United States Rejects Evasions of Germany

FIRM STAND FOR RIGHTS IS TENOR OF REPLY

Secretary Lansing's Language Courteous but Firm, Leaves no Chance for Misunderstanding.

Washington—Following is the official text of the latest American note to Germany regarding submarine warfare, which was delivered to the foreign office at Berlin Friday by Ambassador Gerard:

The government of the United States notes with satisfaction that the Imperial German government deprecates without reservation the violation of the principles insisted in the several communications which this government has addressed to the Imperial German government in connection with its announcement of a war zone and the use of submarines against merchant ships on the high seas—the principles which the Imperial German government has accepted in its communications with this government.

GREATEST IN HISTORY

Wheat Crop a Golden Wonder in Gem State.

W. A. Whitney, general superintendent of the Oregon Short Line with headquarters at Pocatello, arrived in Salt Lake yesterday to discuss operating matters with the Salt Lake officials of the Oregon Short Line, says the Herald-Republican. The crops from Idaho will soon begin moving and the wheat crop in the American Falls district and the bench lines on the Upper Snake valley loop are greater than any time in the history of that part of the state. It is expected that more cars and more motive power will be required to move the crop east and west than last year.

The railroads will carry the greater part of this wheat to Pacific coast points for transshipment through the Panama canal, said Whitney. Formerly the railroads got the long haul on wheat but since the canal has been opened we have to compete with water shipments and the cost of a steam haul is higher by water than by rail of course the railroads lose this revenue.

ARM INJURED IN HAY BALER

E. A. Wallace of Jerome, Has Arm Badly Mangled.

E. A. Wallace, residing southwest of Twin Falls, was severely injured last Friday morning at the Foster farm, some ten miles southeast of town, by having his left arm caught in the gears of a steam hay baler.

Mr. Wallace was started on the road to town with all speed and a man on saddle horse rode ahead and back to the farm. Dr. E. D. Piper responded promptly, as his car was standing in front of his office at the corner of a steam hay baler. He drove out and met the party bringing in the injured man.

It was found that Mr. Wallace's arm was badly mangled from the wrist to above the elbow, the bones being cut across as well as numerous other cuts across the arm, severing the veins. Dr. Piper and Hon. J. H. Hubbard performed the surgery necessary to close these wounds and so far the patient is making satisfactory progress toward recovery. The remarkable thing about the accident is that no bones were broken or joints displaced.

The boy was knocked down and the tire ran over his chest and thighs, inflicting severe injuries.

BORAH FAVORS SAWTOOTH PARK

Believes That Idaho Scenery Is Worthy

SENATOR WAXES ELOQUENT OF WONDERS OF MOUNTAINS

Will Work for Establishment of a National Park North of Hahli Across Mountains.

The stupendous scenic grandeur of the proposed Sawtooth national park is "like the world turned upside down" at least this was the impression it made on United States Senator Borah, who, accompanied by John J. Blake and Benjamin S. Crow, returned by auto last night from a trip to one of the most interesting spots of the entire west which is destined to become a Mecca for sightseers. Idaho's senior senator returned from the long and strenuous trip but he declared he felt well repaid for making it. His advice to Idahoans is to visit this spot by great and magnificent beauty for it can be reached by automobile over very good roads with the one exception of Galena summit. The natural mountain roads within the proposed boundaries of the park are almost as remarkable as the scenery found therein, according to members of the party. They left Hahli at noon Saturday and made for the proposed park and saw a most extraordinary display of scenery. I say most extraordinary for it is certainly no less than a wonder.

MOST DARING SCENE FILMED

Third Chapter of "The Diamond From The Sky" at the Orpheum.

In the third chapter of the "Diamond from the Sky," running the first three nights of the week at the Orpheum theatre can be seen the most thrilling and most sensational scene ever filmed. In this chapter is pictured an exciting race between an automobile and a passenger train, and you see the automobile take a startling plunge over the cliff into the water below. This is an actual scene, making the audience gasp in astonishment. Yet this is only one of the great features in this spectacular continued photoplay. Do not forget that "The Diamond From the Sky" is running every Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Orpheum theatre. The story is being run each week in the Times.

THINK ABOUT IT

Twin Falls Commercial Club

The waterworks company has been very considerate this year about the use of water for lawns with the result that some property owners have taken advantage of lack of restriction. Some people are letting water run all night long on one spot so that the water after the first hour can be said to be utterly wasted.

Germany still wants to argue the difference between this country and that arbitrary nation. According to the latest note sent by the United States there is nothing further to argue. Germany admits that her submarine policy is wrong but refuses to discontinue it.

"JAY" DRIVERS For a long time the public has been hearing a lot about "jay riders" and their death defying stunts.

Almost all the Berlin papers (think that Germany has made every possible concession to American opinion) and that, in any event, America is not prepared to take a hostile stand.

who wobbles all over the road with loose rein and gapes at the crowd and does not watch the road and the traffic around him, is a "jay driver." The same can be said of the man or woman who attempts to drive an automobile on crowded streets or on the highways without close observance of road rules.

GERMAN AND ALLIED VIEWS OF THE NOTE

The only land where the German note is received with unanimous approval appears to be in Germany. Its protest that its naval policy has ever been "governed by the principles of humanity," that Germany sank the Lusitania in self-defense and that England was the real culprit carries complete conviction to the German press.

"The note gives an impression that Germany is trying to convince itself rather than others of the justice of its position. The pathetic allusions to the German mothers and children is in bad taste in a diplomatic document.

"What is wanted is a guaranty that such horrors will not occur again, whether the victims be Americans, Germans, Dutch or Chinese."

"If intended for Germany it must be said that the note is triumphantly successful, for it has been received with a chorus of approval. The Morningpost, the Kreuzzeitung, the Tageblatt, the Reichszeitung, the Norddeutsche Rundschau, and the Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung all express satisfaction at the determination to continue submarine warfare.

There is not a word to indicate that we should allow this sharp weapon which German technical genius has given us to rust or have its edge taken off.

"It is certainly not expected that Germany would have the audacity to present to Washington a document which undoubtedly is the most insolent that one power ever sent to another."

"We hail it with joy that the German government has placed itself so clearly on the ground that its first line of duty is humanity toward our own citizens."

Almost all the Berlin papers (think that Germany has made every possible concession to American opinion) and that, in any event, America is not prepared to take a hostile stand.

"The note shows to Americans most clearly that the German government, so far as lies in its power, is honorably concerned to preserve peace and its friendly relations with America in the future. It is now up to them to submit the proposals made to unprejudiced consideration."

Count Reventlow, writing in the Deutsche Tageszeitung, says that the "sacred duty" and the "Neueste Nachrichten" rejoice that the note makes it plain that "Germany will not tolerate outside interference."

"One need make no bones of saying it is impossible to reconcile the German and the American standpoints. That would mean for us the giving up of submarine warfare, and if America will not see that we cannot do that there is nothing to be done."

While the German papers are agreed that the note makes large concessions to America, the Paris papers are unanimous that it evades the point in that they term an "elusive and impudent" manner. The Paris Matin heads its article "A Monument of Impudence," the Radical "prefers the term 'hypocrisy,'" and the general tone of the press is ironical.

"The note marks sensible progress over the preceding notes; to cynicism the Germans now add persistence. To comment seriously on such a morsel would be to permit ourselves to be flouted by the Germans, to laugh at it would perhaps fall in respect to the Germans' two victims—the Lusitania and the prestige of President."

"The Fickor speaks of 'the impudent cynicism of German diplomacy,'" and the Gaulois says the note "embodies the fundamental principle of diplomatic action—accusation without proof" while the Socialist Humanite says:

"The German reply exceeds anything one might have expected of the blindness of the Berlin cabinet. With tranquil audacity it throws upon the Allies the responsibility of all the violations of international law of which Germany has been guilty during the eleven months. For the government of William II, it is, always the victim's fault."

Paris Homme Enchaîne, says: "It is useless to discuss the absurd suggestions made by Mr. Wilson, seeking as they do to draw him into complicity in the German piracy. I should be insulting President Wilson if I supposed that the man who made himself the champion of humanity's rights were capable of debating such suggestions."

"As the outrageous proposition contained in the note is the only novelty which it presents, American diplomacy can only reply by also repeating its former demands and giving an extra turn to the screw by expressing its will." Literary Digest.

 ingers to find a way to adapt the new circumstances to them.
Submarine Warfare.
 "The events of the past two months have clearly indicated that it is possible and practicable to conduct submarine operations as have characterized the activity of the Imperial German navy within the so-called war zone in substantial accord with the accepted practices of regulated warfare. The whole world has looked with interest and increasing satisfaction at the demonstration of that possibility by German naval commanders. It is manifestly possible, therefore, to lift the whole practice of submarine attack above the criticism which it has aroused and remove the chief causes of offense.
 In view of the admission of illegality made by the Imperial government when it pleaded the right of retaliation in defense of its acts and in view of the manifest possibility of conforming to the established rules of naval warfare, the government of the United States cannot believe that the Imperial government will longer refrain from disavowing the wanton act of its naval commander in sinking the Lusitania or from offering reparation for the American lives lost, so far as reparation can be made for a needless destruction of human life by an illegal act.

 Rejects German Proposal.
 "The government of the United States, while not indifferent to the friendly spirit in which it is made cannot accept the suggestion of the Imperial German government that certain vessels be designated and agreed upon which shall be free on the seas now illegally proscribed. The agreement would, by implication, subject other vessels to illegal attack and would be a curtailment and therefore an abandonment of the principles for which this government contends and which by those of calmer counsels every nation would concede as of course.
 "The government of the United States are contending for the same great object, have long stood together in urging the principles upon which the government of the United States now so solemnly insists. They are both contending for the freedom of the seas. THE GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED STATES WILL CONTINUE TO CONTEND FOR THAT FREEDOM FROM WHATEVER QUANTER VO. LATER, WITHOUT COMPROMISE, AND AT ANY COST. It invites the practical co-operation of the Imperial government at this time when co-operation may accomplish most and this great common object be most strikingly and effectively achieved. The Imperial German government expresses the hope that this object may be in some measure accomplished even before the present war ends. It can be. The government of the United States not only feels obliged to insist upon it, by whomsoever violated or ignored, and in the protection of its own citizens, but is also deeply interested in seeing the belligerents themselves and holds itself ready at any time to act the common friend who may be privileged to suggest a way.

 "In the meantime the value which this government sets upon the long and unbroken friendship between the people and government of the United States and people and government of the German nation impels it to impress solemnly upon the Imperial German government the necessity for a scrupulous observance of neutral rights in this critical matter. Friendship itself prompts it to say to the Imperial government that repetition by the commanders of German naval vessels of acts in contravention of those rights must be regarded by the government of the United States, when they affect American citizens, as deliberately unfriendly."

LOOKING FOR HAY

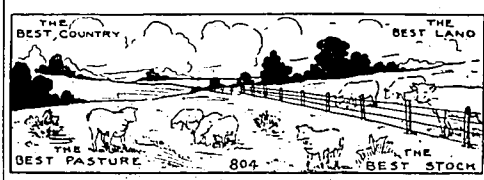

Stockmen From Nevada Investigating Conditions on Tract.
 A number of prominent stockmen from Wells, Nevada, were on the tract last week looking over the hay situation. The party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. O'Neil, James R. Caply, Jas. P. O'Neil and R. C. O'Neil. The party spent several days here and seemed to find the conditions very satisfactory.

TRIUMPH OF THE SIX-CYLINDER

Hudson distributor, E. S. Johnson, is telling callers at his salesroom at 142 2nd avenue north, about the wonderful record of a six-cylinder car in the Chicago Speedway Races. There was only one six-cylinder car entered in the race, and it was the only car that went the entire 500 miles without a stop. The driver never removed his hands from the wheel of this Sunbeam six-cylinder during the entire five hours.
 A remarkable feature was that the tires showed very little wear, demonstrating the correctness of the Hudson contention that a six-cylinder car is easiest of all on tires. The front casings of the Sunbeam six were almost as good at the end of the run as when they left the factory. Only a small portion of the tread had been worn off the rear tires.

 The best previous non-stop record was that of Barney Oldfield who covered 301.81 miles at Corona. This new record of 500 miles is remarkable in many ways, not the least of which is that it was made by a six-cylinder car.

ROBINSON'S STORE TALK

I have not been talking to you folks in the newspapers quite as much the past two weeks as I did before the store was opened. I wanted to see if what I had said, and the prices at which we were selling goods would bring you in the store even if I did not ask you to come in through the newspapers. I want to tell you this time how glad I am that those who came early are not only coming back, but are telling their friends and they are coming in, and buying too. Not only those who live in Twin Falls and those who live on the ranches near here, but the good folks who live in the other towns near here and those who live ten, twenty and forty miles away. That pleases me a lot.

Another thing that makes me feel good is that parents are sending their children here to buy goods, that tells me that you have confidence in me, and that means more to me than anything else. I want your trade but with it I want your confidence, your good will, and your friendship and you do not know how hard all of us here in the store will work to have you become our friends, while we are trying to sell you goods.

Come often, come when you only want to look, and be sure and come and tell me if anything is not right. If you do not come I can not make it right, and you know I want to have everything right. I want you satisfied all the time.

RULES FOR FEEDING FOWLS

Much Depends Upon Age, Breed, Vigor, Housing and Range Allowed—Men Must Be the Gauge.

There can be no hard and fast rules laid down as to the amount to feed fowls except this: feed all they will eat up clean at each meal. Hardly a week passes that the writer is not called on to tell how much grain or mash should be fed per hen per day, writes J. E. Dougherty in Orchard and Farm.

The quantity of feed eaten depends on breed, age, vigor, housing, range allowed, season of the year and many other factors which the ordinary man does not always consider and appreciate. The heavier breeds will eat more than the lighter breeds. Heavier layers will eat more than poor layers. The feeder must study his fowls constantly and regulate the amount fed at each meal in accordance with the appetites of the fowls. A little study and experience will soon enable one to become quite expert in feeding provided he really is interested enough in his task to watch and study his fowls closely.

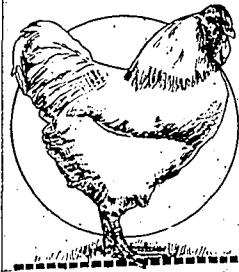

There is a saying among stock men that good breeders are born and not made. Be that as it may, we are sure that anyone with an instinctive love for fowls, a willingness to learn and good common sense can soon develop into a good feeder and a successful poultry-man.

It will take, on the average, about seventy-five pounds of feed per year per hen. This amount may vary a little either way depending on the breed, but is a good average figure on which to base calculations as to the cost to feed a hen per year and the approximate amount to feed per day. If a daily feed consumption curve were drawn, we would find that the daily feed eaten would vary during different months, the winter consumption being heavier than that of summer. The hen herself must be the gauge by which to determine the amount fed from day to day.

BEST BREEDS FOR FATTENING

Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds and Orpingtons Will Do Well in a Crate.

The breeds of chickens best adapted for fattening purposes are the Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds and the Orpingtons. All these breeds or any variety of these, will do well if placed in a fattening crate. They produce meat and lay on fat very economically, and dress out neat, plump and desirable carcasses for table use. The cockerels, of any of these breeds, when taken at three and a half to four months of age, will usually gain from a pound to a pound and a half in three weeks' time. As they get older the amount of food required to make a pound gain increases very rapidly and crate fattening will not be very profitable after the birds are six months old. Strong, vigorous and healthy birds will always make better gains than those lacking in vigor and vitality.

The heavier breeds like Cochins, Brahmas and Langshans will not give very satisfactory results when fattened, as they do not stand close confinement as well as the utility breeds, nor will they make as economic gain.

Green Feed Essential.

Green feed must be supplied in some form. If the chicks are cooped on young grass they will help themselves, but if confined in small yards, green feed should be given them. To be easily assimilated, some tender and easily broken green stuff should be furnished, such as finely cut grass from the lawn, lettuce leaves, onion tops, chopped fino, or boiled vegetables.

Secret of Winter Eggs.

If you have not a nice lot of sharp grit on hand for your fowls during the cold and frozen weather, you can not expect them to make very profitable returns in egg production. Sharp grit to aid digestion, wheat and meat scraps to tone up the appetite, is the secret of getting eggs in winter.

This is a pretty good time to do that fixing up around the place which has been promised to your wife for so long.

WRONG PRACTICE WITH SOWS

First Pure-Bred Sow is Usually Put in Pen by Herself, Petted and Generously Overfed.

It seems almost natural for the purchaser of his first pure-bred sow, in his desire to give her extra care, to overfeed her, to keep her away from the other hogs, put her in a close pen, where she is petted and fed at regular meal times, and lunch between in some instances; in their anxiety to do the very best for her possible.

This method of treatment is sure to ruin the sow, both in the feeding and in the close confinement, preventing her from taking the necessary exercise, so needful to the proper strengthening and building up on a solid foundation and to harden her in developing her, giving her a good constitution, broadening her and strengthening her with the exercise, which is also imparted to her coming litter.

The parlor sow, with her pettings and care, is nearly always a failure, and the party is wondering why it is, writes William Carruthers in Orchard and Farm. It is the wrong method throughout. It is unnatural and almost certain to result in failure of the sow.

Feeding when properly done, combined with exercise, is the proper idea. Feeding of the right character is essential; it needs to be regular, at uniform times, and with plenty of water and proper exercise, is the power that is depended upon to develop and improve the breed. The feeder is an important man in the destiny of the hog and should understand the business and act according to reason and the experience that is taught from those who have made a success of it.

MAKING AN IDEAL SEED BED

For Wheat and Other Small Grains Soil Should Be Well and Deeply Little Deeper Than Planted.

(By PROF. A. M. TEN EYCK.)

The seed bed refers to the tilled soil as deep as 4 inches plowed. This may be from three to six, or even eight inches, when the subsoil plow is used in connection with the stirring plow. The local seed bed, however, for seeding wheat, other small grains, alfalfa, etc., should be loose or mellow—only a little deeper than the seed is planted. Before the depth at which the seed is deposited in the soil the seed bed must be well pulverized, but firm and well settled, the furrow slices making a good union with the subsoil below.

The seed bed may be prepared by cultivating with different implements. The disk harrow may be the best implement to use after fall plowing, or early in the spring, several weeks before seeding. But surface cultivation just before seeding should usually be accomplished with some implement which does not cultivate so deep as the disk harrow.

The mellow soil produced by cultivation is the mulch which has to do with the conservation of the soil moisture. The soil moisture may be two or three inches in thickness when the ground is being finally prepared for seeding wheat, or other small seeds. Again we often weight the spike-tooth harrows so as to make them stir deeper and leave the ground in a more furrowed condition than may usually result from light harrowing.

DOMESTIC WATER FOR SETTLERS

State Land Board to Sink Deep Wells on Salmon Tract.
Water for domestic purposes is going to be furnished to the settlers on the Salmon river project if it is within the power of the state of Idaho to provide. This was indicated yesterday at a special meeting of the land board, at which the members of the board unanimously voted to send State Engineer Smith to the Salmon river tract to make a complete and thorough examination and endeavor to locate several sites for wells on the land. When he reports back to the board his findings showing that it will be possible to sink wells at the places he designates the state will proceed forthwith to have the wells sunk. In this way it is hoped to supply an abundance of domestic water to the settlers.
For a long time there has been a condition regarding the water supply for domestic purposes on the tract that has resulted in unusual inconvenience to the settlers. Many of them are now using the water from open ditches. It has also been found difficult and in many instances almost impossible to find water when wells were sunk with the result that wells have proven to be a very expensive luxury.

Recently Governor Alexander made a trip over this project. He saw conditions as they really are and called the facts as they were presented to him and as he discovered them to the land board at a special meeting held yesterday. He suggested that the state take some action towards securing an engineering report as to the chances for striking water on the tract by the sinking of wells. It is possible to do this if the proper sites are secured, it is said. The board unanimously voted to send the state engineer to the tract for that purpose and he will leave within a few days accompanied by assistants to make the examination.—Capital News.

ATTACKED BY COYOTE

Animal Snaps at Sleeping Boy Near Mountain Home.

Returning from a trip to Atlanta with his wife and young daughter and two sons, T. J. Harris camped near the foothills Monday night. Mrs. Harris and her daughter made their bed in the wagon, while Mr. Harris and the two boys, Verne 18 and Roy 12 years of age slept on the ground.

About 3 o'clock in the morning Verne awakened the family with the cry that he had been bitten by a coyote. His father thinking he was dreaming, told the boy to be quiet and go to sleep. The lad had already covered his head with the tarp and soon cried out again, the animal having poked his head under the covers and touched his bare leg with its cold nose.

By this time the father was thoroughly awake and grabbed the younger boy and threw him into the wagon while Verne mounted a wagon wheel.

The coyote then went for Mr. Harris who, scantily clad, was forced to defend himself with hands and feet, the animal being between him and his son. Finally he was able to climb to a wagon wheel, where he and the boy remained until daylight, when the coyote trotted away.

In its first attack the coyote snapped at Verne's forehead, but did not cut through the skin. Mr. Harris escaped without a scratch.

Coming into town the next morning the party met C. B. Farady, James Tye and Cole Rainey, who were out in Mr. Farady's car after a coyote that had been trotting around town. This one was first noticed at the school house grounds. It trotted along the sidewalk past the county shacks and on toward the country. This animal did not appear to be vicious, but walked straight ahead, never changing its course nor increasing its gait when under fire.—Mountain Home Times.
