Talks With the Business Man

By NELS DARLING. I have heard many retailers say that they cannot write an advertisement. Many ask the editor of the paper to write their advertisements for them, believing, I suppose, that it requires some ability as a journalist to talk merchandise. Would you put in charge of your business a man who knows nothing about it? Of course not. Many advertising experts write advertisements for lines of merchandise of which they know little or nothing, but they prepare this copy from a vast amount of information that has been furnished them. Do not ask the editor of your paper to write an advertisement for you without giving him plenty of information about the things that you wish to bring especially to the attention of the buying public. You would not ask him to come into the store to clerk for you; and the best advice I can give you is not to ask the editor to write your advertisements, but learn how to write them yourself. In my next article I am going to tell you how to write a business-getting advertisement. I know how and can tell you how. Right here I want to say a word to the man who thinks it is not necessary for him to advertise because he has been in business so long that everybody knows him. Sometimes antiquity is a valuable asset and sometimes it is anything but a help to a man in his business. If you have been in business many years, great changes have taken place since you began to merchandise goods. Styles have changed, improvements have been made, inventions for doing hundreds of things have been perfected. Better talk to the folks of these things or they may come to think that your stock is as much of a land-mark as you are. Have you heard of any second-order houses giving up advertising because they have been in business so long that everyone knows them? (Copyrighted.)

Twin Falls Commercial Club

The Times wishes to again this year call attention to the home talent production next Wednesday by the Twin Falls band and urge the people of this city to buy tickets and attend. The money secured is used to further enhance the value of the organization to the public by the purchase of good music and equipment for the maintenance of the band. It is never used for the personal profit or benefit of the members. The people who have listened week after week to the splendid concerts given by the band should show their appreciation by buying tickets to the comic opera. Besides getting value for the money in a good home talent show, each purchaser can know that the money is going to be returned later in better music in the band concerts. You cannot lose by showing the band boys your good will.

UNJUST DISCRIMINATION The Eastern States which rejected equal suffrage for women in the recent elections are for the most part controlled by the large cities with the greater portion of the state's population. Especially is this true of New York and Massachusetts. On that election day in the down town wards, controlled by the corrupt rings, enough votes against women's suffrage were recorded to defeat the measure. In other words ignorant and uneducated voters, who have time again sold their votes to the highest bidder, have the opportunity to deny the right to vote to women who are their intellectual and moral superiors.

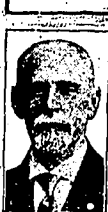

The political bosses are afraid of the results of women voters in any election for the reason that they know most women will not barter their rights. The Times is not a rabid exponent of women's suffrage, but believes that just as long as no restrictions are placed upon the voting rights of ignorant and degraded men, that the women voters are needed to keep the moral equilibrium in all states. A great many of the women of the states having suffrage do not care about voting, but do so from a sense of duty. They can always be found on the right side of most questions.

THE WATCHFUL ATTITUDE OF ROMANIA

It can be said without exaggeration that the point of gravitation in the Balkan crisis as seen by the Allies has been transferred from Athens to Bucharest. Since the Greek government firmly decided not to join the Allies and to attack Bulgaria, England, France, Russia and Italy are turning their eyes on Roumania. It is said that negotiations are going on between the Entente powers and the Roumanian government with a view of winning Roumania over to the side of the Allies. For months and months Roumania has been again and again that Roumania will enter the war during the next weeks, but all these affirmations have proven to be wrong.

The fact that Russia has taken the offensive in the South would rather prove the unwillingness of Roumania to join the Allies, because this offensive is quite uncomprehensible from a purely strategic point of view. The Russians know today with absolute certainty that they will never conquer Galicia again and that they are unable to do it. And if, instead of holding their own in the corner of Eastern-Bukovina and on the Bessarabian-Bukovinian frontier, they are making the greatest efforts to push forward sacrificing thousands of men and investing huge quantities of ammunition, these efforts must have their

OUR PUBLIC FORUM

Peter Radford On Church and State

The recent action of one of the leading churches of this nation in annual convention, demanding that the laymen vote only for candidates for office whose views coincide with those of the clergy on one of the leading political issues, and directing the members of other church organizations to interfere with the freedom of the ballot, make one of the greatest perils of this age, and present a problem that should receive thoughtful consideration of both laymen and citizens.

Suckling babes may well squirm in their cradles when ministers in convention assembled release the hearts of men and grab them by the throat, for Christianity has broken down, religion has become a farce and the pupil a failure. When the church substitutes force for persuasion, command for conviction and coercion for reason, the sheriff had as well pass the sacrament, plain-clothes men take charge of the altar and why a church?

It is as dastardly a crime against government for a minister to undertake to deliver the votes of his parishioners to a candidate, as it is for a ward heeler to deliver a block of votes to a political boss, and both ought to be prosecuted for the law should be no respecter of persons.

It is as objectionable for a convention of ministers to seek by canonical law to control the votes of church members as it would be for a convention of manufacturers to issue orders for their employees to vote for a certain candidate. Such conduct is offensive to decent business morals and a crime against society. Any convention, whether composed of saints or sinners, rich or poor, white or black, that seeks to prostitute power and coerce conscience ought to be broken up by the police and its leaders arrested for treason.

A crime by any other name is a crime just the same. An ecclesiastical robe cannot sanctify treason, authority to preach does not carry with it license to become a political ringmaster, or the right to teach us how to pray for a certain candidate. No man, by joining the church should sacrifice his citizenship, forfeit his constitutional liberties or subordinate his duty to the state. The earth many times has been drenched with the blood of our forefathers fighting to throw off the ecclesiastical yoke from the state, and the suggestion of a return to these medieval conditions with their horror and their torture should not be tolerated for a moment.

Laws should be passed prohibiting any preacher, or combination of preachers, from delivering or attempting to deliver their membership or for office, and suitable legislation should be passed preserving the sanctity of the pulpit from political vandals. It is as much a menace to church and state for a politician to occupy the pulpit as for a minister to preach a political sermon. He has no more right to take his pulpit from his parishioners than a politician has to take his politics from his voters. A preacher cannot make political trite rich by using any more than he can make profanity respectable by practice. It is one of the ironies of fate that a preacher may become a scandal as well as a glory to civilization.

political rather than their strategical motives. Only in being on the offensive can Russia hope to impress Roumania and eventually to win her over to her side or at least to keep her neutral. But anybody who is somewhat acquainted with Balkan affairs, and especially with Balkan political intrigues, and anybody who has followed the course of events during the first and second Balkan wars, will agree that the policies of the Balkan states are dictated by one motive only: by selfishness.

Roumania observed a watchful attitude during the first Balkan war and joined the anti-Bulgarian league during the second Balkan war, because she was sure that she was the winner and because she knew that she was making the biggest gains with a minimum of sacrifices. Roumania is repeating the same policy at the present juncture. If she goes off to the one or the other side, she does so not from idealistic but from selfish reasons. In short, she will join those who are winning or who have the best chances to win. Today it seems that she is not yet convinced who is going to win. But if she is not impressed by the new Russian offensive in the south it appears that she considers the centre of interest to be more in the Balkans than in Transylvania.

If Serbia is crushed and if the line of communication between Berlin and Constantinople via Nish-Sofia is established, Roumania could not possibly join the Allies or even remain neutral, because from her point of view the Central Allies would have won the cause. And as Roumania has made up her mind to do something out of this war and as she would not be able to get Transylvania she will look to Bessarabia. From the point of view of Roumanian policy Bessarabia is better for her than Transylvania because the same feudal system that prevails in Roumania prevails in Bessarabia, while the agrarian system in Transylvania is built upon the small farmer.

But quite apart from any other consideration Roumania today could not join the Allies because she is lacking in ammunition. Neither Germany nor Austria-Hungary have sold ammunition to Roumania since the war, because they were not sure of her attitude, in case complications should arise, and because her benevolent neutrality towards Russia was much resented both in Vienna and in Berlin. Roumania could not buy ammunition from the Allies because there is no communication between Roumania and the allied countries. She could of course buy ammunition from Russia, but Russia was herself lacking ammunition and hence could not sell any to Roumania. Should Roumania join the Entente allies, they would certainly supply her with ammunition, while in the other case she would run the risk of being cut short of ammunition.

It seems therefore that not only are the efforts of the Russians in vain, but also the hopes of France and England. It is impossible to imagine that after England has left Serbia for her fate, and after Bulgaria has nearly crushed Serbia, and after Greece has declared her firmness to remain neutral in spite of the pressure brought to bear upon her by the allies, that Roumania should attack Austria and Bulgaria. If Roumania did not turn her whip against Austria at the time when the Russians were in the Carpathian mountains and nearby took possession of the Bukovina, they certainly will not declare war on the Central Allies at the time when the Russians, instead of climbing the Carpathian mountains, are battling with the Germans in the neighborhood of "Nink."

Roumania is quite determined to get something out of this war, her present neutrality has the same meaning as her neutrality during the first Balkan war, i. e., to chose the right moment to attack those who are losing the game and there are eight chances to twenty that within a short time the Roumanian army will have crossed the Besarabian border to get hold of the fertile province of Besarabia that has a Roumanian population and that was wrested from Roumanian after the Roumanian-Turkish war.

TALKS ON THRIFT

No. 10.—HOUSEHOLD EFFICIENCY

"The woman who can save money wins masculine respect and feminine envy."—Mrs. Carey.

"The same methods which are used in a modern factory to eliminate false motions and waste of energy can and should be applied to the kitchen by the housewife," said Miss Martha Van Bunselaer, professor of Home Economics at Cornell University, in a recent talk on "Household Efficiency." She said that if the majority of the homes were presided over by wives who were simply pleasure loving parasites, wasting the earnings of their husbands, the consequence would be that their sons, the future lawmakers, would not be frugal in their expenditure of public money.

"Household efficiency," said Professor Van Bunselaer, "does not mean that a woman must skimp in the kitchen. She should manage that by applying a little reasoning power, eliminating waste here and a useless motion there, she can obtain the best results with the least possible outlay of time, money and energy."

Women work up as well as estimated in money the same as a man's. Women are earners and in reality have saved more money per capita than men, because it is in the home where there are the greatest possibilities of saving.

Where yearly incomes average from $1,500 to $1,800, 90 per cent of that income usually is spent in food, clothing and shelter. Since the woman is the one who does the spending, she should be able to spend wisely and obtain the greatest possible value for the least possible outlay.

Housewife, are you conducting your household along the lines of true economy? Or are you making your family go without certain nutritious foods because the prices are high, while at the same time throwing away more than enough good food to offset the amount you think you are saving?

A recent number of "The Ladies' Home Journal" contained a good article by Mrs. Christine Frederick on how to arrange a family expense budget under the seven headings of: Shelter, food, clothing, operating expenses, savings, luxuries and advancement.

NEW YORK LETTER

May 10, Oct. 20, 1915.

City dwellers are not finding the comfort of lower prices in increased receipts of food stuffs. Never has there been such a volume of farm products poured into this city. The staples are coming in by the train load; smaller crops and other products in car load after car load. The freight terminal facilities at the trunk lines are overtaxed by the tremendous influx of eatables. Yet prices for city consumers are going higher and yet higher. The reason is this: The great bulk of the shipments of farm products never come into the local market at all. New York, these days, is just a way station on the route to Europe. The food supplies are being shipped there to feed the armies of the Allies and New Yorkers, in this year of agricultural plenty are paying war prices for their foodstuffs. True, there are profits for some, big profits, but indirect taxation upon the masses.

Nor is this the only economic effect of the war. Wages in the industries engaged in supplying the Allies are steadily going up and the hours of labor are higher, cut down, while in other industries there is more or less stagnation. So prosperity is unbalanced, and leaders in industry are beginning to look forward to the re-orientation of war orders. The "morning after" will find enlarged and expensive plants and an ever stacked with high paid labor and the adjustment to conditions of normal trade will be painful alike to capital and to labor. Wall street is deliriously skyrocketing munitions stocks, "war brides" as they are called, the more conservative are beginning to look out for the falling of the stocks. And those who permit themselves to see ahead are beginning to think seriously of the warning given by George W. Perkins as to the necessity for this country to be prepared, when the war ends to meet the competition of the flood of foreign made goods that will pour into our market when the soldiers get back to their mills and shops.

The solution, obviously, is a tariff based on the actual needs of each industry. Mr. Perkins shows, however, in the name of common sense are we to get such a tariff under our present system of Congressional log-rolling. Hence, the increased possibility that the tariff he taken out of politics and that its adjustment to real needs be vested in a non-partisan tariff commission, a permanent body of experts always on the job and ready to deal with each trade emergency as it arises.

And peace may not be so far off. It is asserted with great confidence that terms have been formulated and will be communicated to President Wilson and to King Alfonso—terms on which Germany would be willing to open negotiations. It is used to be the defeated nation that said for peace, while the victors proudly bore on, feigning to be unwilling to stop the murderous business of fighting.

But why, indeed, should not the victors be big enough to make the first offer of terms? Why should not Germany, proved valiant at arms, be brave enough to risk the jeers of her foes and to propose peace?

However, such proposals may be misinterpreted, however, Great Britain may feel that it is her dearest wish to fight on and on, there is no doubt that her sanguine leaders have their eyes to the end and the ultimate for the rumored proposition from Berlin. This is realized in financial circles here, where the real extent of the failure of the Anglo-French financial circles here. The outward and visible sign of the failure is the fact that sterling exchange is lower than it has been for over a month.

It is curious by the way, how the phrases run in the reports of the "stock exchange." "In view of better strategic conditions" the market is up, "in view of less favorable" quotations are down. It does not seem to occur to the writers to designate for which of the belligerent sides they are better or less favorable. The fact is that Wall street looks on European conditions only as affecting their debtors and its spirits and bids are up and down according to the fortunes of the Allies—one of the long-protracted consequences of the loan.

At last the long-promised note on Great Britain's commercial warfare against America, which has been waiting for more than three months, has at last been published. It is reported to be on its way to London. But meanwhile new orders in council have been issued still further limiting American rights on the high seas. England finds it "not expedient" to admit that the American flag exempts a ship from confiscation.

One of the pro-Ally papers here objects to "foreign influences" within the United States. To this all Americans must agree, and the rule should be applied to those foreign influences that uphold the hampering of American commerce on the high seas as well as to those foreign influences that deal with contraband to cripple ships sailing hence with supplies for the Allies. Americans have a right to be indignantly intolerant of all such interferences with our lawful rights, whether the outrage is committed here or on the high seas.

The secret is out. The Republican Old Guard is for Ethelbert S. President. This is fairly deduced from a statement made by National Chairman Hilles, who trots out Root and seeks to dissuade the Whitman beam by saying that a canvass of 22 states shows not much sentiment for the governor of New York. Tut this diagnosis will be what it is in the states. Notwithstanding all Mr. Root's empuce, I venture to predict that Gov. Whitman will have the 46 delegates from the Empire state.

But are forecasters forgetting the primaries? Are they forgetting that in every state in which there are presidential primaries, Col. Roosevelt will probably figure in the Republican primaries? And who will limit the possibilities of such a candidacy?

wonderful economy, spending, it is charged, $300,000 less than the act results with the net result that the act result will amount to $350,000.

And the Mayor is trying to determine to compel economy in the school management, which spends annually over $40,000,000, without any control by the city government, which has to supply the money, but cannot say how it is to be spent.

The Board exhausted its funds for the evening high schools two months before the end of the year and came to the Board of Estimate for $250,000 more, whereat the Mayor politely asked President Churchill to resign, which he refused to do.

The Board of Education consists of 46 unpaid members, appointed for five years, in batches of nine. So far Mayor Mitchell has appointed eighteen members and also more to be appointed in December, will give him control of the Board.

War is a blessing to mankind, as it has been, a bloodiest war, while Dr. Inghel, the dean of the American medical profession, declares that the war will cast a blight upon the race for fifty years. The one sees through the war a curb upon the use of intoxicating liquors and the other sees loss of vitality, physique and possibly mentally.

Sing Sing is getting on the nerves of the public. The well-meant but haphazard efforts of Warden Osborne to make the state prison attractive to his inmates have resulted in grisly disorders and before long the Governor will have to bring the institution out of the cloud of idealistic theories and restore the idea that a prison is a place to punish, not to please.

BASSEN NOTES

Judge and Justice Lawrence Hanson went down to Rock Creek last Sunday to attend the meeting of the Rock Creek Pioneer club which was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Albert. About twenty-five or thirty were present and enjoyed the day as can only be enjoyed by the crowd of outdoorsmen. Their first meeting in days gone by were held in spite of many difficulties, and they have watched with pleasure the growing comfort and pleasantness of these occasions to get together. Only those who have lived through the strenuous early days of the tract can appreciate the real change that has taken place. The latter told by those outdoors are more thrilling than any novelist ever imagined, and they have all the details of the eye-witness.

Mr. S. S. Prudus has joined the pilgrimage to the San Francisco fair, starting overland this week in his new Empire car. In the party will be four other cars from Hanson, Kimberly and Twin Falls, Mr. Paulus expects to take in both fairs and then spend the winter in California.

Mrs. Clara B. Baker entertained the ladies of the Aid Society last Thursday afternoon. An unusually large number were in attendance, the work of preparing the menu for the Rally dinner being the special business to receive attention.

Mr. J. E. Atkeson has gone after the best record with a vengeance on his ranch south of town. He has noticed that the prospects were fair for taking off a good yield. Mr. Atkeson kept a strict account of the weight of beets hauled and also measured the ground carefully. The acreage did not quite reach two acres and the total weight of beets taken over the scales from this plot reached forty-six and seventenths tons. This makes a yield of approximately twenty-four tons per acre, which is right in line with the other record breaking crops of the Hansen country. The acreage in beets around Hanson is much larger than last year, and quite a good crop of three thousand tons. Before the crop is in, there will be a small mountain right to the heart of Hanson.

Jeff Kennedy was in the care of the physicians at the Twin Falls hospital for a few days last week, but is at home again very much improved. Last Thursday there appeared in Hanson the chief mail clerk from Portland, the division superintendent of the O. S. L. and a survey gang with rods and chains. The cause of all this was the distance from the postoffice to the depot and the rivalry that exists between our postmaster, Mr. O. D. Wilson and our station agent, Mr. E. Hubbard, for the privilege of carrying the mail to and from the depot. After several hours of measuring and re-measuring the distance with a large and interesting gallery following the play, the decision as to who won was postponed until the facts could be put before the board of arbitration. Perhaps the easiest way out of the difficulty would be to let the gentlemen in question take turns at the job.

On Friday evening of last week Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Protost entertained some of their neighbors of Hanson at cards. About ten ladies and gentlemen were invited and spent a very pleasant evening. They was stopped late in the evening to allow the guests to enjoy the delightful refreshments prepared by the hostess.

Mrs. W. E. Hubbard and her son, Howard, returned Friday from Denver where Howard has been under the care of a doctor.

THEATRICAL NEWS

PARAMOUNT STARTS MONDAY

First Offering of Paramount Productions From McCutcheon's Novel.

Theodore Roberts, America's foremost character actor, will appear at the Lavington Monday, November 8th, on the night only in the Paramount production "The Circus Man," adapted from the famous novel "The Rose of the South," by George Barr McCutcheon. The play abounds with love and thrills and the charm of circus life. One of America's greatest tented organizations was chartered for an entire day in filming the actual scenes of circus life depicted in this film. Owing to the great demand for Paramount productions throughout the country and because of the exceedingly high rental of the subjects this production will be exhibited one day only, Monday, November 8th.

No matter how great the "punch" becomes in Paramount films or how intensely interesting the plot, or uproariously funny the comedy situations, the plays are always clean and wholesome, fit for all classes of men, women and children to see. It is to be regretted that this cannot be said of all film productions. Clean plots, however, are not dull ones and the majority of Paramount plays are taken from the greatest plays and novels ever written.

Minstrel's Friday and Saturday. Culligan's Famous Colored Minstrels are the attraction at the Lavington Friday and Saturday. Their program is clean, new, interesting and entertaining. The regular picture program including the second episode of the great American serial "Sea of the Navy." In this episode of "Sea" the plot thickens. More glimpses are had of navy life and the action takes on a faster stride. It is well worth seeing.

TWO VAUDEVILLE TURNS

A Program of Variety for the Last Three Nights of the Week.

For the last three nights of the week the Orpheum is putting on a program of pleasing variety. The vaudeville turns are good. Howard and Dolores are seen in a refined comedy and singing act. The O'Henry Brothers are very good in their comedy-musical act. "The Knights of the Trails" is a thrilling western story in two parts, with William S. Hart, the cowboy actor playing the leading role supported by a first class company.

MODERN PACKING COMPANY

To Baby's Mother: One day a letter came to us and folded in it were some pressed flowers and a scrip of white goods. As we read, we remembered a dear little baby; we had made many, many negatives of the little fellow. Could it be possible that his laugh was hushed forever, that his busy little hands were still? There were tear-blots on the letter and there were tears in our eyes as we read; we, too, had loved this baby. We knew that nothing could greatly comfort the mother's heart in such a desolate hour but we were glad she had the beautiful pictures of her baby; and we shall always prize the grateful letter she wrote about them at a time when only pictures and memories were left to her.

SOCIETY NOTES

Society items for this column will be gladly received by The Times. Phone 125W, The Society Editor. The ladies of the Shamrock club met with Mrs. Arthur Skillman Thursday, October 29, and jointly refreshments were served during the afternoon. The Showing club met last week with Miss Ruth Hewitt at the Costello home. Miss Florence Costello gave several instrumental solos. Twelve members were present. One of the pleasantest Halloween dinners was that given by Mr. and Mrs. K. Ostrander Saturday evening. The table decorations were carried out in the Halloween idea. Yellow was the predominating color and was used whenever possible in the decorations. The guests were Dr. and Mrs. Shepherd, Dr. and Mrs. Piper and Miss Alice Craven was the charming little hostess at a luncheon given Saturday afternoon for a few of her intimate friends. The luncheon table was very prettily decorated with jack o' lanterns and pumpkins. At each place was a tiny yellow candlestick holding a yellow candle. The place cards bore verses written in invisible ink and when the candle flame, they became clear. After the three course luncheon the guests toasted marvelously in the fall. The following were present: Miss Patricia Wilson, Peggy Wall, Flo Pearson, Jane Maxwell, Alice Taylor, Catherine Larned, and Helen W. Egan. Mrs. Maxine Hillings dressed as a witch assisted Mrs. Craven. The most successful party ever given by the Unity club was the fourth annual Halloween party at Maple Hill farm, the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Bellville, southwest of town, on last Friday evening. The guests of the nature of a benefit for the new rest room in Twin Falls, each adult being charged ten cents admission. Messrs. Egan, Wilce, Raymond and Simpson of the Twin Falls band, accompanied by Mrs. Henderson at the piano, furnished the orchestra music for the evening. Vocal solos by Misses Evans and Denn and Mr. Blo, a song by three little girls, Ina Jean Emery, Grace and Martha Thomas, and recitations by Adele Evans and Rita Osborne completed the evening's program. An appropriate Halloween lunch was served cafeteria style. About forty families were present. Thirty small children were present at a surprise Halloween party at the home of Mrs. Lester Dittler, on Saturday afternoon, October 30. The house was very prettily decorated in black and yellow. Crude oil jack-o'-lanterns furnished light in the darkened rooms, while a real witch presided over the games. Those present at the party were Misses Egan, Egan, Gail Davidson, Hazel Booth, Mabel Smith, Mildred Nelson, Gertrude Jones, Esther Pelech, Clara Pelech, Ruth Argo, Ruthery Lawson, Juliet McWhorter, Hazel McDowell, Ruth Hedeeman, Marie Riedeman, Charlotta Riedeman, Hilda Kelo, Mattie Kelo, Dorothy Kelo, Elizabeth Caldwell, Evelyn Hartfield, Peggy Wall, Patricia Wilson, Alice Taylor, Alice Craven, Jane Maxwell, Wilma Kelo, Wilma Hanks, Rita McKean, Helen Warner, Irene Warner, Maxine Hillings, Polly Thomas, Evelyn Savage, Ayben Booth, Flo

GOOD ROADS

ROADS IN BETTER CONDITION

Split-Log Drag of Great Service in Keeping Thoroughfares in Shape—How It is Built. The use of the split-log drag is important in putting the roads in shape. There are over 2,000,000 miles of earth roads in the country, and the split-log drag is of great service in keeping them in economical repair. The drag is used in many states and in foreign countries. It is used with two, three, or four horses, and is easily constructed.

It is a mistake to construct a heavy drag. A dry red cedar log is the best material for a drag. Red elm and walnut when thoroughly dried are excellent, and box elder, soft maple, or even willow are preferable to oak, hickory or ash. The log should be seven or eight feet long, cut from top to bottom in inches in diameter, and carefully split down the middle. The heaviest and best slabs should be selected for the front. At a point on the front slab four inches from the end that is to be at the middle of the road locate the center of the hole to receive a cross stake, and 22 inches from the other end of the front slab locate the center for another cross stake. The hole for the middle stake will lie on a line connecting and halfway between the other two.

The back slab should then be placed in a position behind the other. From the end at the middle of the road measure 20 inches for the center of the cross stake, and six inches from the other end locate the center of the outside stake. Find the center of the middle hole as before. When these holes are brought opposite each other, one end of the back slab will lie 18 inches nearer the center of the road way than the front one. The holes should be two inches in diameter. Care must be taken to hold the auger plumb in boring these holes in order that the stakes shall fit properly. The two slabs should be held 30 inches apart by the stakes. The stakes should taper gradually toward the ends. There should be no shoulder at the point where the stakes enter the slab. The stakes should be fastened in place by wedges only. When the stakes have been placed in position and tightly wedged a brace two inches thick and four inches wide should be placed diagonally from the end of the front slab so that the lower edge shall lie within an inch of the ground, while the other end should rest in the angle between the slab and the end stake. A strip of iron about three and one-half feet long, three or four inches wide, and one-half of an inch thick may be used for the blade.

An ordinary trace chain is strong enough to draw the implement, provided the chain is not fastened through a link. The chain should be wrapped around the rear stake, then passed over the front slab, raising the chain at this end of the slab allows the earth to drift past the face of the drag. The other end of the chain should be passed through the hole in the end of the slab.

NEW SANITARY MILKING PAIL

Milk Pail Entirely Covered. A great deal of the dust and dirt which goes into the milk will be excluded therefrom by the use of the new sanitary milking pail recently invented. The principal feature of this design is that the bucket is always entirely covered and that the milk is strained before it reaches the interior of the pail. The pail has extensions on either side by which it is quite convenient to support it upon the knees rather than between them, thus lessening the labor and adding to the security of the contents of the bucket. The upper portion of the bucket is protected with a lid which almost covers the entire opening, leaving only a small aperture at the rim and in precise this aperture is covered by a piece of one cloth with provision made for securing this in place. As the milk is drawn from the cow it enters the bucket through this opening, passing first through the fabric. With reasonable care there is the possibility of foreign matter entering the milk pail supplied with this feature.

Feeding calves dry grain. Digestive tract is small and frequent feeds of modest amount during first month is best. In feeding skim milk calves the grain needed to supply the missing fat may be corn, barley, oats or a mixture. Occasionally a feeder has skim milk or alfalfa, or clover hay, but it is better to use a mixture of these. These are all high in protein, and when any one of them is combined with skim milk and alfalfa—both high in protein—an unbalanced ration results and scours or other digestive troubles follow. The digestive tract of a calf is small and frequent feeding of small amount during the first month is best. During the first month it is better to grind the grain fed. At the end of this period either oats or corn may be fed unground. Hard grains like kaffir and milo give best results when ground. All grain should be fed dry in a trough. Mixing feeds with milk is not recommended, as calves chew their feed better when fed dry.

WINTER CARE OF ROADS

Open Ditches and Drains Open and Use Drain to Prevent Injury.

Water, not cold, is the cause of the deterioration of the road specialists of the department. Cold weather does not so readily injure roads, no matter whether they are earth, gravel, or macadam. In fact, an earth road will stand more traffic when it is solidly frozen than at any other time. Excess water, however, is always detrimental to a highway. When cold weather turns this water into ice, the powerful bursting effect of the water when it does is greatly increased. Ice causes considerably more space than the water from which it is formed, and every person who has lived in a cold climate is familiar with the powerful bursting effect of water when left to freeze in a confined vessel. The same action takes place when a wet road freezes in any considerable degree. The result is as we generally term it in road parlance, the road heaves. Later, when the frost leaves, the road is disintegrated and has to be replaced. The same is repeated a number of times during the winter, a gravel or macadam road may be practically destroyed and an earth road may become entirely impassable.

A dry road will not heave. Rock, gravel, sand and even clay when properly dry contract slightly on freezing. In order to expand on freezing, these materials must contain or be mixed with water, and the more water they contain the greater the expansion which takes place. But so long as the road remains frozen the expansion does not become apparent. Hence the frequent and serious heaving of the road which injures the surface. The injury was done when the water in the road froze and the particles of earth or clay were pushed together by the expanding water of the freezing water. The thaw merely allows the ice to melt and assume its original volume as water.

The remedy is self-evident. Keep the water out of the road. The time to begin preventive measures is early in the fall, before the rains begin. If the road goes into the winter thoroughly dry, with the surface and drainage in good condition, the chances are extremely favorable that it will come out all right the following spring. Keep the ditches and drains open. Remove all accumulations of weeds, grass, etc., which tend to retain moisture and obstruct drainage. Furthermore, do this work early, while the ground is still dry and hard. Vegetation and litter held water like a sponge and allow it gradually to soak in and soften the earth. The job before the road man is to keep the surface dry, surface formed in the summer time from becoming softened by the fall and winter rains and snows. When the fall rains begin the earth on a gravel road should be dragged frequently to prevent the formation of ruts and the collection of water. All roadbeds should be placed in surface should be carefully filled in and consolidated. During the winter, whenever a thaw is coming on, the cross drains and side ditches should be opened up as far as possible so as to prevent water from collecting along the roadway. If the thaw is so pronounced that the roadway is softened, the drag should be used; sometimes one round trip of the drag, with the hitch reversed, will entirely rid the earth road of slush and melting snow and leave the road surface practically dry. Don't get the idea that the drag is not needed on your earth and gravel roads in the winter time. Instead, keep it where you can get at it readily for if the winter is an ordinary one you will need it many times. Winter destruction begins in the early fall. The best way to prevent such destruction is to forestall it. Keep the road dry and remember that so long as it remains so it will not be seriously injured by frost. Keep the drains open, the ditches clear, remove all vegetation and litter and use the drag often. If the road is kept dry to a depth of 2 feet below the surface there will be little trouble from the coldest winter—U. S. Department of Highways.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Meeting of the State Board of Education.

The recent meeting of the State Board of Education, October 15th-22nd, was held in the north this time for the purpose of allowing the members to inspect the normal schools. At the meeting, the state university at Moscow, members who attended were Herman J. Ross, president; H. Harland, vice-president; Evan Evans, secretary; W. S. Bruce, Miss Bernice McCoy, state superintendent, and Commissioner Sisson. T. A. Walters, the only member who was not present, has been in touch with the board and in committee, passed on many of the subjects discussed. President Brannon of the university and President Black of the normal school met with the board at the sessions at their respective institutions.

Show Growth and Progress. Reports of enrollment, financial standing and general conditions were received from all the other institutions and in every case, growth and progress was shown to the board. "The Idaho Technical Institute," especially," said Dr. Sisson, "showed fine progress in its new form. The school, until this year offered instruction only in the years corresponding to the high school course. By authority of the last legislature, two years of college work were added and part of the Idaho Technical Institute. This year the enrollment in the upper classes is greatly increased, showing that the new plan meets a real need.

No Defects Coming. "Financial reports of the six institutions show that all are living within their allotment of the state school funds and the board will make the report of this item, as it did in 1914, without a cent of deficiency in any institution. This has been accomplished despite the reductions made by the last legislature in the budget presented by the board for the year has been cut to fit the cloth. This has caused some loss of income for it has been impossible to carry on the investigation of injurious insects, especially the alfalfa weevil and experiments in orchard irrigation.

Improvements Few. "At both Lewiston and the university, the sums allotted for improvements have been used to the greatest advantage. Hildenbaugh Hall, the women's dormitory at the university, has been thoroughly renovated and its capacity increased and hygienic value doubled by the addition of a two-story sleeping porch. At Lewiston, the best that has been possible is the remodeling of the assembly room, together with a few minor betterments. There is need for more class rooms and dormitory space at Lewiston but no funds for this purpose were available this year.

University Makes Record. "The report of the university, and the suggestion made by members of the board showed that it is larger than ever before in its history, displays a spirit of hope and enthusiasm among both students and faculty and has widened the scope by the addition of new departments. The standards of work and scholarship are being raised so that the Idaho institution is able to compare its work with the other colleges and universities in the land.

"Director Center of the university extension department, presented an exhaustive report of the immense work done by his department. This report will be published soon and distributed. Among other things it showed that the dairy herd has been installed on the Caldwell demonstration farm and buildings erected on the Sandpoint farm, both of which institutions are now beginning to pay their way. He presented plans for the winter work in farmers' institutes and movable schools, which will be strengthened by additions from the faculty of the Idaho Technical Institute.

Discuss Public School. "The board took up at length its plans for handling the public school problem with their ninety thousand pupils. The special committee which has charge of this work made its report and suggested plans for giving $500 of high schools, telling of the beginning already made. Proposals were made for going carefully into the question of possible improvements in the elementary course of study. "Receptions were held for the board at both the university and the normal school, at which members of the board met the faculty and students. Members of the board and the commissioner spoke at the university assembly Wednesday. While at Moscow Dr. Sisson delivered a series of three lectures before the school of education on various phases of that study. The lectures were illustrated by charts.

INSPIRES POETRY

Dodge Owner Makes His Delight Known in Appropriate Verse.

Here is what Mr. W. H. Miller, of Gooding, Idaho thinks of the Dodge car after driving one over twelve thousand miles over all kinds of roads. Away out here in Idaho The hills are mighty steep. For they have been in years gone by The home of mountain sleep. There's deep, white sand to penetrate There are steep hills to climb, But for a car, the little Dodge She does it mighty fine. She rounds the highest mountains She climbs the steepest grades And for the state of Idaho She's the only car that's made.

Bring out your big eight cylinder, And then your sixes, too, And when you fail to drive them all We'll put the Dodge car through. For she is built to climb the hills; We have her here to show To those who will really take the time To stop and look-her through.

And when she's had a thorough trial And shown what she can do, You'll say her then if you want a car That'll always see you through. There've been cars built for many years As everybody knows, But very seldom is one built That really always goes.

She isn't built for greatest speed But truly when you buy, You want a car for greatest power And not a car, to fly. Yet fifty miles in every hour She'll easily do in high; That's really fast enough to ride. Then, customer, why not buy?

For here there is no sand too deep For climbing she's a bear I really believe if you start her up She'll climb the golden stair. —W. H. MILLER, Gooding, Idaho.

A UTILITY CAR

Dodge Brothers announce that they regard their winter roadsters and touring cars as utility cars, particularly the roadster. This handsome closed model is put forward as the ideal car for the physician, the salesman or any man who must do winter driving. The beautiful lines of the Dodge Brothers models are retained and the specially built top fits tight. It is electrically lighted and cloth upholstered. In the spring it may be removed and the regular mohair top, which comes as part of the equipment substituted.
