CONCERN FELT AT VERA CRUZ

U. S. Naval Force To Be Reinforced

FEELING AGAINST AMERICA IS VERY STRONG

Anti-Foreign Demonstrations at Carranza Capital May Cause a Lot of Trouble.

Newport, R. I.—The battleship Louisiana, flagship of the Fourth division of the Atlantic fleet, sailed Tuesday night for Vera Cruz, Mexico. The crew had spent the day loading supplies and coal after receiving orders to be prepared to leave at a moment's notice.

Washington — Two American battleships, the Louisiana and the New Hampshire, sailed Tuesday night from Newport, R. I., for Vera Cruz, in response to an urgent request from Commander McNamee that his little fleet of gunboats in Mexican waters should be reinforced in view of anti-foreign demonstrations at General Carranza's capital.

It is understood that President Wilson himself ordered the warships sent, although an official of the government would even admit that they had sailed. Care had been taken during the day to point out that any naval or military activity at this time would be purely precautionary to safeguard foreign interests, and could not be interpreted as having any connection with the Pan-American conference, which is to be resumed in New York Wednesday to complete a program for bringing about a restoration of government in Mexico.

Official reticence concerning the movements of the Louisiana and New Hampshire is due to a fear that news of their coming reaching Vera Cruz ahead of the ships might accentuate the already serious situation existing there.

President Will be at Washington with the Next Forty-Eight Hours.

Cornish, N. H.—After the receipt Tuesday of official reports regarding the Mexican situation, President Wilson decided to return to Washington within the next 48 hours. He will be back in time for the cabinet meeting Friday.

Two Bandits Killed.

San Benito, Texas.—Two unidentified Mexicans were killed by Texas rangers a few miles west of San Benito, Tex., Tuesday.

Search for Holders.

Brownsville, Texas.—Although soldiers and posers of citizens were searching diligently for Mexican bandits who Tuesday attacked United States cavalrymen near Mercedes, Tex., about 24 miles north of the Texas-Mexico boundary, no word had come here Tuesday night of the results of the search.

INCREASE IN VALUATIONS

Total Valuation Of State Now Reaches $299,615,914.

THIS DOES NOT INCLUDE PUBLIC UTILITIES, $300,000,000.

Abstracts From all of the Counties of the State Now in the Boise Office.

The total assessed valuation of all property in the state of Idaho exclusive of common carriers, public utilities, telephone and telegraph lines and private car companies for 1915 as reported on abstracts of the 27 counties in the state to the auditor, is shown to be $299,615,914, as against a total valuation of 295,793,915 reported last year.

While the board is hearing the protests of common carriers, public utilities, telephone and telegraph lines now it will not fix their respective assessments immediately for the law requires that all classes of property as between counties must first be equalized before the corporation valuations are fixed.

It is developed that the board has had from Perkins of Boise, in the field for the most month as an expert gathering data for its use in matters of equalization.

LIQUORS NO LONGER DRUGS

Hitherto whisky and brandy have figured officially as "drugs" in the U. S. Pharmacopoeia, which is the authoritative list of medicinal preparations recognized by physicians. This list is now in process of revision, and the committee in charge have voted to remove whisky and brandy from it. Exactly what effect this will have upon the retail trade in alcoholism carried on through the medium of drug-stores seems a little doubtful. It is probable that many druggists may consider it a relief to be freed from the necessity of dealing in liquors. Says the editor of Weekly Drug Markets (New York, July 14):

"The announcement that the Committee of Revision have voted by the narrow margin of 26 to 21 to exclude whisky and brandy from the forthcoming edition of the United States Pharmacopoeia will be looked upon by many in the trade as the culmination of a controversy that has been the subject of much discussion. Many druggists have sold these liquors for medicinal purposes under the customary restrictive measures imposed by the national and state authorities, being guided in their action by the belief that they had a right and duty to supply all medicinal remedies, and that as whisky and brandy were officially recognized in the Pharmacopoeia they were in good standing as remedies."

"But the sentiment has strongly developed within recent years, among reputable pharmacists and medical men that liquors should be deleted from the Pharmacopoeia on the ground that they are not distinctly medicinal agents and are not necessary in the production of official medicinal preparations. In the present Pharmacopoeia, neither whisky nor brandy is directed to be used in the manufacture of other preparations, so that their retention in the official guide up to the present time must be considered solely on the ground of their possible use in medicinal agents. In the face of the sentiment as to the actual medicinal value of these spirits, from a medical point of view at least, it would seem that 'Othello's occupations' would be better."

"The fear has been expressed in some quarters that this elimination may make it impossible for druggists after January 1 next to sell whisky or brandy without taking out a license. But this contention is largely groundless. Many druggists will welcome the future officially to recognize two agents as an excuse to remove them from taking out a license and its accompanying restrictive regulations which has proved so onerous to well meaning men. We have heard many merchants declare that the quantities of these products sold by them in response to legitimate demand were more than adequate, and from such sales they have realized directly or indirectly enough to pay the cost of the special tax certificate required in this connection. It is possible, therefore, that an unwilling belief that as a matter of financial interest, such sales have not been worth the effort and responsibility they cost, while as a business and demoralizing agency they have always required caution and discriminating judgment."

"With the elimination of whisky and brandy from the Pharmacopoeia, the fact that the druggist does not keep them for sale as medicines can not be urged as a blot upon his professional reputation. The liquor situation has been one of the most unsatisfactory subjects with which the druggist has had to deal, and the pharmacist who does not wish to have himself classified as a liquor-dealer, or subject himself to espionage or the risks of prosecution for acts, he can not foresee, will undoubtedly endorse the verdict of the Pharmacopoeial Revision Committee."—Literary Digest.

THE INCOME TAX DOING BETTER

The greatly increased national revenue from the income tax is especially pleasing to Democratic leaders. The shrinkage in customs receipts due to the war. A slight drop in the tax on corporation incomes for the fiscal year ending June 30 was more than made up by a rise from $28,000,000 to $41,000,000 in the revenue from personal incomes. This is held to be due, not to any large increase in the number of taxpayers, or any great possessions of wealth among those already well-to-do but to better methods of collection. New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago in order led the cities in income-tax payments. The East, as an editor notes, still seems to hold the purse-strings of the country, with New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and New Jersey paying more than half the entire income tax. As a typical Democratic observation, we quote from the Philadelphia Record:

"In view of the business depression of last year, the fact that the Government's revenue from the income tax shows a handsome increase must be taken as a proof of much greater efficiency in collection. When the law first went into effect there was much confusion over its provisions. Now it is working much more smoothly in yielding greater returns. It is safe to say that the income tax is one of the achievements of the Wilson Administration which no party will ever attempt to repeal."

Yet one Democratic paper, the New York World, thinks there is room for still more improvement. It says: "Last year New York City's contribution was a trifle less than one-third of the country's total. This year it amounts to over $15,000,000, or much more than a third of the country's total of $41,000,000."

"We may doubt whether the individual tax has been fully collected even here. But when the whole state of Massachusetts, with a population of more than half that of Greater New York, and including the old and enormously wealthy city of Boston, returns only about $2,700,000; when the great and wealthy city of Chicago, with outlying counties, returns only $2,400,000 from a population of around 3,000,000; when the Eastern Missouri District, including St. Louis, notorious for its many great individual incomes, returns only $658,000; when southern Wisconsin, including the many fortunes amassed in Milwaukee, returns only $227,500—more than a doubt arises that the tax is being fully paid. There is suggested a certainty that it is not."

"The government is not improving as it should in the assessment of this tax. Its machinery of collection is still crude, complicated and cumbersome. It is relying too much on corporations to do the work its own collectors are charged with doing. And a Washington correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce, while admitting that the income-tax yield is good and under the circumstances speaks well for the increasing efficiency and activity of the collectors, thinks the actual receipts "disappointing from the larger point of view." The income tax, as a general source of revenue, he says, does not meet the original expectations of its framers, and the past year's work makes it appear that such a result is not likely in the future, "unless the law is revised with a view to greater effectiveness."—Literary Digest.

TALKS ON THRIFT

No. 30. MORE STORIES OF THRIFT

"I have come to learn that the reason why so many men are in the down and out class is the lack of thrift." H. W. Hunt, Secretary Dairy Branch, Y. M. C. A., New York City.

When Assemblyman Peter Swenson came to Iowa thirty-six years ago he had $125 in his pocket. Now he owns 1,200 acres of the best land in O'Brien and Sac counties.

"Pat" couldn't speak a word of English when he came to Delaware county, a green, friendly boy from the old country. He had been educated in an agricultural college, where he studied scientific dairying. He worked three months as a hired hand on a farm and was awarded out of his meager pay, but he kept right on studying and figuring.

Soon he began to get into the commission business, buying eggs and butter for a New York company. He saved but didn't scribble. The banks began to know him well and favorably. Land values grew as Mr. Swenson became yearly a greater authority in scientific butter-making and in the commission business.

He doesn't claim to be smarter than other people because he has made a hundred dollars or so more than the average person makes in a lifetime, but he says he has simply used these sense in working and saving and looking out for opportunities

Mrs. William Murphy is what is commonly known as a "grass widow." Her husband left her and their little child—a daughter—many years ago and has never been heard from since.

But Mrs. Murphy did not let any grass grow under her feet if she was a grass widow. She soon made up her mind that she was a real widow, and as there was no "Puffin" to help her as there was to help "Enoch Arden's" wife in Tennyson's poem, she went to work as a housewife and seamstress to support herself and little girl.

Luckily she was a strong woman and her health remained good. She was thrifty, too, saving a part of every dollar she earned. Before winter came she was always able to fill up her coal bin and lay in a good stock of vegetables, saving a considerable amount by buying early and in quantities. Her savings in the bank grew steadily by her regular deposits and the gradually increasing compound interest credits.

Whenever she had enough saved for a permanent investment she consulted an officer of the bank and took his advice as to a safe use of the money. She was able to give her daughter a good education and the young woman now has a good teaching position and is able to help her mother in keeping up their comfortable home. There is regret for the husband and father who kept "went away and restored what might have been a ruined home."

A banker long an officer of the oldest bank in Minnesota, in telling how four young men developed a successful business, said:

"Their first visit to the bank really established their credit. In that first visit they left their bank books for collection of the amounts due to each of them at their savings bank in the city from which they came."

"These savings-bank books represented their cash capital, but to me they represented much more than that. Their deposits and almost entire absence of withdrawals indicated an established habit of saving on their part and also on the part of their families (for they were all married) for the purpose of carrying out a long time ahead."

"With such determination for work and willingness to deny themselves in order to save something each month of their earnings, it was hardly possible for these young men not to succeed."

"They had been highly successful because they acquired saving habits early in life and thereby accumulated their capital before entering business for themselves, while so many are not willing now to practice any self-denial, but somehow always expect to begin saving at some future time, with the result that they never acquire the habit or the capital."

"A banker necessarily takes these various things into consideration when asked to grant a line of credit. They mean much to him from the standpoint of the moral risk."

Could there possibly be any clear guide-board to success than the words of this old banker?

KANSAS CITY MARKET REPORT

Kansas City, Aug. 9, 1915.

Light receipts of cattle here last week resulted in a gain of 15 to 25 cents on all classes. The supply today is 12,000 here and 22,000 in Chicago, sufficient grounds for week to 10 lower prices on the bulk of the cattle. Demand from killers is strong, and they are taking some of the middle-fleshed steers that commonly go to feeder buyers at this season. Feeder demand from Illinois and Iowa, and other corn-growing states, will increase materially as soon as corn prospects are a little better defined. Two cars of Idaho steers were here today, the load of feeders at $7.75, and one load carrying more feed around $8.25 and $8.35 here last week. Twenty-five cars of California alfalfa fed steers brought $7.25 here last week. A shipment of choice panhandle white face calves, 350 lbs. average, brought $8.50, to go to the country. There is an immense demand developing for stock cattle, sales today are $8.00 to $7.75, a few two-year-olds at $8.00, lambs and lambs sold 10 higher today, following a good market last week, receipts 6500 head. Eleven cars of Arizona lambs were included in receipts, selling at $8.60 to $8.80, feeders around $7.75, and six cars of Idaho lambs sold at $9.00, with a cut of 15 per cent to feeder buyers, 47 lbs. average, at $8.00. The Idaho wethers sold 53 lbs., after the feeders were sorted out, and were considered a quarter under what choice quality lambs would have brought. Fat ewes sold at $6.50 today and breeding ewes at $7.50 to $7.75, both for feeding and breeding stock bringing extraordinary prices this season. Two doubles of Arizona breeding ewes, one-third of them with the best of their kind, were here last Thursday, 95 lbs. average. J. A. RICKART, Market Correspondent.

WM. WIRT MILLS' NEW YORK LETTER.

New York, July 29, 1915.

Not so long ago it was thought probable to put a submarine against a battleship. But events of actual war have revealed ideas on this subject.

Now the shipyards in and around this city are busy building for England hundreds of swift motor boats, with sharp steel bows. What for? To run German submarines!

Prosperity does not always wear fine clothes. A ragged man with a coat in the pocket had several hundred dollars in a ragged stocking and a bank book showing $914 in deposits.

Again has the war been brought close home by the halting of the Dutch liner Nickerle, right off the New Jersey coast, by the British cruiser Isis, and the taking off of two German cable interceptors.

The "Sun," strongly pro-British, comes out with a two-column cablegram from London on "The British-England-Less Continental" naming and that a feeling of depression has followed the revelation of the real progress and status of the war.

Every day in this big city there are people who acquire ready-made children by adoption, but now comes a widow, well on in years, who frankly asks the court to sanction her adoption as a son of an 43-year-old youngster with bristling mustache and bald head.

The life insurance business has attained to immense proportions, as shown by the report made by the state commissioner that the assets of the companies doing business in this state amount to $4,636,970,000. In New York state alone, 7,168,000 policies are in force.

Popular imagination has been caught by the idea of John Watanabe that it would be a fine idea to raise $100,000,000 and buy back Belgium from its conquerors. But a hard headed statistician punctures the idea by pointing out that the sum named would cover the war cost for only ten days—and the war is now a year old.

Edward M. Grant, a few years ago one of the most conspicuous figures in this city, as controller of the biggest municipal corporation in the world now occupies a well-earned place of infamy for doing practically what every bank president in the country does habitually, in swearing to reports of the bank's condition as prepared for him by subordinates.

The impossible has happened. A public official proposes that his own salary be cut in order that his deputy may be better paid. R. A. C. Smith, commissioner of docks and ferries, a shipping man who has built several fleets of merchantmen, is the strange individual who believes that $5,000 is big enough pay for himself, but wants his first deputy to draw $7,500.

There have been two strange tragedies here in public life. William M. Lynde, a great figure at the bar and in municipal politics, died of a heart ailment—a unique career by snatching Roosevelt in the Barnes libel case. As counsel for the big boss he humiliated the former president financially, but the jury vindicated Roosevelt and Lynde came home from Syracuse and lay down and died.

Deserving mention here and sugar up to eight cents? Certainly. In the eleven months ended June 1, America exported 438,629,577 pounds of sugar, worth $22,816,877, no company with 47,062,845 pounds, worth $1,713,534. In the preceding year, war makes nations hungry for sugar. American makes the supplies cut off from Germany. American does big business. But every housewife pays.

Events have verified my analysis of the munitions fight as merely a fight for the eight-hour day, for when shorter hours and larger pay were granted at the Remington plant the men contentedly went back to work, 600 Germans being among the number. And Samuel Gompers has not established his contention that German munitions was back of the movement, nor has he succeeded in explaining his own attitude.

What is the News? The "Times," for example, in the same column has a dispatch from Petrograd, "Nicholas thought the German army was preparing to hurl his armies in any direction, while another dispatch is on "Russians Now Complain" of the successions of defeats and defeat, "Russia Free From Care," relates to the increase of population in the Polish capital, ignoring the fact that this is due to refugees crowding into the city.

The cotton problem is growing more acute, with 3,000,000 bales unsold because of the interference with American trade, and another crop coming in. This is the largest single factor in the insistence of America upon the freedom of the seas, particularly as the great south is absolutely dependent upon selling its cotton, and the main put upon Dixieland is being felt throughout the country.

England recognizes the seriousness of this situation trying to satisfy American interests, without conceding the freedom of the seas, by purchase of 5,000,000 bales of cotton, the amount usually sold to central Europe, which is now blockaded. Here is the shot on the other foot. England holds that this is merely a practical matter, to America it is a principal settled in 1817—a principal fundamental to American prosperity.

Therefore the cotton growers and all commercial interests here are awaiting with keen interest the news to be sent to Great Britain, hoping that the principle will be stated so clearly that dodging will be impossible.

Meanwhile new issues have been raised by British censors delaying cable orders for American goods, and by English speculators, taking big orders and recelling the cotton to the continent at big profits taken out of American pockets.

And 400 importers are clamouring for $100,000,000 worth of their own goods which are in German and Austro-riean warehouses, protesting that they are being ruined by their goods being held up.

The Standard Oil strike has produced a real man. Instead of proving to be a mere politician, Sheriff J. A. Head has sized up his business in a most remarkable way. First he punished the strike leader and then J. W. W. prior, discredited both of them, exported a promise of higher wages from the Standard Oil officials, persuaded the strikers to go back to work, and when their strike committee attempted to interfere, he forced them to resign. Meanwhile when the police of Jersey City refused to assist him in swearing them in as deputy sheriffs and compelled them to protect the men who were willing to work. It looks at this writing as if the nerve of one man would prevent revolution here in the east of the Colorado horrors.

The impression made here by the last night to Germany is two-fold in declaring that "The Government will continue to contend for that freedom for the seas, from whatever quarter it comes, without conceding to it in any cost," the president has won again unanimous approval and unlimited support. This is neutrality to make the world respect and observe all American rights.

But the public satisfaction at this assertion of the principle for which America fought in '12, gives way to discontent at the sting in the tail of the note "deliberately unfriendly language." This, it is pointed, is not the language of diplomacy, but of war. It is like the crash of a gun in the midst of a friendly discussion, and the American public is at loss to interpret it, especially as last week's warning to England was in the usual polite language of diplomacy, without any tendency toward an ultimatum.

It cannot be thought that the president's speech was—It is possible that he does not force the consequences of making the issue the basis of an ultimatum. To him the safe conduct of American travelers over land and sea to Germany is merely a practical matter. A principle cannot be adjusted; a practical matter can.

As said in my letter, the president is in a difficult position, having gone so far that he has reached the very edge of his authority, and so the demand increases here for a cooling of course, not merely to back up the president in an autocratic policy, but to take up the whole matter as the direct representatives of a democratic people. Here as the public is to support the president, the citizenry is not willing to subvert this democracy and have the seizure of 100,000,000 people rest on one man's opinion.

This feeling is accentuated by the fact that the American dispute with Great Britain is even more involved than the issue with Germany, for while the latter seeks friendly adjustment with America, the former declares, through Lord Crewe and in her most state that England does not regard the seizure of American ships and cargoes as a question for present diplomatic conventions, but only one to be regulated by such rules as England has framed and of which she insisted against America's repeated protests.

PORTLAND MARKET REPORT.

North Portland, Ore., Aug. 3, 1914.

The receipts for Monday are: Cattle, 752; hogs, 272; sheep, 402.

Cattle.

For the last three Mondays steers have reached the seven cent mark. The market seems to show steady on good stuff. Of course this class of cattle is not coming in freely. Out of the head on the market only two or three head could show in this class. Most of the offerings were mediocre, the usual number of second rate cutting in evidence. For ordinary cows and calves the market seems at an early date fairly steady.

Hogs.

Only a few hundred head over two thousand were reported over Sunday—outside of a few loads that were able to spring the close of last week's price at $7.15, all lines ruled steady, the bulk going at $7.00 to $7.10. Trade was active.

Sheep.

The largest receipts for a single day in the last few months were in this morning, over 4000 head being totaled. Good lambs are selling at $6.25 with all lines steady at last week's prices.

The following sales are representative:

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

A bitter feud has existed between Colonel Arthur Stanley and his cousin, Judge Lamar Stanton. The feud has been kindled in family jealousy over an heirship, the diamond from the sky, that was found in a fallen meteor by a venturesome ancestor. Also, the succession to the Stanley estate in England may come to his American grandnephew, a daughter born to Colonel Stanley of the eldest branch of the Stanleys in America and the mother of the child who at his birth, the charged colonel gave a newborn gypsy boy and substituted him as his own. The gypsy mother, having had part in this bargain, steals the colonel's little daughter, leaving her own son to be raised in his own undetected as the heir. The gypsy mother has also obtained possession of the diamond from the sky and does not intend to reveal the secret of the case here. She rears the little girl, Esther Stanley, as her own and grows to have her own. When Esther is grown a beautiful young girl, Hagar, now gypsy queen, returns to Virginia with her. She has a wild son, Dr. Lee, who is the son of Stanley's old friend, may now abduct Esther, an originally intended. Her hope is to marry her to the supposed Arthur Stanley, who is the supposed son of the colonel. Dr. Lee also informs Hagar that he has a son, Arthur Stanley, who is the supposed son of the colonel. Dr. Lee also informs Hagar that he has a son, Arthur Stanley, who is the supposed son of the colonel.

Esther as a Stanley has failed, ere yet it was begun, through the death of Dr. Lee, supposedly at the hands of the fugitive young master of this very mansion. Hagar will leave it and see that Esther enters upon the position in life to which she belongs by right of birth.

The formalities are soon over and Hagar has fastened herself and Esther in Stanley hall.

So eventful have been the last few years of her life that Esther has ceased to wonder. In the death of Dr. Lee, Esther realized she lost a friend, and one who had something to tell her. If

They Are Hagar Harding and Esther.

Dr. Lee's daughter, also mistress of Esther, nodded eager assent, for the young man had ridden over to call upon Esther every day since she and her supposed mother, Mrs. Hagar in Richmond, Virginia, from whose fair bosom the diamond from the sky had been snatched the night of the ball, and carried no glimpse of the face of the man, of the thief and stranger, Lovell had been revealed.

At Farmer Stanley's, a dozen miles away from Stanley hall, where, unknown to him, Hagar and Esther are now dwelling, Arthur, the fugitive, had for his daily bread. The winsome little five-year-old daughter of the farmer had twined herself around Arthur's heart.

Happy and hearty and healthy were his days. He followed the plow and faced the sun and snow. He was gaining by fortune in the world's goods, but he was happy in the clean, open air life of a farmer's helper. Only did a shadow come to his face when he thought of Esther and his bitter mother, Hagar. Was Esther his sister or was she, too, a child of his? No matter which, Arthur's love for her was deep and pure as a brother's. He would make a name for himself for her sake, and so he faced the morning sun and snow, and so he faced the shadows of twilight and moon and stars.

One day his little "Nelle Smith" brought him his luncheon to the field a torn scrap of newspaper that covered a portion of his bright eye. It was a front page "savage hunt" of a Richmond paper that in its type headlines told of the robbery at Mrs. Randolph's hall and the subsequent added excitement of his flight and fight when arrested on a charge of murder. Then Arthur wondered again if he had done right in following Hagar. An impulse seized him to go to Fairfax and give himself up to the authorities and let the whole truth be known.

But then he remembered the secret was Hagar's and that she had suffered much. So far neither Hagar nor Ester had ridden to call upon Esther. Harding had occupied Stanley hall. The generous minded young men were keen to realize there was a villain, possibly against the strangers who now had taken up their abode at Stanley hall.

"Yes," Bert Randolph retorted, "Am't is a stunner—she's broad minded; too, not stiff and narrow like the one Fairfax women folks. I do not know why she is going to visit Blair Stanley, but I think it is a merry group. Aunt Burton's North will be here to attend the Fairfax tournament, which comes off in a couple of days. I have a bill of it with me. It's the biggest event we have in Fairfax, and our Arthur Stanley won't set out with along the growth this year. How he practiced for it. He would have won it last year, but Blair Stanley, who is older and much heavier than he, beat him out by a nasty bit of interference. Did he get it right?"

Ralph was quick to say he thought Blair had ridden unfaithful, and Bert went on with his chatter concerning his stammering aunt and the coming tournament.

"I would be surprised if Aunt Burton didn't go with old Esther," Bert continued. "She loves to have pretty girls around her, and any girl she chaperones is made a belle of Richmond, for Aunt Burton Randolph surely does, when it mightily in Richmond society."

While he was speaking the young Randolph of Fairfax produced a handbill printed in old English text, which read:

He Followed the Plow and Sowed the seed of his connection with him was known. No one but he and Hagar knew he was not the heir of Stanley, for, though Esther had called him brother, it was plain to Arthur that the sweet girl had said the word to comfort him.

Then also he realized that much in explanation must be endured by him. He felt that when the time came Hagar would speak, and until then he was bound to silence.

At Stanley hall and all throughout

Fairfax the news of Esther's return had gone abroad. The mystery of her coming, as Dr. Lee's adopted daughter, and the mystery of her sudden departure at his death added fuel to the gossip that went through the countryside when it was known that with a handsome dark woman, who gave the name of Hagar Harding and said that she was Esther's mother, Dr. Lee's erstwhile ward had returned to Stanley hall.

But with the young men of Fairfax county Esther's gentle ways and pliancy had gone far in the few short months she had lived beneath the doctor's roof in his adopted daughter. And now, when it was known Esther had returned to Fairfax and dwelt at Stanley hall, the young men of the community again came flocking to seek her favor.

First and most constant of the callers upon the new occupants of Stanley hall was Bert Randolph.

Few, except those who understand the ramifications of kith and kinship in the old south, can comprehend the strong ties that blood and upbringing make in Virginia.

"The Stanleys," the Randolphs, the Lees, the Beverlys, the Hunters and the other famous old families loved and loved dearly, but strictly among themselves.

Both Blair Stanley's mother, who was a second cousin, and Bert Randolph's mother, who was a first cousin, had invited the chaperoned Mrs. Burton Randolph to Fairfax and forgetfulness. But Blair Stanley, being in Richmond and infatuated with his kinswoman's vivacious guest, Vivian Marston, had so warmly seconded his mother's invitation that Mrs. Burton Randolph and her guest were greatly pleased to accept it.

"My aunt is a stunner!" Bert Randolph blurted joyfully to Hagar and Esther. "Ralph, here, knows what a good sort she is, and she'll be with you, too, Miss Esther, won't she, Ralph?"

And Ralph Hunter, also mistress of Esther, nodded eager assent, for the young man had ridden over to call upon Esther every day since she and her supposed mother, Mrs. Hagar

CHAPTER XII
The Tournament.

"Bert poor Arthur Stanley won't be here to ride this year," exclaimed the good natured young man when they had all finished reading the announcement.

"The idea of them suspecting he'd ridden off," chimed in the equally generous minded Ralph Hunter. "Why Arthur for all his wild ways had the best and kindest heart in the world. And he loved Dr. Lee like a son, even if they did have some jolly old rows about the way Arthur spent money like water and got in debt."

"But why did Arthur run away? None of us believe him guilty, and we may have our faults in Fairfax, but we are all kin, and we all stand together when outsiders make trouble," asked Ralph Hunter.

"Don't you get silly," cried Bert Randolph impulsively. "Can't you see you are making Miss Esther cry? You promise me we wouldn't say anything about Arthur's troubles? You know Miss Esther liked him best of all of us."

"Oh, please do forgive me, Miss Esther," cried the young man. "But I just can't keep quiet about Arthur. Keeping quiet implies we do believe those awful suspicions."

"I thank you for that," said Esther tremulously. "Let us talk about him. He'll speak up for himself, except being a reckless boy, with no other and no mother."

Hagar spoke up for the first time. "Yes," she said huskily. "he had no mother."

"If he'll tell you something about Arthur," spoke up Bert Randolph. "I'll be a secret. He had only told me. He was going to ride in the tournament this year and west Blair's laurels as the best rider in Fairfax from him. You know why? Well, Arthur was determined to win this year. It was when Miss Esther was at Dr. Lee's he told it. It was resolved again no one could crown Miss Esther queen of love and beauty."

"Well, we'll do it for him," cried young Hunter. "All the girls of Fairfax are wild for the honor. But we'll win it for Miss Esther. One of us will block Blair Stanley, and the other will win the wreath."

"Ho!" checked young Randolph. "Is that the cavalry of a masked knight in the tournament of Fairfax? That's a trick like Blair Stanley played almost. I am astonished at you, Ralph," he added, with mock seriousness.

All hushed, relieved of the tension the mention of Arthur's flight under its terrible suspicion had brought upon the little group, and soon after the young men rode away, declaring that Esther should be crowned at their hands and the socially powerful female relative from Richmond should take the young mistress of Stanley hall under the shadow of her escort.

It was about 10 of this same time, on the same afternoon, that a slim faced, lurching organ grinder with a monkey limped into the dooryard of Farmer Smith's. Poor quacker! Well could he realize that riches seldom bring happiness, especially when we lose them almost as quickly as they have been gained.

But the joy and glow of the little five-year-old daughter of the Smiths shined in his eyes.

"This is always glad to see us, anyway, 'Clarepeep,'" he said, and he

"Oh, please do forgive me, Miss Esther," cried the young man. "But I just can't keep quiet about Arthur. Keeping quiet implies we do believe those awful suspicions."

"I thank you for that," said Esther tremulously. "Let us talk about him. He'll speak up for himself, except being a reckless boy, with no other and no mother."

Hagar spoke up for the first time. "Yes," she said huskily. "he had no mother."

"If he'll tell you something about Arthur," spoke up Bert Randolph. "I'll be a secret. He had only told me. He was going to ride in the tournament this year and west Blair's laurels as the best rider in Fairfax from him. You know why? Well, Arthur was determined to win this year. It was when Miss Esther was at Dr. Lee's he told it. It was resolved again no one could crown Miss Esther queen of love and beauty."

"Well, we'll do it for him," cried young Hunter. "All the girls of Fairfax are wild for the honor. But we'll win it for Miss Esther. One of us will block Blair Stanley, and the other will win the wreath."

"Ho!" checked young Randolph. "Is that the cavalry of a masked knight in the tournament of Fairfax? That's a trick like Blair Stanley played almost. I am astonished at you, Ralph," he added, with mock seriousness.

All hushed, relieved of the tension the mention of Arthur's flight under its terrible suspicion had brought upon the little group, and soon after the young men rode away, declaring that Esther should be crowned at their hands and the socially powerful female relative from Richmond should take the young mistress of Stanley hall under the shadow of her escort.

It was about 10 of this same time, on the same afternoon, that a slim faced, lurching organ grinder with a monkey limped into the dooryard of Farmer Smith's. Poor quacker! Well could he realize that riches seldom bring happiness, especially when we lose them almost as quickly as they have been gained.

But the joy and glow of the little five-year-old daughter of the Smiths shined in his eyes.

"This is always glad to see us, anyway, 'Clarepeep,'" he said, and he Had ridden to call upon Esther. Harding had occupied Stanley hall. The generous minded young men were keen to realize there was a villain, possibly against the strangers who now had taken up their abode at Stanley hall.

"Yes," Bert Randolph retorted, "Am't is a stunner—she's broad minded; too, not stiff and narrow like the one Fairfax women folks. I do not know why she is going to visit Blair Stanley, but I think it is a merry group. Aunt Burton's North will be here to attend the Fairfax tournament, which comes off in a couple of days. I have a bill of it with me. It's the biggest event we have in Fairfax, and our Arthur Stanley won't set out with along the growth this year. How he practiced for it. He would have won it last year, but Blair Stanley, who is older and much heavier than he, beat him out by a nasty bit of interference. Did he get it right?"

Ralph was quick to say he thought Blair had ridden unfaithful, and Bert went on with his chatter concerning his stammering aunt and the coming tournament.

"I would be surprised if Aunt Burton didn't go with old Esther," Bert continued. "She loves to have pretty girls around her, and any girl she chaperones is made a belle of Richmond, for Aunt Burton Randolph surely does, when it mightily in Richmond society."

While he was speaking the young Randolph of Fairfax produced a handbill printed in old English text, which read:

It Was a Merry Group.

played his blunder times and Clarence was prompted to his best comedy by the appreciation of the small but select audience.

When Arthur, working on the Smith farm under the name of John Powell, came across the fields at sunset with his monkey and a merry group, they found in the dooryard, Quacker and Clarence being regaled with the best from the board, as all wandering minstrels should be.

"I'm on my way to the tournament at Fairfax," Quacker said.

The Fairfax tournament Arthur said.

PRUNING GRAPE VINES EARLY

Comparatively Easy Matter to Determine About How Much of the Old Wood to Leave on Vine.

(By I. G. MOORE, Wisconsin Experiment Station)

Grape vines that were not pruned last fall should receive attention if a profitable crop is desired. The earlier the vines are pruned in the spring the better, as the grape vine "bleeds" badly when pruned too near the time of production.

As the grape produces its fruit at the first four or five joints on new growth arising from wood produced the year previous, it will be a comparatively easy matter, with the foregoing fact in mind, to determine about how much of the old wood to leave on the vine. Usually from thirty to forty buds will be enough to provide for the season's growth. A greater number of buds will likely result in more fruit clusters of an inferior quality.

If the fruiting wood shows a tendency to grow farther away from the main trunk, a good, vigorous shoot arising from near the base of the vine or near the head should be left to renew the fruiting area the coming year.

Too little pruning rather than too much is the common fault in grape culture. While to the average person not experienced in such matters, the removal of so large a portion of the vine may seem wasteful and injurious, nevertheless, it is a necessity in successful grape growing.

Profitable Orchardling.

To make orchardling profitable the grower must receive enough for his fruit to pay the cost of growing and delivering it to the buyer, be he a consumer or broker, with a small margin for profit.

A repetition of your want ad, in the course of your quest for a cook, may be good policy.

red with a sudden resolve. He would go! He would win the wreath and crown Esther queen of love and beauty! It was a wild risk to take, a daring thing to do, but he longed to see Esther, and the love of romance and the inclination to the dramatic were the heritage of his gypsy blood that overcame all caution and discretion. He would go! His heart beat like a drum with the resolution. Pacing himself to speak with a cadence so far from felt, he spoke up and said:

"If I can be spared for the day, and if you will lend me Starlight, Mr. Smith, and if you will make me a man, Mrs. Smith, and lend me a plume for my hat, I'll rid and show them how we do it in Kentucky!"

And Esther Was There to Keep the Trust.

For it was as a young Kentuckian in hard luck Arthur had explained his plight and presence in that part of the country. Both the farmer and his wife had often discussed the stranger who had come to their door in the guise of a tramp, but they could see by his ways and manners he was no tramp. They judged him by his open, manly countenance and gentle courtesy, and whatever was his secret they felt it was no dishonorable one.

On Starlight, then, the farmer's blooded saddle horse, in his new chamois clothing and his black silk mask and ostrich plume the farmer's wife had furnished for her Sunday dandy, Arthur rode away with the best wishes of the farmer and his wife and his little girl, "to show," as Farmer Smith expressed it, "those struck up Fairfax sweets a taste of old Kentucky Quinba."

Quinba had been gone since the day before, but Arthur overtook him near Stanley hall. They waved at each other as Arthur galloped past. And then Arthur reined his horse in a little cube of wood near the mansion. Did he but know it, it was the spot where he had been born.

He had last seen Esther at Hagar's camp, but he was not surprised to catch the flutter of her dress at the window of the balcony that overlooked the garden at the side of Stanley hall. He had well remembered Hagar's parting words that she would take Esther to dwell at Stanley hall.

Cautious and as quiet as he was in stealing toward the house, the keen eyes of Luke Lovell, at Stanley hall, had the instant he had stepped from his grey-flock, heard his cautious foot fall, and from a hiding place saw Arthur throw a hastily scrawled note tied to a stone, through the open balcony door, into Esther's room. "The note said her to meet him at the root of the hill at the top of the hill, back of Stanley hall. And Esther was there to keep the trust.

"You must not do this," she panted wildly when Arthur explained his purpose. But Arthur laughed and told her a brotherly compliment for her bright eyes and fair cheeks, set off all the better for her agitation and had journeyed for the tournament.

"I will ride west on your favor, Esther, dear," said Arthur, and he took the slither sack she wore and kissed her and rode away, placing on his mask as he adjusted the sack as a scarf.

At Stanley hall Hagar busily waited for Esther, the carriage horse restless at the portals of the mansion. "Where have you been," she asked, "gathering dowers, I suppose?" For an excuse Esther had hurriedly gathered a handful of roses to account for her delay.

At the Fairfax fair grounds all was bustle and excitement. The scenery were driving in and taking their seats to the gayly decorated grand stand. Already Blair Stanley's mother, with her guests, Mrs. Burton Randolph of Richmond and the beautiful lady from New York whom Blair was all attention to, Vivian Marston, had taken their seats and were smiling and nodding to friends and acquaintances.

Sheriff Sam Swain was bustling about and in his heavy lumbering way tapping a lute-backed organ grinder who, with a monkey, had been the subject of much amusement on the tournament grounds. Blair Stanley was busily pretending he would arrest both the musician and his monkey, and he was shaking the official handcuffs at these coin-gathering entertainers.

And now the master of ceremonies made the announcement the masked knights were to tilt in a general mêlée with handhoes lances at a small wreath suspended some twelve feet from the ground, jibbing at full speed at this object, the masked knight who could bear it off on his spear point was to be adjudged the victor and as the best friend of all the knights of Fairfax would crown the maid of his choosing a queen of love and beauty, and also by the presentation of great bouquets ready at hand select the queen's attendant ladies of honor.

The Duke, then, Sheriff Swain as knight of the moment, the masked knights were to tilt in a general mêlée with handhoes lances at a small wreath suspended some twelve feet from the ground, jibbing at full speed at this object, the masked knight who could bear it off on his spear point was to be adjudged the victor and as the best friend of all the knights of Fairfax would crown the maid of his choosing a queen of love and beauty, and also by the presentation of great bouquets ready at hand select the queen's attendant ladies of honor.

Blair Stanley, in his light grey tunic, wearing the crimson sash favor of Vivian Marston, was in the lead; close behind was a knight on a white horse with a black star on his forehead. A strange horse to Fairfax, where every horse and man of blood is known. That horse was the one that was the rider? He wore a snow white scarf and sat his horse as became a Virginia gentleman or perhaps a Kentuckian.

Blair in the lead evered to block the oncoming knights behind him, but the stranger seemed to be prepared for the ruse. He swerved his horse round and crossed in the very front of Blair. The shock threw the bay-hunter over, and Blair fell headlong to the ground, and the strange knight's spear point lifted the wreath they strove for from the wire. As Blair felt he got a glimpse of the clothes and the face of the rider, he closed up. And then Blair Stanley knew him! It was Arthur Stanley!

A surge of hate and humiliation raged in the bosom of Blair to be unseated in the presence of Vivian Marston. He snatched his horse round, and would bear off the wreath and crown her on her first day in Fairfax as queen of love and beauty!

He lipped from the scene to where Sheriff Swain stood by the end of the grand stand, watching the surprising end of the masked knight contest. He clung to the railing, watching with his clumsy jesting with his handcuffs at Quinba.

The defeated knight, with the exception of the untamed Blair, who had lipped away, ranged their horses in a semicircle and held their lances at salute.

Arthur, bearing the queen's crown and the bouquets, approached the white-faced, trembling Esther and said in a feigned voice, "I crown thee queen of love and beauty!" Then he presented the bouquets of the ladies of honor to the nearest woman—Vivian Marston and Mrs. Burton Randolph.

At the far end of the grand stand the raging Blair was pointing to the victor and saying, "That is Arthur Stanley, the murderer of Dr. Lee. Go and get him!"

Hardly knowing what he was doing, bit in anger at the clumsy, jesting sheriff, a wild idea to discredit that officer and the unhoused informer for the sake of the grand looking victor seized Quinba. With a deft clutch of his quick fingers he clasped the dangling end of the handcuffs to the wrist of Blair. The other end was around the sheriff's wrist, and that eager official and the informer were soon wildly pulling in opposite directions. Leaving his organ and carrying the frightened monkey in his arms, the nimble hunchback ran through the grand stand and whispered his warning to Arthur.

At his very moment, obedient to a significant look from Blair's mother,

RUSH CONSTRUCTION WORK

Company to Spend Several Thousand Dollars Improving System.

G. M. Hall, general manager of the Canal company, has received instructions from A. C. Robinson, the chairman of the bondholders' protective committee, to proceed with the work designated by the state engineer's office to complete the canal system. The inspection for the state was made by engineers J. M. Burkett and Walter Hyde. Mr. Hyde doing some work during the winter, and Mr. Burkett completing the job last spring. Most of the work was done by Mr. Burkett who inspected every main canal and lateral on the system, and reported to the engineer's office on each one. His report is too long for publication in full, as every item of work is mentioned specifically. The work consists principally of concrete checks and drops in the large laterals and some in the smaller distributing laterals; some of the latter checks being summarized below:

A-1 lateral, 5 checks at lateral turnout at $150 each, $750.00; lateral A-T, 4 small checks, $127.00; A-10, 4 lateral checks, $29.00; A-101, 8 1/2 checks, $125.00; A-11, 7 checks, $184.00; Main lateral No. 1, concrete checks, at $150.00 each, $900.00; 121, concrete check, $220.00; 12, check and riprap, $85.00; 151, 4 concrete checks, $215.00; 151, 7 combination drops and checks, $550.00; 17, 1 check, $125.00; 17, 2 checks, $225.00; 19, 6 checks, $170.00; 2, 1 concrete check, $110.00; 21, 5 checks, $247.00; 22, 3 checks, $168.00; 26, 2 checks, $75.00.

Mr. Hall states that the opportunity of doing this work will be given to the settlers on the project and to make it more convenient for them, he will delay it until after the rush of harvest. Whether the work done by the settlers will be paid for in cash, or whether a portion only will be paid in cash and the balance credited on next year's maintenance payments, has not as yet been determined.

C. E. Tappan, hydrographer for the canal company, has just returned from trip to the gauging station below the mouth of Shoshone creek and reports that only fifteen second feet is running into the reservoir from the river, half of this coming from Shoshone creek. The Utah company is diverting the entire flow of the Salmon, about twenty-five second feet, and using it to top their new land, a use which Mr. Hall advises will be prohibited another year, under the decision handed down recently in the suit between the local company and the Utah Construction company.

The date that the gage at the reservoir read 3.3 feet. The water level has fallen about two-tenths since the water was shut off on July 15th, or in other words, the loss has been about 270 feet more than the amount of water that has flowed into the reservoir since that time. There is now about 3,000 acre feet available for domestic purposes. It is hardly possible that this will be sufficient for two runs, for filling laterals. The water master's department estimates that it is probable that a run will be commenced between the 15th and 20th of the present month, at which time it is thought the demand for water for domestic purposes will be the greatest, as the requirements for the threshing crews will be particularly heavy.

In addition to the work outlined by the state engineer, this official emphasizes the necessity of constructing a canal around the check basin so called, to avoid the enormous seepage and evaporation caused by a large exposure of water. The cost of such a ditch is estimated to be around twelve thousand dollars. Whether the cost of this work is to be borne by the canal company or the promotion company is a question that has as yet not been determined, and it is probable that no work will be done on the check basin until it is determined.

The engineers who were ordered to make the investigation for the state, were instructed to report on all things that were to be done in order that the construction work should comply with the specifications filed with the state engineer, pursuant to the terms of the contract. These specifications, while providing that the company may transport water in canals and draws, do not provide for a lake, such as is the check basin. However, the plans for the check basin were approved by a former state engineer, and it is up to the land board to determine whether the state will require the correction of the defects of the check basin or not. If the land board does not require it, it is quite likely that the matter will be taken up by the Settlers' association.—Hollister Herald.

TIME TO COMPLETE RESERVOIR

Extension Granted to Twin Falls North Side Company.

An extension of time was granted by the state land board Monday to the Twin Falls North Side Land & Water company for the completion of work being done at Jackson lake, Wyoming, to provide additional storage for the Twin Falls North Side Irrigation project.

When the company and the land board entered into the agreement under which the work is being done it was specified that the Jackson lake reservoir should be completed by August 21 of this year. Judge Walters appeared before the board for the company and under the showing he made an extension was granted until October 15, 1916.

When the Twin Falls North Side project was laid out a storage reservoir was built at Jerome. Subsequently it was found that it would not hold sufficient water. It was therefore decided to utilize Jackson lake as a storage reservoir.

The company made an arrangement with the United States reclamation service under which that organization is now helping a dam to increase the storage capacity of Jackson lake sufficiently to store water for the Twin Falls North Side project. Before the board evidence was shown that the work has been prosecuted with due diligence. He said six hundred thousand dollars had already been expended and that it will require two hundred thousand dollars more to finish the job. The work, though done by the reclamation service, is being paid for by the North Side Land & Water company. He said all the work done to date had been paid for and there was money available for the balance, but more time was needed. The board was unanimous in granting the extension.

WILL FURNISH CARS

Will be No Shortage in Idaho This Year, Say Officials.

Boise, Idaho, Aug. 8.—That the public utilities commission of this state will have the co-operation of the railroad and trucking industry to prevent a car shortage in Idaho during the big crop movement which will start soon, is evident by the steps taken by both. The banks of the state generally will also lend a helping hand. The fact that the federal reserve banks have already taken a hand towards placing a large amount of money in circulation, bankers say, will result in no small amount of it being taken advantage of in this state. At the conference held with the Oregon Short Line officials at Salt Lake recently, assurances were given the commission that every precaution has been taken to insure a large crop this year by that road and there would be no car shortage, said President Axel C. Rasmussen of the public utilities commission. The banks of the state asserted they were in excellent shape to handle not only the fruit, but the potatoes, grain and other products—not to mention the fact that they had been for some years. They propose to raise the demurrage on frezers which will prevent holding up and blocking car movements. The banks of the state do not intend to raise the rate of interest on this order but this order has been issued, but I understand the increase is to be from $1 to $3. In the past the low demurrage has resulted in cars being held up which played no small part in creating a car shortage. While at Spokane I was also assured by the railroad officials that they were prepared to move the big crops in Idaho. With these assurances I do not expect to see a do and do believe there will be a car shortage.

Information that has reached here is to the effect that the Short Line has begun preparations for the taking off of the "white lead" which is on seventy-five engines in Pocatello, and announces all of them will be put into commission moving crops, which will require additional motive power. By placing this number of engines in commission more than 400 engineers, firemen, headmen and conductors will be given employment. Threshing of grain in this state has already begun and the box car movement over the several railroad lines has started. Those cars are being placed where they will relieve the outpour of grain to the best advantage.

IDAHO AT ITS BEST

Head of 'Woolgrowers' Association Formed.

Assistant General Manager G. G. Wright, of the Consolidated-Wagon & Machine Company was seen at this office yesterday and asked of the testimony given by Dr. McClure, secretary of the National Woolgrowers' Association before the interstate commerce commission recently and asked his opinion regarding the statements made by Mr. Wright.

Mr. Wright stated: "That during a 26-years residence in Idaho I have never seen crop conditions better or the intentions for business better than now. The people are buying needed goods and supplies freely and are meeting their obligations as well as they have at any time within that period, and an idea as to how to understand why such a statement can have been made. Dr. McClure is either misinformed, in ignorant of conditions, or else was trying to make an impression that the livestock interests of Idaho are not in position to pay the increased rates asked by the railroad when the trip recently in an impression that I was being with him on said Mr. Wright, "and that in regard to the fruit condition and that maybe he is partly right in that and that the wool industry of Idaho a fruit state from a commercial viewpoint is wrong and think the fruit sections of the state have gone in too strong."

"If the condition such as he states prevails in Idaho, the other sections of the United States affected by flood struck the hard, and in general had conditions, have my pity."

Mr. Wright, with others associated with the C. W. & M. Co., made a 1700-mile trip recently in the north, to check up business and crop conditions as that information is needed in their business, and at that time, two weeks ago, he was in the great territory covered. Senator Brady and others have absolutely denied the statements made by the head of the Woolgrowers' Association.

BUILD CYANIDE PLANT

Jarbridge Properties Taking up New Life.

Howard Rummel of the Bluster company, operating in Jarbridge, spent a day in Elko recently on business, returning to the northern camp by private car, with the company, with Elmer Chute, one of the best known mechanical engineers of Goldfield, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cook. Mr. Cook is also a prominent mining man.

In conversation with an Associated reporter, Mr. Rummel stated that Jarbridge looks better now than at any time during the past three years. The new mill on the Bluster property is in full swing and is grinding about fifty tons of ore daily. There are about seventy-five men on the payroll in full swing and with work now outlined this number will be greatly increased. The Bluster people are now installing a new 200-horsepower horse-power plant and in addition to its present plant will install a fifty-ton cyanide plant. Construction will start next month. The ore values go about $20 per ton.

The company is now using oil in generating power. This oil is purchased in Orem, California, at 3 cents, but in Jarbridge it costs the company 20 cents.

Chas. Linnecum has eight men working on the Alpha tailing pond.

The O. K. is working a couple of men driving a hundred foot tunnel under the ore shoot.

John Stetson is erecting a fifty-ton plant on the Pick and Shovel property. He hopes to have this completed within thirty days.

A small plant is soon to be placed on the Flaxie. Work on this property is to be resumed under the direction of Joseph O'Byrne.
