MAY NOT BREAK WITH GERMANY

No Alarm Is Felt Among Officials at Washington

GERMAN TACTICS HAVE CHANGED IT IS STATED

President Will Take Time to Study Situation and Confer With the Cabinet.

Washington — The first official announcement of the immediate plans of President Wilson for dealing with the situation that has arisen between Germany and the United States came Tuesday night in a telegram from Cornish, N. H., to Secretary Tamm, stating that the president would return to Washington soon to lay the entire subject before his cabinet. It indicated that the president had not yet arrived at a decision as to the policy of the government.

GIVING CLOSE ATTENTION.

The White House statement was as follows: "Referring to statements appearing in certain morning newspapers with reference to the attitude of the president toward the reply of the German government, Secretary Tamm Tuesday evening gave out the following telegram, which he had received from the president: "Please say that from the moment of the arrival of the official text of the German note, I have given the matter the closest attention, keeping constantly in touch with the secretary of state and with every source that would throw light on the situation; that, so soon as the secretary of state and I have more thoroughly considered the situation, I shall go to Washington to set into personal conference with him and with the cabinet, and that there will be no more public talk on this subject as possible of the purposes of the government."

The statement set at rest reports that the president had already made up his mind on the Germany reply and that he did not view the situation as seriously as did high officials in Washington. Word from the president was sought by officials here; it is understood, as a result of the spread of varying interpretations of reports from Cornish of the executive's intention.

Official opinion here continued to regard the situation as grave. Several members of the cabinet who are here hold this view but are giving no intimations of how they think the problem should be dealt with. Mr. Lansing and his assistant have been canvassing the entire field of law and policy presented by the German note and the president already has received some of his memoranda bearing on these points.

Tuesday night's statement from the White House made it apparent that the president had definitely abandoned the idea of summoning Mr. Lansing to the summer capital. This program, confined to the secretary and his own conclusions before exchanging views with the president, it is assumed, however, that Mr. Lansing will return here the last of the week and that the subject will be laid before the cabinet next Tuesday.

Changes in the official quarters that the issue involved are of such seriousness and importance that consideration for a week or more of the kind of reply that should be made ought not to be construed as meaning that the necessity for a firm decision of American policy was undetermined.

So far as can be gathered here, the president will find his advisers practically unanimous in the belief that the crucial point in the correspondence with Germany over submarine warfare has arrived and that if the American government is not to recede from its previously announced position on the principles involved, the next note must convey more or less pointedly the purpose of the United States in the event of further violations of American rights in the war zone.

TO TALK OVER COUNTY FAIR

Commercial Club Wishes to Assist Exhibit

CHANCE TO SHOW WHAT CAN BE GROWN ON TRACT

Those Who are Interested Should Take the Matter up With Commercial Club at Once.

The following letter from the secretary of the Twin Falls Commercial club should be of interest to every farmer on the Twin Falls tract. The club through its secretary is asking the farmers for an expression in regard to an old-fashioned county fair. The crops of the tract bid fair to excel anything in the history of southern Idaho and it should be the time to make an exhibition for the benefit of all concerned. Following is the letter:

Mr. Farmer: Under the management of the Twin Falls Commercial club, we have enjoyed with you two splendid entertainments, the Chauniqua and the Independence Day celebration. We think that the community will be ready for another such event this fall, but it is up to you. The old-fashioned county fair, with race horse attachment, has been put to sleep through the popularity of the automobile, but an exhibition of the wonderful crops that you are producing this year would be instructive and profitable. If you were to hear as we have heard, the favorable remarks on those crops, made by such men as Dr. Hillis, members of the congressional commission and innumerable tourists, you would have a bad case of "swelled head" but we are proud of them as you can be and we want you to show what you have been doing. The club will be glad to assist you in making such an exhibit a success, if it is undertaken in the right spirit.

If we are to have an exhibit this fall, it is time to begin organization. Come in and let's talk it over. Yours truly, J. McMillan, Sec'y T. F. Com'l Club.

Talks With the Business Man

By NELS DARLING

Knowledge is power. It pays to know how. Advertising is an investment that declares dividends and large ones if the business man but learns how. Every retail dealer should give much attention to this art of advertising, because times have changed. There was a time when selling goods at retail was all a personal matter, a deal through acquaintance, friendship and personal contact. This is not true today. Friendship and acquaintanceship are not such potent factors in the getting of business as they once were.

In fact, some folks seem to prefer to buy goods from someone at a distance. They are influenced by the careful and clever advertising, advertising and pricing of goods. Retail dealers you must advertise your wares and their prices—not yourselves.

Some people enjoy the advertisements in the magazines almost as much as they do the articles and stories. Do you know why? Because the advertisements are often interestingly illustrated and because they tell something—they contain information.

The average advertisement in the country newspaper does not give much information. There is often a great repetition of meaningless statements, hence a great waste of space.

Any retail business man can learn to write fairly good advertising that will get results. My future talks will tell how this may be done. (Copyrighted.)

CROP OUTLOOK IS IMPROVING

Water for Irrigating Purposes Holding Out Well

TEMPERATURE FOR JUNE THREE DEGREES BELOW NORMAL

Weather Bureau Crop Summary for Past Month Encouraging in Its Tone.

The weather and crop summary for the month of June, issued by the weather bureau, is encouraging. The threatened drought was offset to a large extent by the cool weather. The summary follows: The month was cool and dry, though in neither respect were previous June records broken. The mean temperature was the lowest recorded in June since 1905, and was about 3 degrees below normal. During part of the month the weather was too cool for the rapid growth of crops, particularly in the more elevated districts. Some frosts occurred in such districts but except over a limited acreage the damage was confined to the most tender vegetation. At the beginning of the month the soil was generally damp, and the continued rains of May, and many storage reservoirs, which had little water earlier in the season were at a good stage, but the snow supply in the mountains was practically gone.

During the month the demands for irrigating water were fairly heavy. The continued low temperature tended to lessen the water requirements of vegetation, but there were several days of high, drying winds early in the month. At the close of the month water in most streams was low, but no serious shortage had been experienced. The conditions were favorable for most crops. Some unripened spring grain suffered from lack of moisture, but the grain crop as a whole was promising. The first crop of alfalfa was below normal, but was saved in good condition, but the outlook for the second crop is good. Corn would have been better if the weather had been normal, but was saved in good condition, but the range grass were excellent. The dry weather checked the twig blight, but not before the apple yield was somewhat reduced. Conditions were favorable for other fruits.

The community was shocked Wednesday to learn that Mrs. Mildred Bennett had passed away at the home of her sister, Mrs. L. C. Clois. It was known that her health was not of the best, but it was not thought she was dangerously ill. The immediate cause of her demise was heart failure. Mrs. Bennett, with her two children, had made their home with Mr. and Mrs. Clois for about two years, the husband and father having passed to the great beyond several years ago. The remains were taken to the old home at Mineral Point, Wisconsin, Saturday morning for interment.

She is on her way to the Yellowstone Park and is making the trip alone on her horse, "Midnight." Miss Weston left the Golden Gate on March first and is making the journey by easy stages, stopping in Twin Falls for two or three days. She came over the mountain route, leaving as far east as Elko, where she turned north for Twin Falls. From here she will go to Pocatello and north to the park. During the whole trip Miss Weston says she has been treated in a splendid manner by all whom she has met. WOMAN KILLS A LYNX

Mrs. E. E. Tansing Shoots and Kills a Large Lynx.

Mrs. Arthur McKelvey and children came in from their ranch near Blaine yesterday to spend the Fourth in Halley. Mrs. McKelvey says that Mrs. E. E. Tansing, who lives near Blaine, killed a large lynx with a rifle last Tuesday. Mrs. Tansing started to walk out in a field, and when a short distance from the house saw what she thought was a young coyote lying asleep in the grass and weeds. She walked up quite close to the animal and she discovered that it really was a lynx.

Mrs. Tansing usually takes her rifle with her when walking to the ranch and she has killed a number of coyotes. A large number of chickens have been disappearing lately, and Mrs. Tansing could not account for the loss until she discovered the lynx. She stated that she was both surprised and frightened when she discovered what kind of an animal she had shot. It was very large and had paws nearly as big as a man's hands. While lying on the ground asleep amid tall grass and weeds the animal looked much smaller than it really was.—Halley News-Miner.

NEW HOPE FOR LOST RIVER DAM

Utah Construction Company Makes Offer to State.

The first step in the rehabilitation of the Big Lost River irrigation project was taken Friday when the state land board, following public hearing, accepted the proposition of the Utah Construction company to take over the project and construct it. Under that plan the Utah Construction company declared its intention to spend a million and a half dollars and to commence work as soon as the engineering details of its plan are approved.

INDIAN OWNS AUTO

Pocatello Indians Demonstrate Prosperity to White Men.

There was something in the line of novelty in yesterday's gathering of the Pocatello Indians at the reception of the Liberty Bell.

People of all nationalities were represented in the gathering of the Indians from Fort Hall were here in good number. One of the most interesting circumstances, and one that has attracted considerable attention, was a big touring car that was driven by a stalwart and intelligent Indian, in which was stowed away his spouse and two children. He had brought it brought the average individual up with a jerk and he figured that Lo was getting away from the primitive in pretty good shape, and making some speed.

Another Indian came to town on a motorcycle, while others had up to the latest models of motor vehicles. It was a good illustration along the line that many of the Indians are getting busy with the more modern processes of civilization and are proving farmers who are on the road to prosperity.—Pocatello Tribune.

STRICTER REGULATIONS Those who have watched the increasing number of women and half grown children driving automobiles are convinced that within the city limits more stringent regulations of traffic are necessary.

According to the state automobile license law, children under sixteen are forbidden driving motor driven vehicles, yet it is a common sight in this city to see children of twelve and fourteen years running cars. Traffic rules of this city say fifteen miles per hour is the limit on city streets with twelve on the inter-sections.

Few pay any attention to this rule. Another fault of drivers and fraught with danger is the habit of turning around in the middle of the blocks in the business district. A strict rule should be made requiring every auto driver and driver of a team to go to the street intersections before turning.

In some cities even turning on the intersections is forbidden and the car or team must go around the block in order to get in the right direction.

While Twin Falls is not a big city, the number of automobiles has increased to the point where traffic regulations must be obeyed for the safety of the general public.

SHOULD WITHHOLD JUDGMENT

Ancient the beating given to Albert Carlson, of Buhl, by Officer Taylor, of this city, one of the Buhl papers taking it for granted that Carlson was beaten because he was from Buhl, was indignantly and urges the removal of the officer. The Times believes that the Buhl paper should first find out the truth and until that time take it for granted that Twin Falls people are going to see that every visitor is protected while within its limits.

from harm and insult. The Times believes that he did his duty irrespective of whether his victim came from Buhl or some other point or whether he was a citizen of Twin Falls who did not have sense enough to keep from drink. The Times is sorry, however, that the Buhl paper is attempting to make capital out of the affair by increasing the feeling between the two towns. Officer Taylor did not know that Carlson lived in Buhl, there was no intention of persecuting a Buhl citizen.

A WAR OF THE RAILROADS

Not a cut-rate war, nor a war between the railroads and their own employees, but a war in which railroads are playing a capital part as never before in the world's history—such, according to Walter S. Hlatt, special European correspondent of The Railway Age Gazette, is the present great European conflict.

Some of the part played by the railroads of the great nations involved is described by Mr. Hlatt in his paper (Chicago, May 21). He writes: "One of the big achievements of the war in Europe has been the handling of the transportation situation by the railroads. One general has called it a 'war of railroads,' because of the vast part played by them in getting troops, provisions and munitions to the front and on time, the victory being with the army that gets first to a critical point.

The often-quoted remark of Napoleon 'An army is as strong as its feet,' has been adapted to read, 'An army is as strong as its railroads.' "Every railroad man today knows that Germany has been able to keep up a remarkable fleet on her two railroads. One general has called it a 'war of railroads,' because of the vast part played by them in getting troops, provisions and munitions to the front and on time, the victory being with the army that gets first to a critical point.

The often-quoted remark of Napoleon 'An army is as strong as its feet,' has been adapted to read, 'An army is as strong as its railroads.' "Every railroad man today knows that Germany has been able to keep up a remarkable fleet on her two railroads. One general has called it a 'war of railroads,' because of the vast part played by them in getting troops, provisions and munitions to the front and on time, the victory being with the army that gets first to a critical point.

"During the critical period from August 1 to 20 last, no less than 1,500,000 soldiers were not to the front and each of these soldiers was handled three times, so that in reality 4,500,000 troops were delivered at the required points. While these troops were being moved, while probably 5,000,000 of the civil population were also traveling, while two armies were being hurried into Alsace and Lorraine to begin a double campaign to turn the German army heading for Belgium, on August 3, a special train was provided to conduct the German ambassador, M. de Seboen, to Berlin. No, there was no breakdown of the French railroad system.

"One must have seen the handling of an army corps to get an idea of what work these inoffensive looking French trains have accomplished and still are accomplishing. Let railroad officers who have sweated over a 100-car circus movement consider that any heavy movement of troops is made by army corps. And that an army corps consists of no fewer than 30,000 men, all told; and that to boot there are cannons, horses, kitchen equipment, engineers' equipment, wagons, aeroplanes, ammunition-boxes, provisions—enough things to make the moving of a railroad of wild animals seem tame in comparison.

"It takes two trains of fifty cars each to transport the men of an infantry regiment. This regiment is subdivided into three battalions of 1,000 men each, and each battalion into four companies. The military end of the affair is easy. Get your cars there and the soldiers, company by company hop in quickly, without any confusion. Your cars for the infantry regiments are easily got rid of. But you need an extra hundred cars to carry nothing but the immediate infantry equipment—mitrailleuse guns, regiment wagons, and odds and ends of baggage.

"Then you need another extra twenty trains for the artillery of this army corps. Only one cannon can be set on a flat car, including its limber. About fifty cars are necessary for each regiment's cannon, cars for the artillerymen, and for all the other equipment that goes with cannon.

"If the cavalry regiments travel with the army corps, the job is still worse, as no fewer than six trains of cars are necessary for one cavalry regiment. Add to these trains the ones required by the commissary, the hospital, the heavy artillery, the trench-diggers, the bridge-builders, and no fewer than seventy trains of fifty cars or about fifty big circuses, are necessary to move an army corps. And the French railroads, if you please, had to move no fewer than forty-two army corps in twenty days."—Literary Digest.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

A visit to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing is one of the great attractions to a visitor to Washington. Every one wants to see 'how Uncle Sam makes his money, and the obliging lady guides at the Bureau are kept busy for the men and women as the limit of time for visitors, showing great crowds through the establishment. There are over 4,000 employees in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

The old Bureau was at 14th and B street and the building still stands, but the enormous increase in work to supply the ever increasing population, required, imperatively, a greater number of skilled people and the building became so packed that the congestion was dangerous. It became absolutely necessary to have a better and larger building and so the new Bureau was built one block south on 14th street. It is an immense five-story building with a great stone colonnade front, facing to the west on Potomac park, with four great wings running back to 15th street and having the extreme of window space and light for Uncle Sam's skilled employes. The best of light is necessary for the men and women as the work has to be done with extreme care and the eye strain is great. Each piece of money or other security is examined with great care to see that it is perfect before leaving the Bureau. A big steel-vaulted automobile is employed all day in carrying money, bonds and revenue stamps to the Treasury Department, which is half a mile north at Penn. Ave. and 15th street. This automobile is guarded by a number of Secret Service officers who go heavily armed.

Joseph E. Ralph the director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and it is due to his great skill and ability to handle the tremendous demands that are made upon it. Sometimes a big hurry order is suddenly sent from the Secretary of the Treasury. Immediately the bureau tunes up and the men and women work night and day and a great string of securities begin to pour forth to be carried immediately to the treasury.

When an order comes to the bureau for new work, the engraving division is instructed to prepare and make engraved die originals from which by a transferring process, the engraving on the die is transferred or duplicated on steel plates from which the printing is done. The money plates have four transfers each on them and when printed and cut apart make four bills each. Very few visitors are allowed in the engraving branch of the bureau as the original dies lie around on the desks of the engravers and great precautions are taken that no loss or accident may occur. No engraver can leave to go home in the evening until all the dies are checked into the big vault and locked up. Then word is given to the Captain of the Watch and all of the men pass out of the building together.

PUBLIC ANNOUNCEMENT.

(From Camas Prairie Courier, July 1, 1915.)

Since taking over the management and control of the Fairfield Townsite company, we have reduced the price of town lots in Fairfield from one-half to three-fifths of the original price, having blue prints made of the same with the price on each lot marked. These prices will never be reduced again for all time to come, except for one day—which will be the 25th of July, 1915. On the 25th day of July, 1915, the marked prices will again take effect and on December 31, 1915, all the town lots which the company own, and are not sold before that date, will be advanced 10 per cent above the present marked price. I am doing this for the sole reason that I wish to give the local people as well as others, a chance on July 25th, to secure what lots they want and take their choice of location.

The regular terms on town lots will prevail. Twenty-five per cent of the purchase price, cash; 25 per cent one year from date of sale; 25 per cent two years from date of sale; and 25 per cent three years from date of sale, at 6 per cent per annum, with privilege of paying all or any part at any time. On all cash sales of lots, a discount will be allowed of 5 per cent. There will be no changes whatever, except as above announced, under any consideration or circumstances. For instance, you buy a lot on the 25th of July on the regular terms as announced above, with a marked price of $100. On all cash sales of lots, a discount will be allowed of 5 per cent. This gives the purchaser a 10 per cent advance on his purchase immediately, and on December 31, 1915, advancing our prices 10 per cent above the regular prices, gives the purchaser a 20 per cent advance on his purchase, making each and every buyer a partner with us in building up a good town and enjoying the advance of values accordingly.

For your information, I have signed a contract with Mr. C. R. Tiede for an artesian well which he will start to drill as soon as pipe for casing, which is now ordered, arrives. The well will be eight inches in diameter and to be drilled in Block 16 on lots 28, 29, 30 and 31. These lots are reserved for hotel purposes and are located in the center of the town. Our pipe is to be put in an elevated tank, 30 feet above the surface of the ground. This tank will supply water for the city, and make an excellent fire protection, which means cheap rates of insurance for the merchant and those building within the fire limits especially.

The auditorium, which will be fire proof, will be built on lots 3, 4 and 5, of Block 16.

The architect, Merton G. Kingsley, who is now located permanently with his office above the Golden Rule store and is now preparing plans and specifications for this building, and specifications can be gotten from his office, or be completed them, for those wishing to bid on this work.

There is also to be constructed, as soon as plans are definitely settled, a fire proof automobile garage, with dimensions about 50x100 feet. There is also a fire proof building of 25x75 feet, which will be used for a store or warehouse. Also, the Fairfield Commercial club owns lot 6 in Block 16. They propose to build a home on that lot at the corner of the new building, which is now under course of construction, is located in Block 21 on lot 28. There are several other buildings which are under course of construction as soon as plans and details are settled. In placing the Auditorium on lots 3 and 4 of Block 16, which means the corner of town, the object is to make it as convenient to all the people of the town as possible.

I am having a number of maps made with the prices printed thereon of each and every lot, which will be in our hands in about ten days, and I shall be glad to give one to any one interested.

I will also present, free and without cost to them, a warranty deed to each and every legitimate religious organization, whether it be a church or other shop in Fairfield, regardless of denomination.

I have also set aside the entire Block 14 for public school purposes, without cost to the school district. I have also set aside the entire Block 20 for city park purposes, and parts of Blocks 2, 3, 10 and 11 for public buildings.

Referring to our water system with an elevated tank, that means water pressure in every house built in Fairfield and the lowest of insurance rates to the owners of residences as well as business property.

Fairfield is destined to be the largest town in this section of the country. Our revised prices of town lots and terms of sale are such that will bring the purchaser an assured increase in valuation.

We shall want to keep you posted through the Courier as far as possible, under all conditions and progress our town is making.

Never in Idaho have town lots been offered to the public at such reliable and low prices as these right here in Fairfield.

Asking the co-operation and hoping to receive your good will of all.

Very truly yours,
THE GEM STATE LAND COMPANY,
By H. A. STROUD, Gen. Mgr.

The Diamond From the Sky

By ROY L. McCARDELL

Copyright, 1915, by Roy L. McCardell

weeping adieu to the stars but kindly gypsy woman who has known as mother all her conscious years. And she rides away as the doctor's daughter from the army camp. With a gasp the doctor takes the diamond from the sky, demanded of Hagar as part of Esther's inheritance.

Hardly has the doctor's carriage departed than Luke Lovell, Hagar's head man, is given command to strike camp. In an instant all is bustle and confusion. Within an hour Hagar and her tribe are on their way.

In three months, though the proud women of the neighborhood look askance, Esther is the belle of the countryside. The vine clad porch of the doctor's old house sees nightly gathered there the young sparks of Patux.

Then comes a night in June, and in the moonlight are four young men, all paying court to the happy Esther. Chief among them are the Stanley cousins, Arthur and Blair. Some slight attention to his cousin, Blair, rouses Arthur to a temper of jealousy. Finally rebuked by Esther, Arthur leaves in a huff. Then Esther visits her cousin's displeasure upon the ill then triumphant Blair, and he, now angry also, arises and departs, leaving the field to two swains.

In his study that overlooks the gardens at the side the old doctor is gazing wonderingly in the light of the study lamp at the great diamond.

Bulkily straying by the house, in his jealousy and anger, Blair Stanley sees the light gleaming from the study. Curious and not overnice in his curiosity, he peers through the window. He starts back, clinching his hands. He remembers now the oft whispered suspicions of his mother: "Dr. Lee was alone with Colonel Stanley when he died. Who else but he has taken and hidden away the Stanley heirloom?"

The obsession of the desire for this priceless Stanley heirloom has been born and bred in Blair Stanley. He hies away, but that night, when the swains have long departed and the good doctor and the fate Esther have long retired to slumber, Blair Stanley returns prepared to break in and bear away the diamond from the sky.

In the library at Stanley hall the young heir of Stanley muses and dreams in a woful mood of Esther. His guitar lies near him, and he picks it up and gently strums it. In his mind's eye he sees himself serenading sweet Esther Lee, as she is now called, and begging her gentle pardon in the moonlight should she come to her window to listen. The romantic idea suits his mood. He takes the guitar and hastens again to the doctor's house.

Blair Stanley has clambered through the study window, closed it and drawn the shade. He has softly lit the doctor's study lamp and rifled the drawer of the old secretary and the cash box it holds. He has seized the diamond from the sky and clasped it in agitated ecstasy upon his bosom. Then upon his guilty ears falls the strain of a guitar. He hides the diamond and the chain and locket that holds it beneath his collar and under his shirt.

Meanwhile, sleeping the light slumber of the aged, the old doctor has been aroused by the opening of the study. Candle in hand, he descends to his study and enters just as the last gleam from the diamond in the lamp light is shrouded by the shirt of the thief in the night. There is a quick, sharp struggle. Frenzied with fear and covetousness and resolved to do murder rather than lose the long coveted heirloom, Blair Stanley, maddened with fear and rage, strangles the old doctor till the weak old man falls back in his chair, his heart stopped in death. Then the murderer backs from the window, where the strains from the guitar, strains of a love song, tinkle in the night.
