WATER COMPANY MAKES ANSWER

Sets Forth to Commission Its Side of Question.

CLAIMS THAT PLANT IS WORTH MORE THAN OFFER

E. B. Critchlow Answers Quibbles Order Reurix on City's Application for Writ of Condemnation.

The letter below, addressed to the Idaho public utilities commission, is the answer of the Twin Falls Waterworks company to the application of the city of Twin Falls for a writ of replevin for a municipal plant. From the exception taken by Mr. Critchlow to the jurisdiction of the commission, the attitude of the company on that question coincides with the prediction made by this paper some time ago.

BEFORE THE PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION OF THE STATE OF IDAHO

In the Matter of the Application of the City of Twin Falls, for Certificate of Necessity for Construction of Water- works of Said City. Case No. F- 68.

Now comes Twin Falls Waterworks Company, Ltd., and acknowledged the receipt of a motion for an order and decree granting a certificate of convenience in Twin Falls City, together with the affidavit of the City Attorney of Twin Falls attached.

In reply thereto the Twin Falls Waterworks Company, Ltd., shows that immediately upon the entry of the order of the Commission in this matter the Twin Falls Waterworks Company, represented by its manager and one of its directors, met the Public Utilities Council of Twin Falls, at Twin Falls, on June 26th, 1915, at which time it was agreed that the City of Twin Falls, through its City Council or legal representative, would present to the Twin Falls Waterworks Company, Ltd., its plans or scheme for the issuance of bonds, and that the City of Twin Falls would be fixed by the Twin Falls Waterworks Company, Ltd., for its system, payable in said bonds.

Later, on or about the 15th day of July, a request was made by the City of Twin Falls that a cash price be fixed upon the waterworks system, and thereupon, on August 11th, an offer was made by the Twin Falls Waterworks Company to Twin Falls City, for the sale of said system at $25,000.00, the same being a reasonable offer, in view of the amount of the bonds to be issued by the City of Twin Falls, and the present condition of the plant as a going concern.

That thereafter, on September 6th, 1915, the City Council, by a majority vote, passed a resolution offering to the Twin Falls Waterworks Company, the sum of $20,000.00, payable in bonds of the City, but making no cash offer of any kind, which offer was, on the 8th day of September, 1915, rejected by the Public Utilities Council of Twin Falls, Ltd. The offer so made by the City of Twin Falls was and is unreasonable, and not in any manner fair or just, as is shown by the fact that the City of Twin Falls has offered to purchase said waterworks system for the sum of $30,000.00 in bonds. This offer was not accepted because it was not deemed adequate, and at the same time the offer was made by the Twin Falls Waterworks Company, Ltd., to the City, to sell said system for $100,000.00 of bonds of the City. Since said named date a large amount of capital expenditure has been made by the Twin Falls Waterworks Company, and the system is more valuable than it then was.

The Twin Falls Waterworks Company, while not admitting or conceding the jurisdiction of the Public Utilities Commission in the premises, is desirous that the facts may be before the Commission for its information.

Vice President.

State of Utah, County of Salt Lake, ss.
E. B. Critchlow, being first duly sworn, deposes and says: That he has for five years last past, been the Vice President of the Twin Falls Waterworks Company, Ltd.; that he has read the foregoing statement and knows the contents thereof, and the same is true. Further deponent sayeth not.

PRESIDENT'S RECEPTION

Twentieth Century Club Opens the Year With Gala Day.

It has been some time since Odd Fellows hall witnessed such a gathering of ladies as were present Tuesday afternoon, when the president of the Twentieth Century club held her annual reception. In the receiving line with Mrs. Morse were Mesdames Packard, Norton, Clouchek and Pike, two past presidents being absent.

The guests were also greeted in the hall-way and cordially welcomed by members of the reception committee. The decorations about the hall and much of the program were reminders of the autumn season. Beautifully unfaded autumn leaves were used in profusion, while here and there were immense bunches of asters. Autumn leaves in the program were the vacation experiences of several of the members recently and entertainingly told by Mesdames J. H. Sawyer, W. E. Nixon, E. A. Wyatt, J. E. White, W. T. Wallace and C. S. Sigmas.

Mrs. Pauline and Volney Blythe were the featured soloists in the afternoon, the former giving what she termed a Hungarian "autumn feat." In the form of a violin solo, played as only such an artist can play. Another musical number was given by Mrs. T. J. Woods, whose splendid voice was heard in two songs.

WILL TRY TO OBTAIN ACREAGE

George Harlan Will Spend Three Weeks on Sugar Acreage.

The directors of the Twin Falls Commercial club have empowered Geo. Harlan to do the work necessary in obtaining the 5000 acre contracts from the federal government. Mr. Harlan commenced work this week and will devote his entire time to the campaign. Owing to his wide acquaintance with the farmer of the tract, it was thought by the business men here that Mr. Harlan could work better alone than with the committee who started the work.

FIRE AT THE LINCOLN SCHOOL

Blaze Near Chimney Extinguished by Pupils Wednesday.

The Lincoln school building, which has been on fire several times before, caught fire in the roof near the chimney on Wednesday noon, but the blaze was readily extinguished by one of the pupils. ## FILER'S BIG FIELD DAY

Crowds Visit Busy Little Hub City Saturday.

EXHIBITS BETTER AND MORE DI- VERSIFIED THAN EVER

Events of the Day Attract Many En- trants. Rain Spills the Concluding Attractions.

Filer's seventh annual fair and field day drew a large crowd of people Saturday from the neighboring towns and rural districts. The exhibits were all of the highest in point of quality and general excellence and the program for the day included many interesting features. Although one of the smaller towns on the Twin Falls tract, Filer is one of the liveliest, and this year the community is fairly saturated with optimism because of the enormous crops being harvested in the vicinity.

The Twin Falls band opened the program with a concert at 9 o'clock in the morning and there was scheduled to follow: Trap shoot, free place, polo, ball game, races, boxing and boxing contests and dancing in the open air pavilion. The creditable sum of twelve hundred and thirty dollars was put up for premiums, which resulted in keen competition in exhibits, sports and parade floats.

The parade in the afternoon was one of the best put on in recent years anywhere on the tract. Besides the fine horses and cows, many horse-back riders, and automobiles, there were twenty beautiful and artistic floats. Among these were the domestic science float in the shape of a graceful boat with masts and flying pennants; a huge golden horn of plenty; two refrigerators; dry goods store; a complete harness shop, with harness makers at work; a fully equipped blacksmith shop with two blacksmiths at work, one shoeing a real live horse; and a number of excellent school floats showing canning, sewing, building, fields, stables, etc., even to a miniature lumberjack at work. Maroa, Poplar Hill and Elmwood schools had splendid floats.

SPLENDID EXHIBITS.

The showing of fine Percheron and Belgian horses was a big surprise, even to the Filer people and especially to the visitors. The exhibit of Holstein cattle was a close second to that of the horses. The exhibit of registered livestock was excellent.

CAMPAIGN FOR FAIR IS ON

Committee Appointed to Take Stock Subscriptions.

COUNTY FAIR PLANS MEET WITH HEARTY APPROVAL

Site Will be Purchased and Perma- nent Organization Perfected This Fall.

Plans are well under way by the Commercial club to organize a county fair association and put into the field a good strong committee to solicit funds for stock. The Commercial club believes that with the increased prosperity of the tract that the time is ripe to hold up a permanent county fair association, which will be open to every rancher in the county.

If the matter has the backing of the ranchers as it no doubt will have, steps will be taken this fall to purchase forty acres suitable for fair grounds and race track coupled with places for other athletic events. Let's boost it along.

EPISCOPAL MISSION

A Mission in Ascension Episcopal Church.

The vestry and members of Ascension parish are making careful preparation for a mission to be held the 2nd week in October.

The purpose of this mission is to stimulate the spiritual life of Ascension church and also the life of Twin Falls. It is earnestly hoped that this mission will bring a blessing to an entire community. The prayers of all our Christian friends, Protestants and Catholics, are urgently asked for that the spirit of the mission be entirely free from all narrowness and prejudice; and that the spirit be one of Christian strength and love. It is one of the splendor of charity, God's kingdom can be expected successfully.

Ascension church is fortunate to secure the Rev. McCrae to conduct the mission. Mr. McCrae is well known in Idaho, having worked in Boise for the past 10 years. Mr. McCrae is well prepared for the work, though he came to us not as a professional revivalist, but upon solicitation.

It is hoped that this mission will do everybody good, arouse us all to a greater life of better spirituality. Outside the walls of Paris is a grave which bears this strange inscription: "Born a man; died a grover." This epitaph tells the story of many a man's life today. Immersed in luxury, or forced by the struggle for material possession under selfish and cruel conditions, he finds little time for the cultivation of his spiritual life, and thus all the finer qualities of his manhood undergo a slow, perhaps, but certain decay. Does it pay in the long run? Just stop and think it over.

SOIL SUITABLE FOR DRY FARMS

Government Expert Investigates Twin Falls Soil.

HIGH LAND ABOVE TRACTS CAN PRODUCE BIG CROPS

Congressman Smith Will Endeavor to Locate Dry Farm Station in This County.

At the request of Congressman Addison T. Smith, L. C. Aicher, superintendent of the Dry Farm Experimental station at Aberdeen, near American Falls, visited Twin Falls on Thursday, and in company with Mr. Smith traveled over the southern part of the county with a view of determining whether or not the soil and general conditions were favorable to cultivation of the ground by the dry farm methods. They drove as far west as the Salmon river and returned by way of the foothills adjoining the Cassia county forest reserve. Mr. Aicher made tests of the soil at various points and states that so far as he can judge there is no reason why the dry farming can be as successfully carried on in the southern part of Twin Falls county as in the vicinity at Rockland and American Falls, where the farmers are raising 25 to 45 bushels of wheat per acre.

Congressman Smith will endeavor to have a dry farm experimental station established in the southern part of the county in order that the result of experiments conducted by the experts of the Agricultural Department, U. S. Forest Reserve, Mr. Aicher, the commissioner of the general land office that he has been allotted 200 acres of land, showing the land that is open to entry under the Enlarged Homestead or Dry Farming Act and those who desire them will be supplied upon application.

The Home Town

By NELS DARLING

Many argue that it is practically all merchandise being sold by mail from a few great cities. They contend that this is the economical method. Some statisticians, who believe in the three fundamental principles of Karl Marx socialism, take this view of the trend of the times. The three fundamentals referred to are: rent is wrong, interest is wrong, profit is wrong.

Well, inasmuch as the large city department stores and mail order houses are private enterprises, are not owned by the people, are not a part of a great commercial system in a co-operative commonwealth, why not keep our rents and profits at home?

The habitual mail order house patron is to often like the gambler—he is forever talking of his winning, but says nothing of his losses. The one bargain offsets a hundred disappointments. The lost time, the unsatisfactory goods, the article he had to return at his own expense, the repairs on shipments damaged in transit, the patting he has done, the unlooked for heavy freight charges, are all with an effort, forgotten in contemplation of the ONE article that is just as good as a "treasure" better than he really expected.

Who thinks he is benefitted by the pameer bought from the street corner medicine vendor, he is surprised to find that he got something for his money.

The gambling instinct is an inherent one with everybody and this very fact accounts for the fascination that mail order buying has for most folks.

That the farmers are the most liberal patrons of the outside concerns, is a prevalent and mistaken idea. Merchants often do not practice what they preach—the grocery sends away for dry goods, while the hardware dealer sends away for furniture and the wives of both belong to some soap club.

Twin Falls Commercial Club

The Times is delighted that an attempt will be made to buy a fair ground and establish a county fair upon a solid basis. It is a move that should have the hearty endorsement and financial support of every business man and every farmer upon the tract.

AN ALLEGORY

Two Twin Falls doctors chafed one day upon an unfortunate man wandering deliriously about the streets, evidently in bad condition. The man was taken to the office of the elder physician and the case carefully examined.

gave forth an empty, hollow sound. "You are right. That man could not have brain fever. There is nothing there to become congested. But how in the name of time did you make the quick diagnosis?"

"The Hollister Herald has fallen in to the disgusting habit of washing its dirty linen in public. Cut it out. Bro. Sims. This is a nasty habit that should be confined to such men as the former publisher of the Kimberly Call, the Twin Falls Times man and the Hansen bridge promoter."

The Times is sincerely grateful to the mendacious editor of the Chronicle for the compliment paid in the above article. That Doversy considers the editor of the Times out of his (Doversy's) class in journalism is vindicated enough that the Times has advertisement.

The editor of the Chronicle mentions the washing of dirty linen before the public on the part of Provost, of Hansen, Buck of the Kimberly Call, and the editor of this paper. Doversy as usual with his carelessness of the truth was wrong about the ownership of the dirty linen washed. It belonged solely to Doversy and the gang of dirty politicians for whom he stands sponsor.

TALKS ON THRIFT

No. 31.—HOW TO SUCCEED

"We have been a nation of spendthrifts long enough," Roger W. Habson.

George D. Dayton, one of the leading business men of Minneapolis, tells this inspiring story of his success through saving. "I left home shortly after 16 years of age. Before reaching 22 years I had accumulated $5,000 ($2000 of which had been given by father in lieu of a college education).

OUR PUBLIC FORUM

Hon. Elihu Root On Woman's Sphere

The question of Woman Suffrage is an issue before the American people. Twelve states have adopted it. Four more states vote upon it this fall and it is strongly expected that a platform demand of the national political parties. It is therefore the privilege and the duty of every voter to study carefully this subject.

"Woman rules today by the sweet and noble influences of her character. Put woman into the arena of conflict and she abandons these great weapons which control the world, and she takes into her hands, feeble and nerveless for strife, weapons with which she is unable to wield. Woman in strife becomes hard, harsh, unlovable, repulsive; as far removed from that gentle creature to whom we all owe allegiance and to whom we confess submission, as the heaven is removed from the earth."

"The time will never come when the line of demarcation between the functions of the two sexes will be broken down. It is an attempt to turn backward upon the line of social development, and that if the step ever be taken, we go centuries backward on the march towards a higher, nobler and purer civilization, which must be found not in the confusion, but in the higher differentiation of the sexes."

permitted to tempt us from that habit while on a salary.

"When we went to housekeeping on a part of the house was furnished—some rooms were kept closed until we could buy carpets and needed furniture. Many young couples think they must establish themselves in well furnished apartments in order to get into society, but we were welcomed into the same refined, intelligent circles in which our parents had always moved, and this without any pretense of having more than we possessed."

"When about $200 or so had accumulated a mortgage was bought for $400 or $500, the balance being paid as quickly as possible. The interest on each mortgage swelled the income out much and the salary increased some—until in 1883 we moved to Minnesota and invested all in land."

"A young man has no right to marry until he has saved something—no young couple have no right to live up to all their income. Every man owes it to society to save something for his family. Men on salaries can do this if they will, but it requires on the part of both husband and wife will power sufficient to be content and happy while living inside the income whatever it is."

Mr. Dayton's experience was related in connection with an interesting discussion in the Minneapolis Journal brought forth by a letter written to the paper by a man who signed himself "HUBBARD."

This correspondent asked how he could save part of his salary, explaining that his income was a little more than enough for his needs. He had repeatedly tried to save but had never made much headway. His case is typical of many others.

To Baby's Mother:

When we built our studio, we planned carefully that everything should be just right for the babies. Our big, broad window-seat, for instance; Baby goes to it quite naturally and coos and talks about "looking for Papa." A silent stroller opens and closes; in a twinkling of a breath we have had our opportunity. Baby does not realize it but it is by such natural, quiet methods that we secure the poses which so delight you.

We're proud of the portraits we make of babies. No set pose, no "picture look"—but a merry face alive with the every-day animation of play-time.

Bring your baby today; phone in advance, if you can, for it will help both you and us if you have an appointed time. If you can't make an appointment, come anyway; we are always glad to see Baby.

The spacious lawn, merry-go-round and indeed the whole ranch was turned over to the boys, who voted Dr. and Mrs. White honorary scouts for life. FILER'S BIG FIELD DAY

tered for exhibit. There was also on display some high grade poultry. In fact, rarely can such a showing be made even in old established communities much larger than the Filer community. The tendency of the majority of farmers on the Twin Falls tract is toward picking their farms with the best blooded horses, cattle, sheep and swine.

The exhibits of fruits, vegetables, seeds, flowers and school work were displayed to advantage in a large school room. The display of the choice selections from orchard, field and garden was convincing proof of the excellence of the Filer country agriculture. The varied specimens were displayed for size, color and quality generally, but more especially as to quality. And side by side with these were seen those that make for beauty and attractiveness, namely, roses, sweet peas, nastars, cosmos, dahlias and other varieties of cut flowers all of which grew prolific on the tract.

The school exhibits of needlecraft, cookery, canning and agriculture, were most creditable. Exhibits were displayed from the following districts besides Filer: Elmwood, Maros, Pleasant View, Poplar Hill, Washington, Peavey and Burley.

The fruit exhibits were especially attractive with their plates and boxes of peaches, pears, prunes, plums and apples. Also on display were several plates and boxes of the Delicious variety, so popular in the east. Many of them were from the farm of Fred Smith, six miles northwest of Filer; the "Hio Vista" ranch. Mr. Squires is one of the pioneer farmers of the Filer country. He is making a specialty of apple growing and has 80 acres in orchard, 60 of which are in delicious and 20 in King David and Rome Beauty varieties.

Barring the Hogs. The serious vaccination treatment for hog cholera was demonstrated by government experts and drew much attention. The work of the government in this line has been the means of saving the farmers of the tract over one hundred thousand dollars in losses during the past year.

The interesting speaking contests took place as scheduled but the races and open air dancing were stopped by rain which began about the middle of the afternoon and continued steadily the remainder of the day and night. It was otherwise most welcome because so long needed. And as the crowd gathered in the morning, had viewed the exhibits and parade before the rain started it did not spoil the fair, but rather, added to the spirit of optimism that prevailed.

AGRICULTURAL BULLETIN

Plans to Make Study of Northwestern Apple Crop.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—Complying with numerous request from the growers and shippers organizations in the States of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana, the office of markets and rural organization of the United States Department of Agriculture has made plans to establish temporary headquarters in the northwest for the study of the distribution of the 1916 crooked apple crop.

The plan as outlined is based upon assurance that the office of markets and rural organization with the co-operation of all those interested in the apple industry, for without this co-operation the efforts of the office would not produce valuable results. It is probable that the field headquarters for this work will be in Spokane, because of the accessibility of that point to the apple territory in the northwestern states.

The work which the office will do is not that of a telegraphic market news service, but rather, contemplate the collection by mail and the compilation of data and issuance of weekly bulletins concerning the shipments and destination of the northwestern crooked apples. In this connection, field work will be carried on to a certain extent in the apple sections of Colorado, Utah, and California.

THE DIAMOND FROM THE SKY

The sweet and beautiful development of Esther's character and person now that he was relieved of the harassing presence of Vivian, had roused in Blair's breast a longing for Esther that he thought was love.

Was it true, as Abe Bloom, the gambler, had hinted, and Abe Bloom had known the lady of old that Vivian had married possessed several hundred and that her marriage, secret and hasty, to Blair in Richmond previous to their flight with the diamond was null and void?

Blair's mother had taunted him with this and had finally dismissed the thoughts of Vivian and the marriage from her mind. It was Blair's mother also who constantly inspired him with thoughts of Esther. "The very day the letter had come from Vivian to Blair Blair's mother had received a letter from Lawyer Hunter, the legal adviser to the Stanleys, and who as referee in bankruptcy had charge of the sale of Stanley hall when it went to Detective Blake as highest bidder for some unknown claim.

In this letter from Lawyer Hunter, a letter in reply to some queries Mrs. Stanley had made, the lawyer had written:

Dear Mrs. Stanley—In reply to your inquiry the diamond from the sky is legally the property of any one half of the late Colonel Stanley, whether a son or daughter, irrespective of family tradition regarding it and the custom of Stanley, etc. Very truly, RALPH HUNTER, JR., Attorney at Law.

Mrs. Stanley had shown this letter to Blair. "You know my suspicions," she remarked. "I have reasons to believe that this girl, Esther Harding, is the real and only heir to all that Colonel Stanley did possess of. We have no proof of this, but I believe the gypsy woman, Hagar Harding, possessed such proof, and the girl now has it."

"Whatever this proof is, it can be assumed that the girl carries it with her, especially now that she has disappeared. She would not be likely to leave so important a document in any hiding place."

"We cannot move in the matter legally, for suspicious are not evidence," Mrs. Stanley went on. "Any lawsuit might mean the return of Arthur Stanley to tell the truth as far as he knows it regarding the death of Dr. Lee. You would be implicated, and the gambler, Abe Bloom, and the detective, Tom Blake, evidently possess proof of your guilt."

"For while the gypsy woman, Hagar, who has been an imbecile since you struck her, had only photographs of the hermitizing thumb prints. It is evident that Blake and the Blooms have the originals—the thumb print on the had check and the thumb prints you left in the doctor's study on the cashbox and elsewhere. The price of their silence in the diamond when it comes to light."

"If this girl is the rightful heir of Stanley, the diamond is hers, and if Arthur Stanley is an impostor, the earl-dome in England is yours."

"We are bound to silence owing to your rash and reckless acts. We must make the most of the situation. If a stranger has bought Stanley hall the sale is not legal, and if this girl Esther is the real Stanley the estates must be restored to her, and the diamond from the sky rightfully belong to her."

"There is one simple thing to do, Blair: you must marry this girl. Then you will have a clear claim to the title, and you will also possess Stanley hall and the diamond from the sky. No matter where the diamond may be, it must ultimately come to light. You can then choose whether you will surrender it to the Blooms as the price of their silence, as is now arranged, or buy them off from the wealth that comes to you as the Earl of Stanley in England."

CHAPTER XXVI.

Blair Seeks the Document.
TIF, reckless, desperate and unscrupulous ancestor, the Great Arthur Stanley, who had found the diamond from the sky in the fallen meteor 200 years ago, had a worthy descendant in the equally reckless, desperate and unscrupulous Blair Stanley.

It is to be doubted if Blair Stanley gave any thought of the great wrong he might do if he accepted in the furtherance of the cold ambitious schemes of his mother and his own lawless ones. He cared not a whit whether if he should marry Esther such an alliance would be dishonour and shame for his marriage with Vivian should prove subsequently legal and binding.

To get Esther and to get the diamond by such means, not to speak of the Stanley earldom in England, appeared to Blair, the thought of Vivian lighting for her rights as the consort of an earl appealed to Blair's cynical sense of humor.

With a meekness almost pitiful in its sleek hypocrisy he had nursed his mother to the effect that he would do as she desired. He prepared himself, at his mother's suggestion, to return to Richmond and make amends with the disgruntled relative and society leader, Mrs. Burton Randolph, for Mrs. Randolph had developed an unselfish fondness for Esther. Meanwhile Esther had been received with open arms by the gypsy people when she had returned with Quabba when first settling out in search of Arthur with the loyal hunchback. An other search of the forest and the camp had been fruitless. There was no trace or evidence of any wealth that it had always been supposed that Hagar possessed.

Esther announced to the gypsies that, with Hagar's evidence, she eventually recovering, it was necessary that she (Esther) must journey far to seek a friend who could aid her in these days of trial. The generous humanity of the tribe pressed their little horrid of money upon Esther, when they acknowledged their princess. But Esther refused to accept.

The more cunning and practical Quabba, however, accepted all tributes of this kind, unknown to Esther, and secreted them against coming days of need.

Followed far from the camp by the kindly gypsies, and even the little gypsy children who loved Esther with the loyal devotion of their elders, Quabba and Esther set out upon their way. Quabba was further embellished by a royal gift of a large stria photo and cart and pony to haul it.

Starting west and north upon their quest for Arthur, Esther and Quabba with their quaint equipage took their way. They halted at the farm of Farmer South, where Arthur had worked, and proceeded on, intending to skirt through Richmond to ascertain Hagar's condition ere going west.

Journeying to Richmond, Blair Stanley beheld Quabba and Esther and the pony and cart as they were being pulled out by the train. The reckless Blair had no patience to wait till the train reached the next station. He pulled the air-brake cord, alighted, and the train pulled out by the minute by the track, and after Esther and Quabba had tolled past him on foot by their pony organ cart, he stealthily trailed them to the outskirts of Richmond.

From Blair he hastened to Mrs. Randolph's, and made his peace and enlisted her sympathy and cooperation.

Quabba and Esther Set Out Upon Their Way.

In regard to Esther. With Mrs. Randolph he entered the sanctum where Hagar was, and as he had surmised, they found Esther.

The appeals of the good hearted Mrs. Randolph had no effect in dissuading Esther from her wild plan of searching for Arthur, journeying even across the continent on foot with a gypsy hunchback to do so, until she appealed to her through her love for Hagar. "Suppose your mother recovers and needs you?" said Mrs. Randolph earnestly. "Stay with me, and be my little adopted daughter—again till your mother recovers. You can see she is improving. Let your gypsy servant go and seek Arthur Stanley? I am sure I do not know what strange reason actuates you in your desire to find him. If he cared for you he would let you know where he is. If he is not guilty of murdering dear old Dr. Lee why should he run away? Don't you see a nice young girl can't do such a delightful romantic thing? It's all right in books, my dear Esther, but in real life a young girl going across the world to seek a sweetheart without a chaperone would be talked about." To be talked about was Mrs. Randolph's idea of romance and duty.

Esther realized the sense and sincerity of Mrs. Randolph's kindly pleading.

Quabba Was Struck and Hurt.

and agreed to abide by her advice. Quabba took up his lodgings in the part of the town of Richmond he was familiar with, preparing to start shortly in his search for Arthur, and Esther returned to Mrs. Randolph's.

With his rising fortunes in the west, Arthur had his secret agent in Richmond, Blake, the detective, who supplied with funds, though cautioned to silence, a caution hardly necessary with the tactful Blake, the man behind the scene, who seemingly was at the bidding of all and yet was ever the master of his own deep methods.

A bootblack, a well grown youth of twenty, lotted by the Randolph mansion the day of Esther's return with Mrs. Randolph and Blair Stanley, a bootblack lusted to the private office of Detective Tom Blake and breathlessly reported the presence of Esther and of Blair in Richmond. Blake took half a dozen banknotes of large denomination from his wallet and enclosed them in a large plain envelope with a note that read, "Sent by Arthur to be used as necessary."

Twenty minutes later the bootblack fervently climbed the veldstria vine to Esther's window and a moment later dropped unseen down beside the Randolph mansion and hurried away. A little later Esther found on her bureau by the window the large envelope with the banknotes and the mysterious message.

Esther kissed the note because it seemed almost the personal proximity of Arthur. The money, which was $1,000, hardly concerned her at all except that she realized it would smooth the path of Quabba to the west in seeking Arthur. That Arthur knew where she was and after Esther and Quabba's influence working in her behalf was all well enough perhaps in his insouciant manner of thinking.

But in Esther the eternal feminine manifested itself in the desire to be near the one she loved. Nothing else mattered.

Just then Mrs. Randolph's maid, the smiling Fifi, entered with a vase of Esther's favorite roses, chattering her happiness at seeing Esther again. Esther, who had secreted the note and the money at Fifi's knock, asked the maid to place the flowers in the window.

It was the old signal for Quabba, and when that faithful soul stole through the street on the watch, he saw the signal, and Clarence, the monkey, was sent up the veldstria for Esther's message.

Clarence clambered down again with his mouth that had been in the practitioner's placed envelope and with it a scribbled message requesting Quabba to go at once to Los Angeles to locate Arthur, where Esther had just disclosed heard of him. Quabba smiled, clasped his hand and doffed his cap to the strong though secret messenger and hurried away.

But much was to happen ere Quabba left Richmond. Some teasing boys at a street corner annoying Clarence, the monkey, and Quabba, asked the latter to step into the path of a trolley car. Immediately he was struck and hurt, but not badly.

Blair and had followed him at a distance, wondering what might be the bunch's reason for leaving the room where Esther was. Blair, the trail leader upon his own quarry, did not notice that he in turn was trailed by a bootblack, a well known youth of twenty. When Quabba was knocked down by the trooper and dazed by the mullet, Blair was able to give the address of his lodgings and to refuse to go to a hospital. He had Clarence, the monkey, placed in a box and were driven off, to the cheers of the multitude, who regarded them in the light of heroes for the dangers they had passed.

It was Blair's perverse nature that saw in the accident a reckless way to trap Esther and search for the Stanley document his mother believed that Esther always carried with her.

He scribbled a note and, seeking a messenger, his eyes lit upon the bootblack. The note was to Esther and was written as though by a stranger witnessing the accident to Quabba. It gave the address Quabba had given after the accident and it requested Esther to come to see the injured man, reading as though Quabba had asked the stranger to send the word.

The bootblack bore the message promptly to his employer, Blake, the detective. That astute man beheld the scenes calmly assumed the bootblack's guise and delivered the note in person. Mrs. Randolph plaintively objected to Esther's going alone to such a part of town as the address of Quabba's lodgings. But it was beyond day and Esther laughed at her fears.

Meanwhile Blair Stanley had proceeded to the lodging house and, aided by the convincing argument of a ten dollar bill, had no trouble in convincing the landlady that he was a detective expecting to trap a shoplifter.

Blair proceeded to Quabba's room and, finding Quabba dazed with pain, pound and gagged him. It was an adventure just to Blair's liking. He had slipped on a mat, before surprising and overpowering Quabba, and when Esther's light step was heard at the door, directed by the landlady on the landing below, Blair, still masked, opened the door and dragged Esther within.

Blair had expected an easy victim but he found he had caught a tart. Esther fought like a little tigress, and every effort Blair made to search her for the Stanley document was repulsed. Blair's perverse nature rejoiced in his vigorous defense of the slight but wily girl. Quabba struggled to free himself to assist Esther, but just then the door opened and a stalwart bootblack, who was none other than Tom Blake, the detective, joined in the fray. He owed Blair something on an old score, and right merrily he proceeded to pay it off.

Blair fought like a madman. And then Quabba tore himself loose from his bonds and, forgetting the bruises of his accident, joined in the melee. Blair was young and strong. Physically he Blair Fought Like a Madman. He was a man for the detective, even though the latter was aided by the active and supple Quabba.

The three sided fight boiled out the rickety old staircase. Halfway down the stairs, the balustrade on the upper landing having already given way, the detective and Quabba, punching, kicking and shoving, pushed Blair out against the rail.

The entire balustrade, banisters and all, broke out and fell over, and Blair went down a full ten backward and struck with a heavy thud on the landing at the side of the stairs in the corridor below.

Esther, with Quabba and Blake, ran down the stairs through the dust and wreckage, beside the huddled insensible form of the man who had been lying at the side of the stairs in the corridor below. Esther, with Quabba and Blake, ran down the stairs through the dust and wreckage, beside the huddled insensible form of the man who had been lying at the side of the stairs in the corridor below. The detective lifted up the mask and laughed. Then, speaking still as a bootblack, he said: "You recognize the man? Let's take the lady away before the police come."
