Office
Coolidge's entry into politics came when the county clerk died. He was appointed to serve the balance of the term. When this expired the republicans wished to nominate him for the office, but Coolidge refused.

In 1899 he was elected a member of the city council and for the following two years was city solicitor. He then returned to the practice of law.

Coolidge married Miss Grace Goodhue of Burlington, Vt., October 4, 1905. Miss Goodhue was then a teacher in the deaf and dumb school at Northampton.

Coolidge's upward climb in the political world was steady and certain, owing to his sure decision and the mastery his quiet manner exerted over men. He held various offices, including the mayorship of Northampton. In 1911 he was elected state senator. Here he remained four years, holding the position of senate president during the latter two.

In 1915 Coolidge was elected lieutenant governor, an office which he held until he was chosen governor in 1918.

Wins on Strike Issue
He ran for reelection as governor in 1919, on a platform of performance, including reduction of working hours for women and minors, increase in the compensation law allowance, anti-high cost of living legislation, and a provision of $25,000,000 for compensation for world war veterans.

His opponent, Richard H. Long, made the issue the Boston police strike of 1919 by promising to restore the strikers to duty and to oust the police commissioner.

"So be it," said Coolidge. "Our issue shall be law and order." On this platform Coolidge polled a majority of 130,000 votes. His firm handling of the strike situation, which brought it to a rapid conclusion, made him nationally famous.

Coolidge was nominated for the vice presidency of the United States at the 1920 republican national convention, and was elected to the office at the November 2 elections.

Coolidge throughout his career maintained the simple habits which he formed in his early lawyer days. When elected to the vice presidency he still lived with his family in the half of the two-story frame building where he had taken his bride in 1905. His rent was $32 a month.

The Coolidges have two sons, John and Calvin, Jr., both still in their teens.

Religious Cursing.
The present movement in connection with prayer book revision in the Church of England for the removal of the imprecatory psalms from the services of the church is not really anything new. So long ago as the fourth century St. Paulinus of Nola was troubled about these psalms, and said that they must be interpreted allegorically. Thus in the one hundred and thirty-seventh he said of the words: "O daughter of Babylon, happy shall be that which taketh thy little ones and dasheth them against a stone," he wrote that by the children of the daughter of Babylon the Christian must understand his sins, which are to be torn up and dashed against the Rock of Salvation.—Exchange.

Great Dane Murderers

Nine-year-old Joseph Genatt, Jr., of West Hoboken, N. J., with his brother and another lad, threw stones at these two huge Great Danes, belonging to Otto Bentz, who owns Floral Park, a picnic ground, at North Bergen, N. J. With terrible swiftness the dogs bore down on Joseph and tore him to death, a hundred terror-stricken eye-witnesses being unable to drive them away. Bentz, shown here with his dogs, was arrested on manslaughter charges, but says he will not kill his dogs unless the authorities force him to do so.

Rugged Appearance Marked Features of Stricken Leader of the Nation

Massive Figure Attracted Admiration; was "Good Mixer" and Lover of Children; Enjoyed Golf

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP)—Massive in frame and feature, a figure to attract a second look in any crowd, that was Warren G. Harding, the man.

Although slightly less than six feet in height, he carried his 210 pounds without any hint of obesity, and his unusually broad and high forehead and heavy square jaw pointed out an impression of force and distinction.

Contrasting sharply with his almost silver-gray hair, were markedly thick black eyebrows which almost masked a pair of calm gray eyes. In repose his face took on the aspect of severity so often seen in his photographs, but when he talked or listened the lines were broken by a smile that radiated cordially.

Good Listener.
Mr. Harding was both a good conversationalist and a good listener, and loved to rub elbows with his fellow-men. His first official order was that the gates to the White House grounds be thrown open and at the start he received visitors at almost any hour of the day. This took up so much of his time, however, that the establishment of a fixed hour for this purpose was decided upon.

Each day after he had cleared his desk and was ready for lunch he received groups of visitors in the executive offices, shaking hands and exchanging a smile and a word with each individual. White House officials estimated that an average of 1000 persons called upon him daily. He revived also the more formal functions, such as the New Year receptions and the state diplomatic dinners.

Mr. Harding was very fond of his children, though he had none of his own. Robert Bell, who has been visiting at the home of Billie Dickey in Twin Falls, returned home Thursday.

Had Many Friends.
In his rest hours, Mr. Harding liked to have around him his personal friends and intimates in whose company he could put aside the dignity and cares of state, and with whom he could swap stories and reminiscences. It was not surprising, then, that, like Cleveland, before him, he frequently slipped away from the White House in the evening to pay informal calls upon former associates in the senate and other close friends.

Golf was Mr. Harding's favorite recreation, and whenever public affairs permitted he sought the links of a Washington country club. His friends of the senate frequently were his opponents and in such matches there at days developed a keen though friendly rivalry. By virtue of his position as an editor and publisher he participated also in the golf tournaments of the Washington correspondents.

Millions Killed for Furs.
It is estimated that nearly 70,000,000 wild animals are killed yearly for their fur.

GRANT WAGE INCREASE.
CHICAGO, Aug. 2 (AP)—Increase ranging from 3 to 3 1/2 cents an hour were granted employees of the American Express company and the Southern Express company in a decision of the United States railroad labor board made public here today. The employees had requested an increase averaging 10 cents an hour.

SHORTAGE IS EVIDENT IN HORSE POPULATION

Farming Institute Makes Pleas for Increased Interest; Prices and Numbers at Low Level

CHICAGO, Aug. 3 (AP)—The tendency toward decreased horse breeding because of small financial returns promises a shortage in the horse population of the country unless measures are taken to rekindle interest in that business, the National Institute of Progressive Farming has asserted in announcing a survey of the horse situation. It quoted figures of the United States department of agriculture to show that there has been a decrease of about 60 per cent in the number of stallions in service in the United States since 1915, a decrease of 913,000 horses on farms between January 1, 1920, and January 1, 1922, and a decrease during 1922 of 203,000 horses.

Government figures, as quoted by the institute, show that the monetary loss for horses last year was $29,180,000, and for mules $5,843,000; that horses under one year old had decreased gradually in value from an average of $47.95 in 1914, to $25.15 in 1923; one and under two years from $74.87 in 1914 to $40.98 in 1923, and two years and over from $110.77 in 1914, to $75 in 1923. This depreciation in value, and high costs of breeding, according to the institute, have been largely responsible for the fact that many importers, breeders and showmen are seeking other lines of business.

There were 10,706,000 horses on farms and ranges in this country in 1920, with a per capita value of $60.51 and a total value of $1,907,640,000, the institute pointed out, quoting government figures again, compared to 18,853,000 head in 1923, with a per capita value of $69.75 and total value of $1,314,956,000. The aggregate value of both horses and mules in 1923 was $1,826,000,000, compared to the 1914-20 average of $2,738,000,000.

Better Than Riches

Under the dome of the Board of Trade in Manchester, England, is this inscription: "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches." The thought is considerably more than mere sentiment. It is good business.

A good name is recognized as the biggest individual asset a business can have. It is the very keystone of modern industry. Business today is done on such a broad scale—every merchant and every manufacturer has such a long list of customers—that it would not do to have a reputation for "slipping something over."

Advertising has standardized almost every article you can buy. You don't have to bargain and dicker and haggle to know that you are getting as good as you give.

That's why it pays to read the advertisements and to buy advertised goods. A product's advertising is the best guarantee of its faithful performance and lasting usefulness or of its definite value. The advertiser would not dare to risk his good name by advertising an unworthy product.

If you value constant satisfaction—if you want to get your full money's worth every time—read the advertisements and buy advertised merchandise.

BUSINESS MEN SPECULATE ON TRADE EFFECT

Death of President Comes as Severe Shock to Finance; Express Confidence in New Chief Official

NEW YORK, Aug. 3 (AP)—Its first shock at President Harding's death, New York, the financial and business center of the nation, tonight turned to speculation on the effect the president's passing is to have on the nation's material welfare. In clubs, hotels and other places where business was discussed, particular interest centered on tomorrow's opening in the exchange markets, if not always accurate ones of business trends. All exchanges were closed today in tribute to the dead president. They will open for half day sessions in the morning for the first trading since the president died.

While all the important financial and industrial men interviewed expressed confidence in Calvin Coolidge, the new president, characterizing him as amply qualified for the arduous task to which he has been called, there is some difference of opinion as to how the sudden shift of power would affect business.

Gary Disturbed.

Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, was one of those who thought that business would suffer temporarily. "I am terribly disturbed," he said when first apprised of the president's death. "President Harding's removal at this time is a calamity. He had the confidence and the affection of the whole people. The business world will suffer temporarily."

On the other hand, Charles E. Mitchell, president of one of the greatest banks in America—the National City bank—asserted that the change in presidents should be accomplished "without the stirring of a ripple upon the economic and business surface."

Another opinion was that of William L. Montgomery, of J. P. Morgan and company. He left for a week-end visit in Maine tonight, giving no sign that he expected anything untoward in tomorrow's market.

Predicts No Change.

Many brokers in the street declared the exchange would have been closed had they opened today and predicted that tomorrow morning would find them steady, with investor confidence squarely behind President Coolidge.

But the turn to speculation did not mean that New York had ceased to mourn for the late president. The feeling of sympathy continued to go forward to Mrs. Harding by the hundreds—clergy, business and religious organizations and private individuals vying in their efforts to couch in tenderest phrases their admiration for her devoted husband and their sympathy for her in the hour of grief. Plans were set on foot for a city-wide memorial in the city's churches Sunday.

WENDELL

WENDELL—Mr. and Mrs. David Spencer and children left Tuesday for their home in Lawrence, Kansas.

Mrs. C. A. Woods is having the Aaron Eaton store building demolished. She will run a restaurant and ice cream parlor in this building, her present location being too small to accommodate her customers.

The Catholics of Wendell and vicinity enjoyed a picnic on the spacious lawn at St. Valentine's here Sunday.

Mr. B. J. Bing, who had been in poor health for some time, died last Friday evening. The funeral was held from the home Sunday morning and burial was in the Wendell cemetery.

Station Agent Hixon and family are enjoying an outing in the Weiser and Payette country.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Gates entertained at dinner Sunday the following guests: Mrs. Rookstool and children of Oklahoma, Miss Josephine Sax and Owen Simpson.

Clyde Utterback and family and Mrs. Rookstool and children were shopping in Twin Falls Wednesday.

Elizabeth Williams left for Salt Lake Thursday to be gone two weeks.

Little Carmen Best was operated on for the removal of her tonsils Thursday at St. Valentine's hospital in Wendell. This was the first operation that had been done in the new hospital. Dr. Simonton had charge of the case.

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Davis and son, Johnnie, returned Wednesday from a two weeks' visit spent in Ogden.

ENGLAND IN SORROW

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3 (AP)—Great Britain was the first foreign power to pay its respects to the dead president. C. H. Cane, vice consul general of Great Britain in San Francisco, called at the presidential suite on behalf of King Campbell, consul general. Mr. Campbell was out of town, he said, but would arrive in time to pay formal respects on behalf of Great Britain.

TRIBUTES ARE PAID BY WORLD PROMINENT MEN

Members of Permanent Court Among First to Express Respects; Senators Send Condolences

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3 (AP)—Members of the permanent court of international justice were among the first to cable their sympathy to Secretary Hughes when word of President Harding's death reached European capitals. The message came from The Hague, and read:

"The permanent court of international justice, having heard of the death of President Harding, desires to express its sense of the loss sustained by the United States of America and by the world, and begs you to convey an expression of sympathy to the family."

(SIGNED), "LODER, President."

AMERICA MOURNS.

"Pleasant let there be no music; America is in mourning today. These were the first words of General Henry Gouraud, military governor of Paris, and one of the world war heroes of France, when he stepped from his train today to be the guest of the city of New Orleans and gave a hand ready to play the "Marseillaise" and the "Star Spangled Banner."

August Hermann, president of the Cincinnati National League club, said today that baseball loses one of its truest friends in the death of President Harding.

Director Hines of the veterans' bureau, issued a statement on the president's death in which he said:

"The veterans of the world war and the veterans' bureau have lost a very staunch friend in President Harding. No one can appreciate as I his interest in the veterans and his great desire to make sure that every possible assistance is given them."

HULL FEELS LOSS.

Chairman Hull of the democratic national committee, has issued a statement in Washington characterizing President Harding's death as a great loss to the country.

"I join with the great body of Americans," he said, "in deploring the sudden and untimely death of President Harding, which has shocked his fellow citizens everywhere and is a grief to the country. The heart of the nation will go out to Mrs. Harding, the heroic and devoted wife, and to the other members of his family."

WILL PAY RESPECTS

Governor William E. Sweet of Colorado issued a proclamation today urging that at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, at which time the funeral train bearing the body of the dead executive will pass through a corner of the state, all traffic and activities cease for one minute, "and all patriotic citizens, wherever they may be, stand in silent meditation in token of our universal loss."

Elihu Root said he was deeply shocked and grieved at President Harding's death.

"It is a great calamity for the country," he said.

Senator Copeland of New York today sent this telegram to Mrs. Harding:

"Regardless of political affiliations, your husband was the most popular man in public life in America. His death comes as a personal loss to each of us. Mrs. Copeland and I extend to you our deepest sympathy, and we pray that God may sustain you in your hour of trial."

Governor Smith, in a proclamation today, paid tribute to President Harding and directed that the flags on all public buildings in the state be displayed at half mast.

EULOGIZES PRESIDENT

Tribute was paid to President Harding by United States Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, when he arrived in Indianapolis today from Washington. Senator Watson said:

"The president was a remarkable combination of heart and conscience and brain. He was a man of the noblest impulses and the purest purposes and no person was ever actuated by more beautiful sentiment or sustained by loftier consideration of right and justice. He never entirely divorced his head from his heart in his estimate either of men or measures, and his decisions were right."

LEADING SCIENTISTS TO GATHER IN CONVENTION

EUGENE, Ore., Aug. 3 (AP)—Leading scientists of Australia, Japan, China, Siberia, India, Burma, Netherlands, New Guinea, and the United States, will attend the second Pacific Scientific congress at Sydney and Melbourne, Australia, from August 13 to September 3, according to Dr. Warren D. Smith, head of the University of Oregon department of geology. Dr. Smith will attend the international meet, which will be held under the direction of the Australian research council, and will include addresses in all fields of science.

Dr. Smith, who for more than ten years has been the division chief of the bureau of science of the Philippines, will speak on "Structure of the Philippines," and the "Status of Geological Surveys in the Philippines."

The scientific congress is part of a general program of working together the peoples of the Pacific, and the meeting is expected to aid in the movement for international peace.

WILL OPEN NEW TEMPLE

CHICAGO, Aug. 3 (AP)—The new Chicago temple built by the Methodist Episcopal church at a cost of $1,100,000, located in Chicago's loop at the intersection of two of the busiest thoroughfares in the world, will be ready for its first official occupancy October 3, when the Rock River conference of northern Illinois churches will convene at the new building, one of the tallest churches in the world, and the ground on which it stands will figure nearly $5,000,000.

The height of the structure from the street to top of spire will be 556 feet, with 21 stories devoted to church and office use. The doors of the temple will be open to worshippers day and night.

STEAM USEFUL ON FARMS

NEW YORK, Aug. 3 (AP)—Steam power is taking the place of strong right arms and "elbow grease" in west and middle west farms, according to the Boiler Code committee of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. The use of steam for scalding milk pails, cream separators, churning machines and other dairying apparatus is being used to pump water and saw wood.

With the announcement of the increased use of steam on farms, the committee has sounded a warning that the application of safety laws to guard against explosion of high pressure boilers is needed. The high pressure boiler is potentially dangerous as TNT, the committee declares.

SHOCK CAUSES DEATH

NEW YORK, Aug. 3 (AP)—An unidentified man dropped dead of heart failure in the Times Square subway station early this morning, glanced at the front page of a newspaper extra announcing President Harding's death.

Personal Unchanged

The party which travels on the train also is much the same as that which left Washington on the afternoon of June 20 carrying the president, full of hope, on the trip across the continent to Tacoma, Wash., where the chief executive, Mrs. Harding and members of their party boarded the naval transport Henderson for the voyage to Alaska. The private car "Superb," which carries the president and those with him, is greeted thousands in rear platform addresses, had been set aside to carry the body back to Washington.

EUROPEAN MOVIE FIRMS SEEK PRETTY HEROINES

BERLIN, Aug. 3 (AP)—Young women with graceful hands and feet are now being sought by European film directors in their efforts to compete with American films. American pictures long ago made it difficult for the film studios of central Europe to market pictures abroad, or even at home, if the heroines were not young and beautiful.

The practice of featuring famous actresses regardless of their looks has gone into the discard. For a long time the German and Swedish moving-picture producers clung tenaciously to the theory that histrionic art was the chief feature of a film, but today they are looking for youth and beauty of figure, as well as beauty of face. European third business man wants to see girl shoes, and he wants youth in his musical comedies and movies alike.

There has been also a marked change in the types of footwear popular on the German stage. Long, slender shoes on American and English models are making their appearance. The short vaudeville shoe, which central Europe used to believe made the foot look small, has been abandoned.

Shoe shops everywhere are advertising real American styles, and it is no longer possible to identify American men and women immediately by their shoes.

Russian women have beautiful hands and feet, and have found great favor with the film photographers who are constantly on the lookout for grace, even in the humblest members of their mobs.

LIVE IN ONE-ROOM 'HOMES'

Poorer Residents of Buenos Aires Crowded Almost Beyond Belief in the Conventillas.

Probably no other city in the world dominates the country of which it is the capital as Buenos Aires dominates Argentina. Into it is poured all the wealth from the estancias, the great ranches of a great country. There are very few large towns and cities. Unfortunately as this may be from some aspects, it certainly has made a wonderful capital which can be surpassed by few in the world for wealth and magnificence.

How a million and a half people can live in a city which covers such a comparatively small space as Buenos Aires was a wonder to me at first, for the city gives no such impression of vastness as London or New York or Chicago, or even Philadelphia. The problem was solved when I saw something of the conventillas in which several hundred people live and more and more have their being. If these the poor people exist. In many cases they are very next-door neighbors to a millionaire's magnificent palace.

One outside there is nothing remarkable about these conventillas but as you open the outer door you find that you are in a courtyard, and around the courtyard are a multitude of smaller doors. If there are two stories, then a balcony runs around the second story, and as many doors open upon that. Each of these doors leads to a single room, and in this room I was told lives a whole family—father and mother and children, perhaps son-in-law and grandchildren. Five or six. It is said that the outside of their homes usually presents no remarkable architectural glories, but when you open the outside door you find yourself not in the hallway or in a sitting room, as often with us, but in a beautiful patio, or miniature garden. Into which all the rooms open. For this climate there is nothing so delightful as such a home as this: a little garden bordered with bright flowers and a little fountain often playing in the middle. Such is the universal architecture of the homes of the rich and the well-to-do—Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D. in the Christian Herald.

Colwell and Miss Jane Maxwell were hostesses at a Mah Jongg party on Thursday evening at the home of the former in honor of Mrs. Charles Dingler, of Culver City, Cal., who is spending the summer in Twin Falls and is visiting her mother, Mrs. Mary Glenn, and other relatives. Mrs. Dingler was presented with a guest favor and the prize was won by Mrs. L. Breckenridge. Refreshments were served after the game. Those present were the members of the club to which Mrs. Dingler belonged when she lived in Twin Falls and a few intimate friends.

On Thursday the Woman's Missionary society of the First Christian church held their annual picnic at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Parish. The picnic dinner was served on the lawn at noon and was followed by a program under the direction of Mrs. W. S. Parish's division. Devotions were led by Mrs. Gwinn; violin solo, "My Mother," Wilma Parsh; solo, "Softly and Tenderly," a reading by Mrs. J. L. Tucker; paper by Mrs. C. L. Brown and a vocal solo by Miss Cowell, accompanied by Miss Ruth Harvey. A pleasant social hour was spent before the company motored to their homes.

HILES JOINS FACULTY OF GOODING COLLEGE

Former Twin Falls Educator to Teach in Department of Commerce and Business Administration

David Arthur Hiles, member three years ago of the Twin Falls high school faculty, has been selected to teach in the department of commerce and business administration at Gooding college for the coming year.

According to the report of President Charles Wesley Tenny, Mr. Hiles has had charge of this practical work at Twin Falls, Rigby and Ontario, Ore. Two years ago he was principal of the high school at Albion and this past winter he served as superintendent of schools at Bliss, Idaho.

At Gooding college he will have charge of the work in business law, accounting, shorthand, typewriting, office management, methods in commercial teaching, advertising and selling, and business administration. Mr. Hiles has already moved his family to Gooding and is busy lining up the work for the students who will enroll in this department when the fall term opens September 11.

RAISE SUNKEN WARSHIPS

LONDON, Aug. 3 (AP)—The German fleet scuttled at Scapa Flow in June, 1919, is to be raised, cut up and sold to Great Britain. The admiralty has signed a contract with a private company which has purchased part of the sunken ships, and will start operations at once to raise them.

The company is said already to have found a market for the hulks. If the operation is successful, a contract will be signed for the remaining section, which includes the largest of the ships.

The vessels sunk comprise ton battleships, five battle cruisers and 29 destroyers, their total tonnage being 145,000. The contract already agreed to covers 20 destroyers and one of the battle cruisers.

The vessels were sunk by their crews opening all the sea-cocks and flooding the ships. This will, however, make the work of the salvagers much easier, as it is planned to shut the sea-cocks and pump the water out of the holds.

Acquire Rare Portrait

One of the rarest engraved portraits of Queen Elizabeth has just been acquired by the trustees of the British museum. This is the portrait by William Rogers, the earliest native portrait engraver, bearing the title, "Rosa Electa." This engraving was known to exist in the Sunderland collection in the Bodleian library at Oxford. The second copy in the British museum, is derived from the Salt library at Stafford, which possessed a collection of engraved portraits, now dispersed by order of the trustees of that library. The British museum now possesses all three portraits of Queen Elizabeth engraved by Rogers.

FANS SET FOR EMMETT GAME

Everything in Readiness for Coming Clash with Western Idaho Champs

Pete Papworth will arrive on the noon train today and with him the hope that he will be able to turn Emmett team back with the shortest end of the score after the finish of the Twin Falls-Emmett ball game, which is scheduled for 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Athletic park.

Papworth has been resting up these last few days at his home in Salt Lake and should be fit to battle when the two teams take the field in deadly combat.

Charles Trench will oppose Pete, and be a member of the Herald team puts him in a class that should keep the locals guessing throughout the nine innings.

Many fans are of the opinion that the game will go into extra innings, that the score at the end will only show a difference of one run either way.

Tom Offeron will don the mask for the visitors, while Harry Tate will take care of Papworth's twisters, with "Hoola" Liville in reserve.

Bill Fry will be seen in right field, Hillman being out of town.

Emmett ball team will arrive in town this evening.

FIRPO HAS HARD TIME AGAINST HOMER SMITH

Challenger of Jack Dempsey Is Forced to Go Entire 10 Rounds to Win from Michigan Brawler

OMAHA, Aug. 3 (AP)—Luis Angel Firpo, challenger of Jack Dempsey for heavyweight honors, was forced to go through 10 rounds with Homer Smith of Kalamazoo, Mich., tonight before winning the referee's decision. Firpo was the host by a large margin, newspaper men at the ring-side said, scoring knockdowns almost at will. It was the first time since the Argentinians entry to this country that he did not win via the knockout route.

NEW PRESIDENT TAKES PLAGE AT NATION'S HELM

Coolidge Quietly Assumes Office; Executives Discuss Federal Plans; Hughes Orders Offices Closed

to Washington awaited Mr. Coolidge on his arrival late tonight to take up his new responsibilities, and except for the solemn demeanor of the officials and the somber faces of little groups who gathered before bulletin boards to read details of the tragedy on the far-away Pacific coast, there was little to show that one chief executive had passed and another had taken his place.

Meanwhile, throughout the nation and in every far-away place where the flag floats above the official missions of the American government, the outward manifestation of national grief already had begun. On the White House, on government department buildings, over main ships and army garrisons, above embassies, legations and consulates abroad, and on the residence and business places of many thousands of patriotic American citizens, the flag has been dropped to half-mast as a token of sorrow and respect. In many buildings in Washington and in other cities great mourning badges of crepe silently attest the grief of those who dwell therein.

Until the body of the departed president has been conveyed to the soil of the state which gave him to the nation, it is probable that little will be done toward the shaping of public policies by his successor. By retaining in office all the present members of the cabinet, Mr. Coolidge not only has left in operation all the necessary machinery to carry on the work of the government, but has continued to the complete stability of a governmental organism which might otherwise function but poorly under the stress of the emergency.

Until the end of next week, he is expected to give his attention unflinchingly to insure that the last rites for the fallen president express fittingly the nation's gratitude to a servant who remained faithful unto death; and then when the last accent of the burial service has passed away into American history, the new head of the nation will shoulder in earnest the heavy burden of responsibility which has passed to his keeping.

SIMPLICITY MARKS

place in the line of march. He rode in an automobile.

Solemnity Prevails

The participation of the army, navy and marines in the procession was solemn and imposing. All officers were in full dress as is customary in such occasions and their swords were drawn in accord.

Those who led the line of march included, in addition to the chief of police and Mayor Rolph, General John J. Pershing, Major General Charles G. Morton, Major General George B. Wallace and Secretaries Hoover, Work, Wallace and Attorney-General Daugherty.

Behind the honorary pall bearers walked groups of army, navy and marine officers wearing crepe on their swords. Behind the officials came escorts, marines, soldiers and sailors, mounted and on foot.

The line of march was lined with soldiers, men from the Thirteenth infantry at the Presidio. The hearse arrived at the station at 6:45 p. m. The hearse was left for a moment in the station waiting room after which it was placed in the train. A window in one of the coaches was enlarged to permit entry of the casket. The window was draped with evergreen and crepe.

The casket was carried to the train by eight pallbearers, consisting of two soldiers, two sailors, two marines and two national guard members.

Many Floral Tributes

The body of the dead president reposed in a drab brown steel coffin, lined with white silk. The only inscription, engraved on a silver plate, was "Mr. Coolidge, At Rest."

The coffin was banked with flowers and floral tributes from citizens, consular generals of many nations, which filled the sitting room of the presidential suite where the simple religious ceremony was held.

The setting was sun poured through the lower portion of the windows and flooded the flower bower with sunlight, which gave the room the appearance of an outdoor flower garden. Mrs. E. Z. Bagnberg, sister of the late president, General Harry M. Daugherty were the only persons in the room who were seated during the ceremony. The attorney general was helped into the room by Lieutenant Commander Joel T. Boone, one of the late president's physicians, and was assisted from the room by Commander Boone after the ceremony. Mrs. Harding was the last to enter the room. She was holding the arm of Secretary Christian and continued to hold his arms as she stood in the center of the room, directly in front of the glass coffin.

At Home with U. S. Senator Magnus Johnson

Here is shown the simple little cottage at Kimball, Minn., of United States Senator Magnus Johnson, real dirt farmer and supposed radical, who has been elected to the United States senate to fill the unexpired term of the late Knute Nelson. Mrs. Johnson, who milks seven cows before breakfast, will not accompany her husband to Washington, but will stay at home on the farm. Modest as their little frame dwelling may be, "we have a fine barn," says the new senator, and this picture shows his, 14. The Johnson children consist of Lillian, 24; Agnes, 10; Victor, 10; Florence, 9; Francis, 17, and Magnus, Jr., 18.

When the Rev. Mr. West concluded his Bible text and bowed his head for prayer, Mrs. Christian stepped from the side of the room and stood on Mrs. Harding's right. Both Mrs. and Mrs. Christian held the widow's arms through the entire ceremony.

Conduct Ceremonies

James C. Reynolds, justice of the United States supreme court; Secretaries Hubert Work, Henry C. Wallace and Herbert Hoover, Mrs. Work, Mrs. Hoover and Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Jennings of Columbus, Ohio; Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Sawyer were among the members of the presidential party who lined the room during the religious ceremonies, which started at 5:05 p. m. and finished at 5:19 p. m.

Mrs. Harding, dressed in deep mourning, with a black cape reaching to her shapots, was veiled. She held her gaze on the minister while he read his text, but bowed her head as he raised his hand for prayer. Her eyes were dry at the finish of the prayer and the repeated voice she uttered the word, "Amen."

When the minister finished Mrs. Christian stepped back to her original place, and Mrs. Harding, leaning on Secretary Christian's arm, walked to the front of the coffin, held her hand out to the Rev. Mr. West and gazed at the face of her dead husband.

However, her gaze lasted for only a moment and she began to talk with the Rev. Mr. West. Several times she looked toward the crowd, and after a few seconds her eyes returned to him, instinctively felt by those present. General J. J. Pershing and General Morton led the procession out.

Mrs. Harding Heroic

Mrs. Harding stood erect and watched those passing out, with never a break in her figure or a hitch in her voice as she continued to talk with the minister.

Only once during the entire service did Secretary Christian seem worried about Mrs. Harding. As the minister uttered the words: "We bless thee for his unshaking courage, his stalwart strength, his radiant mind and his noble heart, for his self-forgetting devotion in the cause of justice, brotherhood and peace for the individual, the nation and the world, in the propagation of which he sacrificed his life," Secretary Christian removed his arm from her waist, but as he glanced at her face, he immediately placed his arm where she could hold it again.

While Mrs. Harding, a pathetic figure, stood dry-eyed, tears of sorrow streamed unchecked down the cheeks of many, including Washington correspondents, among whom the late president numbered many of his closest and most intimate friends. Men who make a business of reporting the disasters and misdeeds of the square here, the editorial writers are unconcerned in regard to their work, stood unshaken as they stood and cried for one they loved.

Mrs. Harding left the Palace hotel for the station in a closed car at 7 o'clock, accompanied by Dr. Sawyer and Secretary Christian. The shades of her car were drawn and there was no draping on it in either black or colors. Spectators along the sidewalk bared their heads as the car passed.

For several minutes prior to the departure of Mrs. Harding there were wild reports being circulated to the effect that she was too ill, that physicians had forbidden her to make the journey east. These reports soon proved unfounded. The true reason for the delay in her departure was the desire of members of the presidential party to spare her the ordeal of having to make the slow journey to the station. As Mrs. Harding passed down the hotel corridor she turned to a policeman who had been detailed to the floor on which the presidential suite was located and said:

"Thank you very much, Mr. Watson."

To his widow, Mrs. Harding, the city said no reverie with a compassionate unwhitened here since those sad days of the earthquake and fire when San Francisco had unassuageable sorrow of her own.

The outpouring of this compassion came at sunset tonight when the city's thousands lined the streets leading from the Palace hotel, where President Harding died last night, to the Southern Pacific station, where his body was placed on board a special train to be taken to Washington.

The body was placed in the same car he occupied on coming here and started on that final journey from which none, not even president, return.

Platforms Bare

The scene inside the railroad station where the presidential train was waiting was a strange one. Platforms that ordinarily are crowded with people were bare. Passageways to and from the train were empty. Tracks usually occupied by trains were vacant. Only on the further track, near a street, traverse to the street, stood the same line of cars that the president's party had occupied on the trip west—and one more.

Rearmost was the car in which Warren G. Harding had lived and worked from Washington to Seattle and in which he had ridden from Seattle to San Francisco. Outside it was garlanded with ferns and cypress greenery.

Inside the car was hung with black to typify a nation's mourning for a strict leader, and the observation section through the broad windows of which Mrs. Harding so often had gazed with pleasure and wonder at the mighty western peaks, was covered over with black.

From the roof hung garlands of purple and white asters and in the front, its length parallel to that of the car, was a low black pier.

Wherever there was a place to fasten them, cypress and ferns had been attached, so that the president lay surrounded by evergreen, symbolic of immortality, and by the flowers and ferns that typified the great outdoors he loved so well.

Overhead the lights burned as they will burn while the mortal part of Warren G. Harding makes its journey to Washington.

That room will be occupied while the train speeds eastward; sailors and soldiers will stand guard there; men who had known Warren Harding from boyhood will go there and stand awhile, silent, gazing on the casket of a well-loved friend; a frail courageous figure in black will stand there softly and sob.

But just beyond was another place that no one will enter or occupy—the room where Warren Harding lay during the first struggles with his final illness. That room is locked. In it are the president's baggage, the things he knew and used and labored with. No one will use them now. Mrs. Harding's room is in the middle of the car where springs and girders exert their greatest effect to lessen the strain of traveling, yet not so far but that she can go alone in the dark watches to keep a vigil beside her helpmeet.

Down on the platform beside the train a little crowd awaited the coming of the president's body. Its members were also members of the president's own party on the westward journey, waiting to begin their last journey, with their chief, their leader and their friend. Opposite were passengers from a train four tracks away whose departure was delayed until the presidential special should have gone so that a funeral train might have a clear track.

Airplanes Circle Above

Overhead, airplanes from the army posts about San Francisco bay circled, long black streamers flying from their wings in token of official mourning. Clusters of roses, loving tribute to the dead, fluttered down from them as they passed over the train. Then outside of the muffled beat of drums was heard and through the archway could be seen the presidential escort drawing up in solemn array to pay the final honors accorded the departed commander-in-chief. More drums, more troops and sailors and marines passing, a band playing a death march, the guard of honor, officers of the country's three services, each with sword hilt wrapped with crepe, took up its station in the airway.

A hush fell; John J. Pershing, general of the United States, stood solemnly to a post beside the train and stood erect. Admirals, generals and other officers of the army and navy marched in solemnly, heads erect, but many faces drawn with emotion, and took their station beside the train.

Then the casket, wrapped in the American flag its occupant had served and bearing on its top a wreath, was borne in on the shoulders of a stalwart group of men from all three of the country's armed services. Gently, deliberately, they laid it down upon the platform beside the car, stepped up on that grim rostrum and lifted it through the window. The glass was closed, the cortege broke up and all the solemn picture, with its background of grave-faced men and black-faced women was ended.

There was not a face but portrayed a loss almost beyond bearing; there was not an eye but brimmed with tears.

Friends Grief Stricken

Harry M. Daugherty, attorney general, leaned heavily on the arm of a friend, sobbing bitterly, his eyes watering, but barely audible as he passed. Then others of the official party clambered aboard the train.

Policemen cleared a lane to the rear-most car, the car where the president's body lay. The train was then formed lines on either side of it. The airbrakes hissed as a trainman tried them.

Loving hands carried to the baggage car, away down the platform, behind the crepe hung locomotive, the mass of flowers that had stood beside the presidential car. Seven o'clock, the hour set for the train's departure, came and went.

Then, down the aisle edged with navy blue and gold and army olive drab, came a slender figure, black clad and stooping slightly. It was Mrs. Harding. She was on the arm of George B. Christian, Jr., the president's secretary, whose frock-coated shoulders were far bent in grief as he led her to the steps.

They climbed upon the platform whence President Harding used to wave his hand so cheerfully. At the wayside crowds, both fumbled with the door catch an instant, then the black-clad figure stepped inside. Florence Harding was with her dead.

An instant later Secretary Christian entered alone.

Then, very slowly, very quietly, while all along the station, platforms the crowds stood with bared heads and soldiers and sailors drew themselves up in salute, the train began to move. Far along the tracks, where a great crowd had gathered outside the station to witness its departure, the people stood hushed and barchended. The lights on the last car, the president's car, dwindled and grew dimmer in the distance, vanished as the train rounded a curve.

The president was gone.

upon every occasion which I shall always thankfully bear in mind."

TOKIO, Aug. 3 (AP)—The news of President Harding's death came like a bombshell to Tokio, where but a few hours before most encouraging bulletins of his rapid recovery had been published. The first news of the executive's demise came in a message from the Associated Press to the Kokusai news agency and was immediately broadcast throughout Tokio in newspaper extras.

Ambassador Woods, who was sponsored a few weeks at Nikko, was notified by his embassy. Up to that time he had not received the official message from Washington. He is expected to return to Tokio tonight.

Good Friday

The vicar of Blackburn, England, presided in the local press against a Good Friday football match in the town's leading team and Glasgow, saying the day should not be used for amusement. But pervicaciously enough practically all over Europe Good Friday is regarded as a day for holiday merriment. In Rome ships are generally open all day. Monaco is celebrated for its Good Friday mystery play. Of recent years in England the day has been marked by great outdoor religious processions. During the last year of the war, when the Germans were breaking our Fifth army, all the Protestant bodies united in a Good Friday outdoor procession and service. It was directed by the bishop of London, who yielded the principal place to the Salvation army.—London Mail.

Definition of Great Novel

A truly great novel, says John Middleton Murry, in the State Review, is a tale to the simple, a parable to the wise, and a direct revelation of reality in the light of a unique consciousness to the man who has made it his own.

On July 5 he disappeared and nothing was heard from him until the writer met him this morning. Instead of the white-faced, bored young chap who left New York, there appeared a healthy, bronzed young workman, full of life and enjoying himself.

State Agricultural Commissioner Means Optimistic Over Twin Falls Future in Diversified Production

Diversified crops are putting the Twin Falls country on a basis of permanent prosperity, according to M. A. Means, Idaho commissioner of agriculture, who, with M. L. Dean, director of the state bureau of plant industry, visited Twin Falls Wednesday and conferred at afternoon and evening meetings here of dairy products buyers of this region.

Commissioner Means and Mr. Dean came to Twin Falls in the course of a business tour of the state and in the vicinity of Twin Falls, Mr. Dean pronounced fruit crop conditions generally satisfactory outside of damage caused by hail and an insect pest known as the leaf miner.

Noted Entomologist Says Weevil Must Be Combated by its Natural Enemies

The alfalfa weevil problem in this country will never be solved satisfactorily until the natural enemies of the pest, certain fungi and insects that are to be found only in foreign lands, are brought here, according to Ralph H. Smith, widely known entomologist, who left after two days' visit here Saturday evening.

County Commissioners at Potatillo Conference Hear Plan Explained

Representatives of the boards of commissioners of 12 of the 24 counties that would be included in a terminal elevator and warehouse district under provisions of a law passed by the last state legislature, at a conference convened in Potatillo Monday by the Potatillo Chamber of Commerce, heard detailed explanation of the plan outlined in the law, but indicated unwillingness at that time to give their endorsement, according to report brought back Tuesday by O. E. Carlson of Twin Falls, who attended the conference as the member representing the Twin Falls county board.

THE MAN WE MOURN

With the passing of the first shock that came with the word that President Harding had passed beyond the affairs of men and the world, there is coming about a realization of the greatness of the task that has been his since he was called a little more than two years ago to the helm of the ship of state, and a growing appreciation of the man and his work.

"I would rather solve a difficulty than embrace a danger," President Harding said in one of his speeches on the trip from which he was destined not to return—and in that simple text there is to be found the key to his course as the nation's chief executive. There is admiration for the work that he did, but there is more than admiration for the manner in which he did it. His part, as he conceived it, was one of council and guidance; not of dictatorship. His was a patience that can come only from steadfast belief in the ultimate triumph of righteousness. His fidelity to his convictions, his manifest sincerity, his God-given ability to hold high position and not to lose the common touch, his strength to resist temptation to swerve from his course to follow, perhaps, the easier way, and his courage to act decisively and promptly when there was need for such action, are attributes of the man that will make his life and influence as long as the memory of America's truly great men shall endure.

Many Pets Travel With Auto Tourists

Dogs of High and Low Degree, Many Goats and Pigeons Seen on Visit to Park

When we hear the word tourist, we are more than apt to think of human beings only, but there is where we make a great mistake. A few visits to our tourist park would convince one that men and women are not alone among the wanderers. The most numerous of the lower animals in the dog, and not only the dog, but dogs and more dogs, for both "mongrel, puppy, whelp and hound and curs of low degree are there. Next in number come the squirrels, to be exact, two of them. Then comes one poll parrot with his or her talking partner in a fall wing order, and last, but by no means least, is a nunny goat that furnishes fresh milk on demand. What is the use of going to the circus?

CONSTITUTIONAL TAX LAW AMENDMENT

County Attorney Holds Amendments Not Effective as to 1920 Delinquencies

Amendment to Idaho tax laws made by the 1923 session of the state legislature, is not retroactive and does not affect proceedings relative to delinquencies incurred in 1920 and prior thereto, according to an opinion given Tuesday by Prosecuting Attorney J. W. Taylor. The question was presented by the county treasurer and tax collector, who is now preparing notices to landowners of the impending expiration of the statutory period for redemption of property upon which taxes became delinquent in 1920.

Commissioner Means and Mr. Dean came to Twin Falls in the course of a business tour of the state and in the vicinity of Twin Falls, Mr. Dean pronounced fruit crop conditions generally satisfactory outside of damage caused by hail and an insect pest known as the leaf miner.

Hold's Law Extends Redemption Period

As a result of an opinion given by Prosecuting Attorney J. W. Taylor, there will be no notices sent out to owners of property on which taxes have been delinquent since 1920, it was announced Tuesday by the county treasurer and collector. The opinion, which relates to amendments to the state tax laws made at the last session of the legislature, holds that the period for redemption of property on which taxes are delinquent expires from three to four years and that property on which taxes became delinquent in 1920 is subject to redemption up to January 1, 1924.

Anaconda Copper Mining Company Puts Scouts in Contact District

Representatives of the Anaconda Copper Mining company, owners and operators of the principal copper fields of Montana, are in the Contact, Nevada, district examining a number of the more important properties there, according to information that was generally accepted as authoritative brought here Friday evening.

No indication of the purpose of the Anaconda interests in visiting the Contact district was given out, and their visit was being made under cover of close secrecy.

The arrival of the Montana operators, although it has been anticipated, has served to encourage and stimulate interest on the part of Contact mining property owners in their holdings and the prospects for the camp, which is promised a long needed railway outlet in construction of the Rogerson-Well's line.

KEEL EXPLAINS WATER CHARGES

Establishment of Economical and Efficient Delivery System Commission's Aim

"It is not a step that has been taken without the utmost careful consideration," J. S. Keel, commissioner of finance, said Thursday, in discussing the raise in water rates which has become effective through the system this month. "We have given the matter most detailed investigation, and have finally taken this action because it appears to be the only way to secure the funds with which to place the system on a basis of lasting economy and real business efficiency. To pay for water on any other basis than that of actual consumption is obviously unfair. To buy water according to the size of your house is as absurd as to buy milk or groceries or coal or electricity or any other necessity. But before water can be sold to the consumer by quantity an accurate measuring device must be installed for each service. This has been done in two thirds of the town, but because the entire town is not so served, consumers have been allowed to take their choice between metered and flat rates. To acquire the funds for installation of the remaining 300 meters needed, the water rates have been raised. When these rates have served their purpose, another readjustment will be made. There is no disposition on the part of the commissioners or any one concerned with the department to do anything more than the strictest economy in the administration of the affairs of the system.

"It is needless to say that under the present system there is a tremendous wastage of water. Former Superintendent J. Pilgrimm and Superintendent H. Johnson, who have been in charge of the quantity of water finished for use at the filter plant. One may ride through the streets of this city and observe at any hour on any street water running off the lawns and down the gutters. Remember that this is all water that has been treated at much expense to us all that it may meet the requirements of health and sanitation. One can only speculate on the number of leaking faucets and toilets that are also contributing to the general waste. If this water were being paid for according to consumption it would not be wasted. Soil interest may be depended upon to care for the situation, once the measuring devices are established.

"Many ignorant assertions are being freely made concerning the inevitable expense attending the use of metered water. It is the testimony from cities using the meter system of selling water that the economies far offset the expense. It is significant to remember that we have in no instance known to the speaker, reverted to the old plan of flat rate. If the town has the growth anticipated by most citizens as likely to attend the next few years, it will mean the necessity for a large increase in the capacity of the plant for furnishing the water. The greater the wastage, the larger the expense.

"Approached from any angle, the subject has presented no other aspect than that of economy in dealing as we believe it will, to economy on the part of water users and that reduction of cost which we have all found to attend a united effort to save intelligently.

"It has been asserted by many that property owners will not consent to the use of meters as used, as the cost would be excessive. Many are now using the metered water and their lawns have not suffered. They simply have not flushed the streets and gutters adequately with the water. Remember that the rain sprinklers during heavy rains. They have used water with intelligence and their surrounding premises bear no blight of drought. An examination of their water bills shows that they average about the same as those properties that use the flat rate.

Some say that they tried the metered water and returned to the flat rate as cheaper. That is probably true. You can't turn water loose when you are on the meter without running up a water bill."

CIRCUS SPIRIT HOLDS INJURED MAN TO POST

Chief Animal Trainer for Hagenbeck-Wallace Concludes Act After Suffering Severe Hurts

"The spirit of the circus." That is what enabled Herr Jawn Helliot, the chief animal trainer of the Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace circus, to complete his act and then work an additional day until another trainer arrived after nearly leaving his right arm torn from his body by "Sultan," the giant lion, valued at $25,000 by the circus management.

Last winter, when the Hagenbeck show was appearing intact in the big building in the metropolitan centers, such as Chicago, Cleveland, Kansas City and St. Louis, Helliot was working his group of seven lions in St. Paul. The lions had been acting lamely for several days, due to the cold weather outside, and their close quarters, but Helliot was certain no would "work" them without danger.

Suddenly Sultan, the largest lion in the group, turned upon his trainer, as Helliot was about to put his arm around him. The arm was nearly torn from the body, but Helliot tumbled outside of the cage, had it banded to his body and then returned to the arena to complete the act. Spectators applauded the man for his courage and nerve, but Helliot was not seeking applause; he only wanted to "make good."

Helliot also worked the act twice the next day, as John Gullyroy, another trainer, did not reach St. Paul from West Baden until late that night. And then on the third day, without ever seeing the animals perform, Gullyroy went into the arena and put the lions through their act.

Helliot remained in the hospital for several weeks, but returned to West Baden in time to perfect an act in which eleven tigers will appear. This is the largest number of tigers to ever work simultaneously in this country and was perfected after three years of constant training. Both the lion and tiger acts are features of the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus, which comes to Twin Falls for two performances and big free street parade, on Friday, August 10.

WHEAT OPENS AT $1.25

Reports from Buhl Country. Where Harvest Is in Full Swing, Quote Opening Market Price for Crop

The wheat market at Buhl, where harvesting is in full swing and some threshing is under way, "opened" this week at 75 cents a bushel, or $1.25 a hundred pounds, according to reports received here Friday to the effect that this price had been offered by the elevator at Buhl to H. N. Levecke, who began threshing this week. The market "opened" last year at about this figure, it was recalled.

TOURIST FINDS LOST PUP HERE

Iowa Woman Makes Successful Appeal to Sister on Tour to Locate Missing Pet

The adage that the world is growing smaller was verified at the tourist park Thursday evening. Mrs. Clarence Snook of Grand Junction, Iowa, missed her little dog, Toodles, which was in the habit of going to the tourist park near her home, and she thought that some traveler had stolen him, so she wrote to her sister, Mrs. Egli, who is touring the west, to look out for him. Mrs. Egli and family arrived in Twin Falls Wednesday evening and established their camp at the north end of the park. Soon afterward a card bearing a Massachusetts license tag rolled in and was taken to untold nary. About the first thing to come out was Mr. Toodles' few inquiries established the fact that the Massachusetts party had camped in the park at Grand Junction at the time the dog disappeared. Mr. Egli claimed the dog and took possession of him, and the Massachusetts party pulled out for Oakland, California, this morning.

The Egli party consists of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Egli who register from Joliet, Mont., and Jacob Egli of Grand Junction, Iowa. When asked what their destination was they said they were just wandering.

Among the most interesting people that we meet in the park, probably none have been more interesting than two young brothers, Fridtjaf and Hagen Rihl, from Copenhagen, Denmark, who have just graduated from an agricultural college in Denmark, and are touring the United States studying out ways of farming. They started from New York city and have traveled all the states bordering on the lakes and Canada. They are going to Washington and down the coast to Mexico and then through New Mexico, Arizona, Texas and the Gulf states to Florida and back to New York and then home. They expressed themselves as much pleased with what they had seen and learned.

Mr. and Mrs. Brouillett of Sioux City, Iowa, are journeying to Los Angeles to make their home. Mr. Brouillett has been practicing law in Iowa for twenty years, but is seeking a milder climate. F. T. Parish and family, and Mrs. Mary Howland from Mt. Vernon, N. D., are making in the night from the Black Hills on west, and will go to Los Angeles for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Ballou and Mrs. Sue Cummer and daughter from Ashland, Nebraska, have been wandering over the country as far as British Columbia, and expect to reach Pocomo, California before cold weather.

M. M. Williams and family of Pasadena, are on their way home from Yellowstone park. They are going by way of Portland to take advantage of the better road this way.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Jacobson are on their way from Chicago to Glendale, Cal., to make their home.

T. W. Reed and family are returning from Yellowstone park. They went through Spokane and Montana but very wisely are returning through our country. They were surprised at the change from sagebrush to fine farms, and said they had no idea that such a fine country existed.

Frank Shook and family are going back to Greene, Iowa, to visit the old home and friends.

It seems that a majority of the people passing through the park are en route to Los Angeles. In this group we note Lewis Steakal and family from Roselle Park, New Jersey; Mr. and Mrs. A. Miller and trip, daughter, F. F. Proctor of Niagara Falls, N. Y.; H. C. Wiselund and family from Geneva, Illinois; E. E. Sutton and family from Pueblo, Colo.

HUSBAND GIVEN DIVORCE

Decree of divorce from Leonora Hanford was granted Friday by Judge W. A. Babcock in district court here to E. Jay Hanford, who complained that his wife had absented herself from their home since May, 1922, seven years after their marriage. Hanford was represented by Attorney George Herriott.

Mercury's Course Follows Old Track

Temperature's rise and fall for three successive days has followed an almost identical course according to records of the government weather observer's station here. Friday's high point is shown by these records at 85 degrees, which is one point up from Thursday's maximum and the same as the high for Wednesday. Low for Friday is shown at 47 degrees, or one point above the minimum recorded on both preceding days.

AUTO DRIVER ACQUITTED

A. H. Kulper, Accused of Overtaking Horse-Drawn Vehicle on Highway, Is Set Free by Jury

A. H. Kulper was Friday acquitted by verdict of a jury in Justice of the Peace Kennedy Packard's court on charges of reckless driving professed by the prosecuting attorney's office at the instance of G. C. Clontz of Hanson, who testified that Kulper driving a Ford bug had overtaken a horse-drawn vehicle on the highway at Hanson, endangering the lives and persons of his son and daughter and a girl companion. No testimony was introduced by the defense, Attorney Orr W. Chapman contending in his argument that the prosecution had failed to identify Kulper as the driver of the machine.

CHEMICALS IN DEMAND IN WAR ON WINGED PEST

Consumption of Poisons Used in Combating Grasshoppers Reaches Big Figures

Success attending the use of arsenite poisons in combating the grasshopper pest that has made itself evident to a greater or less extent in all parts of the county this year, is producing a strong demand for the poison that is being supplied through the county farm bureau, according to R. E. Broadard, county agent.

A shipment of 110 pounds of white arsenite and 500 pounds of sodium arsenite was received Friday at the farm bureau offices, bringing the total amounts handled by the farm bureau here this season to 650 pounds of arsenite and almost 200 gallons of white arsenite. The latter product is used also in combating noxious weeds.

IMMEDIATE RULING IN GLAVIN CASE PROMISED

Judge Edgerton Sets Time for Giving Decision in Suit Involving Salmon Water Deliveries

Decision in the case of R. Glavin against the Salmon River Canal company, as to whether the company shall be permitted to furnish aspredeca bond to stay proceedings under the judgment of Judge T. Bailey Lee, regarding delivery of irrigation water on a pro rata basis, will be announced Saturday, it was stated Friday at the conclusion of two days' hearing on the question before Judge George Edgerton of Idaho Falls. The judge's decision on this question will be accompanied by an order fixing the bond to be furnished, provided the furnishing of such a bond is held permissible.

Friday's session was given over to testimony introduced with a view to aiding the court in fixing the amount of the bond, if it is allowed. Questions as to admissibility of the bond was argued Thursday by John W. Graham, attorney for Glavin, and James R. Bothwell, attorney for the canal company.
