ROCKY FORD SUGAR FACTORY

Celebration of Sixteenth Annual Opening of Factory—A Community Affair.

Promptly at seven o'clock Monday morning the big whistle at the local factory of the American Beet Sugar Company announced the fact that the sixteenth annual campaign of the factory was starting. The big mill later the wheels in the big mill began to turn and once more the mammoth industry which means business and prosperity to Rocky Ford and the entire Arkansas valley began its annual task of converting beets into sugar. Every man was at his post, every piece of machinery was oiled and ready for use; every acre and bolt in the immense factory was ready to do its full share of the work.

Indication that the 1915-1916 campaign will be a record breaker for the local factory. Several hundred tons of beets have been delivered to the bins and tests have proven that the per cent sugar content comes well up with the average of previous years. Twenty thousand acres of sugar beets have been contracted by the A. B. S. company in the A. B. S. company in the Arkansas valley and a large majority of them will be ground at the local mill. The factory at Law Arkansas will start next Monday, October 11, and will handle the beets grown in that section of the valley, but the campaign will be several days longer than that of the Rocky Ford plant.

More than five hundred men began work at the local factory today. About three hundred of these number will be employed on the day shift and two hundred will work the night shift. The machinery will not be stopped night or day for nearly four months and several hundred employees will be kept busy every minute of the time.

Average Large This Year.

Twenty thousand acres of sugar beets grown under contract for the American Beet Sugar company are practically ready for the harvest. More than two-thirds of this acreage is grown in the immediate vicinity of Rocky Ford, and will be loaded on the local plant. Thousands of tons will be delivered to the factory during the next few days. The average this year is considerably larger than last year, for the reason it was considered necessary to start the Los Andimes mill. The acreage this year is larger than any year since the factory was built, except in 1911, when about 22,000 acres were grown.

Capacity 1500 Tons.

The capacity of the local mill is about 1,500 tons a day and this amount will be handled each day during the campaign. For the first few days the average may be a little smaller, due to the fact that the beets will be a little green.

REPORT ON IRRIGATION
Commission Aims Troubles of Three Idaho Projects.

Advise Cutting Down of Acreage on Salmon Tract—The Building of Larger Reservoir for Idaho Project.

Three reports were handed to the governor Saturday by the irrigation and drainage code commission, which has spent the past ten days co-ordinating the results of its investigations of the various larger irrigation projects of the state which are not now on a substantial basis.

The first of the reports dealt with the King Hill and King Hill extension projects, the second with the Twin Falls-Salmon River project, and the third with the project of the Idaho Irrigation company.

In its report the commission discusses the needs of the projects, their worthiness of aid and the possibilities of granting such assistance, and concludes by suggesting some of the forms this aid might take.

King Hill Project.

An examination was made of the King Hill project by four members of the commission—Messrs. Waters, Elliott, Anderson and Carter. They walked over the bad part of the flume drove over the greater part of the canal system and over the land included in the project. Interviewed numerous settlers and held a public meeting with the water users. Since that time they have learned more of the project through interviews and by correspondence.

The report shows that the commission was greatly impressed with the King Hill tract and comments on the unusual fertility of the soil and splendid climatic conditions for the growth of fruit grains and vegetables.

Settlers Discouraged.

With the present condition of the project and the prospect for its completion, the settlers on the project the commission finds, are much discouraged. Many of them have left their land and are about ready to move to other parts of the state.

Rebuilding Cost.

In explanation of the cost of rebuilding the project, the commission submits the figures of former State Engineer, which are about $1,000,000. It is estimated that the most troublesome portion of the canal system, which lies along a steep hillside, will be practically worthless within two or three years. The commission is unanimous in the belief that something should be done to rebuild the project for the entire project.

State and Federal Aid.

The first plan suggested for the rehabilitation of the project is through the aid of the state and federal government without compensation, an agreement between the commission and the government which would provide a satisfactory system and apportion the cost among the settlers, as in other government projects, leaving the settlers to pay for the improvements and giving the settlers credit for the payments already made.

Alternative Plan.

This plan is also favored by the commission but it is doubtful if the government would consider it at all. Correspondence between R. P. Shawhan, state manager of the project, and the secretary of the United States discloses the fact that the secretary has proposed an alternative plan, which the commission gives as its second suggestion as a way out of the situation.

POTATO BULLETIN

Estimate Given by Idaho Producers' Association.

United States short over last year, 28,000,000; Idaho long over last year, 79,000; California short over last year, 272,000; Colorado long over last year, 2,155,000; Oregon long over last year, 2,347,000; Washington long over last year, 1,452,000.

The above figures represent information just now received by wire from the government. This somewhat confirms predictions we made more than two months ago, at a time the government was estimating the crop for the country 25,000,000 bushels more than last year.

We advised the growers in a bulletin at that time that we were confident the shortage was 40,000,000. You will observe, however, that they still estimate Idaho 79,000 above last year. Recent reports convince us that the crop will be close to 2,500 cars short of last year's shipment.

AUTO CATCHES AFIRE

Filler Auto Stung Caught Fire Monday Morning on Main Street.

What might have been a serious gasoline explosion was averted Monday morning when the Jitney bus run by the "Old Time" bus company, caught fire. The cause of the fire was the gasoline leaking from the tank. E. A. Ripley, the owner of the Jitney, had started from the Adams rooms on his way to the Lind garage, and knew nothing of his machine being on fire, until it was noticed by some of the employees of the garage. He stopped the motor and the blaze was quickly extinguished with but little damage. The department was called and made a quick run to the scene.

MAYOR SWEETLEY VETOES GAS FRANCHISE FOR COMMISSIONS

The city council met Monday evening with Mayor Sweetley, Councilmen Bracken, Parrott and Smith present. The matter of procedure for the purchase of the waterworks system occupied most of the time of the council. From the opinion of those present the bond issue for the purchase of the old system was put up to the voters in a separate election or issue in order that it may squarely cleared before the action of the city toward a new system. It is urged that the bonds may have ready sale, the advice of a prominent bond attorney will be followed throughout in the election.

A WONDERFUL DRAMA

"Calling of Dan Matthews" a Real Gripping Live Theme.

The public today are critical and are just as careful purchasing their amusements as they are in buying their hats, shoes or coats. Give them what they want and they will come to see it, but what to give them in the question again and again by producing managers.

Messrs. Gaskill & MacVittie seemed to have solved this puzzle by giving the public what they want in the form of popular novels. This season they have met with startling success in "The Calling of Dan Matthews," dramatized from the novel by the same book by Mr. Wright and Elsbury W. Reynolds. Striking as was the popularity of the story, it is small compared to the favor with which the play has been received. "The Calling of Dan Matthews" has made a wonderful drama, a heart stirring, natural, pulsing thrill story which has captured the attention and holds them from act to act, throughout the entire piece. Startlingly vivid and never hesitating to call a spade a spade, and yet pure and clean and wholesome, it follows the struggles of Dan Matthews to do right as he sees fit. It rippled along with the audience, it engaged the eyes of the old doctor when the play is played and the last curtain falls on "The Calling of Dan Matthews" it can be plainly understood just why it is so popular and just why the public want to see it.

DUCKS SCARCE

Wood River and Silver Creek Draw Many Hunters.

"The duck grounds along the Big Wood River and Silver Creek below Bellevue are alive with hunters," said a rancher from that neighborhood today. "Really, there seems to be more hunters than ducks. The crop of ducks this year is the best since the war, but still a good hunter may obtain the limit in a few hours. Sid Johnson and Mr. Baker of the Hotel Bellevue are among the hunters who are going out yesterday morning to take advantage of the opening of the season. Mr. Johnson got nearly the limit in a short time, but something seemed to be wrong with Mr. Baker's ammunition or his gun. Maybe he isn't initiated into the western ways of getting ducks. Anyway, he didn't get very many."—Halley Times.

The bringing into this city of two complete teams of big league ball players will make a welcome event for the fans of this city. It should be the means of bringing here ten thousand people of properly advertised. To the men promoting the venture in this city, should be given the hearty co-operation of every business man.

The national defense plan of the Wilson administration is bound to meet with the hearty approval of the loyal Americans because it is the best safeguard toward peace that the nation can have. The expenditure of four to six hundred million dollars does not sound big for this government, but when that money must come by taxation in excess of the present tax for revenues it will be all of the people. But it is necessary. The terrific loss of property and national art treasures in Belgium would be repeated in this country ten-fold by the landing of invading forces in one of our big seaports. Better a heavy tax for four or five years than to spend fifty years building up our shattered resources after an invasion.

The vetoing by Mayor Sweezy of the gas franchise allowed James McMillan at the last council meeting while appearing, rather hard on the promoters is based on good business judgment. Mr. McMillan is an old pioneer of this section, and there is no one whom the Times would be more glad to see get the franchise when properly given to protect the city's interests. Mayor Sweezy points out in his veto message the fact that several important details have been omitted. Mayor Sweezy is in favor of giving the franchise but wants the details cared for properly. He intimates that the franchise is a blanket one, and does not offer any compensation to the city for the use of its streets and franchise privileges. The Times believes that the promoters of the company will readily see Mr. Sweezy's point, when they cast their minds back over the troubles which this city has had because of too much haste in the giving of the waterworks and electric power franchises. The Times sincerely hopes that the company and the city can mutually co-operate to bring prosperity to both.

WHY THE COUNTRY MERCHANT LOSES TRADE

We are having the experience here that perhaps a number of newspaper publishers are having—i. e., the local business men criticize us for accepting out of town advertising, but they will purchase very little of our space themselves. This runs the point of a letter from a New York state publisher to our advertising department, and it offers a wide field for comment. The writer also sends in an editorial in his paper on the same subject. Of course the fact that the local business men grumble will not deter the publisher from accepting out of town advertising, seeing that these local merchants will not support their newspaper themselves. Boosting local trade is part of the publisher's business, but he cannot undertake to boost all by himself. He must have the co-operation of the business men for whom, in fact, he is doing the boosting. Furthermore he cannot justify refusing any lawful advertising. His columns must be open to all legitimate advertisers at the same rate for similar service.

On the other hand, the situation as presented by this publisher shows that newspaper owners have a duty to perform in their business communities, a duty which may not be light, but which nevertheless when performed will redound to their own financial benefit. That duty is to educate the business men to advertise. It can and must be done and is being done by hundreds of progressive publishers. At the outset let it be said that the publisher who attempts to educate the business men of his town has all the argument on his side. He need hardly use words. He can lay before those whom he is teaching any newspaper from a live business town, and that newspaper will tell the story, for it will be full of advertisements of local and foreign business men. Let us quote for a moment from the above mentioned editorial:

"The country merchant deploras the fact that the mail order houses are making inroads upon his patronage. How did they do it? Did they send representatives into the rural communities to solicit trade? Did they simply open their places of business and wait for customers? They did not. They obtained—not a part, but all—of their patronage by the use of printer's ink. They advertised. The average merchant does not seem to realize even with this gigantic object lesson before him, that the means employed by these concerns were also at his disposal. Through the medium of the printed word they tell the public what they have to sell. The majority of the village merchants do not."

The above is another step in the lesson which must be taught local non-advertisers. The fact that mail order houses and other foreign advertisers have gained all their business through advertising must be told them again and again in editorials and verbally when their advertising is solicited. It must be demonstrated to them that there is not a prosperous business concern in the whole country which today does not advertise. They simply must be made to see the light, or they must be out of business, for the business man who advertises will sooner or later get all the trade away from the one who merely keeps a store and waits for buyers to come in without advertising.

We quote again from the editorial: "The non-advertising merchant frequently advances the argument against advertising that every one knows where his store is and what he has to sell. He is wrong. Every one does not know what he has to sell. If he doubts this let him compare his present stock with that of five years, three years or even one year ago and note the many new things he has on his floor and shelves, new things that are the product of inventive genius or of changing fashions. He keeps abreast of the market changes, but all his customers do not; hence they do not know what he has to sell."

To which may be added the further argument that in the larger cities of the United States everybody knows where the big department stores are, and still they spend hundreds of thousands of dollars every year in advertising. Every person in New York or Philadelphia knows where Wanamaker's is and what that department store has to sell, and still John Wanamaker uses some every day in every one of the New York papers. The same is true of Macy's, Gimbels, Marshall Field's, in Chicago, and in fact, of every department store in the country that is making money.—American Press.

TALKS ON THRIFT

No. 31.—BEWARE THE PROMOTERS

"We are going to have great prosperity in the United States, the greatest ever known. I predict that, when prosperity comes, all the promoters and swindlers who have been less in evidence for the past several years will again be in the field, more active than ever. If past experience is a guide, they will take millions out of the savings of people who are now working hard to get the money."—Jon. Chupana, Minneapolis Banker.

One of the country's leading bankers issued this timely warning against the danger of trying to get rich too fast.

"This country is filled with fake schemes that get the people's money. The money invested in them by hard-working people and inevitably lost every year would run into millions."

"Recently I saw this matter summed up impressively in the life stories of three men all living in the same town, each about 45 years of age, each beginning with nothing. One was fortunate enough to make a big killing in a mining stock when he was a young man. Ever since then he has been putting his money into similar ventures, hoping to hit it again. All he has is the house he lives in which is heavily mortgaged. The second is a bachelor. Free from family responsibilities, he has lived without the necessity for provision against the future constantly driving him in the face. He is now starting his fourth automobile, but aside from his salary, his automobile, membership in some clubs and some reputation as a well dressed man he has nothing in the world.

The third man married, had a family and was up against it hard. Provision against the future was a live consideration with him. He had to think about wife and children and what would happen to them when he would no longer work. He saved all he could, presently put it into 6 per cent investment, never bought anything that he was not sure would bring him his money back, and at 45 has a good home, all paid for and well furnished. Besides he has money safely invested sufficient to insure him for loss of earning power, bringing in an income that, if not large enough to retire upon, is nevertheless an item of importance and one that is getting bigger every year."

Geary county, Kansas, farmer, recently motored into town with $7,000 in a grain sack. It took bank officials more than an hour to count the money, which was largely in one-dollar bills.

The farmer brought in the currency as a result of a savings account advertising campaign conducted by a local bank. The farmer had done business with banks in years. Of course, this man all that time had run the risk of losing his money by fire or theft, but that was not his only danger.

If you have some money lying idle, it often becomes known, and you are not doing with it what it is capable of doing. Invest it in speculative stocks or securities which it is claimed will yield anywhere from 8 to 50 per cent or more per annum.

As a prospective investor with a limited sum available, you are apt to feel that there is no safe investment for you and therefore fail to increase your income, and at the same time to have your capital available in the time of necessity. You will find that everywhere the road is made easy for you to invest your money, with accommodating guides and many sign posts, but the way to get it back is often a devious one, with no one in sight to help you.

Put your money in the bank or in a conservative investment recommended by your banker and you will beat 99 out of every 100 "investment" schemes that are offered you. Men who have anything that is really earning big dividends are not selling it at bargain prices. They are not offering it to you at all. What they are offering to you is something that they do not want themselves, something they want to unload. Nine-tenths of the people who go into such schemes buy things that are being "unloaded" by someone, and by the modern processes of promotion the unloading is often done at enormous profit to the promoter.

The ordinary small investor has neither time nor expert knowledge to properly investigate securities offered to him. If he must trust someone, a good banker will tell you the truth about investments, because he has a reputation to sustain in the community. And he is in a better position to know investments than you are for that is his lifelong business.

Getting rich easy is the dream that puts many in the sucker class.

Holding a grudge has prevented many a man from grasping the hand of fate.

Among those who attended the Sunday school rally in Berger Sunday from the Haggard neighborhood, we noticed Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. Tull, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Smith and several others from that neighborhood.

F. W. Berger was a passenger for Twin Falls Friday returning Saturday. A. S. Benson, of Buhl, was a pleasant visitor in Berger the first of the week.

Lyndell Logue came over on his motorcycle from Murfreesboro Monday.

E. J. Mohr is back from the Clover district, where he has been putting in several evenings for the settlers in that community. The Dutch know when they have a good man and Mohr is that man.

G. L. Smith was transacting business in the county seat one day last week.

The Land and Water company has had a force of men improving their ditches in the way of putting in drops and concreting same southwest of Berger. The crew broke camp and moved a few miles westward Wednesday to do some work on ditches there.

Geo. McGregor, one of our live wires and local grain buyers, shipped several cars of wheat from this station last week.

Mrs. T. Sanderson, of Twin Falls, was visiting friends and relatives in Berger last week.

We have heard of no one registering any flock on account of prices on our principal products, namely wheat, Robert L. Forbes, of Berger Heights ranch was a sightseer and visitor in the Magic City and metropolis of southern Idaho, Wednesday and Thursday.

Some of our ranchers and others are having electric lights installed in their homes. Among those who have recently improved their homes with electric lights is Prof. J. P. Lawwill.

Mrs. C. I. Curry went to Twin Falls Wednesday for a few days visit with friends.

T. A. Sanderson, Jr., one of Berger's live grain buyers, is a busy man these days filling his new elevator with grain that was shipped up in sacks outside the elevator which had been hauled in by the ranchers before the completion of the new elevator of which several carloads had been unloaded in this manner. Mr. Thomas A. Sanderson has been assigned as the local manager and representative of the Twin Falls Elevator and Elevator company at this place. He is well and favorably known on the Salmon tract, is an honest and upright young man, and the ranchers and the company will find it a pleasure to deal with him. As the new elevator is about completed we will give you the time of its next issue of the Times.

Tom S. Hays, who owns an eighty-acre ranch south of Berger which he had in crop this year, returned to his home in Lovellville, Colorado, after spending the summer on his ranch and with Ralph E. Foots. He is optimistic as to the future of the Salmon river tract, believing that the settlers' present troubles will eventually be corrected and adjusted. He will return next spring to Twin Falls to visit his family and to look after business matters Monday.

Mrs. J. F. Logue, principal of Berger schools, was a Twin Falls visitor Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Haggard drove to Kimberly Sunday to spend the day with relatives.

Tom Callen was over from near Jerome to visit his brother, L. C. Callen, last week.

Lovey Hunter is relating over the arrival of a little lady who came to A. J. Trotter, who has been farming near Berger. He sold his personal property and moved for Washington to look up a location. We certainly dislike to see our good, honest citizens leave.

Deputy Sheriff Thompson and Attorney Hazel, of Twin Falls, were Berger visitors Tuesday.

L. Roberts and his family have moved to Arvinia City after a year's residence on the Salmon.

After a year's farming on the Salmon river tract, L. Short moved with his family onto the Twin Falls tract. Manager Breckenridge, of the Twin Falls Milling and Elevator company, was looking after business in Berger the first of the week.

Supt. Hanks, who had charge of the construction of the new elevator was in Amsterdam a few days last week supervising the construction of the new elevator at that place.

Mrs. A. A. Joiner and little son have moved to Amsterdam where her husband is employed in the construction of a new elevator. They will be gone a month or more. During the absence of Mr. Joiner, L. N. Butcher has charge of the Berger mill.

Judge Berger has returned from a trip to Nevada, where he, in company with one Young, a land representative, went to inspect some land. Mr. Berger was so pleased with the land and prospects of the country that he purchased a tract of land. This land had just been opened to settlement and lies along the Southern Pacific railway. Water can be secured at a depth of six to ten feet, besides numerous springs of hot and cold water are found in several places. Surely some attraction.

C. Leth and land representative Young were over from Twin Falls Tuesday.

John Beeghley and family who resided in our midst for the past year, coming from the Lost River country, pulled up stakes and moved to the Buhl country Wednesday, where Mr. Beeghley had traded for a farm for North Dakota land. It is a matter of regret to have such good, honest, respectable and worthy people and neighbors leave the community, as they are a credit to any community. What is our loss in their going?

L. C. Callen, who was one of the extensive farmers in the northwest corner of this tract, having lived here for the past few years, but with his family moved onto a farm near Arvinia City, which he has leased for the coming year.

Mr. J. H. Bentley and son, LeRoy, who went up to the Last River country some weeks ago to attend the wedding of a son of Mrs. Beeghley, returned last week Thursday.

The Sunday school rally in Berger Sunday was a complete success. The Sabbath school and services in the morning had the usual large attendance. Those who were present remained for the Sunday school rally, the program beginning at 2:30 p. m.

At 1 o'clock p. m. the crowd began to increase in numbers, people coming from Twin Falls and Haggard. Immediately after the close of the morning services, the ladies and members of the Berger Sabbath school became very active, getting busy in making preparations for dinner which would be given in the auditorium. Some eighty or more people were seated at the tables, who enjoyed the good things that were spread before them.

The dinner was exceedingly and the ladies of the congregation are not outdone by any community, was the verdict of one of the speakers from Twin Falls. After dinner all proceeded to the hall where the program was to be rendered. The opening exercises were begun by Rev. McMillan, of Twin Falls, who gave a very interesting talk on the school work, followed by other speakers, who spoke in the same strain.

Mrs. J. M. Pierce, teacher of the Sabbath school, gave a very interesting and instructive address on Sunday school work, how to secure the interest of children being her principal topic. Several sections were rendered by the Sabbath school. Notwithstanding it was a very disagreeable day, cold and windy, some hundred people or more braved the fierce elements.

AN EDUCATIONAL DIRECTOR

Gifts Enable Movement to Establish New Department for Boy Scouts.

New York, Oct. 12.—Through the generosity of Francis P. Dodge and Sherman Fairbank, the department of education is to be established in the Boy Scouts of America—a department which, under trained leadership, will develop the physical, mental and educational features of the Scout program which has been so highly praised by the United States Commissioner of Education, Dr. Elliot D. Harvard, and other prominent authorities.

The news about the initial gift for this purpose by Dr. Dodge became known after the quarterly meeting of the Executive Board of the Boy Scouts of America in New York this week.

Last year Mr. Dodge, of his own volition, sought information from the National Headquarters of the Boy Scout movement as to what he might do to make the pleasures and benefits of Scouting available to more boys. He went to the several suggestions presented to employ a trained worker to perfect the organization of troops and councils in Greater New York.

Mr. Dodge's work well in hand, Mr. Dodge requested recommendation as to what three or more needs of the Boy Scout movement were most urgent in order that he might consider helping to finance them. A memorandum was presented, setting forth the need of development along five different lines.

Mr. Dodge selected the department of education and made himself responsible for a contribution of $2,500 a year, to be effective as soon as an additional $2000 a year was secured.

Mr. Sigmond Elster, who over a year ago agreed to give $1000 for such a department when it was started, generously consented to contribute $2000 to make Mr. Dodge's offer available.

The executive board is endeavoring to find a man with the proper equipment to take charge of this department. Several are under consideration.

What the Department Will Do. The plan for the education department's work is stated in outline as follows:

1. Keep constantly before Scoutmasters and others actively engaged in Scouting helpful information and definite programs of practical assistance.

2. Prepare and secure publication of articles explaining the Scout movement, with a view of encouraging formation of troops and of securing volunteer service and financial support.

3. Arrange for exhibits and personal appeals before various student bodies, educational and religious conventions and conferences, for men to be sent to the National Camping Director.

4. Arrange for a course of reading or training courses for men who, in this way volunteer to take up Scout work some future day.

5. Develop plans, programs and suggestions for boys' camps, with the hope that if finances permit, a man should be appointed to give, at his time a National Camping Director.

It was learned that a director of camping is one of the most pressing needs of the Scout movement, and demands which are made on the movement for expert counsel on camping matters, and the dependence which is placed upon the advice given by that organization, makes it almost imperative that means be found to assemble the available information on camping and set up for the instruction of scout camps which are held every year, programs which will insure not only the safety of the boys, but also positive and profitable benefits from their camp experiences.

PAISE FOR SOAP AND WATER
Best Means Known for Efficient Disinfection.

Soap, water, sunlight and fresh air are far more favorable in preventing the spread of infectious diseases than is disinfection by fumigation. This was the opinion expressed recently at the meeting of the American Public Health Association at Rochester, N. Y., by most of the health experts who took part in the discussion of the control of infectious diseases. It was declared that thorough washing with soap and water, fresh air and sunlight, and particularly renovation—repairing and repainting—wherever needed, were most efficient methods of disinfection than fumigation.

As a matter of fact disinfection by fumigation has been discontinued by the department of health in New York City. Investigations were made as to the results of the discontinuance of fumigation, and it was found that absolutely no increase in the number of secondary infections followed; in fact, in the boroughs where fumigation was retained as the only means of disinfecting more numerous cases were found to be infections. It is evident that soap and water, sunlight and fresh air, are infallibly safe as real disinfectants whether used for the disinfection of persons or the real value of either process the results depend upon the daily care and cleanliness exercised during the entire period of infection. Soap and water, as valuable as they are as disinfectants, will not be sufficient in one splash or application to remove all traces of further infection where there is carelessness with an infectious case. On the other hand, a "little" increase in the use of soap and water and sunlight will take the place of diligent, personal care in keeping down infection.

Daily care and cleanliness are the best all round preventives of infectious diseases known. Fumigation may help one appointed of the construction company, one from the settlers and the third to be the state engineer. In letting the size of the project at 26,000 acres, the commission has taken into account the fact that the state engineer, which fix as nearly as possible the amount of water available to the project for irrigation purposes. The fact is believed that, in constructing the project, a company which expended the money necessary to construct such an efficient system should have had to base its plans on mere guesses at available water supply.

Actual Water Supply.
Mr. Robinson's report which is included in the report of the commission, shows the total flow from Salmon river, Cottonwood and China creeks, to be 120,200 acre feet, and the weekly loss, 24.7 per cent of the total inflow. In this manner he arrives at the conclusion that the quantity of water available at the headgate is 82,150 acre feet. Losses in the canals and in the check basin bring this total down to 61,320 acre feet which he assumes is available for delivery to farmers.

Dividing the quantity available for delivery by 2.75 acre feet per acre, the contract duty, as determined by the federal court, in a recent decision, and adding 10 per cent to allow for yards and roads, the engineer fixes 24,630 acres as the amount for which there is water available in the system.

Diminished Yields.
The commission includes the investigations of J. A. Waters, a member regarding the condition of crops on project at the close of the 1915 season, when but nine inches of water was available. Some of the yields he noted were one-half bushel of clover seed to the acre, as against from six to 16 on other similar tracts where water was secured; 10 to 12 bushels of wheat as against 50 to 75 in other sections.

A Dismal Outlook.
Pastures were burned early and Mr. Waters found settlers on the tract with no hay, no winter crops and no crops to sell to pay obligations—without money, crops, credit or property to secure the latter, a condition which he believes, unless the acreage is cut down, will recur again. With the result that the system will be a failure, the bondholders face a practically total loss, the settlers ruined and the state lose a valuable asset to its wealth in citizenship and taxable wealth.

NEW YORK LETTER

New York, Oct. 9, 1915.

This spendthrift city, demanding and obtaining elaborate and costly public improvements, rejoices in bond issues, but not in taxes. On the same day the Public Service Commission announces with pride that it had spent $103,000,000 on new subways which will not be opened for several years, the Tax Department disclosed a list of taxables showing that they have raised the personal property of $23,270,000 of the city at $3,704,305,965. This is an increase of $2,844,665,825, or 230 per cent.

Streetways: there was a dreadful howl, not over expenditures covered by bond issues, but over the effort on the part of the city administration to raise personal property taxes to share, according to the law, of the expenses of government and of the huge interest charges fastened upon the city.

And the persons assessed began forthwith to "swear off" their taxes, with such success that the first 65 who protested had assessments totaling $2,600,700 reduced to a meagrely $9,700. By the way the tax on personal property is the only debt that a man can "swear off". Real estate is not so favored. It has to be paid, pay, pay.

Now if the city were to collect on the personal property assessed it would take a quarter off the taxes on real estate, but this first serious attempt to tax personal property is going to be howled down and real estate will continue to pay, pay, pay.

Negotiations have been going on for a year between the United States and Great Britain over the right of this country to trade with neutral nations, over the seizure by England of more than 2,000 American cargoes and over the general principles of warfare with respect to the right of neutrals. And the result of all this expenditure of diplomatic phrases has been absolutely nothing. The United States has sent notes without avail. England has not complied with a single demand; in many cases England has not even taken notice of the representations of America.

During the negotiations over the loan of half a billion dollars to Great Britain it would have been easy for the American Government to have brought such pressure upon England as to have compelled the latter to "sit out of the Seas" to recognize America's commercial rights, but this was not done.

And now that the great loan has been made there is an increasing dissatisfaction on the part of the ordinary public and the trade interests at this failure to seize the psychological moment to force England to yield.

You, ordinary mortal, might have reason to go up in the air over the high cost of living if you had to live in the new apartment house that is going up just east of Central park, where flats will be let for the modest sum of $30,000 a year, which is the income at a rate of 3 1/2 per cent. But this is cheap compared with the price the family of the late Senator Aldrich will pay for a furnished house in New York. The rental is $120,000 a year, or $330 a day.

That there are kindly hearts under the blue uniforms of the police has been shown by the philanthropic work that the force did last winter, during the seasons of unemployment, under the leadership of the Commissioner of Woods. They provided for the necessities of 791 families, clothed 6299 individuals and found employment for 2311 men and women.

The "Alimony Club" is likely to lose its quarters. The club house is in the old Ludlow Street jail in which men who try to dodge alimony payments are locked up. Sheriff Griffith figures out that it costs the city 37 cents a day for each prisoner, and he suggests that the city prison is good enough for these men who fail to meet their liability for their wives.

The real neutrals are now asking a pointed question of those who have been so eager to denounce Germany for violating the neutrality of Belgium. Why, they inquire, if it was all wrong for Germany to make a path through Belgium, is it not equally wrong for the Allies to make a highway of Greece in the face of the protests of the Greek government. The only difference, it would seem, is that Belgium refused, while Greece is merely protesting and is divided against itself on this issue.

At last a saint of real eminence, Carroll Beckwith, has voted the protest that has been in many minds. He attacks the perverse ways of modern art as the worst of ancient art, characterizing the perpetrators of the monstrosities that pass for "art" as "insane schools of mental maniacs."

A factory operative who refused to take part in a fire drill, has been taught that the city is in earnest in its work of fire prevention. He has been fined twenty dollars.

Positively the most peculiar form of criminal aberration is that revealed here of a woman of refinement who has lived in luxury by robbing worshippers in the churches.

This city has been treated to a curious campaign in the pro-Ally press, which, through the medium of alleged Washington dispatches, has been trying to stir up trouble by representing the Administration as deeply dissatisfied with the German pledge to safeguard American lives in submarine warfare. But the bottom has suddenly been knocked out of this campaign by the emphatic assurances of the German ambassador in his last memorandum.

Wall Street is in a delirium of speculation and the prisons the insane asylums and the morgues will soon be doing a rushing business. The forecast is that the market will be lost in a day, and the "lamb" the investors who know nothing of the great gambling game, are flocking to Wall Street with their savings with insane confidence that they can "huck the game."

In a rural village just over the Hudson a woman has shown that "it pays to advertise." She and her daughter were the victims of the idle gossip of the women of the town, so she bought space in the local newspapers and printed a straightforward warning to the "women who stand over their gates all day and peep over at their neighbors all night long" that they can find out all about the next day. "Gossip has been stilled in that town."

The new steel merger is the absorbing talk of the town, with Schwab, Frick, Cory and Dintkey, linking up all the plants that have secured absorption in the United States Steel Corporation.

There is an increasing demand here, over a newspaper campaign for from neutral, for a revival of the sturdy Americanism that used to make all nations respect the rights of this country, and the "World's Weekly" says: "There will be less foreign propaganda in this country when we have more Americanism and, by the same token, we shall have fewer complications abroad." All of which sounds something like some of the paragraphs that have appeared in these columns during the last three or four months.

Over in Suffolk County, on Long Island, a young woman has been appointed deputy sheriff. She is only five feet high and weighs only 90 pounds, but she is brave enough to be society editor of a local newspaper and real handy with a pistol.

The proposed new constitution is coming in for some hard knocks. The American Federation of Labor has denounced the document, which means that forty thousand votes will be cast against it as sure as a chicken lays an egg. So the effort is to get out and root for his master-piece. Not one man in a hundred knows what the proposed constitution proposes, and the principal trouble is that if he reads the elaborate document he will know less about it than if he trusts to the newspaper explanations. It is a mass of legalese, and years fall to the brim with subtleties and intricate provisions and it rattled, it will make fine food for litigation.

The city has been deeply stirred this week by the report of a committee of eminent Americans on the outrages in Armenia, where the Turkish army is being accused of murdering the native Christians, as has been their habit these many years. The safety of these people was guaranteed by the terms of the Treaty of Berlin in 1878, but four of the guarantor nations are at war with the Turks, while two are allied with the Sultan, and it seems as if there is a small chance to make the Turks behave in Armenia. In order to fill vacancies in the ranks of the forest rangers civil service examinations will be held in the western states the 25th inst. Those passing the examination will go on the eligible list and will be appointed in the order of their rating. As far as possible vacancies will be filled by the appointment of residents of the state in which service is required. Idaho men will have the first call on reserve positions in the forest reserves of Idaho, and so on. The initial salary will be $1100 or relief from duty and complete elimination. Captain H. E. Bolton, Company H, returned from two weeks' duty from his old home at Missouri Valley, Iowa, on September 25th.

The following is copied from the Pend d'Oreille Review, September 27, 1915. This is an example of the spirit which has long made company A a model for the other companies of the state to pattern after.

The captain called the attention of the men to the fact that the schedule for the local firing range west of town called for a shoot every Sunday morning the way they had been in the army at nine o'clock sharp.

The following card has been received and is a fine branch of the service in alive to the needs of the nation. Clark Carroll Conant, Weight 74 pounds, 12, 1915.

From reports received, it appears that practically all the companies are being organized in a very prompt manner with apparent determination to win the prize.

It is with considerable satisfaction that the "Bulletin" learns that Company D, among other innovations, has begun the issue of a Company Bulletin patterned after the state Bulletin.

The headquarters office has placed a big handicap on Company D for this season's target work, putting us in class by ourselves at head of the list.

We are also organizing a military club, to be composed of Co. D men only. Rooms will be rented and furnished in the most comfortable and desirable manner.

Word has just been received from Corporal McGraw that he has taken the examination for commissioned officers' America and received the highest grade of any competitor.

Success to the company D bulletin, and may it mark a new departure in the National Guard of Idaho.

One of the principal teachings of military training is the habit of promptness. With it goes the rendering of reports not only when called for but whenever the same may be necessary.

At last the colonel has been heard from. Many of his friends were worried as he had not been seen or heard from since he left Boise at the end of camp and it was feared that he was lost in the woods and ready for any field emergency.

At last the colonel has been heard from. Many of his friends were worried as he had not been seen or heard from since he left Boise at the end of camp and it was feared that he was lost in the woods and ready for any field emergency.

The editor would call attention to the club that has been started in Company D, Twin Falls. Only members of the company are eligible to membership.

General V. Falch, so rumor had it, was in town recently. It was during the absence of the editorial, reprobational and all other staffs.

It is reported, on reliable authority, that Captain Avey and Lieut. Crouch of the medical corps, lately engaged in the shooting match on the rifle range.

With a greater demand than number of offers, a number of steady buyers became generous and the market went up 15 cents.

A limited supply of abcep came forward with ready takers. Prime lambs are holding steady at $7.00 for the best grades.

Important to keep roads good as it is to make bad roads good. The Pocatello Tribune is right in the matter of good roads when it says that it is just as important, if not more so, to keep good roads good as it is to make bad roads good.

The Pocatello paper maintains that the best way to maintain good roads as it is to construct them, and a large part of the road appropriations should be devoted to that end of the work.

If this method was taken up in Idaho, it would mean a great saving to the state would doubtless follow. Why not start the ball rolling and be "first aid" to good roads? Now is the time to get busy.
