STATES OPPOSE FEDERAL RIGHT TO ESTATE TAX

Six Governors and Representatives of 11 Others in Washington to Appear Before House Committee.

(By the Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Six governors and the representatives of eleven others, led by Governor Walker of Virginia, gathered in Washington tonight preparatory to presenting their united opposition to a bill pending in the house which would increase the federal estate tax.

"Tomorrow's session of committee's tax-raising hearings will be devoted chiefly to the principle that, if an inheritance tax is to be levied, it should be collected by the states and not by the federal government."

Governor Walker, who came this afternoon, outlined the work of that institution during the past year. With view to placing the Idaho bill in the hands of every member of the order in the state, the grand lodge authorized appointment of a committee composed of Frank Klatte, grand representative; Fred C. Moore, past grand master, and Carl O. Johnson, deputy grand master, to present this matter to subordinate lodges.

STORIES DIFFER OF BURNING SHIP

Some Survivors Tell Board of Inquiry Sailors Were Drunk, Others Deny It.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Conflicting stories were told by survivors of the burned Clyde liner Comanche, at the hearing before the United States Steamboat Inspection board in the custom house today, as the vessel was destroyed off the coast of Florida Tuesday night, October 17. Several passengers told of drinking by members of the crew. Others denied they had seen any drinking and insisted that the crew behaved in a most sanitary manner.

John C. Moore of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Thomas F. Eganing of New York, both told inspectors Harris C. Colgan and A. J. Chapman that the passengers saved by the crew, William W. Mitchell of New York, although denying that he saw any drinking or abusive conduct among the crew declared "two passengers averted themselves and the crew saved themselves."

James C. Wilkey of West New Brighton, second steward of the ship, said he had one man in his department intoxicated, but denied there was excitement, drinking or any lack of seamanlike behavior on the part of the crew.

The hearing adjourned this afternoon after Charles Tobey, assistant general manager of the Clyde and Mallory lines, introduced the records of the licensed personnel of the ship and chief Captain Curry of the Comanche was the strictest disciplinary in the employ of the company.

CRIME STORIES HAVE PLACE IN NEWSPAPERS BELIEVES CLERGYMAN

MANHATTAN, Kansas, Oct. 22.—Crime stories have a logical place in American newspapers, Dr. Charles M. Shelton, nationally known Topeka clergyman and editor told journalism students at Kansas State Agricultural college this afternoon.

"Crime, however, should only be reported in the news when it is for the purpose of routing out the cause or remedying some human wrong," Dr. Shelton qualified.

He declared his belief that editorial comment should follow immediately the outstanding news stimulus of the day so that the interpretation or editorial opinion would be read by the man on the street.

EXTENSION OF ROAD TO SOUTH IS PREDICTED

Elko, Nevada, Independent Gives Arguments for Building Union Pacific Line to California From Wells.

The Oregon Short-Line's branch road from Hogerson to Wells was not designed to stop at Wells, according to the Elko, Nevada, Independent, which declares editorially in its issue of October 3 that "the day will probably come, although it may be years from now, when a trunk line railroad will be constructed through the towns of Elko and Fly, Nev., to connect with the lines of the Union Pacific system at Las Vegas."

The editorial continues: "The economic outlay of the territory which would thus be traversed eliminates the visionary from the suggestion. Such a line would open up great mineral deposits of Elko, deposits sufficient to keep a smelter in operation for 50 years. It would open up the tremendous shale deposits of southern Elko county, which are probably as prolific and as valuable as those of Elko county, and would place Elko upon a main line, and facilitate the operation of one of the greatest copper deposits in the world which has value now, and is sufficient to operate present mining equipment and pay for it for a term of 50 years. It would bring into active operation tremendous mining deposits of Lincoln county, now operated upon a meager basis at Pioche and Calipate. It would connect the great camp of Tonopah with main line facilities and in conjunction with the Tonopah & Tidewater railway would afford an outlet for Southern Nevada by direct rail route to southern or northern California.

West Resources Well.

A vast area of agricultural land would find impetus through the construction of such a road. Mines now in operation, or which are expected to be opened, could be supported. There is no dream connected with the source of the territory such a line would tap. Instead men have looked upon it as the thing with exactly this theme in mind.

Obviously the Southern Pacific or Western Pacific would not build it, most by the construction of this tentative railway. But their profit through southern Nevada could become tangible only through agreement with the main line systems of the Union Pacific. But the Union Pacific will not gain through it, through its construction if an agreement could be reached with either the Southern or Western Pacific to use either main line into northern California.

The rich business of southern Oregon is not the only objective of railway companies in these stirring days. To complete the Union Pacific much more northern California. The route through Nevada is logical and will produce a profit. The Oregon Short-Line's branch road from Hogerson to Wells was not designed to stop at Wells. Its extension would mean the development of wealth probably twice as great as that contained in the Contact area. The casual observer has a little better than idle right to speculation.

How Can You Make Such Prices?

QUITTING BUSINESS SALE

We have been asked the question dozens of times since we started this how we could sell goods at such LOW PRICES and why did we allow the people to exchange goods or give them a refund of their money if things were not satisfactory.

Our answer has always been, that after 14 years of conducting a business on this principle we were too old to change our ways simply because we were going out of business and leaving Twin Falls, and the LOW PRICES would move the greatest quantity of goods in the shortest time and cut down our overhead expenses.

Oil Shortage Outlook Is Discussed by Statistician

Roger W. Babson in Special Article Comments on Situation Today; Points to Condition of Fields.

BABSON PARK, Mass., Oct. 22.—

While we are discussing the bountiful crops of the country at this time of the year," said Mr. Babson, in an interview yesterday, "we must not forget the great oil crop which is annually being produced. This crop has not only brought huge wealth to individuals and families, but it has been a great factor in making cities such as Los Angeles, and San Francisco, and the basis of great prosperity in states like Oklahoma. Oil was doubtless a real factor in causing the war, and it is surely it was of major importance in connection with the waging of that war. It will be no less a great factor in connection with the next war. If we are so unfortunate as to ever have another. The following table gives an idea of the increase in oil production the past few years.

Year	No. of Bbls.	Value
1920	412,923,000	472,183,000
1921	507,613,000	723,407,000
1922	713,940,000	757,000,000
1923	757,000,000	(1925 estimated)

Question of an Oil Shortage.

"Now and then business men are distressed by statistics that their own will be an oil shortage. Perhaps some scientist makes a shabby speech or perhaps it comes from the pagandists who are interested in inflating the price of either the commodity or perhaps it comes from the ever, need be no fear of such a shortage so long as we live. At the present time the oil production exceeds the actual storage to last about a year. When we consider the available supply underground, it is not only abundant but heated we find there is enough to last forty years even considering the fact that the oil is being used for knowledge deposits and not exceeding eight or nine thousand feet below the surface. Everything leads statisticians to believe, however, that operators will continue to drill deeper and deeper and that wells will go on being drilled twelve thousand, and even fifteen thousand feet deep. What will be found by getting five thousand feet more than all statistics indicate that a tremendous supply of oil is available.

"If drilling becomes deeper, not only is more oil available in territory already drilled, but oil will be produced from territory that is producing nothing at the present time. Moreover, only about 10 per cent of the present surface of the United States is producing oil and yet geologists are sure that nearly 60 per cent of the United States is capable of producing oil if the wells are drilled into the territory.

"The present situation of competitive companies with filling stations on every corner of the main cross roads is utterly foolish, as is the competitive advertising which is being done by these oil companies, especially billboard advertising. This unnecessary competition thus must shortly bring about consolidation both among the producers and the sales companies. These consolidations will be a good thing, not only for the stockholders but for the public as well. Then the cost of selling can be greatly cut down, and the public must of necessity get a portion of these savings.

"I, however, do not wish to be misunderstood as to the ultimate future of these selling companies as I believe they have a great opportunity. The street corners which these oil companies occupy have great intrinsic value as they represent the most valuable sites available in the cities. The use of oil will increase and the value of these distributors will grow likewise. Moreover, the future price of oil is not of importance to them as they merely are merchants, buying and selling and taking their profit. The oil industry is fundamentally sound, and the retelling of oil, although temporarily overdone, has a stable future. The important thing to remember in connection with oil is to work with good people. Keep away from the speculative stocks; avoid wild cut stocks and wild speculation. Deal with real oil men who are interested in producing the commodity and are not interested in the stock market. Moreover, when investing in oil stocks buy only stocks of companies which are operated by honest and upright men. Remember that men create value and souls make men.

"Business continues at an 11 per cent above normal, by the Babson chart. This compares with 6 per cent below normal a year ago." (Copyright 1925, Publishers Financial Bureau.)

ALBION NORMAL HELD TO SMALL SCORE IN GAME

Plan for Revenge by Bruins Goes Awry; Total Yardage for Both Teams Tells Story of Breaks of Game.

The plan for revenge of the Bruins was set on Thursday when the Bruins suffered a 14 to 0 defeat at the hands of Albion Normal. Teachers of Owens and Kelly to handle two of Lapp's punts were responsible for two scores made by the teachers. In the first three minutes of play after the Bruin forward wall had stopped the Bruins' backs, Lapp punned to Owens who failed to handle the punt and White, first one of the teachers, scooped up the ball and raced to the Bruin 5-yard line before he was downed. It took the Normalians a minute to make that five yards but Lapp carried it over on the last down.

Early in the third quarter Lapp kicked from his own 15 yard line to mid-field and Kelly muffed the ball and again the Teachers of the pigskin punts 35 yards to the second and last Albion score. The first Bruin counter came early in the fourth quarter when an exchange of punts the Bruin carried the ball to the 30-yard line and Berg attempted a drop kick which was blocked by the Albion goal and a Bruin fell on it but the referee brought the ball back to the two-yard line and Berg took it over on the next play. Frazzelle dropped a kick between the bars from the 30-yard marker a few minutes later for the Bruin last score.

Make One First Down

The game was all the Bruins from the start, the teachers were unable to penetrate the Bruin line in any direction and were able to make but one first down during the entire game while the Bruins counted 14. The ball was in the teachers' territory throughout the game and only in the punting end were the visitors superior. The Bruin punts were a constant source of trouble to Albion coach master Ed Durlin. The last quarter the Bruins opened up desperately trying to get away from the hands of the ends only to be muffed. The whole Twit team had slippery fingers and frequently fumbled. The Bruin had the teachers in the shadow of their goal several times but lacked the punch of drive across for a score. And on the last play the whole Twit team had slippery fingers and frequently fumbled.

For Albion, White, fleet feet and stands out like the evening star, is fast and a power on defense. In fact the Bruin backs were unable to get him off his feet and keep him down. His speed in getting down on punts won the game for the teachers for on the fumbled punts he was the only man within 20 yards of both Owens and Kelly when they muffed the punts. Lapp outpatted the Twin Falls punters and to his too the Teachers owe a large share of their victory. Hawley played a floating tackle on defense and was a power in backing up the Albion line. He was not able to smear as many plays as in the former game but was a power in the Albion scheme of defense. Heath and Butler, guards, also did some work in the line. Aman was unable to get away at any time in Thursday's game and his gains were small.

All Play Nice Ball.

For the Bruin the whole team played nice ball, there was not an outstanding man in the game. The backs worked nicely but did not have the drive that they are capable of displaying. Outside of the two bad fumbles the Bruin backfield was able to gain consistently through the Albion line. The Twin Falls line was impregnable as is shown by the fact that Albion was able to make but one first down. The ends were not better and the tackles and guards were working nicely.

The Bruin lost Thursday's game because the breaks went against them and for no other reason. The Bruin outplayed the visitors in every department except punting and had the teachers with their backs against the goal most of the time. It was one of yard pass, Martin to Allett, put the Bruin in position to try for a field goal and Frazzelle was called for his third attempt and made good. Albion 14, Twin 0. The balance of the game was a series of punts with the Normalians trying desperately to get away with it. Both teams were penalized frequently for offense during the last few minutes of the game. The Bruin ended with the ball in Albion territory.

Rain and Low Hanging Mists Forces Day of Inactivity for Ships to Contest for Prizes Saturday.

(By the Associated Press.)

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 22.—Rain and low hanging mists forced a day of inactivity at Bay Shore park today, where the blue ribbon regattas of three nations are being grand for Saturday's Jacques Schneider trophy race. On the eve of the official qualifying tests, the inclement weather rolled the racing entries of their last chance for flight trials over the Chesapeake bay course before entering the grueling invigilatory trials. Tomorrow the planes will be put through their paces on the surface of the bay, to test their seaworthiness and general sturdiness. Any plane falling in the opinion of the judges, to prove its seaworthiness, will be disqualified.
