CONGRESSIONAL CONFERENCES ARE SCHEDULED

Opposition to Regulars by Republican Progressive Blocs Expected to Be Indicated in Friday's Confabs

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29 (AP)—Conferences to be held tomorrow by the republican progressive blocs of the house and senate may point the way to the extent of opposition the regular republican organizations will encounter in their efforts to organize promptly the two houses.

Senate republican leaders apparently have determined to leave the democrats or the progressives, or both, the initiative in any organization fight.

Republican leaders in the house apparently are not concerning themselves with the demands of the progressive bloc.

There were but few holiday conferences today at the capitol and those were largely between republican and democratic leaders of the senate with respect to the appointment of committee places as between the two parties.

PROPOSED LOAN TO HUNGARY IS GIVEN THOUGHT

Details for Reconstruction Plan Worked Out by League Committee; Revenues to Be Given as Nation's Security

LONDON, Nov. 29 (AP)—Details of the proposed loan to Hungary, intended as part of the reconstruction measures for that country which the league of nations has under way, have been worked out by the committee of the league which has been meeting here and which it was announced yesterday had agreed upon a scheme to be submitted to the league council next month.

This loan will, under the committee's plan, be directed by a commission general responsible to the league and having functions similar to those of Dr. Alfred Zimmermann, the league's representative in Vienna in the Austrian reconstruction work.

The sum required to put Hungary on her feet will be much less than was necessary in the case of Austria. It is expected that the budget can be balanced in two and one-half years with the assistance of a loan of about 250,000,000 gold crowns, after which Hungary, by means of her own natural resources and her self-maintenance in food will be able to maintain herself as a self-supporting state.

Unlike the loan for Austria no guarantees of foreign government will be required for the proposed Hungarian loan. The revenue from the customs, tobacco and salt monopolies and the sugar tax may be made available with the additional security of further assigned revenues if they are required.

The committee considers that the success of any scheme for Hungarian reconstruction depends upon satisfactory arrangements being made regarding Hungary's liabilities for war reparations and other debts and the establishment of good political arrangements with Hungary's neighbors.

Dr. de Kallay, Hungarian minister of finance, and other members of the Hungarian delegation who have been supplying the financial committee with information, will leave for Budapest tomorrow.

LADY ASTOR IS SEEKING VOTES

Former American Woman Delivers Stirring Addresses in Parliamentary Campaign

PLYMOUTH, England, Nov. 29 (AP)

Lady Astor is carrying on a very lively campaign for re-election to parliament and her meetings are so crowded she often has to struggle to reach the platform upon which she is usually subjected to brisk heckling to which her quick and witty answers afford much amusement and keep her hearers in good temper. At a meeting today in which she sought to show the impracticability of the proposed levy on the capital championed by the labor party, Lady Astor said: "They may tax the rich. Well, the rich are being taxed; alive and dead, and its quite right. One reason why death duties are better than a capital levy is that all the millionaires don't die at once." The speeches Lady Astor is making are centering largely on social reforms, especially those on behalf of women and children. Today one heckler said: "What will you do when you die?" amid laughter and cheers. Lady Astor retorted: "I am going to send you, my son."

This was a reference to her speech when she was elected to parliament, when she declared she would have sent until her son was old enough to be a candidate.

BENNETT WINS HOLIDAY RACE

Speed of 112 Miles an Hour Made in Beverly Hills Thanksgiving Auto Classic

BEVERLY HILLS SPEEDWAY, Cal., Nov. 29 (AP)—R. A. Bennett Hill, driving at 112.44 miles an hour, won the 250-mile Thanksgiving day automobile race here today. His time was 2 hours 13 minutes and 25 seconds. Hill was followed closely by Jimmy Murphy, who finished in two hours 16 minutes and 30 seconds. Eldio Hearne finished third.

Two fatalities occurred in connection with the race. George L. Wade, wealthy sportsman of Kansas City, Mo., and Russell Hughes, a news photographer of Los Angeles, were killed when struck by the racing car of Harry Hartz, as Hartz was warming up his car shortly before the start.

In finishing third, Eddie Hearne won the 1923 national speed championship. He had a total of 1923 points toward the title before the race started and winning third place today gave him an additional 140 points. Jimmy Murphy ends the year's racing season in second place with a total of 1470 points to his credit. The stars of other nationally known drivers follow: Bennett Hill 955, Harry Hartz 829, Tommy Milton 810, Harlan Ferguson 750, Jerry Wonderlich 368, Cooper 310, Frank Elliott 266, Dave Lewis 234.

Today's race did not break the record of 118.6 miles an hour for 250 miles held by Jimmy Murphy.

Ralph De Palma who had engine trouble before the start of the race, failed to be a serious contender for winning honors.

Besides the accident which resulted in the fatalities, two other mishaps, neither of them resulting in injuries, occurred. While coming into the pits on his ninety-seventh lap, Shafter crashed into the pit fillings.

Tommy Milton leading the race at the 154th lap, skidded on a curve while in a speed duel with Jimmy Murphy, his car spinning around several times. In forcing his car to the lower side of the track, Milton ran off the course striking rough ground which broke an axle and put him out of the contest.

New York Churches Plead for Wider Share of Blessings; Prisoners Feast on Turkey

NEW YORK, Nov. 29 (AP)—Many of the city's churches echoed today with appeals for the United States to share more of her blessings with the less fortunate peoples of other lands. This three hundred and second anniversary of the holiday founded by Governor Bradford of Plymouth colony was widely observed. The usual number of arches from the Ghetto—boys in girls' clothes and girls in boys'—played charivari and gathered pennies among the crowds who thronged the public squares and theater districts during the day.

Every occupant of a cell feasted on turkey except the two negro inmates of the Tombs who asked for chicken and got it. Charitable organizations distributed thousands of baskets to families of the unfortunate, including mothers and children separated from their kin by prison bars.

At Ellis Island, nearly 3000 immigrants were initiated into the mysteries of turkey and cranberry sauce and every Bowery and waterfront home was crowded with guests-for-a-day.

CAPITAL CITY GRIDMEN WIN STATE TITLE

Boise High School Football Team Assumes Position Won by Twin Falls Last Year; Burley Puts Up Fierce Fight

BOISE, Nov. 28 (AP)—Boise High school's first eleven won the Idaho interscholastic gridiron championship this afternoon when it defeated the Burley High school squad 9 to 0 in one of the hardest fought contests ever staged on Coody field.

A rain, which started early in the morning and continued throughout the day, made the field heavy with the result that the game was slow and quiet for the spectators.

Boise's first score came early in the first quarter when Robertson recovered Quinter's block punt on Burley's 40-yard line and two first downs put Boise in a position to kick. Max Rawlins, half back, booted the ball.

Both teams confined their play to straight football, though fumbles, considering the slippery condition of the field, were remarkably infrequent.

Neither team scored in the second quarter. The ball was kept out of the 20-yard zones by both teams.

Boise's touchdown, the only one of the game, came soon after the whistle started the fight in the second half.

Both teams punted after Burley received Rawlins' kickoff and it was Burley's ball on their own 15-yard line after Taylor, diminutive end, placed the Burley quarterback, Kane, in downed in his tracks by the rangy and powerful Brave ends.

Wildcats and North Side Eleven Close Season with Hotly Contested Battle

The Filor Wildcats defeated the Jerome Tigers in the final game of the season for the two schools at Jerome Thursday by a score of 17-13.

Both teams were evenly matched and the game was really won, they thought, throughout. Filor's first score came in the first quarter when Lapp made a beautiful field goal from the 30-yard line.

A lucky kick in the beginning of the second half gave Jerome the ball on her own 1-yard line and a poor punt placed Filor in a position to score, which they did, Diehl carrying the ball over.

With the game called at 2:30, with Filor receiving. Filor made two successive first downs, but a costly punt by Lapp ended the game.

Jerome was the case earlier in the game, and two attempts there failed. However, on the last try Gorman went over right tackle for Jerome's first score.

Some three plays later, however, when Filor attempted passes. "Gene" Nims made the sensational run of the day, when he intercepted Lapp's pass and raced down the field.

Should the house become involved in an organizing deadlock, however, thus delaying the time for the appearance of the executive, it was indicated that the move in the senate for reorganization might be made within the first two or three days of the session and immediately after the adjournment now planned out of the senate to dead members of the two houses.

HOW OLD AGE CAN BE EVADED

Keep Inelastic That You Are Young, and Resist the Suggestions of Others.

Doc Henneberry has just proven the excellence of a long-held theory. For as long as I can remember Doc has insisted that age can be evaded, within limits. Nothing, he says, will grow hair on a bald head. But if the owner of the hairless caput will say to himself:

"I am not old. I will not be old. I shall remain a man of hale middle age."

He will not know he has over-ripe until the day the reaper gets him with his hook, says a writer in the Kansas City Star. Doc points out that not one man in a million realizes he is old until his younger friends begin to exhibit needless consideration for him.

"It is a shock for any man when he is first hears himself referred to as 'the old man.' But if he is not a person of sturdy character he soon begins to act old. He has not the ability to resist the power of suggestion."

Doc has been preaching and acting this for years. But last week his father dug himself out of the living grove he has been occupying for years and came to the city to visit his son. Doc says the old fool is a virtual proof of the truth of his theory of the essential youthfulness of man. He rolled forty years off his shoulders the first time he heard his son's ideas about being young.

"I'm going to send for mother," said Doc. "Young or old, she always had his number."

JAPANESE TAKE REAR SEATS

Attitude of These People in Public One of Modesty and Humble Apology.

On entering a meeting late (church address or public gathering) Japanese invariably passes at the door to bow in the direction of the platform—a combination of innate politeness and humble apology for the discourtesy of his tardy presence.

The Japanese shows a marked preference for a seat at the rear of the room and a position on the nearer end of a seat, his modesty occasioning those who follow him increasing inconvenience. "For when thou art hidden to a seat, sit not down in the chief seats; leave more honorable man than thou be hidden. But go and sit down in the lowest place. For whoever exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted."

A person who is forced to make a way for himself through a crowd or in front of others does so in a crouch between a crouch and a bow, expressive of supreme humility, murmuring the while, "Osore imassan" ("I go in trepidation"). Two Japanese quite out-hesitate Alphonse in debating precedence at narrow aisles or doorways. "Do not ask," "Please," "The honorable front."—Stewart B. Nichols in the Outlook.

Way Some People Dress.—Jud Tunkins says a good many parents now dress in a way that looks as if the children were selecting the clothes for the family.

GOVERNMENT BY RADIO

Lord Burnham, considering the question of broadcasting as a possible branch of the British postal service, foresees general use of radio for governmental purposes.

It suggests that a day may come soon when British imperial conferences like the one recently held in London will not require the presence of the premiers of the various self-governing dominions. The governmental heads of England, Canada, South Africa, Australia, etc., will discuss imperial questions with each other by radio, while sitting in their own offices in their respective capitals. And when the British prime minister has an important address to make, it will be transmitted by radio to the other prime ministers as a matter of course.

The prospect of the big, widely scattered British Empire governing itself by radio is one that stirs the imagination of an age that is jaded with wonders. It suggests, too, to any active mind, numerous uses to which radio could be profitably applied by our own government.

Soon, no doubt, we shall have the President's addresses to Congress broadcast officially by a government station. Why not broadcast also the regular proceedings of a congressional session from day to day, so that any citizen sufficiently interested could follow for himself the House and Senate routine or the debate on any particular measure?

Why not broadcast decisions of the Supreme Court? Or anything else of timely interest to the public? Here is the possibility of giving a nation of more than one hundred million people facilities for observing the machinery of government comparable to the old town meeting.

ANXIOUS MOTHER SEEKS MISSING DAUGHTER HERE

In an effort to locate her daughter, Annie L. Miles, a resident of Twin Falls, Idaho, who she says has been missing since she left her home in England has enlisted the assistance of Shad L. Hodgins, Twin Falls mayor, to whom the following letter was delivered Monday:

"I am writing to ask you a favor. Will you kindly do your best to locate my daughter, Annie L. Miles, residing in the city in 1919, and not heard from since that date? In one of your banks she had deposited money. Perhaps they will be good enough to tell you where it was transferred to. It is very important that she should be found. Surely she must be registered somewhere.

"I am anxious to hear some good news of her. I do hope some wicked people have not done away with her. It's very sad. I am her ma and I want her home.

"She lived with a Mrs. Robertson and a Mrs. Steaver over there. I have written to them and they say they are sorry but they cannot give me any information. I am afraid no one will be able to find her. Do your best, please. If it is possible, do you think that if anything has happened to her, some one would write and tell me?"

MOTHER'S INFLUENCE IS NOTED IN FIRST THANKSGIVING OBSERVANCE

Unconventional Address Treats of Holiday as Home Festival and Draws Lesson from Maternal Influence in Acts of Lincoln; Service Featured by Superb Musical Program

Characterized by superb music by a choir and orchestra under direction of Gustav Flechtner, of Twin Falls Synagogue orchestra, was an unconventional Thanksgiving address by the Rev. Charles E. Wining, minister of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Union, Thanksgiving services in the Presbyterian church Thursday were attended by one of the largest assemblages ever gathered here on a religious occasion. On the platform with the principal speakers were Rev. Edgar L. White, Rev. Arthur G. Pearson, Rev. W. H. Tolliver, and each took part in the program.

Speaking of "Thanksgiving, a Home Festival," Mr. Wining presented the address. That Abraham Lincoln, the author of the first national annual Thanksgiving Day proclamation, had been inspired by the heart of his mother. He traced in graphic word pictures the mother's influence over the career of the martyred president. He said, in part: "We love our country and we love our God. We are none the less patriots than Christians. The patriotism of President Coolidge's Thanksgiving Day proclamation appealed to us no more strongly than did his piety. The martyr who should share his country finally the atheist who hates his God. "But if Thanksgiving day is a day of national devotion it is not without other significant features—it is a day of home-gatherings, a day of family reunions. In keeping with scores of proclamations and in accordance with loved precedent, and following the homing instinct of our souls, hundreds of thousands of families will joyously seek annual reunion on this, the last Thursday in November.

"At this time of year we can hear with secular irrelevance the affectionate cry of the old home. "Almost 300 years ago, or to be historically accurate, in 1632, Governor Bradford of the Massachusetts Bay colony—good old Puritan that he was—issued the first Thanksgiving Day proclamation. The day was religiously observed; observed as a day of prayer and thanksgiving, but it was local in its observance. Other similar days were proclaimed and observed, each paving the way for the occasional Thanksgiving days of the Revolutionary period. The first national Thanksgiving Day proclamation was issued in Washington, in accordance with congressional instructions.

First Annual Thanksgiving. "But from 1700 to 1864 there was no annual Thanksgiving day—merely an occasional day proclaimed by governors of states, and once in many years a presidential proclamation; but in 1864 new life was given to the day and new meaning was added to the ancient custom, and therefore the last Thursday of November of each year has been the day when the families of America do homage to the God of nature, the God to whom the individual must bow and confess, and at the same time the household God, and at the same time the household God. "Without seeking to, in the least, lessen its national significance or its devotional element more and more its household significance is being recognized, and today I would like to dwell particularly on Thanksgiving day as a home festival.

Mother's Influence. "We cannot think (at least I cannot) of home without thinking of mother. I believe that Abraham Lincoln thought of his mother when in 1864, near the anniversary of her death, he issued the first national Thanksgiving Day proclamation. The heart of the mother was in the message of her son. What do I mean? I'll tell you. "There is a log hut, no windows, no floor. We look in at the door, which has been nailed, and see the sunlight which dances on the carpet of trampled earth. There are a few stools, no chairs, a few dishes, no cupboard. On a home-made bedstead lies the young wife of a young pioneer woodman of Indiana. "Abraham, she calls; and from outside, where she had been watching the restless wings of the wood birds, comes a boy, who, almost destitute of clothing, has been watching and listening for his mother's voice. "What is it, mother, he asks, and in a weak, ailing, thrilling way with mother's love and anxiety she replied, as she drew her boy to her side, 'I'm going to leave you, Abe, and O, how hard it is to part with you. How beautiful it is outside. It is always beautiful where God is. I'm going to meet Him in a better world than this. I learned to love Him at the camp meetings, and I want you to love Him too, Abe.' She paused and then continued: 'Abe, I have not had much to make me happy, but my voice has never failed to raise in praise whenever a feeling of religious awe goes over me. Abraham Lincoln you have a heart. I am thankful God gave you to us. Love everybody. Hinder nobody, and some day the world will be glad you were born. I am grateful for life, for everything, but more than all else because you are my heart.' "But he can't sing, Nancy"—these words, followed by a ripple of forced laughter, came from the tall young pioneer, clad in buckskins, who was trying to be cheerful, and thus cheer his wife, though he knew she was soon to leave him. She did not answer him.

Idaho Congressman Declares West Ready and Willing to Aid South in Solving Idle Land Problems

Stirring appeal for formation of a permanent organization to work for reclamation of the south's idle lands was made by Congressman Addison T. Smith of Idaho, chairman of the house committee on irrigation, at the forenoon, reclamation and homestead conference in New Orleans last week, according to advice received here. Congressman Smith, presiding at a joint meeting of delegates from the Western States Reclamation association with the southern delegates in connection with the four days conference, told of what had been accomplished through reclamation in the west and assured the southern delegates that the west was ready and willing to assist the south in solving its land utilization problems. He said that it is the producer that really counts and that it is necessary for the country's welfare to provide more farm homes.

Enthusiasm Aroused. Much enthusiasm was aroused at this particular session, according to advice, by the exchange of telegrams between the New Orleans conference and the Western States Reclamation association providing for a joint session of the representatives of the west and south to discuss mutual problems of reclamation and settlement and to devise a national program for carrying on the movement to a successful conclusion.

At a prior session of the conference Congressman Smith told of the benefits that had accrued from reclamation in the west, providing homes for about 45,000 families and adding $50,000,000 annually to the country's revenues. He also pledged his support for legislation to expand the federal reclamation policy into national scope.

The importance of utilizing such idle lands he said are available for self-supporting farm homes was the dominating motif prevailing throughout the conference sessions. Those advocating this use emphasized that these farm homes should be provided as a mode of relief for the destitute rural population and for producing men and women for the strength of the nation, rather than as mere money-making machines or "factories" to produce wealth.

Resolutions adopted set forth the settlement of the conference in favor of revising the federal reclamation law so as to make it national in its application.
