RUPERT PHYSICIAN—KILLED

Struck by Passenger Train While Crossing Tracks in Auto.

Rupert, Idaho, July 17.—An accident that has cast a gloom over this community occurred at 1 o'clock this morning when Dr. C. H. Scott, mayor of Rupert, one of the most public-spirited men of the community, a physician of high repute, a man loved and respected by all, was thrown from his auto by the engine of a Short Line train and fatally injured, dying within two hours. There were only two witnesses of the accident and those who saw it agree that the train, which was nearly an hour late, was approaching the depot at a high rate of speed.

The doctor was alone in his auto and was approaching town from a southerly direction in the view of the marks from all directions except that from which the doctor was coming is unobstructed. On account of a couple of rods of track in that direction it is possible that he did not see the train until too late.

RUN OF WATER ENDS

Salmon River Farmers Made Very Little of Available Supply.

The first and only irrigation of the crops on the Salmon tract will probably be during the year 1915, was all over Thursday morning, when the gates were closed on the four and one-half thousand acre feet of water remaining in the reservoir. There is yet three, and a half feet of water above the bottom of the tunnel. It was found impractical to run any more water out of the reservoir, for between the slight rise in the outlet and the pressure behind, the water would not draw out fast enough to do any material good, especially after being subjected to the losses in the canal system.

THE LAW IS RIGID

Do Hunting Inside Fenced Property Without Permission.

The last assembly passed for the benefit of special interests, a rigid trespass law that protection should keep in mind when the season opens. The hunter who discharges a gun on property that is privately owned and contains written notices against trespassers, will find himself a violator of the law this year, a fact that sportsmen should keep in mind. The new trespass law is a right one in its terms. Owners of property on which hunting has been used in the past, the season opens Thursday of this week to enforce the law to the letter. If stiff fines and even more serious trouble is to be avoided hunters had better take to the open country in Tribune.

On April 21, 1884 she was united in matrimony to Levi Anderson. To the union six children were born, all of whom are living, except one, who passed away several years ago. On Saturday company D, of the Idaho State militia, returned from the state encampment at Boise. The report having had a splendid time and that the encampment was one of the best ever held in the state. The only fly in the ointment of the company was the loss of the marksmanship cup, which was won by one of the company from the western part of the state. The boys have not lost hope by any means as they intend to keep right on at target practice and will no doubt bring it back next year to Twin Falls.

If I spend my Dollars out of Twin Falls and you spend your Dollars out of Twin Falls, and all the people spend their Dollars out of Twin Falls, WHAT IS THE THINNER WILL BECOME OF TWIN FALLS?

THINK ABOUT IT. Twin Falls Commercial Club.

Idaho Falls has had the distinction of having two mayors since the city election in April. The supreme court the last week however, denied the right to distribute the city patronage to one of the two, so that G. W. Edgerton now reigns alone. The Idaho Falls municipal pork barrel must have grown bigger and fatter than usual to have caused such tenacity to a thankless job.

The neat and attractive placards set up by Secretary McMillan on support of the home town are suggestive enough to make every man, woman and child do a little thinking. That is all that is necessary. No thinking person desires to wreck his or her home town. Not one of us desires to see the value of our farm and city property going down because of our own lack of foresight. The man who declares that he can buy where he pleases because it is cheaper, sometimes finds that depreciated city and farm values have out down his income to the point where even the lower price of the catalog house is beyond his means. The farmer who thinks fifteen per cent higher prices paid at home is worth less than an active, thriving, growing city or cities at his very door often curses the country for going back, forgetting his part in the community suicide started by his own outside purchases. Your duty to your home town or to the perhaps larger county unit, is no greater than that of your neighbor's, but it is just as great. Don't shirk it, unless you want your neighbor to shirk his duty.

PLAYING FOR TIME. The unexpected and unprecedented demand of Austria on the United States would be serious if it was not obvious why such a claim was made at this time. Austria knows as well as Germany that shipments of war munitions to any belligerent nation does not constitute a breach of international law. If Germany and Austria were in a position to get such munitions from this country, neither nation would have any qualms about taking such aid. America cannot pay any attention to such a demand, but in the course of diplomatic intercourse of notes, with both Austria and Germany, must waste many weeks of time. Germany in her replies to the demands of this nation, has given an intimation of the whole plan, which is to play for time, hoping that some important victory on the battle line would change the attitude of the neutral nations. The complaint of Austria can be put in the same class as an attempt to confuse the situation and delay a cutting off of diplomatic relations on the part of the United States.

A COMMUNITY BURDEN. For a number of years local business men donated a certain sum for the support of the Twin Falls band for public concerts in the parks. Last year it was recognized as a public benefit fitting to pleasure the citizens gave to a certain sum, toward the city support. Each year the efficiency of the band has increased. Each year has seen the crowds in the parks steadily grow. The band concerts have been a real pleasure to the people and there is no question but what the people want the concerts continued this year. The Times believes that no action of the city council will meet with greater approval than to appropriate eight hundred dollars for sixteen concerts during the summer months. There is no question but what the band is conditioned to recognition as a home organization composed of business men who are practically giving their time for the amusement of the public. Eight hundred dollars will no more than pay for their expenses of maintaining rehearsals, new music, instruments and uniforms. There is no reason why these business men in the band should be expected to donate their time and on top of that make up the cost of maintenance.

PROFIT AND LOSS OF A YEAR OF WAR

The blame for the $25,000,000 deficit in the national treasury is saddled by partisan editors on the war or the Democratic party, according to political viewpoint, as it happens conveniently that the second fiscal year of the Wilson administration nearly coincides with the first year of the European war. "Considering the state of the world," the Indianapolis News (Ind.) thinks the showing by no means bad one. But the Republican Philadelphia Public Ledger inveighs against the "grossly extravagant and wasteful" government, which it holds responsible for "the most lamentable exhibition made by the federal treasury in many years." And during the very twelve-month in which the administration was thus running into debt, it continues, "American business men were piling up an international trade balance of more than a billion dollars." This trade-balance means that we are a "billion dollars richer than we were on June 30, 1914," says another Republican daily, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, yet not a dollar can be credited to any act or policy of our government. It is wholly due to the war and the conditions growing out of the war. "The $1,000,000,000 excess of exports over imports for the fiscal year just ended," says Secretary Redfield of the department of commerce, "surpasses by nearly $400,000,000 the highest record heretofore made." Last July and August, the New York Sun notes, "resulted in small import balances. It was not until November that the tide of international commerce began to run strongly in our favor, and practically the export surplus of the year was made in the last eight months." On that basis, says the Sun, "and without any further expansion, the current year will bring a trade-balance of $1,000,000,000"; other papers are willing to make estimates of a two-billion-dollar balance.

This year's balance, according to a statement of commerce statement, is not due to orders for munitions of war. "The normal sales of manufacturers during peace," it seems, "were greater than those under existing war conditions." Because of this fact and the extraordinary shrinkage of exports of crude materials, it is found that the net increase in our total exports has been wholly in foodstuffs.

Exports of ammunition, comments the Indianapolis News, receive so much more publicity that "the country is inclined to forget that each day ships sail for Europe laden with wheat, meats and other foodstuffs." No doubt, says the New York Journal of Commerce, "much of the food-supplies has gone to support armies and help beleaguered and live animals, other than those for food, have had a military purpose, but they are not munitions. Automobiles became a considerable item, and some of these serve a warlike purpose in transportation. Imports are not, largely changed in character except that articles of luxury figure less than usual." And we read in the New York Commercial:

"In spite of all the talk about exports of war-materials, they have not yet attained great importance. The movement is only beginning, and the manufacturers of shells and other munitions of war will not reach their capacity before next October." The best news has been discontinued by the poor management of the British government which refused to place orders unless prompt shipments could be assured. Many American manufacturers refused to do business on such terms, and the difficulties are only being adjusted now. Russia requires enormous supplies of all military stores, and all the belligerents are now basing their calculations on a long war.

The United States is the only country that possesses sufficient natural resources to supply this demand. Germany is better off than any of the other belligerents, and is short of copper and cotton. The consumption of cotton in making explosives is one of the surprises of the day, and has been an important factor in taking the large crop off the hands of the Southern planters. The winter wheat harvest is being out as well as expected, and what is still in the fields is practically safe from damage. Records stored in other cereal crops are doing well, and pasture and fodder crops were never better. According to present indications we will have an enormous surplus of foodstuffs for export, and the cost of living will not bear too heavily upon our lives.

"The decrease in imports has hurt New York City, because this is the foreign merchandising center of the country, but it will not be felt in the interior. The people have bought American automobiles instead of diamonds and champagne with their surplus cash and are not the worse for it."

Several protectionist Republican editors rejoice in such a trade condition as this. The war, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, "has answered the purpose of a protective tariff in reducing our imports. It has to a great extent made imperative the harmful qualities of the Underwood tariff." The Washington Post sees in the trade balance "an addition to the prosperity of the nation," and it agrees with certainty of its contemporaries that the farmers will be the chief gainers. But the Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph (Rep.) places against this "apparent but fallacious prosperity" the "increasing burden of our citizens due to smaller tariff-receipts and Democratic extravagance. The billion balance, declares the Philadelphia Record, "does not prove foreign trade profitable, and it does not measure the prosperity of the country." It explains the situation from the Democratic viewpoint:

"The large balance in our favor on the fiscal year just closed is due to the fact that our exports have increased and our imports declined. The last is not a matter of congratulation, for it is due primarily to the interference of the war with our normal business. Our manufacturers have been less busy than in some years, partly because people have had to economize, and partly because several of our customers are not able to buy of us as usual. In 10 months the amount of crude materials for use in manufacture declined $74,000,000. The export of manufactures ready for consumption fell off only $6,000,000 in 10 months or 1.33 per cent. On the other hand, the imports of manufactured goods ready for consumption in 10 months declined $88,000,000. This is sufficient answer to the pretense that the present tariff is ruining our manufacturers."

"The large trade-balance establishes an enormous credit, which the rest of the world must discharge in one way or another. A part of it is being opened of credits here by governments that are buying war supplies, a part of it is being discharged by remitting gold, but this is very recent; and a part of it is discharged by the sale of American securities in our markets, which amounts to our repaying Europe for its investments here and acquiring the ownership of our own enterprises."—Literary Digest.

TALKS ON THRIFT No. 26.—INDEPENDENT AMERICANS

If a man shows a disposition to provide for his old age, don't discourage him by saying he is stingy; our most pitiful travelers are old people who are poor and neglected.—Ed. Howe, of Atchison.

The anniversary of our national independence is at hand again, bringing with it, to thoughtful persons, the query, Am I really independent?

By this suggestion we do not mean to question the average citizen's political, mental or moral freedom. We refer solely to financial independence or the lack of it.

No man or woman depending solely upon earnings fall, the earner is not dependent upon somebody or something aside from his own efforts.

The real reason for saving is to secure in the end of his life, whereas his necessities remain practically uniform, or, if anything, increase with advancing years.

All childhood days are unproductive, during which time he is cared for by parents or friends, many of his declining years are also unfruitful, so that during the active portion of his life he must provide for old age, if he wishes to assure himself the necessities and comforts of life when his earning days are over.

So the path of financial independence leads through the savings bank, and the really independent Americans are those whose names are found in bank pass books recording constantly increasing deposits, with occasional withdrawals for good, permanent investments.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Washington, D. C., July 19.—Twenty dollar of the hundreds and thousands paid by trust companies to the government under the provisions of the "war tax" law may have to be refunded because of Democratic carelessness.

Practically every trust company in the United States which has paid under protest, the tax provided by paragraph 1 of section 3 of the "war tax" law, is preparing to litigate the decision of the government to collect. Trust cases have already been brought in various federal courts. The foundation for these suits was laid by the Democrats through an apparent oversight in drafting the law.

The oversight lay in the failure to properly define the word "banker." The binder is emphasized by the fact that but a few months before the "war tax" law was levied, the Democratic Congress had appropriated thousands of dollars to pay back to trust companies a refund ordered by federal courts following litigation on the same question. Section 3 of the "war tax" declares that bankers "shall pay $1 for every $1000 of capital used or employed."

It then defines who shall be termed bankers under the act. The definition of a "banker" is identical with that which the federal courts but a short time before had made inadequate to render trust companies such a tax. The Democrats had simply warbled. The language of the federal courts' decision, conclusively showed that the word "banker" was more adequately defined to include trust companies.

"In the case at bar," said the decision, "the plaintiff is not a bank or banker, but it does some of the things enumerated in the section as indicative of such business. Its principal business seems to be distributing the funds of the company."

The court further points out that the resources on which the tax was collected and ordered returned to trust companies under the act, included bonds and in the stocks of corporations. The Internal Revenue office has required trust companies to pay the tax on the basis of a certificate and in the cases now pending claim they for recovery is based on the allegation that the section does not apply to municipal and railway bonds and in the stocks of corporations.

Whether or not the trust companies are successful in their proceedings, the fact remains that Democratic blundering is responsible for this expense litigation, which adds tremendously to the cost of administering the law and may largely reduce revenues. Like numerous other "blunders" in Democratic laws, these mischievous errors exist only because of wholesale disregard of elementary principles of legislation.

CONTROL OF PEAR BLIGHT

By P. J. O'Garra, Pathologist, Department of Agriculture.

The only way to control blight is to remove the cause of infection during the blossoming period begins. Holdovers removed during the blossoming period do not insure that some infection will not be taken up from them. To remove hold-overs, or rather to find them on the rough buds use a sponge or some other instrument with which to expose the tissues beneath. A water-soaked, reddish condition of the soft bark indicates infection, which should be antiseptic. the right to enter upon a neighbor's premises. If this had been done in certain districts the past year, several infection centers would have been wiped out. There would have been no infection and a good many dollars saved. Lastly, in closing permit me to say that as individuals you have a right and a duty to follow the advice and instructions which have been given you for eradicating and controlling blight. A government officer who has more technical and practical experience all over the United States for a period of years, certainly knows the situation and there is no reason for doubting his words. As a friend, I ask you all not to trifle with blight. It is too serious a matter. The value of the fruit industry is too great to be trifled away by individuals who have neither knowledge nor practice sufficient to devise more efficient means than have already been worked out by the pathologists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Those entire energy is given to the practical side of fighting diseases. You have a United States Department of Agriculture, therefore, respect the advice it is able to give you through its agents.

ABYSS FOUND AT VOLCANO

Miners in New Camp Make Interesting Discovery. The muckers who followed miners on a recent visit to the Twenty-Nine Mine at Volcano had an easy task for when they went down the hole after the shafts were fired there wasn't any muck. Mother Earth had swallowed it up in her capacious maw.

But what the miners found they had was what may prove the deepest shaft in the district, and it was in fact it was dug all ready for them and there is nothing to do but lower the muckers to any desired level and out, stations.

The miners suspected something like this would happen, for one of the shafts went through recently and it may be falling yet. The shaft is 50 feet deep and is equipped with 100 feet of extra rope. John Musser, the discoverer of the district, had the honor of paying the first visit to the cave, that had been tapped. He attached the rope at the bottom of the shaft and made a periscope descent to the end of his string. He said that rocks which he dislodged there went rattling down and down until silence reigned. There came back no sound to show that they had touched bottom. It was rather a creepy sensation that crept up and down his spine.

Lay-to for a spell and swing on this:

You'll start an old-pal-party via a pipe or a makin's cigarette quick as a flash, as soon as you realize it's a live bet to let your good money rub up against some Prince Albert tobacco. Why, it's like beating back to the bushes for old-home week, P. A.'s so friendly, so chummy-like.

You see, Prince Albert lets you hear the song of the joyous jimmy pipe and the makin's cigarette all the day long! The patented process takes care of that—and cuts out the bite and parch!

PRINCE ALBERT

just hands you home-made questions like these:

Were you ever pipe-happy? Did you ever hit a brand that just pushed pleasure against your palate? The kind that sort of teased your smokeappetite for some more fire-up, then another—and so on, right to the pillow-period!

Well, that's P. A., no matter how you hook it up—pipe or cigarette. It just jams-joy into your system! You nail that fact hot off the bat, because it's case-care information! And handed out to you for personal and immediate attention as being about as real and true as you've heard since Hector was a pup!

P. A. is sold in the tippy red bag for the price of a jitney ride, 5c; tidy red tin, 10c; pound and half-pound tin humidors—and—the classy pound crystal-glass humidur with the sponge-moistener top that's not only a joyous thing to have at home and at the office, but it keeps P. A. in the highest state of perfection.

Here is Casimir Izado, 104 years old, who lives in Watsonville, Cal. He has a remarkable memory and clearly recalls the war in Spain in 1892, when he was a lad of 12 summers. He has been a smoker all his life and today he smokes no other than his old jimmy pipe. Izado has also been elected a member of the Prince Albert "old-time jimmy pipe" club.

Next Sunday our ball team goes to Hansen, and the following Sunday will play Kimberly. The Bull team will not over-awe a conventional team from Piler's manager. Bull will certainly have to import a number of rookie players if they expect to score against the "East Side" club.
Dr. Hack, deputy state veterinarian, was called to Rogerson this week to inspect 10,000 head of sheep belonging to the Sullivan Bros. who were bringing them to market. He also inspected two cars at Bull owned by the same man, as well as 40 head of horses. The sheep and horses were in charge of C. W. Schooler, who is employed by Stantfield, who lives in Oregon, and is supposed to be the biggest sheep raiser in the world, and that he we have taken in too much territory but Dr. Hack is supposed to be a truthful man.

FILER NEWS

(From the Piler Journal)
Sam Knapp pulled off a surprise on his friends by going to Twin Falls and getting married some three weeks since. A bunch of his old cronies living near the Knapp place waited patiently for Sam to return from his honeymoon which he did Tuesday. That night they captured Sam and brought him to town in an automobile and made more racket than a company of militia. They were evidently loaded for Twin Springs or Leavenworth, with the idea of finishing up the job in a vigorous manner. While they were securing gasoline, Sam made his get-away and his captives were unable to further locate him.

The Art of Keeping Cool

Keeping cool in hot weather is no easy job. In fact, few people can hold their job down to the very satisfaction.

First of all don't worry about the hot weather. It is going to come, and all the worrying you can do will not make it any cooler.

Regulate your diet to fit the season. In hot weather leave off meats, fats, gravies, butter, and other heat producing foods.

Where Young Man Sees Need of Vaccination Against Typhoid. "Somehow it never occurred to me that I should be vaccinated against typhoid until yesterday," admitted a young man quite seriously.

"I don't see you," he was asked. "Didn't you have confidence in it?" "Oh, yes, but I felt it was a good thing for women and children perhaps."

"You said it did not occur to you that it was your duty to be vaccinated against typhoid fever," said the doctor, but found and returned to experiment with it.

"I was always so careful," said the young man. "I had been vaccinated against typhoid fever in my infancy, and I had been vaccinated against typhoid fever in my infancy, and I had been vaccinated against typhoid fever in my infancy."

"How is it serving you? Did it make you sick?" "The idea of such a thing? But I might as well get it now as later. I'm sick if I hadn't seen John suffering with the real thing. But really it was nothing to mind, and think what it prevents."

MERGER NOT CONTRARY TO LAW

Attorney General Peterson Advises Its Consummation be Permitted.

The last word to the granting of legal approval for the formation of the merger of southern Idaho power interests was given Friday when Attorney General Peterson handed to the governor an opinion to the effect that the combination was not in violation of the state anti-trust law.

His opinion was prepared some time ago at the request of the governor. When the chief executive learning that a merger was to be formed, asked the attorney general for an opinion as to whether such a combination was legal. Mr. Peterson declared the public utilities commission to make an investigation that body held a hearing and reported to the attorney general that the merger was an economic necessity. The attorney general then prepared his report to the governor, which was in part as follows:

Business Necessity. "The evidence submitted by the public utilities commission does not carry with it any indication whatever that the merger in question is being consummated in violation of law; or in other words, that the conditions which obtain in the present case are such as were intended to bring any given combination of interests within the prohibition of the statute, I think it safe to assume, moreover that such combination would not be forthcoming even under the most rigid search therefore. As pointed out by the commission, it seems much more likely that this combination was dictated by business necessity, and the desire to earn reasonable income on the value of properties devoted to the public service than from a desire to gain control of these public utilities through criminal methods deliberately designed to wreck their credit and to depreciate the value of their securities.

No Dead End. "One other and further consideration occurred to my mind in relation to the possibility of the public being injured by this combination. It occurred to me that when these power plants came under one management the said management would find it financially advantageous, instead of contributing in operation their different plants to increase the efficiency of one central plant which might generate sufficient energy for the district. This would leave the other plants useless and unnecessary. I feared that it might be the view of the commission that when the time arrived for readjusting rates they would take into consideration not only the rate under date of July 14, teaching upon this matter in which it is held that in making such a rate adjustment they will take into consideration only such property as is actually used and useful in the public service at the time of such valuation. "It seems to me, therefore, that if this rule is followed there need be no fear along this line.

State Regulation

"I agree further with the commission in its conclusion that the enactment of the public utilities statute has largely taken those utilities, over which the commission has been given direct control through the regulation of rates and no more on the property of the anti-trust statute insofar as the prohibition against monopolies is concerned. Indeed, as explained by our own supreme court in the case of the Ho Power & Light company vs Blooming, 26 Ida. 222, the public utilities act may be considered as having substituted, protected and regulated monopoly in certain public utilities for the kind of unregulated competition which has brought about the unfortunate financial conditions of the individual corporations concerned in this merger, a condition from which they are evidently trying to emerge through the proposed consolidation. Since the commission has ample authority, not only to regulate service, but to fix rates which will yield a reasonable return and no more on the property used and useful in the service of the consuming public, I see no reason for apprehending a public oppression through the enactment of prices, or any of the other evils which ordinarily follow in the wake of unregulated monopoly.

"In view of the existence of this power in the commission and of what seems now to be the policy of our law, and because, further, of the seemingly lawful condition under which this merger is being worked out, I do not feel that any effort should be made, either to restrain a further consummation of this merger,
